42. when they had nothing to pay, &c.—It is when we are utterly emptied of our self-righteousness, Rom. vii. 9—25, and have nothing to depend upon but the free mercy of God in Christ, ch. iii. 21—31, that we enjoy the forgiveness of sins, as described ch. viii.

love him most—'love is the fulfilling of the law,' Rom. xiii. 10.

43. Thou hast rightly judged—see Nathan's parable to David, 2 Sa. xii. 1—14.

44. I entered into thine house—this Jesus had done at the special invitation of the Pharisee, ver. 36, p. 229.

46. My head with oil, &c.—not only were kings set apart by anointing with oil, as Saul, 1 Sa. x. 1, David, xvi. 13, [Ps. lxxxix. 20,] Jehu, 2 Ki. ix. 3, but the custom of pouring oil upon the head is understood to have been common among the Jews—Brotherly love is 'like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard: that went down to the skirts of his garments,' Ps. cxxxiii. 2.

47. for she loved much—this was the evidence of her having experienced the Divine forgiveness—'We love him, because he first loved us,' 1 Joh. iv. 19—'We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren,' iii. 14.

to whom little is forgiven—Jesus takes the Pharisee upon his own ground, as supposing himself less in need of forgiveness than the woman; he had certainly given evidence of loving little, ver. 44—6—see ch. xvi. 15, § 69; xvii. 9, § 70.

NOTES.

40. Simon, I have somewhat to say. A courteous mode of requesting permission to address the host.

41. Five hundred pence. δηναρια. These were Roman denarii or pence, worth each about sevenpence halfpenny of our money, amounting in all to 15*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*

The other fifty. 1*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*

[42. Frankly forgave. Freely forgave, or forgave entirely, without any compensation. So God forgives. But he does so on the ground of the atonement made by the Lord Jesus. Yet it is without compensation from man or angel. The atonement of Christ is as much a gift as the pardon that is granted by virtue of it. It is clear that by the creditor here, our Saviour meant to designate God—and by the debtors, sinners. Simon, whose life had been comparatively upright, was denoted by the one that owed fifty pence—the woman, who had been an open and shameless sinner, was represented by the one that owed five hundred. Yet neither could pay. Both must be forgiven, or perish.]

44. And he turned to the woman, and said unto Simon, &c. Our Lord now contrasts the incivility of Simon, who had neglected the usual offices of attention, with the respectful assiduity of the woman. And here we have allusions to several customs in use among the Jews to guests who were made very welcome.—1. Their sandals were unloosed, and their feet washed and carefully wiped, and, if the person were of high rank, anointed. 2. A kiss was the usual salutation on entrance, or as soon as the person was comfortably seated. 3. The head was usually anointed with aromatic oils or unguents.

Seest thou this woman? You see what this woman has done for me, compared with what you have done.

I entered into thine house. Having entered at thy invitation, I might have expected all the usual rites of hospitality.

Thou gavest me no water, &c. Among eastern people it was customary, after travelling, to wash the feet; and to do this, or to bring water for it, was one of the rites of hospitality—see on ver. 38, p. 230.

45. No kiss. Simon had even neglected this mark of welcoming Jesus to his house—see 'Scrip. Illus.' on ver. 38. As Simon had done none of these, he seems to have regarded our Lord only as an ordinary person.

Hath not ceased to kiss my feet. How striking the difference between the conduct of Simon and that of this woman! The most splendid entertainments do not always express the heartiest welcome. There may be much insincerity, much seeking of popularity, or some other motive; but no such motive could have operated in inducing a broken-hearted sinner to wash the Saviour's feet with tears.

46. With ointment. This ointment was a mixture of various aromatics, and was therefore far more costly and precious than the oil commonly used for anointing the head—see on Mt. xxvi. 6—13, § 81.

[47. For she loved much. In our translation this would seem to be given as a reason why her sins had been forgiven—that she had loved much before they were pardoned. But this is clearly not the meaning. This would be contrary to the whole New Testament, which assumes that love succeeds, not precedes forgiving that he required not to be forgiven, but could rather make God his debtor; he was right in supposing that he who had the strongest sense of forgiveness was likely to feel and manifest the greatest power of love.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

40 ver. Let us beware of entertaining hard thoughts of others: the Pharisee, supposing that Jesus did not know the character of the woman, judged that he could not be a prophet; but Jesus proved that he did know character, by revealing the Pharisee's own secret thoughts.

[41—3 ver. Forgiveness is the ground of evangelical obedience: the Pharisee was altogether wrong in principle as to his own state and standing, in thinking

44—6 ver. Let us not merely shew kindness, but be courteous with our kindness. Jesus is not insensible to those little attentions whereby affection is

HE THAT OVERCOMETH, AND KEEPETH MY WORKS UNTO THE END, TO HIM WILL I GIVE POWER OVER THE NATIONS.—Revelation ii. 26.
GODLY SORROW WORKETH REPENTANCE TO SALVATION NOT TO BE REPENTED OF: BUT THE SORROW OF THE WORLD WORKETH DEATH.—2 Cor. vii. 10.

LUKE vii. 48—50.

48 And he-said unto-her, Thy sins are-forgiven. 49, And they that-sat-at-meat-with him 50 began to-say within themselves, Who is this that forgiveth sins also? And he-said to the woman, Thy faith hath-saved thee; go in peace εἰς εἰρήνην.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

48. Thy sins are forgiven—The forgiveness of sins may be known in this life, Ps. ciii. 2, 3. . . . —'I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you for his name's sake,' I Jno. ii. 12. The divine forgiveness is the rule of our conduct to one another: 'And be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you,' Eph. iv. 32—the ground of forgiveness is the all-sufficient atonement of 'the Lamb of God,' Jno. i. 29, 36, § 10, pp. 69, 70.—'For he hath made him to be sin for us,' &c., 2 Co. v. 21.

50. Thy faith hath saved thee—We are saved by Christ through faith: 'But before faith came, we were kept under the law, shut up unto the faith which should afterwards be revealed. Wherefore the law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith. But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster,' Ga. iii. 23—5.—and we are saved by faith in him, 'For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God,' Eph. ii. 8.

NOTES.

giveness; and which nowhere intimates that sins are forgiven because we love God. Her loving is mentioned not as the cause or reason, but as the effect and evidence of her being forgiven—see 'Scrip. Illus.']

To whom little is forgiven. He who thinks he has but little need of forgiveness, or but little to be forgiven.

49. Within themselves. ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, 'privately among themselves'—see 'Scrip. Illus.' Sect. xxii. p. 166, on Mk. ii. 8.

Who is this, &c. A very pertinent question. Who could he be but God? Man could not do it; there is therefore no wonder that they were amazed.

50. Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace—see Mk. v. 34, § 36, p. 282.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

expressed, and whereby our love to him is manifested towards the poor of his people.

Love is not only to be manifested in minute matters, but also in sacrificing much for others.

[47 ver. If we would know much of the power of love, let us meditate deeply upon the forgiving grace of God; and if we would enjoy a sweet sense of forgiveness, let us seek to possess and to manifest much of the love of Him who hath redeemed us. If our religious views issue only in suspicions and harsh judgments of others, we have great occasion to suspect ourselves.]

[48. Let us improve the grace which is given, and God will confirm it to us the more: the woman had been already forgiven, and was bringing forth the fruit of forgiveness; but now it is said plainly unto her, 'Thy sins are forgiven.']

49, 50 ver. The Pharisees were the contrast of the woman in love, as well as with regard to that which produces it. They wanted faith—they knew not Him through whom alone forgiveness comes—they said, 'Who is this that forgiveth sins also?' whilst of the woman Jesus could say, 'Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace

SECTION 30.*—(G. 11, .2.)—JESUS SETS OUT UPON THE SECOND GENERAL CIRCUIT OF GALILEE: AND WHEN THAT IS OVER, RETURNS TO CAPERNAUM.† THE MULTITUDES AGAIN RESORT TO JESUS: HIS RELATIONS HEARING OF THEIR IMPORTUNITIES, GO FORTH WITH A VIEW TO RESTRAIN HIM. Mark iii. 19—21. Luke viii. 1—3.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Luke viii. 1. Jesus makes a second circuit of Galilee, shewing the glad tidings of the kingdom.

—— viii. 2, 3. The twelve are with him during this journey, and certain women which minister of their substance.

Mark iii. 20. The crowd is so great that the disciples have not convenience to eat bread.

—— iii. 21. His friends, when they hear of such proceedings, wish to restrain him, saying, 'He is beside himself.'

(G. 11,) No. 30. Jesus second general circuit.—From Nain through Galilee to Capernaum.

MARK iii. 19.
[Ch. iii. 19, § xxvii. p. 207.]

LUKE viii. 1—3.

* And it-came-to-pass afterward εν τῳ καθεξῆς, that he went-throughout διωδευε every city and village, preaching and shewing-the-glad-tidings of-the kingdom of God: and the twelve were with him, and certain 2

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. viii. 1. went throughout every city, &c.—this was Jesus' second general circuit of Galilee—see 'Notes,' infra.

the twelve—their names, Mt. x 2—4, § 27, p. 206; and commission, ch. x. § 30, p. 294.—their reward in the resurrection, ch. xix. 28, § 75.

NOTES.

Lu. viii. 1. Every city and village. Of Galilee.—See Sect. ii. p. 9, 'Scrip. Illus.,' Lu. i. 26, 'Galilee;' and Sect. xviii. p. 118, 'ADDENDA,' 'On Jesus' First General Circuit of Galilee.

The glad tidings of the kingdom of God.—See 'Kingdom of heaven,' Sect. vii. p. 50, Mt. iii. 2, 'Note;' and Sect. xvi. p. 108, Mk. i. 14, 'Note;' also 'Scrip. Illus.,' p. ib.

* Lesson XXX., in the Course Graduated for Simultaneous Instruction, includes Luke vii. 36—50, pp. 229—232, with this Sect. XXX.

† See 'Note,' next page.

MARK iii. 19.

19 § and they went into an house.

LUKE viii. 2, 3.
women, which had been healed of evil spirits and infirmities, Mary called Magdalene, out of whom went seven devils, and 3 Joanna the wife of Chuza Herod's steward, and Susanna, and many others, which ministered unto him of their substance.6 *
[Ch. viii. 4, § xxxii. p. 242.]

(G. 12.) Jesus' relations go forth to restrain him.—At Capernaum.

MARK iii. 20, .1.

20 And the multitude cometh together again, so that they could not so much as eat
21 bread. And when they heard of it, they went out to lay hold on him: for they said, He is beside himself. †

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. viii. 2. Mary called Magdalene—she followed Jesus to the last, Mt. xxvii. 55, 6, § 92—she saw him laid in the sepulchre, ver. 61—she was one of the first at the sepulchre on the morning of the resurrection, ch. xxviii. 1, and the first to whom Jesus appeared after his resurrection, Mk. xvi. 9, § 93.

3. ministered—see the ministration of Martha and Mary, Jno. xii. 2—8, [Mt. xxvi. 6—13, Mk. xiv. 3—9,] § 81—of 'the woman which was a sinner,' Lu. vii. 36—47, pp. 223—231—'women . . . laboured with Paul in the gospel,' Ph. iv. 3—see the kind of female ministration required of widows supported by the church, 'well reported of for good works; if she have brought up children, if she have lodged strangers, if she have washed the saints' feet, if she have relieved the afflicted, if she have diligently followed every good work,' 1 Ti. v. 10.

Mk. iii. 21. beside himself, &c.—'For neither did his brethren believe in him,' Jno. vii. 5, § 54—some Jews went so far as to say, 'He hath a devil, and is mad; why hear ye him?' x. 20, § 55—Paul also was, by Festus, said to be beside himself, Ac. xxvi. 24, 5—'whether we be beside ourselves, it is to God,' &c., 2 Co. v. 13—'If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye,' 1 Pe. iv. 14.

NOTES.

2. Mary called Magdalene. So called from Magdala, the place of her residence. It was situated on the western side of the sea of Galilee, south of Capernaum. To this place Jesus retired after feeding the four thousand—see Mt. xv. 39, § 47. She seems to have been a woman of some wealth—comp. Mk. xv. 40, .1, § 92; xvi. 1, § 93.

Out of whom went. By the power of Jesus.

3. Chuza. Is by some thought to have been the nobleman who applied to Jesus to heal his son, and of whom it is said, 'Himself believed, and his whole house,' Jno. iv. 46—54, § 14, p. 100.

Herod's steward. Herod Antipas, who reigned in Galilee. He was the son of Herod the Great—see § 7, p. 49, Lu. iii. 1, 'Notes.'

[Of their substance. Their property; their possessions. Christians then believed that when they professed to follow Christ, it was proper to give all up to him—their property, as well as their hearts. And the same thing is still required—that is, to commit all that we have to his disposal; to be willing to part with it for the promotion of his glory; and to leave it when he calls us away from it.]

Mk. iii. 20. Could not so much as eat bread. Had neither room nor opportunity to get food. Their time and attention were so occupied, that they were obliged to forego their regular meals.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. viii. 1. Jesus taught not merely those that came to him; he went to the people throughout every city and village, thus giving to those that are sent by him an example of unwearied diligence in doing good. Whilst the multitudes of the city are given an opportunity of hearing the word, let not those who are dispersed in the villages be neglected; and let not an attention to those who dwell in the villages, or remote corners of the country, prevent a due ministration of the word to those who dwell in the cities.]

Jesus not only preached, or publicly proclaimed, he also taught, or shewed more familiarly, as in conversation, or by private instruction, the glad tidings of the kingdom of God; shewing to his followers how his truth may be most successfully, as well as most diligently spread abroad.

Jesus had not only given faithful warning of the approaching judgments that were about to desolate the land; he still continued to proclaim the mercy promised to those who were willing to enter the kingdom.

1—3 ver. We may not refuse the means that God bestows for facilitating the work in which we are called to engage. [Although Jesus carried about with him no credentials from either the Jewish rulers or Roman government, yet in the persons who accompanied him he presented sufficient evidences of his grace and power.]

Mk. iii. 20, .1. Those that labour much for God and the good of their neighbour, and who are willing to suffer privation and personal inconvenience in doing so, may expect to be misunderstood even by those who wish them well.

[Entire consecration to God is not that which men can readily understand. Even Jesus was in danger of being restrained, as if he were one beside himself; and those who thus regarded him were his friends! Alas, that so many professed friends of Jesus should be likeminded with them.]

How humbling the condition which the Son of God took upon him! He wandered about, the companion of a few ignorant and unlearned men—Jesus was even as a beggar for thee!

* 'The fact of this circuit . . . . . rests upon the single authority of St. Luke. St. Mark, after the ordination of the Twelve, which certainly took place out of Capernaum, adds, και ἔρχονται εἰς οἶκον (Hii. 19) —which would still be true, though, since the ordination, Jesus and the Twelve had both visited and left Capernaum, and had been anywhere else; provided that they returned thither again, before what begins to be next related.

'The time taken up by it, on the same principle as before, would be three or four months at least; and if it began about the feast of Pentecost in our Lord's second year, which was May 19, it would be over about the feast of Tabernacles, which began September 23.

† 'The close of this circuit is indicated here, by the return of our Lord, with his disciples, to Capernaum, alluded to, Mk. iii. 19; and from this point of time, as the sequel demonstrates, must be dated also the course of proceedings at Matthew xii. 22.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. pp. 328, .9.

† Mark iii. 21 critically explains Matt. xii. 46, (Sect. xxxi. p. 240.)—Greswell 'On the Irregularities of the Gospels,' Vol. I. Diss. i. p. 30.

OPEN REBUKE IS BETTER THAN SECRET LOVE.—Prov. xxvii. 5.

SECTION 31.—(G. 13, .4, .5.)—A DEMONIAC, BLIND AND DUMB, IS BROUGHT TO JESUS AND HEALED. THE PHARISEES ASCRIBE THE MIRACLE TO SATAN, AND BLASPHEME AGAINST THE HOLY GHOST. THE PHARISEES DEMAND A SIGN. JESUS ANSWERS THEM. THE RELATIONS OF JESUS ARRIVE. HE TELLS WHO ARE HIS BRETHREN. Matt. xii. 22—60. Mark iii. 22—35.—AT CAPERNAUM.—

See Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxxiii. pp. 560, 614.*

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. xii. 22, .3. Jesus having dispossessed a blind and dumb demoniac, the people are amazed, and question whether he may not be indeed the promised Messiah.

—— xii. 24. Mk. iii. 22. Scribes from Jerusalem, and Pharisees, hearing this, and unable to deny the reality of the miracle, sneeringly insinuate that it was 'by Beelzebub, the prince of the devils' that Jesus did cast out devils.

—— xii. 25, .6. —— iii. 23—.6. Jesus knowing their thoughts, that they were seeking to quench conviction in themselves and others, by evil surmises, which they might well know had no foundation in truth, exposes the absurdity of their conclusion, and intimates, that Satan was not so foolish as they were, who by their dissensions were about to bring their city and house to desolation.

—— xii. 27. —— Jesus further shews that their insinuation was grossly inconsistent with the pretensions of their own disciples. These knew whether it was by satanic power that Satan was cast out.

—— xii. 28. —— The question is important. When God gives such signs, as the miracle just wrought, it is a clear indication that he is about to appear more manifestly than is usual in the government of the world; and to act either in mercy or in judgment, according as men have taken warning, or have become hardened, by the signs previously given.

—— xii. 29. —— iii. 27. Jesus farther warns them that the first great step towards ruin is resisting, or putting restraint upon, the Spirit of God; only by the Spirit could they be safely warned, and made strong for meeting the impending danger.

—— xii. 30. —— —— There can be no neutrality in this warfare.

—— xii. 31. —— iii. 28, .9. Any kind of sin or blasphemy may sooner be forgiven than blasphemy against the Holy Ghost. It cannot be passed over in this world, and it exposes to eternal punishment in the world to come.

—— —— —— iii. 30. The occasion of the foregoing solemn remonstrance is their having ascribed to an unclean spirit that which was done by the Spirit of God.

Mt. xii. 33, .4. —— —— Jesus further urges that the tree must be judged of according to its fruit. They proved themselves to be evil, by the abundance of evil words which proceeded from them.

—— xii. 35. —— —— The good man and the evil may either of them be known by what they produce.

—— xii. 36, .7. —— —— Men will be judged for, and according to, their words.

—— xii. 38. —— —— Although the true tokens of his Messiahship had already provoked them to blasphemy, the scribes and Pharisees say, 'Master, we would see a sign from thee.'

—— xii. 39, 40. —— —— Jesus replies, that no sign would be given them but that of his own death, and remaining under the power of death until the third day.

—— xii. 41, .2. —— —— He shews that Gentiles, the men of Nineveh, and also the queen of the south, would rise up in the judgment and condemn the men of that generation.

—— xii. 43—.5. —— —— The discourse of Jesus begins now to partake more of the nature of parable; in the language of which, he shews that the cleansing from idolatry, and other reforms which the Jews had undergone, would, unless they became the habitation of God, only render them the more tempting a prize for the devil, and that their case was likely to become sevenfold worse than it was before. —See also Lu. xi. 24—.6, § 62.

—— xii. 46—50. —— iii. 31—.5. Being told that his mother and brethren stand without, desiring to speak with him, he answers that those who listen to his instruction are nearer and dearer to him than any can be because of an earthly relationship. Jesus is thus preparing his disciples for the kingdom being taken away from the Jews, and given to another nation, whom they were to regard as their brethren, rather than those who were merely the children of Abraham according to the flesh.

(G. 13,) No. 31. A demoniac, blind, and dumb, is brought to Jesus and healed.

MATT. xii. 22, .3.

[Ch. xii. 21, § xxvi. p. 203.]

22 Then was-brought-unto him one-possessed-with-a-devil, blind, and dumb: and he-
23 healed him, insomuch-that the blind and dumb both spake and saw. And all the people were-amazed ἐξίσταντο, and said, Is not this the son of-David?

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xii. 22. one possessed . . . , blind, and dumb—'They brought to him a dumb man possessed with a devil,' Mt. ix. 32, § 36, p. 285—see also Lu. xi. 14, § 62.

23. amazed—'the multitudes marvelled, saying, It was never so seen in Israel,' Mt. ix. 33, § 36, p. 285 'the people wondered,' Lu. xi. 14, § 62.

son of David—see Mt. i. 1, § 4, p. 23, and on Lu. i. 32, .3. § 2, p. 10.

NOTES.

22. One possessed with a devil, blind, and dumb. There is no other instance of a blind demoniac recorded in the Gospels.

[23. The son of David. By ὁ υἱὸς Δαυὶδ is meant the Messiah, promised under that character. The multitude may have seen in this miracle the fulfilment of the prophecy of Isaiah, ch. xxxv. 5, 'Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped.' This inference was drawn by the common people, and not by the proud and haughty Pharisees. To David it had been promised, that a son of his would sit upon his throne for evermore; the same is 'the Lord our Righteousness,' who 'shall reign and prosper.' The word 'David' means 'beloved,' which Christ emphatically is, both with regard to the Father, who gave Him as the great expression of his love to man; and also with regard to his people, who now yield to HIM the throne of their affections; submitting to the law of his kingdom, which is LOVE, and looking forward to the coming of his kingdom in which 'love' shall reign triumphant in glory.]

* See ADDENDA, p. 241, 'On the Blasphemy against the Holy Ghost.'

A SERVANT WILL NOT BE CORRECTED BY WORDS: FOR THOUGH HE UNDERSTAND HE WILL NOT ANSWER.—PROV. XXIX. 19.

SEEST THOU A MAN THAT IS HASTY IN HIS WORDS? THERE IS MORE HOPE OF A FOOL THAN OF HIM.—PROV. XXIX. 20.

The Pharisees ascribe the miracle to Satan, and blaspheme against the Holy Ghost.

MATT. xii. 24—37.

24 [a] But when the Pharisees [b]

[c] heard it, they said,[d]

[e] This fellow doth not cast-out devils, but by εν
Beelzebub the-prince of-the devils.

25 And Jesus knew their thoughts,[f]

and said unto them,

Every kingdom divided μερισθεισα against itself is-brought-to-desolation ερημουται;
[g] and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand:
26 and if Satan cast-out Satan, he is-divided against himself;
how shall then his kingdom stand?[h]

27 [i] And if I by Beelzebub cast-out devils,

MARK iii. 22—30.

[Ch. iii. 21, § xxx. p. 233.]

[b] And the scribes which came-down 22 from Jerusalem[c] said,
[d] He hath Beelzebub, and [e]

by εν the prince of the devils casteth he out devils.

[f] And he called them unto him, 23 and said unto them in parables,
How can Satan cast-out Satan?
And if a kingdom be divided 24
μερισθη against itself, that kingdom cannot ου δυναται stand.[g]
And if a house be divided 25 against itself, that house can not stand.
And if Satan 26 rise up against himself, and be divided,

[h] he can not stand, but hath an end. [i]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xi. 24. Beelzebub, or 'bul'—'the god of Ekron'—Ahaziah, the king of Israel, sent to consult him with regard to his recovery, 2 Ki. i. 2—6—called 'Beelzebub,' or 'god of dung.'—See Greek Testament, Mt. x. 25, (§ 39, p. 300;) Lu. xi. 15, § 62—'Prince of the devils,' Mt. ix. 34, § 36, p. 285.

25. knew their thoughts—see on Mk. ii. 8, § 22, p. 166.

26. Satan cast out Satan—Lu. xi. 17, 18, § 62.

27. your children cast them out?—'Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and he followeth not us,' Mk. ix. 38, § 52.

NOTES.

24. Beelzebub, or 'bul.' Belzebub, or Baal-zebub, an idol deity of the Ekronites, 2 Ki. i. 2. From the word which imports the god of flies, (those insects being worshipped at Ekron by the name of זבוב, 'Zebub,' a fly,) it would appear that the Ekronites considered him as having the command of the various insects with which in those warm climates they were infested, and which frequently gathered in such swarms as proved both a noisome and deadly plague. The Ekronites being near neighbours of the Jews, and the great veneration which they had for this idol, made him the object both of the horror and detestation of the devout worshippers of the true God. The Jews are said to have changed the name of this deity to בעל זבול, 'Baal-zebul,' the dung-god, a title expressive of the utmost contempt. Indeed, among the ignominious names given by the Jews to idols, the general and common one was זבול, 'Zebul,' dung, or a dunghill. Many instances of this are given by Dr. Lightfoot in loc. And to express in what detestation the Jews held this idol, they also appropriated his name to the most hateful being in the universe, calling the devil, or the prince of the fallen angels, Beelzebub.

The prince of the devils. A subordination and headship was believed to exist among both good and bad angels; and this not only by the Incantores and Exorcistæ, &c., but by the Rabbis, and even the Grecian philosophers.

[Mk. iii. 23. How can Satan cast out Satan? Satan does defeat himself, and wicked men do work their own destruction, through the overruling providence of God; but it is absurd to suppose that Satan will designedly and directly go in opposition to the interests of his own kingdom. We can only expect him to do that which is like himself, EVIL; but granting the miracles of dispossession to be wrought by Satan, still such working ought not to be hindered, as in no other way than by being divided against himself can his kingdom be so speedily brought to desolation.]

24. Divided against itself. The blasphemers had come from Jerusalem, ver. 22, in which city was soon to be remarkably fulfilled the truth of our Lord's words; for which see Josephus' description of its siege by Titus. In the very temple the factions zealously sought each other's destruction, and thus hastened the accomplishment of their doom, 'Your house is left unto you desolate,' Mt. xxiii. 38, § 85; 'There shall not be left here one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down,' xxiv. 2, § 86.

[Mt. xii. 27. If I by Beelzebub cast out, &c. 'That there were persons among the Jews who professed to cast out demons by exorcisms, and invocation of the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, we learn both from the Scriptures—see Mk. ix. 38, [Lu. ix. 49,] § 52; Ac. xix. 13; and from Jos. Ant. viii. 2, 5, vii. 6, 3, and from the early fathers. The argument, therefore,

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xii. 24. Those who have the greatest outward opportunities of knowing the truth, are sometimes the farthest from its attainment, as were the Pharisees and scribes who came down from Jerusalem. We must not adopt, without examination, the opinions of men, however professedly religious or learned.

Let not the followers of Jesus be surprised if they should be maligned by those who ought to know better; even the Prince of Peace was accused, by the religious instructors of the Jews, of working his miracles by 'the prince of the devils.'

25 ver. Let us imitate the meekness of Jesus, who so mildly reasoned with his traducers upon the folly of their opinions; and this although he had certain knowledge of their evil state of mind with regard to himself.

[26 ver. Let us beware of seeking the peace of Satan's kingdom, by refraining to speak the truth and work righteousness; and equally let us beware of injuring the cause of Christ by promoting disunion among the children of God.]

SINNERS ARE LIKE THOSE SPIDERS WHO WEAVE WEBS TO THEIR OWN DESTRUCTION.

IT IS A FEARFUL THING TO FALL INTO THE HANDS OF THE LIVING GOD.—Heb. x. 31.

MATT. xii. 28—31.

by whom do-'your children'-cast-them-out? therefore they shall-be your judges.
28 But if I cast-out devils by the-Spirit of-God, then the kingdom of God is-come unto εφθασεν εφ' you.
29 Or-else how can one enter into a strong man's house, and spoil διαρπασαι his goods, except he-'first'-bind the strong τον ισχυρον man? and then he-will-spoil his house.
30 He that-is not with me is against me; and he that-gathereth not with me scattereth-abroad.
31 Wherefore I-say unto-you, All manner of sin πασα αμαρτια [k] and blasphemy shall-be-forgiven unto men:

MARK iii. 27, .8.

No man can enter into a strong 27 man's house, and-spoil διαρπασαι his goods, except he-will-'first'-bind the strong τον ισχυρον man; and then he-will-spoil his house.

Verily I-say unto-you, 28
All sins παντα τα αμαρτηματα
[k] shall-be-forgiven unto-the sons of men, and blasphemies wherewith-soever they-shall-blaspheme: [l]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

28. by the Spirit of God—'With the finger of God,' &c., Lu. xi. 20, § 62.

29. bind the strong man—'The joy of the LORD is your strength,' Ne. viii. 10—Believers are 'strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man,' Ep. iii. 16—But as Israel 'limited the Holy One of Israel,' Ps. lxxviii. 41, and 'vexed his holy Spirit,' Is. lxiii. 10, so are Christians in danger of quenching the Spirit, 1 Th. v. 19, and of putting restraint upon his operations, beyond what the Scriptures prescribe, 1 Co. xii.—xiv.—'Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty,' 2 Co. iii. 17—Refusing the Spirit liberty to act, we engage in the spiritual warfare in our own strength, and so fall before the enemy—'Is the spirit of the LORD straitened? are these his doings?' Mi. ii. 7—'Ye are not straitened in us, but ye are straitened in your own bowels,' 2 Co. vi. 12.

spoil his house, &c.—'And I will give it into the hands of the strangers for a prey, and to the wicked of the earth for a spoil; and they shall pollute it. My face will I turn also from them, and they shall pollute my secret place: for the robbers shall enter into it, and defile it,' Ezek. vii. 21, .22.

30. He that is not with me, &c.—so Lu. xi. 23, § 62—It is only when being guided by his wisdom, and supported by his power, that we can be prevented from marring his work, and procuring shame to his followers—'And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming,' 1 Jno. ii. 28.

31. All . . . sin—'The blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin,' 1 Jno. i. 7.

shall not be forgiven—'There is a sin unto death: I do not say that he shall pray for it,' 1 Jno. v. 16.

NOTES.

is, "If those who cast out demons prove themselves to be leagued with Satan, then must your disciples be also leagued with him; and the censure will apply to them as well as unto me." '—Bloomfield.]

Comparing Matthew xii. 27, with Mark ix. 38, § 52, and Acts xix. 13, we are led to the conclusion that it was in the name of Christ, and not by the name of the dung-god, that their 'sons cast out devils.' Had the Pharisees answered the question of Christ, they would have stood self-confounded before the people, for their reply would have been, 'In your name.'

Your children. יהם, by an idiom derived from the customs of the Jews, denotes disciples—as 'A certain man of the sons of the prophets said,' &c., 1 Ki. xx. 35; and so Paul, 'Unto Timothy, my own son in the faith,' &c., 1 Ti. i. 2.

[28. But if I . . . by the Spirit of God, &c. By Divine energy; as in Lu. xi. 20, § 62, 'with the finger of God.' The reasoning is this: 'But if I cast out demons by Divine power, I perform miracles by the aid of God; hence it follows that I am sent from God. But if I be sent from God, you should believe me when I announce to you the kingdom of God.']

[29. Or else how can one enter into, &c. It has been thought that our Lord is here pointing out the folly of supposing that he acts by a power from, and consequently under Satan; since he evinces superiority over Satan, by overpowering him, and despoiling him of his authority. May not our Lord refer rather to the danger in which the Jews were, as binding the Spirit of God to their own party and mode of operation, in place of allowing him to put forth his power by whomsoever and in what way he chose? By their unbelief and blasphemy they prevented the Spirit from shewing them their danger, and the way in which their peace might be secured. Thus the enemy was allowed to prevail; and thus their house was left unto them desolate. Doing despite to the Spirit of grace was the precursor of destruction to the old world; and it was the crowning sin of the Jews. Nations, before being made signal examples of judgment, have frequently signal warnings in mercy. These being despised, the Spirit of God departs from them, and an evil spirit takes possession; then comes the spoiling of whatever was good, and devils riot in man's destruction.]

30. He that is not with me, &c. He that is not contending against Satan and his kingdom is against Christ. Unbelief and indifference quench the Spirit.

31. Blasphemy. βλασφημια, denotes injurious expressions, or detraction in the largest acceptation, whether against God or man.

Shall be forgiven unto men. αφεθησεται τοις ανθρωποις, 'in men is pardonable;' it means, not that every such sin shall actually be pardoned, but that it is, in the Divine economy, capable of being pardoned.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

27 ver. Let us avoid making statements with regard to others, which naturally recoil upon ourselves.

[29 ver. Let us beware of seeking to bind the Spirit of God, by which Spirit alone we can be strengthened with might in the inner man to resist Satan's assaults.]

[30 ver. Let us not think we can be neutral in the great spiritual conflict—if we tamely betray our trust, by allowing the enemy to enter, and lay bonds upon the Spirit, we are responsible for the scattering which must necessarily follow.]

MATT. xii. 32—.5.

32 but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall-not-be-forgiven unto men.
And whosoever speaketh a-word against the Son of man, it-shall-be-forgiven him:
but whosoever speaketh against κατα the Holy Ghost, it-shall-not-be-forgiven him,
neither in this world εν τουτῳ τῳ αιωνι, neither in the world to-come εν τῳ μελλοντι.

33 Either make the tree good, and his fruit the tree corrupt, and his fruit corrupt:
34 by his fruit. O-generation γεννηματα of-vipers, how can-ye, being evil, speak good things?
35 περισσευματος of-the heart the mouth speaketh.
man out-of the good treasure of-the heart bringeth-forth good

MARK iii. 29, 30.

but he that-shall-blaspheme 29 against εις the Holy Ghost hath never εις τον αιωνα forgiveness, but is in-danger ενοχος of-eternal αιωνιου damnation: because they-said, He-hath 30 an-unclean spirit."

[Ver. 31, p. 240.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

32. against the Son of man, &c.—'Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do' — thus Jesus prayed for his executioners, Lu. xxiii. 34, § 91—and the prayer was heard even in the case of their centurion, Mt. xxvii. 54, § 92.

against the Holy Ghost—our Lord's prayer for his executioners, as above, Lu. xxiii. 34, § 91, supposes their ignorance; so does Peter's address to the people, 'I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers [the Romans]' Ac. iii. 17—'none of the princes of this world knew: for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory,' 1 Co. ii. 8—Paul had been 'a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and injurious: but (he) obtained mercy, because (he) did it ignorantly in unbelief,' 1 Ti. i. 13—When the Jews had not only killed the Lord Jesus, but forbad those who spoke by the Holy Ghost to speak to the Gentiles, that they might be saved, they filled up their sins, and wrath came upon them to the uttermost, 1 Th. ii. 15, 16.

33. his fruit good, &c.—'Ye shall know them by their fruits . . . . Every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit,' Mt. vii. 16, 17, &c., § 19, p. 140—see Lu. vi. 43, 44, § 27, p. 210—'A good man out of the good treasure of the heart bringeth forth good things,' ver. 35—'But now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life,' Rom. vi. 22.

34. vipers — see Mt. iii. 7, § 7, p. 52—'They hatch cockatrice' eggs . . . that which is crushed breaketh out into a viper,' Is. lix. 5—'Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth,' Jno. viii. 44, § 55—comp. Ge. iii.—'the children of the devil,' 1 Jno. iii. 10—'the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan,' Rev. xx. 2 how can ye, being evil, speak good, &c.—After the generation of vipers is described, Ps. xii. 1—5. . . . . it is said, 'The words of the Lord are pure words'—'Thou shalt keep them, O Lord, thou shalt preserve them from this generation for ever,' ver 6, 7.

out of the abundance of the heart, &c.—Lu. vi. 45, § 27, p. 210; Ja. iv. 11—6—see the contrast between what flows from false wisdom, iii. 14—.6, and the wisdom that is from above, ver. 17, .8.

NOTES.

Blasphemy against the Holy Ghost. The generality of interpreters place the sin against the Holy Ghost in the wilful malice of those who withstand the evidence of truth, and who will not acknowledge the miracles of Christ to be wrought by the finger of God, but maliciously, and against the conviction of their own consciences, impute them to the prince of darkness. This was certainly the crime of the Pharisees to whom Christ applied his discourse; and those also become guilty of the same crime who oppose or persecute the doctrine, ways, and servants of Christ because they are spiritual, or have anything of the Spirit appearing in them, and that contrary to their own convictions. Such as are guilty of this sin are excepted from pardon, because the death of Christ was not appointed for the expiation of it; and there being no sacrifice, there can be no satisfaction, and, consequently no pardon. According to Lightfoot, the Jews had hope that every sin would be atoned for by death: that they would have their part in the kingdom promised to Israel. Christ, however, in opposition to this opinion, shews that violent contempt of God, as here, should never be forgiven.

33. Either make the tree good, and his fruit good. The goodness of my doctrine argues its Divine origin, as good fruit proves the tree to be good.

34. O generation of vipers. Christ here applies the argument which he had suggested in the previous verse. They were a wicked race; like poisonous reptiles, with a corrupt and evil nature. They could not be expected to speak good things, i. e., to speak favourably of him and his works. As the bad fruit of a tree was the proper effect of its nature, so were their words against him and his works the proper effect of their nature.

Out of the abundance. εκ του περισσευματος, 'out of the exuberance, the overflowing abundance,' i. e., when the heart is fully charged, the mouth will declare the quality of its principles and passions; and thus, by the blasphemies uttered by the Pharisees, their true character was unveiled. The abundance or fulness of the heart produced the words of the lips.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

31 ver. Let us take care how we speak of the Spirit of God. Let us not think lightly of Him who is the only true Witness of Jesus. However the Spirit's testimony may be disregarded by man, it is of high esteem in the sight of God.

[32 ver. He who imputes to the spirit of evil that which is from the good Spirit of God, may most surely expect punishment. Other sins, God in his mercy may pass over, but this he cannot: and let us not forget that we are under an awful responsibility to judge aright: neither indifference of feeling, nor perversity of judgment, can, on this subject, be tolerated by God.]

33 ver. There must be an entire change of heart in those who would speak and act according to the will of God. We must judge of men by their actions. We shall know him in whom dwells the Spirit of God by the fruits of the Spirit.

[34 ver. Men do not inherit the Spirit of God by natural descent, neither is it necessarily conveyed by any human ordinance: those who were descended from Abraham, and who had been circumcised according to the law, and many of them baptized by our Lord's forerunner, are by the true Witness denominated a 'generation of vipers.']

35 ver. No man can be expected to prove a true dispenser of the word of life, unless he has had his own heart renewed by Divine grace.

MATT. xii. 36, 37.

things: and an evil man out-of the evil treasure bringeth-forth 36 evil things. But I-say unto-you, That every idle ἀργον word that men shall-speak, they-shall-give account thereof in the-37 day of-judgment. For by thy words thou-shalt-be-justified, and by thy words thou-shalt-be-condemned.

(G. 14.) Jesus answers the Pharisees, who demanded a sign: and then concludes his former discourse.

MATT. xii. 38—45.

38 Then certain of-the scribes and of-the-Pharisees answered, saying, Master, we-would 39 see a-sign from thee. But he answered and-said unto-them, An-evil and adulterous generation seeketh-after a-sign; and there-shall-no sign-be-given to-it, but the sign of-40 the prophet Jonas: for as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly;
so shall-the Son of man-be three days and three nights in the heart of-the earth.
41 The-men of-Nineveh shall-rise in judgment τῇ κρισει with this generation, and shall-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

36. every idle word—'Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers. And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption,' Ep. iv. 29, 30—see also v. 4—6—'For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing,' &c., Ec. xii. 14—'in the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ,' Ro. ii. 16.

37. for by thy words, &c.—'He that keepeth his mouth keepeth his life: but he that openeth wide his lips shall have destruction,' Pr. xiii. 3—'For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation.' Ro. x. 10—'Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked servant,' Lu. xix. 22, § 80—the Lord will convince ungodly sinners of all their hard speeches, which they have spoken against him, Jude 15.

38. a sign—see before, Jno. ii. 18, § 12, p. 81; Mt. xvi. 4, § 47, Vol. ii.

40. three days, &c.—Jon. i. 17. . . . Jno. ii. 19, § 12, p. 82; 1 Co. xv. 4.

41. the men of Nineveh, &c.—Lu. xi. 32, § 62—'the people of Nineveh believed God, and proclaimed a fast,' &c., Jon. iii. 5—10.

greater than Jonas—the name of that prophet means 'a dove'—but Jesus was He of whom the Holy Ghost, by all the prophets, bare witness, and at whose baptism 'the Holy Ghost descended in a bodily shape like a dove,' Lu. iii. 22, § 8, p. 59.

NOTES.

36. Every idle word. Though ῥῆμα ἀργὸν refers more immediately to the malignant calumny of the Pharisees against Jesus; yet it certainly includes all false, slanderous, and vindictive accusations of our neighbours; all discourse which is in any respect injurious to God or man, which is contrary to truth, decency, and evangelical purity of heart.

37. By thy words thou shalt be justified, &c. I. e., the whole tenour of thy conversation will be an evidence for or against thee in that great day.

38. We would see a sign. This demand they often made—see ch. xvi. 1, [Mk. viii. 11,] § 47; Lu. xi. 16, § 62. Insomuch that it was almost a characteristic of the Jews to ask a sign. So 1 Co. i. 22, 'the Jews require a sign.' We find from Lu. xi. 16, § 62, that the sign they asked was one from heaven. They had witnessed several δυνάμεις, or ordinary miracles, on earth; now they seem to demand the appearance of some celestial one, which would be the strongest test of Jesus' pretensions. Dr. Lightfoot informs us that the signs they were taught by their traditions to expect from the Messiah, as a proof of his Divine mission, or Messiahship, were, that he should raise the old prophets, and the old holy famous men from the dead; and bring down manna from heaven; or, they might require a sign founded on Da. vii. 13, 4, in which the Son of man is mentioned, as coming with the clouds of heaven, and reducing all nations under his dominion.—See Jno. vi. 30—5, § 43, p. 327.

[39. Evil and adulterous. They were literally, but especially in regard to spiritual matters, guilty of adultery—giving to the creature what belongs only unto God.]

40. For as Jonas was three days, &c.—See the book of Jonah. This event took place in the Mediterranean sea, somewhere between Joppa and Tarshish, when he was fleeing from Nineveh.

In the whale's belly. In Jonah i. 17, the Hebrew word here rendered a whale, is 'a great fish.' And the Greek word, Κῆτος means, in general, any large fish. The Κῆτος mentioned in Oppian is a shark, because he is described as having three rows of teeth. But the whale's throat is capable of admitting little more than the arm of a man. It is said, that there is in the Mediterranean a fish called the lamia, ἀπὸ τοῦ λαιμοῦ, from the size of its throat, in which a man may stand upright.

In the heart of the earth. I. e., beneath its surface, as Jonah was said to be in the heart of the sea, though not in its middle or centre.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

36 ver. We must not merely be careful to abstain from what is positively evil in conversation, but also from all unprofitable talk. However such trifling may be allowed of men, it is dishonouring to the Spirit of God, who commands that nothing proceed out of the mouth 'but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers,' Ep. iv. 29.

[37 ver. There must be clearness and consistency in our testimony for Jesus—this can only be produced by the Spirit of God through the renewal of the heart and life; and the lack thereof convicts of alienation from the life of God.]

[38, 39 ver. Ere we expect to be favoured with further evidence, let us see that we have made a right use of what has been already bestowed.]

39 ver. That our understandings may be clear, to discern the truth of God, in his word and working, let us honestly seek to be made pure in heart, and holy in life.

39, 40 ver. There can be no true and profitable discernment of signs, by the Jews, until their eyes have been opened to see that wondrous sign which was given them in the death and resurrection of Jesus.

[The Lord reckons that as done in deed, which is done in purpose; thus the time of Christ's death seems to have been reckoned from the morning it was finally determined upon by the priests, viz., our Thursday morning, from which time to his resurrection there were just three days and three nights.]

condemn it: because they-repented at the preaching of-Jonas; and, behold, a-greater 42 πλειον than-Jonas is here. The-queen of-the-south shall-rise-up in the judgment with this generation, and shall-condemn it: for she-came from the uttermost-parts περατων of-the earth to-hear the wisdom of-Solomon; and, behold, a-greater πλειον than-Solomon is here.
43 When the unclean spirit is-gone-out of a man, he-walketh through dry ανυδρων places, 44 seeking rest αναπαυσιν, and findeth none. Then he-saith, I-will-return into my house from-whence I-came-out; and when-he-is-come, he-findeth it empty σχολαζοντα, swept,
45 and garnished κεκοσμημενον. Then goeth-he, and taketh with himself seven other spirits more-wicked than-himself, and they-enter-in and-dwell there: and the last τα εσχατα state of-that man is worse than-the first. Even-so shall-it-be also unto-this wicked generation.

THE WICKED PLOTTETH AGAINST THE JUST, AND GNASHETH UPON HIM WITH HIS TEETH.—Psa. xxxvii. 12.

THE LORD SHALL LAUGH AT HIM: FOR HE SEETH THAT HIS DAY IS COMING.—Psa. xxxvii. 13.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

42. the queen of the south, &c.—see as to the queen of Sheba's visit to Solomon, 1 Ki. x. 1; 2 Chr. ix. 1—the same as text, Lu. xi. 31, § 62.

43—5. when the unclean spirit, &c.—Lu. xi. 24—6, § 62.

walketh, &c.—Satan answered, 'From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it,' Job i. 7—'Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour,' 1 Pe. v. 8.

empty, swept, and garnished—the Jews of that age had eschewed the idolatry of their fathers, and become outwardly regardful of the law, and of the memory of the prophets, whom their fathers had killed, Mt. xxiii. 29, 30, § 85.

the last state of that man—'For if after they have escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, they are again entangled therein, and overcome, the latter end is worse with them than the beginning. For it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than, after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them,' &c., 2 Pe. ii. 20—2.

NOTES.

41. The men of Nineveh. The Ninevites had repented at the preaching of Jonah, though he worked no miracles in proof of his Divine mission, and his conduct was in many respects such as to leave no favourable impression; whereas with Christ all was widely different.

A greater than Jonas is here. πλειον, something greater. Our Lord chooses on this occasion, rather to insinuate, than to affirm, the dignity of his character; and to afford matter of reflection to the attentive among his disciples, without furnishing his declared enemies with a handle for contradiction.

[42. Queen of the south. The country over which this queen reigned is in 1 Kings x. 1 called 'Sheba,' and is supposed to have been that which in profane authors goes by the name Sabæa, and which was a city and province of Arabia Felix, to the south or south-east of Judæa. Yet Josephus does not allow her to have been queen of that country, because Arabia Felix, of which Sabæa was a part, was more to the east than to the south of Judæa. He says she took her title from Saba, a city of Meroe, an island in the Nile, over which she reigned, and the queens of which were afterward called Candace. This name strikingly corresponds with the same appellation, Ac. viii. 27. Arabia and Ethiopia were often mistaken for each other.]

The uttermost parts of the earth. A usual phrase to denote a remote country; such as was Sheba.—See 1 Ki. x. 1; 2 Chr. ix. 1.

A greater than Solomon is here. Solomon was wise, but Jesus is wisdom; Solomon hath his name, meaning peaceable, but Jesus is our peace, the true King of Salem. Solomon's conduct resulted in the destruction of his kingdom; but of Jesus it is said, 'Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end,' Is. ix. 7.

[43. Through dry places. 'Ανύδρων, deserts. Such as the deserts of Arabia, or of Lybia, or Libyæ squalentis arenæ. The Jews, like the Gentiles, supposed that evil spirits frequented deserts, when they were not directly employed in hurting mankind. 'Ανάπαυσιν, 'rest;' i. e. a place of abode. So Gen. xlix. 15. Heb. מְנוּחָה.]

44. Then he saith, I will return into my house, &c. The word house means dwelling-place, or habitation. The man is called his house, because he had been the place where the spirit dwelt.

Empty, swept and garnished, i. e., ready for his reception.

45. Seven. A definite for an indefinite number, to denote a sufficient number for the purpose. A proverbial expression. Comp. 2 Pe. ii. 20, .1—see 'Scrip. Illus.' supra; He. vi. 4—6. 4. 'For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, 5, and have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come, 6, if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame;' x. 26.—See on ver. 29.

[Even so shall it be also unto this wicked generation. By the parable, ver. 43—5, an impressive warning is suggested, drawn from the well-known case of a demoniac, who, after a half-recovery, succeeded by a relapse, becomes worse than ever. At the same time, the illustration is capable of a general application suited to all times and persons of every age. With respect to the minor circumstances of the illustration, they are merely accessory, and accommodated to the notions of the Jews, as to the haunts and habits of demons, (whom, they supposed, chiefly abode in waterless deserts,) and also as to those of demoniacs. Thus the words ζητοῦν ἀνάπαυσιν (in search of rest) καὶ οὐχ εὑρίσκει are accommodated to the latter; since restlessness was the characteristic symptom of the δαιμονιζόμενοι, or persons possessed.]

Though what is contained in these last three verses

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

41 ver. The message of God must be listened to and obeyed, whether accompanied with the sanction of human authority, as in the case of Jonah; or whether opposed thereby, as in the case of the greater than Jonah.

42 ver. If the queen of the south came from the uttermost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon, how much more willing should we be to honour the greater than Solomon!

[43 ver. There must not be merely a sending away of the unclean spirit; possession of the heart must be given to the Spirit of God—else outward reformations, and all graces and gifts which are attained, will only tend to the farther accommodation of the devil, who can only be effectually opposed by our being 'strengthened with might by the Spirit in the inner man,' Eph. iii. 16.]

44 ver. Let us not merely seek to withdraw our affections from evil, but to fix them upon that which is good.

45 ver. Let us seek unto God, and give due honour unto his Spirit, that we be not like that man whose last state was worse than his first.

(G 15.) The relations of Jesus arrive; their coming made known to Jesus: He shews who is most nearly related to Him.

MATT. xii. 46—50.	MARK iii. 31—5.
46 [a] While -* he yet-talked to the people, behold, his mother and his brethren	[Ch. iii. 30, p. 237.] There-came then his brethren 31 and his mother, stood without, desiring to-speak with-him.[b]	and, standing without, sent unto him, calling him.
47 [c] Then one said unto-him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to-speak with-thee.	[b] And the-multitude sat about him,[c] 32 and they-said unto-him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren without seek-for thee.
48 But he answered and-said unto-him that-told him, Who is my mother? and who are my brethren?[d]	And he-answered them, saying, 33 Who is my mother, or my brethren?
49 [e] And he-stretched-forth his hand toward his disciples, and-said, Behold my mother & my brethren!	[d] And he-looked-*round-about-on 34 them which-sat about him,[e] and-said, Behold my mother & my brethren!
50 For whosoever shall-do the will of-my Father which is in heaven, the-same is my brother, and sister, and mother.	For whosoever shall-do the will 35 of God, the-same is my brother, and my sister, and mother.

[a] Psa. xxxiv. 8.

[b] Psa. xxxiv. 9.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

46. mother, &c.—see also Lu. viii. 19—21, § 33, p. 262.

brethren—his brethren were James, Joses, Simon, and Judas, Mt. xiii. 55, [Mk. vi. 3,] § 37, p. 287.

48. who is my mother? &c.—she who bare him was Mary, but he refused to acknowledge her in his manifestations of Divine power, Jno. ii. 3, 4, § 11, p. 76.

49. behold my mother and my brethren!—'Beloved, now are we the sons of God,' 1 Jno. iii. 2—'For both he that sanctifieth and they who are sanctified are all of one: for which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren,' He. ii. 11—'Being born again,' 1 Pe. i. 23, .5.

50. whosoever shall do—'In this the children of God are manifest, and the children of the devil: whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother'—'We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren,' 1 Jno. iii. 10, .4.

NOTES.

may very properly relate to any person, or number of persons, yet from this clause the words are principally to be understood of the Jewish nation. No emblems could be more proper to describe the Jews, just before their final destruction by the Romans: they were obdurate, abandoned, and pressing on to their own ruin, as if they had been possessed by legions of devils.

[This parable describes the case of those weak and irresolute characters who make promises of amendment, but never give place to the Spirit of God. It exposes also the danger of their condition, and the futility of half-repentance. When the unclean spirit goes out of a man, i.e., when he checks for a season his vicious inclinations, and hesitates between virtue and vice, his mind is so divided, as to be insensible of a moment's enjoyment. He has neither the indulgences of passion, nor the serenity of piety to occupy it. All within is disquietude and restlessness. It is like the delusive calm before a tempest. In this state, before the wretched being can determine upon the path he shall follow, while he is wavering and uncertain, a temptation offers itself. This is expressed by the return of the unclean spirit into the 'house' from whence he had come out—the soul of the hesitating sinner, which he finds 'empty, swept, and garnished.' Being unoccupied by holy suggestions, it is easily assailable, and ready to surrender to the first enemy which attacks it. 'Then goeth he, and taketh with himself seven other spirits more wicked than himself.' Once more the victim of Satan, the relapsed sinner now grows hardened in crime. To drown the reproaches of his conscience, he becomes desperate, and plunges deeper and deeper into guilt. So 'the last state of that man is worse than the first;' for his case is the more aggravated, his disease is incurable, and his recovery hopeless.—See ver. 45. Comp. 2 Pe. ii. 20, .1. 20, 'For if after,' &c.—see 'Scrip. Illus.' p. 239.—See on ver. 29, p. 236.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

46 ver. However high the honour might be, of being nearly related to our Lord according to the flesh, let us know that a higher relationship is ours to enjoy, which honour we possess as being truly the disciples of Jesus.

The mother of Jesus, simply as such, hath not so high a place as the meanest of his true disciples: like other poor sinners, she could be blessed only as rejoicing in God her Saviour.

50 ver. If we would truly enjoy the honour of being the disciples of Jesus, let us seek in truth to do the will of our Father which is in heaven. 'The same,' said the Lord of Glory, 'is my brother, and sister, and mother.'

* Is critically explained by Mark iii. 21, § 30, p. 233.—Greswell, Vol. I. Diss. i. p. 30.

O TASTE AND SEE THAT THE LORD IS GOOD: BLESSED IS THE MAN THAT TRUSTETH IN HIM.

O FEAR THE LORD, YE HIS SAINTS: FOR THERE IS NO WANT TO THEM THAT FEAR HIM.

ADDENDA.

ON 'THE BLASPHEMY AGAINST THE HOLY GHOST.'—Matt. xii. 22—45; Mark iii. 22—30, p. 234.*

'The offence committed, Mt. xii. 22—45, p. 234, was that sin against the Holy Ghost. The sin against the Holy Ghost was consequently committed there and then, and by those persons, when and where, and by whom that charge was insinuated against our Saviour's miracles. But it is nowhere called the sin against the Holy Ghost; it is designated by no name except that of the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost; and this distinction is of manifold importance.

'For, first, the strain of our Lord's denunciations against both the offence and its authors is a sufficient proof that, whatever it was, it was a sin of words; whatever was the guilt of its authors, they had contracted this guilt by an offence in words, Mt. xii. 31—7.

'Secondly, the very essence of blasphemy is to be a sin of words. If any one will take the trouble to peruse the earlier, or, what is more to the purpose, the contemporary Greek writers, he will soon be satisfied that the term which expresses the sin of blasphemy has but one original and proper meaning, and but one common and ordinary acceptation. In the sense of evil or injurious speaking; of slander, traduction, calumny, or the like; it is precisely ὀνείδισος χαι το αἰσχος, βλασφημια, καθρησις, or to any similar term. Compare Mt. xv. 19;[a] xxvii. 39;[b] Lu. xxii. 65;[c] xxiii. 39;[d] Ac. vi. 11, 3;[e] xiii. 45;[f] xviii. 6;[g] xxvi. 11;[h] Rom. ii. 24;[i] xiv. 16;[k] 1 Co. iv. 13;[l] x. 30;[m] 1 Ti. i. 13;[n] vi. 1, 4;[o] Tit. iii. 2;[p] Eph. iv. 31;[q] Col. iii. 8;[r] 1 Pe. iv. 14;[s] 2 Pe. ii. 2, 11;[t] Jude 9,[u] &c.

a "For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies."

b "And they that passed by reviled him, wagging their heads."

c "And many other things blasphemously spake they against him."

d "And one of the malefactors which were hanged railed on him, saying, If thou be Christ, save thyself and us." e "Then they suborned men, which said, We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses and against God." "And set up false witnesses, which said, This man ceaseth not to speak blasphemous words against this holy place, and the law."

f "But when the Jews saw the multitudes, they were filled with envy, and spake against those things which were spoken by Paul, contradicting and blaspheming."

g "And when they opposed themselves, and blasphemed, he shook his raiment, and said unto them, Your blood be upon your own heads; I am clean: from henceforth I will go unto the Gentiles."

h "And I punished them oft in every synagogue, and compelled them to blaspheme; and being exceedingly mad against them, I persecuted them even unto strange cities."

i "For the name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles through you, as it is written."

k "Let not then your good be evil spoken of."

l "Being defamed, we intreat: we are made as the filth of the world, and are the offscouring of all things unto this day."

m "For if I by grace be a partaker, why am I evil spoken of for that for which I give thanks?"

n "Who was before a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and injurious: but I obtained mercy, because I did it ignorantly in unbelief."

o "Let as many servants as are under the yoke count their own masters worthy of all honour, that the name of God and his doctrine be not blasphemed." "He is proud, knowing nothing, but doting about questions and strifes of words, whereof cometh envy, strife, railings, evil surmisings."

p "To speak evil of no man, to be no brawlers, but gentle, shewing all meekness unto all men."

q "Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice."

r "But now ye also put off all these: anger, wrath, malice, blasphemy, filthy communication out of your mouth." s "If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye: for the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you: on their part he is evil spoken of, but on your part he is glorified."

t "And many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of." "Whereas angels, which are greater in power and might, bring not railing accusation against them before the Lord."

u "Yet Michael the archangel, when contending with the devil he disputed about the body of Moses, durst not bring against him a railing accusation, but said, The Lord rebuke thee."

'It is, consequently, in a derivative or secondary sense that it comes to denote what divines, or moralists, understand by the offence of blasphemy as such. It is not impossible for the Supreme Being himself to be made the object of injurious aspersion; that is, of obloquy: and, in that case, what would be simply evil-speaking, as levelled against a man, becomes blasphemy, because directed against God. Nor can it be denied that they who, according to St. Mark, had called the Spirit, by which our Saviour was inspired, ἀκάθαρτον πνεῦμα, and had confounded the pure and holy Spirit of God with the impure and malignant spirit of Beelzebul, had spoken evil of that Spirit, had traduced and maligned that Spirit, in the strictest sense. Hence, if that Spirit was really a person and divine, such injurious speaking of that Spirit was strict and proper blasphemy; that is, injurious speaking levelled against God.

'But is the proposition convertible, that all sin of which the Holy Ghost may be in any manner the object, is such sin as this? All unrighteousness, according to St. John, (1 Ep. v. 16, 7,) is sin; and all unrighteousness in Christians, who are supposed to be regenerate, and under grace, of which the only source and fountain is the Holy Ghost, must so far be sin against the Holy Ghost; because it must be sin against grace. But even in this sense, according to the same authority, there would be a sin not unto death as well as a sin unto death; both, such as might be committed by a brother Christian. The sin unto death, which might be so committed, and for which the apostle gives no encouragement even to pray, might be that sin against the Holy Ghost, which our Lord had pronounced unpardonable, both in this world and in the next. But the sin not unto death, which must include all other sins beside that, could not be the sin against the Holy Ghost in particular; though if committed, as the apostle supposes, by a fellow Christian, sin against the Holy Ghost in a general sense it must still be.

'In the application of human laws to human crimes, it is an acknowledged principle that the terms of every penal statute are to be rigidly and literally construed. The same rule is surely to be taken for our guide in interpreting this one, and the sole instance of God's extreme and severest malediction against some offence, which may be really committed, and become thenceforward unpardonable: for which neither the intercession of fellow-believers, nor the penitence of the offender—if penitence in such a case be possible—nor, what is more, the efficacy of the Christian atonement, can avail to procure forgiveness. . . . . .

'No reasoning can apply to extenuate the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost; especially if that blasphemy had been deliberately committed. For such an outrage upon the majesty and the holiness of God, to serve the most malignant purposes, and not more repugnant to truth, and derogatory to the Deity, than at variance with the common sense of mankind, no excuse could be assigned.'

* See Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxxiii. pp. 580—614. On the two dispossessions, and the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost;' or the comparison of Matt. xii. 22—45, (§ 31,) with Luke xi. 14—26, (§ 62).

THE END OF THE COMMANDMENT IS CHARITY. [241

SECTION 32.—(G. 16, .7.)—THE SAME DAY JESUS REPAIRS TO THE LAKE, AND BEGINS TO TEACH, IN PARABLES, THINGS RELATING TO THE MYSTERIES OR SECRETS OF THE KINGDOM, WHEREOF FIVE ARE NOW DELIVERED IN PUBLIC. BETWEEN THE FIRST & THE SECOND PARABLE, JESUS ANSWERS THE DISCIPLES, WHO INQUIRED WHY HE WAS TEACHING IN PARABLES: AFTER WHICH HE PROCEEDS TO THE REMAINDER OF THE PARABLES. Matt. xiii. 1—17, 24—35. Mark iv. 1—9, 26—34. Luke viii. 4—8.—AT THE SEA OF GALILEE.—See Gres., Vol. II. pp. 434—47.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Matt. xiii. 1, 2. Mark iv. 1. Luke viii. 4. Jesus having gone out to the sea-side, great multitudes gather unto him. He enters a ship and teaches the people, they standing on the shore

—— xiii. 3. —— iv. 2, 3. —— viii. 4, 5. He teaches them in parables: beginning with that of the Sower, shewing the various reception the word was to meet with in the different kinds of ground into which it was to be cast, in the going forth of the ministry of the word from among the Jews, who, as had just before been proved, were in the greatest danger of having their condemnation aggravated, through their rejection of the gospel.

—— xiii. 4. —— iv. 4. —— viii. 5. He begins with the case of the wayside hearers, from whom any favourable impression, made by the word, was easily removed, by such insinuations as had just before been made by the Jerusalem scribes and the Pharisees.

—— xiii. 5, 6. —— iv. 5, 6. —— viii. 6. The next field of labour is compared to stony ground, and which may illustrate the case of Asia Minor, where churches speedily sprang up, but which have long since withered away.

—— xiii. 7. —— iv. 7. —— viii. 7. The third field of labour was in southern Europe, where the seed was sown among thorns, which grew up with it and choked it.

—— xiii. 8. —— iv. 8. —— viii. 8. In north-western Europe, especially since the Reformation, the word has been more really productive. Our Lord notices three degrees of fruitfulness; but the highest falling very far short of what might be. In connection with this last field of labour has been the sowing of the seed over the whole world.

—— xiii. 9. —— iv. 9. —— viii. 8. The word, although wrapped in parable, and in the first instance specially appointed to different localities, is free to all who are prepared to receive it. 'He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.'

—— xiii. 10—13. —— Jesus, in answer to the inquiry of his disciples, tells why he spake to the people in parables. It was because they were altogether indisposed to admit the word.

—— xiii. 14, 15. —— He farther shews that the Jews had been sufficiently forewarned by prophecy (Is. vi. 9—13, p. 94) of what was now befalling them—their being hardened against the truth, and so left without the possibility of being benefited thereby.

Matt. xiii. 16, 17. Mark —— Jesus recognises the great and peculiar favour enjoyed by the disciples, in being given to hear and see the things which had been long looked forward to, with desire, by the prophets and other Old Testament saints.

—— xiii. 24—30. —— Jesus delivers the parable of the wheat and tares, shewing that, even in the favourite field, where is the most abundant crop, there is a distinction, not only as to quantity, but also kind of produce; that where the good seed has been sown, the enemy the most sedulously sows his tares; that the final separation is not to be looked for until the time of harvest; and that then the gathering together of the wicked for destruction will have the precedence of the gathering together of the righteous.

—— —— —— iv. 26—9. Jesus, by another parable, draws attention to the fact, that, like the growth of wheat, the development of the kingdom of God is progressive—first in promise, 'the ear;' then in form, 'the ear;' then in substance, 'the full corn in the ear;' and that the harvest will be no longer delayed than is really necessary for the ripening of the wheat.

—— xiii. 31, 32. —— iv. 30—2. By a fourth parable, that of the 'grain of mustard seed,' Jesus shews how, from a beginning exceedingly small, Christianity should increase, so as that under the shelter thereof those would seek to live, who at first might be seen endeavouring its destruction—comp. with Mt. xiii. 4, p. 243; Mk. iii. 22, § 31, p. 235.

—— xiii. 33. —— By the parable of the 'leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three measures of meal,' Jesus seems to intimate that there was a danger of the church retaining a concealed portion of the old leaven, by which what was at first pure spiritual nourishment might wholly become leavened.

—— xiii. 34, 35. —— iv. 33, 34. Jesus spake at this time wholly in parables, by which, things kept secret from the foundation of the world are made plain to those who willingly submit to HIS teaching.

(G. 16,) No. 32. *The same day Jesus repairs to the lake, and begins to teach in parables, relating to the mysteries or secrets of the kingdom, whereof five are now delivered in public.—Sea of Galilee.

MATT. xiii. 1—9.	MARK iv. 1—9.	LUKE viii. 4—8. [Ch. viii. 1—3, § XXX. p. 233.]
1 [a] The same day went Jesus out-of the house, [b] and-sat by the sea-side.
2 [c] And great multitudes were-gathered-together-[d] unto him,	[a] And he-began again to-teach by the sea-side: [c] and there-was-gathered unto him a-great multitude,	And when-much people 4 were-gathered-together, [d] and were-come to him out-of every city, [e]
so-that he went into a ship,	[e] so-that he entered into a ship,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xiii. 1. sea-side—see Mk. ii. 13, § 22, p. 167.

2. great multitudes—see on Mt. iv. 25, § 18, p. 116.

went into a ship—see before, Lu. v. 3, § 20, p. 154; Mk. iii. 9, § 26, p. 201—'Cast thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days.' Ec. xi. 1—it

* See ADDENDA, p. 251, 'On the beginning to teach in parables, and on the time and place of their interpretation.'

MATT. xiii. 3, 4	MARK iv. 2—4.	LUKE viii. 5.
and sat;	and sat in the sea;
and the whole multitude	and the whole multitude stood on the shore.	was by the sea on the land.
3 And he spake	2 And he taught them	he spake
many things unto them	many things
in parables,	by parables,	by a parable:
saying,	and said
	unto them in his doctrine,
Behold,	3 Hearken; Behold,
a sower went forth	there went out a sower	A sower went out 5
to sow;	to sow f	to sow
		f his seed: g
4 and	4 g and it came to pass,	and when he sowed,	as he sowed, h	as he sowed,
h some seeds fell by the	some fell by the	some fell by the way-side, i	way-side,	way-side;
		i and it was trodden down, and the fowls	and the fowls of the air	and the fowls of the air k

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

was in maritime countries more especially that the word was to take effect, Is. xxiv. 14, 15. . . . xli. 1. . . . xlii. 10, . . . —the first mission to the Gentiles was by Peter being sent from one seaport to another, Ac. x.—the first mission of Paul, the apostle of the Gentiles, was commenced by a voyage to Cyprus, xiii. 1—5.

3. parables—our Lord frequently spoke in such a manner, as that only the wise could understand—this method of teaching he commenced just after the scribes and Pharisees began their fault-finding, Lu. v. 30—6, § 22, p. 168; vi. 39, § 27, p. 209—the parable of 'The Sower' was just after the Jerusalem scribes had displayed their awful unpreparedness to receive his doctrine, ch. xii. [Mk. iii. 22], § 24, p. 235.

Mk. iv. 3. Hearken; Behold—our Lord addressed both the ear and the eye—he presented a lively picture to the mind, and which was afterwards to be spiritually applied to the hearts of those who had ears to hear—see Mt. xiii. 9, next page—comp. with Jno. xvi. 12—5, 25, § 87; Rev. ii. 7, &c.

a sower—the parable of the sower had long before been made use of, when also there was an earnest call to hearken—'Give ye ear, and hear my voice; hearken, and hear my speech. Doth the plowman plow all day to sow?' &c., Is. xxviii. 23—9.

4. way-side—see as to the design of the parable 'Note' on ver. 3—the way by which those who were first employed in sowing the good seed proceeded towards the field in which it hath been principally sown, was 'from Jerusalem, and round about unto Illyricum,' Rom. xv. 19—through Asia Minor, Ac. xvi. 4—12; Rev. i. 10—2—northward, Je. iii. 11, 12, . . . —and westward, Rev. vii. 2 (see 'Mimpriss' Map of the Acts of the Apostles')—in the direction of these isles afar off, Je. xxxi. 10, . . . Is. xlix. 1—3, &c., . . . —to which the apostolic preaching reached, after passing through Asia Minor.

NOTES.

Mt. xiii. 3—9. In parables. The word parable is derived from a Greek word signifying 'to compare together,' and denotes a similitude taken from a natural object, to illustrate a spiritual or moral subject. The parabolical, enigmatical, figurative, and sententious way of speaking was the language of the eastern sages and learned men. The origin of parables, so far as can be traced, appears to have been with the Hebrews. It is most certain, that the oldest specimen of this kind of writing and speaking is to be found in the Scriptures, which carry us far beyond the earliest fragments of antiquity, into the first ages of the world.—See on ver. 10, p. 244. Our Saviour's parables were generally short narratives of some event or fact, real or fictitious, in which a continued comparison is carried on, frequently between sensible and spiritual objects; and under this similitude some important doctrine, moral or religious, is conveyed. They have the advantages of being easily comprehended, especially by rude minds—of commanding attention—exciting curiosity, and reproving vice and rectifying error by insinuating truth. Our Lord's parables are superior to all others. He never introduces beasts or trees conversing together with the faculties of men; all is built on nature and life. Once only, in the rich man and Lazarus, the scene is laid beyond this world, Lu. xvi. 19—31, § 69.

A sower went forth to sow. The parable is not a mere apologue, or moral example, but contains an allegory, and relates to the preaching of the word; and consequently its moral is to be found in the success or results of that preaching. It is an allegory, which describes beforehand the success of the preaching of the gospel, both to Jews and Gentiles; a concealed prophecy of what was afterwards to happen in connection with the preaching of the gospel, until the end of the Christian dispensation. Thus, the ministry of the word, along the path which had been so often trod by the feet of the prophets, might be compared to the sowing of the seed 'by the way-side;' the children of the devil, the synagogue of Satan, the fowls that have since been glad to find shelter under the wide-spreading branches of that which they then endeavoured to destroy in the seed—these were abundantly ready to take away the word by every means in their power. In Asia Minor churches quickly sprung up, like the seed upon 'rocky ground;' but it does not seem to have had much endurance. Paul had to say, 'All they which are in Asia be turned away from me,' 2 Ti. i. 15. With regard to both Greece and Rome, it may well be said, 'the thorns sprung up, and choked the word.' Farther on, in the north-west of Europe, to which the word pointed from the beginning, has been the great ministry of the gospel. Here it has found a more congenial soil than it did in former instances elsewhere. But here are the different kinds of bad ground, as well as the good; and of that which is good, there are as many kinds as of the bad. Three of each are mentioned.

4. The way side. Meaning, 'by the side of,' or upon the hard path through the field, so that the seed could not sink into the earth.

The fowls came, &c. Where husbandmen are sowing, thousands of starlings will cover the ground in Palestine, and lay a heavy contribution on the grain thrown into the furrows.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. iv. 1. The teaching of Jesus was not restricted to the house, but was frequently in the open air, and particularly by the sea-side. Nor should the disciples of Christ refuse to follow herein their Master: the good seed must be sown beside all waters, if we would desire to see it widely spread abroad, and filling the face of the world with fruit. The careless and irreligious will not enter into the congregation.

LET HIM THAT IS TAUGHT IN THE WORD COMMUNICATE UNTO HIM THAT TEACHETH IN ALL GOOD THINGS.—Gal. vi. 6.
BE NOT DECEIVED; GOD IS NOT MOCKED: FOR WHATSOEVER A MAN SOWETH, THAT SHALL HE ALSO REAP.—Gal. vi. 7.

MATT. xiii. 5—9.	MARK iv. 5—9.	LUKE viii. 6—8.
it came and devoured them up:	came and devoured it up.	devoured it.
5 some fell upon stony places, where they had not much earth: and forthwith they sprung up,	5 And some fell on stony ground, where it had not much earth; and immediately it sprang up,	And some fell upon a rock; and as soon as it was sprung up,
6 and when the sun was up, they were scorched; and because they had no root, they withered away.	6 but when the sun was up, it was scorched; and because it had no root, it withered away.	it withered away, because it lacked moisture.
7 And some fell among επι thorns; and the thorns sprung up, & choked them:	7 And some fell among εις thorns, and the thorns grew up, and choked it, and it yielded no fruit.	7 And some fell among εν μεσῳ thorns; and the thorns sprang up with it, & choked it.
8 but other fell into good καλην ground, and brought forth fruit, some an hundred fold, some sixty fold, some thirty fold.	8 And other fell on good καλην ground, and did yield fruit that sprang up and increased; and brought forth, some thirty, and some sixty, and some an hundred.	8 And other fell on good αγαθην ground, and sprang up, and bare fruit an hundred fold.
	9 And he said unto them,	And when he had said these things, he cried,
9 Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.	He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.	He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.
	[Ch. iv. 10, § xxxiii. p 253.]	[Ch. viii. 9, § xxxiii. p 253.]

(G. 17.) Between the first & the second parable, Jesus, in answer to the disciples, tells why he was teaching in parables.—At the sea of Galilee.

MATT. xiii. 10—.7.

10 And the disciples came, and said unto him, Why speakest thou unto them in para-11 bles? He answered and said unto them, Because it is given unto you to know the

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. iv. 7. it yielded no fruit—'no fruit to perfection,' Lu. viii. 14, § 33, p. 257—among the Romans Paul desired to have fruit, 'even as among other Gentiles,' Rom. i. 13—but warned them that if they did not continue in the Lord's goodness they would be cut off—'Behold therefore the goodness and severity of God: on them which fell, severity; but toward thee, goodness, if thou continue in his goodness: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off,' xi. 22—in which case they could bring forth 'no fruit to perfection,' Jno. xv. 5, 6, § 87.

Mt. xiii. 8. other fell into good ground—'the principal wheat and the appointed barley and the rie in their place,' Is. xxviii. 25, ...—'for he said, Surely they are my people, children that will not lie: so he was their Saviour,' lxiii. 8.

brought forth fruit—the kingdom which was taken away from the Jews was to be 'given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof,' Mt. xxi. 43, § 84.

9. who hath ears to hear—the call to hear, is especially given to a people occupying an insular position—'Listen, O isles, unto me; and hearken, ye people, from far,' Is. xlix. 1. . . . .—'Hear the word of the LORD, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off,' Je. xxxi. 10.

10. Why speakest thou unto them in parables?—he had before spoken plainly, as in the Sermon on the Mount, Mt. v.—viii. 1, § 19, pp. 120—43; and Jno. v. § 23, p. 177—now he changed his mode of public address, and mostly used similitudes, as ch. xxi.—xxv. §§ 82—6.

11. Because it is given unto you, &c.—his disciples were disposed to profit by his teaching, and were to

NOTES.

Mt. xii. 5. Upon stony places. επι τα πετρωδη, 'upon rocky ground,'—a rock with a very thin cover of earth.

6. Were scorched. In Palestine, during the seed-time, (in November,) the sky is cloudy; the seed then springs up even in stony places, but when the sun dissipates the clouds it quickly outgrows its strength.

8. An, hundred-fold, &c. i. e., a hundred, sixty, or thirty grains, for each one that was sown—an increase by no means uncommon. Strabo and Pliny testify that the soil in Babylonia never produced less than two hundred fold, and sometimes even three hundred; the grain, too, being of an astonishing size.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mk. iv. 1. 'The sea is His, and He made it;' and no less belongs to Him the wondrous instrumentality he hath provided for conveying thereupon, to every kindred and tongue and people, the treasures of his truth.]

Lu. viii. 5—8. As the word was sown on all kinds of ground, so let the Bible be freely dispensed to every living being—the Sower that soweth the seed hath put no restriction upon the outward exhibition of his truth, but hath commanded, 'He that hath ears to hear, let him hear,' 'and let him that heareth say, Come,' Rev. xxii. 17.

MATT. xiii. 12—4.

12 mysteries of-the kingdom of heaven, but to-them it-is-not-given. For whosoever hath, to-him shall-be given, and he-shall-have-more-abundance περισσευθησεται: but whosoever 13 hath not, from him shall-be-taken-away even that he-hath. Therefore speak-I to-them in parables: because they-seeing see not; and hearing they hear not, neither do they-14 understa.d. And in αυτ' them is-fulfilled αναπληρουται the prophecy of-Esaias, which saith, By-hearing ακοη ye-shall-hear, and shall-not-understand; and seeing ye-shall-be employed in sowing the good seed—the word. 'And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you,' 1 Pe. i. 25—A distinction was now to be made between them and those who, by their abuse of knowledge, were only in danger of plunging themselves into deeper guilt and misery—see just before Mt. xii. 31—7, § 31, pp. 236, 8.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

the mysteries—the mysteries of the kingdom, do not mean any incomprehensible doctrines in themselves considered, but simply doctrines about the preaching of the gospel, and the establishment of the new kingdom of the Messiah, which had not been understood, and which were as yet concealed from the great body of the Jews—see Rom. xvi. 25, 'Now to him that is of power to stablish you according to my gospel, and the preaching of Jesus Christ, according to the revelation of the mystery, which was kept secret since the world began'—xi. 25, 'For I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery, lest ye should be wise in your own conceits; that blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in'—Ep. iii. 3, 4, 9, 'How that by revelation he made known unto me the mystery; (as I wrote afore in few words, whereby, when ye read, ye may understand my knowledge in the mystery of Christ.)' 9, 'And to make all men see what is the fellowship of the mystery, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jesus Christ.'

10—5. Our Saviour taught much in parables,—First, that he might fulfil Old Testament predictions, Ps. lxxviii. 1, 2, 'Give ear, O my people, to my law: incline your ears to the words of my mouth. I will open my mouth in a parable: I will utter dark sayings of old:' and xlix. 3, 4, 'My mouth shall speak of wisdom; and the meditation of my heart shall be of understanding. I will incline mine ear to a parable: I will open my dark saying upon the harp'—comp. ver. 34, 5, p. 249—Secondly, that in manifesting the spiritual turn of his own mind, he might set us an example to improve everything as a mean of spiritual instruction—see Jno. iii. 12, 3, § 12, p. 85—Thirdly, that he might the more effectually reprove the Jews, without putting them into a rage, ch. xxi. 28—46, § 84—Fourthly, that he might the more easily instruct the attentive and thoughtful, in a manner much used in the east, delightful to the mind and helpful to the memory, Ho. xii. 10, 'I have also spoken by the prophets, and I have multiplied visions, and used similitudes, by the ministry of the prophets'—Fifthly, that he might justly permit the blindness and ruin of such as hated instruction, ver. 13—Sixthly, a key to the better understanding of what was before written was now being given by our Lord to those who were to understand all parables, Mk. iv. 13, § 33, p. 254, and become 'stewards of the mysteries of God,' 1 Co. iv. 1.

12. whosoever hath, &c.—'For unto every one that hath,' &c., Mt. xxv. 29, § 86—'He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life,' 1 Jno. v. 12.

more abundance—the disciples were to be given, by the parables of our Lord, a deeper insight into the mysteries of the kingdom presented by the prophets of the Old Testament; 'unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things,' &c., 1 Pe. i. 12—and to be afterwards more fully developed by the prophets and apostles of the New Testament, Ep. iii. 4—10.

shall be taken away—those who rested in the outward forms were to be deprived of even these, Mt. xxiv. 2, § 86; He. vii. 18, 9; viii. 12, 3; ix. 9—14.

that he hath—'seemeth to have,' Lu. viii. 18, § 33.

13. they seeing see not—'Ye have seen,' &c., 'yet the LORD hath not given you an heart to perceive, and eyes to see, and ears to hear, unto this day,' De. xxix. 2—4—see also Je. v. 21; Eze. xii. 2; Jno. ix. 41, § 55.

14. prophecy of Esaias—spoken when contemplating the long and great desolation of the land, Is. vi. 9—11, . . . consequent upon their rejecting the Lord, the King, of whose glory Isaiah had a vision, ver. 1—4—comp. Jno. xii. 39—41, § 85.

NOTES.

11. The mysteries. τα μυστηρια, 'the secrets.' The first and leading sense of the word, is not 'mystery,' according to the meaning of the word in English, denoting something incomprehensible; it means a secret, anything not disclosed to the world, though perhaps communicated to a select number. Jesus did not adopt this mode of instruction till the Jewish guides accused him of being in league with Satan. They would not have continued to hear the truth in plain language.

12. Whosoever hath, &c. A proverbial saying, meaning, that those who are really disposed to attend to His doctrine, shall be fully informed about it; whereas the careless and inattentive hearer shall have no benefit from his instruction.

From him shall be taken He shall be utterly deprived of those means and opportunities of salvation which he has neglected and slighted.—Watson. The Jews, in having their temple and sacrifices, without knowing HIM to whom they pointed, were like those who have only the words of a parable without understanding its meaning. The Jews rejected the TRUTH, and boasted of the shadow; and of the shadow itself they were speedily deprived. For nearly eighteen centuries they have had no opportunity of observing the sacrifices and worshipping in the temple. Even that which they had has been taken from them.

13. Seeing see not, &c. i. e., They overlook what they see, and are inattentive to what they hear; they shut their eyes against the light, and neglect or abuse the means of knowledge.

14. The prophecy of Esaias, &c.—See 'Scripture Illustrations.' This passage is frequently quoted and applied to the unbelieving Jews, as in Mk. iv. 12, [Lu. viii. 10,] § 33, p. 254; Jno. xii. 40, § 85; Ac. xxviii. 26, 7, 'Saying, Go unto this people, and say, Hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand; and seeing ye shall see, and not perceive: for the heart of this people is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes have they closed; lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xiii. 11. There must be a co-operation of the will of the hearer in the profitable hearing of the word; we must not merely hear with the multitude, but, as disciples of Jesus, do the will of God, if we would know the word in truth.

12 ver. If we would obtain much scriptural knowledge, we must esteem it as precious treasure, which we endeavour to make our own, by laying it up in our hearts, that we may practise it in our lives.

[13 ver. He who has the word of God merely in its outward form, without an understanding of it, as given by the Great Interpreter, is still in great darkness with regard to the mysteries of divine revelation.]

14 ver. The heart must be changed before the understanding can be fully enlightened.

MATT. xiii. 15—7.

15 see, and shall not perceive: for this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing ωσι βαρεως ἠκουσαν, and their eyes they have closed εκαμμυσαν; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should under-
16 stand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them. But blessed 17 are your eyes, for they see: and your ears, for they hear. For verily I say unto you, That many prophets and righteous men have desired επεθυμησαν to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them. [Ver. 18, § xxxiii. p. 254.]

Jesus proceeds with the remainder of his parables.

MATT. xiii. 24—35. [Ver. 23, § xxxiii. p. 258.]

MARK iv. 26—34. [Ver. 25, § xxxiii. p. 259.]

24 [a] Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his 25 field: but while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

13. this people's heart is waxed, &c.—our Lord here recognises the fulfilment of the prediction, 'Make the heart of this people fat,' &c., Is. vi. 10. . . . ix. 16. . . . Je. v. 23—31; Eze. xiii. 1—9. . . . xxii. 25—31.

16. blessed are your eyes, &c.—'Blessed is the man that heareth me, watching daily at my gates,' Pr. viii. 34—'Blessed are the eyes which see the things that ye see,' &c., Lu. x. 23, 4, § 60—'That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes,' &c., 1 Jno. i. 1—4.

17. have desired, &c.—'I have waited for thy salvation, O LORD,' Ge. xlix. 18. . . .—'The Desire of all nations,' Hag. ii. 7—'Of which salvation the prophets have enquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you,' 1 Pe. i. 10.

24. Another parable—the former regarded the sowing of the good seed, and the different kinds of ground and degrees of produce, Mt. xiii. 1—9. This second treats of the separation of the tares from the wheat at the time of harvest, ver. 28—30—the harvest of the good ground, referred to at the close of the former parable, ver. 8, in which ground, tares as well as wheat may be found, ver. 25—30.

good seed—'his seed,' Lu. viii. 5, § 32, p. 243, as contrasted with the seed of the enemy, ver. 25, supra.

25. while men slept,—'Be vigilant,' 1 Pe. v. 8; but 'his watchmen are blind: they are all ignorant, they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark; sleeping, lying down, loving to slumber,' Is. lvi. 10. . . .—'Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them. Therefore watch,' &c., Ac. xx. 30, 1. Even in the days of the apostles there were 'false brethren unawares brought in,' Ga. ii. 4—'But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived,' 2 Ti. iii. 13—'For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine—watch thou in all things,' iv. 3—5.

enemy came and sowed tares—'Such are false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ. And no marvel; for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light.' 2 Co. xi. 13—5—'Your adversary the devil,' 1 Pe. v. 8—'Satan, which deceiveth the whole world,' Rev. xii. 9.

NOTES.

understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them;' and Rom. xi. 8, '(According as it is written, God hath given them the spirit of slumber, eyes that they should not see, and ears that they should not hear;) unto this day.' The sense of the prophecy is, with respect to the times of the Messiah, that the Jews, whilst hearing the sermons preached by him, whether with or without parables, should hear his voice, the sound of it, but not understand his voice internally, spiritually, and experimentally; and whilst they saw with the eyes of their bodies the miracles he wrought, they should see the facts done, which could not be gainsayed by them, but would not take in the clear evidence, full proof, and certain demonstration given thereby of his Messiahship.

15. Waxed gross. 'Εκαχύνθη, 'grown stiff with fatness;' alluding to a notion the ancients had, that a great quantity of fat about the heart stupified both the intellectual and sensitive powers.—Comp. De. xxxi. 20, xxxii. 15, Ps. cxix. 70, and Is. vi. 10.

17. Many prophets and righteous men, &c. Such as the ancient patriarchs and prophets, some of them kings, as David and Solomon.—See Lu. x. 24, § 60; Heb. xi. 13, 'These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth;' and 1 Pe. i. 11, 2, 'Searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow. 12. Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things, which are now reported unto you by them that have preached the gospel unto you with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven; which things the angels desire to look into.'

24—30. Another parable, &c. 'The parable now subjoined by our Lord was meant to represent the different effect of the gospel when already preached; wherein the field is the world, and the good seed the word of God preached by Christ and his apostles.' (Grotius.) The purpose of the parable was to draw attention to a future public and final declaration of the distinction between the righteous and the wicked; and to found on the certainty of such declaration a solemn warning of the necessity of righteousness and the danger of sin. The machinery of the parable is so contrived, as to afford occasion and employ means for the display of some momentous truths, to which our Saviour saw fit to refer, because they were calculated to prove auxiliary to his chief design. The end of the world,—the judicial office He should then assume and execute,—the ministry of angelic beings under his orders,—the opposite conditions of misery and of glory, to which, after the day of judgment, men shall be consigned.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

15 ver. Men are allowed to fall into errors of judgment, as a punishment for alienation of heart from God.—If we would be truly wise, we must be simple-hearted towards God.

16 ver. It is only as seeing and hearing Jesus, that we can expect to inherit blessing.

17 ver. The privileges to be enjoyed under the gospel are much greater than those which were enjoyed by the prophets of old—the predictions which were delivered to them in vision, we may see in their fulfilment.

25 ver. In the very place where the truth has been preached, there more especially should the enemy be vigilantly watched, that he may, if possible, be prevented from sowing his tares.

WHOSO FINDETH ME FINDETH LIFE, AND SHALL OBTAIN FAVOUR OF THE LORD.—Prov. viii. 35

HE THAT SINNETH AGAINST ME WRONGETH HIS OWN SOUL: ALL THEY THAT HATE ME LOVE DEATH.—Prov. viii. 36.

MATT. xiii. 26—30.

26 among the wheat, and went-his-way. But when the blade was-sprung-up, and brought-forth fruit, then appeared the tares also.
27 So the servants of-the householder came and-said unto-him, Sir, didst-not-thou-sow good seed in thy field? from-whence then 28 hath-it tares? He said unto-them, An-enemy hath-done this. The servants said unto-him, Wilt-thou then that we-go and-gather-29 them-up? But he said, Nay; lest while-ye-gather-up the tares, 30 ye-root-up also the wheat with-them. Let both grow-together until the harvest: and in the time of harvest I-will-say to-the reapers, Gather-ye-together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn.[b]

MARK iv. 26—9. [Ver. 25, p. 259.]

[b] And he-said, So is the kingdom of God, as if a-man should-cast seed 26 into the ground; and should-sleep and rise, night and day, and the 27 seed should-spring and grow-up μηκυνηται, he knoweth not how. For 28 the earth bringeth-forth-fruit of-herself αυτοματη; first the-blade χορτον, then the-ear σταχυν, after-that the-full corn σιτον in the ear. But when 29

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

26. brought forth fruit, &c.—'Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples,' Jno. xv. 8, § 87—'I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain,' ver. 16. We are not immediately to reject those who do not instantly bring forth fruit—'The husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it—Be ye also patient—Grudge not one against another,' Ja. v. 7—9.

27. servants of the householder—'ministers by whom ye believed. . . I have planted, Apollos watered . . . we are labourers together with God: ye are God's husbandry,' &c., 1 Co. iii. 5—9—'ministers of God,' 2 Co. vi. 4—'And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers: for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry,' Eph. iv. 11, 12. Also as to the angels, 'Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation?' He. i. 14.

28. An enemy—he that occupies the ground unprofitably is an enemy—'He that is not with me is against me,' Mt. xii. 30, § 31, p. 236—and as an enemy will be dealt with in the proper season, xxv. 26—30, § 86—'Be sober, be vigilant,' &c., 1 Pe. v. 8.

29. tares—not openly wicked, for the disciples were to put away from among them the wicked person, 1 Co. v. 13—nor those professing doctrine opposed to the gospel, for the heretic was, after admonition, to be rejected, Ti. iii. 10—but bastard wheat representing hypocrites, having the outward semblance of true disciples; and in removing whom, men might be in danger of removing those who are disciples in truth—'Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but judge this rather, that no man put a stumbling-block or an occasion to fall in his brother's way,' Rom. xiv. 13.

30. Let both grow together—even in the first company of the disciples, was one that had a devil, Jno. vi. 70, § 43, p. 334—and who was allowed to ripen into the betrayer, xiii. 21—30, § 87.

first the tares, &c.—first, the fall of Babylon, and judgment upon the worshippers of the beast, are intimated, Rev. xiv. 8—11—and then the harvest of the earth is reaped, ver. 12—6—so also in Isaiah: first, the fall of Babylon, ch. xxi. 9, and then is the exclamation, 'O my threshing, and the corn of my floor,' ver. 10—again, first, the spoiling of Babylon, and then many nations are joined to the Lord, and are 'my people,' Zech. ii. 9—11.

bind—'Say ye not, A confederacy, to all them to whom this people shall say, A confederacy,' Is. viii. 12. . . . —'they shall be gathered together,' xxiv. 22. . . . —'the spirits of devils, working miracles, . . . go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty,' Rev. xvi. 14.

burn them—'For, behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven,' Mal. iv. 1. . . —Babylon 'shall be utterly burned with fire,' Rev. xviii. 8.

gather the wheat, &c.—'Bound in the bundle of life with the LORD,' 1 Sa. xxv. 29—'He will throughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner,' Mt. iii. 12, § 7, p. 54.

Mk. iv. 26. and he said, &c.—This third parable, found only in Mark, points out still more distinctly, some circumstances with regard to the crop discoursed of in the former two, Mt. xiii. 1—8, p. 242; 24—30, supra.

27. he knoweth not how—. . . 'yea farther; though a wise man think to know it, yet shall he not be able

NOTES.

Tares. The weed spoken of here is incorrectly rendered tares; it is a noxious plant peculiar to the east, very like the darnel of our corn-fields, and resembles their wheat in almost all points, until its maturity, when it is discovered by some slight differences; such as, that it is coarser and less compact; but principally by its want of fruit, a few grains only appearing in a large full ear. It is not only found to be unprofitable, but destructive: its seed being mingled with the flour occasioning inebriety, vertigo, and often a lethargic and mortal torpidity. The ancients said that it injured both the head and the eyes. Our tares are a pulse that may be used; but this weed is fit only for fuel.

30. Let both grow together, &c. Signifies the mixture of good and bad in the present state, and that the punishment of the guilty would involve the innocent in suffering; the punishment of individuals and nations is therefore delayed.

Mk. iv. 28. For the earth bringeth forth fruit of herself. The scope of the passage does not require us to suppose that our Saviour meant to say that the earth had any productive power of itself, but only that it produced its fruits not by the power of man. God gives it its power. It has no power of its own. So religion in the heart is not by the power of man. It is by the power of God. At the same time, as without industry man would have no harvest, so without active effort he would have no spiritual fruitfulness. Both are connected with his effort; both are to be measured commonly by his effort; both grow, he cannot tell how; both increase when the proper means are used; and both depend on God for increase.

29. Immediately he putteth in the sickle. This is the way with the husbandman. As soon as the grain is ripe, it is cut down.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

25 ver. It is ever the device of the enemy, to mingle his work with that of God. It is more easy to prevent evil, than to eradicate it, after it has been allowed to germinate.

29 ver. Let not the sinner presume upon the forbearance of God, which may be exercised towards him for the sake of those, whom, it may be, he hates and despises.

30 ver. There is to be first a gathering together of the tares, and binding them in bundles to be burned,

Matt. xiii. 31—.3.	Mark iv. 30—.2.
	the fruit is-brought-forth παραδῷ, immediately he-putteth-in the sickle, because the harvest is-come.[c]
31 [c] Another parable put-he-forth παρεθηκεν unto-them, saying,[d]
	And he-said, 30
	[d] Whereunto shall-we-liken the kingdom of God? or with what comparison παραβολῇ shall-we-compare παραβολωμεν it?[e]
[e] The kingdom of heaven is like to- a-grain of-mustard-seed, which a-man took, and-sowed in his field:[f]	It is like 31 a-grain of-mustard-seed,
32 which indeed is the-least of-all seeds: but when it-is-grown, it-is the-greatest among-herbs,	[f] which, when it-is-sown in the earth, is less than-all the seeds that be in the earth: but when it-is-sown, it-groweth-up, 32 and becometh greater than-all herbs, and shooteth-out great branches;[g]
[g] and becometh a-tree, so-that the birds of-the air come and lodge in the branches thereof.	so-that the fowls of-the air may lodge under the shadow of-it.
33 Another parable spake-he unto-them; The kingdom of heaven is like unto-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

to find it,' Ec. viii. 17—see also xi. 5, 6, 'As thou knowest not what is the way of the spirit, nor how the bones do grow in the womb of her that is with child: even so thou knowest not the works of God who maketh all. In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand: for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good.'

28. first the blade, &c.—the dispensations of God are progressive, 2 Co. iii. 7—18.

29. when the fruit is brought forth, &c.—see as to the presenting of the firstfruits, Le. xxiii. 10—'On the mount Sion'—'the firstfruits unto God and to the Lamb,' Rev. xiv. 1—4. And thereafter, in the clear testifying of mercy and judgment, ver. 6, 7—and in the destruction of Babylon, ver. 8—11, is the preparation for the harvest, ver. 12—.6.

Mt. xiii. 31. Another parable—the immediately preceding parable shewed that, in a manner unknown to man, the seed was to grow up and produce the harvest, Mk. iv. 26—.9. This intimates that from a small, and, it might be, despised beginning, Is. xii. 8—14. . . . li. 1—3. . . .—the kingdom will become great, lx. 22. . . .—'Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this,' lx. 7.

32. becometh a tree, so that the birds, &c.—see Mk. iv. 32—a correspondent progress is marked by the prophet, in describing the case of that which is elsewhere spoken of as the firstfruits: 'I will crop off from the top of his young twigs a tender one, and will plant it upon an high mountain and eminent: in the mountain of the height of Israel will I plant it: and it shall bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, and be a goodly cedar: and under it shall dwell all fowl of every wing; in the shadow of the branches thereof shall they dwell,' Ezk. xvii. 22, .3—'In that time shall the present be brought unto the Lord . . . . to the place of the name of the Lord of hosts, the mount Zion,' Is. xviii. 7—'In mine holy mountain, in the mountain of the height of Israel, saith the Lord God, there shall all the house of Israel, all of them in the land, serve me: there will I accept them, and there will I require your offerings, and the firstfruits of your oblations, with all your holy things,' Ezk. xx. 40.

33. leaven—leaven was used in preparing the two wave loaves offered as firstfruits, fifty days after the

NOTES.

Mt. xiii. 31. Another parable. The following parable appears to relate to the wonderful increase of the word of God among the Gentiles. Tertullian acquaints us that in his time, (the second century,) it had spread to the Getuli, the Mauri, the utmost boundaries of Spain, throughout Gaul, and Britain, even where inaccessible to the Romans; also over Sarmatia, Germany, Scythia, and in many other nations, provinces, and islands, unknown to, and beyond the Roman empire. Irenæus, prior to Tertullian, enumerates the churches of Germany, and Gaul, and Spain, of Egypt, and Libya, and of the East, &c.

31, .2. Grain of mustard seed. The plant here described was very different from that which is known among us. It was several years before it bore fruit, and became properly a tree. Mustard, with us, is an annual plant; it is always small, properly an herb. The Hebrew writers speak of the mustard tree as one on which they could climb, as on a fig-tree. Its size was much owing to the climate. All plants of that nature grow much larger in a warm climate, like that of Palestine, than in colder regions. The seeds of this tree were remarkably small; so that they, with the great size of the plant, were an apt illustration of the progress of the church, and of the nature of faith, Mt. xvii. 20, § 51.

The least of all seeds. I. e., of all those seeds with which the people of Judæa were then acquainted. Or, of all those seeds which produce plants, the stems and branches of which grow into a ligneous or woody substance. Our Lord's words are to be interpreted by popular use. And we learn from ch. xvii. 20, § 51, that 'like a grain of mustard seed,' was become proverbial for expressing a very small quantity. 'A stalk of mustard seed was in my field, into which I was used to climb, as men do into a fig-tree.'—R. Calipha, in Whitby.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

and afterwards is the gathering of the wheat into the barn. Let us therefore not be envious at the seeming prosperity of the confederacies of the wicked. Let the children of God wait patiently for the time of his gathering them together into blessing.

Mk. iv. 26—.9. It belongs to man diligently to sow the seed—carefully to watch its springing up, and patiently to wait till God, in his good time, gives the harvest.

MATT. xiii. 34, .5.

leaven, which a-woman took, and-hid in three measures of-meal, till the-whole was-leavened.[a]

34 All these-things spake Jesus unto-the multitude in parables; and without a-parable spake-he not unto-them:

35 [b]that it-might-be-fulfilled which was-spoken by the prophet, saying, I-will-open my mouth in parables; I-will-utter κεκρυμμενα things which-have-been-kept-secret from the-foundation of-the-world.[c]

[Ver. 36, § xxxiii. p. 253.]

MARK iv. 33, .4.

[a] And with-many such parables spake-he 33 the word unto-them, as they-were-able to-hear it.
But without a-parable spake-he not 34 unto-them: []

[c] and when they were alone, he-expounded επελυε all-things to his disciples.

[Ver. 35, § xxxiv. p. 264.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

sheaf of wave offering had been brought in, Le. xxiii. 15—.7—'They shall be holy to the LORD,' ver. 20. But it is more frequently made use of to denote fermenting power of an evil kind—'a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump,' 1 Co. v. 6; Ga. v. 9—'Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened,' 1 Co. v. 7, 8. In the same sense the word is used by our Lord—see Mt. xvi. 6, 11, .2, § 48; Lu. xii. 1, § 63.

35. that it might be fulfilled, &c.—the quotation is from the commencement of a psalm describing the Lord's dealings with his people Israel, Ps. lxxviii. 2: these parables regard the things concerning them, which, although revealed, have yet been kept secret from the foundation of the world—see on this subject, Is. xxix. 18—23. . . . . xli. 26. . . . . xliii. 19—23. . . . . xliii. 8, 9, &c. . . . —among Israel was the good seed to be sown, Je. iii. 11, .2, .5. . . . . Mt. xv. 24, § 45; Jno. xvii. 17—21, § 87—which was not to return void, Is. lv. 8—11. . . . —they were to be found intermingled with strangers, Je. iii. 13. . . . —of the twelve tribes scattered abroad were to come the firstfruits, Ja. i. 1, 18; Rev. vii. 4; xiv. 4.

NOTES.

33. Leaven. A piece of dough, but especially what is salted and soured for fermenting. Such bread as was made of dough unsoured and unfermented was called unleavened; and what was made of fermented dough was called leavened, Ex. xii. 15.

Three measures of meal. σάτον is a Jewish measure of capacity for things dry, the third part of an ephah. Also the usual quantity, as Ge. xviii. 6, 'And Abraham hastened into the tent unto Sarah, and said, Make ready quickly three measures of fine meal, knead it, and make cakes upon the hearth.' So Ju. vi. 19, and 1 Sa. i. 24; an ephah being three sata or measures. So Ruth ii. 17. The σάτον measure was about a peck and a half English.

Mk. iv. 33. As they were able to hear it. They were not able to bear plain statements of truth, and so he spake to them the truth 'in parables,' to which they could be induced to listen; and from which, if they were so inclined, it was possible for them to learn heavenly wisdom; especially as the Divine Teacher was ready to explain to inquirers that which he taught them 'in parables.'

[34. He expounded. ἐπέλυεν τοῖς ἰδίοις 'gave solutions of everything' [that was obscure to them]. Ἐπιλύειν (as the Heb. פתר and the Latin solvere) often has this sense. Its primary signification is to untie a knot.—Bloomfield.]

Mt. xiii. 35. That it might be fulfilled, &c. This is taken from Ps. lxxviii. 1, 2.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xiii. 31, .2. We are not to despise the day of small things, nor to be discouraged by apparently feeble beginnings. The greatest cause on earth had at first the least worldly promise. Those who would have devoured Christianity, when it was sown in the earth, are now glad to find protection under its wide-spreading shade.

34, .5 ver. Because a matter has been kept secret hitherto, that is no reason why it should not hereafter be revealed. It may be hid, moreover, from the wise and prudent, who are satisfied with their own or others' conjectures, and it may be expounded to the simple-minded disciple, who seeks to enjoy more intimate communion with Jesus.

Mk. iv. 34. That we may become truly possessed of the word of God, let us both carefully mark the text, and diligently seek the true exposition from Him in whom we have that anointing whereby we may know all things.

I. The parable of the sower should teach us to take heed how we hear, and to examine our own hearts, to see that we have not 'received the grace of God in vain.'

II. The parable of the springing seed should teach ministers not to despond when their faithful labours seem to produce no effect: for the seed is sown, it is springing up when they do not always see it, and 'in due season we shall reap, if we faint not,' Ga. vi. 9.

III. The parable of the mustard seed should encourage us in efforts, however small, for the interests of Christ, for the most diminutive seed may produce a great and wide-spreading tree; and it may cheer us in viewing the small beginnings made in our own vicinity, or in the world at large, for improving the spiritual condition of mankind, for 'A little one shall become a thousand, and a small one a strong nation: I the LORD will hasten it in his time,' Is. lx. 22.

[*] See ADDENDA, p. 251, 'On Jesus beginning to teach in parables,' sixth paragraph.

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICE.

THE SEA OF GALILEE, p. 242.—From Kitto's 'Pictorial Palestine,' Vol. I. pp. cxiv., ...v., ...vii.

'THE LAKE OF TIBERIAS (see Sect. XX. p. 155, 'Lake of Gennesaret') is, from its associations, the most interesting body of water in the Holy Land, far more so than the Dead Sea, although the latter is considerably larger, and physically much more remarkable. . . . In the New Testament the Dead Sea is not once mentioned; but the name of the lake of Tiberias, the "sea of Galilee," very often occurs. Capernaum, on its border, was the usual residence of our Lord; and the lake, or its shores, the scene of some of the most remarkable transactions of his life.

'It was usual for the Jews to call every expanse of water "a sea," which name was partly applied by metaphor, doubtless, to the brazen reservoir—"the brazen sea"—which stood in the court of the temple. Accordingly, the evangelists, Matthew, Mark, and John, being native Jews, invariably call the lake of Tiberias a "sea;" but Luke, who was probably a native of Asia Minor,* and whose geographical terms are always more distinctive, calls it generally a "lake." The present inhabitants, like those of ancient times, still call their water a "sea," and reckon it and the Dead Sea, to the south of them, to be the two largest known, except the great ocean.

'Josephus dwells on the sweetness and softness of its water, and of its pebbly bottom, and, above all, of the salubrity of the surrounding atmosphere. He also expatiates largely on the extraordinary fertility and valuable products of the land of Gennesaret, the tract on the western border of the lake (see Sect. XX. p. 155, also Sect. XIII. p. 82). The lake as seen from the hills is generally described in much warmer language than when seen from the shore.

'Of all modern descriptions, perhaps that of Dr. Clarke is the best in conveying a general impression of the scene which is offered from the summit and descent of the western mountains. He says—

"'A view was presented, which, for its grandeur, independently of the interest excited by the different objects in it, has no equal in the Holy Land.

"'From this situation we perceived that the plain over which we had been so long riding [from the west] was itself very elevated. Far beneath appeared other plains, one lower than the other, in a regular gradation, reaching eastward as far as the surface of the sea of Tiberias. . . . Its eastern shore exhibits a sublime scene of mountains towards the south and north, and they seem to close in at either extremity; both towards Choraxin, where the Jordan enters, and the Aulon, or Campus Magnus, through which this river flows to the Dead Sea. The cultivated plains reach to its borders, which we beheld at an amazing depth below, and by the different hues of their various produce presented the motley pattern of a vast carpet. To the north appeared many snowy summits towering above and beyond a series of intervening mountains. The summit of the principal eminence, Jebel es sheik,† or Hermon, was so lofty that the snow entirely covered the upper part of it, investing all the higher part with that perfect white and smooth velvet-like appearance which snow only exhibits when it is very deep.

"'From lower points of view, on the descent to the lake, and from the plain by which the lake is bordered, much of all this grandeur is lost; and much that looks beautiful in the distance becomes bald and barren in the nearer view. That nearer view is still grand, especially from the plain at the northern extremity of the lake. On the east rise the mountains, not precipitously, but rolling back from the shore, green and verdant after rain, but destitute of trees. On the west, hill rises after hill in beautiful succession, and the loftiest visible summit is crowned with a city (Safet), whose commanding position is perhaps unequalled in the world. In two places the mountains here come down to the lake; the rest is a beautiful and uncultivated plain, that rich and fertile 'Land of Gennesaret,' which, for its combination of natural advantages—soil, scenery, climate, temperature—is, perhaps, exceeded by no other spot on earth. In winter and spring this plain is traversed by numerous torrents, some of which are so large and rapid as not to be passed without difficulty. 'Nothing can surpass the beauty and grandeur of the surrounding scenery,' says Elliot.—(See Sect. XLII. p. 323, for further particulars of this region, from Tiberias to Tel-Hum.)

"'The feathered tribes seem to make the lake a favourite resort. Multitudes of song birds harbour in the northernmost groves, and their innumerable happy voices mingle with the rush of waters, where the river hastens to the lake. The margin and surface of the lake itself presents large flocks of storks, wild ducks, and diving birds; pelicans are not wanting; while here and there vultures are assiduously engaged with their carrion prey; or eagles, heavily flapping their broad wings, rise to their aeries in the mountains. But when the heat of the summer sun—intensely concentrated on the borders of this deep basin, has absorbed all the moisture which the earth contained, and utterly dried up the green herbage which gave a cheerful aspect to the scene, the effect of the whole, in the entire absence of trees, is very different; more dull, heavy, sad, but not less, perhaps, in unison with the general tone of feeling with which the Christian pilgrim is prepared to regard this memorable lake.

"'How different this view from that which was presented to the eye about the time of our blessed Lord! Then the borders of the lake were thickly populated, and the eye rested in turn upon fortresses and cities, towns and villages. There was not only the royal city of Tiberias, but the woe-doomed cities of Chorazin, Capernaum, and Bethsaida, the latter 'the city of Andrew and Peter,' all the frequent witnesses of his 'mighty works.'—Capernaum, his most usual place of residence, 'exalted unto heaven' once, but now so utterly 'cast down,' that men know not where it stood. Hippos and Gamala, Tarichæa and Beth-Meon, and the strong Magdala, were on its confines, and doubtless many other places of less note. Then also the surface of the lake was enlivened with numerous boats passing and repassing across, and from town to town, with passengers and goods, while the fishers launched forth to cast their nets in the deep waters. Then the shores were everywhere richly planted and cultivated, and offered numerous delightful gardens and paradises, while numerous people, busy or unoccupied, were passing to and fro; and then, instead of this silence, were heard the voices of men calling to each other, the joyous shouts of happy children, the sound of the song and harp, the noise of the millstones, and the lowing of the herds upon the sides of the hills. Amidst the present vacancy and silence the mind can better fill up the details of such a picture, than were the scene actually occupied with other and different objects than those which the imagination wishes to supply."

'The water of the lake is perfectly clear and sweet, although it receives several hot saline springs, so impregnated with gases that they change the colour of the stones over which they pass. Dr. Clarke describes it as being clear as the purest crystal, sweet, cool, and most refreshing to the taste. Mr. Fisk says, "in the water of the lake my thermometer stood at 70° in the sun at 90°." This was in November. Dr. Clarke swam to a considerable distance from the shore, and could discern the bottom covered with shining pebbles. . . . The lake generally presents a dark appearance on account of the high mountains enclosing it.

* Mr. Greswell thinks it probable that LUKE was a native of Philippi in Macedonia, Vol. I. Diss. II. p. 92—see Sect. I. ADDENDA, p. 7, supra, 'Evangelists,' first paragraph.

† 'The lower points of view, from which most travellers describe the lake, do not take in this magnificent back ground; hence, perhaps, the comparative tameness of their descriptions. Stephens rather sneers at the comparison to the lake of Geneva, (see Sect. XX. p. 156, paragraph 5,) particularly on the score of the absence of a Mont Blanc; whereas, in fact, the very presence of Mount Hermon, capped with snow in the distance, probably first suggested the comparison to Dr. Clarke. Clarke was right in describing impressions from what he saw, and he did see the snowy Hermon; and Stephens is right in describing from what he saw, and he could not see the splendid background which that mountain forms.'

'As the waters of the lake lie deep in a basin surrounded on all sides by lofty hills, except at the entrance and outlet of the Jordan, long-continued tempests from any quarter are unknown. But these same local features, which preclude any long agitation of its surface, render it liable to whirlwinds and squalls and sudden gusts. . . . . Winds from the south-east are those by which a boisterous sea is most usually raised in this lake.'

'The whole country in its neighbourhood is well nigh depopulated by the judgments of God and the depravity and misgovernment of man. The traveller stands astonished at the view of the grievous change which it has witnessed. He is most deeply affected also in the remembrance of the consecration of its narrow borders by the personal ministry of the Saviour himself, and in his reflection on the moral influences which have gone forth from its now almost forsaken shores to the very ends of the earth.'—The Lands of the Bible, by Jno. Wilson, D.D., F.R.S., Vol. II. p. 111.

'Those who have spoken of the course of the Jordan through the lake being distinctly visible, must have had strange organs of vision, and curious principles of hydrostatics to guide their judgment. The measurements of Lieut. Symonds have settled the extent of the depression of the lake below the level of the Mediterranean, finding that it amounts to 328·98 feet. The climate of Tiberias and the other villages on its borders is consequently much milder than that of the surrounding country, and at certain seasons of the year oppressive. We were not able to acquiesce in the conclusion of some travellers, that the lake at some geological era must have been the crater of a volcano. The basaltic rock along the sides of the lake, and which appears, too, at its northern borders, is connected, however, with some volcanic influence not yet extinct, as is intimated by the fearful earthquakes to which this part of the country is subject, and by which the great crevasse of the Jordan and of the Wadi 'Arabah has, perhaps, been formed.'—Ibid. p. 151.

ADDENDA.

ON JESUS BEGINNING TO TEACH IN PARABLES.*

'Probably, not much later than the third hour of the day, the time which is known, in classical writers, by the ἀγορᾶς πλῆθος, Jesus leaves the house where he was, and repairs to the lake, Mt. xiii. 1, where he delivers a series of parables, for the first time in the course of his ministry; himself, with his disciples, on shipboard, and the people standing on the land.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. p. 334.

'With regard to the time, or the manner, of this beginning to teach in parables, as well as to the order of succession in which these first of the number were pronounced, there is little or no difficulty. . . . Thus much, however, is distinctly implied by the express words of St. Matthew and St. Mark—and not called in question merely by the silence of St. Luke; that our Lord began to teach in parables, for the first time, upon this occasion; a conclusion, which the course and succession of the gospel history hitherto must of itself confirm. There is no parable, nor any vestige of a parable, like those which were now pronounced, and those which are seen to have been pronounced hereafter, to be met with in it. The word παραβολὴ, in its true, may occur; but, wherever this is the case, it stands for a very different thing from what we consider to be meant by a parable.

'It is agreed also that when our Lord began thus to teach in parables, it was upon the shore of the lake of Capernaum, to which he had repaired on purpose; and sitting on board a small vessel, at some distance indeed from the land, but not so far as to be out of the hearing of the people. This, as we have often seen, was his familiar practice when in the vicinity of the lake; or when he would avoid the pressure of the multitude. . . . . Probably the very ship which had been appointed, Mark iii. 9, § 26, p. 201, to attend upon him, and to be ready for such services as those, when he was last in the neighbourhood of the lake.

'The difficulty to which I allude concerns the time and manner of delivering those interpretations of two of the present parables—the seed, and the tares—which Jesus is perceived to have vouchsafed at the request of his disciples. It must be evident from Mt. xiii. 36, § 33, p. 253, that the interpretation of the latter could neither have been asked, nor have been conceded, before the dismissal of the multitude and the return of our Lord to Capernaum. This interpretation, therefore, as well as the request which produced it, must have been posterior to the day's teaching in public; that is, strictly a part of what afterwards took place in private. But the interpretation of the former parable St. Matthew himself interposes before he recounts the second; and the other two evangelists, whether they record any more parables than the first, or not, yet subjoin the explanation of the first, before they proceed to the next. This interpretation, too, was produced by a request of the disciples; yet the fact of such a request does not appear from St. Matthew: it is supplied by St. Mark and St. Luke alone.

'The question, then, which we have to consider, amounts substantially to this—Whether the request, which produced the exposition of the parable of the sower, was preferred and answered on the spot; or, like that which produced the interpretation of the parable of the tares, was preferred and answered after our Lord had returned into private. And here, as we have frequently had occasion to observe, the testimony of the less explicit, the less circumstantial, the less positive, among the evangelists, it is just and reasonable, should be estimated altogether in conformity to the testimony of the more so.

'Now, at the close of St. Mark's account of this day's teaching, we meet with the following observation, ch. iv. 33, 4, (p. 243, supra,) which does not occur in either of the other two: "And with many such parables spake he the word unto them, as they were able to hear . . . But without a parable spake he not unto them:" in private, however, he expounded everything to his own disciples. This statement must be understood to affirm that, for that day, and while he was still in public, Jesus spoke in nothing but parables; taking care only that what he himself was pronouncing aloud from the ship and the sea might be heard by the people on the shore: but that, when the day's teaching was ever, and the people had been dismissed, he explained to his disciples what he had been teaching.

'There is nothing, it is true, said about the disciples requesting this explanation; but neither is anything said to the contrary: and, with regard to the fact of any explanation, the mention of this further circumstance was clearly unimportant. There was one parable, also, the last on record, which he did certainly interpret of his own accord; and, upon the authority of this assurance of St. Mark, whether the interpretations of more were requested or not, we should be bound to believe that they were given. The great point of distinction, which the evangelist would impress upon us, is the marked difference of would impress upon us, is the marked difference of our Saviour's conduct in respect to the same thing, the understanding of his parables, towards the people in general, and his disciples in particular. He explained to the one what he had disguised from the other. Now the parables had been pronounced, at first, in the hearing of the disciples, as well as of the multitude; and they had been as unintelligible, at first, to the former as to the latter. . . . According to St. Mark, no interpretation of any of the parables could have been delivered, except in private; and out of three such explanations, which are on record, two, it is obvious, were delivered in private.

* Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxvii. pp. 435—47.

REMEMBER NOT THE SINS OF MY YOUTH, NOR MY TRANSGRESSIONS: ACCORDING TO THY MERCY REMEMBER THOU ME FOR THY GOODNESS' SAKE, O LORD.—Psa. xxv. 7.

ADDENDA—(continued.)

'Again; before he subjoins the interpretation of the parable of "The Sower," St. Mark, ch. iv. 10, § 33, p. 253, premises the following words, in allusion to the circumstances under which it was granted: Ὅτε δὲ ἐγένετο κατὰ μόνας, ἠρώτησαν αὐτὸν οἱ περὶ αὐτὸν, σὺν τοῖς δώδεκα, τὴν παραβολήν. The received translation renders the first part of this sentence, "And when he was alone;" its full meaning, however, is, But when he was become alone—when he was got by himself. Now, what could be understood by these words, except his returning into private? Before, he was in the company of the multitude; and, therefore, not by himself; or, if it should be objected that he was in the ship, and the people on the shore, I would ask, If that is what is meant by his being alone, how would it be possible to become more alone? .... If we consider for what purpose our Lord had taken up his position on the ship; viz., not to interfere with the business of his teaching, but to avoid the proximity of the crowd; it is not likely that he would admit thither more than his constant attendants, which were merely the Twelve. ....;

'The harmony, then, of the several accounts, will stand as follows:—

'I. Matthew xiii. 10—17[a] is regular; containing the answer actually returned to the question actually put, at the close of the first parable, Why art thou speaking in parables?

'II. Mark iv. 10—25, and Luke viii. 9—18[b] assign the similar reply to the similar inquiry, 'What might this parable be?' but after the day's teaching in public was over. In both, parts of what had already been related by St. Matthew, and in answer to the former question, concerning the singular privilege conceded to the disciples in being favoured by the disclosure of truths purposely concealed from the rest, are found to be repeated; but so naturally, and so pertinently to the occasion, that their recurrence can be considered no objection.

'III. Matthew xiii. 18—23[c] is, consequently, a proper anticipation, being given without any such intimation; yet it is an anticipation, which may be vindicated on the same principle—the principle of subjoining the explanation directly to the parable explained. The intermediate question might be truly put and answered, as it is represented to be; and if so, it would furnish an opportunity for continuing the discourse of our Lord—once begun upon this subject—to another, not much unlike it. He might have this further inducement also to do this; that the substance of the answer to the first question was again premised, though very briefly to the interpretation accorded to the second.

'IV. Our Lord's teaching being afterwards resumed in the parable of the 'tares,' might be uninterruptedly continued through the rest of the parables on record, and perhaps more, until he returned to his private abode in Capernaum; where consequently, as it is shewn by St. Matthew himself, the inquiry about the parable of the tares, which led to its explanation, must first have been put. To conclude, then—

'The number of parables, related as now delivered, whether in public or in private, is eight: seven of which are found in St. Matthew, three in St. Mark, and one in St. Luke. Of St. Matthew's seven, four are peculiar to his Gospel; and of St. Mark's three, the second is peculiar to his; St. Luke's one, as well as its interpretation, is recorded by them all: it is, in fact, "the parable of the sower."

'Of these omissions, St. Matthew's may, perhaps, be accounted for by supposing that many more such parables, as this one which is wanting to complete the eight, might have been now delivered; and, consequently, that omissions of more or of fewer, among the whole number, might be expected in all the accounts. It might be shewn that these minor parables are related rather as specimens of the class to which they belong, and as instances of the many figurative modes of describing some historical circumstance or other in the future Christian dispensation, upon which this day's teaching, continued as it was through no little time, was probably occupied, than as a complete enumeration of all which were actually spoken.

'St. Mark's omissions are obviously in unison with his characteristic conciseness in the account of our Lord's discourses. ....

'With regard to St. Luke, two out of the seven, which he omits, came over again in another part of the gospel history, and are recorded by him there, xiii. 18—21, § 65.'—Vol. I. Diss. ii. p. 154.

'... Had not the one parable, which St. Luke does record, been the first of its kind, and expressly interpreted by our Lord himself—so as to constitute an epoch in his ministry; a remarkable change in his manner of teaching; and, above all, so as to be a specimen both of the method of instruction by parables, and the mode of understanding and interpreting them; I consider it not improbable that he would have passed over even this.

'As to the verbal agreement between the several accounts, it is greater between St. Matthew's and St. Mark's, than between either and St. Luke's: a distinction which holds good also in other instances; and, for the reasons alluded to before, was, a priori, to be expected. In the account, however, of the parables, verbal coincidences are perhaps not to be expected, on the same grounds as in the relation of our Lord's other discourses. For every such parable consists of a history, the basis of which is an action; and hence, though it may be related as something originally conceived and pronounced by our Saviour, it would no more require to be related in the same form of words throughout, than the common facts of his personal history; which are all given, under different forms of narration, as the same history of what he did, or suffered.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxvii. pp. 435—47.

'At the close of the parable of the sower, St. Matthew places the result in the descending series, St. Mark in the ascending; where, while the sense is still the same, the arrangement has a happier effect.

'Having made an end of these parables, but probably explained none of them as yet, not even to his own disciples; he returns to the house which he had lately quitted, and secludes himself there, with his disciples, for the rest of that day, Mt. xiii. 36—52, § 33, pp. 253—9; Mk. iv. 34, § 32, p. 249. The time of the return was probably the time of the usual noonday's meal, or not much after it; and while our Lord and his disciples were still alone within, he explains, at their request, all or most of the preceding parables, and adds a few more in private.'—Ibid. Diss. xxiii. p. 334.

[a] p. 244. [b] Sect. xxxiii. p. 253 [c] § Ibid. pp. 253—..8.

SECTION 33.—(G. 18.)—JESUS INTERPRETS TO HIS DISCIPLES IN PRIVATE,* AT THEIR ENTREATY, THE FIRST AND SECOND OF HIS PARABLES: HE ADDS THREE MORE; THE LAST WITH AN INTERPRETATION. THE RELATIONS OF JESUS MAKE A SECOND ATTEMPT TO SEE HIM: HE RETURNS THE SAME KIND OF ANSWER AS BEFORE. Matt. xiii. 36, 18—23, 36—52. Mark iv. 10—25 Luke viii. 9—21.—AT CAPERNAUM.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. xiii. 36. Jesus dismisses the multitude, and retires into the house.

———— Mk. iv. 10—.3. Lu. viii. 9, 10. Being asked by his disciples the meaning of the parable, Jesus encourages them in their inquiries, by saying that to them belongs the knowledge of 'the mystery of the kingdom'—the substance of those typical representations which wholly engage the attention of the Jewish worshippers, to the neglect of the truths they were intended to teach in parables.—Comp. Mt. xiii. 10—7, § 32, p. 244.

—— xiii. 19. —— iv. 14, .5. —— viii. 11, .2. Jesus begins to expound 'the parable of the Sower'—shews what he meant by 'the seed,' 'the way-side,' and 'the fowls of the air.'—See on Mt. xiii. 10—7.

—— xiii. 20, .1. —— iv. 16, .7. —— viii. 13. Explains 'the stony ground,' as representing those of shallow mind, whose feelings are easily excited, but are wanting in depth of thought and strength of principle. This is illustrated in the case of the second great field of apostolic preaching, Asia Minor.—See 'Notes,' and 'Scrip. Illus.' p. 255.

—— xiii. 22. —— iv. 18, .9. —— viii. 14. Describes who are like the thorny ground, where the seed is prevented from bringing forth fruit unto 'perfection.'—Comp. the case of Greece.—See 'Notes,' &c., p. 256.

—— xiii. 23. —— iv. 20. —— viii. 15. 'The good ground' represents those who 'in an honest and good heart,' having heard and understood the word, receive and keep it, and 'bring forth fruit with patience.'

———— —— iv. 21—.3. —— viii. 16, .7. Jesus, by an allusion to the mystery of the candlestick, and the place within the veil, shews that those to whom the light is given must dispense it to others.

Mt. ———— Mk. iv. 24, .5. Lu. viii. 18. The preparation necessary for making increase in the knowledge of the truth: attention, discrimination, conformity to the grace revealed, and a faithful reception and retention thereof.

—— xiii. 36—43. Jesus, at the request of his disciples, explains 'the parable of the tares of the field,' ver. 24—30, p. 246: He tells them that 'the field is the world,' and that therein, for the sake of the righteous, the wicked will be allowed to remain, until the conclusion of the present dispensation; when the Son of man will send forth his messengers, and 'gather out of his kingdom' all that only mar its beauty, or obscure its brightness; and 'then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father.'

—— xiii. 44. The parable of 'treasure hid in a field.'

—— xiii. 45, .6. The parable of 'a merchant man seeking goodly pearls.'

—— xiii. 47—50. Parable of 'a net that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind'—intimating a separation like that of the tares from the wheat—only, that in the case of the net, the good seem to be taken from among the bad, not the bad from among the good, as in the case of the tares and wheat—comp. with ver. 41—.3.

—— xiii. 51, .2. As understanding these things, every scribe, who is himself well 'instructed unto the kingdom of heaven,' will be like an householder, having an abundant and various supply of good things, which he readily brings forth as occasion requires.

———— ———— Lu. viii. 19—21. JESUS intimates, that those who are most near and dear to him are those who 'hear the word of God, and do it.'

(G. 18,) No. 33. Jesus interprets to his disciples in private, at their entreaty, the first and second of his parables: he adds three more; the last with an interpretation.—Capernaum.

MATT. xiii. 36, 18—23, 36—52.	MARK iv. 10—25. [Ver. 9, § xxxii. p. 244.]	LUKE viii. 9—18. [Ver. 8, § xxxii. p. 244.]
36 [a] Then Jesus sent the multitude away, and went into the house: [b] [Ver. 37, p. 259.]	10 [b] And when he was alone κατα μονας, they that were about him with the twelve [c] asked of him	And his [c] disciples asked him, saying, What might this parable be? [d] 9
	the parable.	And he said, 10
	11 [d] And he said unto them, Unto you it is given to know	Unto you it is given to know

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. iv. 10. asked of him the parable—that of the Sower, the first of the five, presented in the last Section—see Mt. xiii. 1—9; Mk. iv. 1—9; Lu. viii. 4—8, § 32, p. 242.

11. Unto you it is given, &c.—see Mt. xiii. 11, p. 244 —The meek will he guide in judgment: and the meek will he teach his way'—'The secret of the LORD is with them that fear him; and he will shew them his covenant,' Ps. xxv. 9—14—'having made known unto us the mystery of his will,' &c., Eph. i. 9.

NOTES.

Mk. iv. 10—.3.—See on Mt. xiii. 10—.7, § 32, p. 244.

When he was alone—i. e., separate from the multitude.—See Mt. xiii. 36, 'went into the house,' probably the same in Capernaum which he had lately left.

* Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxvii. pp. 436—.41, and Diss. xxiii. p. 335.—See also Sect. xxxii., ADDENDA, p. 251, supra, 'On Jesus beginning to teach in parables.'

Matt. xiii. 18, .9.	Mark iv. 12—.5.	Luke viii. 11, .2.
	the mystery of the kingdom of God: but unto them that are without, all these things are done in parables:	the mysteries of the kingdom of God: but to others in parables;
	12 that seeing they may see βλεπωσι, and not perceive ἰδωσι; and hearing they may hear, and not understand; lest at any time they should be converted ἐπιστρεψωσι, and their sins should be forgiven them.	that seeing they might not see βλεπωσι, and hearing they might not understand συνωσιν.
	13 And he said unto them, Know ye not this parable? and how then will ye know all parables? [e] [Ver. 17, § xxxii. p. 246.] 18 [a] Hear ye therefore the parable of the sower [f]
	[f] Now the parable is this: 11 The seed is the word of God. [g]
	14 [g] The sower soweth the word. [h]
	15 And these are they by the way-side, [i] where the word is sown; [e]	[h] Those by the 12 way-side [i]
19 When any one heareth [l] the word of the kingdom, [m]		[e] are they that hear; [l]
	[m] but when they have heard, [n]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

the mystery—5, 'And the angel which I saw stand upon the sea and upon the earth lifted up his hand to heaven, 6, and sware by him that liveth for ever and ever, who created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea, and the things which are therein, that there should be time no longer; 7, but in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God should be finished, as he hath declared to his servants the prophets,' Rev. x. 5—7.

12. seeing they may see, and not perceive, &c.—Mt. xiii. 13—5, § 32, p. 245—'But their minds were blinded: for until this day remaineth the same vail untaken away in the reading of the Old Testament; which vail is done away in Christ,' 2 Co. iii. 14.

13. and how then will ye know all parables?—In the Apocalypse, which is the opening of all parables, Christ is presented as He by whom light is sown. The Son of man, in preparing to sow the word, is presented first as having 'in his right hand seven stars,' Rev. i. 16—.8—and afterwards a little book open, in connection with which the finishing of the mystery of God, or opening of all parables, is intimated, x. 1—7, see above; and on Lu. viii. 16, .7, p. 258—'Who raised up the righteous man from the east?' Is. xli. 1, 2. . . . —'He shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles. . . The isles shall wait for his law,' xlii. 1—4. . . . —'After the glory hath he sent me unto the nations which spoiled you. . . And ye shall know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me,' Zech. ii. 8, 9.

14. the sower soweth the word—'With thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light,' Ps. xxxvi. 9—'The Lord gave the word: great . . . the company of those that published it,' lxviii. 11—'Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart,' xcvii. 11—'Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path,' cxix. 105—'Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever. . . And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you,' 1 Pe. i. 23, .5.

15. way-side—see Mt. xiii. 15, § 32, p. 246.

NOTES.

Mk. iv. 11. The mystery of the, &c.—See Sect. 33, Addenda, p. 263.

Mt. xiii. 18. Hear ye therefore the parable of the sower—i. e., hear the explanation, or spiritual meaning of the narrative given before. Mark adds, ch. iv. 13, 'Know ye not this parable? and how then will ye know all parables (or all the parables)?' By which it would appear that it is the duty of the disciple to seek to know all 'the mysteries of the kingdom;' and the understanding of the parable of the sower introduces to a knowledge of the parables generally.

Mk. iv. 14. The sower soweth, &c. ὁ σπείρων—σπείρει. A brief and popular form of expression, of which the sense is, 'The sower [mentioned in the parable] is to be considered as one sowing the word [of God].'

Mt. xiii. 19. The word of the kingdom. The word of the kingdom was first and frequently proclaimed to the Jews, but they received it not. Of the nature, character, and extent of the long-expected kingdom they remained grossly ignorant; they set themselves in the most determined hostility to both the King and his subjects: it is not to the Jews that we can look for a knowledge of the kingdom.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. iv. 11. The knowledge of the mystery of the kingdom of God is a gift to those who, being disciples of Jesus, sincerely seek to obtain that knowledge. Neither learning, nor any other outward advantage, can be expected to procure it for those that seek not unto the Great Teacher.

12 ver. God is not to be mocked: although forgiveness is free, and immediately connected with the knowledge of salvation in Christ, yet none can attain to this knowledge, and so to free forgiveness, except the humble and sincere.

13 ver. The disciples of Christ should not rest contented in ignorance of any matter which God has been pleased to reveal to them; but should know, and avail themselves of their privilege of knowing, all parables.

Lu. viii. 11. Unless seed be sown, fruit cannot be expected; so neither can we expect true good to arise among men, except from the free distribution of the seed, which is the word of God.

MATT. xiii. 20, .1.	MARK iv. 16, .7.	LUKE viii. 13.
" and understandeth it not, then-[o] cometh the wicked-one, and catcheth-away ἁρπαζει that which-was-sown in his heart.	[o] Satan cometh immediately, and taketh-away αιρει the word that-was-sown in their hearts.[p]	then cometh the devil, and taketh-away αιρει the word out-of their hearts, [p] lest they-should-believe and-be-saved.[q]
[q] This is he which-received-seed σπαρεις by the way-side.'
20 But he that-received-the-seed into stony places, the-same is he that-heareth the word, and anon with joy receiveth it;	16 [r] And these are they likewise which-are-sown on stony ground; who, when they-have heard the word, immediately receive it with gladness;	They 13 on the rock are they, which, when they-hear, receive the word with joy;
21 yet hath-he not root in himself, but dureth for-a-while προσκαιρος:	17 and have no root in themselves, and-so endure but-for-a time προσκαιροι:	and these have no root, which for a-while προς καιρον believe, and for when-[t] tribulation	afterward,[s] [t] when-[t] affliction	[s] in time of temptation[s]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xiii. 20. anon with joy receiveth it—see Paul's preaching in Asia Minor, Ac. xiii., iv.—'Where is then the blessedness ye spake of? for I bear you record, that, if it had been possible, ye would have plucked out your own eyes, and have given them to me,' Ga. iv. 15.

21. but dureth for a while—13, 'Hold fast the form of sound words, which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus. 14, That good thing which was committed unto thee keep by the Holy Ghost which dwelleth in us. 15, This thou knowest, that all they which are in Asia be turned away from me,' 2 Ti. i. 13—.5—'I marvel that ye are so soon removed . . . unto another gospel . . . though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed,' Ga. i. 6, &c. 'O foolish Galatians, who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the truth,' &c., iii. 1—' How turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements. . . I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed upon you labour in vain,' iv. 9—11—'Christ is become of no effect unto you, whosoever of you are justified by the law; ye are fallen from grace,' v. 4.—'Nevertheless I have some-what against thee, because thou hast left thy first love. 5, Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first works; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent,' Rev. ii. 4, 5.

tribulation—' In the world ye shall have tribulation,' Jno. xvi. 33, § 87—'We must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom,' &c., Ac. xiv. 22—' For verily, when we were with you, we told you before that we should suffer tribulation; even as it came to pass, and ye know.' 1 Th. iii. 4—' Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you,' 1 Pe. iv. 12—' Ye shall have tribulation ten days,' Rev. ii. 10.

NOTES.

[Understandeth it not. μη συνιεντος, 'mindeth it not,' 'doth not admit it.' 'Their very callousness rendering it as impossible that the word should take root in their hearts, as the hardness of a beaten surface, that seed should penetrate there into the ground. They are, without a miracle, too stubborn and obdurate to be softened, even by the grace of God, and the mollifying influences of his Spirit, which, under ordinary circumstances, accompany, enforce, and invigorate the preaching of his word, to the personal conviction, the immediate impression, and the permanent assurance and satisfaction of its hearers; just as the way-side of fields is impenetrable to the dews and rains, which, in other instances, soften and prepare the ground for the reception of the seed before it is sown, and foster and nourish it when grown.'—Greswell on the Parables, Vol. II. p. 36.]

Then cometh the wicked one—' Is ever at hand and ever on the watch to snatch away the word from such hearts' (the way-side hearers) 'before it has time to touch or influence them; which being done, it is clearly implied, and it must be self-evident, that the condition of these hearers, abandoned by grace, and deprived of the means of conversion, which they have scorned and rejected, while in their power, is more naked and destitute, more reckless and insensate, yet infinitely more hopeless and dangerous than before.'—Ibid. p. 43.

The wicked one had just before made use of the Pharisees, for the purpose of removing from the minds of the Jewish hearers the evidence of the Messiahship of Jesus, which was being forced upon their attention—see Mt. xii. 23, .4, § 31, p. 234.

20. He that received . . . into stony places. The seed falling on stony or rocky ground, represents superficial and undecided hearers—those whose passions are easily excited, whose zeal is easily awakened, but whose knowledge is small, and their principles unsettled.

[Such appears to have been the character of many in the second great field of apostolic labour. See in the second great field of apostolic labour. See for example, the case of the Galatians, as described by Paul; and the seven churches of Asia, Where are they? They soon stumbled and fell; and long since they have altogether withered away. No fruit of the early sowing is now to be seen upon that field. Yet there it was that the Sower, the Son of man, appeared to John in the ministration of the word, Rev. i. Their case is full of warning to the church in all succeeding ages, and especially to us.—See ii., iii.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. viii. 12. Let us not be like 'the way-side hearers' who hear the word without understanding it—and . . . without ever receiving it in truth, or being able to defend it against the assaults of the enemy.

Mk. iv. 16. Let us not be like 'the stony ground,' receiving the word of the kingdom without truly understanding and believing it. Let it enter deeply into our thoughts; let our affections take fast hold of it.

MATT. xiii. 22.	MARK iv. 18, 19.	LUKE viii. 14.
or persecution arriseth because of the word, by-and-by he is offended.	or persecution ariseth for the word's sake, immediately they are offended.
22 He also	18 And "fall away ἀφίστανται.
		And that 14
that received seed among the thorns	these are they which are sown among thorns	which fell among thorns are they which, when they have heard,"
is he that heareth the word;	such as hear "the word,"
		"go forth,"
and the care of this world αἰωνος, & the deceitfulness of riches,	19 "and the cares of this world αἰωνος, & the deceitfulness of riches,"	and are choked with cares and riches
	"and the lusts of other things entering in,	"and pleasures of this life" τοῦ βίου, choke the word,	choke the word.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. v. 19. cares of this world, &c.—both Matthew and Mark add, 'the deceitfulness of riches,'—Mark continues, 'and the lusts of other things,'—Luke says, 'and pleasures of this life,'—all these tend to choke the word, Mk. iv. 19; Lu. viii. 14—'Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world,' &c., 1 Jno. ii. 15—7—'If ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live,' Rom. viii. 13—A lustful regard to human wisdom, wealth, and worldly station; a magnifying of the creature, attaching undue importance to what is outward and merely human, to the neglect of that holy love which is most characteristic of the Divine life, we find much warned against in the Epistles to the Corinthians. The evil influence of such thorns in reference to God's husbandry is noticed, 1 Co. iii. 3—9. 3, 'For ye are yet carnal: for whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men? 4, For while one saith, I am of Paul; and another, I am of Apollos; are ye not carnal? 5, Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man? 6, I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase. 7, So then neither is he that planteth anything, neither he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase. 8, Now he that planteth and he that watereth are one: and every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labour. 9, For we are labourers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building.'

NOTES.

21. Yet hath he not root in himself. The word is not rooted in him, or he does not suffer it to take deep root in his mind.

Is offended. σκανδαλίζεται—i. e., stumbles and falls. Persecution and trial are placed in his path, and he falls as he would over a stumbling-block. He has not strength of principle enough—not confidence enough in God to carry him through them. He falleth away, becomes an apostate.

Mk. iv. 18. These are they which are sown among thorns. 'The nature of such an impediment is expressed in general in the following classification of moral motives: "the cares of this world, the deceit of riches, and the desires which concern the rest of things," which last St. Luke shews to be equivalent to the "pleasures of life" in general. This class of hearers . . . may be described in one word, as the worldly minded of every sort. . . . This description will comprise all whose minds, though partially affected by the love of God, are never wholly devoted to him; . . . but are divided between God and the world, . . . until at last the love of the world . . . gains the ascendant, and by the superior force of its attractions absorbs their affections, engrosses their thoughts, engages their time and attention, and immerses them totally in secular pursuits and employments.'—Gresswell on the Parables, Vol. II. p. 50.

[19. The cares of this world. 'Will apply to the case of men more particularly who are of an aspiring or ambitious turn of mind; whose ruling passion is the desire of power and influence, of rank and authority, who mix eagerly in active life; manage, or aim at managing, the affairs of societies, grasp at honours and distinctions, as the reward of civil merit; lay the foundation of families and titles.'—Ibid. p. 51. Thus those who may seem to have the least occasion for worldly care may be altogether occupied thereby—whilst some who are in want of all things may yet be without carefulness, as casting all their care upon Him who careth for them.]

The deceitfulness of riches. 'The deceit, or deceivable tendencies of wealth, will apply in an especial manner to the men of business, and of trading or commercial enterprise; to all, whose object or employment it is, in any way to amass wealth, to provide for families, to accumulate and leave behind them fortunes.'—Gresswell on the Parables, Vol. II. p. 51.

[The lusts of other things, &c.—'The desires which concern the rest of things, as we may collect from St. Luke's exposition of their nature, point with sufficient clearness to another comprehensive division of mankind, the votaries of pleasure; who think of nothing, and live for little or nothing, but their own gratification and indulgence. Under this description will be comprehended not only the mere sensualist, or man of fashion, but even the men of science and letters; the admirers and cultivators of the elegant arts or accomplishments. For personal pleasure may be intellectual as well as bodily; and only a more refined species of the love of self and sense in general. Whatever be the idol of a man's heart, distinct from power or wealth, it is still some favourite creature of his own choice and selection; and in worshipping and devoting himself to it, he is still studying his own pleasure and gratification . . . finding both its beginning and its consummation within the limits of this present life, and going no further than their personal satisfaction, amusement, reputation, or comfort—they too must be classed with the rest, in whose hearts the seed has been stifled, or is liable to be stifled, in its progress to maturity, by the pleasures of life, and by the desires that concern the rest of things.'—Ibid.]

[Lu. viii. 14. And pleasures of this life. In Greece, more especially, these, at the commencement of the

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. iv. 18. Neither let us be like 'those among thorns,' allowing 'the cares of this world, the deceitfulness of riches, or the lusts of other things,' to 'choke the word:' but, whilst we seek to understand it; whilst we deeply meditate upon it, and grasp it with all the affections of our hearts, let us carefully exclude every imagination and desire that is not in subjection to the knowledge of Christ.

LET MY MOUTH BE FILLED WITH THY PRAISE AND WITH THY HONOUR ALL THE DAY.—Psalm lxxi. 9.
CAST ME NOT OFF IN THE TIME OF OLD AGE; FORSAKE ME NOT WHEN MY STRENGTH FAILETH.—Psalm lxxi. 9.

MATT. xiii. 23.	MARK iv. 20.	LUKE viii. 15.
and he-becometh unfruitful.	and it-becometh unfruitful.	and bring-^a no^-fruit-to-perfection τελεσφοροῦσι.
23 But he that-received-seed into the good ground is he	20 And these are they which-are-sown on good ground; such-as^a	But that 15 on the good ground are they, which ^a in an-honest & good heart, having-heard the word, keep κατεχουσι it, and bring-forth-fruit with ev patience.[6]
that-heareth the word, and understandeth συνιων it; which also beareth-fruit, and bringeth-forth,	hear the word, and receive παραδεχονται it, and bring-forth-fruit,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xiii. 23. the good ground—see on ver. 8, § 32, p. 244.

Lu. viii. 15. an honest and good heart—of this the apostle of the Gentiles was a signal example—'And I thank Christ Jesus our Lord, who hath enabled me, for that he counted me faithful, putting me into the ministry; 13, who was before a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and injurious: but I obtained mercy, because I did it ignorantly in unbelief. 14, And the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant with faith and love which is in Christ Jesus,' 1 Tim. i. 12—4—'Therefore seeing we have this ministry, as we have received mercy, we faint not; 2, but have renounced the hidden things of dishonesty, not walking in craftiness, nor handling the word of God deceitfully; but by manifestation of the truth commending ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God. 3, But if our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost: 4, in whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them. 5, For we preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord; and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake,' 2 Co. iv. 1—5—so the people, who should more especially enjoy, and make known to others the lovingkindness of the Lord, Isa. lxiii. 7, 8.

having heard the word, keep it—'Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein: for the time ^w at hand,' Rev. i. 3—'Behold, I come quickly: blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophecy of this book,' xxii. 7—'Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city,' 14.

with patience—'But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting

NOTES.

Christian dispensation, were abundant. The animal nature of man might there find its greatest enjoyment; along with all that the heathen world could afford, for the improvement and expansion of his intellectual faculties, or for giving refinement and elevation to the moral sentiments. In literature, in science, in the arts, the greatest excellence had been sought for, and so attained, as that Greece has given models to the civilized world ever since. She had herself the greatest exactness in copying, along with the utmost fertility of invention. The pleasures of taste and the delights of wisdom were there to be found in the highest degree of perfectibility attainable by unassisted man—nay, so high had the inspiration of genius carried the poets and philosophers of Greece, as that even to true believers there was some danger that their productions would prove too successful rivals to the words of Divine inspiration. Certain it is, that Christianity having been transplanted into their schools, the thorns sprung up and choked the word, so that it bore no fruit unto perfection. Before Christianity could develop itself freely, it had to pass into other ground: it had not, any more than natural science, room to expand itself, until the scholastic subtleties of Greece were discarded, for the plain rules of common sense and scripture analogy. The springing up of these thorns, whereby the full development of the word was effectually prevented in Greece, is noticed and much warned against by Paul, in his Epistles to the Corinthians, as also in those to the Philippians and Thessalonians. In Corinth, more especially, abounded the thorns alluded to by our Lord in the parable. It is not to the Greek fathers that we are to look for perfection: yet this third field of labour is not like the second, from which has disappeared any fruits of the seed sown by the apostles. In Asia Minor, no remains of the ancient churches are known to exist; whereas, in Greece Christianity still remains in name, although, indeed, so 'choked with thorns,' as to present only a slender stalk and sickly ear, in place of that full development of the Christian life, in the simplicity of the truth, which was to be looked for, and to which may it be our most prayerful endeavour to attain.]

Mt. xiii. 23. But he that received seed into the good ground, &c. 'This our Saviour specifies, in Luke viii. 15, by the possession of "an honest and good heart." With hearers of this description, the gospel would require no recommendation to make them receive and embrace it, but its intrinsic excellence and loveliness: no more than the seed, falling on duly prepared soil, any stimulus to vegetation, but its native tendency to take root and spring up. Nor is it, perhaps, without design that St. Matthew adds to his description of such hearers, that they hear the word and give it admission, or understand it, before they retain it, just as St. Luke adds, that they retain, or hold it fast, before they bring forth its fruit. For comprehension of the nature of the gospel overture is just as necessary, and just as much prior, to its admission and retention, as its admission and retention are to the practical effects of its profession.'—Gres. p. 57.

['Such hearers as these, then, are converts upon principle; deliberate in their choice, and steady in the maintenance of their Christian profession. . . . Though all the grain which fell upon the good ground was productive, yet one part of it yielded more, and another less: a difference . . . which must be imputed to the soil into which it happened to be received . . . The "honest and good heart" in every recipient of the word, whatever might be the difference in the fruits of holiness which it should produce in some, compared with others, would still be single and unmixed; open to the gospel and the love of God, to take exclusive possession of it, and to flourish there unobstructed by any ruling, antagonist, or consociated passion, and would still be sufficiently rooted in depth of principle, in strength of conviction, and in warmth and constancy of attachment, to sustain the rude shocks of external violence, and to perfect its fruit in patience, that is, in endurance.'—Ibid, pp. 58, 63, 4.]

And understandeth it. Meaning, 'who gives it admission, lays it to heart, so as to understand it.'

Lu. viii. 15. With patience. 'By patient perseverance.'

[Such do not allow the spirit of the world to modify their Christianity, but their endeavour is, to make all their occupations and pursuits only different developments of Christianity; the outward manifestations of a living principle within them, the fruit of the incorruptible seed of the word.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Unlike 'the thorny ground,' let us 'receive the word in an honest and good heart;' unlike 'the way-side,' when we have heard the word, let us keep it; unlike 'the stony ground,' let us 'bring forth fruit with patience.' Thus let us be like the good ground, having the good seed sown therein. It is of the utmost importance, not only that the good seed be sown, but that the ground be prepared for the reception of the seed; neither can the ground become fruitful without a right yielding to the influence of the Holy Spirit.]

MATT. xiii. 23.
some an-hundred-fold,
some sixty,
some thirty.
[Ch. xiii. 24—35, § xxxii. p. 249.]

MARK iv. 21, .2.
some thirty-fold,
some sixty,
and some an-hundred.
21 And he-said unto-them,[c]

Is-a candle-brought to be-put

[d]under a bushel, or under a bed?[e]
and not to be-set on a candlestick?

22 [f]For there-is nothing hid,

LUKE viii. 16, .7.

[c] No-man, when-he- 16 hath-lighted a-candle, covereth it with-a-vessel, or putteth it[d]

under a-bed;
[e]but setteth it on a-candlestick, that they which-enter-in may-see the light.[f]
For nothing is secret, 17

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

nothing,' Ja. i. 4—'Be patient, therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain. Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh,' v. 7, 8—'Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth. Behold, I come quickly,' Rev. iii. 10, 1—'Here is the patience of the saints: here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus,' xiv. 12.

Mt. xiii. 23. an hundred-fold, &c.—While residing at Gerar, in the land of Abimelech, 'Isaac sowed in that land, and received in the same year an hundred-fold: and the LORD blessed him,' Ge. xxvi. 12—and see 'Notes,' infra—Peter says, 'And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; 6, and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; 7, and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity,' 2 Ep. i. 5—7—and so St. Paul, 'Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things,' Phil. iv. 8.

Lu. viii. 16. candlestick—A candlestick was made after the pattern shewn to Moses in the mount, Ex. xxxvii. 17—24—see also xxv. 31—40—the candlestick was placed in 'the sanctuary,' Heb. ix. 2—'the lamps thereof, to burn every evening,' 2 Ch. xiii. 11—'without the vail of the testimony, in the tabernacle of the congregation, shall Aaron order it from the evening unto the morning before the LORD continually,' Le. xxiv. 3—The prophet saw in vision, 'a candlestick all of gold, with a bowl upon the top of his, and his seven lamps thereon, and seven pipes to the seven lamps . . . upon the top thereof: and two olive trees by it, one upon the right side of the bowl, and the other upon the left side thereof,' Zec. iv. 2, 3—Our High Priest is seen 'in the midst of the seven candlesticks,' as one 'like unto the Son of man,' Rev. i. 13—'the seven candlesticks . . . are the seven churches,' ver. 20—'among whom ye shine [Marg. shine ye] as lights in the world; holding forth the word of life,' Ph. ii. 15, .6—It is as walking in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks, that Christ appears in the ministration of the word, Rev. ii., iii.; saying, at the close of the several ministrations thereof to the seven churches of Asia, as at the close of the parable of the sower, 'Who hath ears to hear, let him hear'—see Mt. xiii. 9, § 32, p. 244—see an Mk. iv. 23, p. 259; and on Mt. v. 15, .6, § 19, p. 123; Lu. xi. 33, § 62.

17. secret, &c.—'He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty,' Ps. xci. 1—'after the second veil, the tabernacle which is called the Holiest of all; 4, which had the golden censer, and the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, wherein was the golden pot that had manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant; 5, and over it the cherubims of glory shadowing the mercy-seat,' Heb. ix. 3—5—The law written upon tables, and deposited in the ark, under the mercy-seat, represented the good seed of the word as hid in the hearts of Israel, when the Lord will again enter into covenant relationship with them as a nation, Je. xxxi. 31—.4 . . . When each with his great Exemplar can say, 'Thy law is within my heart,' Ps. xl. 8, and 'Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee,' cxix. 11—The Lord will destroy 'the face of the covering cast over all people, and the vail that is spread over all nations,' Is. xxv. 7—then that which has been hid is to be manifested, as Mk. iv. 22, and the disciple, with his Master, is to be able to say, 'I have not hid thy righteousness within my heart; I have declared thy faithfulness and thy salvation: I have not concealed thy lovingkindness and thy truth from the great congregation,' Ps. xl. 10—For this are the rebels to 'hearken'—7, 'Hearken unto me, ye that know righteousness, the people in whose heart is my law; fear ye not the reproach of men, neither be ye afraid of their revilings,' Is. li. 1—7. . . . —'Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee,' lx. 1. . . . —God's working with Israel has been hid, but by his power, the unsearchableness of his wisdom therein is to be manifested, xl. 27—31, . . . —the prophets searched diligently to know the truth respecting Christ, which was hid in the words they uttered—'Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things, which are now reported unto you by them that have preached the gospel unto you with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven; which things the angels desire to look into,' 1 Pe. i. 11, 2—after the fully justify the accounts of Scripture and of Josephus; borne out as they are by the testimony of modern travellers.'—Bloomf.

NOTES.

Mt. xiii. 23. An hundred-fold. 'An immense produce, but not unexampled.—See § 32, p. 244, Mt. xiii. 8, NOTE, "An hundred-fold."—It may suffice to refer the reader to Warnekros' Dissertation on the fertility of Palestine, or Greswell, on Parab. vol. ii. 19, seq., who present statements from ancient writers, which

Mk. iv. 21. Is a candle, &c.—See 'Scrip. Illus.' Lu. viii. 16, .7, and on Mt. v. 15, § 19, p. 123, 'Notes.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. iv. 20. The same measure of good may not be expected from all; but, whilst thankful for the least degree, let us seek to attain to the largest measure of fruitfulness.

Let not the child of God think that he is free to hide, or dispense according to his own pleasure, the light which is given to him.

22 ver. Let every man act as in the sight of Him who knows the heart, and who will bring every secret thing to light.

Matt. xiii. 37, .8.	Mark iv. 23—.5.	Luke viii. 18,
	which shall-not-be-manifested; neither was any thing kept-secret,[g] but that it-should-come abroad.	that shall-not-be-made manifest; neither any thing hid, [g] that shall-not-be-known and come abroad.[h]
	23 [h] If any-man have ears to hear, let-him-hear.
	24 And he-said unto-them, Take-heed what ye-hear: with what measure ye-mete, it-shall-be-measured to-you: and unto-you that hear shall-more-be-given προστεθησεται.	Take-heed therefore how ye-hear: 18
	25 For he that-hath, to-him shall-be-given: and he that-hath not, from him shall-be-taken even that-which [i] he-hath.	for whosoever hath, to-him shall-be-given; and whosoever hath not, from him shall-be-taken even that-which [i] he-seemeth to-have. [k]
[Ver. 36, p. 253.]	[Ch. iv. 26, § xxxii. p. 247.]	[Ver. 19, p. 262.]
[k] and his disciples came-unto him, saying, Declare 37 unto-us the parable of-the tares of-the field. He answered and-said unto-them, He that-soweth the good 38 seed is the Son of man; the field is the world κοσμος; the good seed are the children of-the kingdom; prophet had eaten the little book, as he was commanded, Rev. x. 9, it was intimated to him that the word he had digested he was to minister to others: 'Thou must prophesy again before many peoples, and nations, and tongues, and kings,' ver. 11.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

neither . . . hid that, &c.—'The words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end, . . . but the wise shall understand,' Da. xii. 9, 10—'For the vision is yet for an appointed time, but at the end it shall speak, and not lie: though it tarry, wait for it; because it will surely come, it will not tarry,' Hab. ii. 3, p 136—'In the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God should be finished, as he hath declared to his servants the prophets,' Rev. x. 7.

Mk. iv. 23. If any man, &c.—see on Mt. xi. 15, &c., § 29, p. 225—'He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches,' Rev. ii. 7, &c.—'The Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God,' 1 Co. ii. 10—'He will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will shew you things to come,' Jno. xvi. 13, § 87.

24. Take heed what ye hear—The necessity of attending to this precept is apparent from the parable of the tares of the field, explained Mt. xiii. 36—43, supra—in the same field in which the good seed is sown does Satan seek to sow his tares—the same lips which have made the most striking confession of the truth, does he ensnaringly make use of for uttering error against the Lord—see the case of the first apostle, Mt. xvi. 16—22, § 50—'Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God: because many false prophets are gone out into the world. Hereby know ye the Spirit of God: Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God: and,' &c., 1 Jno. iv. 1—3.

with what measure, &c.—see on Mt. vii. 2, § 19, p. 137.

shall more be given—So when Daniel 'understood by books' what was about to come to pass, the purpose of God was further revealed to him, Da. ix. 2, 20—7, p. (52), &c.—So Paul, having been obedient 'unto the heavenly vision,' Ac. xxvi. 19, was subsequently given 'abundance of the revelations,' 2 Co. xii. 7.

25. he that hath, &c.—see on Mt. xiii. 12, § 32, —he hath, 'seemeth to have,' &c., Lu. viii. 18—'Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise,' 1 Co. iii. 18—'If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain,' Ja. i. 26.

Mt. xiii. 36. parable of the tares—see Mt. xiii. 24—30, § 32, p. 246.

37. He that soweth, &c.—see on Mt. xiii. 3, p. 243.

38. the field is the world—'And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations,' &c., Mt. xxiv. 14, § 86—'Go ye therefore, and teach all nations,' xxviii. 19, § 96—'preach the gospel to every creature,' Mk. xvi. 15, § 98—'among all nations,' Lu. xxiv. 47, § 10.—'unto the ends of the world,' Rom. x. 18—'The word of the truth of the gospel; which is come unto you, as it is in all the world; and bringeth forth fruit,' &c., Col. i. 5, 6.

the children, &c.—'I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed,' Ge. iii. 15—There were those who called themselves the children of Abraham, and even claimed God as their Father, who were, by the Son of God, declared to be of their 'father the devil,' Jno. viii. 33, 41, 44, § 56—Elymas, being full of all subtilty and mischief, was known to be a 'child of the devil,' Ac. xiii. 10—'He that committeth sin is of the devil,' 1 Jno. iii. 8.

NOTES.

[Mk. iv. 24. With what measure ye mete, &c. It shall be given to you according as ye give unto others. Those who do not freely dispense their light to others may not expect to be abundantly supplied with oil; but the great householder will pour more and more into those lamps which do give light to his household.]

Unto you that hear. To you who are attentive, and who improve what you hear—who hear and obey.

25. He that hath—see Mt. xiii. 12, 'Note,' § 32, p. 245.

Hath not. Hath not the word as a principle of life within him, and producing corresponding conduct—and see on Mt. xiii. 12.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

23, 4 ver. Let us be careful to ascertain, that what we hear is the word of God, and that which God makes known unto us let us freely communicate to others; and as we would have God be liberal to us, let us be liberal to them. If we would have a clearer and fuller knowledge of his will, let us first endeavour to make a right use of that which is already given us.

Mt. xiii. 37. The Son of man disposes of his people in this world according to his good pleasure; and places them in their several positions in society, not that they may please themselves, but bring forth fruit unto God. 'He that soweth the good seed is the Son of man.'

MATT. xiii. 39—43.

but the tares are the children of the wicked one;
39 the enemy that sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the world συντελεια του αιωνος;
40 and the reapers are the angels. As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the 41 end of this world συντελεια αιωνος τουτου. The Son of man shall send forth αποστελει his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend
42 σκανδαλα, and them which do iniquity την ανομιαν; and shall cast them into a furnace of fire: there shall be 43 wailing and gnashing of teeth. Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

39. the enemy that sowed, &c.—'false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ. And no marvel; for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light,' 2 Co. xi. 13, 4—'Beware of dogs, beware of evil workers,' Ph. iii. 2—'This wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual, devilish,' Ja. iii. 15—see the enemy of the woman and her seed, Rev. xii. 3, 4, and the progeny of the dragon, xiii. 1, &c., 11, &c.

the harvest—see on ver. 30, § 32, p. 247—Both the harvest and vintage are indicated, Joel iii. 13 . . . . 'Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe: come, get you down; for the press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great'—they are more fully described, Rev. xiv. 12—20.

reapers are the angels—'And he shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other,' Mt. xxiv. 31, § 86.

40. gathered and burned, &c.—see on ver. 30, p. 247.

41. gather out of his kingdom—'caused the day-spring to know his place; that it might take hold of the ends of the earth, that the wicked might be shaken out of it,' Job xxxviii. 12, 13—'The workers of iniquity . . . shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither as the green herb,' 'but the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace,' Ps. xxxvii. 1, 2, 11, &c.

42. furnace of fire—'Let the sinners be consumed out of the earth, and let the wicked be no more,' Ps. civ. 35—'I beheld . . . till the beast was slain, and his body destroyed, and given to the burning flame,' Da. vii. 11—see also Rev. xiv. 9—11; xix. 19, 20.

gnashing of teeth—see on Mt. viii. 12, § 28, p. 220—'The wicked plotteth against the just, and gnasheth upon him with his teeth,' Ps. xxxvii. 12, &c.—'They shall see, and be ashamed for their envy at the people [Margin, toward thy people]; yea, the fire of thine enemies shall devour them,' Is. xxvi. 11.

43. Then shall the righteous shine forth—'When the wicked are cut off, thou shalt see,' Ps. xxxvii. 34—'Take away the dross from the silver, and there shall come forth a vessel for the finer,' Pr. xxv. 4—'The vessels of mercy, which he had afore prepared unto glory,' Rom. ix. 23—'And they that be wise [Marg. teachers] shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever,' Da. xii. 3—'And he carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and shewed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God, having the glory of God: and her light was like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper stone, clear as crystal,' Rev. xxi. 10, 11—'For the Lord God giveth them light: and they shall reign for ever and ever,' xxii. 5—'It doth not yet appear what we shall be,' &c., 1 Jno. iii. 2.

Who hath ears to hear, &c.—see before on ver. 9, § 32, p. 244—'it is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me,' Jno. vi. 45, § 43, p. 330.

NOTES.

[Mt. xiii. 41. All things that offend. σκανδαλα. The word signifies a *stumbling*block, either in a natural or in a figurative sense, denoting, in the latter case, whatever occasions any one to err in his principles or practice. Here, however, as it is joined with τους ποιουντας την ανομιαν, it must denote, not things, but persons, i. e., false teachers, such as Peter was in danger of becoming, when he would have opposed Christ in teaching the foundation truth of Christianity, the doctrine of atonement for sin by his death upon the cross, Mt. xvi. 22, 23, 'Then Peter took him, and began to rebuke him, saying, Be it far from thee, Lord: this shall not be unto thee. 23, But he turned, and said unto Peter, Get thee behind me, Satan: thou art an offence unto me: for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men.']

42. A furnace of fire. Not a material, but a metaphorical one, denoting the wrath of God. Hell, which, in regard of the severe torments which the damned shall feel there, is often in Scripture compared to fire; torments proportioned to, if not exceeding, that of burning living bodies in fire. The allusion is to the oriental custom of burning alive, mentioned in Da. iii. 11.—See on Mt. v. 22, § 19, p. 125, 'Notes,' 'Hell fire.'

43. Then shall the righteous shine forth, &c. 'Then will the righteous, the children of the kingdom, shine forth as the unclouded noon-day sun, in the image of Christ, in the kingdom of their Father,' being made unspeakably glorious and happy.—Scott.

Who hath ears to hear, let him hear. This form of expression, which often occurs in Scripture, is a strong call to the earnest attention, and the diligent exercise of the reason and the understanding of all men, in the important investigation of what is addressed to them; and it is expressive of the authority of the speaker; of the reasonableness, truth, and importance of what is spoken, and the obligations men are under to ponder its import and to follow its requirements.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[38 ver. Let the children of God remember that it is not any isolated spot or limited space, that the good seed is intended to occupy, but the world; and that therein the wicked are allowed to remain, merely by the sufferance of the Son of man.]

39 ver. Whatsoever the wicked may think of their own shrewdness or power, they are under the disposal of the devil, and it is an awful consideration that they are ripening for wrath.

40—3 ver. There is first to be a gathering out of the kingdom those that offend, and those that do iniquity. This gathering of sinners will be unto destruction; then will there be the gathering of the righteous, and this will be unto blessing and glory: freed from the darkening and depressing influence of the wicked, 'then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father.'

MATT. xiii. 44—.6.

44 Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto-treasure hid in a field; the-which when-a-man hath-found, he-hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he-hath, and buyeth that field.
45 Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto-a-merchant 46 man, seeking goodly pearls: who, when-he-had-found one pearl of-great-price, went and-sold all that he-had,
and bought it.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

44. treasure—'If thou seekest her as silver,' &c., Pr. ii. 4, 5—(see the border)—'We have this treasure in earthen vessels' &c., 2 Co. iv. 7—see again, Rom. ix. 23—'The LORD hath chosen Jacob unto himself, and Israel for his peculiar treasure,' Ps. cxxv. 4—see also Ex. xix. 5, 'Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine.'

hid—'Why sayest thou, O Jacob, and speakest, O Israel, My way is hid from the LORD, and my judgment is passed over from my God? Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the LORD, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding,' Is. xl. 27, .8.

selleth all that he hath, &c.—3, 'I am the LORD thy God, the Holy One of Israel, thy Saviour: I gave Egypt for thy ransom, Ethiopia and Seba for thee. 4. Since thou wast precious in my sight, thou hast been honourable, and I have loved thee: therefore will I give men for thee, and people for thy life,' Is. xliii. 3, 4. . . .—'Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich,' 2 Co. viii. 9—yea, he 'gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works,' Tit. ii. 14—'Ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's,' 1 Co. vi. 20—and the Redeemer hath said, 'Whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple,' Lu. xiv. 33, § 67.

and buyeth that field—see the purchase of the field in Anathoth, by Jeremiah, ch. xxxii. 1—25. . . . in the midst of most expressive predictions respecting the redemption of Israel, ch. xxx. . . . xxxi. . . . xxxii. 26—xxxiii. . . . . —'the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory,' Eph. i. 14.

45. seeking goodly pearls—'Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding,' Pr. iv. 7. . . . —'Blessed is the man that heareth me, watching daily at my gates, waiting at the posts of my doors. For whoso findeth me findeth life, and shall obtain favour of the LORD,' Pr. viii. 34, .5. . . —'And the twelve gates were twelve pearls; every several gate was of one pearl,' Rev. xxi. 21—'One thing have I desired of the LORD, that will I seek after,' &c.; 'Teach me thy way, O LORD,' Ps. xxvii. 4, 11.

46. one pearl of great price—see the inestimable value of heavenly wisdom, Job xxviii. 12—7. . . . 'No mention shall be made of coral, or of pearls: for the price of wisdom is above rubies,' ver. 18—'The fear of the Lord, that is wisdom,' ver. 28—'and the knowledge of the holy is understanding,' Pr. ix. 10—see also iii. 14, .5; viii. 10, .1, .9. . . .—It was at a great price that salvation was procured for us by Christ—18, 'ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers; 19, but with the precious blood of Christ,' 1 Pe. i. 18, .9—and if we are not willing to part with all, yea, with life itself, for the sake of Christ, we cannot be his disciples, Lu. xiv. 26, § 67—must count the cost, 28—33. § ib.

went and sold all—The rich young man hesitated when this was required of him, Mt. xix. 21, .2, § 75—Paul did not regret having made this exchange: 'But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ. Yea doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord,' &c., Ph. iii. 7, 8.

NOTES.

44. The kingdom of heaven is like unto treasure hid in a field. Meaning such valuables as, in the insecure state of society in ancient times (from war and political trouble), men were accustomed to bury in the earth.—See Greswell, Vol. II. p. 216. The Jewish law adjudged all treasure found on land to be the right of the then proprietor of the ground.

[Our Lord's meaning is by some supposed to be this: The salvation provided by the gospel is like a treasure, something of inestimable worth, hidden in a field. It is a rich mine, the veins of which run in all directions in the sacred Scriptures; therefore, the field must be dug up; i.e., the records of salvation must be diligently and carefully searched. Which when a man hath found—when a sinner is convinced that the promise of life is to him, he keeps secret; i.e., ponders the matter deeply in his heart; he examines the preciousness of the treasure, and counts the costs of purchase; for joy thereof—finding that this salvation is just what his needy soul requires, and what will make him presently and eternally happy; went and sold all that he had—renounces all his sins, abandons his evil companions, and relinquishes all hope of salvation, through his own righteousness; and purchased that field—not merely bought the book for the sake of the salvation it describes, but by the blood of the covenant buys gold tried in the fire, white raiment, &c., in a word, pardon and purity, which he receives from God for the sake of Jesus Christ. Nothing indeed can be given as the price of this salvation, yet much must be given up for the sake of it. This is implied by purchasing the field.]

45. A merchant-man. Such as those in the East, who travel about buying or exchanging jewels, pearls, or other valuables; a custom illustrated by the citations in Wets., which, with Mr. Greswell's matter, well illustrate the natural history, locality, use, and value of pearls in ancient times. They were, beyond all others, costly. The most valuable pearls were supposed to be those which came from the Red Sea, or from India.—See ver. 46, infra.

46. One pearl of great price. 'The two largest pearls ever known, according to Pliny, were both in possession of Cleopatra, queen of Egypt, and worn by her as ornaments. Each of these was valued at 10,000,000 of sesterces, about 80,000*l*. One she dissolved, and drank off, at a supper which she gave to those who have been willing to forsake all for Him, shall with Him inherit all things.

[45, .6 ver. 'Christ loved the church, and gave himself for it; . . . that he might present it to himself a glorious Church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing,' Eph. v. 25—.7. Let her not withhold anything from Him who alone can make meet for that city, the twelve gates of which are twelve pearls; and every several gate is of one pearl.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[44 ver. The true treasure is now hid from the carnal eye, but it does not the less certainly exist, and it is not the less sure to all who are now willing to be made heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ.]

Jesus for our sakes became poor, that we through his poverty might be rich. 'For the joy that was set before him, He endured the cross, despising the shame' He fully paid the redemption price, 'from henceforth expecting till all things be put under his feet.' Then

MATT. xiii. 47—52.

47 Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto-a-net, that-was-cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind:
48 which, when it-was-full, they-drew to shore, and sat-down, and-gathered the good into vessels, but cast the 49 bad away εξω. So shall-it-be at the end of-the world αιωνος: the angels shall-come-forth, and sever αφοριουσι
50 the wicked from among εκ μεσου the just, and shall-cast them into the furnace of fire: there shall-be wailing and gnashing of teeth.
51 Jesus saith unto-them, Have-ye-understood all these-52 things? They-say unto-him, Yea, Lord. Then said he unto-them, Therefore every scribe which-is-instructed unto the kingdom of heaven, is like unto-a-man that is an-householder, which bringeth-forth out-of his treasure things new and old. [Ver. 53, § xxxiv. p. 264.]

(G. 19.) The relations of Jesus make a second attempt to see him: he returns the same answer as before.—[For ver. 18, see p. 259.]

LUKE viii. 19—21.

19 Then came to him his mother and his brethren, and could not come-at συντυχειν him
20 for the press. And it-was-told him by certain which-said, Thy mother and thy brethren
21 stand without, desiring to-see thee. And he answered and-said unto them, My mother and my brethren are these which hear the word of God, and do it. [Ver. 22, § xxxiv. p. 265.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

47. like unto a net—'I will make you fishers of men,' Mt. iv. 19 [Mk. i. 17], § 16, p. 108.

cast into the sea—The gospel has been chiefly preached in a north-westerly direction, and in maritime countries—see on Mt. xiii. 4, § 32, p. 243.

gathered of every kind—so at the marriage supper, ch. xxii. 10, § 84, which see.

49. angels shall come forth—see ver. 41, p. 260.

sever the wicked from among the just—the same truth is presented, ver. 30, p. 247—see on Mt. xxv. § 86.

NOTES.

M. Antony; the other was brought to Rome by Augustus, and was divided into two, which were attached as pendants to the ears of the statue of Venus in the Pantheon. Julius Cæsar presented Servilia, the mother of Brutus, with a pearl worth 6.000.000 sesterces, 48,000*l*. Augustus dedicated at one time in the treasury of Jupiter Capitolinus, jewels and pearls to the value of 50,000,000 of sesterces, 400,000*l*.'—Greswell on the Parables, Vol. ii. pp. 226, ..7.

47. A net. σαγηνη. Something like our draw-net, which, when sunk, and dragged to the shore, sweeps, as it were, the bottom, and was therefore called verriculum. It was, however, not like an ordinary draw-net, being far larger, and intended to take not part of the fish of a pool or stream, but the whole, of every kind, size, and quality. It was formed of cane, osiers, and in wattled work.

48. The bad. σαπρα. 'The refuse.' The truth here taught is, that though by the ministration of Christ's servants a visible mixed church only is formed, this will not remain its permanent character: in eternity the separation will be complete and final.

[This parable will appear peculiarly interesting and proper, if we consider that it was spoken to fishermen who had been called from their employments, with a promise that they should catch men, Mt. iv. 19, § 16.]

[52. Therefore every scribe—new and old. The force of the particle THEREFORE seems to be this; Since you understand these things; I therefore add, that it is your duty, as teachers, to be abundantly furnished with divine knowledge, and to improve it more and more, and that in order that ye may communicate the same to others. The word Scribe is here transferred from the Jewish church and religion to the Christian. There are many such like instances in Scripture.]—See ADDENDA, § 25, p. 199, 'Scribes.'

Instructed unto the kingdom of heaven.—See Mk. iv. 11, p. 253.

His treasure, i. e., his storehouses.

Things new and old, i. e., new and old wines, fruits, and other provisions, some of this year, and some of the last, &c. So the Christian scribe, or teacher, must entertain his spiritual guests with great variety and abundance, from the Old Testament and from the New, &c.; both what he has long laid up, and what he has recently provided.

[Lu. viii. 19. His brethren. There has been some difference of opinion about the persons who were meant here; some supposing that they were children of Mary, his mother; others that they were the children of Mary, the wife of Cleophas, or Alphæus; his cousins, and called brethren according to the custom of the Jews. The natural and obvious meaning is, however, that they were the children of Mary, his mother—see also Mk. vi. 3, § 37. To this opinion, moreover, there can be no valid objection.—See § 37, p. 290, ADDENDA, 'Brethren of our Lord.']

21. My mother, &c. There was no want of affection or respect in Jesus towards his mother, as is proved by his whole life—see especially Lu. ii. 51, § 6, p. 42, and Jno. xix. 25—7, § 91. As being merely his earthly relatives they did not sustain towards him the nearest and most tender relation.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

47—50 ver. Let not the wicked think they are in a safe state, merely because they are in the congregations of the righteous now: a final and awful separation is about to take place.

[51. 2 ver. It is the privilege of every 'scribe which is instructed unto the kingdom of heaven,' to 'bring forth out of his treasure things new and old.']

52 ver. We cannot rightly occupy the word of God unless we make it our own.

Lu. viii. 19—21. If we would be near and dear unto Jesus,—more closely allied to him than any earthly relationship could make us, let us 'hear the word of God, and do it.'

ADDENDA.

ON OUR LORD'S SAYING TO HIS DISCIPLES, 'UNTO YOU IT IS GIVEN TO KNOW THE MYSTERY OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD; BUT,' ETC.—Mark iv. 11, .2, p. 253.*

'Allegory is at all times a difficult thing to be deciphered, even when typical of the past or the present; especially where every precaution is taken to secure it from detection: but allegory, which is symbolical of the future, we may take it for granted will be infinitely more inscrutable, and without the light of passing events, or some key to its meaning furnished from without, to a finite intelligence like that of man will be next to impossible to discover. It seems an unavoidable conclusion, therefore, that histories of this description, which are the vehicles of latent prophecy, and put forth without any hint, or vestige of a hint, to the discovery of their meaning, must have been intended for that very effect which they could not fail to produce: the effect of not being understood, of producing difficulty, perplexity, and confusion in the apprehension of what was denoted by them.

'Besides which, could the nature of those prophecies themselves be more particularly examined at present, it would be found that they relate to topics of such a kind, and make disclosures of the course of futurity so peculiar, that the concealment of their meaning, at least for the time, was not more prudential than necessary. Neither would it have been expedient to state them plainly, if it had been practicable; nor would it have been practicable, if it had been expedient.

'But, fourthly, the strongest attestation to the design and tendency of the allegorical parables in particular ought to be considered as supplied by our Lord himself: who has asserted in plain terms that, when using parables of this description, he neither expected nor intended to be understood. In the account of the explanation of the parable of the sower, after the first day's teaching in parables was over, and Jesus with the twelve was returned into his private house, St. Mark tells us that he expressed himself as follows to them: "To you it is given to know the secret of the kingdom of God: but unto them, those that are without, they all are made [known] in parables; that seeing they may see, and not perceive; and hearing they may hear, and not comprehend," Mk. iv. 11, .2, [Lu. viii. 10,] p. 253.

'Could we wish for language more intelligible to inform us of the final end proposed by any action, than the terms of this declaration, which notifies the final end proposed by the recent transaction of teaching in parables? Of what use or meaning is this allusion to the exercise of the common faculties of seeing or hearing, in their ordinary way, and upon their ordinary subject matter, yet without their ordinary effect, the perceiving of what has been seen, or the comprehension of what has been heard; if nothing had been proposed to the eye, which might indeed be seen, but could not be perceived, nor presented to the ear, which must be heard, but would not be understood? And what truth would there be in the declaration assigning the reasons of this anomaly, if nothing had been done expressly with a view to such an effect? if nothing had purposely been submitted to be seen, which could not be perceived, nor to be heard, which could not be understood?

'As, then, it is a well-known peculiarity of Grecian and Oriental philosophy, that the sages of the east and west had their esoteric, as well as their exoteric truths and doctrines; the latter of which they freely communicated to the world at large, but the former they confined to their intimate disciples and followers; so does it appear that our Lord had one species of parables designed for general use, and another designed for a more circumscribed and particular purpose. The former were his moral parabolic examples, the latter his allegorical prophetical histories: the former his exoteric, the latter his esoteric, instances of the same kind of teaching in general.

'I do not mean to say that there was anything in common between the respective subject matter of these different kinds of parables; as there was probably much, between the exoteric and esoteric doctrines of ancient philosophy; for there can be nothing in common between doctrines as such, to which one sort of them was subservient, and facts as such, which were represented by the other. Nor do I mean to say that each was not, or might not have been, always used in public, without prejudice to its proper character and design even when most intended to be the vehicle of concealed or esoteric matter: but only that the meaning of the things conveyed by the one, to whomsoever and whensoever they were delivered, was withheld from the first, while that of the things taught by the other was never withheld at all. Our Lord applied and explained his moral parables publicly, and in the audience of any that might be present: his allegorical he never explained but in private, and then only to his disciples. Nor is there any proof that he explained all of them even to the disciples. St. Mark's declaration,† in which he sums up the particulars of the first day's teaching in parables, that Jesus interpreted to his disciples in private all that he had been saying to the multitude in public, must be restricted to the exposition of the parables which were then delivered; and this exposition, as far as we have the particulars of it on record, was granted more in compliance with their request than of his own accord, as what he would otherwise have done, or might always be expected to do, under the like circumstances, without solicitation: and such as it was, it communicated no more of the interpretation of the allegories in question, than was sufficient to give a general idea of their scope and meaning: as much, perhaps, as could then with propriety have been made known, or readily comprehended, but not enough for the gratification of curiosity, or a perfect understanding of particulars.'

'No sect of philosophy among the Greeks, perhaps, made so formal a distinction of their exoteric and esoteric doctrines as the Peripatetic, which began with Aristotle; though a similar distinction between what was to be promiscuously taught, and what was not, was certainly recognised by all the other sects.

'Hence, Lucian, in his Vitarum Auctio, says to the purchaser of the Peripatetician, what he could not so well have said of any of the rest, μάνθανε, τὸν μὲν ἐσωτερικὸν, τὸν δὲ, ἐξωτερικὸν, καλεῖτε Opera. i. 566, oap. 26.

'Aulus Gellius has preserved, from the works of the philosopher Andronicus, the originals of two letters which passed between Aristotle's pupil, Alexander, and his master, on this subject: the former complaining that he had just heard of his having published his esoteric or acroamatic doctrine to the world, so that there was nothing now to distinguish him, on the score of knowledge, (a distinction which he prized more than that of power or rank,) from the common herd: the latter answering that they were published and not published; for though they might be read by all, they could be understood only by his own disciples: Aul. Gell. xx. 5: cf. Plut. Alex. vii.: Zonar. Ann. iv. 8: 184. D—185. A.

'The exoterica of the Peripatetics, Aulus Gellius tells us, were such subjects as their rhetorica, sophistica, politica, and, perhaps, their ethica; the esoterica or acroatica, their physica and dialectica. On the former Aristotle discoursed in his morning walk about the Lyceum, to any who chose to attend him; on the latter in his evening one, and only to a select few, whose genius and capacities he had previously ascertained.

'The Pythagoreans made a similar distinction of hearers, into the ἀκροαματικοὶ, and the μαθηματικοὶ, imparting to the former their popular and exoteric doctrines: to the latter only, their more recondite and esoteric: and so tenacious were they of secresy, with respect to these last, that Hipparchus, one of their philosophers, having too plainly revealed and commented on this class of their doctrines in his writings, was expelled their school: and after their manner, in such cases, a pillar or cenotaph erected to him, as dead.

* Greswell on the Parables, Vol. I. pp. 47—52.

† Ch. iv. 33, .4, § 32, p. 249.

'The Platonic, the Stoic, and even the Epicurean sects had all certain sacred and mysterious truths, which they did not care to communicate, except to such as had previously been proved to be worthy of confidence. On the same principle, observes Clement of Alexandria, the truths taught in the mysteries were purposely wrapped up in fables, whose real meaning was known only to the initiated. In Egypt, Persia, India, and Æthiopia, and wherever else there were peculiar schools of philosophy to be met with, their characteristic dogmas in physics, theology, or the like, were made known only with due caution and reserve, and to but few. The world at large, whatever they might appear to know of such doctrines, from what they were openly taught, knew nothing of them in reality: Clem. Alex. ii. 679. Strom. v. 9.

'Christianity too had its ἀνάβρησις and διατριβή, as well as the schools of philosophy, so long as the anagogical method of interpreting Scripture was the fashionable one in the church. And therefore it is, that Origen, rebuking the boast of Celsus, who had asked some questions of the advocates of the gospel, not because, said he, I want information; for I know all they can tell me: replies, he might just as well boast he was master of all the learning of Egypt, because he knew as much as met the eye of the common people, under the disguise of symbols, hieroglyphics, or the like: or that he was deeply read in the lore of Persian, Syrian, Indian mysteries, or those of any other nation, who, however much they might superficially reveal to the eyes of all observers, had a great deal more which they purposely kept secret from all but themselves: i. 330 Contra Cels. i. 12. Cf. Julian. Oratio vii.: and Cyrill. contra Julian. ix. 299 D—300 E.'

SECTION 34.—(G. 20.)—ON THE EVENING OF THE SAME DAY JESUS GIVES COMMANDMENT TO CROSS THE LAKE. A CERTAIN SCRIBE, AND ANOTHER DISCIPLE, FOLLOW JESUS.* JESUS CALMS A VIOLENT STORM OF WIND ON THE LAKE. Matt. xiii. 53; viii. 18—27. Mark iv. 35—41. Luke viii. 22—.5.—CAPERNAUM, AND THE SEA OF GALILEE.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. xiii. 53. Mk. iv. 35. After the parables of the sower, &c., Sect. xxxii., xxxiii., Jesus departs thence the same day at even.

Mt. viii. 18—22. Mk. iv. 35. Having given commandment to depart to the other side, he warns a scribe, who proposed to become his follower; and another, who asked first to go and bury his father, he exhorts to follow him forthwith.

— viii. 23. — iv. 36. Lu. viii. 22. Having gone into a ship with his disciples, he proposes passing over the lake—other little ships accompany him.

— viii. 24. — iv. 37. — viii. 23. While they sail, Jesus falls asleep—a great storm of wind occasions the waves to rise, and break over the ship, so that it fills, and they seem ready to sink, or suffer shipwreck.

Mt. viii. 25. Mk. iv. 38. Lu. viii. 24. The disciples awake Jesus, crying, 'Lord, save us,' 'Master, master, we perish.'

— viii. 26. — iv. 39, 40. — viii. 24, .5. Jesus reproves his disciples for their fearfulness and want of faith, and rebukes 'the wind and the raging of the water.'

— viii. 27. — iv. 41. — viii. 25. The men are struck with fear and astonishment, at seeing even the wind and the sea obedient to the voice of Jesus; and say one to another, 'What manner of man is this!'

(G. 20,) No. 34. Jesus gives commandment to depart to the other side.—At Capernaum.

MATT. xiii. 53, viii. 18—22.
[Ver. 52, § xxxiii. p. 262.]

53 ª And it-came-to-pass, that when Jesus had-finished these parables, he-departed thence.ª
[Ch. xiii. 54, § xxxvii. p. 286.]

[Ch. viii. 17, § xvii. p. 113.]
18 Now
ᵉ when-Jesus saw great multitudes about him, he-gave-commandment to-depart unto the other-side.
19 And a-certain scribe came, and-said unto him, Master, I-will-follow thee whitherso ever thou-goest.

MARK iv. 35.
[Ver. 34, § xxxii. p. 249.]

ᵇ And the same day, 35 when-the-even was-come,ᵉ he-saith unto-them, Let-us-pass-over unto the other-side.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. viii. 18. unto the other side—'over against Galilee,' Lu. viii. 26, § 35, p. 269—Jesus had been recently teaching 'by the sea-side,' Mk. iv. 1, § 32, p. 242.

19. I will follow thee—Peter also expressed his readiness to follow Jesus, when he was but ill prepared to do so, Lu. xxii. 33, .4, § 87.

whithersoever thou goest—'Go and cry in the ears of Jerusalem, saying, Thus saith the LORD; I re-

NOTES.

Mt. viii. 19. A certain scribe. Literally, εἷς γραμματεύς, 'ONE scribe;' true, this is an Hebraism, but it may be designed to shew that few of this class came to Christ for instruction or salvation.—See § 25, ADDENDA, p. 199, 'Scribes.'

Master.—See on Mk. iv. 38, p. 266, NOTE.

* See p. 268, ADDENDA, 'On the incidents in the way to the lake.'

NONE WILL SUSTAIN TROUBLE FOR JESUS, BUT SUCH AS REST IN JESUS.
THE SHEEP'S CLOTHING WILL SOON BE STRIPPED FROM THE WOLF'S BACK.

MATT. viii. 20—.2.

20 And Jesus saith unto-him, The foxes have holes, and the birds of-the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to-lay his head.
21 And another of his disciples said unto-him, Lord, suffer me first to-go and bury my father.
22 But Jesus said unto-him, Follow me; and let the dead bury their dead.

Jesus enters into a ship.

MATT. viii. 23.	MARK iv. 36.	[Ver. 21, § xxxni. p. 262.] LUKE viii. 22.
	36 [a] And when-they-had-sent-away the multitude,[b] they-took παραλαμβανουσιν him even-as he-was in the ship.	Now it-came-to-pass 22 on a-certain day,
23 [b] And when-he-was-entered into a ship, his disciples followed him.[c]		that he went into a-ship with his disciples: [c] and he-said unto-them, Let-us-go-over unto the other-side of-the lake.[d]
	[d] And there-were also with him other little-ships.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

member thee, the kindness of thy youth, the love of thine espousals, when thou wentest after me in the wilderness, in a land that was not sown,' &c., Jer. ii. 2—6. . . . —Israel followed the cloud: 'whether it was by day or by night that the cloud was taken up, they journeyed. . . . At the commandment of the LORD they rested in the tents, and at the commandment of the LORD they journeyed,' Nu. ix. 15—23. . . . — 'They go from strength to strength, every one of them in Zion appeareth before God,' Ps. lxxxiv. 7—of the 144,000 standing with the Lamb 'on the mount Sion, . . . having his Father's name written in their foreheads,' it is said, 'These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth,' Rev. xiv. 1, 4—see how Paul followed, 2 Co. vi. 4—10—'Let us go forth therefore unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach,' He. xiii. 13.

20. the birds of the air have nests—'Yea, the sparrow hath found an house, and the swallow a nest for herself, where she may lay her young,' Ps. lxxxiv. 3.

but the Son of man, &c.—'He is despised and rejected of men,' Is. liii. 3—his authority questioned in his own house, Mt. xxi. 23, § 81—on the present occasion he was not allowed rest even in the vessel, after all the fatigue of the preceding day. Mk. iv. 38, p. 266—nor was he suffered to rest after reaching the opposite shore, Mt. viii. 34, § 55, p. 272—and when dying he had indeed nowhere to lay his head, Jno. xix. 38, § 92—'Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich,' 2 Co. viii. 9.

21. bury my father—'All the days that he separateth himself unto the LORD he shall come at no dead body. He shall not make himself unclean for his father,' &c., Nu. vi 6, 7.

22. let the dead, &c.—'Through the offence of one many be dead,' Rom. v. 15—'We thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead,' 2 Co. v. 14—'Dead in trespasses and sins,' Eph. ii. 1—'Let the dead bury their dead: but go thou and preach the kingdom of God,' Lu. ix. 60, § 59.

Mk. iv. 36. sent away the multitude—There had been 'great multitudes about him,' Mt. viii. 18, p. 264—so that even his mother and brethren 'could not come at him for the press,' Lu. viii. 19, § 33, p. 262.

Lu. viii. 22. lake—Luke calls the sea of Galilee 'the lake of Gennesaret,' Lu. v. 1, § 20, p. 153.

NOTES.

Mt. viii. 20. Have nests. καταγωγαισι, not nests, (which would be νοσσιαι,) but simply places of shelter, roosts, such as those where birds settle and perch.

Son of man. A Hebrew phrase, expressive of humiliation and debasement; and on that account applied emphatically to himself, by the meek and lowly Jesus. The words 'Son of man' are found in that celebrated prophecy, Da. vii. 13, which describes the universal dominion to which the Messiah, in the quality of the Son of man, was to be raised. This name, therefore, when applied to our Lord, at the same time that it denotes his human nature, carries along with it an idea of the glorious kingdom over which, in his human nature, he is to preside.

[This title, now first assumed by Christ, occurs sixty-one times in the Gospels, used by Christ himself, never by any other person. — See Jno. iii. 13, § 12, p 85; v. 27, § 23, p. 178; vi. 62, § 43, p. 333. It occurs once in the Acts, vii. 56, (employed by the martyr Stephen;) and occurs in the Revelation. From the corresponding term ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ θεοῦ, this title belongs to Christ κατ' ἐξοχήν; and both taken together decidedly prove that Christ, in some manner unknown to us, united in his person both the human nature and the Divine, 'was very man and very God;' thus negativing the opposite tenets of Socinians and of Gnostics.]

[22. Let the dead bury their dead. Probably a proverbial sentence, turning on the double sense of νεκροὺς, which may mean not only the naturally, but νεκροὺς spiritually dead; i. e., insensible to the concerns of the soul or eternity, dead in trespasses and sins. A metaphor familiar to the Jews, and not unknown to the Greeks.]

The import is, Let the spiritually dead employ themselves in burying those who, in the common acceptation of the word, are dead.

Mk. iv. 36. . . . with him. i. e., with Jesus' vessel. This being an example of the figure of speech, Metonymy, by which the vessel is put for the crew, or the crew for the vessel.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. viii. 18, .9. Let us not merely, with the multitudes, hear the teaching of Jesus, but be willing to 'follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth.'

20 ver. When we resolve to be followers of Christ let us truly count the cost, and be willing to forsake all, in following Him, who when on earth had 'not where to lay his head.'

21, .2 ver. No worldly consideration should keep us from immediately and entirely yielding ourselves unto the service of Christ.—That which is otherwise lawful, and even most dutiful, may become sinful when it interferes with the higher duty of following Jesus.—What is absolutely necessary will be done, for those who, according to the command of Christ, are engaged in following him

Mk. iv. 36. It may be the duty of many to stay behind, and attend to the ordinary affairs of life, as well as of some immediately to wait upon Jesus.

I THE LORD THY GOD WILL HOLD THY RIGHT HAND, SAYING UNTO THEE, FEAR NOT; I WILL HELP THEE.—Isa. xli. 13.

TRUST YE IN THE LORD FOR EVER: FOR IN THE LORD JEHOVAH IS EVERLASTING STRENGTH.—Isa. xxvi. 4.

Jesus calms a violent storm on the lake.—Mt. viii. 24—7; Mk. iv. 37—41; Lu. viii. 23—.5.

Matt. viii. 24—.6.	Mark iv. 37—.9.	Luke viii. 23, .4.
		[a]And they-launched-forth. But as-[b] they-[b]-sailed he- 23 fell-asleep [b] αφυπνωσε:
24 [b]And, behold, there-arose a-great tempest σεισμος in the sea,	37 And there-arose [d]a-great storm λαιλαψ of-wind,[e]	and [c]there-came-down [d] a-storm λαιλαψ of-wind [e]on the lake;[f]
[g] insomuch-that the ship was-covered with the waves: [h]	[f]and the waves beat into the ship,[g] so-that it was-[f]now-full.	[h] and they-were-filled-with-water, and were-in-jeopardy.[i]
but he was-asleep.	38 [i]And he was in the hinder-part-of-the-ship, asleep on a pillow: [k]
25 [k] And his disciples came-to him, and-awoke him, saying, Lord Κυριε, save us:[l]	and they-awake him, and say unto-him, Master Διδασκαλε,	And they- 24 came-to-him, and-awoke him, saying, [l]Master, master[m] Επιστατα, we-perish.	[m]carest thou not that we-perish?[m]	we-perish.
26 [n] And he-saith unto-them, Why are-ye fearful δειλοι, Ὀ-ye-of-little-faith? Then he-arose, and-rebuked the winds[o] and the sea;	39 And he-arose, and-rebuked the wind,	Then he arose, and-rebuked the wind [o] & the raging-of-the water:[p]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. viii. 23. he fell asleep—Jesus had been fully engaged in both public and private teaching, Mk. iv. 33, .4, § 32, p. 249—and [q]the sleep of a labouring man is sweet,' Ec. v. 12.

there came down a storm of wind—'He commandeth, and raiseth the stormy wind, which lifteth up the waves,' &c., Ps. cvii. 25—.7.

jeopardy—see the case of Jonah, ch. i. 4—7, [r]... .—and that of Paul, Ac. xxvii. 9—44.

24. Master, master, we perish—'Then they cry unto the Lord in their trouble, and he bringeth them out of their distresses,' Ps. cvii. 28.

rebuked the wind, &c.—'which stilleth the noise of the seas, the noise of their waves, and the tumult of the people.' Ps. lxv. 7—see this power manifested at the Red Sea, both in mercy and in judgment, Ex. xiv. 21—31.

NOTES.

Mt. viii. 24. A great tempest. Σεισμὸς μέγας, properly signifies a mighty agitation: λαῖλαψ, a hurricane, the term used by Mark and Luke, and one highly suitable; the lake being (as travellers testify) very subject to these sudden hurricanes: as, indeed, are all lakes bounded by high mountain ranges.

The ship was covered with the waves. 'The waves beat into the ship,' Mk. iv. 37—so that it was fast filling, and in danger of sinking.

Mk. iv. 38. The hinder part of the ship. i.e., the place where the steersman sat, and the most commodious one for a passenger. Τὸ πρυμνοφαλάσιον must be rendered, the pillow. The article having a peculiar force, as pointing to a particular part of the furniture of the ship. This seems to have been the stuffed leather cushion, which was occasionally used as a pillow.

[Master. The confusion in which they were, appears to be strikingly expressed by their variety of manner in calling upon the Lord, which may be observed by a comparison of the three evangelists here. Matthew says, Κυριε (Lord); Mark says, Διδασκαλε (Teacher); and Luke, Επιστατα (Governor, Master, or Preceptor). Different disciples may have used different titles, as would be natural in such a case. It is however to be noticed, that the language in which the disciples spoke was not the Greek, and that the same Syriac word may be translated by different Greek words. Επιστατα is a term used only by Luke, and it is used by him on several other occasions, Lu. v. 5, § 20, p. 154; ix. 33, § 51; xvii. 13, § 70.]

Mt. viii. 26. Rebuked the winds, &c. Reproved them; or commanded them to be still. There is something exceedingly authoritative and majestic in this

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. viii. 22, .3. Jesus gives us an example of diligence in doing the will of his heavenly Father: he had been engaged during the day in teaching the multitudes, and at night he has no repose but that which is taken in the ship, while passing from one scene to another of his laborious ministry.

Mk. iv. 37. Those who accompany Jesus may not expect to have always external peace and prosperity. Previously he had multitudes listening upon the quiet shore, while he taught them out of the ship; now, passing to an inhospitable region, he is tossed by the raging storm, Mt. viii. 24.

[38 see. The Lord gives his Beloved sleep, as well as requires to labour, in the season thereof—but that sleep is not always caused by external inducements to repose: it is after hard labour in his service, and as having rest in God.]

Mk. iv. 38; Lu. viii. 24. Although our faith may be sorely tried, and we may feel constrained to cry unto the Lord for help, yet it does not become us to say to the Lord that redeemed us for himself with his own blood, 'Carest thou not that we perish?'

Mt. viii. 26. Let us be faithful in fulfilling our Lord's commands, and we need not fear but that he

MATT. viii. 27	MARK iv. 40, .1.	LUKE viii. 25.
	P and said unto-the sea, Peace, be-still σιωπα πεφιμωσο. And the wind ceased εκοπασεν,	and they-ceased επαυσαντο, and there-was a-great calm.	and there-was a-great calm, 40 And he-said unto-them, Why are-ye so fearful δειλοι? how is it that ye-have no faith? q	and there-was a-calm. And he-said unto-them, 25 Where is your faith?
27 q But the men marvelled, saying, What-manner-of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him!	41 r And they-feared exceedingly, and said one-to-another, What manner of man is this, s that even the wind and the sea obey him?	And they-being-afraid wondered, saying one-to-another, What manner of man is this! for he-commandeth επιτασσει even the winds and water, and they-obey him.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

and there was a calm—'He maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still. Then are they glad because they be quiet; so he bringeth them unto their desired haven,' Ps. cvii. 29, 30.

25. Where is your faith?—Those who have Jesus for their guide need not fear; they may sing, 'God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea; though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof,' &c., Ps. xlvi. 1—3. . . . — Fear thou not; for I am with thee,' &c., Is. xli. 10—.4.

Mk. iv. 41. they feared exceedingly— God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of the saints, and to be had in reverence of all them that are about him. O LORD God of hosts, who is a strong LORD like unto thee? . . . Thou rulest the raging of the sea: when the waves thereof arise, thou stillest them,' Ps. lxxxix. 7—9. . . .—'even the winds and the sea obey him!' Mt. viii. 27.

NOTES.

command of our Lord. Standing amidst the howling tempest, on the heaving sea, and in the darkness of the night, by his own power he stills the waves, and bids the storm subside. What a power was this! What irresistible proof that he was Divine! There is not, anywhere, a more sublime description of a display of power.

And there was a great calm. The instantaneousness of the perfect calm is a proof of the reality of the miracle; for after a storm, the sea is never perfectly smooth, until some time has elapsed.

27. What manner of man is this. The men might well regard our Lord as super-human; since to 'still the raging of the sea,' was always reckoned among the operations of God, insomuch that in Ps. lxxxix. 7—see 'Scrip. Illus.' supra—it forms as it were a designation of the Deity.

[The darkness, the dashing waves, the howling winds, the heaving and tossing ship, and the fears and cries of the seamen, all by a single word hushed into calm repose— . . . present an image of power and divinity irresistibly grand and awful. So the tempest rolls and thickens over the head of the awakened sinner. So he trembles over immediate and awful danger. So he trembles over immediate and awful destruction. So while the storm of wrath howls, and hell threatens to engulf him, he comes trembling to the Saviour. The Saviour hears, he rebukes the storm, and the sinner is safe—an indescribable peace takes possession of the soul—see Is. lvii. 20. .1,[a] . . . Rom. v. 1; Ph. iv. 7.c]

[a] '. . . the wicked are like the troubled sea, when it cannot rest, whose waters cast up mire and dirt. There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked.'

[b] '. . . . . being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.'

[c] 'And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

will prove faithful in upholding us in that which is commanded: Jesus' having said, 'Let us go over to the other side,' should have been deemed a sufficient guarantee that the passage, however dangerous, would be accomplished

Mk. iv. 39, 40. Let us look to see the greatness of the danger, with which we may be threatened, result in the greater manifestation of both the will and the power of Jesus to deliver: he had only to rebuke the winds and the raging deep, with 'Peace, be still:' 'the wind ceased, and there was a great calm.'

[Let us cry unto Jesus, that soon he may put forth his mighty power, in stilling the stormy waves—the tumults of the people; and in bringing to the desired haven his tempest-tossed disciples: but in the meantime, let them rest assured, that, whatever the seeming jeopardy,

'In safety and comfort their warfare He'll end.']

Mt. viii. 27. Let us rejoice in this, that the dangers to which we may be exposed in following Jesus, God is able to turn to us for a testimony; those that are with us being forced to contemplate the power and the grace of Him, whom even the winds and the, &c.

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICE.

THE SEA OF GALILEE.—See Sect. xxxii. p. 250.

HAST THOU NOT KNOWN? HAST THOU NOT HEARD, THAT THE EVERLASTING GOD, THE LORD, THE CREATOR OF THE ENDS OF THE EARTH, FAINTETH NOT, NEITHER IS WEARY? THERE IS NO SEARCHING OF HIS UNDERSTANDING.—Isaiah xl. 28.

ADDENDA.

ON THE INCIDENTS IN THE WAY, AND ON THE TIME OF CROSSING THE LAKE TO GERGESA.—[See Greswell, Vol. I. Diss. iii. pp. 191—203.]

'The next event is the passage of the lake of Galilee, which we may divide into the incidents on the way to the lake—the incidents upon the lake—the incidents on the other side—and the return: all so connected together as to form one entire narrative, from Mt. viii. 18—ix. 1, the parts of which will be consequently regular, whatever the whole may be.

'The incidents on the way to the lake, as here related, are peculiar to St. Matthew, but the same incidents, or something very like them, are found also at Luke ix. 57, (§ 59,) to the end—at a very different time, and on a very different occasion. These incidents, in St. Matthew, are the request of a certain scribe to follow our Saviour; and the petition of one, who was a disciple, for leave to go and bury his father: to which St. Luke adds a third, of a nature akin to the last. The occasions to which these distinct accounts would belong are palpably the most different imaginable; our Lord, in St. Matthew, being about to cross the lake, and in St. Luke, on a journey through Samaria. . . . With regard to St. Luke, such a trajection would be a singular circumstance, and altogether at variance with his extreme accuracy, and his scrupulous regard to historical precision. . . .

'Such declarations of the willingness of individuals to become disciples might often be made, especially at the outset of our Saviour's ministry; and, if they were the effect of a forward or mistaken zeal, they might as often be by him repressed. Besides, St. Matthew calls his applicant a scribe, and makes him style our Lord, Master—St. Luke calls his merely a certain person, who addresses Jesus by the common title of respect, Κύριε. Now the rank or profession of scribe among the Jews was much more considerable than we are apt to imagine; and the readiness of one of that order to have become a disciple of Jesus was a still more remarkable event; and St. Luke, I am persuaded, had the nature of the case required it, especially in the last year of our Lord's ministry, when the scribes and Pharisees almost universally had determined on his rejection—would not have failed to designate him accordingly. Capernaum was not so contiguous to the lake, but that such an incident as this might have transpired by the way; and, if our Saviour was proceeding thither, . . . expecting to pass the night upon the water, his answer, as now returned, would be just as pertinent, and as pathetic as the same answer, when returned some time after.

'The second incident in St. Matthew concerns one, who was a disciple already—but the similar incident in St. Luke, one, who was then called for the first time: and there is also this further difference between them, that, in the one, our Lord is made to reply merely, 'Ἀκολούθει μοι· καὶ ἄφες τοὺς νεκροὺς θάψαι τοὺς ἑαυτῶν νεκρούς. (Mt. viii. 22)—but not Σὺ δὲ ἀπελθὼν διάγγελλε τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ. (Lu. ix. 60, § 59.) . . .

'St. Mark and St. Luke have each given (Mk. iv. 35, v. 1—20; Lu. viii. 22—39) an history of a passage of the lake, attended with similar incidents; the latter of which is clearly ascertained to be the same with the former: and this is fixed by the account itself to the evening of the day when our Lord began to teach in parables. Now this he did, posterior to a second circuit of Galilee; and that, a circuit undertaken after the cure of the centurion's servant. The beginning to teach in parables St. Matthew records, xiii. 1, (§ 32, p. 242;) the cure of the centurion's servant he recorded, viii. 5, (§ 28, p. 218.) The passage of the lake, then, between the two, may be regular as to what goes before, but it is irregular as to what follows after. Nor is there any means of evading this conclusion, except by denying the authority of St. Mark, whose note of time, iv. 35, fixes the passage to the evening in question; or, by contending that his passage, or St. Luke's, was a different event from St. Matthew's. But that this cannot be the case, may be inferred from certain particulars common to the accounts of all, and of so critical a nature as necessarily to characterize only the same event. These are—

'First, the motive which induced our Lord to cross the lake; viz., the presence of the multitude, Mt. viii. 18, p. 264.

'Secondly, the storm upon the lake.

'Thirdly, the miracle at the other side.

SECTION 35.—(G. 20.)—JESUS LANDS IN THE COUNTRY OF THE GADARENES, AND CASTS DEVILS OUT OF TWO MEN WHO LIVED AMONG THE TOMBS. THE PEOPLE OF THE CITY AND NEIGHBOURHOOD REQUEST JESUS TO DEPART OUT OF THEIR COASTS. JESUS RETURNS TO CAPERNAUM.* Matt. viii. 28—34; ix. 1. Mark v. 1—21. Luke viii. 26—40.—EAST OF THE SEA OF GALILEE, AND WEST OF THE SAME.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. viii. 28. Mk. v. 1—5. Lu. viii. 26, .7. Jesus having arrived in the country of the Gadarenes, is immediately met by two possessed with devils, exceedingly fierce and untameable. Mark and Luke mention only one, but Matthew, as is his custom, notices both.

— viii. 29. — v. 6, 7. — viii. 28. They cry out, confessing him to be the Saviour, and the 'Son of the most high God.' 'The devils believe, and tremble.'

——— — v. 8—10. — viii. 29—31. Jesus having commanded the legion to depart, the devils beseech him not to send them into the abyss.

— viii. 30—.2. — v. 11—.3. — viii. 32, .3. Jesus grants them their request—they enter 'into the herd of swine,' which immediately rush into the sea, and are drowned.

— viii. 33. — v. 14. — viii. 34. Those that have had the care of the swine flee into the city, and spread also in the country the news of Jesus' arrival, and of what had occurred to the swine.

Mt. viii. 34. Mk. v. 14, .5. Lu. viii. 35. The people go out to see the truth of the matter, and coming to Jesus, find the man who had been possessed 'clothed, and in his right mind.' They are afraid.

— viii. 34. — v. 16, .7. — viii. 36, .7. Having been told all, the Gadarenes beseech Jesus 'to depart out of their coasts.'

——— ——— — v. 18, .9. — viii. 38, .9. He that had been possessed by 'Legion' requests permission to accompany Jesus, who bids him first return, and at home among his friends prove the reality of the change which has happened to him, and to speak of the cause thereof—the compassion of the Lord.

——— ——— — v. 20. — viii. 39. The man departs, and publishes throughout Decapolis what Jesus had done for him.

— ix. 1. — v. 21. — viii. 40. Jesus returns by ship to Capernaum, where many are gathered together waiting for him, and they gladly receive him.

* See p. 275, ADDENDA, 'On healing the demoniacs at Gergesa'—and Greswell, Vol. II. pp. 335—.8, 'On Jesus passing the night on the lake.'

THE SLEEP OF A LABOURING MAN IS SWEET, WHETHER HE EAT LITTLE OR MUCH: BUT THE ABUNDANCE OF THE RICH WILL NOT SUFFER HIM TO SLEEP.—Eccles. v. 12.

(G. 20,) No. 35. Jesus lands in the country of the Gadarenes, and casts devils out of two men who lived among the tombs.—East of the sea of Galilee.

MATT. viii. 28—33.	MARK v. 1—14.	LUKE viii. 26—34.
28 And when-he-was-come to the other-side into the country of-the Gergesenes,	1 [a]And they-came over unto the other-side of-the sea, into the country of-the Gadarenes.[b]	And they-arrived at 26 the country of-the Gadarenes, [b]which is over-against Galilee.
there-met him two possessed-with-devils, coming-out of the tombs, [c]exceeding fierce χαλεποι λιαν, so-that no man might ισχυειν pass by that way.[d]	2 And when-he-was-come-out of the ship, immediately there-met him out-of the tombs a-man with an-unclean spirit, 3 who had his dwelling among the tombs;	And when-he-went- 27 forth to land, there-met him out-of the city a-certain man, which had devils long time, and ware no clothes, neither abode in any house, but in the tombs.[e]
	[d] and no-man could bind him, no-not 4 with-chains: because that-he had-been-often-bound with fetters and chains, and the chains had-been-plucked-asunder διεσπασθαι by him, and the fetters broken-in-pieces συντετριφθαι: neither 5 could ισχυε any man tame him. And always, night and day, he-was in the mountains, and in the tombs, crying,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. v. 1. Gadarenes—Gadara was the principal city of the district. Josephus, in his 'Wars of the Jews,' b. iv. c. vii. s. 3, calls 'Gadara' the metropolis of Perea: by this name, well known to the Gentiles, Mark and Luke denominate the country 'over against Galilee'—comp. Mk. v. 1, and Lu. viii. 26, with Mt. viii. 28—in the latter passage we read 'country of the Gergesenes,' Gergesa being probably the nearer country town, and well enough known to the Jews, for whom, more immediately, Matthew wrote—see GEOG. NOTICE, p. 274; and ADDENDA, p. 275, Greswell.

2. when he was come out of the ship—Matthew had said, 'When he was come to the other side,' ver. 28—Luke says, 'When he went forth to land,' ver. 27—the repulse was 'immediately' upon attempting to enter the country, Mk. v. 2—comp. with what our Lord had said, Mt. viii. 20, § 34, p. 265.

out of the tombs—which, it would appear, were very near to the city—comp. with Lu. viii. 27, supra.

a man with an unclean spirit—Matthew intimates that 'there met him two possessed with devils,' ver. 28—probably the 'certain man, which had devils long time,' may have taken the lead, Lu. ver. 27—Matthew is remarkable for presenting the double throughout his whole history—see Mt. xx. 30, § 79, 'two blind men,' and parallels—It may be noticed, that Matthew often mentions together the two Jewish sects, 'the Pharisees and Sadducees,' and often also 'the scribes and Pharisees.'

3. had his dwelling among the tombs—Luke speaks of the man as 'out of the city,' but also clearly declares that he abode not in any house, but in the tombs, ver. 27.

4. because that he had been often bound, &c.—this appears to have been the case of that one of the two, who is particularly noticed by Mark and Luke—the 'certain man, which had devils long time'—'he was kept bound with chains and in fetters; and he brake the bands,' &c., Lu. viii. 27—9—they were both 'exceeding fierce, so that no man might pass by that way,' Mt. viii. 28.

5. he was in the mountains, and in the tombs, &c.—'and was driven of the devil into the wilderness,' Lu. viii. 29, p. 271—a like infatuation besets those 'which remain among the graves, and lodge in the monuments,' Is. lxv. 4.

NOTES.

Mt. viii. 28. The country of the Gergesenes.—See 'Scrip. Illus.' supra, and GEOG. NOTICE, p. 274.

Mk. v. 3. His dwelling among the tombs.....

.....'The tombs of the ancients, especially in the east, were tolerably roomy vaults, and would be no indifferent shelter for the homeless, or such poor wretches as demoniacs or lepers, driven from human habitations. Indeed, from Diog. Laert. ix. 38, ἐρημίαν μᾶλλον οἰκοῦσι, καὶ τοῖς τάφοις ἐνδιατρίβουσι, we find that they were sometimes used as places of abode—see Is. lxv. 4, 'Scrip. Illus.' supra. The tombs in question were doubtless hypogæa, caverns cut out of the mountains, similar to those at Telmessus and Petra; and which, as we learn from travellers, still remain, and form at the present day habitations for the living.'—Bloomfield.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. viii. 26, 7. Jesus was willing to minister, not only west of the sea of Galilee, where there were people to hear him gladly, but in the inhospitable country towards the east, where no welcome awaited him, but where immediately a legion of devils came to oppose him.]

[Mt. viii. 28. How aptly the men here spoken of represent the present condition of the inhabitants of that region! they are destitute of proper covering, and literally dwelling in tombs; and also exceeding fierce, so that the great thoroughfares between the west and the east have been for a long time deserted.]

[Mk. v. 3—6. It is also true, that no human means have been effectual to bind them, and Greek and

HE CAN NEVER TRULY RELISH THE SWEETNESS OF GOD'S MERCY, WHO NEVER TASTED THE BITTERNESS OF HIS OWN MISERY.
IF SINNERS CAST NOT AWAY THEIR SINS FOR GOD'S SAKE; GOD WILL CAST THEM AWAY FOR THEIR SINS' SAKE.

MATT. viii. 29.	MARK v. 6—8.	LUKE viii. 28, .9.
	and cutting himself with-stones.
	6 But when-he-saw Jesus afar off, he-ran[e]	When-he-saw Jesus, 28 he-cried-out,
	[f]and worshipped him,	[e]and-fell-down-before him,[f]
29 And, behold, they-cried out, saying,	7 and cried with-a-loud voice, and-said,	and with-a-loud voice said,
What have we to do with thee τι ημιν και σοι,	What have I to do with thee τι εμοι και σοι,	What have I to do with thee τι εμοι και σοι,
Jesus, thou Son of God?	Jesus, thou Son of-the most-high God?[g]	Jesus, thou Son of God most-high?
[g]art-thou-come hither to-torment us before the-time?[h]	[h]I-adjure thee by-God, that thou-torment me not.	I-beseech thee, torment me not.
	8 For he-said unto-him, Come-out of the man, thou unclean spirit.[i]	(For he-had-commanded 29 the unclean spirit to-come-out of the man.
		[i]For oftentimes it-had-caught συνηρπακει him: and he-was-kept bound with-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. v. 5. cutting himself with stones—the like madness characterised the worshippers of Baal—'They cried aloud, and cut themselves after their manner with knives and lancets, till the blood gushed out upon them,' 1 Ki. xviii. 28—nor have the monks, who lodge in the monuments, been free from such things, 'which things have indeed a shew of wisdom in will worship, and humility, and neglecting of the body; not in any honour to the satisfying of the flesh,' Col. ii. 23.

6. ran and worshipped him—'fell down before him,' Lu. viii. 28—here was a true representation of the infatuation described, Is. xxix. 18. . . . and referred to by our Lord, 'This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me. But in vain they do worship me,' &c., Mt. xv. 8, 9, § 44.

7. of the most high God—'Son of God,' Mt. viii. 29—'Son of God most high,' Lu. viii. 28—see NOTE.

I adjure thee by God—the like form of expression, the high priest made use of, when adjuring Jesus to declare whether he were the Son of God, which the very devils here confessed—see Mt. xxvi. 63, § 89, 'I adjure thee by the living God, that thou tell us whether thou be the Christ, the Son of God.'

torment me not—'Art thou come hither to torment us before the time?' Mt. viii. 29—For those who look to their own wilful offerings for sin, after having received the knowledge of the one true sacrifice, 'there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries,' He. x. 26, .7—comp. with ver. 9—14.

8. Come out of the man—see Lu. viii. 29—see also Mk. i. 25, § 17, p. 111; ix. 25, § 51.

NOTES.

[Mk. v. 5. Cutting himself with stones. 'This is not well rendered cutting. The κατα is highly intensive; κατακοπτω answering to the Latin concidere, and meaning to cut up, to hack and hew. In which sense the word occurs, both in the Septuagint and the classical writers. This circumstance of cutting himself with sharp stones, instead of a knife, (which, of course, would not be granted him,) is quite in the manner of maniacs: who often tear their flesh, and cut it with whatever they can lay their hands upon.'—Bloomfield.]

Mt. viii. 29. What have we to do with thee, τι ημιν και σοι. 'An idiom frequent both in Hellenistic and Classical Greek. . . . The sense of the phrase varies with the context; but it usually implies troublesome or unauthorised interference. Here it seems to be, "What hast thou to do with us, what authority hast thou over us?"'—Ibid.

The phrase often occurs in the Old Testament, as signifying an abrupt refusal of some request, or a wish not to be troubled with the company or importunity of others. Jehu said to the messengers who were sent by Joram to meet him, 'What hast thou to do with peace?' 2 Ki. ix. 18, .9. David said, 'What have I to do with you, ye sons of Zeruiah?' 2 Sa. xvi. 10.—See also Ezr. iv. 3; and Jno. ii. 4, § 11, p. 77.

[Mk. v. 7. The most high God. Θεου του ὑψιστου. 'The epithet ὁ ὑψιστος, as applied to God, occurs nowhere else in the Gospels, and only once elsewhere in the New Testament, i. e., He. vii. 1, "For this Melchisedec, king of Salem, priest of the most high God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him;" taken from Gen. xiv. 18—22. It corresponds to the Hebrew עליון. The appellations seem to have been at first given with reference to the exalted abode of God, i. e., in heaven—see Is. lxvi. 1, p. (15). They may also refer to the supreme majesty of the Deity. Hence in the Old Testament עליון is almost always used to distinguish the true God from those who were called gods.'—Bloomfield.]

[I adjure thee by God. 'This formula usually denotes to put any one on his oath—see Note on Mt. xxvi. 63, § 89. But here (as Grotius, Roseum...and Kuinoel have shewn) it has the force of oro, obtestor te per Deum, and thus is equivalent to the δεομαι σου of Lu. viii. 28.'—Ibid.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Roman civilization were in vain made use of to tame them. Their fetters have been broken in pieces, and busy have they been in the work of self-destruction, as well as in seeking to injure those who might seek to pass by that way.]

6, 7 ver. How miserable the condition of those who seek to have pence in rejection of Jesus!

Let us not merely, like the man with an unclean spirit, bow to the power of 'the Son of the most high God,' but rejoice to meet our most gracious Deliverer.

[It is not every prayer which is acceptable to God, even where there is acknowledgment of the truth, that Jesus is the 'Son of the most high God.'—A man may by the devil be urged to pray for peace while in his sins, or the deferring of punishment on account of them. Let us not confound the fear of torment, (which even the unclean spirit may produce,) with the fear of offending God, and the desire of holiness.]

Matt. viii. 30—2.	Mark v. 9—13.	Luke viii. 30—2.
	chains and in-fetters; and he-brake διαρρησσων the bands, and-was-driven ηλαυνετο of the devil into the wilderness.)
	9 And he-asked him,	And Jesus asked him, 30 saying,
	What is thy name?	What is thy name?
	And he-answered, saying,	And he said,
	My name is Legion:	Legion:
	for we-are many.	because many devils were-entered into him.
	10 And he-besought him much that he-would-not send-them-away out-of the country.	And they-besought him 31 that he-would-not command them to-go-out into the deep [k] αβυσσον.
30 [k] And there-was a-good-way-off from them [l] an-herd of-many swine feeding.	11 Now there-was there [l] nigh-unto the mountains a-great herd of-swine feeding.	And there-was there 32 an-herd of-many swine feeding on the mountain:
31 So the devils besought him, saying, [m] If thou-cast-us-out, suffer us to-go-away into the herd of swine. [n]	12 And all the devils besought him, saying, [m] Send us into the swine, [n] that we-may-enter into them.	and they-besought him that he-would-suffer them to-enter into them.
32 And he-said unto-them, Go.	13 And forthwith Jesus gave-them-leave.	And he-suffered them.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. v. 9. Legion, &c.—'because many devils were entered into him,' Lu. viii. 30. supra—like the church in which has been the predicted falling away, 2 Th. ii. 3—12—'Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird,' Rev. xviii. 2—which however is not to be cleansed, but destroyed—'And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues,' ver. 4.

10. out of the country—or, 'out into the deep,' Lu. viii. 31—into the abyss, or 'bottomless pit,' into which Satan is to be cast, and where he is to be shut up, that he may 'deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years ... be fulfilled,' Rev. xx. 3.

11. nigh unto the mountains—or, 'top of the hill'—or, 'up 'on the mountain,' Lu. viii. 32—'a good way off from them,' Mt. viii. 30.

a great herd—or, 'an herd of many,' &c., Mt. viii. 30; Lu. viii. 32—'they were about two thousand,' Mk. v. 13, p. 272.

12. all the devils besought him—each of the three evangelists here clearly identifies these spiritual agencies, as not being mere qualities of either mind or matter, but as having an existence distinct from that of the creatures they inhabited—they had before entered the man, Lu. viii. 30—and afterward they went out of the man, and entered into the swine, ver. 33, p. 272.

13. Jesus gave them leave—here we see that the prayers even of devils may be granted—it was no sign that God approved of the Israelites when he gave them that which they lusted after, Ps. cvi. 14, 15—Jesus in mercy may deny our requests—'Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts,' Ja. iv. 3—'Fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass,' Ps. xxxvii. 7.

NOTES.

Mt. viii. 29. Before the time. A time determined by the Divine Judge.

Mk. v. 9. Legion. A Roman legion consisted of many, though its number was not always alike. Some make it 6666, and others as much as 12,500. Being many, the Jews used it to signify that term.

Mt. viii. 30. Many swine.—See on ver. 33, p. 272.

Swine. Well-known animals of a ravenous kind: they feed on carrion, husks, and such like vile provision; nay, some of them eat their own young, after they have brought them forth. They look towards, and dig in the earth, & wallow in mire; by excessive wallowing, or dancing, or carrying of straw to their sty, they presage bad weather; they are very lazy and sleepy, and no less mischievous to gardens and fields. The Scythians, Arabs, and Egyptians, had an aversion to swine. The Jewish law stated them to be unclean animals, Le. xi. 7—see also Is. lxvi. 3, . . . and the Jews so abhorred swine that, it is said, they would not name them.

Mk. v. 10. Not send them away out, &c. The demons entreat that if they must depart from the man, they may at least not be compelled to leave the country; which was but another form of preferring the first-mentioned request, that he would not send them away to the place of torment.

Lu. viii. 31. Into the deep. Εις την αβυσσον. That the sea is not meant here is evident; for to the sea the demons went of themselves, when permitted, at their own request, to enter into the swine.—See Addenda, p. 274, 'Into the deep.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

7, 8 ver. Let us beware of being so led away of the devil, as to suppose that Jesus comes only to cause unhappiness. Let our lives be so, as that we can look forward to Christ's coming with joyful hope, and not with dread and despondency.

Lu. viii. 30. He who refuses obedience to the one true God, who alone can lead us aright, and truly bless us, makes himself the prey of a legion, whose delight is in making him an instrument of mischief to himself and others.

MATT. viii. 33.

And when they were come out, they went into the herd of swine:
[a] and, behold, the whole herd of swine ran violently down a steep place into the sea,[p] and perished in the waters.
33 And they that kept them fled, and went their ways into the city, [r] and told every thing, and what was befallen to the possessed of the devils.

MARK v. 14.

And the unclean spirits went out, and entered into the swine: [a] and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the sea, [p] (they were about two thousand;) and were choked in the sea.[q]
14 And they that fed the swine fled, and told it in the city, and in the country.

LUKE viii. 33, 34.

Then went the devils out of the man, and entered into the swine: and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the lake, and were choked.
33 [q] When they that fed them saw what was done, they fled, and went and told it in the city and in the country.[r]

The people of the city and neighbourhood request Jesus to depart out of their coasts.

MATT. viii. 34.

34 [a] And, behold, the whole city came out[b] to meet Jesus εἰς συναντησιν:

MARK v. 14—20.

And they went out
[b] to see what it was that was done.
15 And they come to Jesus,[c] and see θεωρουσι him that was possessed with the devil, and had the legion, sitting, and clothed, and in his right mind σωφρονουντα: and they were afraid.
16 And they that saw it told them how it befell to him that was possessed with the devil,
[d] and also concerning the swine.[e]

LUKE viii. 35—39.

Then they went out
35 to see what was done; and came to Jesus, [c] and found the man, out of whom the devils were departed, sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind σωφρονουντα: and they were afraid.
They also which saw it 36 told them by what means he that was possessed of the devils was healed εσωθη.[d]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. v. 13. ran violently, &c.—At the time the sanctuary shall be cleansed, Da. viii. 12—4. . . . —the like madness, it would appear, will seize the nations —'Woe to the inhabiters of the earth and of the sea! for the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time,' Rev. xii. 12—'These, as natural brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed, speak evil of the things that they understand not; and shall utterly perish in their own corruption,' 2 Pe. ii. 12.

into the sea—'And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus with violence shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all,' Rev. xviii. 21—comp. xvii. 15—8.

15. right mind—'God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind,' 2 Ti. i. 7.

NOTES.

Mk. v. 13. καὶ ἐπνίγοντο—literally, were suffocated, i. e., by drowning, or were drowned, as in a passage of Plutarch cited by Wetstein. So our drown comes from the Saxon Druncnian, to choke. The devils deprecated being themselves cast into the depth, but they plunged the creatures they were allowed to possess in the deep. Selfishness feels for itself.

Mt. viii. 33. They that kept them fled. These swine were doubtless owned by the inhabitants of Gadara. Whether they were Jews or Gentiles is not certainly known. It was not properly in the territory of Judæa; but it was that portion of the land which had been inhabited by the two and a-half tribes east of the Jordan. These had been the earliest carried into captivity; and they had not been restored. That district was probably now inhabited by a mixture of Jews and Gentiles. The Jews were forbidden by their own laws to keep swine, even for the purpose of traffic. Either, therefore, they had expressly violated the law, or these swine were owned by the Gentiles. This is the only one of our Saviour's miracles, except the case of the fig-tree that he cursed, (Mt. xxi. 18—20, § 83,) in which he caused any destruction of property.

34. The whole city came out. Josephus describes Gadara as a very considerable place. It was, by the righteous judgment of God, the first Jewish city that fell into the hands of the Romans in the fatal war under Vespasian, and suffered great extremities.—See GEOG. NOTICE, p. 274.

Mk. v. 15. Sitting, and clothed, and in his right mind. To see him all at once peaceful, and calm, and rational, was proof that it was the power of God only that had done it.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. viii. 32. Multitudes who grovel in the filth of iniquity, (like the swine, when possessed of the devils,) rush madly on in company to their own destruction.

MATT. viii. 34.

and when-they-saw him, they-ℓbesought him that he-would-depart out-of their coasts.ᵍ

MARK v. 17—20.

17 And they-began to-pray him to-depart out-of their coasts

18 ᵏAnd when-he-was come into the ship,ⁱ he that-had-been-possessed-with-the-devil prayed him that he-might-be with him.

19 ᵏHowbeit Jesus suffered him not, but saith unto-him, Go home to thy friends, and tell them how-great things the Lord hath-done for-thee, and hath-had-compassion-on ηλεησε thee.

20 And he-departed, and began to-publish ˡ in Decapolis ᵐ how-great things Jesus had-done for-him: and all-men did-marvel.

LUKE viii. 37—.9.

ᵉThen the whole multitude 37 of-the country ᵈof-the Gadarenes-round-about ℓ besought him to-depart from them; ᵍfor they-were-taken συνειχοντο with-great fear: and he went-up into the ship, and-returned-back-again.ʰ

Now 38

ⁱthe man out-of whom the devils were-departed besought him that-he-might-be with him: ᵏ but Jesus sent-him-away, saying,

Return to thine-own 39 house, and shew how-great things God hath-done unto-thee.

And he-went-his-way, and-published ˡthroughout the whole city ᵐ how-great things Jesus had-done unto-him.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

17. to depart, &c.—Jesus had overcome the rage of the storm, that met him when approaching their coast on his errand of mercy, ch. iv. 39, § 34, p. 266—He had cast out the legion of devils that immediately oppo-ed his entrance into their country, ch. v. 2, 8, 9, pp. 269—71—the only thing which could effectually turn away the Saviour was the will of man; 'and he went up into the ship, and returned,' &c., Lu. viii. 37.

19. suffered him not, &c.—All the disciples of Jesus have not the same duties to perform—he may say to one, Go, and to another, Come, Lu. vii. 8, § 23, p. 219—contrast with the direction given to this man that which was said to him who desired first to go and bury his father, Mt. viii. 21, 2, § 34, p. 255—neither of these two had his request granted, Mt. viii. 22; Lu. viii. 38, 9; whilst the devils, and the men who refused to welcome Jesus into their country, had that which they asked, Mk. v. 12, 3; Lu. viii. 32, 3, p. 271—thus are we taught that God may punish by answering prayer, and shew kindness by withholding that which we desire.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. viii. 35—7. How great the change which had taken place upon the man, who was now found sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind! Soon may the like change be wrought upon the remnant of the descendants of all those multitudes that besought Jesus 'that he would depart out of their coasts.']

Let us beware of indulging in the fear of worldly loss because of Christ. It was thus that the Gadarenes met with their greatest loss, in the departure of Jesus, in answer to their own request. Let our prayers be such, as that they may be granted both to our own good and the glory of God.

[37 ver. Jesus does not generally impose his presence upon those who are unwilling to receive him; but he sometimes, as in the case of the Gadarenes, gives the power of refusing him.—While we deprecate the inhospitable conduct of the Gadarenes, in refusing to receive Him, who at such personal inconvenience had come to visit them; let us remember what he hath done for us, in coming from his glory in heaven, to the shame and suffering of the cross.]

[ᵍ It is no uncommon thing for men to desire Jesus to depart from them. Though he is ready to confer on them important favours, yet they are conscious of guilt in his presence; they hold his favours as of far less consequence than some unimportant earthly possession; they feel no interest in his character or work.']

Mk. v. 18. It was not unnatural for the man who had been cleansed, when he felt the happiness of the change that had passed upon him, to desire to be with Jesus, away from the scenes of his former misery. But the first duty which the disciple has to perform, is submission to the will of his Lord.

[19 ver. One of the first duties of those who experience the cleansing power of Jesus, is to 'go home,' and there prove the truth of their conversion by the quiet and loving performance of the relative duties; giving glory to the Lord, and attributing all to his sovereign grace: next to invite the world to participate in like salvation, and join them in doing honour to the Son of God.]

20 ver. Jesus did not altogether lose his journey, when he left one such witness to publish the truth among the Gadarenes. Let us not be easily discouraged, because of seeming failure in the work of God: in the most unpromising soil some good may be left to germinate, in spite both of devils and worldly-minded men: the latter being, as in the present case, the greater obstacle of the two.

Lu. viii. 40. ' It is no uncommon thing for Jesus to take men at their word, and leave them. He withdraws his Spirit; he gives them over to worldly thoughts and pursuits; he suffers them to sink into crime, and they perish for ever. Alas, how many are there, like the dwellers in Gadara, that ask him to depart, that see him go without a sigh; and that never, never again behold him coming to bless them with salvation!' The self-inflicted evil, of the people on the one side of the lake, was the gain of some on the other side, unto whom the Lord was as yet welcome: 'They received him, for they were all waiting for him:' (next page.) So may it be with the disciples of Jesus—they may be driven from one place, in order that they may enter another which has been prepared for their reception.

(G. 21.) Jesus returns to Capernaum.

MATT. ix. 1.	MARK v. 21.	LUKE viii. 40.
1 [a] And he-entered into a ship, and-passed-over, and came into his-own city.[b] [Ch. ix. 2, § xxii. p. 164.]	21 And when-Jesus-was-passed-over again by ship unto the other-side, much people[d] gathered συνηχθη unto him: [e] and he-was nigh-unto the sea. [Ch. v. 22, § xxxvi. p. 279.]	[b] And it-came-to-pass, that, 40 when Jesus was-returned,[c] the people [d] gladly received απεδεξατο him: for they-were all waiting-for προσδοκωντες him.[e] [Ch. viii. 41, § xxxvi. p. 279.]

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICES.

THE COUNTRY OF THE GERGESENES.—THE COUNTRY OF THE GADARENES, p. 269.

'The reading has here been thought doubtful; the MSS. fluctuating between Γεργεσηνων, Gergesenes; Γαδαρηνων, Gadarenes; and Γερασηνων, Gerasenes. The weight of authority, as far as regards number of MSS., is in favour of the first-mentioned, which is the common reading. As to Γερασηνων, it is supported almost solely by the Vulg. and a few inferior versions.'—See Bloomfield, Gr. T. in loc.

GERGESA is supposed by some to be the same with Gerasa,* a city of Perœa. This city was destroyed by Vespasian; but its ruins, now called Djerash by the Arabs, and visited by Dr. Seetzen, in 1806, are exceedingly interesting. Here that enterprising traveller discovered the remains of three temples and two superb amphitheatres of marble, besides numerous columns, and other monuments of Roman art. The walls are still discernible. The chief attraction is a long street, bordered on each side by a splendid colonnade of Corinthian architecture, terminating in an open space of a semicircular form, surrounded by sixty Ionic pillars. This street is covered with pavement still nearly entire, in which are the marks of the chariot wheels; on each side of which is an elevated pathway. Captains Irby and Mangles also mention the ruins of baths, bridges, a cemetery, with many sarcophagi, which surrounded the city; a triumphal arch, a large cistern, a picturesque tomb, fronted with columns, and an aqueduct overgrown with wood; all which combine in presenting to the view of the traveller a much finer mass of ruins than even that of the celebrated PALMYRA.

'The account given of the habitation of the demoniacs, from whom the legion of devils was cast out here,' says Mr. Buckingham, 'struck me very forcibly while we wandered among rugged mountains, reaching to the shores of the lake Tiberias, excavated with tombs, and still used as dwellings by individuals and whole families of twenty or thirty people, the cattle occupying one end, the family the other. The doors are very massy, and cut out of immense blocks of stone; some of them are now standing, and working on their hinges, which are nothing but a part of the stone projecting at each end and let into a socket cut in the rock: the faces of the doors are cut into panels. A finer subject for the masterly expression of the passions of madness in all their violence, contrasted with the serenity of virtue and benevolence in Him who went about doing good, could hardly be chosen. And a faithful delineation of the rugged and wild majesty of the mountain scenery, with the stillness of the waters of the lake, would give an additional charm to the picture.'

DECAPOLIS—see Sect. xviii. p. 117.

ADDENDA.

'INTO THE DEEP,' p. 271.

LU. viii. 31. 'την Αβυσσον scil. χωραν, i.e., Tartarus, that part of Hades in which the souls of the wicked were supposed to be confined. See 2 Pe. ii. 4; Apoc. xx. 1. So also Eurip. Phœn. 1632. Ταρτάρου Αβύσσου χάσματα, and Acts Thom. § 32, ἡ Αβυσσος τοῦ Ταρτάρου. And so in 2 Pe. ii. 4, we have ταρταρώσας. See Professor Stuart's Essays on the words relating to Future Punishment, especially on שְׁאוֹל, ᾅδης, and Τάρταρος. "Sheol (says he) was considered as a vast domain or region, (of which the grave was only a part, or a kind of entrance way,) extending deep down in the earth, even to its lowest abysses. It may also be remarked, that as in the Old Testament 'Sheol' is a place to which the righteous go, as well as the wicked; and as our Saviour, subsequently to his death, is represented as being in Hades, 'For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither,' &c., Ps. xvi. 10; Acts ii. 27, 31; so it was not improbable that the general conception of Hades, as meaning the region of the dead, comprised both an Elysium and a Tartarus (to speak in classical language), or a state of happiness and a state of misery.' See more in the ample Dissertation of Mr. Greswell "on the existence and locality of Hades," forming the 10th chapter of the Appendix to his work on the Parables. (And see § 69. ADDENDA, infra.) I would further observe, that the etymology of the Heb. שְׁאוֹל need not have so perplexed Philologists. Notwithstanding the doubts of Gesenius, it is certainly derived (as Parkhurst and others supposed) from שָׁאַל; yet not from the signification, to seek; nor has it any sense in common with ᾅδης. I suspect that the primitive physical signification of שָׁאַל was to dig deep, to scoop out, to hollow; and as men dig deep only in search of something, so the verb came to mean, figuratively, to search or seek for. So Job iii. 21, "which long for death, but it cometh not; and dig for it [i.e. anxiously seek] more than for hid treasures." Thus the word was originally merely the past participle of שָׁאַל, and denoted a pit thus dug. Indeed, the word hell (called in German Holle) and the grave were originally only past participles of verbs meaning to dig out, to hollow."—Bloomfield.

* See (Greswell) ADDENDA, p. 275, par. 8, 9, 10, infra.

ON HEALING THE DEMONIACS AT GERGESA, ETC.,* pp. 269—.73.

The eastern side of the lake of Galilee is known to have been rocky and cavernous; and its rocks and caverns are known to have been employed as catacombs for the dead. The practice of burying in caves, hewn out of rocks, was in fact very ancient among the Jews, Is. xxii. 16. (Vide also Jno. xi. 38, §58; Mt. xxvii. 60, §92.) Tiberias, situate at the S. W. extremity of the lake, and close to the water's edge, was built on a site which had been an extensive cemetery, (Jos. Ant. Jud. xviii. ii. 3. Vit. 59). Epiphanius, speaking of this neighbourhood, writes thus: Ἐν τοῖς πλησιόχωροι τούτου καλουμένοις δὲ ἔστιν, οὗπερ ἦν τὴ πατρὶδι καλούμενα, στήλαια ἐν πέτραις ὀρυκτὰ κατεσκευασμένα (Adv. Haereses. i. 132. A.; Ebionæi viii.) It is known also, (and it is but likely,) that such places were the resort of demoniacs, or of insane persons, left at large, or incapable of being kept under restraint; and Epiphanius gives us the following information concerning their habits in his own time: Μαινόμενός δε τις ἦν ἐν τῇ πόλει, ὃς γυμνὸς τὴν πόλιν περιῄει, ὡσμὲ ἐν Τιβεριάδι, και πολλάκις ἐνδιώκομενος τὴν ασφᾶια διαῤῥήγνυεν, ὃς ἦπος τοὺς τοιούτους (Ibid. x. 134, A.)

'It may be said, then, that if our Lord had often visited this shore, such miracles as the dispossession of demoniacs on such a spot, and under similar circumstances, might often have been wrought. But our Lord had never visited this shore before; and there are three circumstances in the miracle now performed, all peculiar to it, yet all specified by each of the accounts; and, consequently, proving it to be the same miracle in each.

'First, the strength and ferocity of the demoniacs, which are not only extraordinary features of their case in general, but expressly insisted on accordingly.

'Secondly, the vicinity of a herd of swine, and the petition of the demons to enter into them, with its effects on the swine.

'Thirdly, the unanimous request of the inhabitants of the country, produced by both events, that Jesus would leave their coasts, and his immediate departure. To these we might have added, as not the least remarkable among the features of resemblance, had it been found in St. Matthew also, as it is in St. Mark and in St. Luke, the peculiarity of the name Gergesēnon.

'In every other instance on record, demoniacs appear to have been helpless rather than dangerous; sufferers in some distressing way themselves, but no-wise formidable to others. No doubt the distinction in the present case was due to the number and the properties of the demons, by whom these men in particular were actuated. Their number is indicated by the name Legion itself; their peculiar disposition, as more than usually delighting in mischief—as maliciously or ferociously inclined, above even the ordinary inclination of devils—appears from their request, when about to be ejected from the men, to be permitted to enter into the swine; and from the effects of this permission when granted, upon the swine; which they immediately urged into the sea and destroyed. And, perhaps, to exemplify this property of the diabolical nature—or to shew his disciples to what lengths, instead of sending them the destruction of life for destruction's sake, and in the doing of evil for evil's sake, whether to men, or to brutes, or to any other of the works of God, it was disposed to carry them—might be one, and possibly the chief reason, why our Saviour allowed them to enter first into the swine, instead of sending them away at once to their proper abode, called the Ἄβυσσος, or bottomless pit.'—Greswell, Vol. I. Diss. iii. pp. 204—.6.

'In the account of the . . . . miracle, the comparative conciseness of St. Matthew, which is peculiarly striking, must go far to explain every discrepancy. Yet, notwithstanding, no material fact is wanting in his narrative. He differs from the others in the detail only, not in the outline—in circumstantials, not in essentials.

'The circumstances of distinction amount in reality to two alone—first, that St. Matthew lays the scene of the miracle in the country of the Gergesenes, and they in the country of the Gadarenes. But they all lay it in the region over against Capernaum, that is, on the same part of the eastern side of the lake. St. Luke makes our Saviour land, ἀντιπέραν τῆς Γαλιλαίας—St. Mark makes him sail, εἰς τὸ πέραν τῆς θαλάσσης—St. Matthew, in this instance, takes him εἰς τὸ πέραν—and ix. 1. when he returned, brings him to Capernaum again at the other side. The country of the Gergesenes, then, and the country of the Gadarenes, he must have concluded, were both the same part of Decapolis—opposite to Galilee.

'But with respect to this difference generally: in the time of Epiphanius and Theophylact, the best copies of St. Mark's Gospel extant contained the reading, τῶν Γεργεσηνῶν instead of τῶν Γαδαρηνῶν. (Epiph. vol. i. 850. Theophyl. Comm. in Marc. v.) as well as St. Matthew's.

'It is not to be supposed that St. Matthew, born and educated in Capernaum, or at least in Galilee, should not have known the names current among his countrymen for every region in the vicinity of the lake. It is at least plainly implied in all the accounts, but especially in St. Luke's, that the scene of the miracle was the neighbourhood of some city, which must have bordered on the lake; and, consequently, could be neither Gernsa nor Gadara; each of which was one or two days' journey distant; but might be Gergesa, which was on the spot.†

'The second circumstance of difference is the number of demoniacs, which St. Matthew makes to have been two; St. Mark as well as St. Luke one; a distinction amounting at the utmost only to an omission, but not to a contradiction; for which, too, the very reason in the later evangelists may have been, that there was no such omission as that, but another, of greater importance, in the prior account. If St. Matthew's object was simply to specify the effect of the miracle, and nothing more; he could not have discriminated between its subjects, the case of one of whom was the case of the other; the cure of one of whom was the counterpart of the cure of the other: and, therefore, he would mention them summarily in conjunction. But if there was any difference in the moral effect of the miracle on the subjects: and, consequently, if the moral uses which might be proposed by the relation of the miracle, would not have been equally answered by the nature of this effect upon either, indifferently; then it was possible, and it might even be necessary, to separate the accounts from each other—to relate the cure of one as altogether independent on the cure of the other. Now one of the demoniacs was unquestionably grateful for his cure, and anxious to have acknowledged it by becoming a disciple of Christ: but it does not appear that the other was. This may explain the difference between the accounts: St. Matthew might have it in view to represent merely the physical effect of the miracle, i.e., to shew, in one of the most remarkable instances, the power and authority of Christ over evil spirits; St. Mark and St. Luke might propose the moral; or to exhibit, in its proper light, the natural and amiable impression produced by the miracle on this one of the patients in particular. The same person might be also the more considerable of the two. The efforts made to reclaim him, or at least to preserve him from bodily harm, are a proof that he had friends and relations who were interested in his safety. He might afterwards have become a Christian; and his case may be specified now on the same principle on which it is specified now on the same principle on which it is specified now on the same principle on which it is specified elsewhere the case of Bable that St. Mark specifies elsewhere the case of Jairus—and describes, as we have seen, Simon of Cyrene, by his relation to Alexander and Rufus. The true reason, however, appears to be supplied by Luke, viii. 27, in the fact that this one demoniac was an inhabitant, and probably a native, of Gergesa; but not the other. Hence it is that, at the end of the account, after relating the fact of our Lord's command to the man, that he should return home, and tell what God had done for him, St. Luke adds (viii. 39), that he departed, proclaiming throughout all the city what Jesus had done for him. Nor does it follow from this that he might not proclaim it in other parts of Decapolis also; only that he began to proclaim it in his own city first. The assertion of St. Mark (v. 20), then, would still be true in itself, as well as consistent with, though not so specific as St. Luke's.

* Greswell, Vol. I. Diss. iii. pp. 204—.11.

† See Geog. Notice, p. 274, 'Gergesa.'

EVERY MAN SHOULD HAVE A CALLING TO FOLLOW, AND SHOULD FOLLOW HIS CALLING.

THE LORD'S PORTION IS HIS PEOPLE; AND THE LORD IS HIS PEOPLE'S PORTION.

'Be this, however, as it may, the difference itself is so far useful, that it enables us to explain one slight, and, perhaps, the only remaining, discrepancy between St. Matthew and the other two. On the first address of the demoniacs to Jesus, he makes them say, Τί ἡμῖν καὶ σοί, Ἰησοῦ; υἱὲ τοῦ Θεοῦ; ἦλθες ὧδε πρὸ καιροῦ βασανίσαι ἡμᾶς; they make them say, Τί ἡμοὶ καὶ σοί, Ἰησοῦ, υἱὲ τοῦ Θεοῦ τοῦ ὑψίστου; ὁρκίζω σε τὸν Θεόν, ὅτι, βασανίσῃς με, μὴ με βασανίσῃς. If there were two demoniacs, both speaking by the same influence of possession, each of these modes of address might actually have been used.'—Greswell, Vol. I. Diss. iii. pp. 209—11.

ON OUR LORD PASSING THE NIGHT UPON THE LAKE.*

'Arrived at the lake, he embarks, and sets sail: and, by the help of what follows, it may be shewn that he neither returned the same night to Capernaum, nor landed at Gergesa until the morning; and consequently that he spent the night on the lake:—

'I. His motive, in going to the other side at all, was to oblige the multitude to disperse; or at least to relieve himself from their importunity: and this effect was more likely to ensue if they thought he was gone away for the night, than if they expected to see him shortly come back.

'II. The breadth of the lake, (though probably not uniform,) according to Josephus, was forty stades: and according to Pliny six Roman miles. It was after sunset, or in the evening, when they set out: and a storm was encountered by the way. If they were going in the direction of Gadara, that was not over against Capernaum, but considerably lower down to the south-east (Jos. Vita, 9, 10, 65, p. 97): and even if they were proceeding to Gergesa, still the passage would probably not take up less than an hour; and the storm which intervened would doubtless add to its length.

'III. After the autumnal equinox, it would be dark within an hour from sunset, and much more within two or three.

'IV. When Jesus returned to Capernaum, the multitude were found collected on the shore of the lake, and anxiously waiting to receive him. Mk. v. 21; Lu. viii. 40, p. 274. This might naturally be the case on the following morning: but it could scarcely happen the same night. Their anxiety too for the return of our Lord in this instance might be produced by the fact of the storm the preceding evening. They could not as yet know how Jesus and his disciples had fared in that storm; and they would be impatient to see them again on that account.

'V. Before and during the storm, as all the evangelists agree, our Lord was asleep. No solution of this fact is so probable as that he was composed to rest for the night. The reluctance of the disciples to awaken him, until the danger was become imminent and pressing; the answer returned just before to the scribe. (Mt. viii. 20, p. 265,) beautiful and pathetic as it was; are pertinent, also, and significant, if Jesus was gone to sleep for the night; or was preparing to pass the night in the open air upon the water.

'VI. When he landed at the opposite side, the demoniac is said to have seen him a great way off (Mk. v. 6, p. 270). If so, it must have been broad daylight at the time; that is, the landing did not take place until the following morning.

'VII. This demoniac, it is also said, was by night and by day (Mk. v. 5, p. 269,) among the tombs. If he met our Lord in the morning, just as he was landing from the ship; this circumstance would both explain the reason, and confirm the truth of that observation.

'VIII. There was near the place a large herd of swine, feeding in their usual pasture at the time; which herd it is much more probable had been brought there that morning, than kept out there all night, or not yet driven home. If it was never customary to keep out such herds all night, they would be driven home by sunset at almost any period of the year; and after the feast of Tabernacles, whatever might be usual at other times, no description of cattle, and much less swine, would be found in the fields all night.

'IX. The people of the city, as well as of the neighbouring country, were all up and stirring at the time; or they could not have been so instantly alarmed by the report of the keepers of the swine, and so soon brought out in a body, to see what had happened, and to request our Lord to depart from their coasts.

'X. If he returned (as after this request he is said to have returned) immediately, Mt. ix. 1, 10, pp. 274, 7, and yet the same night that he had arrived; then they must have been entertained, at a most unusual hour for a supper, that same night; he must have been applied to by Jairus, ver. 18, p. 279, and must have raised his daughter, at a still later hour, that same night; he must consequently have set out to his house either in the dark, or by torch-light; the miracle of the issue of blood, performed by the way, ver. 20—2, p. 280, must have been performed under corresponding circumstances: and yet nothing can be clearer than that everything relating to this miracle was transacted in the open day, Mk. v. 30—4, p. 281.

'We may consider it .... almost demonstratively certain, that Jesus neither came back from Gadara the same evening on which he set out, nor, in all probability, landed there until the next morning. Whatever occurred on the other side, occurred, consequently, in the morning; and, perhaps, so early in the morning, as to allow of his returning to Capernaum in time for the usual morning's repast; or not much later than it. Certainly, at least, his return would not be too late for the hour of dinner; the fifth hour of the day with the ancients, eleven in the morning with us. His finding the people, on the shore, ready prepared for his reception; and his being at meat in the house of some disciple—see § 36, p. 277—when the application of Jairus was made to him; are both on this supposition naturally accounted for.'—See Mt. ix. 1; Mk. v. 21; Lu. viii. 40, (p. 274.)

* Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. pp. 335—..8

THE SAINT AT DEATH . . . GRIEVES THAT HE HATH DONE SO LITTLE FOR GOD, AND REJOICES THAT GOD HATH DONE SO MUCH FOR HIM.

O GOD, HOW LONG SHALL THE ADVERSARY REPROACH? SHALL THE ENEMY BLASPHEME THY NAME FOR EVER?—Psalm lxxiv. 10.

ARISE, O GOD, PLEAD THINE OWN CAUSE: REMEMBER HOW THE FOOLISH MAN REPROACHETH THEE DAILY.—Psalm lxxiv. 22.

SECTION 36.—(G. 21—.3.)—AFTER HIS RETURN,* WHEN JESUS IS SITTING AT MEAT, THE PHARISEES MURMUR THAT HE IS EATING WITH PUBLICANS AND SINNERS; THE DISCIPLES OF JOHN INQUIRE WHY THE DISCIPLES OF JESUS DID NOT FAST; JESUS REPLIES TO BOTH AS BEFORE. JAIRUS APPLIES TO JESUS TO HEAL HIS DAUGHTER. ON THE WAY, A WOMAN IS HEALED, WHO HAD AN ISSUE OF BLOOD TWELVE YEARS. IN THE MEAN TIME, THE DAUGHTER OF JAIRUS EXPIRES, WHOM JESUS RAISES TO LIFE AGAIN. HE HEALS TWO BLIND MEN, AND A DEMONIAC WHO WAS DUMB. THE PHARISEES AGAIN BLASPHEME. Matt. ix. 10—34. Mark v. 22—43. Luke viii. 41—56.—AT CAPERNAUM.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. ix. 10—.7. Jesus being faulted by the Pharisees for eating with publicans and sinners, (and both he and his disciples, by the disciples of John,) delivers the parables of the children of the bride-chamber—new cloth on an old garment—and new wine in old bottles—comp. Mk. ii. 15—22, Lu. v. 29—39, Sect. xxii. pp. 168, .9.

— ix. 18, .9. Mk. v. 22. 4. 'Lu. viii. 41, .2. Requested by Jairus to come, and by the laying on of hands save from death his little daughter, who is at the point of death: Jesus goes with him, his disciples accompanying, and many people following.

— ix. 20, .1. — v. 25—.9. — viii. 43, .4. A woman who has been twelve years afflicted with an issue of blood, and unable to obtain benefit from the physicians, although she has spent all she had upon them; touches the hem of his garment, and is immediately healed.

— ix. 22. — v. 30—.4. — viii. 45—.8. Jesus recognises the touch of faith, and says to the woman, 'Daughter, be of good comfort; thy faith hath made thee whole.'

——— — v. 35. — viii. 49. Word is brought from the ruler's house that his daughter is dead, and that the coming of Jesus would now be of no avail.

——— — v. 36. — viii. 50. Jesus encourages Jairus to exercise faith, assuring him that his daughter shall be given recovery.

— ix. 23. — v. 37, .8. — viii. 51. Jesus, accompanied by Peter, James, and John, enters the house, where already the wailing has commenced on account of the child's death.

Mt. ix. 24. Mk. v. 39, 40. Lu. viii. 52, .3. Upon Jesus saying, 'The maid is not dead, but sleepeth,' they, being fully persuaded of her death, laugh him to scorn.

— ix. 25, .6. — v. 40—.3. — viii. 54—.6. Having, with the three chosen disciples, and the father and mother of the child, entered the apartment where the child lay, Jesus takes her by the hand, and bids her arise; immediately upon which she arises and walks, when Jesus directs that she be given some nourishment. His fame goes abroad into all that land.

— ix. 27. Two blind men follow Jesus, calling upon him, the Son of David, to have mercy upon them.

— ix. 28—30. They follow him into the house; Jesus, after asking whether they believe in his ability to heal them, touches their eyes, and, according to their faith, their eyes are opened.

— ix. 30, .1. Jesus charges them not to publish the matter; but upon departing, they spread his fame in all the country. Contrast this case with that of other two blind men, ch. xx. 29—34, § 79.

— ix. 32—.4. Jesus dispossesses a dumb man—the multitudes marvel—the Pharisees blaspheme—see a similar occurrence, ch. xii. 22, § 31, p. 234. In the present case it is a dumb man; in that, the man was both 'blind, and dumb.' In this, the people say, 'It was never so seen in Israel;' in that, 'Is not this the Son of David?' in this case the Pharisees say, 'He casteth out devils through the prince of the devils:' in that he is said to do the same 'by Beelzebub the prince of the devils.'

(G. 21,) No. 36. Jesus sits at meat; the Pharisees murmur that he eats with publicans, &c.; the disciples of John inquire why the disciples of Jesus did not fast: Jesus replies.—At Capernaum.

MATT. ix. 10—.7. [Ch. ix. 9, § xxii. p. 168.]	MARK.	LUKE.
10 And it-came-to-pass, as-Jesus-sat-at-meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came and-sat-down-with 11 him and his disciples.[a] And when-the Pharisees-saw it, they-said unto-his disciples, Why eateth your Master with 12 publicans and sinners? But when-Jesus-heard that, he-		[a I.t. 'as-he-sat-at-meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came and-sat-down-with Jesus and his disciples.']

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. ix. 10. many publicans and sinners, &c.—see Mk. ii. 15; Lu. v. 29, § 22, p. 168.

11. Pharisees, &c.—'Scribes and Pharisees' Mk. ii. 16; Lu. v. 30, § ib.

NOTES.

Mt. ix. 10. As Jesus sat at meat in the house. Many commentators think that this is the same feast as is recorded, Mk. ii. 15—22; Lu. v. 29—39, § 22, p. 168, which immediately succeeded the call of Matthew, or Levi; but Mr. Greswell supposes that feast to be altogether passed over by Matthew, and that this instance recorded by him (ch. ix. 10—.7,) is totally different.—See Greswell, 'On the call and supper of Levi,' Vol. II. Diss. xxv. pp. 397—410.

Publicans.—See NOTE, Lu. iii. 12, § 7, p. 53

Sinners. ἁμαρτωλοί. The word here, and generally elsewhere in the Gospels, denotes heathens, or such Jews as associated with them, and were considered on a footing with them.—See Mk. ii. 16, § 22, p. 168; Ga. ii. 15, 'We who are Jews by nature, and not sinners of the Gentiles.'

11. The Pharisees 'counted themselves righteous, and despised others.'—See § 7, ADDENDA, p. 56.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. ix. 10, .1. Although publicans and sinners came and sat down with Jesus and his disciples, yet it was quite evident, even to the Pharisees, that Jesus and his disciples were not as publicans and sinners, else they would not have wondered at the casual association. Would that the people of the world were always able to mark the same distinction between themselves and the consistent conduct of the disciples of Jesus.

* ADDENDA, p. 276, supra, and Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. pp. 335—.8.

MATT. ix. 13—.5. MARK. LUKE.

said unto-them, They that-be-whole ἰσχυοντες need not a-13 physician, but they that-are sick κακως εχοντες.* But go-ye and-learn what that meaneth,† I-will θελω have mercy, and not sacrifice: for I-am-not-come to-call the-righteous, but 14 sinners to repentance. Then came to-him the disciples of-John, saying, Why do-we and the Pharisees-fast oft, but 15 thy disciples fast not? And Jesus said unto-them, Can the children of-the bride-chamber mourn, as-long-as the bridegroom is with them? but the-days will-come, when the bridegroom shall-be-taken from them, and then shall-they-

[* Lit. those that have maladies.]
[† What this is.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

12. They that be whole, &c.—'they that are whole,' &c., Mk. ii. 17; Lu. v. 31, § 22, p. 168.

13. I will have mercy, &c.—'I desired mercy, and not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings,' Hos vi. 6—see the same referred to, Mt. xii. 7, § 24, p. 190—also Mi. vi. 6—8. 'Wherewith shall I come before the LORD, and bow myself before the high God? shall I come before him with burnt offerings, with calves of a year old? 7, Will the LORD be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? shall I give my first-born for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? 8, He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the LORD require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?'

not come to call the righteous, &c.—Jesus was come to bring Jacob again to the Lord, Is. xlix. 5. . . . —He shewed that 'repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem,' Lu. xxiv. 47, § 98—He is 'exalted to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins,' Ac. v. 31—he 'is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come,' &c., 2 Pe. iii. 9.

14. fast oft, &c.—Mk. ii. 18; Lu. v. 33, § 22, p. 169.

15. children of the bride-chamber, &c.—Mk. ii. 19, 20; Lu. v. 34, 5, § ib.

NOTES.

12. They that be whole, &c. Our Saviour is answering the Pharisees according to their folly, they supposing themselves righteous, and so in no need of the physician of souls: but he shews that this view of their own case need not be connected with a despising of others, who ought rather to be helped to a state of spiritual health and enjoyment.

13. Go ye and learn. צא ולמד tse velimmed, a form of speech in frequent use among the rabbins, when they referred to any fact or example in the sacred writings.

I am not come to call the righteous, &c. No human beings are by nature righteous, Ps. xiv., 3, 'They are all gone aside, they are all together become filthy: there is none that doeth good, no, not one.' Ro. i. 18—32; iii. 10—.8.

[14. The Pharisees fast oft. In the law we only find one fast day enjoined, viz., the tenth of the seventh month, on which the national atonement was made, Le. xxiii. 27—.9. But the Jews of their own accord observed many other days of fasting. In our Saviour's time, days of this kind were more frequent than ever, especially among the Pharisees, who, according to the practice of their sect, fasted probably 'twice in the week,' Lu. xviii. 12, § 73. But besides these usual days of fasting, the Pharisees had many other superstitious fasts. The Lord repudiates mere ceremonial fasts, Isa. lviii. 3—6. 3, 'Wherefore have we fasted, say they, and thou seest not? wherefore have we afflicted our soul, and thou takest no knowledge? Behold, in the day of your fast ye find pleasure, and exact all your labours. 4, Behold, ye fast for strife and debate, and to smite with the fist of wickedness: ye shall not fast as ye do this day, to make your voice to be heard on high. 5, Is it such a fast that I have chosen? a day for a man to afflict his soul? is it to bow down his head as a bulrush, and to spread sackcloth and ashes under him? wilt thou call this a fast, and an acceptable day to the LORD? 6, Is not this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?']

15—.7. Christ, in reply, uses three illustrations, all of them going to establish the same principle, that we should observe a fitness and propriety in things.

15. Can, &c. A most delicate form of expressing, by conjecture and interrogation, strong negation—see Jno. iii. 29, § 13, p. 89.

[The children of the bride-chamber. οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ νυμφῶνος. i. e., (by a Hebraism whereby בְּנֵי prefixed denotes distinction or participation,) those who were admitted into the bride-chamber; namely, (the friends of the bridegroom, the παράνυμφοι, pronubi,) who formed the marriage procession, and were invited to participation of the seven days' matrimonial feasting.'—Bloomfield.]

It is remarked by Dr. Lightfoot, that, during the time Christ was with the disciples, they never suffered any persecution; but when he was absent, all manner of persecution overtook them.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[12 ver. If we would experience the healing power of Jesus, we must know our need of his healing. God first changes the will, and gives a desire for the salvation he intends to bestow.]

[13 ver. If men had been righteous, Christ would not have needed to come in humiliation and suffering into the world to reconcile us to God; and we must know that we are not righteous—and acknowledge ourselves sinners, before we can apply to him for salvation. If we acknowledge that we are sinners, and are willing to be made righteous through him, then are we among those whom Christ came to save.]

[It is only those who are plagued with the guilt and corruption of sin that need the Physician of souls; and, the more sensible they are of their sinfulness and guilt, there is the more hope of doing them good.—God has declared that acts of compassion to others, and especially to their souls, in turning them from their sins, is more acceptable to him than the most costly observance of his own positive institutions. Christ came into the world to reform and save, not righteous persons, but guilty and polluted sinners, even the chief; and that by convincing them of their sinfulness and danger, and their need of righteousness and grace.]

God desires that we, being made sensible of his great goodness, in the gift of his Son, should manifest our sense thereof by shewing mercy to others, as he hath had mercy upon us.—It is among those who know themselves to be sinners, that the great call to repentance may be expected to have place; and to those that repent, the grace of God is freely given.—Jesus came not to give sinners ease in sin; he calls them to repentance.

[14, .5 ver. He who was present with the disciples upon earth is the Bridegroom, who as to his personal presence was to be taken from them for a time, during which it was expected that the children of the bride-chamber would mourn his absence; and this, although the Comforter should be sent unto them.]

MATT. ix. 16, .7.	MARK	LUKE.
16 fast. No-man putteth a-piece of-new cloth unto an-old garment, for that which-is-put-in-to-fill-it'-up πληρωμα αυτου 17 taketh from the garment, and the-rent is-made worse. Neither do-men-put new wine into old bottles: else the bottles break, and the wine runneth-out, and the bottles perish: but they-put new wine into new bottles, and both are-preserved.

(G. 22.) Jairus applies to Jesus to visit his daughter, who was at the point of death.

MATT. ix. 18, .9.	MARK v. 22—4. [Ver. 21, § xxxv. p. 274.]	LUKE viii. 41, .2. [Ver. 40, § xxxv. p. 274.]
18 [e] While-he-spake these things unto-them, behold,[b] there-came a-certain-ruler,	22 And, behold, [b] there-cometh one of-the rulers-of-the-synagogue, Jairus by-name;	And, behold, 41 there-came a-man named Jairus, and he was a-ruler-of-the synagogue:
and-worshipped him,	and when-he-saw him, he-fell[e] at his feet, 23 and besought him [d] greatly,[g]	and he-fell [e] down at Jesus' feet, and-besought him[d] [e] that-he-would-come into his house:[f]
saying, My daughter is-e'even-now-dead but come and-lay thy hand upon her, and she-shall-live.	[f] saying, My little-daughter lieth at-the-point-of-death ασχατως εχει: I pray thee, come and-lay thy hands on-her, that she-may-be-healed; and she-shall-live.[f]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

16. a piece of new cloth, &c.—Mk. ii. 21, Lu. v. 36, § 22. | 17. new wine, &c.—Mk. ii. 22, Lu. v. 37, .8, § ib. p. 169.

NOTES.

16. No man putteth a piece of new cloth, &c. Here we have the second illustration. Οὐδεὶς ἐπιβάλλει, &c., 'no one clappeth a patch of undressed cloth,' &c., i.e. rough from the weaver, and which has not yet passed through the hands of the fuller.

[By this it is meant that the two substances being dissimilar (one rigid and the other supple) will never wear well together, but the rigid will tear away part of the supple. The comparison is popular; and the application suggested by this and the metaphor in the next verse is, the inexpediency of imposing too grievous burthens on them, during their weakness and imperfection, as new converts;—that all things should be suited to circumstances;—and that men cannot be suddenly initiated into unwonted austerities.]

17. Neither . . . new wine into old bottles. Here we have the third illustration.

Bottles. ἀσκοὺς. Flasks made of goat or sheep skins, used in all the ancient nations, and still employed in the southern parts of Europe, and in the East generally. Now these, as they are not so easily distended when they grow old and stiff, so they are more liable to burst by the fermentation of new liquor. The Gibeonites 'took wine bottles, old, and rent, and bound up,' Josh. ix. 4—and see Job xxxii. 19. The Greek word here translated 'bottles' is probably from the same root as our word sack. The Hebrew word used, Josh. ix. 4, has much the same sound.

The institutes of Christ, and those of the Pharisees, could never be brought to accord; an attempt to combine the two systems would be as absurd as it would be destructive.

18. A certain ruler.—See ADDENDA, p. 286, 'A ruler of the synagogue.'

And worshipped him. Fall down before him, or expressed his respect for him by token of profound regard.

Is even now dead. 'Is by this time dead,' or, 'as it were dead.' This is agreeable to Mark's ἐσχάτως ἔχει, and not irreconcilable with Luke's ἀπέθνησκεν, which means, 'is [as it were] dead.' It is likely that a father, in these circumstances, would use a word as nearly expressing actual death as would be consistent with the fact that she was alive.—Had his daughter been actually dead, Jairus would not have ventured to apply to our Lord at all: no one ever did apply, so far as we know, to work such a miracle as the raising of a dead body to life.

Come and lay thy hand upon her. Agreeably to the custom of our Lord, as it had been also of the

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

16 ver. That we may be ready to enter in with him to the marriage when he cometh, let us not endeavour to patch up the rags of our own righteousness, but be altogether clothed in the new wedding garment.

[17 ver. Let us not wonder, that God should set aside the old systems that may have served their purpose in their time, and that he should choose new vessels to contain the enlarged measure of grace which he intends to bestow upon his people. Nor let the servants of the King force the old into a service for which they were not intended, but seek to have the young duly fashioned for the new wine of the kingdom, which they are intended to contain.]

Mk. v. 23. Let us never imagine that our importunity can trouble Jesus, or our sins debar us from him as a Saviour. Let neither shame nor dread keep us from him. And, if our poverty be deep, and our case deplorable, let our faith be the stronger; so shall our deliverance be glorious.

Matt. ix. 19.	Mark v. 24.	Luke viii. 42.
		[e]for he had one-only 42 daughter, about twelve years of age, and she lay-a-dying[f] απεθνησκεν.
19 [a]And Jesus arose, and-followed him, and so did his disciples.[b]	24 And Jesus went with him;
	[c]and much peop.e followed him, and thronged συνεθλιβον* him.	But as he went the people thronged συνεπνιγον him.
[* Including a sense of distress.]

On the way, a woman is healed who had an issue of blood twelve years.

Matt. ix. 20—.2.	Mark v. 25—34.	Luke viii. 43—.8.
20 [a]And, behold, a-woman, which-was-diseased-with-an-issue-of-blood twelve years,[b]	25 And a-certain woman, which-had an-issue of-blood twelve years, 26 [b]and had-suffered many things of many physicians, and had-spent all that she-had, and was-[c]nothing-bettered,[e]	And a-woman 43 having an-issue of-blood twelve years, which had-spent all her living ὁλον τον βιον upon physicians, [e]neither could be-healed of any,[d]
came behind [e]him, and-touched the hem of his garment. 21 for she-said within herself, If I-may-[c]but-touch his garment, I-shall-be-whole.[f]	[d]but rather grew worse, 27 when-she-had-heard of Jesus, came in the press οχλω behind,[e] and-touched his garment. 28 For she-said, If I-may-touch but his clothes, I-shall-be-whole.	came 44 behind him, and-touched the border of his garment:

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. viii. 42. only daughter—Jesus had before, at Nain, raised to life a widow's only son who was being carried out to his burial, Lu. vii. 11—.6, § 29, p. 221.

Mk. v. 24. went with him—see the same alacrity to minister mercy, manifested in the case of the centurion's servant, Lu. vii. 6, § 28, p. 218.

thronged him—see the words of Jacob to Judah, which are yet to be fulfilled in Jesus, 'unto him shall the gathering of the people be,' Ge. xlix. 10.

25. twelve years—the continuance of this disease was the same as the age of the damsel he was going to heal, Lu. viii. 42, supra—the same as the age of Jesus when he reasoned with the doctors, Lu. ii. 42, § 6, p. 40.

26. many physicians—they had been like Job's comforters, 'physicians of no value,' Job xiii. 4—or like those described by the prophet, 'They have healed also the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, Peace, peace; when there is no peace,' Je. vi. 14; viii. 11—'Is there no balm in Gilead; is there no physician there? why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered?' ver. 22.

27. his garment—'hem of his garment,' Mt. ix. 20—'border of his garment,' Lu. viii. 44—The days are yet to come when 'ten men shall take hold out of all prophets; who, in praying for the benefit of any person, used to put their hands upon him.—See 2 Ki. v. 11, 'But Naaman was wroth, and went away, and said, Behold, I thought, He will surely come out to me, and stand, and call on the name of the LORD his God, and strike his hand over the place, and recover the leper.' Mt. xix. 13, § 74; Ac. iv. 30, 'By stretching forth thine hand to heal; and that signs and wonders may be done by the name of thy holy child Jesus.'—And see Mt. viii. 3, [Mk. i. 41, Lu. v. 13,] § 21, p. 160.

NOTES.

Lu. viii. 42. She lay a dying. ἀπέθνησκεν. 'Was [as it were] dead.'—See on Mt. ix. 18, p. 279, supra.

Mt. ix. 20. And, behold, a woman, &c. This disease was, according to the law, reckoned unclean, Le. xv. 25, and she was unwilling to make personal application to Jesus, or even to touch his person. The disease was regarded as incurable. A flux of blood of long standing is also said to be one of the most dangerous, and least medicable, of all diseases.

Touched the hem. τοῦ κρασπέδου. Not so much the hem, as the tassel (i.e., one of the lower tassels) of the garment—see Nu. xv. 37—40; which had four corners, called πτερύγια, from each of which was suspended a tassel of threads or strings. To touch either of the

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. v. 25, .6. Those who seek not to the Lord, but to the physicians, may not expect other result than that which happened to the Jewish king, 2 Ch. xvi. 12, 3, [' And Asa in the thirty and ninth year of his reign was diseased in his feet, until his disease was exceeding great: yet in his disease he sought not to the LORD, but to the physicians. 13, And Asa slept with his fathers, and died in the one and fortieth year of his reign.'] As also unto this woman, who was by them nothing bettered, but rather grew worse. The Lord sometimes allows those upon whom he will shew mercy, to prove the inefficiency of all human means, that, as poor and needy, they may seek unto him for mercy, and experience, through faith, the power of his sovereign grace.

Matt. ix. 22.	Mark v. 20—33.	Luke viii. 45—.7.
	29 And straightway the fountain of her blood was-dried-up; and she-felt εγνω in-her-body that she-was-healed of that plague μαστιγος.	and immediately her issue of blood stanched
22 But Jesus	30 And Jesus, immediately knowing in himself that-virtue την δυναμιν had-gone-out of him, turned-him-about,	turned-him-about in the press, and-said, Who touched my clothes? g	And Jesus said, 45 Who touched me? g When all denied, Peter and they that were with him said, Master, h
	31 And his disciples said unto-him, h Thou-seest the multitude thronging συνθλιβοντα thee, i and sayest-thou, Who touched me?	the multitude throng συνεχουσι thee i and press αποθλιβουσι thee, and sayest-thou, Who touched me?
	32 k And he-looked-round-about to-see her that-had-done this thing. l	And Jesus said, Somebody 46 hath-touched me: for I perceive that-virtue δυναμιν is-gone-out of me. k
	33 But the woman m fearing and trembling, knowing what was-done in her, n came and fell-down-before him, and told him o all the truth. p	l And when-the woman 47 saw that she-was-not hid, she-came m trembling, n and falling-down-before him, she-declared unto-him o

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him [or, of the man Christ Jesus] that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you,' Zec. viii. 23—'Let him take hold of my strength, that he may make peace with me; and he shall make peace with me,' Isa. xxvii. 5.

28. I shall be whole—she had faith to be healed, like the man who was impotent in his feet, Ac. xiv. 8—10.

29. she was healed—He from whom this healing power proceeded, is yet to do greater things than these: 'I will restore health unto thee, and I will heal thee of thy wounds, saith the Lord; because they called thee an Outcast, saying, This ... Zion, whom no man seeketh after,' Je. xxx. 17. . . . .—'Behold, I will bring it health and cure, and I will cure them, and will reveal unto them the abundance of peace and truth,' xxxiii. 6.

Lu. viii. 45. Who touched me?—'the Lord . . . knoweth them that trust in him,' Na. i. 7.

46. virtue is gone out of me—see Mk. v. 30—the like healing power did afterwards proceed from him, through his apostles, in Jerusalem, Ac. v. 12—.6—in Asia Minor, xix. 11, .2.

47. saw that she was not hid—Jesus 'looked round about to see her,' &c. Mk. v. 32.

declared . . . before all the people—'Bless the Lord, O my soul: . . . and forget not all his benefits: who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases,' &c., Ps. ciii. . . .—'I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord. I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of all his people,' cxvi. 13, .4.

NOTES.

two lower ones was regarded as a mark of profound respect. This, however, is not to be regarded as exclusively a Jewish custom. There are examples of it among the heathen, and it is still retained in the East. 'The Turk would bring us presents when he met us, kneeling and kissing the hem of our cloaks.' —Evelyn's Memoirs, Vol. i. 159.

Mk. v. 30. That virtue had gone out of him. 'Knowing in himself the power which had gone from him.' Christ was conscious of the healing power which had been exerted in answer to the confidence reposed in him.

Who touched my clothes? Christ calls out the believing woman, that he might speak to her words of comfort; and by the proof of her cure, sustain the faith of Jairus.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. viii. 45, .6. It is not physical nearness alone that can give us to receive blessing from Jesus. A multitude thronged him, but their contact was very distinguishable from the woman's touch of faith. We must be brought near unto Jesus by a true and living faith, if we would stand whole and accepted in his presence.

[Mk. v. 33, .4. After healing power has been received through faith from Jesus, there may still be much fear and trembling, as not knowing in full the grace of the Saviour. We must freely and fully confess Christ before men, if we would truly enjoy the consolations of the gospel, and have it said to us, Son, 'Daughter, be of good comfort: thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace.']

Matt. ix. 22.	Mark v. 34.	Luke viii. 48.
		[p] before all the people for what cause she had touched him, and how she was healed immediately.[q]
[q] and when he saw her, he said, Daughter, be of good comfort; thy faith hath made thee whole.	34 And he said unto her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in [εἰρηνε εις] peace, and be whole of thy plague.[t]	And 48 [r] he said unto her, Daughter, be of good comfort [θαρσει]: thy faith hath made thee whole; go in [πορευου εις] peace.[t]
[t] And the woman was made whole from that hour.

(G. 22.) In the meantime the daughter of Jairus expires, whom Jesus raises to life again.

Matt. ix. 23—6.	Mark v. 35—43.	Luke viii. 49—56.
	35 [u] While he yet spake, there came from [απο] the ruler of the synagogue's house certain which said, Thy daughter is dead [απεθανε]: why troublest thou the Master any further?	While he yet spake, 49 there cometh one from [παρα] the ruler of the synagogue's house, saying to him, Thy daughter is dead [τεθνηκεν]; trouble not the Master.
	36 As soon as Jesus heard the word that was spoken, he saith unto the ruler of the synagogue, Be not afraid, only believe.[x]	But when Jesus 50 heard it, he answered him, saying, Fear not: believe only, [y] & she shall be made whole.[z]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

48. Daughter, be of good comfort—the Lord hath sent comfort to his people—' Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God,' Is. xl. 1. . . . —for the Lord shall comfort Zion: he will comfort all her waste places; and he will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the Lord; joy and gladness shall be found therein thanksgiving, and the voice of melody,' li. 3. . . . —He hath been sent 'to comfort all that mourn,' lxi. 2. . . . —'ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem,' lxvi. 13. . . . —' I . . . will comfort them, and make them rejoice from their sorrow,' Je. xxxi. 13. . . . —'The Comforter, . . . the Holy Ghost,' Jno. xiv. 23, § 87—comforts with words respecting the resurrection of the saints, and the return of our blessed Redeemer: 17, ' But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. 14, For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. 15, For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep. 16, For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: 17, then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord. 18, Wherefore comfort one another with these words,' 1 Th. iv. 13—8.

thy faith, &c.—in like manner had he said to the woman that was a sinner, 'Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace,' Lu. vii. 50, § 29, p. 232.

49 Thy daughter is dead, &c.—it would appear that the ruler had feared as much as this; for not only do we find him saying, 'My little daughter lieth at the point of death,' Mk. v. 23, p. 279, but also, 'My daughter is even now dead,' Mt. ix. 18, ib.—he may have used much and varied importunity; indeed it is said that he 'besought him greatly.' Mk. v. 23, p. ib.

50. Fear not, &c.—' I fell at his feet as dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not: I am the first and the last: I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death,' Rev. i. 17, .8—see on Lu. i. 13, § 1, p. 4—'Be not afraid.' Mk. v. 36—said also to the disciples on the holy mount, Mt. xvii. 7, § 51.

NOTES.

34. Daughter. A word of kindness, tending to inspire confidence, and to dissipate her fears. The merciful Saviour always speaks in kindness to those who are humble, and conscious of their ill desert.

Thy faith. Faith, as an instrumental cause. There was in the woman a belief in his Divine power, and this great truth was what . . . . she had arrived at, preparatory to her receiving him as a Saviour—a truth opposed by the Jews. The power of Christ was the efficacious cause of the woman's recovery; but her faith, by inducing her to apply to him, secured to her that benefit from which unbelief excluded many.

Of thy plague. Thy disease; literally, thy scourge.

35. Thy daughter is dead. 'The death of the child happened as Jesus was in the way, a fact not mentioned by St. Matthew. But he knew that this result would ultimately take place, and from his usual conciseness on the one hand, and his regard to the cause and view of things on the other, while he suppresses the intermediate step which produced the change, he accommodates from the first the account of the proceedings to this supposition, and thus it is easily reconcilable with Mark and Luke.'—Gresswell.

36. Only believe. Jesus kindly set the fears of the ruler at rest, and assured him that he had equal power over the dead as over the living.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. v. 36. [Lu. viii. 50.] Faith is powerful not only to receive blessing for ourselves, but to procure it for others. Not only to the believing woman did Jesus say, 'Be whole of thy plague,' but to the father of the damsel he said, 'Fear not: believe only, and she shall be made whole.'

MATT. ix. 23, .4.	MARK v. 37—.9.	LUKE viii. 51, .2.
	37 [a]And he-suffered no-man to-follow him, save Peter, and James, and John the brother of-James.
23 [d]And when-Jesus'-came into [e] the ruler's house,	38 And he-cometh to [e] the house of-the ruler-of-the-synagogue, [f] and seeth θεωρεῖ, the-tumult,	And when-he-came 51 into the house,
[f] and saw the minstrels and the people making-a-noise [g] θορυβούμενον,	[g] and them-that-wept and wailed greatly. [h]
		[h] he-suffered no-man to-go-in, save Peter, and James, and John, and the father and the mother of-the maiden.
		And all wept, and 52 bewailed her: [i]
24 he-said unto-them,	39 [i]And when-he-was-come-in, he-saith unto-them, Why make-ye-this-ado θορυβεῖσθε, and weep? [k]	but he said, Weep not;
[k] Give-place: for the maid is-not-dead ἀπέθανε, but sleepeth.	the damsel is-not-dead ἀπέθανεν, but sleepeth.	she-is-not-dead ἀπέθανεν, but sleepeth.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. v. 37. Peter, and James, and John—the three who were chosen to be eye-witnesses of his majesty on the holy mount, Mt. xvii. 1—7, § 51; 2 Pe. i. 16—.8 —these three were also taken to be witnesses of his suffering in the garden, Mk. xiv. 32, .3, &c., § 88; 1 Pe. v. 1.

38. wept and wailed greatly—they made great lamentation for the dead—see David's lament over Saul and Jonathan, 2 Sa. i. 17—.27—over Absalom, xviii. 33—It was thought a strange thing when he did not bewail the death of his child by Bathsheba. xii. 20—.3—the singing men and the singing women spake of Josiah in their lamentations,' 2 Ch. xxxv. 25 —and it was reckoned a curse upon Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, that they should not lament for him, saying, 'Ah my brother! or, Ah sister!'—'Ah lord! or, Ah his glory!' Je. xxii. 18.

Mt. ix. 24. is not dead, but sleepeth—The sacred writers, who hold the doctrine of the resurrection, often spoke of the dead as sleeping: 'since the fathers fell asleep,' 2 Pe. iii. 4; 'he fell asleep,' Ac. vii. 60; 'but some are fallen asleep;' 'then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ,' 1 Co. xv. 6, 18; 1 Th. iv. 13—.5.

Lu. viii. 52. Weep not, &c.—see on ver. 48, p. 282—1 Th. iv. 13, .4—see before on 'Fear not,' Lu. viii. 50.

NOTES.

37. Peter, and James, and John.—See 'Script. Illus.,' supra.

Mt. ix. 23. The minstrels. τοὺς αὐλητάς. The antiquity of the custom of wailing for the dead, and expressing grief by tearing the hair and mangling the flesh, appears from various parts of the Old Testament: it was common to both Greeks and Romans, and still continues in some barbarous or half-civilized nations. Besides these offices of relations, others were hired to join in the howling, and to sing dirges, accompanied by wind instruments. So Jos. Bell. iii. 9. 5, πλείστους δὲ μισθοῦσθαι τοὺς αὐλητὰς, οἳ θρήνων κατάρξωσι αὐτοῖς.—See on Mk. v. 38, infra.

But the Jews were forbidden to tear their hair, and cut their flesh, in mourning for the dead, Le. xix. 28, De. xiv. 1, because such expressions of grief were inconsistent with resignation to the Divine will, and looked as if they had no hope of their friends' resurrection. Hence, the apostle's precept, 'Sorrow not, even as others which have no hope,' 1 Th. iv. 13.

[Making a noise. This would properly mean tumultuantem; but the word must here include the sense of lamentation, namely, such tumultuary responses as the præfica would make in concert.]

Mk. v. 38. Wailed greatly. The expressions of grief at the death of a friend, in eastern countries, are extreme. As soon as a person dies, all the females in the family set up a loud and doleful cry. They continue it as long as they can without taking breath, and the shriek of wailing dies away in a low sob. Nor do the relatives satisfy themselves with these expressions of violent grief. They are persons of both sexes, whose employment it is to mourn for the dead in the like frantic manner—see Amos v. 16, 'Therefore the LORD, the God of hosts, the Lord, saith thus; Wailing shall be in all streets; and they shall say in all the highways, Alas! alas! and they shall call the husbandman to mourning, and such as are skilful of lamentation to wailing.' Je. ix. 20, 'Yet hear the word of the LORD, O ye women, and let your ear receive the word of his mouth, and teach your daughters wailing, and every one her neighbour lamentation.' They sing the virtues of the deceased, recount his acts, dwell on his beauty, strength, or learning, on the comforts of his family and home, and in doleful strains ask him why he left his family and friends. To all this they add soft and melancholy music. They employ minstrels to add their grief, and increase the expression of their sorrow. This violent grief continues, commonly, eight days. In the case of a king, or other very distinguished personage, it is prolonged through an entire month. This grief does not cease at the house; it is exhibited in the procession to the grave, and the air is rent with the wailings of real and of hired mourners. This custom still exists among the more ignorant of the Irish people.

Mt. ix. 24. Is not dead, but sleepeth. 'Is not so dead as not to return to life' (which was the idea as-

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. v. 37; Lu. viii. 51. The three disciples who were chosen to witness the glory of Jesus on the mount, were first chosen to witness his sovereign power and grace in raising from the dead.

[Mt. ix. 24. To those who have the promise of life, from Jesus, death is to be regarded as but sleep. The truth of God must prevail not merely unto death, but over death.]

BOW DOWN THINE EAR, AND HEAR THE WORDS OF THE WISE, AND APPLY THINE HEART UNTO MY KNOWLEDGE.—PROV. xxii 17. FOR IT IS A PLEASANT THING IF THOU KEEP THEM WITHIN THEE; THEY SHALL WITHAL BE FITTED IN THY LIPS.—PROV. xxii. 18.

MATT. ix. 25.	MARK v. 40—.3.	LUKE viii. 53—.6.
And they-laughed-·him· to-scorn [1] κατεγελων.	40 And they-laughed-·him·-to-scorn κατεγελων.	And they-laughed-·him·-to-scorn κατεγελων, [1]knowing that she-was-dead.[m] 53
25 But when the people were-put-forth,	[m]But when-·he·-had-put-·them-all·-out, he-taketh the father and the mother of-the damsel, and them that were with him, and entereth-in where the damsel was lying.	And he 54 put-·them-all·-out,
he-went-in and-took her by-the hand,	41 And he-took the damsel by-the hand, and-said unto-her, Talitha cumi; which is, being-interpreted, Damsel, I-say unto-thee, arise.[n]	and took her by-the hand, and-called, saying, Maid, arise.
and the maid arose ηγερθη.	42 And straightway the damsel arose ανεστη, [o]and walked; for she-was of the age of-twelve years.[p]	[n]And her spirit came-again, 55 and she-arose ανεστη straightway: [o] and he-commanded to-give her meat.
	And they-were-astonished [q]with-a-great astonishment. 43 And he-charged them	[p]And her parents were-astonished: [q] 56 but he charged them

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

53. laughed him to scorn—'Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?'—and as Paul proceeded to shew what the 'prophets and Moses did say should come: That Christ should suffer, and that he should be the first that should rise from the dead,' &c.; 'Festus said with a loud voice, Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad,' Ac. xxvi. 8, 22—.1—'Hearken unto me, ye that know righteousness, the people in whose heart is my law; fear ye not the reproach of men, neither be ye afraid of their revilings,' Is. li. 7.

54. put them all out,—so at the raising of Tabitha 'Peter put them all forth,' &c., Ac. ix. 40.

Maid, arise—so at Nain, 'Young man, I say unto thee, Arise. And he that was dead sat up,' Lu. vii. 14, .5, & 29, p. 222—so at Bethany, 'he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth. And he that was dead came forth,' &c., Jno. xi. 43, .4, § 58—'He spake, and it was done,' Ps. xxxiii. 9—'As the Father raiseth up the dead, and quickeneth them; even so the Son quickeneth whom he will,' Jno. v. 21, § 23, p. 177—and he will accomplish his promise, 'The dead men shall live . . . my dead body shall they arise,' Is. xxvi. 19.

55. her spirit came again—'the LORD heard the voice of Elijah; and the soul of the child came into him again, and he revived,' 1 Ki. xvii. 22.

he commanded to give her meat—'Is not the life more than meat?'—'your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things,' Mt. vi. 25, 32, § 19, p. 135—'we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities,' He. iv. 15—Jesus had compassion upon the multitudes, Mk. vi. 34, § 40, p. 311—and said to his disciples, 'Give ye them to eat,' ver. 37, § ib. p. 312—and he enabled them to obey his command, ver. 41, § ib., p. 313.

NOTES.

sociated with death); and that by κοιμᾶσθαι is meant, 'is, as it were, asleep.' So Jno. xi. 11, § 58, 'Our friend Lazarus sleepeth.'

They laughed him to scorn. κατεγελων αυτου. 'They ridiculed him, [κατα, "intensive," γελαω, "I laugh."'] —Clarke.

25. Took her by the hand. Not as a form of raising any one, nor through courtesy, or more mediciorum, as many commentators say; but, as usual, to accompany the miracle with some act, as that of touching. So in ver. 29, p. 285, he touched the eyes of the blind men.

Mk. v. 41. Talitha cumi. This is the language which our Saviour commonly spoke. It is a mixture of Syriac and Chaldee, called Syro-Chaldaic. The proper translation is given by the evangelist, 'Damsel, arise.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. viii. 53. They know not the truth of what is, and of what will be, who look only to the weakness of nature, and not to the power of God.]

54, .5 rer. The word of Jesus is a life-giving word, and gives power to do what is commanded; but that life must be active, and manifest itself, in those to whom it is given.

56 rer. Jesus was not desirous of embittering his enemies by extraordinary manifestations of Divine power; and his followers should be less desirous of appealing to these, than of testifying to the truth by following his example, in love to God and love to man.

Matt. ix. 26.	Mark v. 43.	Luke viii. 56.
	straitly that no-man should-know it; and commanded that-something-should-be-given her to-eat.	that-they-should-tell no-man what was-done. [Ch. ix. 1, § xxxix. p. 294.]
26 And the fame hereof went-abroad into all that land.	[Ch. vi. 1, § xxxvii. p. 286.]

(G. 23.) Jesus being returned home, heals two blind men.

Matt. ix. 27—31.

27 And when-Jesus-departed παραγοντι thence, two blind men followed him, crying, 28 and saying, Thou-son of-David, have-mercy-on us. And when-he-was-come into the house, the blind men came to-him: and Jesus saith unto-them, Believe-ye that I-am-29 able to-do this? They-said unto-him, Yea, Lord. Then touched-he their eyes, saying, 30 According-to your faith be-it unto-you. And their eyes were-opened; and Jesus 31 straitly-charged ενεβριμησατο them, saying, See that no-man know it. But they, when-they-were-departed, spread-abroad his-fame διεφημισαν αυτον in all that country.

Dispossesses a dumb demoniac: the Pharisees again ascribe the miracle to Satan.†*

Matt. ix. 32—4.

32 As they-went-out, behold, they-brought to-him a-dumb man possessed-with-a-devil.
33 And when the devil was-cast-out, the dumb spake: and the multitudes marvelled, 34 saying, It-was-never so seen in Israel. But the Pharisees said, He-casteth-out devils through the prince εν τω αρχοντι of-the devils. [Ch. ix. 35, § xxxviii. p. 293.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. v. 43. charged them straitly—the same at the cleansing of the leper, ch. i. 43, § 21, p. 160, but with the like result, ver. 45, p. 161, as in the present case, Mt. ix. 26—see also immediately after, ver. 30, .1, supra—the hostility of the religious world was the more stirred up by such manifestations of Divine power, xii. 14, § 25, p. 197; 24, .6, § 31, p. 235; Jno. xii. 10, .1, § 81.

Mt. ix. 27. two blind men, &c.—see also at his passing through Jericho, ch. xx. 30, § 79.

Son of David—see on Lu. i. 32, § 2, p. 10; Is. xxxii. 1—4.

30. and their eyes were opened—he had before proved that he is one with Him 'that giveth breath unto the people upon it [the earth], and spirit to them that walk therein,' Is. xlii. 5. . . .—and now it was shewn that he it was of whom the Father had said, 'I the LORD have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, ... to open the blind eyes,' &c., ver. 6, 7.

see that no man know it—see on Mk. v. 43, supra.

32. dumb man possessed—'And he was casting out a devil, and it was dumb. And it came to pass, when the devil was gone out, the dumb spake; and the people wondered,' Lu. xi. 14, § 62.

33. never so seen in Israel—the Lord had given confirmation to the words of prophecy, with regard to what is yet to happen in Israel, when he will open the blind eyes and unstop the deaf ears, Is. xlii. 16, ... xliii. 1—13.

34. he casteth, &c.—so also Lu. xi. 15, § 62—at the healing of one blind and dumb, Mt. xii. 22—32, § 31, p. 234—'the vile person will speak villany, and his heart will work iniquity, to practise hypocrisy, and to utter error against the LORD, to make empty the soul of the hungry,' Is. xxxii. 6.

NOTES.

Mk. v. 43. No man should know it. He did not impose perpetual silence, but only for the present, to avoid the collecting of a multitude, and any political commotion. An additional reason may have been to prevent the dead being brought to him to be restored to life. His miracles were designed principally as proofs of his mission, and were not intended to alter the order of nature.

Something should be given her to eat. He had raised her by extraordinary power, but he willed that she should be sustained by ordinary means. So when the Saviour had risen, he gave evidence of his own resurrection by eating with his disciples, Jno. xxi. 1—13, § 97; Lu. xxiv. 41—.3, § 95.

Mt. ix. 27. Son of David. As that was one of the titles then ascribed by the Jews to the Messiah, the use of it was an unequivocal acknowledgment of Jesus's Messiahship. And that use must have been founded upon their reliance on the testimony of others who had seen his miracles.

29. According to your faith.—See on Mk. v. 34, NOTE, and on Lu. viii. 48, 'Ser. III.' p. 282. From our Lord's declaration to the blind men, we may learn, that only according as our faith is, so will God answer our prayers.

30. Their eyes were opened. A Hebrew idiom, neither remote nor inelegant, to denote, they received their sight.

33. It was never so seen in Israel. These words seem to refer not to this peculiar miracle only, which was wrought upon the demoniac; but to the four miracles recorded in this chapter, all which Christ had performed within the day.

34. Prince of the devils. That is, Baal-Zebub—see NOTE, Mt. xii. 24, § 31, p. 235.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. v. 43. Although Jesus may be pleased to work wondrously for us, in answer to prayer; this is not to make us neglect the ordinary means of sustenance. Thus Jesus, after raising the damsel to life, 'commanded that something should be given her to eat.'

Mt. ix. 27—.9. It is as recognising Jesus to be the promised Son of David, as pleading for mercy, which we know we need from him, and as believing in his power to give us spiritual light, that our eyes are truly opened.

[30, .1 ver. We are not to boast of having our eyes opened, but are to shew that we have been given eyes to see, by our judging aright of that which is seen, and walking uprightly according to the light of life.]

[32, .4 ver. When he made the dumb to speak, and when the multitudes were forced to utter his praise, the mercy of Jesus, in having commanded silence with regard to his miracles, became apparent, in the increased madness and guilt of his enemies.]

* Vol. I. Diss. iii. p. 217.

† Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. p. 339.

ADDENDA.

'A RULER OF THE SYNAGOGUE,' p. 279.

'The Jews had three courts of judicature:—

'I. The great Sanhedrim of seventy-one at Jerusalem.'

'II. Next, in cities large enough to produce one hundred and twenty men fit to bear office, the lesser Sanhedrim, or council of twenty-three judges. These possessed much power, extending to life and death in some cases; and are the councils mentioned in Mt. x. 17, § 39.—See the NOTE on Mt. v. 21, 22, § 19, p. 124, and ADDENDA, p. 129, 'The Council.'

III. Lastly, in the smallest towns, a court of three judges, who had only power of deciding in matters of less concernment; as thefts, damages, restitution, and other cases not capital. This court appertained to the synagogue, and was exercised by its rulers.

'A synagogue was only formed in a place where there were found ten men of leisure, Batalnim, chiefly students of the law, who were usually the elders of it. Of these ten men, three bare the magistracy; for every synagogue had Beth din shel sheloshah, a judicatory of three rulers, with the power of scourging for higher offences, Mk. xiii. 9, § 96; 2 Cor. xi. 24, ["Of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one."] (Thus Sanhedrim, c. 1, hal. 2, "scourging was by that bench of three.") These were properly named 'Αρχισυνάγωγοι, "rulers of the synagogue." The instruments of the judges kept in each synagogue were a rod, a whip, a trumpet, and a sandal.

'With respect to religious worship, the president or head of these was also the Αρχισυνάγωγος, Ἄρχων, or ruler, who regulated the public service; and other officers, as the angelus ecclesiæ, and the parnasim, pastors, or almoners, were probably chosen from the elders.

'Two observations arise from the above account, that merit attention in reading the commentators.

'The one; that though it be true that συνάγωγος imports, in its primary sense, any public assembly, yet that it is the usual Jewish synagogue, uniting in part the civil magistracy with the assembly for religious worship, that is constantly spoken of in the New Testament, unless the Beth midrash, or school for expounding the law in each city, ever partakes of that appellation.

'The other; that Dr. Hammond and Le Clerc are apparently mistaken in applying the name of Αρχισυνάγωγοι, at least solely, to the members of the lesser Sanhedrims, or courts of twenty-three judges, which are properly called councils; though it may be true, that they chiefly composed בתי המדרש the Beth midrash, or school of divinity, or of expositions of the law in each city. Thus Christ, when he disputed with the doctors in the temple, Lu. ii. 46, § 6, p. 41, is supposed to have argued in the lesser Sanhedrim held at the gate there.'

SECTION 37.*—(G. 24.)—JESUS PAYS A SECOND VISIT TO NAZARETH:† HIS FELLOW TOWNSMEN PERSIST IN THEIR UNBELIEF. Matt. xiii. 54—.8. Mark vi. 1—6.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Matt. xiii. 54. Mark vi. 1, 2. Jesus having come into his own country, teaches in the synagogue; the people are astonished at his wisdom and his mighty works.

—— xiii. 55—.7. —— vi. 3. They think of him as the carpenter, and carpenter's son; they speak of his mother Mary, and of his brethren and sisters, and are offended in him.

—— xiii. 57. —— vi. 4. Jesus says, that least of all in his own country, and among his own kindred, may the prophet expect to be favourably received.

Matt. xiii. 58. Mark vi. 5. The power of unbelief in preventing the reception of blessing.

—— —— vi. 6. Jesus, who had expressed admiration at the faith of the centurion, Mt. viii. 10, § 28, p. 219, is now given occasion to marvel at the unbelief of his own countrymen.

(G. 24,) No. 37. Jesus pays a second visit to Nazareth: his fellow townsmen persist in their unbelief.

MATT. xiii. 54—.8.
[Ch. xiii. 53, § XXXIV. p. 264]

54 [b]And when-he-was-come into his-own country,[c] he-taught them in their synagogue,

MARK vi. 1—6.
[Ch. v. 43, § XXXVI. p. 285.]

[c]And he-went-out from-thence, and came 1 into his-own country; and his disciples follow him.[b]

[c]And when-the-sabbath-day-was-come, 2 he-began to-teach in the synagogue:

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. vi. 1. his own country—Capernaum, where Jesus usually resided, Mt. iv. 13, § 16, p. 107, is called 'his own city,' Mt. ix. 1, § 35, p. 274—but 'his own country,' 'where he had been brought up,' was Nazareth, Lu. iv. 16, 23, 4, § 18, pp. 102, .4.

his disciples follow him—there was danger in following him, considering the manner in which he had been dealt with in Nazareth, Lu. iv. 28, .9, § 15, p. 105—see also Mt. xi. 8—16, § 58.

2. when the sabbath, &c.—'As his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the sabbath day,' &c., Lu. iv. 16—21, § 15, pp. 102—.4.

NOTES.

Mt. xiii. 54. Into his own country. That is, into Nazareth; the place of his conception and education, in opposition to Capernaum, where he usually abode after the commencement of his public ministry.

Mk. vi. 2. Began to teach, &c. The same, Mt. ix. 35, § 38, p. 2.. —See Mt. iv. 23, § 18, p. 115.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. vi. 1. Let us follow the example of our Lord, in going to our own countrymen, as well as to strangers, with the words of life, notwithstanding we may have met, and are still likely to meet, with greater discouragement from the former than from the latter.

* Sections XXXVII., XXXVIII., make one Lesson (Lesson XXXVII.) in the System of Graduated Simultaneous Instruction.
† Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. p. 339.

MY SON, KEEP THY FATHER'S COMMANDMENT, AND FORSAKE NOT THE LAW OF THY MOTHER: BIND THEM CONTINUALLY UPON THINE HEART, AND TIE THEM ABOUT THY NECK.—Prov. vi. 20, 1.

MATT. xiii. 55—.7.
insomuch-that they were-astonished,
and said, Whence hath this man

this wisdom, and these mighty-works?

55 Is not this the carpenter's son?
a is-not his mother-called Mary?
and his brethren, James, and Joses,*
and Simon, and Judas?
56 And his sisters, are-they not all with us?
Whence then hath this man all these things?
57 And they-were-offended in him.
But Jesus said unto-them, A-prophet is not without-honour ατιμος, save in his-own

MARK vi. 3, 4.
and many hearing him were-astonished, saying, From-whence hath this man these things?
and what wisdom is this which is-given unto-him, that even such mighty-works are-wrought by his hands?
Is not this the carpenter,d 3
the son of-Mary,
the brother of-James, and Joses, and of-Juda, and Simon?
and are not his sisters here with us?

And they-were-offended at him.
But Jesus said unto-them, A-prophet is 4 not without-honour ατιμος, but in his-own

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. vi. 2. were astonished—In his visit recorded by Luke, 'all bare him witness, and wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth,' Lu. iv. 22, § 15, p. 104.

From whence, &c.—He had before told them from whence: 'The Spirit of the Lord is upon me,' &c., Lu. iv. 18, § ib. p. 102; but in them was fulfilled the prophecy of Isaiah, vi. 9, 10. . . . 'By hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand'—Mt. xiii. 14, .5, § 32, p. 245.

wisdom—He was himself the power of God, and 'the wisdom of God'—'Where is the wise? where is the scribe? where is the disputer of this world? hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world?' 1 Co. i. 20—'Howbeit we speak wisdom among them that are perfect: yet not the wisdom of this world, nor of the princes of this world, that come to nought: 7, but we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom, which God ordained before the world unto our glory: 8, which none of the princes of this world knew: for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory,' ii. 6—8.

mighty works—and all things, 'whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him, and for him,' Col. i. 16—but 'Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the LORD revealed?' Is. liii. 1.

3. Is not this the carpenter—'the carpenter's son,' Mt. xiii. 55—four carpenters are 'to cast out the horns of the Gentiles, which lifted up their horn over the land of Judah to scatter it,' Zec. i. 20, .1—Paul, the great apostle of the Gentiles, at Corinth, unto which place especially he was an apostle, ('If I be not an apostle unto others, yet doubtless I am to you: for the seal of mine apostleship are ye in the Lord,' 1 Co. ix. 2,) wrought with Aquila at the craft or occupation of tent-making, Ac. xviii. 1—3.

Mt. xiii. 55. called Mary—the Lord may have dealt bitterly with her as with Naomi, who, because of this, claimed to be called 'Mara,' Ru. i. 20—his being the son of a woman rightly called by that name seems to have been reckoned a reproach to Jesus—see on Lu. i. 27, § 2, p. 9.

Mk. vi. 3. the brother of James, &c.—'neither did his brethren believe in him,' Jno. vii. 5, § 54—they even attempted to interrupt him in the exercise of his ministry, Mk. iii. 21, 31, § 30, p. 233, § 31, p. 240.

offended at him—accomplishing the prediction by Simeon, 'Behold, this child is set for the fall,' &c. . . . 'and for a sign which shall be spoken against,' Lu. ii. 34, § 4, p. 26—their neighbourhood, or near relationship, could not profit them as being offended in him, Mt. xi. 6, § 29, p. 223; xii. 46—50, § 31, p. 240.

4. A prophet, &c.—see Lu. iv. 24, § 15, p. 104.

NOTES.

[Mk. vi. 2. Whence hath this man these things? The sense is, 'Whence have these talents fallen to the lot of this man; and what is this wisdom given him from above; insomuch that [not only he teaches us the way of salvation, but] even such miracles [as we have heard related] are performed by him?' Δια των χειρων, by the hands, &c., Hebraism (like ידי ב) by the hand, for δι' αὐτου.—Bloomfield.]

3. Is not this the carpenter. The word translated 'carpenter,' signifies worker in iron, wood, or stone, that is, an artificer; but when used alone, without an adjective, in Scripture, it uniformly signifies a carpenter. That our Lord should have been taught some handicraft occupation the Jewish law required. And what was so likely as that he should be brought up to the trade of his reputed father; which, though lowly, was not degrading? Their most distinguished Rabbia exercised a trade.—Comp. Jno. vi. 42, § 43, p. 330.

Mt. xiii. 55. And his brethren, James, and Joses, &c. —See ADDENDA, p. 290, 'On the brethren of our Lord.'

56. Whence then hath this man all these things? —See on Mk. vi. 2, supra.

57. They were offended in him. εσκανδαλιζοντο εν αὐτῳ. They were scandalized at him. This is one of the few instances in which the English verb scandalize expresses better the sense of the Greek than any other in the language. To be scandalized, is to be offended on account of something supposed criminal or irreligious. This was the case here. Their knowledge of the meanness of our Lord's birth and education, made them consider him as guilty of an impious usurpation, in assuming the character of a prophet, much more in aspiring to the title of the Messiah.

A prophet is not without honour, &c. A proverbial sentiment, importing, that 'one whose endowments

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

2—4 ver. The natural man seeks to account for spiritual things by mere natural causes; and, in place of being convinced, he is offended with that which proves that He who was called Jesus of Nazareth is indeed 'the Sent of the Father.'

3 ver. Let us admire the condescension of Jesus, who, although the great Architect that built the heavens and the earth, yet condescended to work with his hands at the homely occupation of a carpenter. Those who despise the ministry of poor mechanics should remember that they despise the very condition of life in which our Lord appeared, and that had they lived at that time, their portion would probably have been with unbelievers.

Let us beware of despising men because of the seeming mean condition of themselves or their relations. The Son of God, who is 'KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS,' appeared as the son of Mary, and as having brethren and sisters among the poor inhabitants of a poor Galilean village. Most true it is, that he who 'despiseth the poor, reproacheth his Maker.'

[4 ver. Let us seek to divest ourselves of prejudice; and let us endeavour to judge impartially with re-

* See ADDENDA, p. 290, 'On the brethren of our Lord.'

MATT. xiii. 58.	MARK vi. 5, 6.
country,[e] and in his own house.	[e] and among his own kin, and in his own house.[f]
58 [f]And he did not many mighty works there because of their unbelief.[g]	And he could there do no mighty work, 5
[Ch. xiv. 1, § xl. p. 304.]	[g] save that he laid his hands upon a few sick ἀρρωστοις folk, and healed them. And he marvelled because of their unbelief. 6

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. vi. 4. among his own kin.—'his friends went out to lay hold on him: for they said, He is beside himself,' ch. iii. 21, § 30, p. 233—Jesus, although 'the truth' itself, Jno. xiv. 6, § 87, suffered the punishment appointed to a false prophet, and might well speak of the wounds wherewith he was wounded in the house of his friends: 'And one shall say unto him, What are these wounds in thine hands? Then he shall answer, Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends,' Zec. xiii. 6.

5, 6. because of their unbelief.—He was 'grieved for the hardness of their hearts,' ch. iii. 5, § 25, p. 197—At the curing of the lunatic, he lamented the unbelief of his disciples, which had prevented their effecting that cure, Mt. xvii. 16—20, § 51.

NOTES.

enable him to instruct others is in general nowhere so little held in honour as among his townsmen and immediate connexions.'

Mk. vi. 5. And he could there do no mighty work, &c. Our Saviour could not, not because he wanted power, but that the subjects of it were unbelieving, and therefore wanted the condition on which alone it was fit he should heal them. He could not, consistently with the rules on which he invariably acted in performing miracles, namely, to require faith in his Divine mission of those who sought them. It was neither fit nor convenient to perform any more works, since they were offended with what had already been done. Had he performed ever so many, their prejudices would have prevented any good effect they might otherwise have had.—See ADDENDA, p. 292.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

gard to those that are more nearly connected with us, and in comparing whom with ourselves, emulations and envies are most likely to arise. Let him that is spiritual seek the honour that cometh from God only. Let him be contented to be as his Lord.]

5, 6 ver. Unbelief not only robs God of the glory of what he hath done, but deprives us of the good he would do for us in the performance of his mighty works. Jesus gave the Nazarenes repeated opportunities of receiving blessing, but he would not multiply evidences of his Divine mission, which only gave occasion for increasing their guilt.

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICE.

NAZARETH, p. 286.

NAZARETH.—See Sect. vi. p. 43. Dr. Wilson, in his work, 'The Lands of the Bible Visited and Described,' page 91, Vol. II., says, 'At the foot of the hills of Nazareth, we overtook our luggage, which had come through the valley of Esdraelon, by the straight road from Jenin. We made the ascent of the hills together, keeping our seats on our horses the whole way. The road which we took is rough and winding. It was the one which lies furthest to the west. The other, which was to our right hand, follows the course of a deeper and more distinct gash in the hills, leading down from Nazareth itself. . . . . We passed close to the village of Yafa, or JAPHIA, near a cistern, where we found the villagers watering their flocks. This village is referred to, along with the two villages CHISLOTH-TABOR and DABERATH, in Joshua, xix. 12, in which it is said of the border of Zebulun, that it "turned from Sarid eastward toward the sunrising unto the border of Chisloth-tabor, and then goeth out to Daberath, and goeth up to Japhia;" a description remarkably correspondent with its present position. We had hitherto had no view of NAZARETH; but in a few minutes, when we had turned the shoulder of the hill, we found it to our left, ensconced in a lovely little dell or basin, surrounded on all sides by hills, to which we had not very far to descend, as it has itself a very considerable elevation. The view, as we went downwards, and approached the village, became very contracted in dimensions, though not certainly so in the interest of its associations. We had before us the very scene which would be most familiar to the Saviour during the greater part of his sojourn in this sinful world.

'NAZIRAH, or NAZARETH, stands on the western side of the basin in which it is situated. Though not so mean as some other villages in the country, there is nothing very striking in its appearance. The conventual buildings of the Franciscan monks, including the Latin church of the Annunciation, with their different enclosures surrounded by strong walls; the Casa Nuova, or house built by the convent for the accommodation of travellers; and the Muhammedan mosque, are the erections which principally attract the attention of the visiter.'—See Sect. ii. p. 14.

Dr. Richardson, describing the valley of Nazareth, says, 'It seems as if fifteen mountains met to form one enclosure for this delightful spot; they rise around it like the edge of a shell to guard it from intrusion. It is a rich and beautiful field in the midst of barren mountains.'

Dr. Robinson, in 'Biblical Researches,' Vol. III. p. 183, says, 'The houses stand on the lower part of the slope of the western hill; which rises steep and high above them, and is crowned by a Wely called Neby Ismu'il. Towards the north the hills are less high; on the east and south they are low. In the south-east the basin contracts, and runs out narrow, and winding apparently to the great plain. Various roads pass out of the basin; on the north to Sefurieh and 'Akka; in the north-east, to Kefer Kenna and Tiberias; towards the east, to mount Tabor and Tiberias; and in the south-west, to Yafa and the plain of Esdraelon. The population—

Greeks	160	families, or 260	taxable men.
Greek Catholics .	60	— 130	—
Latin Ditto .	65	— 120	—
Maronites . . .	40	— 100	—
Muhammedans .	120	— 170	—
Total . . .	445	— 780	—

This implies about 3000 souls.

Dr. Wilson, in Vol. II., p. 92, says, 'We left our lodgings in an early part of the day, that without disturbance or interruption we might engage in social worship and communion on the top of the hill, on the western flank of which the village is principally situated. We were sorry to observe the villagers, three-fourths of whom are professing Christians, of different denominations, paying very little regard to the sanctity of the sabbath. As far as we could see, it was marked only by the shutting of the shops. Many people were at work as masons. Several were engaged in cutting grass in the fields. Crowds of women, tittering, and laughing, and jesting, were filling their pitchers at what is called the "Fountain of the Virgin," to which they think it is particularly meritorious to repair for water. The children were heartily engaged in their every day amusements.'

MERCY AND TRUTH SHALL BE TO THEM THAT DEVISE GOOD.—Proverbs xiv. 22.
THE EYES OF THE LORD ARE IN EVERY PLACE, BEHOLDING THE EVIL, ETC.—Prov. xv. 3.

Dr. Robinson, in Biblical Res., says, Vol. III., p. 188: —'Later in summer the fountain dries up, and then water is brought from more distant fountains. The source itself is under the Greek church of the Annunciation, eight or ten rods further north; and thence the little stream is conducted by a rude aqueduct of stone, over which at last an arch is turned, where it pours its scanty waters into a sculptured marble trough, probably once a sarcophagus. The church is built over the source, at the spot where the Greeks say the Virgin was saluted by the angel Gabriel; it is very plain outside, but gaudy and tawdry within, and has a subterranean grotto arranged as a chapel.'

The same author continues, 'After breakfast I walked out alone to the top of the hill over Nazareth, where stands the neglected Wely of Neby Isma'il. Here, quite unexpectedly, a glorious prospect opened on the view. The air was perfectly clear and serene; and I shall never forget the impression I received, as the enchanting panorama burst suddenly upon me. There lay the magnificent plain of Esdraelon,* or at least all its western part; on the left was seen the round top of Tabor over the intervening hills, with portions of the Little Hermon and Gilboa, and the opposite mountains of Samaria, from Jenin westwards to the lower hills extending towards Carmel. Then came the long line of Carmel itself, with the convent of Elias on its northern end, and Haifa on the shore at its foot. In the west lay the Mediterranean, gleaming in the morning sun; seen first far in the south on the left of Carmel; then interrupted by that mountain; and again appearing on its right, so as to include the whole bay of 'Akka, and the coast stretching far north to a point north 10° west. 'Akka itself was not visible, being hidden by intervening hills. Below, on the north, was spread out another of the beautiful plains of northern Palestine, called el-Buttauf; it runs from east to west, and its waters are drained off westwards through a narrower valley, to the Kishon (el-Mukutta'), at the base of Carmel. On the southern border of this plain, the eye rested on a large village near the foot of an isolated hill, with a ruined castle on the top; this was Sefurieh, the ancient Sepphoris or Diocæsarea. Beyond the plain el-Buttauf, long ridges running from east to west rise one higher than another; until the mountains of Safed overtop them all, on which that place is seen, "a city set upon a hill." Further towards the right is a sea of hills and mountains, backed by the higher ones beyond the lake of Tiberias, and in the north-east by the majestic Hermon with its icy crown.

'Carmel presented itself in the west to great advantage, extending far out into the sea, and dipping his feet in the waters. The southern end of the proper ridge, as here seen, bore south 80° west, and the highest point south 86° west. Thence it declines gradually northwards, until at the convent, according to Schubert, it has an elevation of only 582 Paris feet above the adjacent sea. The same traveller estimates the highest point at 1200 feet, which seems to me relatively too high. The northern extremity bore north 58° west. Towards the south-east Carmel is connected with the mountains of Samaria, by the broad range of low wooded hills, separating the great plain of the more southern coast from that of Esdraelon. Here large trees of the walnut are said to be prevalent. The middle point of this connecting range bore south 64° west. The same appearance of bushes and trees is seen on many parts of Carmel, which thus presents a less naked aspect than the mountains of Judæa.

'Seating myself in the shade of the Wely, I remained for some hours upon this spot, lost in the contemplation of the wide prospect, and of the events connected with the scenes around. In the village below, the Saviour of the world had passed his childhood; and although we have few particulars of his life during those early years, yet there are certain features of nature which meet our eyes now, just as they once met his. He must often have visited the fountain near which we had pitched our tent; his feet must frequently have wandered over the adjacent hills; and his eyes doubtless have gazed upon the splendid prospect from this very spot. Here the Prince of Peace looked down upon the great plain, where the din of battle so oft had rolled and the garments of the warrior been dyed in blood; and he looked out too upon that sea, over which the swift ships were to bear the tidings of his salvation to nations and to continents then unknown. How has the moral aspect of things been changed! Battles and bloodshed have indeed not ceased to desolate this unhappy country, and gross darkness now covers its people; but from this region a light went forth, which has enlightened the world and unveiled new climes; and now the rays of that light begin to be reflected back from distant isles and continents, to illuminate anew the darkened land where it first sprung up."—Vol. III. p. 189—91.

'The Maronite church, which Dr. Clarke thinks was the one referred to at Luke iv. 29, (§ 15, p. 105,) stands quite in the south-west part of the town, under a precipice of the hill, which here breaks off in a perpendicular wall forty or fifty feet in height. There are several other similar precipices in the western hill, around the village. Some one of these, perhaps that by the Maronite church, may well have been the spot whither the Jews led Jesus, "unto the brow of the hill whereon their city was built, that they might cast him down headlong. But he passing through the midst of them went his way."

'The monks have chosen for the scene of this event the Mount of the Precipitation, so called; a precipice overlooking the plain of Esdraelon, nearly two miles south by east of Nazareth. Among all the legends that have been fastened on the Holy Land, I know of no one more clumsy than this; which presupposes, that in a popular and momentary tumult, they should have had the patience to lead off their victim to an hour's distance, in order to do what there was an equal facility for doing near at hand. Besides, the hill on which Nazareth stands is not a precipice overlooking the plain of Esdraelon; but it is the western hill, a good hour distant from that plain. Indeed, such is the intrinsic absurdity of the legend, that the monks themselves now-a-days, in order to avoid it, make the ancient Nazareth to have been near at hand on the same mountain. The good friars forget the dilemma into which they thus bring themselves; for if the ancient Nazareth lay near the precipice overhanging the plain, what becomes of the holy places now shewn in the present town?

'That precipice was doubtless selected, because it forms a striking object as seen from the plain; but the legend seems not to go further back than the time of the crusades. It is not mentioned by Antoninus Martyr, who particularly describes the holy places then shewn at Nazareth; nor by Adamnanus, nor St. Willibald, nor Sæwulf, who was here about A.D. 1103. But the crusaders cherished Nazareth, and raised it to a bishop's see; and then, apparently, this precipice was selected, as the brow of the mountain. Phocas first mentions it slightly in A.D. 1185, and then Brocardus more fully; and since their day it has been noticed by most travellers.

'From the days of our Saviour we hear no more of Nazareth, until Eusebius, in the fourth century, again describes it as a village, fifteen Roman miles eastward from Legio (Lejjun), and not far from Tabor. Epiphanius relates, in the same century, that until the time of Constantine Nazareth was inhabited only by Jews; from which at least it would appear, that Christians dwelt there in his day. It would seem, however, not then to have become a regular place of pilgrimage; for Jerome mentions it only incidentally, and makes Paula on her journey merely pass through it without stopping. Nor was it made a bishopric; for the name is not found in any of the ecclesiastical Notitiæ before the time of the crusades. Yet it must early have been visited by pilgrims; for towards the close of the sixth century, Antoninus describes in it the ancient synagogue and a church. Arculfus, a century later, found here two churches; one over the fountain, and the other covering the house where Mary had lived. St. Willibald, in the eighth century, mentions but one church. About A.D. 1103, Sæwulf describes the place as having been totally destroyed by the Saracens; though a noted monastery still served to mark the place of the Annunciation.

* 'Bounded by the picturesque mountains of Samaria, the "great plain," the battle field of the country both in ancient and modern times, and probably the real or typical site of the battle of Armageddon.'—Dr. Wilson, 'Lands of the Bible,' Vol. II., p. 93.

'After the crusaders had got possession of Jerusalem, the country of Galilee, extending from Tiberias to Haifa, was given by Godfrey of Bouillon as a fief to the noble leader Tancred. He immediately subdued Tiberias; administered the province with justice and equity; erected churches at Nazareth, Tiberias, and on mount Tabor, and richly endowed them; so that his memory was long cherished in this region. In the new ecclesiastical arrangements of the country, the see of Scythopolis, the former metropolitan seat of Palæstina Secunda, was transferred to Nazareth; which then first became a bishopric, and remains so nominally in the Greek church to the present day.* When this transfer took place, we are not informed; but it must have been at an early period; for in A.D. 1111 a strife already existed, between the bishop of Nazareth and the convent founded by the Benedictines of Cluguy on mount Tabor, respecting the jurisdiction of the bishop over the latter. The matter was adjusted by Gibelin, patriarch of Jerusalem, in an assembly of the bishops and clergy, with the consent of the king and barons, to the satisfaction of both parties. The consecration of the abbot and monks, and also of the larger church, was to depend only on the patriarch; while the bishop of Nazareth was to exercise all other episcopal rights over the convent.

'The fatal battle of Hattin, in A.D. 1187, was followed by the subjugation of almost the whole land by Saladin, and of Nazareth and Sepphoris among other places. At what time Nazareth again passed into the hands of the Christians is uncertain; but in A.D. 1229, king Louis of France made a pilgrimage from 'Akka thither, and to mount Tabor; and in A.D. 1263, the town of Nazareth and the noble church of the Annunciation, as also the church of the Transfiguration on mount Tabor, were laid in total ruins by the Sultan Bibars. Nazareth appears afterwards to have been neglected, and the church not to have been again built up until after several centuries; although the nominal succession of Latin bishops, or rather archbishops, was long continued in the Romish church. Brocardus, in the thirteenth century, says nothing of the state in which Nazareth then was; but writers of the fourteenth, describe it as a small village, with a church wholly in ruins, and a fountain; and make bitter complaint of the Muslim inhabitants.† In the fifteenth century, Nazareth seems hardly to have been visited by pilgrims. About the middle of the sixteenth, Belon describes here the chapel of the Annunciation as a grotto below ground, surrounded by the ruins of an ancient church; the village was inhabited only by Muhammedans.‡ Cotovicus, at the close of that century, confirms this account, describing the people as the worst he had seen; there being only two or three Christian inhabitants. The former church still lay in ruins. His party were here treated only with insult.§

'It was in A.D. 1620 that the Franciscan monks first obtained permission from the celebrated Fakr ed-Din, then master of this region, to take possession of the grotto, and rebuild the church in Nazareth, with which they naturally connected a monastery. The circumstances are fully related by Quaresmius, as they happened in his time; but the buildings appear not to have been completed for many years. Doubdan, some thirty years later, speaks of the place as a miserable village, almost ruined and deserted, with eight or ten monks residing there from the convent in Jerusalem.‖ Surius, a few years before, found in the village only four Maronite and two Greek families of Christians.¶ At the close of the century, Maundrell describes the monks as being shut up in their convent for fear of the Arabs. About A. D. 1720—30, the church and convent were repaired and enlarged. Since that day, the number of Christians in Nazareth has been greatly augmented; and the character of the place has undergone an entire change. Even in the time of Korte, there were here only one hundred and fifty families in all; but the Christian population is said to have increased greatly under the noted Sheikh Dhaher, of 'Akka, about the middle of the century.'

* Will. Tyr. xxii. 16. Jac. de Vitr. 56. p. 1077. Marinus Sanutus, p. 176. The present titular Greek bishop of Nazareth resides at Jerusalem—see Robinson, Vol. II. p. 90.

† 'According to Brocardus, the Saracens had endeavoured to fill up the fountain; and had polluted the ruined church as far as possible, by making it a receptacle for the dead bodies of asses, camels, cattle, and dogs.'

‡ Belon, Obs. Paris, 1588, p. 327. § Cotov. Itin. pp. 349, 50.—Comp. Sandys's Travels, p. 160.

‖ Quaresmius, Elucid. II. p. 837, seq. Doubdan, p. 569. ¶ Surius Pelerin, p. 305, seq.

 See Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xvii. pp. 108—34, 'On the brethren of Christ.'

ADDENDA.

ON THE BRETHREN OF OUR LORD, p. 287.

'At Jno. ii. 12, (§ 11, p. 78,) Mt. xii. 46, [Mk. iii. 31,] (§ 31, p. 240,) Lu. viii. 19, (§ 33, p. 262,) Jno. vii. 3, 5, 10, (§§ 54, 5,) Ac. i. 14, mention occurs of the brethren—οἱ ἀδελφοὶ—of our Lord; and Mt. xiii. 55, 6, [Mk. vi. 3,] (p. 287,) of his brethren and of his sisters both; and this at times, and on occasions, which synchronize with the beginning, with the middle, and with the very end of his ministry. The parties alluded to in all these instances were obviously persons, whether male or female, arrived at maturity. . . . What kind of relationship is thus implied, except the natural one in the ordinary sense of the term, it is not easy to say. The use of the term ἀνὴρ leads directly to that one conclusion. They could not be the children of any other Mary, distinct from the mother of our Lord—at least exclusively—because it is always Mary the mother of our Lord, and not any other Mary, who is mentioned along with them, who was obviously living with them, and making one of some family with them; which it is not probable she would make with any family but her own.

'It may be said, however, that these might be the children of Joseph, but by some former, or at least some different wife; in which case they might still be called the ἀδελφοὶ, or ἀδελφαὶ, of our Lord, and Mary might possibly be living with them. . . . If any such other wife of Joseph had once existed, still, before the commencement of our Saviour's ministry, that is, before Jno. ii. 12, at least, she must have been dead. It seems equally clear that Joseph himself was not then alive, any more than she. It would follow, therefore, that these sons and daughters, the fruit of a distinct marriage, were all older, instead of being all younger, than our Saviour.

'Mt. xiii. 55, Mk. vi. 3, (p. 287,) the names of these ἀδελφοὶ of our Lord are specified as follows: James and Joses, Simon and Jude, or Jude and Simon. Now Jno. vii. 5, (§ 54,) at a point of time which coincides with the third feast of Tabernacles, his ἀδελφοὶ, it is said, did not believe in him; and Mk. iii. 21, (§ 30, p. 233,) Mt. xii. 46, [Mk. iii. 31,] (§ 31, p. 240,) Lu. viii. 19, (§ 33, p. 262,)—all relating to a point of time one year earlier than the notice in St. John—implicitly confirm St. John. Yet Ac. i. 14,[a] they must have become believers after the resurrection, and before the descent of the Holy Ghost; and 1 Co. ix. 5,[b] they must have become, in due time, evangelists of Christianity itself. If then they continued unbelievers up to the time of the last passover, and yet were converted before the day of Pentecost ensuing, it is probable they were converted by the fact of the resurrection between those dates. It would be, consequently, in the unbelieving state that our Saviour, Jno. xix. 25–7, (§ 91,) committed his mother, in his dying moments, to the care, not of these his brethren, but of St. John. And this is the best reason why he might pass over them, even though they had been present. Not but that commentators, both ancient and modern, have supposed some relationship between the Virgin and St. John; which, if the fact of this relationship could be made out, might conspire to produce the same effect. The relationship in question is that of a nephew of the Virgin: Salome the mother of St. John, and Mary the mother of our Lord, being supposed to have been sisters. Be this, however, as it may, still with respect to the unbelief of our Lord's family, the gospel accounts are not inconsistent with each other. They all shew, either directly or by implication, that up to the close of his public ministry his brethren, or some at least who are called by that name, were not believers as yet; but none of them implies that they did not become so afterwards.

a "These all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication, with the women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren."

b "Have we not power to lead about a sister, a wife, as well as other apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?"

'Now, among those who, even in the lifetime of Christ, were not merely believers, but already disciples, and already apostles, of our Lord, Mt. x. 3, Mk. iii. 18, Lu. vi. 15, (§ 27, p. 207,) Ἰάκωβος ὁ τοῦ Ἁλφαίου is invariably mentioned as one: and if this James was James the first bishop of Jerusalem, then, Ga. i. 19, ("But other of the apostles saw I none, save James the Lord's brother.")—and even Joseph. Ant. xx. ix. 1—this James was undoubtedly known and denominated as the ἀδελφὸς τοῦ Κυρίου, or τοῦ Χριστοῦ. There was one, then, even in the lifetime of Christ, known as an ἀδελφός, or brother of Christ, who believed in him; and there were others, known by the same relation, who did not believe in him.

'Now, according to the Hebrew idiom, the relation of son is extended to every direct remove, however distant, from the original head; and, on the same principle, the relation of brother or sister to every collateral, equally remote. In proof of this idiom, the very subject under discussion supplies a case in point. Mt. xxvii. 56, Mk. xv. 40. (§ 92,) xvi. 1, (§ 93,) Lu. xxiv. 10, (ib. :) the Mary there spoken of is described as Mary the mother of James; concerning which James, I may take it for granted, he is James the apostle, the son of Alphæus. But in the parallel place of Jno. xix. 25, (§ 91,) she is described as the ἀδελφὴ or sister of Mary the mother of Jesus; from both which descriptions we may argue as follows—

'If this Mary was really the sister of the Virgin, their children would be simply cousins; and, consequently, James, the son of this Mary, could not be really the brother of Jesus, the son of the other Mary: and therefore ἀδελφὸς τοῦ Κυρίου, as applied to him, cannot mean the brother of the Lord. But if she was not really the sister of Mary, then, ἡ ἀδελφὴ τῆς μητρὸς αὐτοῦ, as applied to her, does not mean the sister of his mother. In either case it will follow that ἀδελφὸς, or ἀδελφὴ, do not strictly denote the relation of a brother or a sister, but at the utmost of a male or a female cousin. The term therefore in a given instance, agreeably to the Jewish usage, may imply no more than this. Nor is it possible even partially to escape this conclusion, except by contending that this Mary was really the sister of the Virgin, and really the wife of Joseph; in which case two uterine sisters must have both borne the name of Mary; must have both been married to Joseph; and have been living in marriage with him at the same time; which is, I think, directly repugnant to Le. xviii. 18, and Joseph himself must have borne the other name of Alphæus. All these suppositions are very incredible, and open to the greatest objections. Besides which, Mary is called in the same passage, Jno. xix. 25, (§ 91,) ἡ τοῦ Κλωπᾶ, which must be understood with the ellipsis of γυνὴ, agreeably to the Latin idiom—Agrippina Germanici, Plin. Ep. iii. 5—Agrippina Germanici, Plin. H. N. vii. 11—Antonia Drusi, ib. vii. 18—Verania Pisonis, Plin. Ep. ii. xx.—in all which there is the same ellipsis of uxor. So common is this ellipsis, both in Latin and in Greek, that Eckhel, vi. 259, considers it a great singularity to find the word γυνὴ expressed on some of the coins of Agrippina the younger, consort of Claudius. Now Cleopas, if Hegesippus (Eus. E. H. iii. 11) is to be believed, was himself the brother of Joseph. But, Lev. xviii. 16, except in the case provided by the law, to marry with the wife of a brother, even after his death, (Jos. Ant. Jud. xvii. xiii. 1,) was forbidden. δύο ἀδελφὰς ἄγεσθαι τὸν αὐτὸν ὁμοῦ ἀπέρησεν, οὐδ' ἂν τὴν αὐτὴν, οὔτ' ἐν ὑφεσεῖ τὸν αὐτὸν ὄντα ἀπέρησεν, κἂν τὴν τῆς ἤδη προάγματον ἀπεκομένος (Philo. ii. 303, l. 44, De Special. Legibus.)

'We are at liberty, then, to assume that the name of ἀδελφὸς, among the Jews, might be applied indifferently to the relation of brother, or to the relation of cousin. Hence, it may be so applied, Mt. xiii. 55, and Mk. vi. 3, (p. 267:) that is, some of the persons there mentioned by name may be strictly the brethren, and the rest may be merely the cousins, of our Lord. But how are we to discriminate them asunder? I observe that the two first are called James and Joses; the two last Simon and Jude, or Jude and Simon. I observe also, and it is a critical observation, that Mary, the ἀδελφὴ or cousin of the Virgin, who is called, Mk. xvi. 1, and Lu. xxiv. 10, (§ 93,) Mary the mother of James, is called, Mt. xxvii. 56, and Mk. xv. 40. 7, (§ 92,) Mary the mother of James and Joses. It is an obvious and natural inference that this James and this Joses, who are here described as the children of Mary, are the same James and the same Joses who were described above, Mt. xiii. 55, Mk. vi. 3, as among the ἀδελφοὶ of our Lord. I observe, too, that Mary is never called the mother of Simon and Jude, or of Jude and Simon; and, therefore, I cannot assume these were her children also. One of our Saviour's apostles, besides Judas Iscariot, was certainly called Jude, Jno. xiv. 22, (§ 87.) Lu. vi. 16, (§ 27, p. 207,) Ac. i. 13, the same who, Mt. x. 3, Mk. iii. 18, (§ 27,) is also called Lebbæus, or Thaddæus; and whom Lu. vi. 16, ib., Ac. i. 13, twice describes by a certain relation to James, which his own Epistle, Jude 1, proves to be rightly pronounced the relation of brother. This Jude, then, as well as James, must have been a son of Alphæus; but this Jude is never called, like James, a son of Mary, or consequently a brother, in any sense, of our Lord. I infer that he was no such son of Mary, though he might be the son of Alphæus; and I assign thereby a reason which no commentator, so far as I know, has yet been able satisfactorily to do, why he should call himself the brother of James, but not the brother of Christ.* Alphæus, whosoever

* On this we may remark—A higher relationship than that according to the flesh was, more especially after his resurrection, known to subsist between Christ and his disciples. Then was he 'declared to be the Son of God with power,' Rom. i. 4. He said unto Mary Magdalene, 'I ascend unto my Father, and your Father,' Jno. xx. 17, (§ 53;) and speaking of the disciples generally, he said, 'Go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall they see me,' Mt. xxviii. 10, (§ 95.) He had, indeed, during his personal ministry, distinctly declared, 'My mother and my brethren are these which hear the word of God, and do it,' Lu. viii. 21, (§ 33, p. 262;) but it was not until the promised outpouring of the Spirit, consequent upon the resurrection and ascension of our Lord, that his words appear to have been truly understood. Up to that point we hear of the mother and brethren of Jesus, Ac. i. 14, but thereafter the disunction appears to have been greatly lost sight of, so that even his mother is never once mentioned. The disciples seem then to have said, 'He died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again. Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh: yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more,' 2 Co v. 15, 16. They knew him no more according to earthly relationship, because they knew him to be in a higher sense brother to them all.

It is true, that Paul, when vindicating himself and his doctrine against those who were prone to trust in he was, was married to two wives; one, the mother of Jude the apostle—the other, Mary, the cousin of the Virgin, and mother of James and Joses, and, consequently, ἀδελφοί of Christ.

THE HIGHWAY OF THE UPRIGHT IS TO DEPART FROM EVIL: HE THAT KEEPETH HIS WAY PRESERVETH HIS SOUL.—Prov. xvi. 17. BETTER IT IS TO BE OF AN HUMBLE SPIRIT WITH THE LOWLY, THAN TO DIVIDE THE SPOIL WITH THE PROUD.—Prov. xvi. 19.

'That Alphæus was no uncommon name, among the Jews, may be collected from Mk. ii. 14, (§ 22, p. 167,) where Levi is called the son of Alphæus—unless, what is not probable, this Levi also (in other words, St. Matthew the apostle,) was the brother of James and Jude. Hence, if Alphæus is not another name for Cleopas, which also, Lu. vi. 15, (§ 27, p. 207,) comp. with ch. xxiv. 18, (§ 94,) shews not to be probable, at the time of our Lord's crucifixion, when, Jno. xix. 25, (§ 91,) this Mary is called the wife of Cleopas, Alphæus was dead; and Mary also had been twice married, once to Alphæus, and again to Cleopas. Nor is it unlikely that the marriage at Cana of Galilee, Jno. ii. 1, (§ 11, p. 76,) only three years before, ch. xix. 25, (§ 91,) was this very marriage of Cleopas and Mary; especially if Mary was the sister or cousin of the Virgin, and Cleopas the brother or cousin of Joseph; for both our Lord and his mother were present at it—which proves it was the marriage of relations—and St. John, who alone mentions this marriage, mentions also alone the consequent relation of Mary to Cleopas.

'If now Mary, the mother of James and Joses, was married to Alphæus about the same time when Mary the Virgin was espoused to Joseph; the apostle James would be about the same age with our Saviour; as we may presume that all or most of his apostles were, at the time when he entered on his ministry. Nor is there any reason to suppose the apostle Jude would be much older or much younger than James. It will follow, however, that this Jude, the brother of James, the disciple and apostle of our Lord, as well as he, is a different person from Jude, who is mentioned along with Simon, as one of the other two ἀδελφοί or brethren of Christ. He could not be one of that number, and not a son of Mary, the cousin of the Virgin, and yet a believer in, and an apostle of, Christ. For the same reason, neither can the other, Simon, be the same with that Simon, also an apostle, who is denominated in every catalogue of the apostles as Simon the Cananite, or Simon the Zealot. . . . .

'Those, who are called, Mt. xiii. 56, Mk. vi. 3, (p. 287,) the sisters of our Lord, might be either his sisters, or merely his cousins, as they were the children of Mary the Virgin, or of Mary the mother of James. But I incline to the latter supposition; because, at the time of this visit to Nazareth, these ἀδελφαί are said all to be there, i.e., living there; but no such thing is implied of the ἀδελφοί also; and in fact, they who are called by this name, Mk. iii. 21, (§ 30, p. 233,) and iii. 31, (§ 31, p. 240,) only a day or two before this visit, are seen to have been in Capernaum; and if we comp. Jno. vii. 3, (§ 54,) the scene of which is Capernaum, they were actually settled there, and the mother of our Lord was living with them. This, then, is a strong proof of the distinctness of families; that those who are called the ἀδελφοί of our Lord, with his mother, were living in Capernaum, at the very time when those, who are called his ἀδελφαί, were living without her at Nazareth. And it is in unison with this distinctness that, Jno. ii. 12, (§ 11, p. 78,) though our Lord, his mother, and his brethren, are all said to have gone down to Capernaum, his sisters are not. Mary the wife of Cleopas, and her husband, might possibly be inhabitants of Nazareth: the latter in particular, if he was a kinsman of Joseph, might even be a native of it. His wife, on the contrary, might have been a native, before her marriage with him, and an inhabitant of Cana; and that might be the reason why, though Cleopas lived at Nazareth, their marriage was celebrated there. It was the custom of the Jews to celebrate a marriage among, and with, rather the friends of the female, than those of the male.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xvii. p. 111—21, 133, ..4.

'OF THEIR UNBELIEF.'—Sect. xxxvii. p. 288.

Unbelief is either negative or positive. Negative unbelief belongs to such as have not heard the gospel: and so heathens are called unbelievers, or infidels, 1 Co. vi. 6, ('But brother goeth to law with brother, and that before the unbelievers?') 2 Co. vi. 14, ('Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness?') Positive unbelief is the case of those unbelievers, who, though they hear the gospel, and profess to regard it, yet believe not with their heart the record of God, offering his Son, and whole salvation, to them in particular. Unbelief is either with respect to a particular declaration of God; as when Zacharias discredited God's promise of a son to him, Lu. i. 20, § 1, p. 5; or universal, with respect to the whole declarations of God. It is either partial, importing some degree of distrust, Mk. ix. 24, ('And straightway the father of the child cried out, and said with tears, Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief;') or total, where there is no trust at all, 1 Ti. i. 13, ('Who was before a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and injurious: but I obtained mercy, because I did it ignorantly in unbelief.') The Jews who came out of Egypt could not enter into Canaan because of unbelief; on account of their distrusting God's power and kindness, and of his promise to bring them in; and for their rebellion and murmuring, it was inconsistent with the Divine honour and purpose to admit them, He. iii. 19, ('So we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief.') Christ could not do many mighty works in his own country, because of their unbelief: their distrust and contempt of his miracles rendered them unfit subjects to have miracles wrought upon or among them, Mk. vi. 5, 6. The apostles' distrust of Christ's promise of enabling them to cast out devils rendered them incapable to cast one out, Mt. xvii. 16—20, § 51; and Peter's distrust of his Master's power occasioned his sinking into the water, Mt. xiv. 30, .1, § 41, p. 320. Paul was forgiven his blasphemy and persecution of the saints, as he did it ignorantly and in unbelief, before he knew the truth concerning Jesus, or felt the drawings of his Spirit, 1 Ti. i. 13. But the case of those is indeed evil who, after having had the truth revealed to them, indulge in an evil heart of unbelief.

He. iii. 12, 'Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God.'

1 Jno. v. 10, .1, 'He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself: he that believeth not God hath made him a liar; because he believeth not the record that God gave of his Son. 11, And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son.'

He. x. 26—31, 'For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, 27, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries. 28, He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses: 29, of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace? 30, For we know him that hath said, Vengeance belongeth unto me, I will recompense, saith the Lord. And again, The Lord shall judge his people. 31, It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.'

the flesh, speaks of 'James the Lord's brother,' Ga. i. 19—conceding, it may be, to James, a title claimed for him by those Judaizing teachers with whom the apostle of the Gentiles had so strongly to contend. But it is to be observed, that James, in his Epistle, takes to himself no such title. He calls himself simply, refrains from claiming any distinction on account of his being the brother of Christ according to the flesh. It was enough that he should call himself 'the servant of Jesus Christ, and brother of James,' ver. 1. The latter designation may have been needful to distinguish him from others of the same name.

REBELLION IS AS THE SIN OF WITCHCRAFT, AND STUBBORNNESS IS AS INIQUITY AND IDOLATRY.—1 Sam. xv. 23.

IF A MAN THINK HIMSELF TO BE SOMETHING, WHEN HE IS NOTHING, HE DECEIVETH HIMSELF.—Gal. vi. 3.

SECTION 38.—(G. 25.)—JESUS' THIRD GENERAL CIRCUIT OF GALILEE.*

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Matt. ix. 35. Mark vi. 6. Jesus goes about all the cities and villages, teaching in the places set apart for religious instruction, and also more publicly proclaiming the good news of the kingdom; and accompanying the word with the evidence of Divine power, in conferring temporal blessing, by 'healing every sickness and every disease among the people.'

No. 38. See Line from Nazareth going through Galilee.

Matt. ix. 35.	Mark vi. 6.
[Ver. 34, § xxxvi. p. 285.]
35 And Jesus went-about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of-the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease μαλακιαν among the people.	And he-went-round-about κυκλῳ the villages, teaching. 6

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. ix. 35. went about &c.—Jesus is supposed to have already made two circuits of Galilee; the first, ch. iv. 23, § 18, p. 115; the second, having the twelve with him, and certain women, which ministered to him of their substance, Lu. viii. 1—3, § 30, p. 232.

teaching, &c.—expounding the Scriptures, as in the synagogue at Nazareth, Lu. iv. 14—27, § 15, p. 102.

preaching, &c.—as to the multitudes by the sea of Galilee, ch. xiii. § 32, p. 242.

gospel of the kingdom—' To you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ,' &c., 2 Th. i. 7—10.

healing, &c.—the apostles received commandment to do the same, ch. x. 8, § 39, p. 296—see also the promise, Mk. xvi. 17, .8, § 98—we are to do good unto all men, as we have opportunity, Ga. vi. 10—To shew kindness to the afflicted, is one of the most essential parts of pure and undefiled religion, Ja. i. 27.

NOTES.

Mt. ix. 35. Went about all the cities, &c. This was Jesus' third general circuit.

Teaching in their synagogues. The office of reading or expounding the law, and of admonishing, was not always performed by ministers appointed for the purpose, but might be done by any person of talent and respectability, with leave from the ἀρχισυνάγωγος, the chief teacher or scribe of the place.

Preaching the gospel of the kingdom. The kingdom was about to be proclaimed for the last time before the enthronement of the King, the Son of God, upon the holy mount—comp. Mt. xvi. 28, § 50; xvii. 1—5, § 51; 2 Pe. i. 16—.8.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. ix. 35. Having begun at home, Jesus went abroad over the whole country, through villages as well as cities, 'teaching in their synagogues,' as well as proclaiming more publicly, the good news of the kingdom; and at the same time that he was thus engaged in benefiting the souls of men, he was equally attentive to their bodies, 'healing every sickness and every disease among the people.' In all this diversity of occupation, there was the most perfect unity of purpose. He gave an example of his own great law of love. Let us be followers of Him of whom it was most truly said, 'He went about doing good.'

SECTION 39.—(G 26.)—THE TWELVE APOSTLES, HAVING FIRST RECEIVED A CHARGE FROM JESUS, AND POWER TO WORK MIRACLES OF A CERTAIN KIND, ARE SENT OUT IN COMPANIES OF TWO AND TWO, TO TEACH AND TO PREACH IN HIS NAME. Matt. ix. 36—.8; x. 1, 5—xi. 1. Mark vi. 7—13. Luke ix. 1—6.—CAPERNAUM.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. ix. 36—.8. Jesus directs his disciples to pray that labourers may be sent into the harvest.

— x. 1, 5—.8. Mk. vi. 7. Lu. ix. 1, 2. Power given to the twelve disciples; they are sent forth to preach and heal.

— x. 9, 10. — vi. 8, 9. — ix. 3. Provision for their journey.

— x. 11. — vi. 10. — ix. 4. With whom they are to lodge.

— x. 12, .3. ——— ——— Not to enter a house, but in the spirit of peace.

— x. 14, .5. — vi. 11. — ix. 5. Not to take even the dust from the streets of those who refuse to receive them and their testimony.

— x. 16—.8. The treatment they are to expect from men.

— x. 19, 20. To trust God for their defence.

— x. 21, .2. To expect persecution from their nearest relatives, and hatred from all.

— x. 23. Not to court, but rather avoid, persecution.

— x. 24, .5. May expect to meet with the same reproach as their Master.

Mt. x. 26, .7. Seeing that all will be brought to light, they are boldly to proclaim the truth.

— x. 28—31. As knowing their Father's omnipotence and omniscience, and tender regard for them, they are not to fear men.

— x. 32, .3. Only those who confess Jesus will be confessed by him before the Father.

— x. 34—.6. The dissensions in families the truth may be expected to occasion.

— x. 37—.9. No earthly attachment must be allowed to interfere with our union to Christ.

— x. 40. The kindness shewn to his messengers, Jesus regards as rendered to himself.

— x. 41. He who receives the prophet, is to share the prophet's reward.

— x. 42. The smallest kindness shewn to the least disciple, as such, will not fail of reward.

——— Mk. vi. 12, .3. Lu. ix. 6. The apostles go forth preaching, &c.

Mt. xi. 1. Jesus also departs to teach and to preach in their cities.

* For the immediate motive, see Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. p. 340.

UNTO THEE LIFT I UP MINE EYES, O THOU THAT DWELLEST IN THE HEAVENS.—Psalm cxxiii. 1.
OUR HELP IS IN THE NAME OF THE LORD, WHO MADE HEAVEN AND EARTH.—Psalm cxxiv. 8.

(G. 26,) No 39. The twelve apostles are sent out in companies of two and two. Jesus departs also on his second partial circuit.—From Capernaum.

Matt. ix. 36—8; x. 1, 5—xi. 1.	Mark vi. 7—13.	Luke ix. 1—6.
36 [a] But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on περι them, because they fainted εκλελυμενοι, and were scattered abroad ερριμμενοι, as 37 sheep having no shepherd. Then saith he unto his disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; 38 pray ye δεηθητε therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth εκβαλῃ labourers into his harvest.		[Ch. viii. 56, § xxxvi. p. 285.]
Ch. x. 1 And when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power [b] εξουσιαν	7 And he called unto him the twelve,	1 Then he called his twelve disciples together, and gave them power δυναμιν [b] and authority εξουσιαν

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. ix. 36. moved with compassion—this Jesus manifested by providing that the people should be healed and taught by his disciples throughout many localities, ch. x. 7, 8, 40—see on Mk. i. 41, § 21, p. 100 as sheep, &c.—the Lord directed Moses to set Joshua over the congregation—'that the congregation of the Lord be not as sheep which have no shepherd,' Nu. xxvii. 15—8—the prophet Micaiah saw 'all Israel scattered upon the hills, as sheep that have not a shepherd,' &c., 1 Ki. xxii. 17—'All we like sheep have gone astray,' Is. liii. 6. . . .—'And they were scattered, because there is no shepherd,' &c., Eze. xxxiv. 5, 6. . . .—The diviners have seen a lie, and have told false dreams; they comfort in vain: therefore they went their way as a flock, they were troubled, because there was no shepherd,' Zec. x. 2—'Ye were as sheep going astray; but are now returned unto the Shepherd and Bishop of your souls,' 1 Pe. i. 1; ii. 25.

37. the harvest, &c.—'The fields . . . are white already to harvest,' Jno. iv. 35, § 13, p. 95—the former dispensation was near its close, and the fruits thereof were about to be required—see the parable of the vineyard let out to husbandmen, Mt. xxi. 33—46, § 84.

38 pray ye therefore—they were commanded to ask of God the accomplishment of that work to which themselves had been called, Jno. iv. 38, § 13, p. 96.

send forth—'Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves,' ch. x. 16, p. 298—'As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you,' Jno. xx. 21, § 96—see their great commission, Mt. xxviii. 16—20, § 96—on the great predicted sending forth of the word, see Ps. lxviii. 11; Rev. xiv. 6, 7.

x. 1. twelve—Moses sent twelve men of the twelve tribes of Israel, to search the land, and to bring of the fruits thereof, Nu. xiii. 1—20—comp. Rev. xxi. 12, 14.

NOTES.

Mt. ix. 36. And were scattered abroad, &c. 'Exposed to continual danger, having no pastor after God's own heart.'

37. The harvest truly is plenteous, &c. Another beautiful image. A waving field of golden grain invites many reapers, and demands haste. By the harvest, here, he meant that the multitude of people that flocked to his ministry was great. The people expected the Messiah. Few were engaged in instructing the multitude. He directed the disciples, therefore, to pray to the Lord of the harvest.

38. Labourers into his harvest. A minister of Christ is represented as a day-labourer; he comes into the harvest, not to become lord of it, not to live on the labour of others, but to work, and labour his day. Though the work may be very severe, yet the wages that he will receive will abundantly recompense him; and the day, though hot, is but a short one.

[x. 1. His twelve disciples. Twelve was the original number of apostles ordained, as recorded Mk. iii. 14, 5, § 27, p. 206, 'that he might send them forth to preach, and to have power to heal sicknesses, and to cast out devils.' They were ambassadors of Christ to the twelve tribes of Israel. To this number Matthias was afterwards added, to supply the place of Judas, Ac. i. 26. And Paul was afterwards especially called to be an apostle to the Gentiles, Rom. i. 1; xi. 13; 1 Co. xv. 8, 9; Ga. i. 1. So that there were in all fourteen apostles.]

He gave them power. This is the grand distinction between the miraculous powers of Christ and those

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mt. ix 36. Jesus, now that he is exalted as our High Priest in heaven, hath not ceased to have compassion upon the multitudes that are scattered abroad 'as sheep having no shepherd;' and he desires that the same compassion for them that are ignorant and out of the way should be felt and manifested, prayerfully, by the members of his body upon earth.]

37, 38 ver. The Lord gives his people to discern their need of the blessing he intends to bestow, and their dependence upon his grace for its bestowment.

38 ver. We are earnestly to desire that the work of God may go forward, whether by the instrumentality of ourselves or by others.

[We are not to attempt to accomplish that by our own strength, which can only be done by the power of God; but let us be willing that the power of God may work freely for the good of many, that they may be saved.]

[Let the disciples of Jesus remember that ONE is the Lord of the harvest, unto whom they are in all things to submit; and that it is into His harvest that we are to desire labourers may be sent forth.]

Matt. x. 1; 5, 6.	Mark vi. 7.	Luke ix. 2.
against-unclean spirits,		over all devils,
[e] to cast- them -out,
and to-heal		and to-cure
all manner of sickness and all manner of disease. [d]		diseases.
[Ch. x. 2—4, § xxvii. p. 206.]	and began to-send- them - [e] forth by-two and-two; [f] and gave them power over- unclean spirits;	[d] And he-sent them [e] 2
		[f] to-preach the kingdom of God, and to-heal the sick. [g]
5 [g] These twelve Jesus sent-forth, and-commanded them, saying, Go not into the- way of-the-Gentiles, and into any city of- 6 the-Samaritans enter-ye not: but go rather to the lost sheep of-the-house of-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. vi. 7. two and two—the men sent by Moses, in returning, brought of the fruit, and 'they bare it between two upon a staff,' Nu. xiii. 23—Joshua also sent two to report upon Jericho, Jos. ii. 1—23. . . . —9, 'Two are better than one; because they have a good reward for their labour. 10, For if they fall, the one will lift up his fellow: but woe to him that is alone when he falleth; for he hath not another to help him up. 11, Again, if two lie together, then they have heat: but how can one be warm alone? 12. And if one prevail against him, two shall withstand him; and a threefold cord is not quickly broken,' Ecc iv. 9—12—'The testimony of two men' was reckoned valid according to the law, Jno. viii. 17, § 55—and it was also desirable that the testimony through the prophets should be by 'two or three,' 1 Co. xiv. 27—9—There were two, 'Moses and Elias,' who appeared with Jesus on the holy mount, Mt. xvii. 3, § 51—the seventy, Lu. x. 1—17, § 60.

Mt. x. 5. the way of the Gentiles—this advice they had already in substance received, ch. vi. 31, 2, § 19, p. 135—avoiding the way of the Gentiles, who seek first the things belonging to the present life, they were to seek 'first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness,' ver. 33, § ib. p. 136.

city of the Samaritans—they were not to make sinful compliances, such as seem to have been required of our Lord, when he could obtain admission only upon the terms of being dissociated from the worship of God at Jerusalem, Lu. ix. 53, § 59—when no such terms were demanded, he entered into a city of the Samaritans, Jno. iv. 40, § 13, p. 96—one of the first missions from Jerusalem, after the resurrection, was that of Peter and John, to Samaria, Ac. viii. 14.

6. but go rather, &c.—avoiding the two great evils, worldly-mindedness and sectarianism, they were to make it their object to gather into one the children of God which were scattered abroad—that for which Christ died, Jno. xi. 51, 2, § 58—the present mission of the apostles appears to have been in minature that which was afterwards to be carried out beyond the bounds of Judea, 'unto the uttermost part of the earth,' Ac. i. 8, § 98—but which was still under the direction of the Spirit, xvi. 6—12—from the east, Rev. vii. 2—for sealing the election of Israel, ver. 3, 4.

the lost sheep, &c.—see on ch. xv. 24, § 45—the word is especially sent to the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad,' Ja. i. 1—as had been predicted, Je. iii. 11—5, . . . Eze. xxxiv. 11—6. . . . —but the first Christians seem not to have comprehended for some time the extent of their mission; and even when scattered abroad by persecution, went 'preaching the word to none but unto the Jews only,' Ac. xi. 19.

NOTES.

of his apostles. The one was inherent in himself; the other was expressly communicated by him, and was never employed but as his power, not as theirs who exercised it. Christ thus of his own proper choice and will, delegated power to his disciples to perform miracles by invocation of his name. This is an instance superior to that of every other appointment of the kind; of Moses to Joshua, or of Elijah to Elisha; and strongly manifests his Divine origin.

Mk vi. 7. By two and two. In order that they might support and encourage each other in their work—see 'Script. Illus.' Jesus here, as in all the work of religion, consulted at the same time the happiness and usefulness of his disciples; nor are they ever separated. Whatever contributes to the usefulness of his people, promotes also their happiness; or, in other words, the secret of being happy, is to be useful.

[Mt. x. 5. Way of the Gentiles. They were to preach the gospel to every creature, Mk. xvi. 15, § 98; they were to disciple all nations, Mt. xxviii. 19, § 96; but while among the Gentiles, on the Lord's errand, they were carefully to avoid being carried away by their example.—See 'Scrip. Illus.']

[Into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not. The history of the Samaritans is sufficiently known from the Old Testament. Properly speaking, the inhabitants of the city of Samaria should be termed Samaritans; but this epithet belongs chiefly to the people sent into that part of the promised land by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, about A. M. 3283, when he carried the Israelites that dwelt there captives beyond the Euphrates, and sent a mixed people to dwell in their place. These were altogether heathenish at first; but they afterward incorporated the worship of the true God with that of their idols—see the whole account, 2 Ki. xvii. 5, &c., p. (94). From this time they feared Jehovah, and served

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. vi. 7. Two are better than one. Let the disciples of Jesus seek to have fellowship one with another in the work to which he hath called them.

Lu. ix. 2. Let us never forget, that to proclaim the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick—to bring glory to God, and manifest good will to men, were the special objects of the apostles' mission.

Mt. x. 1. Jesus gave his disciples the power of effecting good for the souls and the bodies of men; and we may not think that the work of God can go fully forward, without a merciful regard being had to the whole man.

[6 ver. The mission of Jesus, as being especially to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, was not to be superseded, but only farther carried out, by that of the apostles.]

BLESSED IS EVERY ONE THAT FEARETH THE LORD: THAT WALKETH IN HIS WAYS.—Psalm cxxviii. 1.
THEY THAT TRUST IN THE LORD SHALL BE AS MOUNT ZION, WHICH CANNOT BE REMOVED, BUT ABIDETH FOR EVER.—Psa. cxxv. 1.

MATT. x. 7—10.	MARK vi. 8, 9.	LUKE ix. 3.
7 Israel. And as-ye-go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is-at-hand
8 ηγγικεν. Heal the-sick ασθενουντας, cleanse the-lepers, raise the-dead, cast-out devils : freely ye-have-received, freely δωρεαν give.[h]	8 and commanded them that they-should-take nothing for their journey, [i] save a-staff only ;[k]	[h] And he-said unto them, 3 Take nothing for your journey,[l] neither staves,
9 [k] Provide κτησησθε neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in your purses,
10 nor scrip for your journey, neither two coats, neither shoes,[l]	no scrip, no bread, no money in their purse: 9 [l] but be-shod-with sandals ;[m]	nor scrip, neither bread, neither money ;

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

7. at hand—the time was drawing near when the Lord would set his King upon his holy mount—see after, on the transfiguration, ch. xvi. 28, § 50 ; xvii. 1—5, § 51 ; and comp. Ps. ii. 6—12. . . . with 2 Pe. i. 16—.8.

8. heal the sick, &c.—see on ch. ix. 35, § 38, p. 293.

freely give—so Elisha acted when he had cured Naaman, 2 Ki. v. 16—see Peter to Simon Magus, when the latter proposed to purchase 'the gift of God' with money,' Ac. viii. 20—Paul could say, 'I have coveted no man's silver, or gold, or apparel,' &c., xx. 33—5—see the different gifts to be freely exercised, Rom. xii. 6—8 —yet, were those, who for the name's sake of Jesus went forth taking nothing of the Gentiles, to be helped forward by the brethren, 3 Jno. 5—8—and Paul himself received occasional help in temporal things, Ph. iv. 14—6 ; and says, 'Let him that is taught in the word communicate to him that teacheth in all good things,' Ga. vi. 6—see also 1 Co. ix. 3—14.

9. provide neither gold, &c.—same direction given to the seventy, Lu x. 4, § 60—they were saved anxiety about the morrow, God being their provider—see Mt. vi. 24—34, § 19, pp. 134—..6—he did provide for them, Lu. xxii. 35, § 87.

NOTES.

other gods, till after the Babylonish captivity. From Alexander the Great, Sanballat, their governor, obtained permission to build a temple on mount Gerizim : the Jews conceiving this to be in opposition to their temple at Jerusalem, hated them with a perfect hatred, and would have no fellowship with them. A poor remnant of this people is still found at Naplouse, the ancient Shechem ; but they exist in a state of very great poverty and distress.—See ADDENDA, § 13, p. 98, 'The Samaritans.']

[7. And as ye go, preach. For the import of the word κηρυσσετε, see the NOTE on Mt. iii. 1, § 7, p. 50. Probably the disciples were to make this proclamation with a loud voice as they passed through the streets of the towns to which they went ; as Jonah delivered his message to Nineveh—see Jon. iii. 4. . . . From this commission we learn what the grand subject of apostolic preaching was, 'THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN IS AT HAND!' This was the great message. They preached, says pious Quesnel, to establish the faith ; the kingdom, to animate the hope ; of heaven, to inspire the love of heavenly things, and the contempt of earthly ; which is at hand, that men may prepare for it without delay.]

8. Heal, &c. To confirm and recommend their doctrine.

[Freely ye have received, freely give. A sort of proverbial saying, which must, as appears from Lu. x. 7, § 60, be confined to what went just before, namely, the dispensing of miraculous gifts ; and therefore cannot be drawn into an argument against the maintenance of Christian ministers. All that is meant is, that they were not to make a trade of their miraculous gifts, as the Jewish exorcists did of their pretended power to cast out devils.]

9. In your purses—i. e., for your travelling expenses. The original word, ζωνας, expresses the custom they had of carrying money in a kind of fob-pocket, or purse, which was made in the duplicature of their girdles, and still exists in the east and in Greece.—Comp Lu. xxii. 35, § 87.

10. Nor scrip. This was a kind of leathern pouch or wallet which travellers in the eastern countries usually hung about their necks, and in which they carried their victuals. The shepherds, and many labourers in our own country, use a similar kind of bag for that purpose.

[Neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves. Dr. Campbell says, that the word δυο equally belongs to all the three articles here conjoined, coats, shoes, and staves. And as it would be absurd to represent it as Christ's order, take not with you two shoes ; and as the Hebrew word, rendered by the Seventy ὑποδηματα, is, Am. ii. 6, and viii. 6, properly translated 'a pair of shoes,' being according to the Masora, in the dual number, the word δυο would perhaps be more correctly rendered spare, (i. e., such as ye are not using at present) for by this means the impropriety is avoided, and the sense exactly hit in them all.]

It is doubtful, however, whether the disciples were at all to have shoes ; but from Mk. vi. 9 it appears that they were permitted to 'be shod with sandals.' The sandal was a piece of strong leather or wood fastened to the sole of the foot with strings, which they tied round the foot and ancle ; but the shoe was a kind of short boot, that covered the foot and part of the leg, and was a more delicate piece of dress than the sandal—comp De. xxix. 5, 'And I have led you forty years in the wilderness : your clothes are not waxen old upon you, and thy shoe is not waxen old upon thy foot.'

Nor yet staves. So necessary in these countries was a staff or walking-stick on a journey, that it was a usual thing for a person under going a long journey to take a spare staff with them, lest one should fail.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

7, 8 ver. The disciples of Jesus are freely to labour for the welfare of both the bodies and the souls of others, without looking for their reward from man.

9, 10 ver. Those who are sent upon any work by God, are to go forward in simple dependence upon him ; trusting that He for whom they labour, will, as occasion requires, provide what is necessary.

THE EARTH, O LORD, IS FULL OF THY MERCY : TEACH ME THY STATUTES.—Psalm cxix. 64.
THE LAW OF THY MOUTH IS BETTER UNTO ME THAN THOUSANDS OF GOLD AND SILVER.—Psalm cxix. 72.

Matt. x. 11—3.	Mark vi. 10.	Luke ix. 4.
nor-yet staves:	and not put-on two coats.	neither have two coats apiece.
for the workman is worthy of-his meat τροφης.
11 And into whatsoever city or town ye-shall-enter, enquire εξετασατε who in it is worthy; and-there abide till ye-go-thence.	10 And he-said unto-them, In-what-place soever ye-enter into an-house, there abide till ye-depart from-that-place.	And whatsoever house ye-enter into, there abide, and thence depart. 4
12 And when-ye-come into an house, salute it.
13 And if the house be worthy, let your peace come upon it: but if it-be not worthy, let your peace return επιστραφητω to you.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

10. nor yet staves—so Lu. ix. 3, p. 296—yet they might have one staff, Mk. vi. 8, p. ib.

for the workman, &c.—they were to work for God, and look to him for necessary sustenance, Mt. vi. 22—.7, § 19, p. 134—comp. with Ps. cxxiii. 2—(see border.)

11. enquire—they were to make their choice as to who should entertain them, and be careful not to identify their Master's cause with those who were unworthy—see the advice of Paul, 'But now I have written unto you not to keep company, if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such an one no not to eat.' I Co. v. 11—Lydia claimed the privilege of entertaining the apostles, upon the supposition of her being judged faithful: 'And when she was baptized, and her household, she besought us, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house, and abide there. And she constrained us,' Ac. xvi. 15.

12. salute it—'Into whatsoever house ye enter, first say, Peace be to this house,' Lu. x. 5, § 60—see Boaz and his reapers—'And, behold, Boaz came from Bethlehem, and said unto the reapers, The LORD be with you. And they answered him, The LORD bless thee,' Ru. ii. 4.

13. let your peace come upon it—'Seek the peace of the city, . . . and pray unto the LORD for it: for in the peace thereof shall ye have peace,' Je. xxix. 7.

but if it be not worthy, &c.—see the unworthiness, on account of which the prophet was commanded not to pray for the peace even of the house which was called by the name of the Lord, Je. vii. 8—16. . . . . —Abraham had to cease his intercession for Sodom, Ge. xviii. 32, .3.

NOTES.

In all these, Christ had regard to the customs of the people of the east, who, by way of precaution, took all these things among their packages, on long journeys.

The workman is worthy of his meat. A proverbial expression occurring also in Le. xix. 13, and De. xxiv. 14, .5, importing, 'You may cheerfully trust the providence of God to take care of you while engaged in such a cause; and you may reasonably expect to find sustenance among those for whose benefit you labour.'

They are forbidden to load themselves with any articles of raiment beside what they were wearing, or with money to purchase more, because they would be entitled to a supply from those on whom their labours were bestowed; and money would be but an incumbrance.

11. Enquire who in it is worthy. Anciently they had not houses of entertainment, as we have; but it was common for persons of benevolent dispositions, such as our Lord here calls αξιους, worthy persons, to entertain strangers according to their ability.—See Ju. xix. 5—21.

There abide. 'Be content with what they give you, and do not seek for other quarters.'

12. Salute it. Meaning the family, as in the next verse, and as the word is often used in Scripture; and includes all the customary tokens of courtesy, suitable to all, each according to their age and station. The common Jewish salutation was, 'Peace be to this house.'—See Lu. x. 5, § 60.

13. If the house be worthy. 'If the family be hospitable;' or, be willing to receive you as my disciples.

Let your peace come upon it. This is one of the many passages in which (as the grammarians say) the imperative is put for the future; i. e., let it come, for it shall come; so I Co. xvi. 22.

Let your peace return. Prayer not answered is said to return into the bosom.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

11 ver. Although Christians are to labour for the good of the most debased and wretched, yet are they to seek generally to associate with those that are worthy.

12, .3 ver. Christians are to observe the ordinary courtesies of life, and to pray for the peace of those among whom they labour.

[Although men will not receive from us the blessing of peace, we are not to allow them to deprive us of that peace which belongs to us, as being humble followers of the Lamb; we may for an instant be disturbed and disheartened by the experience of human perversity and folly, but our peace is to return to us again.]

MATT. x. 14—7.	MARK vi. 11.	LUKE ix. 5.
14 And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear your words, when ye depart out of that house or city, shake off the dust of your feet.	11 And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear you, when ye depart thence, shake off the dust under your feet for a testimony against them.	And whosoever will not receive you, when ye go out of that city, shake off the very dust from your feet for a testimony against them. [Ver. 6, p. 303.]
15 Verily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.	Verily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city [Ver. 12, p. 303.]
16 Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless ἀκέραιοι as doves.
17 But beware of men: for they will deliver you up to

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

14. shake off the dust, &c.—'The very dust,' Lu. ix. 5—same to the seventy, x. 10, 11, § 60—Paul and Barnabas, upon being expelled from the coasts of Antioch in Pisidia, by the Jews, 'shook off the dust of their feet against them, and came unto Iconium,' Ac. xiii. 50, 51—Abram would not take even a thread belonging to the king of Sodom, lest he should have the shadow of a claim upon him, saying, 'I have made Abram rich,' Ge. xiv. 22, 23—'Depart ye, depart ye, go ye out from thence, touch no unclean thing; go ye out of the midst of her; be ye clean, that bear the vessels of the LORD,' Is. lii. 11.

Mk. vi. 11. more tolerable for Sodom, &c.—see on Mt. xi. 24, § 29, p. 227—Lot courteously received the angels of the Lord at Sodom, Ge. xix. 1—3—and was delivered, ver. 12—6, whilst the men of the city who would have evil entreated the strangers, ver. 4—11, were left to perish, ver. 23—5—The prophet lamented over Jerusalem, which stoned them that were sent unto it, saying, 'The punishment of the iniquity of the daughter of my people is greater than the punishment of the sin of Sodom, that was overthrown as in a moment,' Lam. iv. 6.

Mt. x. 16. behold, I send, &c.—see Lu. x. 3, § 60.

wise as serpents, &c.—this is explained by the apostle, 'I would have you wise unto that which is good, and simple concerning evil,' Ro. xvi. 19—'See . . . that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise,' Eph. v. 15—'Walk in wisdom toward them that are without,' Col. iv. 5.

harmless, &c.—'In malice be ye children, but in understanding be men,' 1 Co. xiv. 20—'Blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke,' &c., Ph. ii. 15—'The wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be intreated,' &c., Ja. iii. 17.

17. but beware of men: for, &c.—the like forewarning is given, Mk. xiii. 9—13, § 86—the apostles had

NOTES.

Mt. x. 14. Shake off the dust. Our Saviour would have his disciples not take even the dust from the streets of those that refused the gospel, as a sign that they would take nothing from those who refused their message. He would have his cause without the reproach of covetousness.

Mk. vi. 11. It shall be more tolerable for Sodom, &c. The people of those cities never sinned against such extraordinary light, and such singular favours, as they who reject the gospel now, as preached with plainness and power by you, and attested by such miracles.

Mt. x. 16. As sheep in the midst of wolves. I. e., I send you, innocent and harmless, into a cold, unfriendly, and cruel world. A sheep is a most cleanly, patient, harmless, useful, and exposed kind of animal.

Wolves are crafty, greedy, ravenous, fierce, and of a quick smell; they abide in forests, and are great enemies to cattle: they howl instead of barking: they can bear hunger long, but are then exceedingly fierce, and will fall on either man or beast that comes in their way, or even upon one another. Hence in the evening, when they come hungry out of their holes, they are most fierce and dangerous, Je. v. 6; Hab. i. 8. I send you forth, as meek, harmless, and unable to defend yourselves among furious and implacable men. Behave, therefore, with the utmost prudence, never giving any causeless provocation, nor needlessly exposing yourselves to danger; and be inoffensive, sincere, and meek, that ye may win upon some, and turn away the wrath of others.

Be . . . . wise as serpents. Serpents have been always an emblem of wisdom and cunning, Ge. iii. 1. The Egyptians used the serpent in their hieroglyphics as a symbol of wisdom. Probably the thing in which Christ here directed his followers to imitate the serpent, was its caution in avoiding danger. No animal equals it in the rapidity and skill which it evinces in escaping danger. To be sharp-sighted as a serpent was a proverb both among Greeks and Romans.

And harmless as doves. There is a beauty in this saying which is seldom observed: doves are, and always have been, a striking emblem of innocence. Most men would be disposed to destroy a serpent, be it ever so harmless; yet few are so hard-hearted as to kill a dove. The serpent is represented as prudent to excess, being full of cunning, Ge. iii. 1; 2 Co. xi. 3; and the dove is simple, even to stupidity, Ho. vii. 11; but Jesus Christ corrects here the cunning of the serpent, by the simplicity of the dove; and the too great simplicity of the dove, by the cunning of the serpent.—See on Lu. iii. 22, § 8, p. 59.

17 Beware of men, &c. The Jews, as distinguished from the Roman wolves. By councils are here to be understood the provincial tribunals which existed in most towns, and even villages. And that synagogues must be taken in like manner, is plain from the parallel passages in Mark and Luke.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. ix. 5. The Christian is not to force himself upon those who, upon trial, will not receive him; and he is not to take even the dust off the streets from those who refuse to receive his words.

Mt. x. 16. Although we are not needlessly to provoke opposition, we are not to be surprised when it comes upon us in our peaceably striving to do good to men.

MATT. x. 18—22. MARK. LUKE.

the-councils, and they will-scourge you in their synagogues;
18 and ye-shall-be-brought before governors and kings for-my 19 sake, for a-testimony against-them and the Gentiles. But when they-deliver-you-up, take-no-thought how or what ye-shall-speak: for it-shall-be-given you in that-same hour 20 what ye-shall-speak. For it-is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh in you.
21 And the-brother shall-deliver-up the-brother to death, and the-father the-child: and the-children shall-rise-up against 22 their parents, and cause-them-to-be-put-to-death. And ye-shall-be hated of all men for my name's-sake: but he thatendureth to-the-end shall-be-saved.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

soon the words fulfilled in their case: 'And to him they agreed: and when they had called the apostles, and beaten them, they commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go,' Ac. v. 40—and Paul, in pointing to the marks of his apostleship, could say, 'Of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one,' 2 Co. xi. 24—Paul, before his conversion, had himself been active in beating 'in every synagogue them that believed,' Ac. xxii. 19; xxvi. 11.

18. for a testimony—Peter and John thus nobly improved their opportunity when brought before the Jewish rulers, &c., Ac. iv. 5—22; and again, v. 29—32—and Paul, before the highest court at Athens, xvii. 19—31—at Jerusalem, xxii. 1—21; xxiii. 1—11—and at Cæsarea, before Felix, xxiv. 10—25—before Agrippa, xxvi. 1—23, 29, &c.—and when carried to Rome, he had to say, 'The things which happened unto me have fallen out rather unto the furtherance of the gospel; so that my bonds in Christ are manifest in all the palace, and in all other places,' &c., Ph. i. 12—.4.

19. when they deliver you up, &c.—the like direction given, Lu. xii. 11, .2, § 63; Mk. xiii. 11, § 86.

in that same hour, &c.—the Old Testament prophets were generally taught beforehand what they should say—so Moses and Aaron, Ex. iv. 29, 30. . . . vii. 1, 2, 14—8. . . —and Jeremiah: 'Thou shalt go to all that I shall send thee, and whatsoever I command thee thou shalt speak,' Je. i. 7—the apostles were given in the same hour what they should speak, Ac. iv. 8, &c.

21. the brother, &c.—'Take ye heed every one of his neighbour,' &c., Je. ix. 4—'The son dishonoureth the father,' &c., Mi. vii. 6—so the disciples were again forewarned, Mk. xiii. 12, § 86.

22. hated, &c.—see Lu. xxi. 17, § 86—this state of things recognised, ver. 22—36—had been predicted, Mi. vii. 2—7.

endureth to the end—ch. xxiv. 13, § 86.

NOTES.

Scourge you in their synagogues. According to some learned men, there was in every synagogue a council of three judges, who had the power of ordering the punishment of scourging. In our Saviour's time the penalty of scourging was inflicted in the synagogues, and not confined to the judicial tribunals—comp. Mt. xxiii. 34, § 85; and Ac. xxii. 19. Scourging, or whipping, is often mentioned in the New Testament as a part of punishment. The person who was sentenced to scourging was formerly laid upon the ground, and the blows inflicted on his back in the presence of the judge. Afterwards, the criminal was tied to a low post. Scourging is still practised in the east; but the blows are commonly inflicted on the soles of the feet. It is called the bastinado.—The instrument formerly used was a rod. Afterwards they employed thongs or lashes attached to the rod. To make the blow severe and more painful, they sometimes fastened sharp points of iron, or pieces of lead, in the thongs. These were called scorpions, 1 Ki. xii. 11. The law of Moses directed that the number of stripes should not exceed forty, but might be any number less, at the discretion of the judge, De. xxv. 2, 3. The Jews, to secure the greater accuracy in counting, used a scourge with three lashes, which inflicted three stripes at once. With this the criminal was struck thirteen times, making the number of blows thirty-nine. Paul was five times scourged in this way—see 2 Co. xi. 24. The Romans did not feel themselves bound by the law of the Jews in regard to the number of stripes, but inflicted them at pleasure.—For 'Synagogue,' see § 15, ADDENDA, p. 106.

[18. And ye shall be brought before governors and kings. By governors and kings, we may understand the Roman pro-consuls, governors of provinces, and the kings who were tributary to the Roman government; and the emperors themselves, before whom many of the primitive Christians were brought.—This prediction was completely and abundantly fulfilled, Ac. v. 26, .7; xii. 1—4; xxiii. 33; xxvi. 1, 28, 30. Peter is said to have been brought before Nero, John before Domitian, Roman emperors; and others, before Parthian, Scythian, and Indian kings. They were to stand there to bear a testimony against them; or, as it might be rendered, to them, i. e., they were to be witnesses to them of the great facts and doctrines of the Christian religion; and if they rejected Christianity, they would be witnesses against them in the day of judgment.]

19. Take no thought how or what ye shall speak. Μὴ μεριμνήσητε, 'be not anxiously solicitous.' Persons of so low an education as the apostles generally were, might have been much terrified at the thought of appearing before such great personages; and might have feared, lest, in the hurry of their spirits, they should have been betrayed into any impropriety of language or behaviour, by which the cause of the gospel might have suffered; so that nothing could have been more suitable than the promise which our Lord here makes them, which was sufficient to prevent a thousand anxious apprehensions.

[It shall be given you in that same hour, &c. This clause is wanting in two MSS., some Versions, and several of the Fathers; but it is found in Mk. xiii. 11, § 86, without any various reading; and in substance in Lu. xii. 11, .2, § 63.]

[20. It is not ye that speak, but the Spirit, &c. The sense is, 'For ye are not to be the speakers, but the

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

21, .2 ver. Let the Christian be fully prepared for the most deadly enmity from the nearest and dearest relations, as well as from strangers; but let him see that it is indeed for the name's sake of Christ he is hated, and verily he shall not lose his reward.

22 ver. Let us never stop short with what we have already done or suffered for the truth's sake. It is he that endureth to the end that shall be saved.

MATT. x. 23—.7. MARK. LUKE.

23 But when they-persecute you in this city, flee-ye into another: for verily I-say unto-you, Ye-shall-not-have-gone-over τελεσητε the cities of Israel, till the Son of man be-come.
24 The-disciple is not above his master, nor the-servant above
25 his lord. It-is-enough for-the disciple that he-be as his master, and the servant as his lord. If they-have-called the master-of-the-house Beelzebub, how-much more shall they call them of-his household?
26 Fear them not therefore: for there-is nothing covered, that shall-not-be-revealed; and hid, that shall-not-be-
27 known. What I-tell you in darkness, that speak-ye in light: and what ye-hear in the ear, that preach-ye upon the house-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

23. flee ye into another—so Joseph was directed to flee with the young child Jesus, and his mother, into Egypt, ch. ii. 13, § 5, p. 34.—see examples of obedience to this command, Ac. ix. 24, 5; xiv. 5, 6; xvii. 13, 4.

not have gone over, &c.—they returned, Lu. ix. 10, § 40, p. 309, previous to the transfiguration, ver. 28, 9, § 51; which seems to be identified with the Son of man coming in his kingdom, Mt. xvi. 28, § 50.

till the Son of man be come—a short time after this, and just before his appearance in glory upon the holy mount, Jesus said to his disciples, 'Verily I say unto you, There be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom'—see Mt. xvi. 28, § 50.

24. the disciple, &c.—Lu. vi. 40, § 27, p. 209.

25. if they have called, &c.—and they had done so, Mk. iii. 22, § 31, p. 235; Lu. xi. 15, § 62.

26, .7. nothing covered, &c.—the same consideration which leads to boldness in speaking and acting according to truth, is to produce carefulness in avoiding hypocrisy, Lu. xii. 2, 3, § 63.

NOTES.

Spirit of your Father [is to be] that which speaketh [i. e., the speaker] in you.' 'The apostles,' observes Dr. Henderson, 'were to employ human language; but this was not to be the fruit of their own mental operations: it was to result from the supernatural influences of the Holy Spirit prompting, controlling, and guiding those operations.']

22. Ye shall be hated of all men. Not only of your own people, but also of the Gentiles.

He that endureth to the end, &c. 'He who perseveres to the end of his trials, in the ordeal of persecution, shall escape the destruction of the Jewish people here, as well as God's wrathful judgment hereafter.' This passage seems to be of the same nature as several in ch. xxiv.—see NOTE on xxiv. 13, § 86.

[23. But when they persecute you in this city, flee ye into, &c. It is prudence and humility (when charity or righteousness obliges us not to the contrary) to avoid persecution. To deprive those who are disposed to do evil of the opportunities of doing it; to convey the grace which they despise to others; to accomplish God's designs of justice on the former, and of mercy on the latter; are consequences of the flight of a persecuted minister of Jesus Christ. This flight is a precept to those who are highly necessary to the church of Christ; an advice to those who might imprudently draw upon themselves persecution; and an indulgence for those who are weak.]

Ye shall not have gone over the cities. ου μη τελεσητε τας πολεις, 'Ye shall not end or finish the cities,' Marg. 'Ye shall not have accomplished your mission,' &c.—Watson.—See 'Scrip. Illus.,' supra.

Till the Son of man be come. Εως αν ελθη ὁ Υἱος του ἀνθ' 'Until, or unto, up to the time when,' &c.

24. The disciple is not above his master. Meaning, he cannot expect better treatment than his master.

25. If they have called . . . . Beelzebub. They called Christ, in fact, a devil—a chief devil, which was not so much a name of jeering contempt, as of deep malignant blasphemy.

26. Fear them not therefore. In other words, 'Fear not them that shall persecute you, and speak evil of you falsely, for my sake; for God shall be with you, and make your righteousness to be manifest as the light, and the truth for which you suffer to be a light to lighten the whole world.'

27. What I tell you in darkness, &c. i. e., in secret, in private, in confidence. The private instructions which I give you while with me, do you proclaim publicly.

[Hear in the ear. This allusion is to a practice in the Jewish synagogues: after the return from the captivity, the pure Hebrew was no longer the vernacular tongue of the Jews, yet the law continued to be read in that language; and, as the doctor read it in a soft voice, the interpreter of the synagogue, called Targumista, pronounced it aloud in the common dialect.]

Upon the housetops. The flat roof was a public and conspicuous place—see 2 Sa. xvi. 22; see also NOTE, Mk. ii. 4, § 22, p. 165. The Jewish houses had flat roofs, from which proclamations were made to the people. Our Lord intimates, a public official proclamation was to be made of the gospel.

[The following passages of Scripture will shew to what a variety of uses these housetops were assigned: De. xxii. 8; Jos. ii. 6, . . . Ju. ix. 51; Ne. viii. 16; 2 Sa. xi. 2; 2 Ki. xxiii. 12; Is. xv. 3; Je. xxxii. 29; and Ac. x. 9.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[23 ver. Christians require not only to be led of the Spirit, but sometimes driven by persecution to the accomplishment of their mission. The great preaching of the gospel to the lost sheep of the house of Israel was to be after the Lord's departure, and previous to his return as the Son of man.]

24, .5 ver. The disciples of Jesus are not to expect better treatment from the world than that with which their Lord and Master met. They are to stand prepared both for persecution and slanderous reproach.

[26 ver. The Christian being aware that his Lord knows, even by experience, all the unjust reproach under which he is called to lie, need fear nothing. All shall be brought to light by Him who knows all. Then shall the righteous be brought forth to the light, and the calumniator be covered with shame.]

[27 ver. The great Dispenser of light knows when, and to whom, his light should shine forth; and he hath bid it be freely dispensed to all. The disciples of Jesus should obey his command, and leave the result with God.]

[If we would have light to dispense to others, we must seek it for ourselves in the night season, by prayerful communion with God, and earnest meditation upon his word.]

MATT. x. 28—35. MARK. LUKE.

28 tops. And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to-kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to-
29 destroy both soul and body in hell. Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the 30 ground without your Father. But the very hairs of your 31 head are all numbered. Fear ye not therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows.
32 Whosoever therefore shall confess ὁμολογησει εν me before men, him will I confess ὁμολογησω εν also before my 33 Father which is in heaven. But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven.
34 Think not that I am come to send peace on earth: I came 35 not to send peace, but a sword. For I am come to set a-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

28. which kill the body—Lu. xii. 4, § 63.

29—31. for a farthing—and for two farthings five might be had, Lu. xii. 6, § ib.—Surely those who have been redeemed at such a costly price as the 'precious blood' of God's dear Son, 1 Pe. i. 18, .9, will be much more cared for than the fowls, which are fed and cared for by God, Mt. vi. 26, § 19, p. 135; Lu. xii. 6, 7, § 63.

32. confess, &c.—Lu. xii. 8, § 63—'If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation,' Ro. x. 9, 10.

before men—'I will speak of thy testimonies also before kings, and will not be ashamed,' Ps. cxix. 46—'Perer and John answered and said unto them [the chief priests and rulers], Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye,' Ac. iv. 19.

before my Father—the like promise to him that overcometh (Sardis), Rev. iii. 5.

33. deny, &c.—'If we deny him, he also will deny us,' &c., 2 Ti. ii. 12, .3—see Lu. ix. 26, § 50.

34, .5. think not, &c.—see Lu. xii. 49, 51—.3, § 63—purity must precede peace, Ja. iii. 17—comp. with Rev. vi. 4.

NOTES.

28. Fear him. It is not hell-fire we are to fear, but God; without the stroke of whose justice, hell would be no punishment; and whose frown would render heaven itself insupportable.

[29. Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? 'Ασσάριον. A Roman AS was one-tenth of a DENARIUS, which was about seven pence-halfpenny; so that the value of the AS was about three farthings of English money.]

Two sparrows. Thought to allude to the two birds used in cleansing the lepers, Le. xiv. 4 one was killed, and the other let loose.

30. The very hairs of your head are all numbered. Thus 1 Sa. xiv. 45; Lu. xxi. 18, § 86; and Ac. xxvii. 34. The import is, Fear ye not the rage of men, for ye are under the special and immediate protection of God. Here we have that most important and comfortable doctrine of a particular providence plainly and clearly laid down.

[That He who erected the immense and magnificent fabric of the universe, will continue to regard and to preserve the work of his own hands, and maintain what is called the general order of nature, and the ordinary course of human affairs, is so consonant to reason and common sense, that few even of the pagans who believed the being of a God, entertained any doubt of this general superintendence of the Deity over the worlds he has created, and the inhabitants he has placed in them. But when we descend from this comprehensive view of things, to the several constituent parts of the general system, and to every individual of every species of animated beings dispersed throughout the whole; when we reflect how very inconsiderable a place this globe that we inhabit holds amongst the celestial bodies, how very small a portion it occupies of unbounded space, and how infinitely minute and insignificant every human creature must appear in the vast mass of created beings; we can hardly think it possible that the care of the Supreme Being should extend to ourselves; we cannot help fearing that we shall be lost and overlooked in the immensity of creation, and that we are objects far too small and minute to fall within the sphere of our Maker's observation. The more we reason on this subject, the more ground we shall find for these apprehensions. Here, then, is one of those many instances in which we have no certainty, no solid ground for the sole of our foot to stand upon, but in the gospel of Christ. These very strong instances are plainly chosen on purpose to quiet all our fears, and to banish from our minds every idea of our being too small and insignificant for the care and protection of God.]

32. Confess me before men. There is unspeakable majesty in this article of our Lord's discourse; for although he was now in the lowest state of humanity, yet he declared that his confessing or owning us before God, is the greatest happiness; and his denying us, the greatest misery that can possibly befall us.

[34. Think not that I am come to send peace, &c. The meaning of this passage will be plain, when we consider the import of the word peace, and the expectation of the Jews. It may be remarked, that the word שלום shalom, rendered by the Greeks εἰρήνη, was used among the Hebrews to express all possible blessings, temporal and spiritual, but especially the former. The expectation of the Jews was, that when the Messiah should come, all temporal prosperity would be accumulated on the land of Judæa; therefore, τὴν γῆν, in this verse, should not be translated the earth, but this land. That the word often signifies some particular land, and especially Judæa, rather than the whole earth, is undeniably plain—(comp. Mt. xxiii. 35, § 85; and Lu. iv. 25, § 15, p. 104.) The import of our Saviour's teaching

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[28 ver. Although we are to avoid all involving of others unnecessarily in the guilt of rejecting God's message, yet we are to have no personal fear in the delivery thereof, but to make every effort which truth and love can warrant, for saving men from destruction.]

29—31 ver. To whatever trials or dangers for the truth's sake the Christian is exposed, he need not fear his being forgotten of God, who knows all things. He cannot even lose a hair of his head without its being noted in heaven.

[32, .3 ver. Let a regard to the honour that cometh from God, overcome the desire of retaining the praise of man; and let the fear of suffering disgrace in the day of the Lord, overcome the dread of being now subjected to reproach because of our faithfulness to Christ.]

man's-at-variance διχασαι against his father, and the-daughter against her mother, and the-daughter-in-law against her-36 mother-in-law. And a-man's foes shall be they of-his own-37 household. He that-loveth father or mother more-than me is not worthy of-me: and he that-loveth son or daughter 38 more-than me is not worthy of-me. And he-that taketh not 39 his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of-me. He that-findeth his life shall-lose it: and he that-loseth his life for-my sake shall-find it.
40 He that-receiveth you receiveth me, and he that-receiveth
41 me receiveth him that-sent me. He that-receiveth a-prophet in the-name εις ονομα of-a-prophet shall-receive a-prophet's

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS

36. a man's foes, &c.—'a man's enemies are the men of his own house,' Mi. vii. 6. [illegible]—'Yea, mine own familiar friend, in whom I trusted, which did eat of my bread, hath lifted up his heel against me,' Ps. xli. 9—so it was to the Lord himself, Jno. xiii. 18, § 87.

37. more than me—see Lu. xiv. 26, § 67.

38. his cross—ch. xvi. 24, § 50.

39. his life, &c.—ch. xvi. 25, § ib.; Lu. xvii. 33, § 72; Jno. xii. 25, § 82.

40. he that receiveth you—and not the apostles only, but even a child received in his name, Lu. ix. 48, § 52; Mt. xviii. 5, § 53—Jesus reckons that as done to himself which is done to one of the least of his brethren, xxv. 40, .5. § 36—see also in his address to the seventy, Lu. x. 16, § 60—and on Jno. xiii. 20, § 87.

41. a prophet's reward—the widow woman at Zarephath having supplied Elijah with a little bread and water, had thereafter fulfilled to her the promise, 'The barrel of meal shall not waste, neither shall here, is this:—Do not imagine, as the Jews in general vainly do, that I am come to send forth (by forcing out the Roman power) that temporal prosperity which they long for; I am not come for this purpose, but to send forth (βαλειν) the Roman sword, to cut off a disobedient and rebellious nation, the cup of whose iniquity is already full, and whose crimes cry aloud for speedy vengeance.]

NOTES.

35. I am come to set a man at variance, &c. Our Lord expresses not the design of his coming, but what would be the event and consequence of it; that manifestation of the spirit of rebellion against the Lord's Anointed, in the persecution of his faithful followers, which was to bring upon Immanuel's land the great—the Roman sword.

37. He that loveth father or mother, &c. The meaning of this is clear. Christ must be loved supremely, or he is not loved at all.

38. He that taketh not his cross. There is an allusion here to the custom of the Romans, who obliged criminals to bear the cross, on which they were to suffer, to the place of execution. The cross here stands for death in its most frightful and ignominious forms, but includes all other minor sufferings to be endured for the truth; the words had, therefore, probably, a prophetic reference to the manner of Christ's death, and implied that those who would not follow him to die for the truth were not worthy of him.—Watson and Bloomfield.

[37—9. And he that is not willing to incur hatred and persecution, even from his nearest relations, for the sake of my doctrines and institutions, and that he may follow my example, cannot be justly owned as one of my disciples, or expect a share in my eternal glory. He, who through the fear of man preserves his life and temporal advantages at the expense of his religion, his conscience, and regard to me, shall lose the blessing and true comfort of these, if not the things themselves, and shall fall short of eternal happiness; but he who risks or loses his temporal life, or the enjoyments of it, through his conscientious adherence to the truth, shall find real happiness and comfort therein, and be graciously rewarded with everlasting life in the world to come.]

40—2. He that receiveth you, &c. In all these three illustrations Christ meant to teach substantially the same thing—that he that would entertain kindly, or treat with hospitality, his disciples, or himself, a prophet, or a righteous man, would shew that he approved their character, would shew attachment to them, and should not fail of proper reward. To receive in the name of a prophet, is to receive as a prophet; to do proper honour to his character; and to evince attachment to the cause in which he was engaged.

[Whatever kind reception your persons and doctrines meet with, shall be accounted as given to me and my Father: and whatever kindness is done to any of my ministers or disciples, as such, from faith in and regard to me, shall be richly and graciously rewarded in the present, and especially in the eternal state.]

41. A prophet's reward. A reward proportioned to the office which is held by him who is received, and

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS

[34—6 ver. Let no man withdraw himself from the spiritual warfare, through the pretended exercise of Christian charity, and love of living at peace. Christ came not to give peace in ignorance, error, and sin; but to send forth on the earth the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God; but if men will oppose this, they must expect the sword of judgment.]

We must allow no quarter to sin, the enemy of God and man. The nearer and the dearer the relation, the more earnest should we be to bring such into subjection to Jesus.

[The greatest hindrances to the triumphs of Christianity are those which may be found at home, within the house of God; yea, within the believer himself.]

37 ver. Let our love to Christ and his cause, have in due subordination all other desires and affections, however otherwise laudable. Any object, however dear, let us be willing to part with for Christ's sake.

38 ver. We must not only be willing to part with what we love, but also to endure shame and suffering for the sake of Christ, if we would be found worthy of his service here, and of enjoying his glory hereafter.

[39 ver. True wisdom regards not only the present, but provides for the future; and he that finds his enjoyment in the world now, is making but a bad provision for eternity: whilst he who is willing to deny himself now for the sake of Christ, shall live for ever in the enjoyment of the world to come.]

40 ver. Let Christians recollect their high calling in Christ. They are one with Him, who is one with the Father; and as in Christ men are to know the Father, so in Christians men are to see reflected the image of Christ.

[41 ver. Let us see that he whom we receive as a prophet is really a prophet, and as such received;

MATT. x. 42.

reward; and he that-receiveth a-righteous man in the-name of-a-righteous man shall-receive a-right-42 eous man's reward. And whosoever shall-give-to-drink-unto one of-these little-ones a-cup of-cold water only in the-name of-a-disciple, verily I-say unto-you, he-shall-in-no-wise-lose ου μη απολεση his reward.[a]

MARK vi. 12, 13

[Ver. 11, p. 298.]
12 And they-went-out, and-preached [b] that men should-repent.
13 And they-cast-out many devils, and anointed with-oil many that were sick αρρωστους, and healed them [c]

LUKE ix. 6.

[Ver. 5, p. 298.]
[a] And they-departed, and-went through the towns, preaching-the-gospel,[b] and healing every-where.

Ch. xi. 1, [c] And it-came-to-pass, when Jesus had-made-an-end of-commanding his twelve disciples, he-departed thence to-teach and to-preach in their cities.
[Ch. xi. 2, § xxix. p. 222.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

the cruse of oil fail. . . . And she, and he, and her house, did eat many days,' 1 Ki. xvii. 8—16.

a righteous man's reward—'bread shall be given him; his waters shall be sure,' Is. xxxiii. 15, 16. . . . —'and having food and raiment let us be therewith content,' 1 Ti. vi. 8.

42. give to drink, &c.—see on Mk. ix. 41, § 52—'God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labour of love, which ye have shewed toward his name, in that ye have ministered to the saints, and do minister,' He. vi. 10.

Mk. vi. 12. repent—see on Mt. iii. 2, § 7, p. 50.

Lu. ix. 6. gospel—see on Mk. i. 1, § ib. p. 49.

every-where—see on Mt. x. 5, 6, p. 295.

Mk. vi. 13. anointed with oil—same means of healing the sick appointed to the elders among the twelve tribes scattered abroad, Ja. v. 14.

Mt. xi. 1. to teach and to preach—having freed himself in part from the labour and inconvenience occasioned by such multitudes coming to him for the healing of the body, Jesus could more unreservedly devote himself to the work of an instructor and evangelist. Thus afterwards the apostles desired to be set free from serving tables, that they might give themselves 'continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word,' Ac. vi. 2—4.

NOTES.

which he that receives, honours. The allusion may be to the benefits derived by some from the visits of Elijah and Elisha; not to similar rewards, but still great ones.

42. These little ones. By these are clearly meant his disciples. They are called 'little ones,' to denote their want of wealth, rank, learning, and whatever the world calls great. They were little in the estimation of the world, and in their own estimation; and they made no pretensions to what attracts the admiration of mankind.

Mk. vi. 12. Preached that men should repent.—See the nature of repentance explained in Lu. iii. 3, § 7, p. 50.

13. And anointed with oil, &c. Anointing with oil was in common use among the Jews in cases of sickness.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

and that he whom we receive as a righteous man is really a righteous man, and is as such received. So let us be one with them in obedience, according to the voice of the one, and the acting of the other, and verily we shall with them share the reward.]

42 ver. Let us, in whatever way we can, seek to help forward the servants of God in their work, knowing that the reward is not calculated according to the largeness of the gift, but according to the circumstances of the giver, and the motive from which the gift proceeds.

[Lu. ix. 6. Soon may that great and universal preaching of the gospel take place throughout all the cities of Israel, of which the preaching by the twelve was an example. The cities that belong to Israel have not yet been gone over by the preachers of the gospel in the ministry here described.]

Mt. xi. 1. Jesus himself gave an example of that faithful service in the gospel which he requires from his disciples. And let these be all equally diligent to exemplify in their conduct the instructions which, from Him, they communicate to the people.

SECTION 40.—(G. 27, .8.)—THE FAME OF JESUS REACHES HEROD THE TETRARCH OF GALILEE. PARTICULARS OF THE DEATH OF JOHN THE BAPTIST. UPON THE RETURN OF THE APOSTLES, THEY ARE TAKEN BY JESUS APART TO THE DESERT OF BETHSAIDA, IN DECAPOLIS; THE MULTITUDES FOLLOW THEM THITHER: FIVE THOUSAND MEN, BESIDE WOMEN AND CHILDREN, ARE FED WITH FIVE LOAVES OF BREAD AND TWO FISHES. Matt. xiv. 1—21. Mark vi. 14—44. Luke ix. 7—17. John vi. 1—13.—CAPERNAUM, AND DESERT OF BETHSAIDA, IN DECAPOLIS.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS. *

Mt. xiv. 1, 2. Mk. vi. 14—6. Lu. ix. 7—9. Herod hears of the fame of Jesus, and is perplexed; some reporting him to be Elias, and others John the Baptist risen from the dead. To this last opinion Herod himself seems inclined to give currency.

— xiv. 3, 4. — vi. 17, .8. Herod was interested in this matter. He had put John in prison for reproving him on account of his having married Herodias, the wife of his brother Philip.

— xiv. 5. — vi. 19, 20. Induced by Herodias, he would have put John to death, but was prevented, not only because of the general esteem in which John was held as a prophet, but also because of a personal regard he had for him on account both of his character and teaching.

— xiv. 6, 7. — vi. 21—.3. But upon Herod's birthday, when many of his great men were assembled to supper, the daughter of Herodias so delighted him with her dancing, that he rashly swore he would give her whatever she should ask.

Mt. xiv. 8. Mk. vi. 24, .5. Having been instructed by her mother, she immediately asked the head of John the Baptist.

— xiv. 9. — vi. 26. The king was exceedingly sorry; yet because of his oath, and, it would appear, being urged thereto by his associates, he gave commandment that it should be as requested.

— xiv. 10, .1. — vi. 27, .8. An executioner was accordingly sent to behead John in prison; and the adulteress, who had hunted for the precious life, was presented with the head by her daughter.

— xiv. 12. — vi. 29. The disciples of John came and took up his body, 'and buried it, and went and told Jesus.'

(G. 27,) No. 40. The fame of Jesus reaches Herod the tetrarch of Galilee: particulars of the death of John the Baptist.— Capernaum.

MATT. xiv. 1—12. [Ch. xiii. 58, § xxxvii. p. 288.]	MARK vi. 14—29.	LUKE ix. 7—9.
1 [a]At that time καιρῳ Herod the tetrarch heard-of the fame ακοην of-Jesus,[b]	14 And king Herod heard of him;	Now Herod the tetrarch heard- 7
	[c](for his name was spread-abroad φανερον:)[d]	[b] of all that was-done by him:[c]
		[d] and he-was-perplexed διηπορει, because

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xiv. 1. Herod—see Lu. iii. 1, § 7, p. 49.

fame—Jesus had often commanded that his good deeds should not be spoken of, as Mk. v. 43, § 36, p. 285; Mt. ix. 30, § ib.; but still his fame was spread abroad, 26, 31, § ib.

Lu. ix. 7. John was risen—Herod appears to have himself come to this conclusion, Mk. vi. 14, which see.

NOTES.

Mt. xiv. 1. Herod the tetrarch. This was Herod Antipas, the son of Herod the Great. Tetrarch denotes a prince or king who reigns over the fourth part of a former kingdom. Thus, by the will of Herod the Great, ratified, as to the main substance of it, by Augustus Cæsar, Herod's kingdom was divided among his sons; Archelaus had one half, or two fourths of it; Herod Antipas (the person spoken of in this verse), one fourth, consisting of Galilee and Perræa; and Philip the remaining fourth, consisting of Trachonitis, Auranitis, (by Luke, ch. iii. 1, § 7, p. 40, called Ituræa,) &c. Thus Josephus, speaking of Augustus' determination upon Herod's will, says, 'One half of the kingdom he gave to Archelaus; and dividing the remaining half into two tetrarchies, he gave them to the two other sons of Herod, viz., Philip, and Herod Antipas.'—See Mt. ii. 22, § 5, p. 35; Lu. iii. 1, § 7, p. 49.

Grotius says, that the name of Tetrarch had its origin from Galatia; the three divisions of which had each four princes or governors: hence applied in other countries to those who ruled over any part or division of them. Among the Romans it was a title of the fourth rank of dignity. The name of king is also sometimes given to tetrarchs—see ver. 9, infra. Herod Antipas was a Sadducee, and denied the resurrection, yet his fears now overcame his doubts. Herod Antipas was afterwards deposed, and banished into Spain, with his wife, through the false accusations of his nephew, Herod Agrippa.

Heard of the fame. That Herod had not heard it before, can only be accounted for by the disregard which persons in high rank shew to the concerns of religion.—Scott.

Lu. ix. 7. Perplexed. Διηπορει. Strongly expresses a mixture of doubt and fear.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. ix. 7. It is one thing to hear, like Herod, of the fame of Jesus, and be perplexed respecting him; and it is another thing to hear, so as to trust in HIS NAME, and rejoice in the prosperity of his cause.

There are many thoughts about Jesus that fall far short of the truth. Let us not rest contented with mere reports or conjectures respecting Christ, but seek to know him for ourselves, in the power of his saving grace.

* This is an Analysis of the first part of Sect. 40, Matt. xiv. 1—12; Mk. vi. 14—29; Lu. ix. 7—9; being LESSON xxxix. in the 'Graduated Simultaneous System.'

A GOOD NAME IS BETTER THAN PRECIOUS OINTMENT; AND THE DAY OF DEATH THAN THE DAY OF ONE'S BIRTH.—Eccl. vii. 1.
HAPPY IS THE MAN THAT FEARETH ALWAY: BUT HE THAT HARDENETH HIS HEART SHALL FALL INTO MISCHIEF.—Prov. xxviii. 14.

MATT. xiv. 2, 3.	MARK vi. 15—.7.	LUKE ix. 8, 9.
		that it-was-said of some, that John was-risen from the-dead; and of some, that 8 Elias had-appeared; and of-others, that one of-the old prophets was-risen-again. And Herod said, John have-I-beheaded: 9 but who is this, of whom I hear such-things?[e] [Ch ix. 10, p. 309.]
2 [e] and said unto his servants, This is John the Baptist; he is-risen from the dead; and therefore mighty-works do-shew-forth-themselves ενεργουσιν in him.[f]	and he-said, That John the Baptist was-risen from the-dead, and therefore mighty-works do-shew-forth-themselves ενεργουσιν in him.	[f] And he-desired to-see him.[g]
	15 [g] Others said, That it-is Elias. And others said, That it-is a-prophet, or as one of-the prophets.
	16 But when Herod heard thereof, he-said, It-is John, whom I beheaded: he is-risen from the-dead.
3 For Herod had-laid-hold-on John, and-bound him, and put him in prison for Herodias'-sake, his brother Philip's wife.	17 For Herod himself had-sent-forth and-laid-hold-upon John, and bound him in prison for Herodias'-sake, his brother Philip's wife: for he had married her.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

8. Elias—who had been promised to come before 'the great and dreadful day of the LORD,' Mal. iv. 5, and in the power of whom John was predicted to come, Lu. i. 17, § 1, p. 4—see on Mt. xvii. 11, § 51.

Mk. vi. 14. John the Baptist—his preaching, Mt. iii. § 7, pp. 49—54—testimony of Jesus respecting him, xi. 7—15, § 29, pp. 224, ..5.

therefore mighty works—It was said, that previously 'John did no miracle,' Jno. x. 41, § 57.

15. others said, &c.—see much the same reported to Jesus of himself, by his disciples, Mt. xvi. 14, § 50.

16. When Herod, &c.—considering the esteem which Herod had for John, ver. 20, and the pain with which he had acquiesced in his murder, ver. 26, the opinion the tetrarch appears to have formed may have greatly tended to his allowing Jesus so much liberty in Galilee till his ministry there was completed: 'Surely the wrath of man shall praise thee: the remainder of wrath shalt thou restrain,' Ps. lxxvi. 10.

Mt xiv. 3. For Herod had . . . bound him—the same is noticed at Lu. iii. 19, 20, § 7, p. 55.

NOTES.

[Mt. xiv. 2. And therefore mighty works. Αἱ δυνάμεις. Rather, angels, heavenly powers, do act by him since his resurrection. 'And hence the miracles [we hear of] are wrought by him.']

3. Put him in prison. Where it is calculated he lay a year and a half.

[For Herodias' sake. This princess was the granddaughter of Herod the Great, by his son Aristobulus, and had formerly been married to her uncle, Herod Philip, the son of her grandfather by Mariamne. Some time after that marriage, Herod Antipas fell passionately in love with her, and made an offer of marriage to her. She accepted his addresses, deserting her husband, who was only a private person, that she might share with the tetrarch in the honours of a crown. Herod Antipas, to make way for her, divorced his wife, the daughter of Aretas king of Arabia, who, in consequence of the injury done to his daughter, resolved to make war on him; the two armies met, and that of Herod was cut to pieces by the Arabians; and this, Josephus says, was supposed to be a judgment of God on him for the murder of John the Baptist.—See the account in Josephus, Antiq. lib. xviii. c. 7.]

[Philip. Herod Philip, the son of Herod the Great, and Mariamne, daughter of Simon the high-priest (not of the Asmonean Mariamne). He is called Herod in Josephus, Antiq. lib. xviii. c. 7, to distinguish him

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xiv. 2. We should beware of deserving the accusings of an evil conscience; which, as in the case of Herod, makes even good news painful.

Lu. ix. 9. God can bring good out of evil: the self-reproach of Herod at having murdered a just and holy man, may have made him more careful as to what he did with regard to Jesus; so that although 'that fox' desired to see Him, he seems to have made no violent effort to interrupt our Lord's proceedings.

[Mk. vi. 15. Men are for restricting the power of God to their former experience of his working, but He is not limited to the instruments he has already been pleased to use. He can do more than he has done, and that by instruments altogether new.

17 ver. Let us beware of tampering with sin. Most true it was with regard to Herod, that 'when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death,' Ja. i. 15.

[Men should beware of allowing to themselves the exercise of unjust power, in restraining the liberty of others. Had Herod not previously sent forth and laid hold upon John, he would not have been in the same temptation of committing this farther crime.]

In Herod we may see the danger of possessing despotic power. In England, even the highest in authority would be under little or no temptation of acting like the tetrarch of Galilee.

Let us see the safety of obscurity. Had John been spared the honour of having such an illustrious dis-

Matt. xiv. 4—6.	Mark vi. 18—22.	Luke.
4 For John said unto-him, It-is-not-lawful for-thee to-have her.	18 For John had-said unto Herod, It-is-not-lawful for-thee to-have thy brother's wife.
	19 Therefore Herodias had-a-quarrel* εἶχεν against-him αὐτῷ, and would have-killed him; but she-could not:	[* Marg. or, an inward grudge.]
5 And when-he-would have-put-him-to-death, he-feared the multitude, because they-counted him as a-prophet.	20 for Herod feared John, knowing that-he was a-just man and an-holy, and observed† συνετήρει him; and when-he-heard him, he-did many-things, and	[† Marg. or, kept him, or, saved him.]
6 But when-Herod's birthday-was-kept, the daughter of	21 heard him gladly ἡδέως. And when-a-convenient εὐκαίρου day-was-come, that Herod on his birthday made a-supper to his lords, high-captains, and 22 chief estates of Galilee; and when-the daughter-of-the said

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

4. not lawful—Herod, as professing obedience to the Mosaic law, was bound by what was written, 'Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy brother's wife: it is thy brother's nakedness.' Le. xviii. 16—'If a man shall take his brother's wife, it is an unclean thing: he hath uncovered his brother's nakedness; they shall be childless,' xx. 21.

Mk. vi. 19. Herodias had a quarrel—see how Josephi's mistress plotted his ruin when reproved by his refusal to participate in her guilt, Ge. xxxix. 14—20—'But there was none like unto Ahab, which did sell himself to work wickedness in the sight of the LORD, whom Jezebel his wife stirred up,' 1 Ki. xxi. 25.

but she could not—It appears that Herod would have gratified her, notwithstanding his scruples, had he not been prevented by his regard to popularity, Mt. xiv. 5.

20. Herod feared John—John had maintained the dignity becoming a messenger of God, such as was commanded the prophet, Eze. ii. 5—7.

just man and an holy—such as was his father Zacharias, Lu. i. 6, § 1, p. 3.

observed [or, kept, or, saved] him—so Reuben, while having Joseph cast into a pit, would have preserved him from being killed, Ge. xxxvii. 21, .2.

heard him gladly—Herod appears to have been a very stony ground hearer, Mk. iv. 16, .7, § 33, p. 253; or, like those in whom lusts choke the word, and it becometh unfruitful, 18, .9, p. 256—like Israel in the time of Moses: 'They believed they his words; they sang his praise. 13, They soon forgat his works; they waited not for his counsel: 14, but lusted exceedingly in the wilderness, and tempted God in the desert,' Ps. cvi. 12—.4—and of the prophets: 'And they come unto thee as the people cometh, and they sit before thee as my people, and they hear thy words, but they will not do them: for with their mouth they shew much love, but their heart goeth after their covetousness. And, lo, thou art unto them as a very lovely song of one that hath a pleasant voice, and can play well on an instrument: for they hear thy words, but they do them not,' Eze. xxxiii. 31, .2.

21. a convenient day—for the cherished purpose of Herodias, intimated ver. 19—see the character of such women: 'The mouth of strange women is a deep pit: he that is abhorred of the LORD shall fall therein,' Pr. xxii. 14; xxiii. 27, .8.

birthday—see an early instance of this kind of royal feasts when was decided the case of Pharaoh's chief butler and chief baker, Ge. xl. 20, .2—at Belshazzar's feast his own case was decided by the Great and Just Judge, Da. v. 1—5, 18—28.

NOTES.

from his half-brother, Philip the tetrarch of Trachonitis, and the son of Herod and Cleopatra. It was customary for the Jews to have two names. In this instance, Herod was the family name, but Philip was that by which this person was distinguished from the rest of his brethren. A like example we have, Ac. xii., where Luke, speaking of one of the first Herod's grandchildren, who was eaten up of worms, calls him Herod by the family name. Whereas Josephus, speaking of the same person, calls him by his proper name, Agrippa.—See more examples of persons who had two names, Mt. x. 2, 3, § 27, pp. 206, .7; Jno. xi. 16, § 58; and Ac. xiii. 1.]

4. It is not lawful for thee to have her. As it appears from Josephus, that this action was perpetrated during the life of her husband, it was a complication of the crimes of incest and adultery. There is only one case wherein a man might lawfully marry his brother's widow, which was when he died childless. But Herodias had a daughter by her husband.

[Mk. vi. 19. Had a quarrel. Should rather be, 'bore a grudge against him.' 'Ενέιχεν (equivalent to ἔσχεν) signifies to harbour, (literally, 'have in mind,') κότον, a grudge or resentment against any one.]

Mt. xiv. 6. Herod's birthday. Either the day on which he was born, or the day of his accession to the dignity of tetrarch—see 1 Sa. xiii. 1. Bishop Pearce thinks that this festivity was made on the latter occasion, since Jos. con. Apion. ii. 25, says, that Moses forbade the Jews to make feasts on the births of their children. Therefore, if it was against their law to have feasts then, it is probable that they would not be allowed to keep the anniversary day of their births with festivals. Josephus also says, that ciple as Herod the tetrarch, he might have been spared his life, as he would not have had the same occasion to interfere in the proceedings of a profligate court.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[20 ver. Let us, in this case, see how far a man may go in discipleship, and yet in the end prove the murderer of his guide to eternal life. Herod feared John; he knew him to be both just and holy, and he seems to have protected him; and was not only a hearer, but in many things was a doer of that which he heard. And all this, not from a mere sense of duty, but 'he heard him gladly.']

MATT. xiv. 7—9.	MARK vi. 23—.6.	LUKE
Herodias danced before them, and pleased Herod.	Herodias came-in, and danced, and pleased Herod and them that-sat-with him, the king said unto-the damsel, Ask-of me whatsoever thou-wilt, and I-will-give it thee.[h]
7 [h] Whereupon he promised with an-oath to-give her whatsoever she-would-ask.[i]	23 [i] And he-sware unto-her, Whatsoever thou-shalt-ask-of me, I-will-give it thee, unto the-half of my kingdom.
	24 And she went-forth, and-said unto her mother, What shall-I-ask? And she said, The head of-John the Baptist.[k]
8 [k] And she, being-before-instructed προβιβασθεισα of her mother,[l] said, Give me here John Baptist's head in a-charger.	25 And she-came-in straightway with haste unto the king, and-asked, saying, I-will that thou-give me by-and-by in a-charger the head of-John the Baptist.
9 And the king was-sorry: nevertheless for the oath's-sake,	26 And the king was exceeding-sorry; yet for his oath's-sake,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

22. danced, and pleased Herod—see a remarkable description of such people: 'Their children dance,' &c., Job xxi. 7—21.

23. half of my kingdom—so Ahasuerus to Esther, previous to her asking for the life of her people, Est. v. 6, vii. 2.

Mt. xiv. 8. being before—not previous to her dancing, but before presenting her request, as noticed, Mk. vi. 24, supra.

instructed of her mother, &c.—like Ahaziah, whose father had to wife a daughter of Jezebel, she had in her mother a 'counsellor to do wickedly,' 2 Chr. xxii. 3.

Mk. vi. 25. by and by—an expression intimating instantly, or without delay, as Mt. xiii. 21, § 33, p. 256; Lu. xvii. 7, § 70; xxi. 9, § 86—the same haste is intimated, Mt. xiv. 8, 'Give me here'—the occasion was considered convenient, Mk. vi. 21.

26. exceeding sorry—so was Darius, when he had in his pride given forth a decree which required him to sacrifice Daniel to the will of his enemies, Da. vi. 13, 14—Judas also was sorry when he saw that his covetousness would lead to the death of his Master, Mt. xxvii. 3—5, § 89—'When lust hath conceived,' &c., Ja. i. 15, 16—see p. 305, PRACT. REFL. ver. 17.

oath's sake—see, in the case of Jephthah, the danger of vowing rashly, Ju. xi. 30—5.

NOTES.

the first Herod was accustomed to keep, as a festival, the day of his accession to the throne; and probably this Herod Antipas did the same. We find also Herodotus, in ix. 109, reporting the same thing of Xerxes the Persian king. That the day of a king's accession to his throne was, in the eastern style, sometimes called his birthday, appears further from Ps. ii., where, when it is said, ver. 6, 'I have set [Heb. 'anointed'] my king,' &c., it is added in the next verse, 'this day have I begotten thee.'

Danced before them. ΕΝ ΤΩ ΜΕΣΩ, 'in the midst.' This was a shameless gloryings of Herod and his unlawful wife in their infamy, Salome being the offspring of Philip, whom she had deserted.

Mk. vi. 23. Half of my kingdom. A way of speaking used by princes, when they give full power to persons to ask what they will of them, and to express their great munificence and liberality.—See 'Script. Illus.' supra.

Mt. xiv. 8. Being before instructed. According to Hesychius, προβιβάσαν signifies instigare, incitare, impellere, to urge, excite, or impel, and consequently supposes reluctance in the person urged. It is very probable that Salome might at first scruple to comply with the ferocious request of her mother.

Give me here John Baptist's head in a charger. It is well known that it was and is customary with princes in eastern countries to require the head of those they order to be executed to be brought to them, that they may be assured of their death. The Grand Signior does it to this day. It is recorded of Mark Antony, that he caused the heads of those he had proscribed to be brought to him even while he was at table, and that he entertained his eyes a long time with that sad spectacle. Η ΚΕΦΑΛΗ signifies a large dish in which meat is brought to the table.

[Mk. vi. 26. And the king was exceeding sorry. περίλυπος γενόμενος. Though it might be rendered, 'he was chagrined.' The feeling was doubtless a mixed one; chiefly sorrow (on his own account most), and chagrin, not without anger, at being thus taken advantage of; nay, even alarm; for he could not but feel apprehensive of the consequences of so unpopular an action. In short, great must have been the fluctuation of Herod's mind, occasioned by various contending passions and feelings in his bosom, which are well described by Grotius. Διὰ τοὺς ὅρκους, i. e., 'out of a scruple to break his oath before his guests;' for at entertainments there was a delicacy in refusing requests. So Josephus, Ant. xvii. 3, 3, ἀκὶ τῷ πιστῷ τοῦ ὅρκου.]

Mt. xiv. 9. For the oath's sake. Herod felt that he was bound by this oath. But he was not. The oath should not have been taken. But being taken, he could not be bound by it. No oath could justify a man in committing murder. The true principle is, that Herod was bound, by a prior obligation, by the law of God, not to commit murder: and no act of his, be it an oath, or anything else, could free him from the obligation.

A FOOL UTTERETH ALL HIS MIND: BUT A WISE MAN KEEPETH IT IN TILL AFTERWARDS.
IF A RULER HEARKEN TO LIES, ALL HIS SERVANTS ARE WICKED.—Prov. xxix. 11, 12.

Matt. xiv. 10—.2.	Mark vi. 27—.9.	Luke.
and them which-sat-with him at meat,	and for their sakes which-sat-with him, he-commanded it to-be-given her.	he-would not reject ἀθετῆσαι her
10 And he-sent,	27 And immediately the king sent an-executioner* σπεκουλάτορα, and-commanded his head to-be-brought:	[* Marg. 'one of his guard.'] and	and he went and-
"beheaded John in the prison.	beheaded him in the prison,
11 And his head was-brought in a-charger, and given to-the damsel: and she-brought it to her mother."	28 and brought his head in a-charger, and gave it to-the damsel: and the damsel gave it to her mother.
12 And his disciples	29 "And when-·his disciples·-heard-of it, came, and-took-up the body, and buried it,	they-came and took-up his corpse, and laid it in a tomb."
° and went and-told Jesus.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

which sat with, &c.—'Fools make a mock at sin: but among the righteous . . . favour,' Pr. xiv. 9—Herod had not chosen to let wisdom enter into his heart, nor did he choose that discretion should preserve him, Pr. ii. 10, .1; and so he fell under the influence of both the evil man, ver. 12—5, and of the strange woman, 16—.9—'He that walketh with wise men shall be wise: but a companion of fools shall be destroyed,' xiii. 20.

27. immediately—see on ver. 21, .5, pp. 306, .7.

beheaded him—see 2 Chr. xxxvi. 16, 'But they mocked the messengers of God, and despised his words, and misused his prophets, until the wrath of the Lord arose against his people, till there was no remedy'—Mt. xxi. 35, .6, § 84.

NOTES.

And them which sat with him at meat. This was the strongest reason why Herod murdered John. He had not firmness enough to obey the law of God, and to follow the dictates of conscience, against the opinions of wicked men. He was afraid of the charge of cowardice, and want of spirit; afraid of ridicule, and the contempt of the wicked. This is the principle of the laws of honour. This is the foundation of duelling. It is not so much for his own sake that one man murders another in a duel; for the offence is often a mere trifle, a word, or look, that never would injure him. It is because the men of honour, as they call themselves, his companions, would consider him a coward, and laugh at him. Those companions may be unprincipled, perhaps dissipated; and contemners of the laws of God and man. And yet the duellist, against his own conscience, against the laws of God and man, against the good opinion of the virtuous part of the world, seeks by deadly aim to murder another, merely to gratify his dissolute companions. And this is the law of honour! This is the secret of duelling! This the source of that remorse that settles in awful blackness, and that thunders damnation around the duellist in his dying hours! It should be added, this is the source of much youthful guilt. We are led along by others. We have not firmness enough to follow the teachings of a father, and of the law of God. Young men are afraid of being called mean, and cowardly, by the wicked; and they often sink in vice, never to rise again! The love of pleasing is a very insufficient motive for persevering in consistency of moral conduct. Herod's regard to popularity had hitherto prevented him from destroying John; and now, when he was surrounded by those who approved of the deed, the same principle of action led him to imbrue his hands in the blood of the innocent.

[10. And he sent, and beheaded John in the prison. From the circumstance of John's head being brought and given to Salome during the festivity of Herod's birthday, it would seem that the prison in which the Baptist was confined was at hand in Tiberias, where Herod kept his court, and not in Machærus castle, as Josephus affirms; for Machærus was upon the frontier of Perea towards Arabia, and the distance of two days' journey from the capital.]

[The speedy termination of the Baptist's ministry and life was, according to St. Chrysostom, designed by Providence, that the people might not be divided in opinion between him and Jesus Christ. Our Lord's forerunner was wantonly sacrificed to the licentious fascinations of a young woman, instigated by the implacable vengeance of her mother, and to the rash oath of a worthless and merciless prince. How mysterious is the providence which left the life of so good a man in such infamous hands! which permitted it to be sacrificed to the malice of an abandoned harlot, the petulancy of a vain girl, and the rashness of a foolish, perhaps drunken prince, who made the prophet's head the reward of a dance! But we are sure the Almighty will recompense his faithful servants in another world for whatever they suffer in this.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

21—.8 ver. Let us pity the misery of those of the great, whom custom has doomed to pass their time in luxurious indulgence, or childish amusements, in the hotbeds of wantonness and crime.

Let us beware of rash oaths, and let us promise no more than we intend and have a right to perform.

How truly was the character fulfilled in Herodias, 'I find more bitter than death the woman, whose heart is snares and nets, and her hands as bands,' Ec. vii. 26.

(G. 28.)* UPON THE RETURN OF THE APOSTLES, THEY ARE TAKEN BY JESUS APART TO THE DESERT OF BETHSAIDA;† THE MULTITUDES FOLLOW THEM THITHER; FIVE THOUSAND MEN, BESIDE WOMEN AND CHILDREN, ARE FED WITH FIVE LOAVES OF BREAD AND TWO FISHES. Matt. xiv. 13—21. Mark vi. 30—44. Luke ix. 10—.7. John vi. 1—13

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. ——— Mk. vi. 30. Lu. ix. 10. The apostles return, and give to Jesus an account of their mission.

— xiv. 13. — vi. 31, .2. — ix. 10. Jno. vi. 1. Jesus invites them to a place of retirement, for rest and refreshment: they accordingly depart 'by ship privately, over the sea of Galilee,' to the neighbourhood of a city called Bethsaida.

— xiv. 13. — vi. 33. — ix. 11. — vi. 2. Many seeing Jesus and his disciples depart, follow on foot, out of the cities bordering on the lake, and are ready to receive him on his landing.

— xiv. 14. — vi. 34. — ix. 11. ———
Jesus has compassion on the multitude, and teaches them many things, instructing them in 'the kingdom of God;' he also heals those that have need of healing.

——— ——— ——— — vi. 3, 4.
Jesus goes up into a mountain, and there sits with his disciples.

——— ——— ——— — vi. 4.
To prepare for the ensuing discourse, (see § 43, p. 325,) we are reminded that the passover is near.

——— ——— ——— — vi. 5—7.
Jesus asks Philip whence bread might be procured for feeding the multitude. Philip supposes that it would be difficult to purchase enough to let each have even a little.

Mt. xiv. 15. Mk. vi. 35, .6. Lu. ix. 12. Jno. ——
As it draws toward evening, the twelve become urgent to have the people sent away, that they may procure lodging and victuals in the surrounding villages.

— xiv. 16. — vi. 37. — ix. 13. ———
Jesus answers that the people need not depart, and commands the twelve to supply them with food.

— xiv. 17. — vi. 37, .8. — ix. 13. — vi. 8, 9.
While they deem two hundred pennyworth too little, they have only five barley loaves and two fishes. Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, has discovered a lad with this quantity of provisions.

— xiv. 18, .9. — vi. 39—41. — ix. 14—.6. — vi. 10, .1.
Jesus directs that the people be seated by companies, fifty in a row, upon the grass; and taking the five loaves and two fishes, he gives thanks, looking up to heaven: and breaking the loaves, he gives to the disciples to distribute among the multitude.

— xiv. 20, .1. — vi. 42—.4. — ix. 17. — vi. 12, .3.
The people having been all sufficiently supplied, Jesus directs that the fragments be gathered up; and twelve baskets are filled, after 'five thousand men, beside women and children,' have been fed.

No. 40 continued. Line crossing the lake from Capernaum to the desert of Bethsaida in Decapolis.

MATT. xiv. 13—21. [Ver. 12, p. 308.]	MARK vi. 30—44. [Ver. 29, p. 308.]	LUKE ix. 10—.7. [Ver. 9, p. 305.]	JOHN vi. 1—13. [Ch. v. § xxiii. p. 175.]
	30 And the apostles	[a] And the apostles, 10 when-they-were-returned,[b]
	[b] gathered-themselves-together unto Jesus, and told απηγγειλαν him all things, both what they-had-done, and what they-had-taught.	told διηγησατο him all-that they-had-done.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. vi. 30. the apostles—First called by that name when appointed to be sent forth, as described, Lu. vi. 13, .4, § 27, p. 206—Paul and Barnabas were called apostles, as being sent forth from the church at Antioch, Ac. xiii. 2, 3; xiv. 4, 14, unto which they returned, and gave an account of their mission, ver. 26, .7.

gathered themselves, &c.—They had been dispersed 'two and two,' ch. vi. 7, § 39, p. 295—but now when the murder of John had taken place so unexpectedly, ver. 27, p. 308, a sense of danger may have arrested them in the course of their separate ministry, and made them run together to their Master, notwithstanding the manner in which he had forewarned them, as Mt. x. 16—25, § 39, p. 298—it appears they were not greatly prepared to meet danger until after Pentecost; at Jesus' apprehension, 'they all forsook him and fled,' Mk. xiv. 50, § 88—and again—'the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews,' Jno. xx. 19, § 95. Yet the killing of John, which seems now to have alarmed them, may have conduced to their not being interfered with by Herod's government.—See pp. 304—.8.

told him all—this may be taken to shadow out a more important reckoning—'for we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ . . . So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God,' Rom. xiv. 10—.2. 'They [the pastors] watch for your souls, as they that must give account,' He. xiii. 17.

NOTES.

Mk. vi. 30. And the apostles gathered themselves together. i. e., those whom he had sent out two and two, ver. 7, § 39, p. 295. Having either travelled their circuit, or been arrested therein by the news of John's murder, they returned, and met the Saviour at Capernaum.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. vi. 30. Let us be prepared to give an account of the manner in which we have executed the commission entrusted to us by the LORD. Teachers are not less responsible now, than were the apostles then.

* Lesson xl. in the System of Graduated Simultaneous Instruction.

† 'This is the first occasion upon which there is any proof that our Lord visited the dominions of Philip; and the second, upon which he appears to have crossed the lake'—(see § 31, p. 265).—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. p. 315.—See ADDENDA, p. 316, 'On the local position of the feeding of the multitude.'

CAN THE RUSH GROW UP WITHOUT MIRE? CAN THE FLAG GROW WITHOUT WATER?—Job viii. 11. WHERE SHALL WISDOM BE FOUND? AND WHERE IS THE PLACE OF UNDERSTANDING?—Job xxviii. 12.

MATT. xiv. 13, &c.	MARK vi. 31—44.	LUKE ix. 11.	JOHN vi. 1, 2.
	31 And he said unto them, Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest a-while: for there were many coming and going, and they had no leisure ευκαιρουν so much as to eat.
13 When Jesus heard of it, he departed thence by ship	32 And they departed	And he took them, and went aside privately κατ' ιδιαν	[a] After these things 1 Jesus went απηλθεν over the sea of Galilee, which is the sea of Tiberias. [a]
into a desert place	into a desert place	[d] into a desert place belonging to the city called Bethsaida. [e]
apart: and when the people had heard thereof, they followed him on foot out of the cities.	[e] by ship privately. 33 And the people saw them departing, and many knew him, and ran a foot thither out of all cities, and outwent them and came together unto him. [f]	And the people, when they knew it, followed him	11 And a great 2 multitude followed him,
			[f] because they saw his miracles which he did on them that were diseased. [g]
14 And Jesus went forth, and saw a great multitude,	34 [g] And Jesus, when he came out, saw much people

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

31. Come ye yourselves apart—'He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. 2, I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in him will I trust. 3, Surely he shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisome pestilence. 4, He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust: his truth shall be thy shield and buckler.' Ps. xci. 1—4—'Even they were alone, he expounded all things to his disciples,' Mk. iv. 34, § 32, p. 249.

so much as to eat—so ch. iii. 20, § 30, p. 233.

32. by ship—from Capernaum, a city at the north-west angle of the lake—'over the sea of Galilee, which is the sea of Tiberias,' Jno. vi. 1—'into a desert place belonging to the city called Bethsaida,' (at the north east angle,) Lu. ix. 10, and Mk. viii. 22, § 49.

33. ran a-foot thither—as if fore-shadowing the time when 'unto him shall the gathering of the people be,' Ge. xlix. 10—it might be said, 'Ye did run well,' Ga. v. 7—for a time they seemed 'swift to hear,' Ja. i. 19.

NOTES.

31. Coming and going. Coming to be healed, and retiring.

Mt. xiv. 13. When Jesus heard of it, he departed, &c. He retired to a place apart from Herod's jurisdiction, where he could be safe from Herodias' malice: and herein he gives us an example to avoid irritating unbelievers. Others think, from Mk. vi. 31, supra, that it was simply as a respite and refreshment for himself and the apostles.

Jno. vi. 1. Went over the sea of Galilee. The disciples found Jesus at Capernaum. Matthew and Mark simply state Jesus' departure 'into a desert place by ship privately.' Luke specifies it as 'belonging to the city called Bethsaida.' John expressly says that 'Jesus went over the sea of Galilee, which is the sea of Tiberias.' There was a city called BETHSAIDA, of Decapolis, on the north-eastern shore of the sea of Galilee, near to where this sea is entered by the Jordan. It was enlarged and adorned by Philip the tetrarch, who called it Julias, in honour of his wife, a daughter of the emperor Augustus.—See GEOG. NOTICE, p. 315, 'Bethsaida.' This is the first instance of all the Gospels uniting to narrate the same history.

[Mt. xiv. 13. On foot. πεζῇ, with an ellipsis of ἀπῆλθε; not on foot, as it is translated, but by land, opposed to ἐν πλοίῳ, by ship. Jesus had just completed his third circuit of Galilee, and 'his name was spread abroad,' Mk. vi. 14, 5, § 39, p. 304.]

Jno. vi. 2. Because they saw his miracles, &c. They saw that he had the power to supply their wants and heal their diseases, and they therefore followed him—see ver. 26, § 43, p. 325; see also Mt. xiv. 14, supra.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[31 ver. Relaxation from labour is equally the command of Christ to his disciples, as active devotedness. They must seek in retirement, and communion with him, that renewal of strength which is necessary for his more public service.]

34 ver. Let us, after the example of Jesus, not refuse to shew compassion for those who may require our assistance, even at a time, and in a place, where we may have sought retirement and refreshment for ourselves.

GOD PRIVILEGES THE CHRISTIAN TO WORK, AND THEN MEETS HIM IN IT. A SAINT MAY SUFFER WITHOUT SINNING, BUT HE CANNOT SIN WITHOUT SUFFERING.

I AM THE LORD, I CHANGE NOT; THEREFORE YE SONS OF JACOB ARE NOT CONSUMED.—Mal. iii. 6.

FOR HE DOTH NOT AFFLICT WILLINGLY NOR GRIEVE THE CHILDREN OF MEN.—Lam. iii. 33.

MATT. xiv. 15.	MARK vi. 35.	LUKE ix. 12.	JOHN vi. 3—7.
and was-moved-with-compassion toward them,	and was-moved-with-compassion toward them, because they-were as sheep not having a-shepherd: and he-began to-teach them many-things. [k]	and he-received them, [k] and-spake unto-them of the kingdom of God, and healed them that had need of-healing. [c] and he-healed their sick.
			[3] And Jesus went-up ανηλθε into a mountain, and there he-sat with his disciples. And the [4] passover, a feast of-the Jews, was nigh.
			When-Jesus then-lifted-up [5] his eyes, and saw θεασαμενος a-great company come unto him, he-saith unto Philip, Whence shall-we-buy bread αρτους, that these may-eat? And this he-said to-prove πειρα- [6] ζων him: for he-himself knew ηδει what he-would do. Philip [7] answered him, Two-hundred pennyworth-of bread αρτοι is-not-sufficient αρκουσιν for-them, that every-one of-them may-take a-little. [c]
15 [k] And when-it -was evening, [l] his disciples came-	35 And when-the-day-was now far-spent, [l] his disciples came-		And when- [c] 12 the day-began to-wear-away κλινειν, then came the twelve,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

34. was moved with compassion—Jesus had come hither for retirement, ver. 31, p. 310—but he 'pleased not himself,' Rom. xv. 3.

as sheep, &c.—see on Mt. ix. 36, § 39, p. 294.

Jno vi. 4. the passover, &c.—there had already been two passovers before this, since our Lord commenced his public ministry, Jno. ii. 13, § 12, p. 81, and v. 1, § 23, p. 175.—See NOTE.

6. to prove him—so the Lord proved his people in the wilderness, and fed them with manna, De. viii. 2, 3, 16.

NOTES.

Mt. xiv. 14. Moved with compassion. 'Εσπλαγχνίσθη, he was moved with tender compassion; so the word should in general be translated. It always intimates, that motion of the bowels, accompanied with extreme tenderness and concern, which is felt at the sight of the miseries of another. Mk. vi. 34, says he 'was moved with compassion toward them, because they were as sheep not having a shepherd.' A shepherd is one who takes care of a flock. It is his duty to feed it; to defend it from wolves and other wild beasts; to take care of the young and feeble. In eastern countries this is a principal employment of the inhabitants. When Christ says the people were as sheep without a shepherd, he means that they had no teachers and guides who cared for them, and took pains to instruct them. The scribes and Pharisees were haughty and proud, and cared little for the common people; and when they did attempt to teach them, they led them astray by unsound doctrine.

Jno. vi. 4. The passover, a feast of the Jews. This, the third passover in our Lord's ministry, he does not seem to have attended in Jerusalem.—See ADDENDA, § 6, pp. 43, 4, 'The passover.' Much of the ensuing discourse may be illustrated by a reference to this approaching festival.—See § 43, p. 325—.34, Jno. vi. 25—71.—See ADDENDA, p. 316, 'On the time of the year of the feeding of the five thousand.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mk. vi. 34, Jno. vi. 2. It is when the people shall go forth to seek Jesus, as having faith in his power and mercy, that they may expect to have his shepherd care exercised over them. Jesus desires that the people should not remain ignorant, or be given the knowledge of only one truth. He taught 'them many things,' and is both able and willing to do so still, for those who are made willing to receive his instructions.]

Lu. ix. 11. It is the will of the 'good Shepherd,' that the people should especially be instructed concerning 'the kingdom of God;' and that whilst they are taught to prepare for the world to come, their welfare in the present state should not be neglected. He 'healed them that had need of healing.'

Jno. vi. 3—6. Whilst we ourselves seek to eat bread, let us have due consideration for the wants of others, and hear the Lord asking us for the means of supplying their necessities.

[7 ver. The Lord allows us sometimes to see our own insufficiency, that we may the more truly experience that our sufficiency is in him.]

MATT. xiv. 16, .7.	MARK vi. 36—.8.	LUKE ix. 13.	JOHN vi 8, 9.
to him, saying, This-is a-desert place, and the time is-now-past;	unto him, and-said, This-is a desert place, and now the-time is far passed:	and-said unto-him,
send-the multitude away, that they-may-go into the villages,	36 send-them-away, that they-may-go [m] into the-country round-about, and into the-villages,	Send-the multitude-away, that they-may-go [m] into the towns and country round-about,
and-buy themselves victuals βρωματα.	[n] and-buy themselves bread αρτους: for they-have nothing to-eat."	and lodge," and get victuals επισιτισμον
		[o] for we-are here in a-desert place.[p]
16 [p] But Jesus said unto-them, They-need not depart; give ye them to-eat.[q]	37 He answered and-said unto-them, Give ye them to-eat.	But he-said unto them, Give ye them to-eat.	13
17 And they say unto-him,	[q] And they-say unto-him, Shall-we-go and-buy two-hundred penny-worth of-bread, and give	And they said,
	38 them to-eat? He saith unto-them, How-many loaves have-ye? go and see. And when-they-knew,[r]
	they-say,		[r] One of his disciples, 8 Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, saith unto-him,
We-have here but five loaves, and two fishes.	Five, and two fishes.	[s] We have no more but five loaves and two fishes;	There-is a lad here, 9 which hath five barley loaves, and two small-fishes but what are they among so-many?[s] except we should-go and-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. vi. 36. for they had nothing to eat—they had come hastily, ver. 35—were long detained, while he taught them 'many things,' ver. 34—and healed their sick, Lu. ix. 11—they were thus, as it were, taken by surprise in 'a desert place,' ver. 35.

37. give ye them to eat—He who gave the word, gave power to do what was commanded, ver. 41—as when he directed the man with the withered hand to stretch it forth. Mt. xii. 13, § 25, p. 197, &c.—and as when he gave comm. to the apost. x. 8, § 30, p. 206.

38. How many loaves have ye?—It is in the right and liberal, yet careful use of what we have, that God is pleased to give more—so it was with the widow of Sarepta, 1 Ki. xvii. 8—16.

Five, and two fishes—Andrew appears to have been quick and minute in observing, and ready in reporting. Jno. i. 40, .1. § 10, p. 71; xii. 22, § 82—he noticed not only the number, but the kind of loaves, and size of the fishes, Jno. vi. 8, 9.

NOTES.

6. To prove him. To try him, to see if he had faith in Jesus' power to supply what was needful for them.

Lu. ix. 12. Day began to wear away. Drew towards evening.

[Mt. xiv. 15. When it was evening. οψιας γενομενης, i. e., the first evening, which commenced at three o'clock. Nor, considering the aptitude of the place, and the time of year, a little before the passover, is this inconsistent with the expression of Lu. ix. 12, ἡ δὲ ἡμερα ἠρξατο κλινειν, for the day is there quite on the wane. That mentioned further on at Mt. xiv. 23, § 41, p. 318, is the second evening, which commenced at sunset.]

The time is now past. 'The time for supper,' the chief meal, which in that country was commonly after the heat of the day.

Lu. ix. 12. And lodge. Ἱνα καταλυσωσι, i. e., 'that they may seek καταλυματα, or lodgings;' as ch. xix 7, § 96, and Ge. xxiv. 23 (Sept.) The figure is derived from travellers unloading their beasts, and nightling themselves.

[And get victuals. ἐπισιτισμόν. 'May procure food for themselves.' Επισιτ. is properly a military term, literally signifying a provisioning.]

Mk. vi. 37. Two hundred pennyworth. In the original it is two hundred denarii. These were Roman coin, amounting to about sevenpence each. The whole two hundred, therefore, would have been equal to about 5*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.* In the view of Philip this was a great sum; a sum which twelve poor fishermen were by no means able to provide.

Jno. vi. 9. Five barley loaves. Barley was a cheap kind of food, scarcely one-third the value of wheat, and was much used by poor people.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mk. vi. 35—.8. Let us not limit the power of God to our ability, but do what he directs, looking to him for the blessing. Let us 'seek first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness,' and all things necessary the Lord will add thereunto. Let us not think that we have acted as the disciples of Christ, if we have sent the people away in want of the common necessaries of life, without an effort on our part to supply their wants.]

O THOU THAT ART NAMED THE HOUSE OF JACOB, IS THE SPIRIT OF THE LORD STRAITENED? ARE THESE HIS DOINGS? DO NOT MY WORDS DO GOOD TO HIM THAT WALKETH UPRIGHTLY?—Micah ii. 7.

MATT. xiv. 18, 19.	MARK vi. 39—41.	LUKE ix. 14—16.	JOHN vi 10, 1.
		buy meat for all this people. For they were about five-thousand men.	14
18 [a] He said, Bring them hither to-me
19 And he-commanded the multitude to-sit-down	39 And he-commanded them to-make-all-sit-down by-companies συμποσια συμποσια	[u] And he-said to his disciples, Make-them-sit-down by fifties in-a-company [v] κλισιας ανα πεντεκοντα.	And Jesus said, Make the men sit-down. 10 on the grass,	[r] upon the green grass, [w]		[w] Now there-was much grass in the place. So the men sat-down, [x]
	40 And they-sat-down [x] in-ranks πρασιαι πρασιαι,	And they-did so, and	15
	by hundreds, and by fifties. [y]	made-them-all-sit-down.	[y] in-number about five-thousand. [z]
and took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and	41 [z] And when-he-had-taken the five loaves and the two fishes, [a]	Then he-took the five loaves and the two fishes, and-	16 And Jesus took the loaves ; [a] and when-he-had-given-thanks, [b] 11
looking-up to heaven, he blessed, and brake,	he-looked-up to heaven, and-blessed, and brake [c] the loaves, [d]	[b] looking-up to heaven, he-blessed them, and brake, [c]
[d] and gave the loaves to his disciples,	and gave them to his disciples	and gave to-the disciples	he-distributed to-the disciples,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. ix. 13. except we should go and buy, &c.—like their fathers, who said, 'Can God furnish a table in the wilderness?' . . . 'Can he give bread also?' the disciples seem to have been in danger of limiting 'the Holy One of Israel,' Ps. lxxviii. 19, 20, 41—He who provided wine at the marriage in Cana, Jno. ii. 1—11, § 11, p. 76, was able now to fulfil his promise, 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you,' Mt. vi. 33, § 19, p. 136.

Mk. vi. 40. by hundreds, and by fifties—Israel also, for their better management, had been by Moses divided into hundreds and fifties, De. i. 15—'God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as in all churches of the saints,' 1 Co. xiv. 33—'Let all things be done decently and in order,' ver. 40—disciples had not only to be assembled to Jesus, but 'set in order,' Tit. i. 5, for the better ministration to them not only of the bread of life, but also of temporal blessing, Ac. vi. 1—4.

41. when he had taken, &c.—'Be content with such things as ye have:' not forgetting the cause of contentment; 'for He hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee,' He. xiii. 5—'A little that a righteous man hath is better than the riches of many wicked,' Ps. xxxvii. 16—with the blessing of the Lord, that little can enlarge to the occasion, like the widow's pot of oil, 2 Ki. iv. 1—7.

NOTES.

[Mk. vi. 39. By companies. συμποσιον, signifies, 'a company of guests at a table;' but κλισια, the word in Luke, denotes properly, as many of them as reclined on one bed, according to the eastern manner of eating. The members of each company might be placed in two rows of fifty each, the one row with their faces towards those of the other, as if a long table had been between them. The first company of a hundred being thus set down, the second was to be placed beside the first in a like form, and the third by the second, till all were set down, the direction of the ranks being up the hill. And as the two ranks of every division were formed into one company, by being placed with their faces towards each other, so they were distinguished from the neighbouring companies, by lying with their backs turned to their backs; and the whole body, thus ranged, would resemble a garden-plot divided into seed-beds, which is the proper signification of πρασιαι, ranks, from πράσον, an old word, signifying an onion-bed, and thus any plot of ground of a regular form, as square or parallelogram.]

Mt. xiv. 19. He blessed. Christ blessing the food is called a giving of thanks, ch. xv. 36, [Mk. viii. 6,] § 45; and in this very instance, Jno. vi. 11, ηυχαρ. Lu. ix 16 adds, 'He blessed them,' i.e., the loaves: He probably blessed God as the donor also, and called down upon the provisions that singular blessing by which they were to be multiplied in the distribution.

And brake. The Jewish bread was formed into cakes; broad, thin, and brittle, like our biscuits; and therefore required to be broken, rather than cut.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. vi. 39, 40. Jesus has a regard to order and beauty of arrangement, and would have the people systematically dealt with, for their greater comfort and better provision.

Mt. xiv. 19. Let us, after the example of Jesus, give thanks for what we have, and look up to heaven for the blessing which alone can truly enrich; it is that which can give the most delicious flavour to the most

MATT. xiv. 20, .1.	MARK vi. 42—.4.	LUKE ix. 17.	JOHN vi. 12, .3.
and the disciples to-the multitude.[g]	to set-before them; and [f]the two fishes divided-he among-them-all.[e]	to-set-before the multitude.	and the disciples to-them [c]that-were-set-down; and likewise[f] of the fishes [e] as-much-as they-would.[h]
20 [h]And they-did-all-eat, and were-filled [i] εχορτασθησαν:	42 And they-did-all-eat, and were-filled εχορτασθησαν.	And they-did-eat, and were-all-filled εχορτασθησαν:	17 [i] When they-were-filled, he-said unto his disciples, Gather-up the fragments that-remain, that nothing be-lost.
and they-took-up of-the fragments that remained twelve baskets full.	43 And they-took-up twelve baskets full of-the-fragments, [k]and of the fishes.[l]	and there-was-taken-up of-fragments that remained to-them twelve baskets. [Ch. ix. 18, § 50, Vol. ii.]	Therefore they-gathered-them-together, and filled twelve baskets with-the-fragments of the five barley loaves,[k] [l] which remained-over-and-above unto-them that-had-eaten.[m] [Ver. 14, § xli. p. 317.]
21 [m]And they that-had-eaten were about five-thousand men, beside women and [c] children.	44 And they that-did-eat of the loaves were about five-thousand men.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

42. and were filled—The disciples of Jesus will yet have to say, 'Thou openest thine hand, and satisfiest the desire of every living thing,' Ps. cxiv. 16—'he hath filled the hungry with good things,' Lu. i. 53, § 2, p. 12—but the disciples were taught frugality, as well as generous distribution.

Jno. vi. 12. Gather up, &c.—this rule they followed afterwards, in the feeding of the four thousand with seven loaves, when seven baskets of fragments remained, Mt. xv. 37, § 46.

Mk. vi. 43. twelve baskets full, &c.—'The twelve,' Lu. ix. 12, p. 311, who had been ministering to the wants of the many, ver. 16, experienced the truth of the saying, 'There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth'—'The liberal soul shall be made fat,' Pr. xi. 24, .5—they might each have now a basket to himself, in place of five loaves among them all, Lu. ix. 13 p. 312—so it is also in ministering the 'bread of life'—'the liberal deviseth liberal things; and by liberal things shall he stand,' Is. xxxii. 8.

NOTES.

Jno. vi. 12. Gather up the fragments, &c. The injunction is not recorded by the other evangelists. It was, with reason, thought worthy of mention by St. John, as conveying, from the lips of our Lord himself, the important lesson—that no part, however small, of the bounties of Providence to man are to be wasted. And it was undoubtedly to enforce this lesson that our Lord gave the injunction; since it was the custom of the country so to do. Nay, to neglect gathering up fragments was regarded by the Rabbins on the same footing as neglect of the law or religious duty. The quantity gathered would be direct evidence to the truth of the miracle.

13. Filled twelve baskets.' This is an extraordinary instance of our Lord's power. These were probably large baskets, termed cophinous (from whence is derived our word coffin), and might serve with hay at this season of the year (about the time of the passover) for couches or litters, and is a different sort to the baskets mentioned at the feeding of the four thousand persons, which were 'hand baskets,' and were carried by the hand; but the first mentioned were usually slung from the shoulder. The Jews commonly carried food with them in baskets when travelling, especially among Gentiles, and to avoid eating unclean food.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

humble fare: there is an elevation of heart and soul in him who says of a crust, 'This comes to me from my heavenly Father—my God.' In the hour of extremity, God is ever present to help all that trust in him.

Jesus observed order, not only in placing the people in hundreds and fifties, as Moses had divided Israel in the wilderness; but he also used method in the distribution of the bread, giving first 'to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.'

It is the appointment of God, that some should give, and others receive; that some should command, and others obey; but it is the duty of all to yield subjection to Jesus for the reception of blessing.

20 ver. Jesus can make a little go a great way. The multitudes that it seemed impossible to supply had each 'as much as they would.' [i] They did all eat, and were filled.'

Jno. vi. 12. Jesus, although he gave plenty, gave nothing for waste. He teaches frugality as well as beneficence, saying, 'Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost.'

13 ver. The disciples lost nothing by giving their services for the good of others, at the command of Christ. There was a basket-full for each of the twelve, after all they had given away.

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICE.

BETHSAIDA, p. 310.

'DESERT PLACE BELONGING TO THE CITY CALLED BETHSAIDA,' Luke ix. 10.

There were two cities named Bethsaida, on the borders of the lake: one, which was the city of Andrew and Simon and Philip, on the western shore; the other on the eastern, at the northern extremity, not far from the entrance of the Jordan into the lake.

The following particulars, from Dr. Robinson's 'Biblical Researches,' will be interesting, in connexion with the probable locality of the miracle of feeding the five thousand:—'At half-past two o'clock, after an hour and five minutes from Tell-Hum, which is situated near the north-western extremity of the lake, on a small projecting curve of the shore, we reached the banks of the Jordan, just at its entrance into the lake. The river here runs near the foot of the western hills, which next its valley are steep, but not high; while, on the other side of the stream, a fine fertile plain stretches off along the end of the lake, for an hour or more, quite to the mountains which skirt the eastern shore.

'The estuary of the Jordan here presents an unusual appearance. The strong southerly winds have driven up a bank of sand before the mouth, which now rises above the water, and, being connected with the eastern shore, extends for 15 or 20 rods S.W., forming a channel for the river for some distance along the shore on that side. We had thought of crossing the Jordan and encamping on the other bank; but as we found the stream not easily fordable with the luggage, and the ground also at this point was not favourable for encamping, we concluded to go to some tents which we saw on the western bank, eight or ten minutes higher up. An intervening marsh, occupied in part as a rice field, compelled us to make a circuit quite to the foot of the hills; and after a quarter of an hour we reached the tents and pitched for the night in their neighbourhood. Among the tents were several huts slightly built of reeds; these are common in this quarter, as well as around the south end of the Dead Sea. The Ghawarineh who dwell here have a few magazines rudely built of stone. Other similar encampments of the same people are scattered upon the plain, east of the river.

'The plain, skirted on the east by mountains which enclose the lake, is shut in also on the north by similar mountains of considerable altitude, which approach close to the Jordan higher up, and confine it to a valley of no great width. The plain has much the appearance of an alluvial deposit brought down by the Jordan; or more probably driven up by the prevailing southerly winds from the bottom of the lake.

'At the N.W. corner of the plain, a lower spur or promontory from the northern mountains runs out for some distance southwards along the river, and forms for a time the eastern wall of its valley. On its southern extremity we could distinguish ruins; the people on the spot call it simply et-Tell, and knew for it no other name. The plain itself bears the name of Batihah, signifying a low tract liable to be overflowed by streams.'

Dr. Robinson was too ill to cross the river and examine several sites of ruins which the Ghawarineh spoke of, and gives the following notices of the plain, drawn chiefly from Mr. Smith's notes:*—'Taking the best mules, and accompanied by the Shiekh on his fine mare, they forded the river below our tent near the lake, on a sand bar, where the water came halfway up the sides of the mules. Leaving the ford at five o'clock, their course lay at first about S. 40° E. along the shore. In five minutes they came to the ruins of a village of moderate size, called el-A'raj, consisting entirely of unhewn volcanic stones, like those along the west coast. The only relic of antiquity noticed here was a small sarcophagus of the same material.

'Proceeding still in the same direction along the coast, they reached at five hours twenty minutes the similar village of el-Mes'adiyeh. The houses, built of the same species of stone, are mostly in ruins; but several of them are kept in a sort of repair by the Ghawarineh, as magazines for their grain and other products.*

'The Shiekh spoke of Dukah as another like ruin, further down upon the coast; they went on and reached it at five hours forty-seven minutes. It occupies a slight eminence projecting a little into the lake, and is considerably larger than either of the villages already described. Like them, it is composed entirely of volcanic stones, and several of the houses are repaired as magazines. It lies within a short distance of the eastern mountains, where they come down to the sea, and give to the coast a southern direction.†

'The party had now rode, in forty-seven minutes, over nearly the full length of the plain along the lake, but at a much more rapid pace than usual, so that the whole distance may be taken at somewhat more than an hour, according to the ordinary rate of travel with mules. The average breadth they estimated at perhaps half the length. The general direction of the coast from the mouth of the Jordan to Dukah is about S. 25° E. From Dukah to the Tell, the course lay diagonally across the plain, and afforded an opportunity of examining it more closely. It is perfectly level, and a more fertile tract can scarcely be imagined. There is a striking resemblance between it and the Ghuweir, north of Mejdel, in form, climate, soil, and productions; yet the Batihah appears, if anything, to be superior. Like the other, it is given up to the Ghawarineh, who cultivate it, and rear large herds of horned cattle, among which are many buffaloes. . . . The actual existence of this animal in Palestine leaves little doubt that it is the Reem of the Hebrew Scriptures, for which both ancient and modern versions have substituted the apparently fabulous unicorn, Nu. xxiii. 22; De. xxxiii. 17; Job xxxix. 9, 10; Ps. xxii. 21; xxix. 6; xcii. 10. The Reem is several times coupled with, or compared to, the ox—see especially, Job l. ch. . . .

'The plain is irrigated by three perennial streams besides the Jordan. . . .

'The Ghawarineh were encamped all along the shore, mostly in small huts made of reeds and rushes, though a few had tents of black cloth. They never live in houses: there were probably 150 of these temporary dwellings. The people, for the most part, were sitting listless in and around their open tents and huts, exposing themselves fully to the strong lake-breeze, under the temperature of 90° F., and apparently enjoying themselves in their indolent mode of life. . . .

'The party reached et-Tell at six hours forty minutes. It is the largest of all the ruins around the plain, and is considered as a sort of capital by the Ghawarineh; although they have lost the ancient name, and now occupy in it only a few houses as magazines. The Tell, as we have seen, extends from the foot of the northern mountains southwards, near the point where the Jordan issues from them. The ruins cover a large portion of it, and are quite extensive; but, so far as could be observed, consist entirely of unhewn volcanic stones, without any distinct trace of ancient architecture.

'In returning, they forded the Jordan not far from the Tell, when the water reached no higher than the bellies of the mules. They regained our tent at twenty minutes past seven o'clock.

'This Tell and the ruins upon it above described are probably no other than the site of the ancient Bethsaida of Gaulonitis, afterwards called Julias; which Pliny places on the east of the lake and the Jordan, and Josephus describes as situated in lower Gaulonitis, just above the entrance of the Jordan into the lake. Bethsaida was originally only a village; but was built up and enlarged by Philip the tetrarch, not long after the birth of Christ, and received the name of Julias, in honour of Julia, the daughter of Augustus. Philip would seem to have made it in part his residence; here he died, and was buried in a costly tomb. This is doubtless the Bethsaida near to which Jesus fed the five thousand on the east of the lake; and probably also the same where the blind man was healed. There seems to be no later historical notice of the place whatever.'—Robinson's Biblical Itesearches, Vol. III. pp. 301—3.*

* The following bearings were taken here:—Tiberias, S. 39° W.; A'raj, N. 40° W.; et-Tell, N. 5° E.; Dukah, about S. 25° E.

† From Dukah, Tiberias bore S. 54° W.; Kurun Hattin, S. 70° W.; et-Tell, N. 5° W.

The desert country is described by the evangelist (John vi. 10, p. 313) as having 'much grass in the place:' it must have extended to the lake; for when Jesus left the ship, 'he saw much people.' The city, probably, was one of the ten which made up the district Decapolis.

Dr. Robinson continues: 'The Jordan, as we saw it here, is less broad, less deep, and less rapid, than where we had come upon it near the Dead Sea. I estimated the breadth at about two-thirds of what it is at Jericho; that is, from 60 to 75 feet. It is a sluggish stream, turbid, but not clayey; winding between low alluvial banks, from which it washes off portions in one place to deposit them in another: so that the channel would seem to be continually changing. There are many bars and shallows, where the river may be occasionally forded; in other parts the water has considerable depth, but no strength of current. Many neat cattle and buffaloes may be seen swimming the river. The latter require somewhat deep water in order to swim, as only a small part of the head appears above the surface.'—Ibid. p. 309.

ADDENDA.

ON THE TIME OF THE YEAR OF THE FEEDING OF THE FIVE THOUSAND.

'The sixteenth of April, U.C. 782, was the day of the Jewish Passover; and, consequently, the day of that passover, which, according to the Gospel of St. John, vi. 4. (p. 314,) must have ensued next upon the first instance of the miraculous feeding. The time of this miracle is marked out by two criterions—one that there was much grass at the time; the other, that the passover was near at hand, (Jno. vi. 4, 10,) and both these concur to the beginning of the month of Nisan, which in this instance is the beginning of the month of April. The period during which grass was most abundant in Judæa was from the first of Adar to the middle of Nisan; which being understood of a rectified year would be, as in the present instance, from the beginning of March to the middle of April. At the beginning of April, then, in any year, it was morally certain that there would be abundance of grass, especially in the places devoted to pasture, such as the desert in the neighbourhood of Bethsaida, where this miracle took place: and yet the passover, as in the present instance, might still be to come. And this coincidence is a strong presumptive argument that the passover of the year in question is rightly to be assigned to the sixteenth of April, and not to any earlier date. To fall on any earlier day, it must have fallen on the seventeenth or eighteenth of March.

'If, now, the sixteenth of April, or the fourteenth of Nisan, fell this year on the Monday, the twelfth of April, or the tenth of Nisan, fell on the Thursday, and we may take it for granted that the miracle, however near to the passover it might have been wrought, could not have been wrought so near to it as the tenth of Nisan. If so, the miracle could not have been wrought on Thursday, the twelfth of April. But it might have been wrought a week before that, that is, on Thursday, the fifth of April: and if it was then wrought, it would be wrought on the day of our Saviour's birth. The bread, with which the people were at that time fed, was typical of the spiritual food which his own body and blood was to supply to the souls of mankind; and if the people were fed this year with the one, as the other was sacrificed for the whole world in the next, on the same day—and that, the day of the birth of Christ—the correspondence of the type and the antitype becomes so much the more enhanced.

'One thing at least is certain—that the people were fed on this day in the year, U.C. 782, exactly at the same time on which Christ expired in the next; viz., between the first Jewish evening and the second; the middle point of which is the ninth hour of the day. It makes in favour of the same conclusion that, as the people were fed at Bethsaida on the evening or afternoon of this day, so they are seen to have followed our Saviour at Capernaum on the morning of the day but one after, (vi. 22, .5, 59, § 42, .3, pp. 322, ..5.) When they rejoined him, it was in the synagogue, whence we may reasonably infer it was also on the sabbath day. If so, they had been fed on the Thursday before; and, consequently, either upon Thursday, the fifth of April, or Thursday, the tenth of Nisan. It could not be on Thursday, the tenth of Nisan: it must therefore have been on Thursday, the fifth of April.'—Greswell, Vol. I. Diss. xii. pt. 406—..8.

* ON THE LOCAL POSITION OF THE MIRACLE OF THE FEEDING OF THE MULTITUDE, Mr. Greswell, in Vol. II. Diss. viii. p. 315, first edition, has the following remarks:

'It is distinctly affirmed by St. Mark, ch. vi. 33, (p. 310,) that the multitude saw our Lord and his disciples setting out; and . . . . that they ran before in great numbers, to be ready to meet them on the opposite side. Capernaum and Bethsaida were contiguous to the northern extremity of the lake, and not very far from each other, Jos. Ant. xviii. ii. 1; Bell. ii. ix. 1; iii. x. 7 . . . . Vita, 72, with the Jordan only between them, the breadth of which at this part of its course could be nothing considerable; and though it might require a great effort of speed, yet if both parties set out from Capernaum at the same time, early in the morning, they might both meet at the other side of the lake again before it was noon, or by the middle of the day.

'When Jesus arrived . . . . both St. Matthew and St. Mark affirm that he beheld the multitudes; that is, he found many of them on the spot; and by this unexpected spectacle he was so touched that he was moved with compassion; and his original purpose of conveying himself from them . . . . was changed into . . . . ministering to their spiritual wants. . . . .

'Though Jesus had left Capernaum that very morning, yet the business of teaching the people, and performing miracles on such as needed it, might evidently be over by the ninth hour of the day: the period of ὀψία ὥρα—in opposition to sunset, the period of ὀψία ἡμέρα. At this time the day might strictly be said to have begun to decline, and Lu. ix. 12 (p. 311) would be critically in unison with Mt. xiv. 15, Mk. vi. 35, (ib.); the usual supper-hour, too, or at least the season of the evening's repast, among the Jews, would not be far off.'

Mr. Greswell, in the second edition of his 'Dissertations,' Vol. II. p. 344—..6, gives many reasons for believing that the scene of the miracle was nearer to the southern extremity of the lake, on the eastern side. In the absence of positive proof, we have retained the first locality as chosen in all the charts of our Lord's life and ministry, viz., 'the desert place belonging to the city called Bethsaida,' and which city Josephus places at the point where the Jordan enters the lake, and at a furlong's distance from the shore, nearly over against Capernaum.—See GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICE, 'Bethsaida,' p. 315, supra.

LET NONE OF YOU IMAGINE EVIL IN YOUR HEARTS AGAINST HIS NEIGHBOUR; . . . LOVE NO FALSE OATH: FOR ALL THESE ARE THINGS THAT I HATE, SAITH THE LORD.—Zech. viii. 17.

SECTION 41.—(G. 29.)—JESUS DISMISSES HIS DISCIPLES TO CAPERNAUM: WALKS UPON THE WATER; AND EMPOWERS PETER TO DO THE SAME: THE SHIP IN WHICH THE DISCIPLES ARE, IS MIRACULOUSLY TRANSPORTED ACROSS THE LAKE. Matt. xiv. 22—33. Mark vi. 45—52. John vi. 14—21.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. ——— Mk. ——— Jno. vi. 14. The men who had seen the miracle of feeding the five thousand with five barley loaves and two fishes, conclude that Jesus is 'that prophet that should come into the world.'

— xiv. 22. — vi. 45. ——— Jesus constrains his disciples 'to go before him,' by ship, 'unto the other side.'

— xiv. 23. — vi. 46. — vi. 15. Having perceived that the people would 'take him by force, to make him a king,' he separates himself from them, and goes 'into a mountain to pray.'

— xiv. 24. — vi. 47. — vi. 16—8. It is night, and the ship into which the disciples have entered, is tossed amid darkness and storm.

Mt. xiv. 25—.7. Mk. vi. 48—50. Jno. vi. 19, 20. Jesus comes to them 'walking on the sea.' The disciples are alarmed at the appearance, but Jesus says to them, 'Be of good cheer: it is I; be not afraid.'

— xiv. 28, .9. ——— ——— Peter asks, and obtains leave from Jesus, to walk to him on the water.

— xiv. 30, .1. ——— ——— The faith of the forward disciple begins to fail, but he is upheld by Jesus.

— xiv. 32. — vi. 51, .2. — vi. 21. The disciple and his Master are received into the ship.

— xiv. 33. Jesus is, by those in the ship, confessed to be 'the Son of God.' The recent deliverance makes a more powerful impression on their minds than did the preceding mercy.

No. 41. Jesus dismisses his disciples to Capernaum.

MATT. xiv. 22—.4.	MARK vi. 45—.7.	JOHN vi. 14—.7.
		[c] Then those men, when they 14 had seen the miracle that Jesus did, said, This is of a truth that prophet that should come into the world.[b]
22 [b] And straightway Jesus constrained his disciples to get into a ship, and to go before him unto the other side,[c] while he sent the multitudes away.	45 And straightway he constrained his disciples to get into the ship, and to go to the other side before [c] unto Bethsaida, while he sent away the people.[d]	[d] When Jesus therefore 15 perceived that they would

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. vi. 14. of a truth, &c.—see again ch. vii. 40, § 55, 'Of a truth this is the Prophet'—Jesus had before produced ample evidence to the truth of his Messiahship, ch. v. 32—47, § 23, pp. 179, .80—and had particularly adverted to his works, as of themselves bearing sufficient witness, ver. 36—and see on Lu. vii. 16, § 29, p. 222.

that prophet—the prophet spoken of by Moses, who was to be, in respect to the new covenant, what Moses himself was with regard to the old, De. xviii. 15—.8—'that prophet,' which the Baptist was not, but of whom he testified, Jno. i. 21—.7, § 10, pp. 68, .9, 'of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets, did write,' ver. 45—see 'Scrip. Illus.' § 10, p. 72—see Ac. iii. 22, .3. that should come—as by Moses, whose writings occupy the beginning of the Old Testament, the Messiah had been promised as 'a prophet'—see above—so by Malachi, the last of the Old Testament prophets, Christ is spoken of as he that should come, ch. iii. 1, 2—see on Mk. i. 2, 3, § 7, p. 49. 'Behold, I send,' &c., Jno. iv. 25, § 13, p. 94, and on Lu. iv. 43, 'therefore am I sent,' § 18, p. 115—'Art thou he that should come?' Mt. xi. 3, § 29, pp. 222, .3—'He that cometh in the name of the Lord'—'the prophet of Nazareth of Galilee,' ch. xxi. 9—11, § 82.

Mt. xiv. 22. constrained his disciples, &c.—he thus took measures to prevent their being led into the temptation of joining with the multitudes in disorderly efforts to make him a king—see on Jno. vi. 15.

NOTES.

Jno. vi. 14. That prophet. The wonderful works that were done by Jesus, and which they had lately witnessed in his ministry among them, not only in Galilee, but in the desolate region where they had seen him provide for the fainting multitude—all that he did, convinced them that he must indeed be 'that prophet' spoken of by Moses—see 'Scripture Illustrations,' supra. The phrase is one by which the expected Messiah was commonly designated.

Mk. vi. 45. To the other side before unto Bethsaida. 'Jesus was still in the desert place belonging to the city called Bethsaida, on the eastern side of the sea, and he dismissed his disciples unto the other side, i.e., to Bethsaida in Galilee: the site of which was in the region of Gennesaret, between Capernaum and the southern extremity of the lake. The time of their departure would not be earlier than the second φύλη, or δεύτερα φύλακη, as not merely St. John, ver. 16, but St. Matthew, ver. 23, and St. Mark, ver. 47, also, clearly imply that it was. Meanwhile our Lord himself withdrew to the mountain; and either persuaded the assembled people to retire, or would be speedily concealed from their observation by the shades of night.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. p. 349.

Jno. vi. 15. When Jesus therefore perceived, &c. They were satisfied by the miracle that he was the King, foretold in the prophets, that should sit upon the throne of his father David. Jesus knew that he must first suffer and enter into his glory, and his hour was not yet come. Christ had come into the world for a very different purpose than to be a king such as these men expected, an earthly sovereign seeking mainly worldly advantages for his subjects.

Matt. xiv. 23, 24.	Mark vi. 46, 47.	John vi. 16, 17.
23 [a]And when he had sent the multitudes away [f] απολυσας, he went up into a mountain apart to pray: and when the evening was come, he was there alone.	46 And when he had sent them away αποταξαμενος, he departed into a mountain [g] to pray. [h]	[f] he departed again into a mountain himself alone. [g]
24 [i]But the ship was now in the midst of the sea, tossed βασανιζομενον with waves: for the wind was contrary. [k]	47 And when even was come, the ship was in the midst of the sea,	[h] And when even was now come, his disciples went down unto the sea, and entered into 17 a ship, and went over the sea toward Capernaum. And it was now dark, and Jesus was not come to them. [i]
	[k] and he alone on the land.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. vi. 15. by force—Jesus would not that Peter should use force even in his defence, Mt. xxvi. 52, 53, § 88—and he said unto Pilate, 'My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence,' Jno. xviii. 36, § 90—and the Apostle of the Gentiles saith, 'The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds; casting down imaginations, [or, reasonings,] and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God,' 2 Co. x. 4, 5.

make him a king—it was to this end he was born, ch. xviii. 37, § 90—it was promised to Mary when his birth was foretold, 'the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end,' Lu. i. 32, 33, § 2, p. 10—but it was on account of worldly advantage that these men sought to make him king—it was because they 'did eat of the loaves, and were filled'—see Jno. vi. 26, § 43, p. 325—and 'the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost,' Rom. xiv. 17—Our Lord stated the order in which things are to be sought: it is the reverse of that of these men—'Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you,' Mt. vi. 33, § 19, p. 136—the manifestation of the 'sons of the living God,' and the acknowledgment of Christ as the King of Israel, are connected events—'it shall come to pass, that in the place [or, instead of that] where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God. Then shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head, and they shall come up out of the land: for great shall be the day of Jezreel,' Ho. i. 10, 11, ...—Christ came not to head men in rebellion against God, and in enmity to one another, but to 'reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross,' Eph. ii. 16—and by his example to teach us forgiveness and love, iv. 32; v. 1, 2—His type Melchisedec, 'first being by interpretation King of righteousness, and after that also King of Salem, which is King of peace,' He. vii. 2.

into a mountain himself alone—'he was there alone,' Mt. xiv. 23—'alone on the land,' Mk. vi. 47—he had previously gone up 'into a mountain, with his disciples,' Jno. vi. 3, § 40, p. 311.

Mt. xiv. 23. apart to pray—this was our blessed Lord's usual practice—as before the transfiguration, Lu. ix. 28, § 51—see on Lu. iii. 21, § 8, p. 59, and Mk. i. 35, § 18, p. 114—thus he taught his disciples, Mt. vi. 6, § 19, p. 131—the Son is invited to ask his kingdom of the Father, Ps. ii. 7, 8. . . . .as the Son of man, and as coming in the clouds of heaven, he will be given possession of a universal and an everlasting dominion, Da. vii. 13, 14.

24. tossed with waves—a fit representation of popular instability, as contrasted with the throne estab-

NOTES.

Jno. vi. 15. Into a mountain. το ορος. Not 'a mountain,' but the mountain,—namely, that mountain on which he had lately fed the five thousand, in the same desert of Bethsaida, a part of that range by which the lake of Gennesaret is encircled on all sides.

16. And when even was now come. The words οψιας δε γενομενης sometimes import the time from the declining of the sun, and sometimes the time beginning at sun-setting, or when it began to be dark; the one was called the first evening, the other the latter evening, when the sun is setting. What is said, Mt. xiv. 15, § 40, p. 311, denotes no more than that it was about three; what is said here implies, that it was after sunset. At the first of these evenings the disciples desire Jesus to dismiss the multitude, for the day was declining, ηρξατο κλινειν, it began to decline, Lu. ix. 12, § 46.; in the second of them Jesus is left alone, and his disciples were got to sea.

17. Toward Capernaum. This agrees with Mk. vi. 45, 'to the other side before unto Bethsaida;' for these places were contiguous, and on the western shore of the lake.—See on Mk. vi. 45, p. 317.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mt. xiv. 23; Jno. vi. 14, 15. It is not enough that Jesus is acknowledged as a Prophet; he must be seen as the Priest, before he will allow himself to be proclaimed the King of Israel.]

Let us follow the example of our Lord, who would not allow his more active engagements in ministering blessing to others to prevent his private communion with the Father.

[Mt. xiv. 24; Mk. vi. 47. The disciples of Jesus, after having experienced his goodness and power in providing for them, are not unfrequently subjected to the trial of their faith, and are tossed with the waves, while Jesus does not come to them; but let them endure unto the end, and they will doubtless experience his delivering power.]

*Jesus walks upon the water; and empowers Peter to do the same: the ship in which the disciples were is miraculously transported across the lake.

MATT. xiv. 25—33.	MARK vi. 48—52.	JOHN vi. 18—21.
		[a]And the sea arose διηγε- 18 ρετο by reason of-a-great wind that-blew.[b]
	48 [b]And he-saw them toiling βασανιζομενους in rowing; for the wind was contrary unto-them:[c]
		[c]So when-they-had-rowed 19 about five-and-twenty or thirty furlongs,[d]
25 And in-the-fourth watch of-the night Jesus went unto them, walking on the sea.	[d]and about the-fourth watch of-the night[e] he-cometh unto them, walking upon the sea,	[e]they-see Jesus walking on the sea, & drawing nigh-unto the ship:[f]
	[f]and would have-passed-by them.[g]
26 [g]And when-the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they-were-troubled, saying, It-is a-spirit φαντασμα; and they-cried-out for fear.[h]	49 But when-they saw him walking upon the sea, they-supposed it-had-been a-spirit φαντασμα, and cried-out: 50 [h]for they all saw him, and were-troubled.[i]	and they-were-afraid.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

lished in truth, Ps. xciii. . . . . 'The LORD reigneth,' &c.—the multitudes who had desired Christ for their king, afterwards proved themselves to be only as children 'tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine,' Eph. iv. 14—'clouds . . . . without water, carried about of winds,' Jude 12 —see Jno. vi. 66, &c., § 43, p. 334—The disciples had previously been tossed with the waves, when Jesus was with them in the vessel, but asleep, Mt. viii. 24, 5, § 34, p. 266—now they had greater trial of their faith, for 'Jesus was not come to them,' Jno. vi. 17—but in both instances, it was as following the command of their Lord, they had been led into difficulties, and so they had no occasion to fear, Mk. iv. 35, 40, Lu. viii. 22, § 34, pp. 264—..7; Mk. vi. 45, &c., p. 317.

Mk. vi. 48. saw them toiling, &c.—'the eyes of the LORD are upon the righteous, and his ears are open unto their cry,' Ps. xxxiv. 15—'Like as a father pitieth his children, so the LORD pitieth them that fear him. For he knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust,' ciii. 13, .4

walking upon the sea—He 'treadeth upon the waves of the sea,' Job ix. 8—'Thy way is in the sea, and thy path in the great waters, and thy footsteps are not known,' Ps. lxxvii. 19—'He set his right foot upon the sea, and his left foot on the earth,' Rev. x. 2.

would have passed by them—so after his resurrection, when he talked with the two disciples on their way to Emmaus, 'they drew nigh unto the village, whither they went: and he made as though he would have gone further. But they constrained him,' Lu. xxiv 29, &c., § 94—see also with regard to the two angels who came to Sodom, and by whom Lot was delivered from the destruction that befell the wicked and inhospitable inhabitants, Ge. xix. 2, &c.

Mt. xiv 26. It is a spirit—so when he appeared to them after his resurrection, 'they were terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they had seen a spirit,' Lu. xxiv. 37, § 95.

Mk. vi. 50. were troubled—so was Zacharias at the appearance of Gabriel, who had come to him with glad tidings, foretelling the birth of a son, Lu. i.

NOTES.

Jno. vi. 19. Five and twenty or thirty furlongs. This would be probably about the centre of the lake; the wind being contrary, they toiled hard in rowing, yet could make but little progress.

Mt. xiv. 25. The fourth watch. Anciently the Jews divided the night into three watches, consisting of four hours each. The first, or 'beginning of the watches,' is mentioned in Lam. ii. 19; the 'middle watch,' in Ju. vii. 19; and the 'morning watch,' in Ex. xiv. 24. These three watches are also mentioned by various profane writers.

During the time of our Saviour, the night was divided into four watches; a fourth watch having been introduced among the Jews from the Romans, who derived it from the Greeks. The four are all distinctly mentioned in Mk. xiii. 35, § 86. Here the first watch began at six o'clock in the evening, and continued till nine; the second commenced at nine, and ended at twelve, or midnight; the third lasted from twelve to three and the fourth or morning watch closed at six.

Walking on the sea. To walk upon the sea is made the property of God, 'which alone spreadeth out the heavens, and treadeth upon the waves of the sea,' Job ix. 8. Feet-walking on the sea was the Egyptian hieroglyphic for impossibility.

[26. It is a spirit. φαντασμα. A verbal from the third person perf. pass. of φαντάζομαι; for which φάσμα was often used by the classical writers, though φάντασμα occurs in Plato. The Jews, like the ancients

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. vi. 48; Jno. vi. 19. Although the disciples of Jesus may be 'toiling in rowing,' amid the raging sea, while the wind is contrary unto them, yet let them not despair; their Lord sees it all, and at length they see him 'walking on the sea, and drawing nigh unto the ship.'

[Mk. vi. 48. If we would have the help of Jesus, we must be awake, to watch his way in the sea, and his footsteps in the mighty waters, and not allow him to pass by us unheeded.]

49, 50 ver. That which when beheld at a distance occasions alarm, is not unfrequently found, upon nearer approach, to be for deliverance; and hath in it a voice, saying, 'Be of good cheer: it is I; be not

* Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. p. 349.

Matt. xiv. 27—31.	Mark vi. 50.	John vi. 20.
27 But straightway Jesus spake unto-them, saying, Be-of-good-cheer; it-is I εγω ειμι; be-not-afraid.	And immediately he-talked with them, and saith unto-them, Be-of-good-cheer: it-is I εγω ειμι; be-not-afraid	But he 20 saith unto-them, It-is I εγω ειμι; be-not-afraid.
28 And Peter answered him and-said, Lord, if it-be thou, bid me come unto thee on 29 the water. And he said, Come. And when-Peter-was-come-down out-of the ship, he-walked on the water, to-go to 30 Jesus. But when-he-saw the wind boisterous ισχυρον, he-was-afraid; and beginning to-sink καταπονιζεσθαι, he-cried, 31 saying, Lord, save me. And immediately Jesus stretched-forth his hand, and-caught him, and said unto-him, O-thou-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

12, .3, § 1, p. 4, who should 'go before the face of the Lord,' ver. 76, § 3, p. 18—and Mary, when the same angel had come to her, saluting her as the woman of whom the Messiah himself should be born, ver. 28, .9, § 2, p. 9—so the shepherds, when an angel had come to proclaim to them the Saviour's birth, ch. ii. 8—11, § 4, p. 20.

be of good cheer—so did he say unto Paul when in prison, after the apostle had been nearly torn to pieces amid the storm of conflicting parties at Jerusalem, Ac. xxiii. 11—and to the beloved disciple, when our Lord appeared to him, during his banishment to Patmos, he said, 'Fear not; I am the first and the last: I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore,' Rev. i. 17, .8—see on Lu. i. 13, § 1, p. 4—'the Lord is with thee,' 'fear not,' &c., ver. 28, 30, § 2, p. 9—and on Mt. ix. 2, § 22, p. 165.

Mt. xiv. 27. it is I, &c.—'Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God:' &c., Is. xli. 10, .3, .4. . . .—'Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thou art mine. When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee,' &c., xliii. 1, 2. . . .—'Therefore my people shall know my name: therefore they shall know in that day that I am he that doth speak: behold, it is I,' ch. lii. 6.

28. bid me come, &c.—we may, without doubting, do whatever the Lord commands, trusting to his promise, 'As thy days, so shall thy strength be,' De. xxxiii. 25—of the truth of which promise, Paul had experience, being able to say, 'I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me,' Ph. iv. 13—at the same time we are not to pray to be led into temptation, but rather the contrary, Mt. vi. 13, § 19, p. 133—see again Peter's impetuosity, Jno. xxi. 7, § 97.

30. saw the wind boisterous, &c.—the Christian, amid the storms of life, should be less occupied with these, than as 'looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith,' He. xii. 2—we should remember that 'the LORD on high is mightier than the noise of many waters, yea, than the mighty waves of the sea,' Ps. xciii. 4.

Lord, save me, &c.—so the disciples cried, when in a previous storm they awoke Jesus, Mt. viii. 25, § 34, p. 266—see the prayer of Jonah, ch. ii. 1—9. . . . and of the psalmist, 'Save me, O God; for the waters are come in unto my soul. I sink in deep mire, where there is no standing: I am come into deep waters, where the floods overflow me,' Ps. lxix. 1, 2—'Send thine hand from above; rid me, and deliver me out of great waters, from the hand of strange children,' cxliv. 7.

31. stretched forth his hand, &c.—this was He, of whom David had sung, 'He sent from above, he took me; he drew me out of many waters,' 2 Sa. xxii. 17; and to whom it can most rightfully be said, 'Thou rulest the raging of the sea: when the waves thereof arise, thou stillest them,' Ps. lxxxix. 9. . . .—this is He for whom the inquiry will yet be made, 'Where is He . . . that led them by the right hand of Moses with his glorious arm, dividing the water before them, to make himself an everlasting name?' That led them through the deep, as an horse in the wilderness, that they should not stumble?' Is. lxiii. 11—3. . . . —and see on ver. 2, supra.

of little faith, &c.—so, before, to the disciples generally, 'Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith?' ch. viii. 26, § 34, p. 266.

NOTES.

universally, believed in the existence of spirits clothed in human form, to which were applied the names φάντασμα, φάσμα, and εἴδωλον. The term may here be rendered spectre, or apparition. That the Jews had then an opinion of hurtful spirits walking in the night, is evident from the LXX, who render 'from the pestilence walking in darkness,' ἀπὸ πράγματος πνεθματος διαπορευομένου ἐν σκότει, from the fear of the devils that walk in the night, καὶ ἀπὸ δαιμονίου μεσημβρινοῦ, and from the 'noon-day devil,' that which is in the Hebrew from the destruction at noon-day, Ps. xci. 6.]

28—31. And Peter answered, &c. Here is an instance of the characteristic ardour and rashness of Peter. He had less real faith than he supposed: more ardour than his faith would justify. He was afraid, therefore, when in danger, and sinking, cried again for help. Thus he was suffered to learn his own character, and his dependence on Jesus; a lesson which all Christians are permitted to learn by dear-bought experience.

28. If it be thou. Or, rather, 'since it is thou.' Peter did not doubt of his being his Master, or his request would have been most absurd.

31. O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt? This reproof was well calculated to convince Peter that it was according to the degree of his faith that he must rise or sink. And what he says to Peter, he says to all who waver in their belief.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

afraid.' Let us at length learn to dismiss all slavish and superstitious fears, and with rejoicing place entire confidence in the Lord.

Mt. xiv. 28, .9. Let us not attempt to place ourselves in uncalled-for danger, even as going unto Jesus: but we may safely leave the vessel, to walk upon the water, when Jesus bids us come.

[30, .1 ver. Let us less regard the boisterous wind, than the power of Him whose word we obey. Let us be strong in faith; but, that we may realize our entire dependence upon Him, it is sometimes necessary that he not only put forth strength in us, but that he put forth his hand to extricate us from danger.]

MATT. xiv. 32, .3. of little-faith, wherefore didst-thou-doubt εις τι εδιστασας ? [k]

MARK vi. 51, .2.

JOHN vi. 21.

[k] Then they-willingly ηθελον 21 received him into the ship : [l]

32 [l] And when-they were-come into the ship, the wind ceased εκοπασεν.[m]

51 And he-went-up unto them into the ship ; and the wind ceased εκοπασεν ;

[m] and immediately the ship was at the land whither they-went.[n]

33 [n] Then they that were in the ship came and-worshipped him, saying, Of-a-truth thou-art the-Son of-God.[o]

[o] and they-were-sore-amazed λιαν εκ περισσου in themselves beyond-52 measure, and wondered. For they-considered not the miracle of συνεκαν επι the loaves : for their heart was hardened πεπωρωμενη.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

wherefore didst thou doubt—'Let him ask in faith, nothing wavering. For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed,' &c., Ja. i. 6.

Jno. vi. 21. willingly received him—they seem to have been afraid of him, till now that he had made himself known to them, and that in his saving power, Mt. xiv. 26—31, p. 320.

Mk. vi. 51. and the wind ceased—so on a previous occasion, when he 'rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still,' ch. iv. 39, § 34, p. 266. Now were literally fulfilled the words of the psalmist, 'He maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still,' Ps. cvii. 29.

Jno. vi. 21. the ship was at the land, &c.—'Then are they glad because they be quiet ; so he bringeth them unto their desired haven,' Ps. cvii. 30.

Mt. xiv. 33. Of a truth—the Son of God—of whom it had been predicted, 'I will set his hand also in the sea, and his right hand in the rivers. He shall cry unto me, Thou art my Father, my God, and the Rock of my salvation. Also I will make him my firstborn, higher than the kings of the earth,' Ps. lxxxix. 25—7, ... The people had just before said, 'This is of a truth that prophet that should come into the world,' Jno. vi. 14, p. 317. Now the disciples confess Jesus to be the 'Son of God' described in the above Psalm as the 'Wonderful,' ver. 5—13—the 'Counsellor,' 14—.8—'The mighty God,' 19—25—'The everlasting Father,' 26—33—'The Prince of Peace,' 34—.7—they might well worship him, and that as addressing him in the words of the same Psalm, 'Thou rulest the raging,' &c., lxxxix. 9—see on ver. 31, p. 320, supra. —See on 'Great,' Lu. i. 32, § 2, p. 10—'Son of God,' 35, &c. ; Mk. i. 1, § 7, p. 49 ; Jno. i. 34, § 10, p. 70—see also ch. v. § 23, p. 175.

Mk. vi. 52. considered not, &c.—see again ch. viii. 17—21, § 48. Like ancient Israel, 'They soon forgat his works,' Ps. cvi. 13.

> 'The ox knoweth his owner,
> And the ass his master's crib :
> But Israel doth not know,
> My people doth not consider,' Is. i. 3.

hardened—even after his resurrection, Jesus had to upbraid them for 'their unbelief and hardness of heart,' ch. xvi. 14, § 95—and the disciples of Christ still require to watch and strive against hardness of heart—' Harden not your hearts,' &c., He. iii. 8—13.

NOTES.

Jno. vi. 21. Immediately, &c. This was as much a miracle as when he said, 'Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm,' Mk. iv. 39, § 34, p. 267

Whither they went. i. e., whither he had despatched them 'before,' which place they were unable to reach, but through his guidance and power. Bethsaida was in the region of Gennesaret, and there they landed—see Mt. xiv. 34, [Mk. vi. 53,] § 42, p. 322.

[Mk. vi. 51. Sore amazed in themselves beyond measure, &c. The words in the original are still stronger ; indeed so strong, that it is impossible for the English language to express all their force. In comparison with this miracle, even that of the loaves and fishes seems to have appeared nothing in the eyes of the disciples ; for St. Mark informs us, that 'they considered not the miracle of the loaves : for their heart was hardened ;' but at the act of walking to them on the sea for their deliverance, they were amazed beyond measure ; they were overwhelmed and overcome with this astonishing display of divine power, therefore they instantly fell at the feet of Jesus, and worshipped him : exclaiming, with devout awe, 'Of a truth thou art the Son of God.']

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

After all the experience we have had of the kindness and power of our divine Redeemer, it may well be said to us, as being ready to sink, 'O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt ?'

Let the eye of the believer, when in danger, be steadily fixed upon Jesus. When Peter looked into the boisterous sea, he began to sink ; but by looking unto Jesus, and crying unto him for help, he was upheld.

[Let us not seek to make a vain display of the strength of our faith, lest its weakness should, like Peter's, be thereby made apparent, and bring upon us reproach.]

Jno. vi. 21. Although our Lord may occasionally give extraordinary means of conveyance, as well as of sustenance, yet these are not to prevent the use of ordinary means upon ordinary occasions. Jesus could give Peter power to walk upon the waves ; yet he used the ship in bringing him and his other disciples to land.

Mt. xiv. 32, .3 ; Mk. vi. 51, .2. How wonderfully forgetful men are of the deliverances the Lord effects ; and of the provision he makes for them !

[It is frequently thus with the disciples of Christ now. The Lord's marvellously sustaining them by dealing out to them from his bounriful hand their daily bread, has less power to bring them on their knees than his outstretched arm, as delivering them from imminent peril. They require occasionally to be brought into straits, in order that they may see more distinctly the hand by which all their wants are hourly supplied.]

Let us pray that we may be led into due consideration, and that our hearts be not hardened amid the displays of his goodness and power.

Let us remember the mercies of the Lord which are new every morning, and be thankful for the peace in which we are preserved ; so that he may have the less occasion to awaken us to consideration by painful alarms, in which we are forced to look at the hand which alone can deliver

THE LORD IS MY ROCK, AND MY FORTRESS, AND MY DELIVERER ; MY GOD, MY STRENGTH, IN WHOM I WILL TRUST ; MY BUCKLER, AND THE HORN OF MY SALVATION, AND MY HIGH TOWER.—Psalm xviii. 2.

SECTION 42.—(G. 30.)—JESUS RETURNS THROUGH THE REGION OF GENNESARET TO CAPERNAUM: THE MULTITUDE, WHICH HAD BEEN LEFT ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE LAKE, ALSO RETURN TO CAPERNAUM, IN QUEST OF JESUS.*

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. xiv. 34—.6. Mk. vi. 53—.6. Jno. ——— They come into the land of Gennesaret, where Jesus is known, and the people gather to him those that are diseased; and all that touch 'the border of his garment' are 'made whole.'

Jno. vi. 22—.4. The people who had been fed find opportunity of following, to Capernaum, by boats from Tiberias, coming, on their passage to Capernaum, near to the place where the five thousand had been miraculously fed.

MATT. xiv. 34—.6.	MARK vi. 53—.6.	JOHN vi. 22—.4.
34 And when-they-were-gone-over, they-came into the land of-Gennesaret.	53 [a]And when-they-had-passed-over, they-came into the land of-Gennesaret, and drew-to-the-shore.	[d]The day-following, when 22 ·-the people which stood on-the-other-side-of-the sea·-saw that there-was none other boat there,
	54 And when-·they·-were come out-of the ship,[b] straightway they-knew him	save that one whereinto his disciples were-entered, and that Jesus went-·not·-with his disciples into the boat, but that his disciples were-gone-away alone;
35 [b]And when-·the men of-that place ·-had-knowledge-of him, they-sent-out into all that country-[c]		{howbeit there-came other 23 boats from Tiberias nigh-unto the place where they-did-eat bread, after-that-·the Lord·-had-given-thanks:)
round-about, and brought-unto him all that-were diseased;	55 [c]and-ran-through that whole region-round-about, and-began to-carry-about in beds those that-were sick, where they-heard he-was.	when the people therefore 24 saw that Jesus was not there, neither his disciples, they also took shipping, and came to Caper-
	56 And whithersoever he-entered, into villages, or cities, or country, they-laid the sick in the streets,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS

Mk. vi. 53. Gennesaret—must have been on the west side of the lake, and near to Capernaum—see Jno. vi. 17, § 41, p. 318—the sea of Galilee is called 'the lake of Gennesaret,' Lu. v. 1, § 20, p. 153.

Mt. xiv. 35. had knowledge of him—knew of his being among them—his healing power was already well known, Mk. iii. 7—11, § 26, p. 200; Mt. ix. 35, § 38, p. 293—in the neighbourhood of the sea of Galilee were 'the cities wherein most of his mighty works were done,' but the goodness of God had not led them to repentance—see Mt. xi. 20—.4, § 29, p. 227.

brought unto him, &c.—so to Peter, and with the like success, Ac. v. 15, .6.

Mk. vi. 56. border of his garment, &c.—the first remarkable example of this was that of the woman who sought for healing thus, without formally asking, ch. v. 25—34, § 36, p. 280.

Jno. vi. 22. the people . . . on the other side—some of those who had eaten of the loaves at the miraculous feeding of the five thousand; and from whom our Lord had sought escape, when he saw they would 'take him by force, to make him a king'—comp. Jno. vi. 15, 26, § 41, p. 318; § 43, p. 325.

none other boat, &c.—Jesus and his disciples had sailed to that other side; but the people had gone there on foot, Mk. vi. 32, .3, § 40, p. 310.

that Jesus went not—thus probably were the people prevented from immediately following in a body.

23. boats from Tiberias—these boats, in their passage up the lake, were probably by the same wind which was contrary to the disciples, Mk. vi. 48, § 41, p. 319, driven near to the place where Jesus had fed the multitudes, and where those of the people who had kept together still remained.

24. saw that Jesus was not there, &c.—the cause of their being detained on the other side was thus, it would appear, the expectation of still finding Jesus there.

NOTES.

Mt. xiv. 34. Gennesaret. Meaning Garden of the Prince, was the name of a small district of Galilee, about six miles in length, south of Capernaum. It was extremely fertile, and abounded in fruits of different climates. The country in this neighbourhood was very populous.—See GEOG. NOTICE, p. 323.

Mk. vi. 55. In beds. A sort of mats, mattresses, or common carpets, carried upon hurdles.

Mt. xiv. 36. Only touch, &c. The virtue was not in the garment, but the touching of it was an act of faith, and it was rewarded.

Jno. vi. 22. The day following, i.e., the day after the feeding of the five thousand, and the same day on which Jesus 'came into the land of Gennesaret.'

24. Took shipping. Finding that Jesus was not there, they followed him to the city where most of his mighty works were done, viz., to Capernaum, which was the ordinary place of his residence.

These men had hurriedly followed him from their homes, Mk. vi. 33, § 40, p. 310; they had long remained with him, while he taught them many things, ver. 34, § ib. p. 311; they had remained with him in a desert place, without the ordinary means of sustenance, ver. 36, .7, § ib. p. 312; yea, after he had left them, they had waited for him all night, Jno. vi. 22, and that a night of storm, the wind probably blowing upon them from the lake, Mt. xiv. 24, § 41, p. 318; and in the morning they seize the earliest opportunity of following Jesus, Jno. vi. 23, .4—one would think that these were true seekers; and yet they were such as did not come to Jesus in the way in which he could receive them, ver. 26, 37, 44, 65, § 43, pp. 325, .5, .30, .3—and soon they went back, and walked no more with him, ver. 66, § ib. p. 334. From their case let us see the necessity of looking narrowly into our motives for following Jesus.

* Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. p. 350.

MATT. xiv. 36.	MARK vi. 56.	JOHN vi. 24.
36 and besought him that they might only touch the hem of his garment: and as many as touched were made perfectly whole	and besought him that they might touch if it were but the border of his garment: and as many as touched him were made whole	naum, seeking for Jesus. [Ver. 25, § xliii. p. 325.]
διεσωθησαν.	εσωζοντο.
[Ch. xv. 1, § xliv. Vol. ii. p. 4.]	[Ch. vii. 1, § xliv. Vol. ii. p. 4.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. vi. 53—5. Let us not rest contented with receiving benefit for ourselves from Jesus, but seek to bring others to the good Physician, that they also may experience his healing power.

[56 ver. It is only Jesus that can make us 'perfectly whole;' and we have salvation from him, as laying hold upon the skirts of his garment, and seeking salvation and acceptance in his name.]

Jno. vi. 22—4. Let us be willing to make much exertion in seeking for Jesus; but that our seeking be satisfactory, let us have right views of the character and mission of Him whom we seek.

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICE.

THE LAND OF GENNESARET, p. 322.

'There was a city and district of the name of Chinnereth, Jos. xix. 35, on the borders of the lake, from which it appears to have derived its name—see Sect. xx. p. 155. The name Ginnereth might easily pass into Gennesareth; which name, as applied to the lake, is expressly declared by Josephus to have been derived from an adjacent district; which district seems to have bordered on, if it did not include, Tiberias. The Jewish writers tell us that the district itself took its name from the delightful gardens and paradises which were there. Some make them royal gardens, deducing the name from גני שרים, geni sarim; "so that," says Lightfoot, "by the Jews' etymology, the name was taken from some royal gardens that lay upon it; which may very well be, since Herod's palace was at Tiberias, and as from the royalty of that city the sea was called 'the sea of Tiberias;' so, possibly, from the orchards and gardens upon it, it might be called 'Genesar,' or the place of princely gardens."'—Kitto's Pict. Pal Vol. II. p. clxiv.

Josephus says, 'Such is the fertility of the soil, that it rejects no kind of plant; and they who cultivate it have left no sort unplanted there; and such is the temperature of the climate, that it suits the most different wants of nature. In addition to palm trees, which thrive best by heat, and figs and olives in their vicinity, which require a milder air, nut trees, the hardiest of plants, flourish there in the utmost abundance. It might be said that nature had been purposely ambitious of forcing herself to collect upon one spot discordant principles—see 'Note,' infra—and that the seasons, with a salutary conflict, each as it were challenged exclusively the possession of the country; for not merely does it so unaccountably nourish the different productions of as many different periods of the year, but it also preserves what it nourishes. The noblest of the kind, such as grapes and figs, it supplies for ten months without ceasing; and fruits of every other description, growing old on the trees round about, are supplied for the whole year.

'For besides the temperature of the air, it is watered by a very fertilizing spring, which the natives call Capharnaum. . . . . In length the region extends along the lake, which is called by the same name, as far as thirty stades; and in breadth as far as twenty.' —Bell. iii. x. 8. And see Sect. xx. p. 156, third par.

Dr. Robinson,* in describing the country on the western side of the lake, says, 'From Tiberias hither, (to El-Mejdel,†) or rather from beyond the hot baths, the general direction of the coast is about from S.E. to N.W. But from this point onwards, the coast trends off towards the N.N.E., while the hills retire in a curve, leaving a beautiful plain an hour in length, and about twenty minutes in breadth, in the form of an irregular parallelogram, verging almost to a crescent.‡ On the S.W. the mountain forming the ridge or step between this plain and the plain Sahil Hattin is steep, § and not less than three or four hundred feet high. The Wady el-Hamam breaks down through it a quarter of an hour W. of Mejdel, and its bed runs to the lake just N. of that village. On the W. and N. the hills are lower, and rise less abruptly from the plain. At the northern extremity of the plain lies the ruined Khan Minyeh; while Mejdel is quite at the S.E. corner. . . . . Half an hour W. of Mejdel, in the high perpendicular cliff forming the N.W. side of Wady el-Hamam, are situated the singular remains of Kulat Ibn Maan, the "Arbela of Galilee," where Herod obtained great renown by exterminating the band of robbers who sheltered themselves in the caverns there.

'The plain upon which we now entered, from Mejdel, is at first called Ard el-Mejdel, but further on takes the name of el-Ghuweir, "Little Ghor," which strictly perhaps includes the whole. It is unquestionably the Gennesareth of Josephus . . .

* Bib. Res. Vol. III. p. 277

† The 'Magdala' of the New Testament.

‡ In 'A Narrative of a Mission to the Jews,' 1839, pp. 286, .7, we have the following account of the plain as entered from the north:—'We crossed over a pleasant hill to the S.E., and came down into the fertile plain of Gennesareth, near a fountain, Ain el-Tin, "the fig-tree fountain," supposed by some to be "the fountain of Capernaum" mentioned by Josephus. . . . . The land of Gennesareth is a beautiful little plain, extending along the shore nearly four miles. . . . . It is in the shape of a bow and string at full stretch; and there is a gentle slope from the hills to the water's edge all round. It seems highly probable that part of the hills which enclose it may have been included in the territory of Gennesareth in the days of its splendour. Gardens and orchards could not find a better soil than these declivities; and it must have been on the different steps of this amphitheatre that the variety of trees yielding the fruits of different seasons found each its appropriate climate, as described by Josephus. Moving on southward, we crossed a fine stream flowing through the plain, the same which we had seen gushing from its fountain among the hills below Saphet. Its banks were adorned with the oleander and other flowers. A fine flock of goats were watering here, and a rich crop of dhura was springing green and beautiful. The reeds and thistles were growing to an amazing height beside the water. Soon after we crossed another stream from the mountains, full and rapid. On the left bank upon the height there were the remains of an ancient tower, in no way interesting. . . . . In the midst of the stream stood an unused mill. Many tortoises were seen dropping into the water as we approached. The plain opens out considerably, affording spots of pasturage, where we observed several Bedouins feeding their horses; but still there was a vast profusion of reeds and shrubs, and thorny plants, the most common being the Nubk. In almost an hour from Ain el-Tin we came to Mejdel, at the southern extremity of the plain. Such is the present land of Gennesareth, once a garden of princes, now a wilderness.'—See Geog. Notice, Sect. xx. p. 156, par. 3, 4.

§ 'On the high uneven plain, extending southward between the Tell or Kurun Hattin and el-Lubieh, took place, on the 5th of July, A.D. 1187, the celebrated and fatal battle of Hattin. This was the great and decisive battle of the crusaders; between the flower of the Christian strength and chivalry on the one side, with the sovereign at their head; and on the other, the eager gathering of the Muhammedan might, led on by Sultan Saladin in person. It resulted in the almost total annihilation of the Christian host; and to

THE LORD TRIETH THE RIGHTEOUS: BUT THE WICKED AND HIM THAT LOVETH VIOLENCE HIS SOUL HATETH.—Psalm xi. 5.
CONSIDER AND HEAR ME, O LORD MY GOD: LIGHTEN MINE EYES, LEST I SLEEP THE . . . DEATH.—Psalm xiii. 3.

'We took a path along the inner side of the plain, at the foot of the western hills. . . . Our course was about N. by W. At nine hours forty-five minutes we were opposite to Wady el-Hamam, as it breaks down through two lofty ledges of rock. . . We soon struck an artificial water course coming down from before upon us, in which was a considerable brook, irrigating this part of the plain; this we followed up, and found it scattering its rills and diffusing verdure in all directions. At ten hours ten minutes we reached a large and beautiful fountain, rising immediately at the foot of the western line of hills.

'The fountain bears the name of "Ain el-Mudauwarah," "Round Fountain." It is enclosed by a low circular wall of mason work, forming a reservoir nearly 100 feet in diameter; the water is perhaps two feet deep, beautifully limpid and sweet, bubbling up and flowing out rapidly in a large stream to water the plain below. After a stop of twenty minutes we proceeded on the same course along the foot of the hills, and in ten minutes (at ten hours forty minutes) reached the opening of Wady er-Rhubudiyeh, coming down from the N.W. The hills are here low and gentle; the wady brings down a very copious stream of pure water, which is scattered over the plain in all directions, by means of small canals and water courses. Here is a deserted mill, and also the remains of two or three others. Upon a slight eminence on the north side are the remains of a village called Abu Shusheh; but it has no traces of antiquity. A wely with a white dome marks the spot. From Abu Shusheh, Mejdel bore S. 8° E., and Khan Minyeh N. 62° E.

'From this point, as well as from the hill over the Round Fountain, there was a fine prospect of the beautiful plain as it lies along the sea. It is exceedingly fertile and well watered; the soil, on the southern part at least, is a rich black mould, which in the vicinity of Mejdel is almost a marsh. Its fertility indeed can hardly be exceeded; all kinds of grain and vegetables are produced in abundance, including rice in the moister parts, while the natural productions, as at Tiberias and Jericho, are those of a more southern latitude. Indeed, in beauty, fertility, and climate, the whole tract answers well enough to the glowing though exaggerated description of Josephus.

'Excepting a portion round Mejdel, this plain is not tilled by the Fellahs, but is given up entirely to the Arabs dwelling in tents, the Ghawarineh; who seem here and further north to be an intermediate race, between the Bedawin of the mountains and deserts and the more southern Ghawarineh. A Sheikh was riding about upon a fine horse, entirely naked except his loins; and two or three others were lazily opening a water course, to carry the water to a different point of the plain.

'Thus far we had followed one of the roads from Tiberias to Safed, which hence proceeds up Wady er-Rhubudiyeh. We now turned N. E. still along the foot of the hills, in a direct course to Khan Minyeh. Setting off at eleven hours ten minutes, we passed, after a quarter of an hour, a limestone column lying alone in the plain, about twenty feet long, and at least two feet in diameter; we could discern no trace of any site or ruins in the vicinity. The northern part of the plain is less abundantly watered than the southern; in some parts the ground was dry and parched, and thorny shrubs were growing thickly. At eleven hours thirty minutes, the dry bed of a wady crossed our path, coming down from the western hills, and called Wady el-Amud, probably from the column we had passed.

'We reached Khan Minyeh, not far from the shore at the northern extremity of the plain, at eleven hours fifty minutes, having thus occupied one hour and a half in passing from Mejdel around the inner side of the plain, while the distance along the shore is reckoned at one hour.' . . . See GEOG. NOTICE, Sect. xi. p. 75, 'Khan Minyeh.'

Dr. Robinson gives the following estimate of the extent of the Sea of Galilee:—'The extent of the lake has sometimes been greatly overrated. We had now travelled along its western shore for nearly its whole length, and the results afford a means of forming an estimate approaching more nearly to the truth. The distances are as follows:—

	h.	m.
'From the southern end of the lake to
1. The warm baths	1	0
2. Tiberias	0	35
3. Mejdel	1	10
4 Khan Minyeh	1	0
5. Tell Hum	1	5
6. Entrance of the Jordan	1	5
Whole length of the western coast	5	55

'This distance of six hours is equivalent to about fourteen and a half geographical miles along the western coast. But as the latter forms a deep curve at Mejdel, the distance in a straight line from the entrance of the Jordan in the north, to its exit in the south, cannot be more than eleven or twelve geographical miles; and the same result is also obtained from the construction of the map. The greatest breadth opposite to Mejdel is about half the length, or not far from about six geographical miles, while the breadth opposite Tiberias is about five miles.'—Bib. Res. Vol. III. pp. 313, .4.

followed by the immediate subjugation of nearly all Palestine, including Jerusalem, to the Muslim yoke. The power of the Franks in the Holy Land was thus broken; and although the monarchs and princes of Europe undertook expeditions thither for more than seventy years after this event, yet the Christians were never able to regain a footing in Palestine.'—Robinson's Bib. Res. Vol. III. p. 241.

A truce concluded the preceding year (A. D. 1186) between the Christians and the Sultan Saladin was broken by the reckless Raynald of Chatillon, then lord of Kerak. Saladin prepared to avenge this breach of faith.

The Christians encamped at the fountain of Seffurieh. The Hospitallers and Templars came with troops from their various castles, and many barons, with their knights and followers, from Neapolis, Cæsarea, Sidon, and Antioch. The king (the weak-minded Guy of Lusignan, who had lately usurped the crown of Jerusalem,) was present with a multitude of knights and hired troops. The army thus collected amounted to 2,000 knights and 8,000 foot soldiers, besides large bodies of light-armed troops, or archers. The holy cross, also, was brought from Jerusalem into the camp, by the bishops of Ptolemais and Lydda.

The hosts of Saladin broke in like a flood upon the land, and took possession of Tiberias.

The fickle-minded Guy, contrary to the advice of his barons, prepared to give the enemy battle. Saladin harassed the Christian troops upon their march, and posted his main army along the high ground above the lake, between Tiberias and Tell Hattin. In the afternoon of the same day, the Christian army reached the open ground around el-Lubieh. . . .

The night was passed in dreadful suspense by the Christians, and the morning brought them no consolation. Wherever the Christians pressed forward in masses, there the Saracens gave way at once. It was the policy of Saladin to let the Christian warriors weary themselves out by a series of fruitless charges. . . .

The king directed the conflict to cease, and the knights to encamp around the cross. The bishop of Ptolemais, who bore the cross, was slain, surrounded by the foe; the knights of Count Raymond raised the cry of 'Sauve qui peut' . . . , and put their horses to full speed over the bodies of their fallen brethren, and with the count himself escaped in the direction of Tyre. The king withdrew to the height of Tell Hattin; three times the Saracens attempted to storm the height—at length they got possession of it, and the Christians were either made prisoners, or driven headlong down the steep precipice on the northern side. Among those who surrendered was King Guy himself; the Grand Master of the Templars, Raynald of Chatillon; and the bishop of Lydda, the last bearer of the holy cross. The cross itself had already fallen into the hands of the enemy. Two hundred of the captive knights, both of the Hospital and of the Temple, were beheaded without mercy, in cold blood. The king and captive princes were transferred to Damascus.

Saladin was not slow to follow up his victory, and the power of the Christians in Palestine was fully broken by the capitulation of the Holy City, which took place on Oct. 3, A.D. 1187, three months after the battle of Hattin.—Abridged from Robinson's Biblical Researches, Vol. III. pp. 242—.9.

— see GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICE, Sect. xxxii. p. 250, par. 5, 6, for Dr. Clarke's description of the country as he approached the lake of Gennesareth from the W

SECTION 43.*—(G. 31.)—DISCOURSE WHICH ENSUED WITH THE MULTITUDE IN THE SYNAGOGUE OF CAPERNAUM: MANY OF THE DISCIPLES BEING OFFENDED THEREBY, JESUS TRIES THE FAITH OF THE TWELVE; AND, A YEAR BEFORE THE EVENT, FORETELS HIS OWN BETRAYAL BY ONE OF THEM.—John vi. 25—71.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

John vi. 25. Those who had been miraculously fed find Jesus at Capernaum.

— vi. 26, .7. They have sought him, less because of his being a Teacher come from God, than because of their having received from him earthly good; and he intimates that his miraculously bestowing upon them the means of temporal support, was chiefly to be regarded as evidence of his having more enduring blessing to bestow, and which was the one thing worthy of being sought after, and for which they should labour.

— vi. 28, .9. They ask what they should do to 'work the works of God.' Jesus, in answer, declares that the work of God is that men should believe on Him whom the Father hath sent.—See NOTE, p. 327, infra.

— vi. 30—.3. They begin to depreciate the evidence of his being 'that Prophet,' and insinuate that Moses wrought a greater miracle in giving the manna. Jesus' answer implies, that He who really gave the manna was now himself, given of the Father to give 'life unto the world.'

— vi. 34—.7. They ask that themselves may evermore be given this bread; upon which Jesus answers, 'I am the bread of life;' but intimates that they are not in a fit state to enjoy the blessing: they had seen, but not believed; and they had not come as having learned of the Father, else they would not have met with the repulse.

— vi. 38—40. Jesus states the purpose of his coming from heaven; and what the will of the Father is with regard to all who come to him—'that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life.' such will be raised up 'at the last day.'

— vi. 41, .2. The Jews murmur; and shew their ignorance of Jesus, as to whence he came, and what he came to do, by speaking of him as if he were only a man.

— vi. 43—8. Jesus alludes to what he had said, ver. 39, 40, and tells them that he had come to fulfil the promise, 'They shall be all taught of God,' ver. 45; and that it was only thus, and through him, that men can be nourished up unto everlasting life.

— vi. 49—51. He draws a contrast between this bread, and that of which their fathers did partake in the wilderness: and says that the bread of life is free to any man to eat thereof and live for ever. He refers to his coming down from heaven, and also to his death, 'for the life of the world.'

John vi. 52. The Jews, who are still only thinking of food for the body, cannot understand him.

— vi. 53, .4. Jesus shews that the eating his flesh is connected with the present possession of eternal life, and that he will give to those who thus feed upon him, a resurrection of the body at the last day: thus shewing clearly, that the eternal life now received is spiritual life, and that the bread is of a kind with the life it nourishes.—See ADDENDA, p. 335, 'Except ye eat,' &c.

— vi. 55—.8. Jesus still more clearly identifies the life he speaks of, and contrasts the means of its nourishment, with the manna, which for a time supported the bodies of the Israelites in the wilderness.

— vi. 59. 60. Many now question whether he can be That Prophet whom they were to hear in all things. They say, 'This is an hard saying; who can hear it?'

— vi. 61—.3. Jesus points his disciples to the grand evidence which was yet to be given them of his Messiahship—his resurrection and ascension:—tells them that the Spirit is the agent, and his words the means of conveying spiritual life.

— vi. 64, .5. Jesus evinces his knowledge of their state, and the need they had of the preparative work of the Father, of which he had before spoken, ver. 29 and 44, pp. 327, .30.

— vi. 66—.9. Many disciples go back, and walk no more with Jesus. He asks the twelve, 'Will ye also go away?' Peter's answer implies a knowledge of the great purport of the discourse, even that we must feed upon the words of eternal life, ministered by, and concerning Christ Jesus. The confession which he is the same with that immediately before the transfiguration, Mt. xvi. 16, § 50.

— vi. 70, .1. Jesus, by implication, warns his disciples not to trust in any outward profession or privileges whatever. Even among the twelve, chosen by the Lord himself, was one that should betray him, and of whom, even thus early, he says, 'one of you is a devil.'

 It may facilitate the study of this Section, to recollect that the discourse of our Lord which it contains was, in part at least, delivered in the synagogue at Capernaum, ver. 59, about the time of the passover, ver. 4, § 40, p. 311. There seem to be allusions to the paschal sacrifice, especially near the close of the discourse. And the frequent allusions to the words of Isaiah may be accounted for by supposing that the portion of the Prophets read in the synagogue that day lay somewhere between Is. lii. . . . which speaks of the sacrifice of Christ, and ch. lvi. 1—8. . . . where new covenant blessing is freely presented to the stranger, or world, as well as to Israel. To ch. lv. 1—4. . . . there appears to be a reference in Jno. vi. 27—.9, p. 326; and perhaps to Is. lv. 13. . . . . in Jno. vi. 30, p. 327: to is. lv. 13. . . . there is a direct reference in Jno. vi. 45, p. 330, and the connection is more or less obvious throughout.

No. 43. JOHN vi. 25—71. At Capernaum.

25 And when they had found him on the other side of the sea, they said unto him, Rabbi,
26 when camest thou hither? Jesus answered them and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Ye seek me, not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. vi. 25. when camest thou hither?—Jesus had literally fulfilled the words, 'Thy way is in the sea, and thy path in the great waters, and thy footsteps are not known,' Ps. lxxvii. 19.

26. not because ye saw the miracles, &c.—they followed Jesus, not because they saw the evidences of his being 'That Prophet that should come into the world,' ver. 14, § 41, p. 317, but because they did eat of the loaves, &c.—see ver. 8—13, § 40, p. 312.

NOTES.

26. Ye seek me, not &c. Our Lord, observing that the multitude which flocked to him were influenced, in the question they put, by idle curiosity, and a desire, not for spiritual improvement, but for worldly advantage, takes occasion, from the natural and earthly bread with which he had supplied them, to advert to their need of spiritual and celestial nutriment.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. vi. 26. Let us examine ourselves. If we seek after Jesus, only for temporal good—for an earthly living, we must not expect to be acknowledged by Christ as his disciples.

* This is Lesson 42 in the System of 'Graduated Simultaneous Instruction.'

John vi. 27.

27 and were-filled. Labour ἐργαζεσθε not for-the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall-give unto-you: for him hath-God the Father-sealed.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

26. and were filled—this appears to have been a conspicuous feature of the miraculous feeding; it is noticed by all the four evangelists, and three of them use the same words, 'and they did all eat, and were filled'—see Mt. xiv. 20, &c., § 40, p. 314.

27. Labour not, &c.—they seem to have made much exertion to get to Jesus, ver. 24, § 42, p. 322; but chiefly, it would appear, through a regard to the meat that perisheth, ver. 25, 6. p. 325. It is likely our Lord refers to the words of the prophet, Is. lv. 2, 'Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not? hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness;' the meaning of which passage is much brought out in the succeeding discourse, which, for the most part, is upon eating the word of God.

endureth, &c.—'The word of the Lord endureth for ever,' 1 Pe. i. 25.

the Son of man, &c.—he who thus calls himself 'the Son of man' had just before been acknowledged as 'the Son of God,' Mt. xiv. 33, § 41, p. 321.

him hath God the Father sealed—the allusion here seems to be to sealed credentials; Jesus was the fully accredited ambassador from the God of heaven and earth, sent to treat with his rebellious subjects, and call back to their allegiance those who had been given the high privilege of having committed to them the oracles of God—'What advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision? Much every way: chiefly, because that unto them were committed the oracles of God,' Rom. iii. 1, 2—if they would not receive the offers of free grace presented by the Son of God, then were they to be disinherited—'Therefore say I unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof,' Mt. xxi. 43, § 81—he that believeth not on the Son, to whom the Father hath borne the fullest testimony, Jno. xv. 24, § 87, says in effect, that God hath given his name to a lie, 1 Jno. v. 10 (see the border)—but 'he that hath received his testimony hath set to his seal that God is true,' Jno. iii. 33, § 13, p. 90.

Upon Jesus entering on his public ministry, 'John bare record, saying, I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it abode upon him,' ch. i. 32, § 10, p. 70. This was the sign, or sealing, which the Father had promised to give the Baptist, that Jesus was the true Baptizer, ver. 33, 'He that sent me to baptize with water, the same said unto me, Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and remaining on him, the same is he which baptizeth with the Holy Ghost'—ver. 34, 'And I saw, and bare record that this is the Son of God'—By the Spirit, the sons of God are sealed in Christ: 'in whom also... after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise,' Ep. i. 13—and the exhortation to them is, 'Grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption,' iv. 30—it is for the purpose of accomplishing the sealing of the hundred and forty and four thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel, that the preaching of the gospel has come westward, Rev. vii. 2—4.

Jesus had before directed attention to the fulness of evidence with which his commission was sealed, Jno. v. 32—47—see Introduction to Sect. xxiii. p. 179. The commission to which he was sealed seems adverted to Is. lv. 4; where there is a call to look unto Jesus, as being given of the Father: a fact which is repeatedly pointed out in the succeeding discourse, as ver. 32, 37—Jesus, as being the Christ, was given to exercise the office of a Prophet, or that of 'a witness to the people;' and the office of Priest, or that of 'a leader,' introducing us to the Father, through his death, and through his intercession, as being the firstborn from the dead; his third office is that of a King, a 'commander to the people'—comp. Is. lv. 4 with Rev. i. 5, where he whom the Father hath sealed is described as a Prophet, 'the Faithful Witness;' a Priest, 'the First-begotten of the dead;' and King, 'the Prince of the kings of the earth.' Not only did the Father bear ample witness to the Son, at his coming into the world, but from the Apocalypse may be seen, that he hath been so overruling the affairs of nations ever since, as to make even the utmost strivings of his enemies bear witness to the truth, that Jesus is indeed the Sent of God. See the opening of the seven seals, Rev. vi., &c. The angel which shewed the book to John said, 'I am thy fellow-servant, and of thy brethren that have the testimony of Jesus: worship God: for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy,' Rev. xix. 10.

NOTES.

27. Labour not, &c. This does not mean that we are to make no effort for the supply of our temporal wants—comp. 2 Th. iii. 10, 'For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that if any would not work, neither should he eat;' but that we are not to manifest undue anxiety; we are not to make this the main or supreme object of our desire—see Note, Mt. vi. 25, § 19, p. 135.

[That meat which endureth, &c. The speaking of spiritual food as meat and drink is familiar to eastern nations, and frequent in Scripture—see Pr. ix. 5, 'Come, eat of my bread, and drink of the wine which I have mingled;' Isa. lv. 2, 'Wherefore do ye spend money,' &c.—see 'Scrip. Illus.' supra.]

'Sealed. ἐσφράγισεν. 'Hath confirmed, authorized, commissioned, as it were, with the witness of a seal,' with which privileges and orders were sealed; miracles were to his doctrine what a seal is to a written instrument.—See Note, Jno. iii. 33, § 13, p. 91.

[The expression points out Christ's commission as a Prophet or Priest. As a person who wishes to communicate his mind to another at a distance, writes a letter, seals it with his own seal, and sends it directed to the person for whom it was written; so Christ, who lay in the bosom of the Father, came to interpret the Divine will to man; bearing the image, superscription, and seal of God, in his holiness, doctrine, and miracles.]—See 'Scrip. Illus.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[27 ver. If men labour to obtain food for the body, much more should the Christian be diligent in searching the Scriptures, to obtain that which nourishes the soul unto everlasting life—see Is. lv. 2, 'Scrip. Illus.' supra. Although we are to labour to obtain the precious word of God, in order to feed thereon, yet we are not to consider ourselves worthy of such reward for our labour; we are to receive it as being given to us of God in Christ Jesus. Although the knowledge of God's word is freely given to us of Jesus, yet we must not expect the increase of this knowledge without labour. God uses the instrumentality of the creature in opening that evidence which is sealed. We have each need to pray, 'Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law,' Ps. cxix. 18. Jesus is the fully accredited Messenger of the Father; and in him the fulness of the Godhead is treasured up. Let us earnestly seek to have opened unto us the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, which are hid in Christ.]

JOHN VI. 28—31.

28 Then said-they unto him, What shall-we-do, that we-might-work ἐργαζωμεθα the 29 works of God? Jesus answered and said unto-them, This is the work of God, that ye-believe on him-whom he hath-sent.
30 They-said therefore unto-him, What sign shewest [ποιεις, doest, performest] thou 31 then, that we-may-see, and believe thee? what dost-thou-work ἐργαζῃ? Our fathers did-eat manna in the desert; as it-is written, He-gave them bread from heaven to-eat.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

28. What shall we do? &c.—the Lord, by the prophet, had already told what they should do, Is. lv. 2, 'Hearken diligently,' &c.—see on ver. 27, p. 326—ver. 3, 'Incline your ear, and come unto me: hear, and your soul shall live; and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David;' and then, as if pointing to the Son, whom he hath sealed, he saith, ver. 4, 'Behold, I have given him for a witness to the people, a leader and commander to the people.' The commission of Jesus extended to other nations beside those with which he was conversant in the days of his flesh, ver. 5. . . . . The terms of reconciliation, and the urgency of accepting, without delay, the offers of grace—see ver. 6, 7. The wondrous discovery of Divine wisdom and goodness, the abundance of all blessing, when the testimony is in truth received, ver. 8—13.

30. What sign, &c.—they seem here to allude to the close of the same portion of prophecy as that to the beginning of which our Lord had referred in ver. 27. The great sign to the world that Jesus is indeed the Sent of the Father, is that which is presented in the word prospering in the thing whereto it was sent—'It shall be to the Lord for a name, for an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off,' Is. lv. 11—3. . . . —this sign it is likely these Jews did not understand, any more than they understood that part of the same chapter which invites to eat that which is good.

31. manna—upon which the children of Israel were fed forty years in the wilderness, Ex. xvi. 35. . . . —the description is given in ver. 14, 31—see NOTES—on the sixth day enough was to be gathered for two days, that the seventh might be kept holy, ver. 23, 30—there was a pot of manna laid up in the most holy place: 'which had the golden censer, and the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, wherein was the golden pot that had manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant,' He. ix. 4—those who overcome are promised the hidden manna: 'To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it,' Rev. ii. 17—'When the children of Israel saw it, they said one to another, It is manna [or, What is this?]: for they wist not what it was. And Moses said unto them, This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat,' Ex. xvi. 15—a like inquiry to that which is expressed in the name of the bread from heaven, 'What is this?' was made by Moses when the Redeemer of Israel appeared to him in the bush, Ex. iii. 13, 'And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you; and they shall say to me, What is his name? what shall I say unto them?'—a like inquiry was made by the father of Samson, Ju. xiii. 17, 18, 'And Manoah said unto the angel of the Lord, What is thy name, that when thy sayings come to pass we may do thee honour? And the angel of the Lord said unto him, Why askest thou thus after my name, seeing it is secret?' [or, wonderful]—this question is also asked in the Psalms, xxiv. 8, &c. . . . . 'Who is this King of glory? The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle'—and again, ver. 10, 'Who is this King of glory? The Lord of hosts, he is the King of glory'—so in the Proverbs, xxx. 4, 'Who hath ascended up into heaven, or descended? who hath gathered the wind in his fists? who hath bound the waters in a garment? who hath established all the ends of the earth? what is his name, and what is his son's name, if thou canst tell?'—the question is also asked by the prophets, as Is. lxiii. 1, 'Who is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bozrah?'—it was asked by Herod, when he heard of the fame of Jesus, 'Who is this, of whom I hear such things?' Lu. ix. 9, § 40, p. 305—by the Pharisees it was demanded of the man who had been born blind, and whose eyes Jesus had opened, 'What sayest thou of him, that he hath opened thine eyes?' Jno. ix. 17, § 55—and when Jesus entered Jerusalem as predicted, 'Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem: behold, thy King cometh unto thee: he is just, and having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass,' Zech. ix. 9. . . . . all the city was moved, saying, Who is this? And the multitude said, This is Jesus, the prophet of Nazareth of Galilee,' Mt. xxi. 10, 11, § 82—shortly after we hear the people saying to Jesus, 'We have heard out of the law that Christ abideth for ever: and how sayest thou, The Son of man must be lifted up? who is this Son of man?' Jno. xii. 34, § ib.—it is with this question, 'What think ye of Christ? whose son is he?' that Jesus reduced his opposers to silence—see Mt. xxii. 41—6, § 85—see the questions, Mt. xvi. 13, 4, § 50.

as it is written, &c.—Ps. lxxviii. 22—4—it is remarkable that these cavillers should so pointedly refer to a portion of Scripture so strikingly descriptive of their own case—the psalmist is describing the

NOTES.

29. This is the work of God, &c.—Our first duty is to credit the Divine testimony, and listen with humility, and earnest prayerful attention, to the terms our offended Sovereign hath been pleased to make known for our acceptance.

[God hath from the beginning been working one grand work, in testimony to the truth that Jesus is the Christ; and man's first and great duty is to examine the evidence to which Jesus had more particularly directed attention, ch. v. § 23, p. 175. It is to search the Scriptures, and see that they are they which testify of Jesus; and that, seen in their light, the works of creation and of providence do the same. It may be observed, that Jesus tells his hearers what they are to do, by pointing them to the great purpose of the Divine working. By whatever instrumentality God had been giving forth his words, they all go to form one harmonious whole in testimony to the Son of God, who is himself 'the Word.' This, surely, is a sufficient intimation to man of the one work in which he should be engaged. If the Father hath done so much to draw our attention to Jesus, it certainly is our duty, and it is no less our privilege, so to learn of the Father, as to come unto the Son, in whom alone we can possess everlasting life.]

[31. Did eat manna. τὸ μάννα. Render 'the manna.' The derivation of this word has been disputed. Some think it is from the Hebrew מָן הוּא. What is this?

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

29 ver. This is spoken of in Isa. lv. 3—see 'Ser. III.' ver. 28, supra. We are to present ourselves to God, as clay in the hands of the potter, that he may work his will in us, for his glory, by working faith in us, thus making with us an everlasting covenant. We cannot work this faith in ourselves, but if we seek, by an unprejudiced examination of evidence, to know the truth that we may do it, God will not fail to 'work in you (us) both to will and to do of his good pleasure,' Ph. ii. 13. We shall know that he hath been working, and doth work, to produce in us faith in 'him whom he hath sent.' And we shall with gratitude acknowledge, that 'his work is honourable and glorious: and his righteousness endureth for ever,' Ps. cxi. 2, 3.

JOHN VI. 32—.6.

32 Then Jesus said unto-them, Verily, verily, I-say unto-you, Moses gave you not that 33 bread from heaven; but my Father giveth you the true bread from heaven. For the-bread of God is he which-cometh-down from heaven, and giveth life unto-the world.
34 Then said-they unto him, Lord, evermore give us this bread. 35, And Jesus said unto-them, I am the bread of life: he that-cometh to me shall-never-hunger; and he 36 that-believeth on me shall-never-thirst. But I-said unto-you, That ye-also-haveunbelief and taunting rebelliousness of ancient Israel in the wilderness, who, like these Jews, tempted God in their heart, by asking meat for their lust, ver. 19, 'Yea, they spake against God; they said, Can God furnish a table in the wilderness?' 22, 'Because they believed not in God, and trusted not in his salvation: 23, though he had commanded the clouds from above, and opened the doors of heaven, 24, and had rained down manna upon them to eat,' &c.—see also ver. 29, 'So they did eat, and were well filled: for he gave them their own desire'—and comp. with Mt. xiv. 20, &c., § 40, p. 314.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

32. Moses gave you not—it was the Son of God himself, the Angel, the Redeemer of Israel, who was with Moses in the wilderness, Is. lxiii. 9. 'In all their affliction he was afflicted, and the angel of his presence saved them: in his love and in his pity he redeemed them; and he bare them, and carried them all the days of old'—it was he who by the hand of Moses wrought those very miracles which they wished to magnify over those of Jesus; who was not now merely granting temporal nourishment and deliverance, but was come down to be himself the bread of life, ver. 48—51, p. 331.

bread from heaven—Jesus does not deny that bread from heaven was given to the Israelites; this the Scriptures expressly testify was the case: 'had rained down manna upon them to eat, and had given them of the corn of heaven. Man did eat angels' food: he sent them meat to the full.' Ps. lxxviii. 24, .5—'and gavest them bread from heaven for their hunger,' Ne. ix. 15—that which Jesus denies is, that it was Moses who gave them the manna—he, however, not only contrasts the Giver with Moses; but also the true bread from heaven with the manna, which was only the perishing shadow of Him who is both the Giver and the gift—see ver. 50, .1. p. 331.

my Father giveth you the true, &c.—see again ver. 49—51, p. 45.—'For God so loved the world, that he gave,' &c. Jno. iii. 16, § 12, p. 86.

34. Lord, evermore give us this bread—so the Samaritan woman, 'Sir, give me this water,' ch. iv. 15, § 13, p. 93.

35. I am the bread of life—'I AM THAT I AM,' &c., Ex. iii. 14.

he that cometh to me, &c.—he that comes to Christ, knowing what is testified of him by the Father, comes to learn of him, as a scholar comes unto a teacher to be taught, Mt. xi 28, .9, § 29, p. 228—those that in truth come thus unto Christ will be plentifully supplied with the knowledge of God, of his word, and of his works, whereby they may be abundantly edified, Is. lv. 2, 3. . . . Pr. viii.

he that believeth on me, &c.—this implies the possession of that knowledge of Christ which is obtained by coming unto him as disciples—there is then a heart-

NOTES.

the expression of surprise at its first falling; others from מָנָה, to measure, or prepare. To this day, there is a kind of manna produced in Poland, Calabria, Dauphine, Lebanon, and Arabia. That of Calabria, in Italy, is a juice proceeding from ash-trees about the dog-days; but that in Arabia is found on leaves of trees, or herbs, or even on the sand; but its quality is rather purgative than nourishing, and for that effect is now used in medicine. Besides the nourishing virtue of the manna that sustained the Hebrews in the desert, it was altogether miraculous on other accounts. It fell on six days of every week, not on the seventh. It fell in such prodigious quantities around the Hebrew camp, as to sustain almost three millions of men, women, and children. According to Scheuchzer, they consumed 94,466 bushels in a day, and 1,379,293,600 bushels in forty years. It fell in double quantities on the sixth day, that there might be enough for the seventh. It fell round about their tents. It remained fresh all the seventh day, but at any other time bred worms and stank if kept over night. It constantly continued for forty years, and ceased as soon as the Hebrews had access to eat of the old corn of Canaan. Since these circumstances must be allowed to be miraculous, how foolish must it be to dispute the supernatural origin of the whole!]

He gave them, &c. This was regarded as a miraculous interference in their behalf, and an attestation of the Divine mission of Moses.

32. Moses gave you not, &c. It was not Moses, but the Angel Jehovah, who was with Moses in the wilderness, that fed the Israelites with manna. Jesus does not directly say that it was he who had fed their fathers; but he presses upon them the greater evidence of his love, in his having come to give himself for man's redemption.

My Father giveth you, &c. In the gift of his Son.

The true bread. Christ is the true, not only in opposition to the mere supply of temporal wants, but also in opposition to all false doctrine and false religion which deceives and destroys the soul.

33. Giveth life unto the world. Not merely by sustaining for a season the natural life of one nation; but by conveying eternal life to all of every nation, who by faith feed upon him—an extension of blessing far from agreeable to the Jews, Ac. xxii. 21, .2.

[34. Lord, evermore give us this bread. This request of the Jews was altogether selfish. Our Saviour had spoken of giving life unto the world. This, in place of gratifying their benevolence, may have stirred up their selfishness; so that fearful of losing the advantages, such as they were, which they had from Christ being among them, they cry out, 'Lord, evermore give us this bread.']

35 I am the bread of life. I am the support of spiritual life.

[Never hunger . . . never thirst. i. e., 'Never want anything necessary to his eternal happiness.' The important truths primarily intended to be inculcated were these; that to hear and believe were the great requisites on the part of men, and that spiritual sustenance, even unto life eternal, would be the correspondent gift on the part of God. And thus, as far at least as the 51st verse, this discourse may be considered as an amplification, by means of a constant allusion to the bread of life, of what Christ had taught on another occasion, ch. v. 24, § 23, p. 177.]

36. But I said unto you, &c. As when he said at the very commencement of this interview, ver 26, p. 325, 'Ye seek me, not because ye saw the miracles,' &c. Not because they were convinced of his Divine mission, but for temporal advantages.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[30—.2 ver. Let us beware of magnifying past displays of Divine power and goodness, to the undervaluing of the present manifestations of his love, and which especially call for our gratitude. Let us not rest satisfied with the shadows of good things to come, but prize the substance—the Son of God, given of the Father, for the life of the world.]

33 ver. Let us earnestly desire that the mission of Christ may be accomplished, by his truth being universally fed upon; and by his giving life, not merely to a few scattered individuals, but to the world.

34, .5 ver. Let us know that Jesus is the bread of life, and see that we are really made alive by Him; otherwise we cannot give evidence of being partakers of his grace.

HEAR; FOR I WILL SPEAK OF EXCELLENT THINGS; AND THE OPENING OF MY LIPS SHALL BE RIGHT THINGS. COUNSEL IS MINE, AND SOUND WISDOM: I AM UNDERSTANDING; I HAVE STRENGTH.—Prov. viii. 6, 14.

JOHN vi. 37—40.

37 seen me, and believe not. All that παν ὁ the Father giveth me shall-come to me; and 38 him that-cometh to me I-will-in-no-wise-cast out. For I-came-down from heaven, 39 not to do mine-own will, but the will of-him that-sent me. And this is the Father's will which-hath-sent me, that-of all which παν ὁ he-hath-given me I-should-40 lose nothing, but should-raise-it-up-again at the last day. And this is the will of-him that-sent me, that every-one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may-have everlasting life: and I will-raise-him-up at-the last day.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

reliance upon him as the all-sufficient Saviour, so as to experience the truth of the promises made to those who so believe in Christ, as that they trust themselves to his guidance—this is further opened up in the next chapter, ch. vii. 38, 39, § 55, 'He that believeth on me, as the Scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water. (But this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive.)' will in no wise cast out—this is a clear intimation that he did not regard those he was now addressing as having come to him, for he not only had separated himself from them when they would have taken him by force to make him a king, ver. 15, § 41, p. 317; but he now delivered to them such discourse as he knew was calculated to drive them away, ver. 52, 53, p. 331; ver. 64, 66, p. 333—although it is well fitted to make the true disciple cling to him the more closely, ver. 68, 69, p. 334.

37. all that the Father, &c.—see Is. liii. 12. . . . . 'In the LORD shall all the seed of Israel be justified, and shall glory,' xlv. 25. . . . . 'Thy people also shall be all righteous,' lx. 21, &c.

38. I came down from heaven, &c.—this he had intimated in general terms before, ver. 33—but he now proceeds to specify more particularly the purposes to be served by his incarnation; these were, first, his doing the will of the Father; and, secondly, his suffering, his giving his flesh 'for the life of the world,' ver. 51, p. 331—He that had come thus far, and was willing to do and suffer so much for man, would certainly not reject those who came unto him with anything like a true knowledge of his character and mission.

39. that of all which he hath given me, &c.—the whole, therefore, and not a portion, of those that belong to Christ, are to be raised up to enjoy in fellowship the blessing of Messiah's reign—see again, ver. 40, 44, 54, pp. 330, 2.

should . . . . at the last day—this expression occurs four times in the discourse—see above—and by it our Lord seems emphatically to point the attention of his auditors beyond any temporal advantages which they might have expected to enjoy in the case of their being successful in making Christ a king, ver. 15, § 41, p. 317—they were to look to the eternal state, and more especially to that period called the last day, or day of the Lord: 'For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: 17, then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord. 18, Wherefore comfort one another with these words.' 1 Th. iv. 16—8—'For yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night,' ch. v. 2—the day of rest to the people of God: 'And to you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels.' 10, 'When he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe (because our testimony among you was believed) in that day,' 2 Th. i. 7, 10—immediately succeeding the resurrection of the saints, and more particularly described, Rev. xx. 4—6, 'And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them: and I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. 5, But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection. 6, Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years'—see also Jno. xi. 24, § 58, 'I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day.'—See NOTES.

40. seeth the Son, and believeth on him, &c.—they had seen, and had not believed, ver. 30, p. 327—our Lord

NOTES.

37. Shall come. ἥξει, 'will come,' signifying the certainty of the event. Coming to Christ is the same as believing in him.

[I will in no wise cast out. ου μη εκβαλω εξω, 'by no means cast out.' The expression is extremely beautiful and emphatic. It represents an humble supplicant as coming into the house of a great person to cast himself upon his care. He might fear his petition would be rejected, and he thrust out of doors; but our Lord assures him to the contrary. There are two negatives, 'I will not; no, I will not.' —See 'Scrip. Illus.']

38. For I came down, &c. Our Lord shews the credibility of what he has said by adverting to the purpose of his coming; q. d., How indeed should I reject any coming unto me in truth; since for this end came I from heaven, that I might save them?

39. The Father . . . hath given me. Christ is the gift of God to the perishing sinner, and the repentant sinner is the gift of God to his Son.

Lose nothing, &c.—See on ch. xvii. 12, § 87.

[40. Which seeth the Son. ὁ θεωρων τον υἱον, 'who views the Son with an attentive eye'—comp. Mt. xxvii. 55, § 92; Lu. x. 18, § 60; xxi. 6, § 86; Jno. xvii. 24, § 87; Ac. iii. 16; He. vii. 4. Alludes perhaps to the brazen serpent—see Jno. iii. 14, 15, § 12, p. 85.]

I will raise, &c.—Whenever the subject of resurrection is brought forward among the ancient Jews, we must always understand it of the resurrection of the blessed to eternal life, and this is what Christ here intends.

At the last day. At the day of judgment. The Jews supposed that the righteous would be raised up

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

36 ver. It is not outward nearness that can profit us. There were those who were present with Jesus, when he was upon earth, who saw his miracles, and partook of the bread he had miraculously provided for them, yet did not really believe in him, as the Sent of God, and who consequently remained unprofited by his coming.

[37 ver. Although the Jews generally remained unprofited by Jesus, yet 'all Israel,' the people whom the Jews thought to be cast away, Ezc. xi. 15, 6, 'the fatherless,' who in God were to find mercy, Ho. xiv. 3—8. . . . these were given to him of the Father; and the purpose of God is, that 'in the LORD shall all the seed of Israel be justified, and shall glory,' Is. xlv. 25. He who takes the Lord as his portion, and in the Lord looks for that which is promised, shall in nowise be cast out of the inheritance. There can be no title to possession, but what is found in Christ, who is the Heir of all things; the title in Him is sure.]

38 ver. Let us feel like Him whose steps we profess to follow. Let us know that we are placed in this world, not to do our own will, but the will of the Father.

39, 40 ver. Let us ever remember the Father's love for the people of whom he hath said, 'I have chosen

LET THE WICKED FORSAKE HIS WAY, AND THE UNRIGHTEOUS MAN HIS THOUGHTS: AND LET HIM RETURN UNTO THE LORD, AND HE WILL HAVE MERCY UPON HIM; AND TO OUR GOD FOR HE WILL ABUNDANTLY PARDON.—Isaiah lv. 7.

JOHN VI. 41—.5

41 The Jews then murmured at him, because he said, I am the bread which came-down 42 from heaven. And they-said, Is not this Jesus, the son of-Joseph, whose father and 43 mother we know? how is it then that he saith, I-came-down from heaven? Jesus 44 therefore answered and said unto-them, Murmur not among yourselves. No-man can δύναται come to me, except the Father which hath-sent me draw ἑλκύσῃ him: and 45 I will-raise-him-up at-the last day. It-is written in the prophets, And they-shall-be all taught διδακτοὶ of God. Every-man therefore that hath-heard, and hath-learned of

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

had, ver. 39, referred to the redeemed collectively, as being given to him of the Father; and as being made partakers of everlasting life, now as to their souls, and resurrection life hereafter as to their bodies. He now, ver. 40, refers to the redeemed individually, pointing to that whereby they come to be partakers of the blessing: faith in the Son of God. It is not only the general cause of God which is to enjoy a revival—the individual believer is to be given a resurrection in the last day—see ver. 39, 44, 54, pp. 329, 32.

41. the Jews then murmured, &c.—the occasion of their stumbling was the intimation of his pre-existence and pre-eminence. He whom they thought would be flattered by being made a temporal sovereign to them, had come down from heaven, and was in truth what his miracles had proved him to be, the Son of God—see ver. 42.

42. Is not this? &c. How is it then? &c.—see on manna, ver. 31, p. 327—the same question was asked in the synagogue, at Nazareth, Lu. iv. 22, § 15, p. 104—see also Mt. xiii. 55, § 37, p. 287—Jesus himself puts a question which, like this, can only be answered by a reference to the two natures of Christ—see on Mt. xxii. 45, § 85.

43. among yourselves, &c.—they should, upon so serious a subject, have addressed themselves to God for enlightenment and direction—'Good and upright is the LORD: therefore will he teach sinners in the way. 9, The meek will he guide in judgment: and the meek will he teach his way.' 14, 'The secret of the LORD is with them that fear him; and he will shew them his covenant,' Ps. xxv. 8, 9, 14. Men are brought to submit to God the Father, before they are brought to know the fulness of blessing in the Son. So was it with the first Gentile converts: 'Immediately therefore I sent to thee; and thou hast well done that thou art come. Now therefore are we all here present before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God,' Ac. x. 33.

45. it is written, &c.—in Is. liv. 13. . . . 'And all thy children shall be taught of the LORD; and great shall be the peace of thy children'—these words are in the chapter immediately following that which describes the sufferings of Christ, and before that which had been so especially referred to, ver. 27—30, pp. 326, ..7.

taught of God—a similar sentiment is found in Mic. iv. 2, 'And many nations shall come, and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem'—and Jer. xxxi. 33. . . . 'But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the LORD, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they' &c.

that hath heard—see NOTES, infra.

NOTES.

at the appearing of the Messiah (see Lightfoot). Jesus directs them to a future resurrection, and shews who will be raised at the last day. It is also supposed that they did not believe that the wicked would be raised. Hence to speak of being raised up in the last day was the same as to say that one was righteous, or it was spoken of as the peculiar privilege of the righteous. In accordance with this Paul says, 'If by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead,' Ph. iii. 11.

42. Is not this Jesus, &c. They did not know his heavenly origin; and judging of the meanness of his earthly condition, they could not receive his doctrine.

[44. No man can come, &c. Jesus does not deny that these things appeared difficult; and hence he said that if any man believed, it was proof that God had inclined him. It was not to be expected that of themselves they would embrace the doctrine. The difficulty in this case was not a want of natural faculties, but erroneous opinions, pride, obstinacy, self-conceit; which prevented their attending to the evidence given by the Father to the truth of Jesus' Messiahship. This word cannot is often used to denote a strong and violent opposition of the will. Thus it is said, Ge. xxxvii. 4, of the brethren of Joseph, that they 'hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him.' Thus, Mt. xii. 34, § 31, 'How can ye, being evil, speak good things?'—see Lu. xiii. 33, § 66.]

Except . . . draw him. We cannot see the truth as it is in Jesus, unless we are given a somewhat truthful state of mind, Ps. xii. 3—7. Some regard to the justice, truth, and holiness of God, as well as to his wisdom and power, must be had, before we can see the value of the atonement, or appreciate the evidence that Jesus is the Christ, Ga. iii. 24, .5,

'Wherefore the law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith. But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster.' The Father delivers from the power of darkness, and translates into the kingdom of his dear Son, Col. i. 12—4, 'Giving thanks unto the Father, which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light: 13, who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son: 14, in whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins.' We must be as little children, Jno. iii. 3, § 12, p. 83; Mt. xviii. 3, § 53. Humbly submitting ourselves to the drawings of the Father, we are led into the privileges of the sons of God, to be fully realized in the resurrection, at the appearing of the Son of God in glory, 1 Jno. iii. 1, 2, 'Behold,' &c.

Draw him. In the conversion of the sinner, God enlightens the understanding, inclines the will, and influences the mind by motives. So that while God inclines him, and will have all the glory, man yields without compulsion; the obstacles are removed, and he becomes a willing servant of God.

45. Taught of God. διδακτοὶ τοῦ Θεοῦ. Be the 'disciples or scholars of God.' Shall humbly sit down, as it were, at his feet, and receive instruction from him—see 'Script. Illus.'

[That hath heard. Had heard the words of God as spoken from Sinai, when he delivered to the children of Israel the law of the ten commandments; and when he promised to raise them up a Prophet like unto MOSES, by whom they should be more familiarly instructed, De. xviii. 15—.9.]

[And hath learned, &c. Not only did the Father speak to them more immediately from Sinai; but by thee, and not cast thee away,' Is. xli. 8, 9, p. (41). The Father's choosing of one . . . . . people, does not prevent the display of his grace to other individuals.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[41 ver. Men sometimes ask for that, which when granted, they refuse. The Jews had said, 'Lord, evermore give us this bread;' and yet when Jesus was presented to them as that bread, they murmured at him.]

JOHN vi. 46—53.

46 the Father, cometh unto me. Not that any-man hath-seen the Father, save he which-is 47 of God, he hath-seen the Father. Verily, verily, I-say unto-you, He that-believeth on 48 me hath everlasting life. I am that bread of life. 49, Your fathers did-eat manna in 50 the wilderness, and are-dead. This is the bread which cometh-down from heaven, that 51 a-man may-eat thereof, and not die. I am the living bread which came-down from heaven: if any-man eat of this bread, he-shall-live for ever εις τον αιωνα: and the bread that I will-give is my flesh, which I will-give for the life of-the world.
52 The Jews therefore strove εμαχοντο among themselves, saying, How can this-man 53 give us his flesh to-eat? Then Jesus said unto-them, Verily, verily, I-say unto-you, Except ye-eat the flesh of-the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye-have no life in you.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

46. not that any man hath seen, &c.—although men must be drawn by the Father in their coming to Christ, yet it is only in the Son that they can become truly acquainted with the Father: 'No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him,' ch. i. 18, § 7, p. 48; Mt. xi. 27, § 29, p. 228.

49. your fathers did eat, &c.—see on ver. 31, p. 327. The manna, although a lively emblem of the bread of life, had not the life-giving properties of the 'true bread from heaven.'

50. cometh down from heaven, &c.—referring to his being the Son of God, who had come from the Father —'for the Father himself loveth you, because ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God. 28, I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father,' ch. xvi. 27, 28, § 87.

and not die—not be cut off by judgment, as were those fathers who died in the wilderness, but live for ever in the enjoyment of the Divine favour—'that they might set their hope in God, and not forget the works of God, but keep his commandments: 8, and might not be as their fathers, a stubborn and rebellious generation; a generation that set not their heart aright, and whose spirit was not stedfast with God,' Ps. lxxviii. 7, 8.

51. the bread that I will give is my flesh, &c.—referring to the sacrifice which, as having taken to him our nature, the Son of God was to offer, in order to procure life for the world, Heb. ii. 14—8; x. 10.

52. how can this man? &c.—so when Jesus discoursed of the new birth, Nicodemus asked, 'How can these things be?' ch. iii. 9, § 12, p. 84.

53. eat the flesh, &c.—a lively representation of the same truth was afterwards given at the last supper, when, 'as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body,' &c., Mt. xxvi. 26, § 87.

NOTES.

the instrumentality of the prophets he, according to the rule placed before them in the Decalogue, was ever, more and more, instructing them, in preparation for the teaching of the Son of God.]

[Cometh unto me. The law was a schoolmaster to train disciples for Christ, by whom they were more fully to be taught of God; be led into the spirituality of the law, and the meaning of the types; and be given a better understanding and a perfect confirmation of the words of the prophets, in preparation for the farther teaching of the Holy Ghost, the Comforter.—See Sect. xix., 'The Sermon on the Mount,' pp. 119—52.]

[Those who had not only heard the words of promise, so as to expect a Messiah; but had become so acquainted with the teaching of God, by Moses and the prophets, as to be able to appreciate evidence on the subject;—those who, being humble and sincere before God, had profited by the means of grace enjoyed under the Old Testament dispensation, were the best prepared for receiving the enlargement to be given under the New.]

When the Father's voice is listened to, there is simplicity of mind before God, submission to the sovereignty of the Father; there is a coming to the Son, that through him there may be access to the Father; and there is a supplicating the aid of the Holy Spirit, whereby conformity may be had unto the will of the Father: so as to enjoy that great blessing of peace consequent upon the Divine teaching, spoken of by the prophet, Is. liv. 13—. . . . A free invitation to this peace the Saviour had before given, Mt. xi. 28—30, § 29, p. 228, 'Come unto me,' &c.

46. Save he which is of God. Jesus here evidently refers to himself as the Son of God. He is 'the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father,' Jno. i. 18, § 7, p. 48; 'the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person,' He. i. 3; 'over all, God blessed for ever,' Rom. ix. 5.

Hath seen. Hath intimately known or perceived him. He knows his nature, character, plans.

48. I am that bread of life. My doctrine, and the benefit of my mediation, are that real support, of spiritual life, of which the manna in the wilderness was the faint emblem—see ver. 32, 33, p. 328.

[51. I am the living bread. Here our Lord declares, in literal expressions, what he had in the preceding verse couched in figurative ones, and adds something further. From the use of the figure in the preceding verses, it is plain that by eating the flesh of Christ here is metaphorically meant believing in the sacrifice of the death of Christ as the means of salvation.]

The bread that I will give, &c. Alluding to the death which he was to suffer for human redemption.

Life of the world. That the world might, by his atoning sacrifice, be pardoned, be reconciled to God, and be brought to eternal life. The same word which in Hebrew means bread, in the Syriac and Arabic means also flesh.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[44—6 ver. Let us seek to manifest the Father unto those whom we endeavour to bring unto Jesus. Neither the previous work of the Father, nor the subsequent work of the Spirit, should be disregarded by those who would profit by the work of the Son. We may not despise the teaching of the Father: men must 'be taught of God:' men must 'learn of the Father,' in order to be brought unto Christ. And yet we can only know the Father in truth, as having him made known to us by the Son.]

47—50 ver. He that feeds upon Jesus, must believe that he came down from heaven; and that he is not only Divine, but also truly a partaker of our nature; and that, as God-man, he hath given his flesh for the life of the world.

[52—4 ver. As a dead man cannot manifest life, so neither can he who is not made alive through the dying of the Son of God, produce the actual phenomena of spiritual life. Let us be both present

JOHN vi. 54—61.

54 Whoso eateth τρωγων my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life: and I will-55 raise-him-up at-the last day. For my flesh is meat βρωσις indeed αληθως, and my 56 blood is drink ποσις indeed. He that-eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth 57 in me, and-I in him. As the living Father hath-sent me, and-I live by the Father: so 58 he that-eateth me, even-he shall-live by me. This is that bread which came-down from heaven: not as your fathers did-eat manna, and are-dead: he that-eateth-of this bread shall-live for ever εις τον αιωνα.
59 These-things said-he in the-synagogue, as-he-taught in Capernaum. 60, Many therefore of his disciples, when-they-had-heard this, said, This is an-hard σκληρος saying; 61 who can hear it? When-Jesus-knew in himself that his disciples murmured at it, he-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS

54. eateth my flesh—he afterwards explains that this, in the mere literal sense, would profit nothing, and that feeding upon his words is that which is to be understood—see ver. 63, p. 333.

eternal life, &c.—see ver. 27, 40, 63, pp. 326, .9, .33; ch. iv. 14, &c., § 13, p. 93.

55. meat indeed, &c.— Thy words were found, and I did eat them; and thy word was unto me the joy and rejoicing of mine heart,' Jer. xv. 16.

56. dwelleth in me—not only was the flesh of the passover eaten by the children of Israel, but alone within their blood-sprinkled 'dwellings was safety. Ex. xii. 7, 13, 22, .3. . . .—the covering of the ark (which held the law of the ten commandments) was sprinkled with the blood of atonement, Le. xvi. 14; Ile. ix. 3—7—It is by keeping his commandments that the believer gives evidence of being in Christ Jesus: 'And he that keepeth his commandments dwelleth in him, and he in him. And hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us,' 1 Jno. iii. 24—'hereby know we that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his Spirit,' iv. 13—and this is made to appear by confessing the truth and manifesting love, ver. 15, 'Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God'—ver. 16, 'And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him.'

I in him—this was the object of the Redeemer's request for his disciples, 'I in them, and thou in me,' ch. xvii. 23, § 87—and of the apostle's prayer, 'that Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith,' Eph. iii 17.

57. hath sent me—'As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you,' &c., ch. xx. 21, § 95.

so he . . . shall live by me—he that is given life in Christ, is to manifest that life—see on ch. vii. 37, .8, § 55.

58. that bread—see ver. 49—51, p. 331.

not as your fathers, &c.—they procured death for themselves by their lust: 'while their meat was yet in their mouths, the wrath of God came upon them, and slew the fattest of them,' &c., Ps. lxxviii. 30, .1—so Zech i. 4—6, 'Be ye not as your fathers, unto whom the former prophets have cried, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts; Turn ye now from your evil ways, and from your evil doings. but they did not hear, nor hearken unto me, saith the LORD. 5, Your fathers, where are they? and the prophets, do they live for ever? 6, But my words and my statutes, which I commanded my servants the prophets, did they not take hold of your fathers? and they returned and said, Like as the LORD of hosts thought to do unto us, according to our ways, and according to our doings, so hath he dealt with us.'

59. in the synagogue, as he taught, &c.—when Jesus taught in the synagogue at Nazareth, his text was in the prophet Isaiah, and his illustrations from the historical Scriptures, with an application to the then

NOTES.

56. Dwelleth in me. The blood of the paschal lamb was sprinkled upon the door posts of the dwellings of Israel. The believer, trusting entirely in Christ's atoning blood, is given shelter from darkness and death in Him who is the Light and the Salvation of Israel—see ch. xvii. 21, .3, .6, § 87.

And I in him. For sanctification, for life, enabling him to live unto God.

[57. And I live by the Father, &c. Christ's living by the Father seems to relate to his life as man and Mediator; because it is here spoken of as the consequence of the Father's sending him; and a believer's living by him is represented as being an analogy to Christ living by the Father.]

[59. Eateth . . . shall live for ever. The eating here spoken of cannot relate to a sacramental, much less to a corporeal and carnal eating and drinking the real body and blood of Christ; for these things were said a year, at least, before the Lord's supper was instituted, and were then spoken of in the present tense, as necessary to eternal life.—See ADDENDA, p. 335, 'Except ye eat,' &c.]

[60. Hard saying. σκληρός. Some explain this, 'hard to be understood' (and so Stobæus, ἀκουστὸν οὗτος ὁ λόγος καὶ σκληρός); others, 'offensive.' Either sense may be admitted, and, indeed, both may have place. That it should have appeared so is not strange, if we consider that Christ used such language of himself as no prophet had ever done, and took higher ground than even Moses had ever ventured to do; which must have made what he said at once unacceptable to some, and, from its touching on the most mysterious and experimental parts of religion, little intelligible to others.]

Who can hear it? These disciples seem here to withdraw from their former confession, 'Thou art of a truth that prophet,' &c., ver. 14, § 40, p. 317; of which Prophet the Father had said, 'I . . . will put my

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

partakers of eternal life, and expectant of being raised up in 'the last day.' There is not only a quickening of the soul now, but a raising up of the body hereafter.]

The being raised up in the last day; the being made partakers of the first resurrection from the dead, 'according to the eternal purpose which he purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord,' Eph. iii. 11; the being caught up to meet the Lord at his coming, is the great object of hope to the Christian, 1 Th. iv. 17, .8.

55—.7 ver. Let us, by a living faith, be found dwelling in Christ, and let him be in us, to regulate and direct that life, which we are given in Him.

Let us seek to live in as close communion with Christ, as Christ enjoys with the Father.

[58 ver. It was corporeally, and with murmuring, that the fathers partook of manna in the wilderness; but it is not as the fathers did eat, that the bread of life is to be partaken of. According to the nature of the life which has to be sustained by it, must the partaking be. Let us, with thanksgiving, feed by faith upon Christ unto life everlasting.]

[59 ver. Jesus availed himself of the privilege of

JOHN vi. 62—.5.

62 said unto-them, Doth-this-offend you? 63 ascend-up where he-was before το προτερον? profiteth nothing: the words that I speak 64 But there-are some of you that believe not. 65 they-were that believed not, and who [εστιν ὁ] should-betray him. And he-said, Therefore said-I unto-you, that no-man can come unto me, except it-were given unto-him of my Father.

What and-if ye-shall-see the Son of man It-is the Spirit that quickeneth; the flesh unto-you, they are spirit, and they are life. For Jesus knew from the-beginning who present circumstances—see Lu. iv. 14—27, § 15. p. 102—the scripture expounded in the present discourse is another portion of the same prophet, Is. liii. . . . iv. . . . lv. . . .—and the illustrations are much from the festival of the season, the Passover, ver. 4, § 40. p. 311—see 'INTRODUCTION,' p. 325—the result of the discourse at Nazareth was, that all they in the synagogue were filled with wrath, and attempted his destruction, Lu. iv. 28, .9, § 15, p. 105—the result of the present discourse was, that 'many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him'—see ver. 66.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

62. if ye shall see the Son of man, &c.—Jesus had given them many proofs of his being the Messiah—see ch. v. § 23, pp. 175—.80—the grand concluding evidence was yet to be given, in his resurrection and ascension into heaven—to this sign he had pointed forward from the beginning, ch. ii. 18—22, § 12, pp. 81, .2—So sure as Jesus should ascend up where he was before, would full proof be given of his Messiahship, in his being shewn that it is the Spirit that quickeneth, Jno. xv. 26: xvi. 7, &c., § 87, not his carnal ordinances, He. vii. 18, but by the words of Jesus, Jno. xiv 26; xv. 7, 8; xvi. 8, &c.—The fact of his resurrection was that to which abundant testimony was borne, in the promised bestowment of the Holy Ghost. It was the great subject of Peter's discourse on the day of Pentecost, Ac. ii. 32, .3, 'This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses. 33, Therefore being by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this, which ye now see and hear.'

where he was before—'He that came down from heaven, . . . the Son of man which is in heaven,' ch. iii. 13, § 12, p. 85—his prayer was answered, 'And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was,' ch. xvii. 5, § 87—'He was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God,' Mk. xvi. 19, § 98—see also Ac. i. 9, § ib.; vii. 56—'When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men.' Eph. iv. 8.

63. the words that I speak, &c.—the same words which appear to have been 'the savour of death unto death' to the unbelievers, are to those that believe 'the savour of life unto life,' 2 Cor. ii. 15, .6.

that believe not—see ver. 26, 36, pp. 325, .8.

64. knew from the, &c.—see ch. ii. 24, .5, § 12, p. 82.

betray, &c.—the same noticed ch. xiii. 11, § 87.

65. Therefore said I, &c.—see ver. 37, 44, .5, pp. 329, 30.

NOTES.

words in his mouth; and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not hearken unto my words which he shall speak in my name, I will require it of him,' De. xviii. 18, .9. In place of attending to the evidence that Jesus was that Prophet whom they were to hear in all things, they make themselves judges of what he should speak; and, in place of inquiring into the true import of his words, they make their own ignorance the ground of rejecting him.

63. It is the Spirit that quickeneth, &c. To those who remained to hear the conclusion of this discourse, our Lord here gives a key to the whole:—It is by the Spirit applying the truth respecting the atonement of Christ, that men are profited thereby. The flesh of the passover lamb did not necessarily confer life upon him that partook thereof, nor indeed would the flesh of Him whom it prefigured; but he who through that sign, or by simply hearing that word, contemplated Christ our Passover, and was led to trust in him alone for salvation, having no confidence in the flesh, was made partaker of everlasting life. Ph. iii. 3, 20, .1, 'For we are the circumcision, which worship God in the spirit, and rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the flesh.' 20, 'For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ: 21, who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself.'

[It is the Spirit. The general meaning of the passage has been represented, by Macknight and others, thus: 'Do ye revolt at this declaration, that my flesh is the bread which came down from heaven, and that you must eat my flesh and drink my blood in order to attain salvation? What if ye shall see the Son of man ascend up into heaven corporeally where he was before? Surely this will convince you that I did really come down from heaven; and that I never meant you should eat my flesh after a corporeal and carnal manner. That would profit you nothing. In so speaking I intended not a literal sense. It is my words taken in a spiritual sense that are the life-giving food of your souls: wherens, in a carnal acceptation, they are unavailing. The life-giving power of my Spirit it is that is imparted to my words, by which ye will be quickened and nourished unto life eternal.']

65. Except it were given, &c. Here our Lord refers to what he had said in ver. 37, 44, pp. 329, .30, and from a comparison of those verses with this, it is clear that by the Father's giving men, is meant his drawing them to him by shewing them his covenant. He leads them into a knowledge of the truth respecting his dear Son, so that men may come and be taught teaching truth in the Jewish synagogue, although the national worship had then become greatly corrupted, and the ordinary teaching went to make void the commandments of God, by human tradition.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[The Divine and human natures of Christ, ver. 50, .1; the atonement he was to make for sins, ver. 53, .4; the necessity of knowing him as having been foreshadowed by the Mosaic types; and of having present communion with him, and assimilation to him; the doctrine of the future resurrection of the body, ver. 39, 40, .4, 54; and of our being indebted for all to the free grace of God, ver. 38, .9; to the enjoyment of which all are welcome who are willing to partake thereof, ver. 40: these were the truths which Jesus, of old, taught in the Jewish synagogue, at the risk of being misunderstood, and of giving offence. In the midst of corruption, the TRUTH uttered his voice; and that in the view of desertion, and in the prospect of his betrayal and death.]

62 ver. Jesus, as the Son of man, is ascended to where he was before. He was one with the Father before he appeared upon earth, Eph. iv. 9, 10, 'Now that he ascended, what is it but that he also descended first into the lower parts of the earth? 10, He that descended is the same also that ascended up far above all heavens, that he might fill all things.' What, if we should neglect so great salvation, attested, not only by the fact of the Lord's ascension up where he was before, but by all that hath happened to his people since?

63 ver. It is not by feeding upon Christ corporeally that we can be profited by him. His words we are to feed upon: 'they are spirit, and they are life.'

64 ver. Men are not truly the disciples of Christ who do not believe in him as having come down from heaven to give himself for the life of the world.

65 ver. It is not as being taught the traditions of men, but as being instructed of the Father, that we can come unto Christ.

IF THERE COME ANY UNTO YOU, AND BRING NOT THIS DOCTRINE, RECEIVE HIM NOT INTO YOUR HOUSE, NEITHER BID HIM GOD SPEED: FOR HE THAT BIDDETH HIM GOD SPEED IS PARTAKER OF HIS EVIL DEEDS.—2 John 10, .1.

JOHN vi. 66—71.

66 From that time many of his disciples went back εις τα οπισω, and walked no-more 67 with him. Then said Jesus unto-the twelve, Will ye also go-away? 68, Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall-we-go? thou-hast the-words of-eternal life.
69 And we believe πεπιστευκαμεν and are-sure εγνωκαμεν that thou art that Christ, the Son 70 of-the living God. Jesus answered them, Have- not I -chosen you twelve, and one of 71 you is a-devil? He-spake-of Judas Iscariot the son of-Simon: for he it was that should ημελλεν betray him, being one of the twelve.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

66. went back, &c.—'they that forsake the LORD shall be consumed,' Is. i. 28—so Zeph. i. 6, 'And them that are turned back from the LORD; and those that have not sought the LORD, nor enquired for him'—see Lu. ix. 62, § 59—'Now the just shall live by faith: but if any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him,' He. x. 38.

67. the twelve—the twelve disciples 'whom also he named apostles,' Lu. vi. 13—6, § 27, p. 206—and had lately sent forth to preach, &c., x. 1, § 39, p. 294—they had just returned from their mission before the feeding of the five thousand, ix. 10—7, § 40, p. 309.

will ye also go away?—although not now offended to the same degree as the multitude, the night came when they were all offended in him: 'they all forsook him, and fled,' Mk. xiv. 27, 50, §§ 87, 88.

68. thou hast the words of eternal life—he was convinced that Jesus was that Prophet spoken of by Moses, see ver. 14—having the words of the everlasting covenant, even the sure mercies of David, Is. lv. 3—'the words of this life,' Ac. v. 20.

69. we believe and are sure, &c.—their experience of Jesus confirmed the testimony they had at first believed—so the Samaritans, ch. iv. 42, § 13, p. 96.

that Christ—the Prophet, Priest, and King, spoken of, Is. lv. 4, ...—see Peter's first introduction to Jesus by Andrew, Jno. i. 41, § 10, p. 71.

the Son of the living God—the confession of Nathanael at the beginning was, 'Thou art the Son of God,' ch. i. 49, § 10, p. 73—this confession had just before been made by those in the ship, Mt. xiv 33, § 41, p. 321—was again made by Peter, xvi. 16, § 50.

70. chosen—'He called unto him his disciples: and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles,' Lu. vi. 13, § 27, p. 206.

a devil—so to those who did not understand his speech because they could not hear his word. 'Ye are of your father the devil,' &c., ch. viii. 43, .4, § 55—of anti-Christian Babylon, in answer to her claim to infallibility and apostolic succession, it is said, Rev. xviii. 1, 2, 'Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird.'

71. Judas Iscariot—'a thief,' ch. xii. 6, § 81—'Satan entered into him,' ch. xiii. 21—30, § 87—he betrayed his Master with a kiss, Mt. xxvi. 48, .9, § 88—and see § 27, pp. 214, .7.

NOTES.

by Jesus—may not only be taught his words, but learn to follow his example, and that as reposing their whole confidence in him—as receiving through him the powerful aid of his Holy Spirit, whereby they are enabled to serve the Father with gratitude and gladness of heart.

66. Many of his disciples. The word disciple means learner. It was applied to the followers of Christ, because they were taught by him. It does not imply of necessity that those to whom it was given were real Christians; but simply that they were under his teaching, were professed learners in the school of Jesus—see Mt. xv. 16, § 50; Mk. ii. 18, § 22, p. 169; Jno. ix. 28, § 55; Mt. x. 24, § 30, p. 300.

Went back. Turned away from him and left him.

68. Thou hast, &c. The meaning of this is, Thou teachest the doctrines which lead to eternal life. Jesus is 'the way, the truth, and the life,' ch. xiv. 6, § 87. And if the sinner betakes himself to any other way, he will wander and die.

69. We believe, &c. Or, we believe and know, that is, we not only have believed that thou art the Messiah, and so, as disciples, have followed thee; but since we believed, we have had abundant and increased experience 'that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God.' Peter, after the recent scene upon the lake, might well make this acknowledgment, which had in substance been made by those in the ship, Mt. xiv. 33, § 41, p. 321.

70. Have not I chosen you twelve? There is much emphasis in these words. Have not I—I, the Saviour, the Messiah, chosen to the apostolic office, conferred on you marks of peculiar favour?

One of you is a devil. And that one, he who came the nearest to eating his flesh—except indeed in that sense in which our Lord had intimated his words were to be understood. At the very next passover, Judas, after eating the passover, from the very hands of his Master, went and sold him to his enemies. Thereafter, first in the soldiers who came to apprehend Jesus, and next and more fatally in Judas himself, and afterward in the Jewish nation generally, were the words fulfilled, 'When the wicked, even mine enemies and my foes, came upon me to eat up my flesh, they stumbled and fell,' Ps. xxvii. 2—comp. Jno. xviii. 6; Ac. i. 18; Rom. xi. 10—.2.

71. He spake of Judas, &c. There is no evidence that Jesus designated Judas so that the disciples then understood that it was he. It does not appear that the apostles suspected Judas, as they continued to treat him afterwards with the same confidence; for he carried the bag, or the purse containing their little property, (ch. xii. 6, § 81; xiii. 29, § 87.) At the table, when Jesus said that one of them would betray him, the rest did not suspect Judas until Jesus pointed him out particularly, ver. 26, § ib. Jesus spoke of one, to put them on their guard, to check their confidence, and to lead them to self-examination.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

67 ver. When we see others turn back, and walk no more with Jesus, let us be warned by their case, and hear the Lord saying unto us, 'Will ye also go away?' Who would have thought that even the twelve also would all forsake him? and yet such was the case.

68, .9 ver. Before we allow ourselves to be stumbled by the difficulties in our Christian career, let us ask with Peter, 'To whom shall we go?' Nowhere else can we have that which can alone give true comfort in this life, and nourish us up unto eternal life.

Peter was taught of God to discern the truth of what Jesus had said respecting the bread from heaven, when he said, 'Thou hast the words of eternal life,' and 'we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God.'

[70, .1 ver. Let no external advantage, as to calling or office in the Christian church, or evil report when others fall away, allow us to dream of security from coming temptation. The betrayer was among those few—the twelve whom Jesus himself had chosen to be apostles.]

ADDENDA.

'EXCEPT YE EAT,' ETC.—John vi. 53, p. 331.

Our Lord is evidently speaking of something which might be, and which ought to be, performed at the time of his speaking. The language is appropriate, if we consider him speaking of himself as the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world, and represented by the paschal lamb, of which the Jews were about to partake—see ver. 4, § 40, p. 311. Jesus takes care so to lead the thoughts of his hearers, as that those who were rightminded among them could scarcely fail, in the immediately approaching festival, to connect the anti-typical sacrifice which they were to feed upon by faith, with the typical passover, whereby their bodies were nourished. If we look at the matter in this light, we can see the propriety of our Lord's saying, "Except ye eat," that is, "Except ye do now eat," as if he were speaking of something which could then be done. He is therefore not referring to the Eucharist, to a sacrament afterwards to be instituted: in place of this, he is directing to the right use of the symbols then made use of, in the passover; and to the duty and the privilege of the believer, throughout all dispensations—of receiving nourishment from "The Word." This was true of Abel and of Abraham; and it will be true of the last among Adam's race who is made a child of God. This truth is recognised by Peter, when he says, in answer to the question of Jesus at the conclusion of the discourse, "Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life." The multitudes might feed upon the passover, or upon the bread with which Jesus had provided them in the wilderness, and they might thereafter remain as dead as before; and this appears to have been too much the case. Nay, even of those twelve in whose hands five loaves had, under the Divine blessing, increased to the fully satisfying five thousand,—of those even who were admitted to the institution of the Lord's supper, there might be one who was known to be a devil. If the sacramental bread were literally the body of Christ, as the Romanists say; and if the eating of that were what was required by our Lord, with the assurance, ver. 56, "He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him,"—then it might be objected that the words of Jesus were ill-timed, as requiring the people to partake then of a sacrament which was not instituted till afterwards; that they were also grossly inconsistent with fact, he promising to the eater eternal life, and declaring that he should ever retain possession of Christ; and yet one such eater was possessed by a devil, and was eminently "the son of perdition." Admit that not the sacrament, but Christ himself, as received by faith, is that which is spoken of, and all becomes clear.

It is to be noticed, that not only does our Lord require an eating of his flesh, but drinking of his blood. The words are equally express with regard to the one as the other, so that he who drinketh not the blood hath no life in him. This, according to the Roman Catholic understanding of the words, as applying to the Eucharist, cuts off the whole body of their laity from the enjoyment of eternal life: the cup, according to this view, containing the blood, which only the priests are permitted to drink, and from which the people are wholly debarred; they do not, according to their own view of the case, drink the blood. If salvation depend upon eating the flesh in the Eucharist, it also depends upon drinking the blood in the Eucharist, which none of the people, but only the priests, are allowed to do. Thus the Romish priesthood leave the whole of their followers in death. It is true, that the priests apologize, saying, the laity are given the blood along with the bread; the bread, they say, is the body, containing both flesh and blood. But this suppositition as eating of blood does not at all answer the requirement of the text. The eating of bread is certainly no drinking of blood in any sense, and without the drinking of blood there is no life.

Those who pretend to take these words in their literal acceptation are therefore the farthest from doing so. In place of exercising faith by spiritual acts, as apprehending spiritual objects, they exert it in blind credulity, contradicting sense and reason, and turning the words of God into the grossest absurdity. But surely, if they do indeed believe that the words, "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you,"—surely, if they do believe these words to refer to the Eucharist, they would not stop short with eating the flesh, and thus most obviously come short of salvation. They would also drink the cup, of which the Saviour said at the last supper, "Drink ye all of it."

It is obvious, however, that our Lord here refers, not to that which could only afterwards be done. He refers to that which might be done at the time he spake, and which was requisite to the true observance of the passover, the festival of the season in which the words were spoken.

THIS IS THE WORK OF GOD,' ETC.—John vi. 29, p. 327.

This is spoken of in Isa. lv. 3—that portion of Isaiah which is so frequently referred to in Jno. vi. ch.—see 'Scr. Illus.' ver. 28, p. 327. We are to present ourselves to God, as clay to the hand of the potter, that he may work his will in us, and fashion us for his glory; and this he will do, by working faith in us; thus making with us an everlasting covenant. We cannot work this faith in ourselves; but let us divest our minds of prejudice, and direct them to the impartial and earnest examination of evidence, with a simple desire to know the truth, that we may do it. When we are thus before God, he will not fail to work in us, both to will and to do of his good pleasure. We shall know that he doth indeed give witness to his Son; that he hath been working, and doth work, to produce in us faith in Him whom he hath sent; and we shall with gratitude acknowledge, that 'HIS WORK IS HONOURABLE AND GLORIOUS: AND HIS RIGHTEOUSNESS ENDURETH FOR EVER,' Ps. cxi. 2, 3.

'With this discourse, mysterious, figurative, and interesting as it is, ... the particulars of our Lord's ministry, to the end of the second year, are obviously to be brought to a close. And now, at the termination of this discourse, the first distinct allusion, anywhere on record, to the future treachery of Judas, is found to occur (ver. 70, .1); and so exactly a year before its completion; that it is seen to have been now predicted on Saturday, the seventh of April, as it will be found hereafter to have been consummated on Friday, the fifth of April.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. p. 351.

END OF OUR LORD'S SECOND YEAR'S MINISTRY.

APPENDIX.

'HE SHALL BE CALLED A NAZARENE.'—Matt. ii. 23, § 5, p. 35.

CHRIST is spoken of by the prophets as the 'BRANCH.'—There are, in the Hebrew, seven different words of this signification, supposed to be used to designate the Saviour, the second of which is Natzer, the same as that from which the word Nazareth is derived. It more particularly expresses a branch, slip, or sprout which is tender, and requires careful preservation. The 'NAZARENE' is predicted by all the larger prophets. Thus—ISAIAH speaks of Christ as a 'Rod out of the stem of Jesse,' and a 'BRANCH' out of the roots of David, ch. xi. 1.—So again, ch. liii. 2, he was 'as a TENDER PLANT, and as a ROOT out of a dry ground:' despised of men, although the beloved of the Father.—JEREMIAH speaks of a 'RIGHTEOUS BRANCH,' ch. xxiii. 5, 6, 'Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth. 6, In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely: and this is his name whereby he shall be called, THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS,' and in ch. xxxiii. 14—6, 'THE BRANCH OF RIGHTEOUSNESS:' 14, Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will perform that good thing which I have promised unto the house of Israel and to the house of Judah. 15, In those days, and at that time, will I cause the Branch of righteousness to grow up unto David; and he shall execute judgment and righteousness in the land. 16, In those days shall Judah be saved, and Jerusalem shall dwell safely: and this is the name wherewith she shall be called, The LORD our righteousness.' EZEKIEL speaks of him as 'THE HIGH-EST BRANCH of the High Cedar;' as a 'TENDER ONE' cropped from 'the top of his young twigs,' planted in 'the mountain of the height of Israel,' ch. xvii 22—24. 22, Thus saith the LORD GOD; I will also take of the highest branch of the high cedar, and will set it; I will crop off from the top of his young twigs a tender one, and will plant it upon an high mountain and eminent: 23, In the mountain of the height of Israel will I plant it: and it shall bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, and be a goodly cedar: and under it shall dwell all fowl of every wing; in the shadow of the branches thereof shall they dwell. 24, And all the trees of the field shall know that I the LORD have brought down the high tree, have exalted the low tree, have dried up the green tree, and have made the dry tree to flourish: I the LORD have spoken and have done it.'—See THE TRANSFIGURATION, Mt. xvii. 1, 2, &c., 51, p. 52, vol. ii.—In ZECHARIAH, 'The Lord of hosts' first speaks of him as 'My servant the BRANCH,' ch. iii. —10. 8, Hear now, O Joshua the high priest, thou, and thy fellows that sit before thee: for they are men wondered at: for, behold, I will bring forth my servant the BRANCH. 9, For behold the stone that I have laid before Joshua; upon one stone shall be seven eyes: behold, I will engrave the graving thereof, saith the LORD of hosts, and I will remove the iniquity of that land in one day. 10, In that day, saith the LORD of hosts, shall ye call every man his neighbour under the vine and under the fig tree.' By the same prophet He is afterwards spoken of as 'the man whose name is the BRANCH,' and who 'shall bear the glory,' ch. vi. 9—15. '9, And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, 10, Take of them of the captivity, even of Heldai, of Tobijah, and of Jedaiah, which are come from Babylon, and come thou the same day, and go into the house of Josiah the son of Zephaniah; 11, then take silver and gold, and make crowns, and set them upon the head of Joshua the son of Josedech, the high priest, 12, and speak unto him, saying, Thus speaketh the LORD of hosts, saying, Behold the man whose name is The BRANCH, and he shall grow up out of his place, and he shall build the temple of the LORD; 13, even he shall build the temple of the LORD; and he shall bear the glory, and shall sit and rule upon his throne; and he shall be a priest upon his throne: and the counsel of peace shall be between them both. 14, And the crowns shall be to Helem, and to Tobijah, and to Jedaiah, and to Hen the son of Zephaniah, for a memorial in the temple of the LORD. 15, And they that are far off shall come and build in the temple of the LORD, and ye shall know that the LORD of hosts hath sent me unto you. And this shall come to pass, if ye will diligently obey the voice of the LORD your GOD.' He is the Root of David, who hath prevailed and unto whom the praise for redemption is due. Rev. v. 5—10. '5, And one of the elders saith unto me, Weep not: behold the Lion of the tribe of Juda, the Root of David, hath prevailed to open the book, and to loose the seven seals thereof. 6, And I beheld, and, lo, in the midst of the throne and of the four beasts, and in the midst of the elders, stood a Lamb as it had been slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the earth. 7, And he came and took the book out of the right hand of him that sat upon the throne. 8, And when he had taken the book, the four beasts and four and twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps, and golden vials full of odours, which are the prayers of saints. 9, And they sung a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; 10, and hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth.'

ALL THE WHILE MY BREATH IS IN ME, AND THE SPIRIT OF GOD IS IN MY NOSTRILS:

MY LIPS SHALL NOT SPEAK WICKEDNESS, NOR MY TONGUE UTTER DECEIT.—Job xxvii. 3, 4.

VOLUME SECOND.

THE GOSPEL TREASURY, ETC.,

FROM THE END OF THE SECOND YEAR OF THE MINISTRY OF JESUS CHRIST, TO HIS ASCENSION INTO HEAVEN.

"TO THE ONLY WISE GOD OUR SAVIOUR, BE GLORY AND MAJESTY, DOMINION AND POWER, BOTH NOW AND EVER. AMEN."—Jude, ver. 25.

INDEX

TO SOME PASSAGES RELATING TO THE ROMISH CONTROVERSY.*

ANTICHRIST.—See on John xii. 4, &c., Matt. xxvi. 13, § 81, pp. 254, ..5, ..7.

APOSTLES were not to exercise authority like the princes of this world, Luke xxii. 25, .6, § 87, p. 375.

BAPTISM of repentance, &c., Luke iii. 3, § 7, p. 50.—The baptism of John and that of Christ contrasted, Mark i. 8, § ib., p. 54; John i. 33, § 10, p. 70.—Jesus removes his disciples from the scene of their baptizing with water, John iv. 1—3, § 13, p. 91.—Speaks of the water which he gives, ver. 14, § ib., p. 93.—Comp. John iii. 5, § 12, p. 83, 'born of water,' &c.—Vanity of putting outside washings for internal holiness—'cleanse first that which is within,' Matt. xxiii. 25, .6, § 85, p. 317.—The disciples made clean through the word, John xv. 3, § 87, p. 387; xvii. 17, p. 402.

BINDING AND LOOSING, Matt. xviii. 18, § 53, p. 83.

CELIBACY.—Not exemplified in Peter, Luke iv. 38, .9, § 17, p. 112.
Not commanded by our Lord, Matt. xix. 10—.2, § 74, p. 220.

CEPHAS, 'a stone,' the new name given to Simon, when first called to be a disciple, John i. 42, § 10, p. 71.
His second call, Matt. iv. 18, .9, § 16, p. 108.
His third call, Luke v. 1—11, § 20, p. 153.—And see on PETER, infra.

CHURCH—'Tell it unto the,' Matt. xviii. 17, § 53, p. 83.—The dilemma in which those are placed who take Peter for the foundation of their church, Mark viii. 33, § 50, p. 41.

COMMANDMENTS.—The relation which the keeping of them has to salvation.—See 'Script. Illus.,' on Matt. xix. 17—.9, § 75, p. 224.

CONFESSION to the priests—Ill success of, in Judas, Matt. xxvii. 3, 4, § 89, p. 435.

EUCHARIST.—John vi. 53, 'Except ye eat,' &c.—See Addenda, § 43, p. 335.—'This is my body,' &c., Matt. xxvi. 26, § 87, p. 369.—The cup; 'Drink ye all of it,' ver. 27, § ib., p. 378.

FATHER.—The disciples forbid to call any man pope, Matt. xxiii. 9, § 85, p. 314.

FORGIVENESS.—Jesus exercises forgiveness without any reference to either water baptism or penance, Matt. ix. 2, § 22, p. 165; Luke vii. 48, 50, § 29, p. 232.

GIFTS to the house of God, to the neglect of our nearest relations, not approved, Matt. xv. 4—6, § 44, p. 6.

INQUISITION.—The servants forbid to root out the tares 'until the harvest,' Matt. xiii. 30, § 32, p. 247.

JUSTIFIED.—The humble penitent, not the man boastful of his own good works, Luke xviii. 9—14, § 73, p. 216.

KEYS OF THE KINGDOM.—What they are, and how Peter used them, Matt. xvi. 19, § 50, p. 39.—And see Addenda, § ib., pp. 47—50.

LIBERTY TO DO GOOD.—See on the disciples forbidding those who followed not with them, Mark ix. 38, .9, § 52, p. 76.

MARY.—Saluted by the angel, Luke i. 28, § 2, p. 9.—And see Addenda, § 91, p. 469, on 'Mary the mother of Jesus.'
Rejoices in God her Saviour, Luke i. 47, § 2, p. 11.—Joseph takes her to wife, Matt. i. 24, .5, § 2, p. 14.—Jesus (not Mary) the subject of the angels' song, Luke ii. 10—.4, § 4, p. 20; and of the wise men's inquiry, Matt. ii. 1, 2, § 5, p. 31.—Comp. also ver. 11, p. 33.
Jesus' answer to her at the marriage in Cana, John ii. 4, § 11, p. 77.
Her blessedness came not by her relation to Christ according to the flesh, but was partaken of by her in common with all who 'hear the word of God, and keep it.' So Jesus' reply to the woman who cried, 'Blessed is the womb that bare thee,' Luke xi. 27, .8, § 62, p. 154.

MEATS.—See on what defileth, Matt. xv. 11, &c., § 44, p. 8.

PETER.—See CEPHAS, supra, and Addenda, § 27, p. 213.—See on his three names, Matt. xvi. 17, .8, § 50, pp. 37, .8.
'The first, Simon,' &c., Matt. x. 2, § 27, p. 206.—His supremacy over the beloved disciple not acknowledged by our Lord, John xxi. 20—.3, § 97, pp. 509, .10.

PRAYER TO SAINTS—Only scripture example of, ineffectual, Luke xvi. 24, .5, § 69, p. 201.

ROCK.—See description of him who builds thereupon, Matt. vii. 24, .5, § 19, p. 141; Luke vi. 47, .8, § 27, p. 210.—And see Addenda, § ib., pp. 215—..7.
Christ, not Peter, is the Rock upon which the church of God is built, Matt. xvi. 18, § 50, p. 38.

SCRIPTURES.—Command to search them, John v. 39, § 23, p. 180.—Opposition by a voice from hell, to the doctrine of their sufficiency, Luke xvi. 29, 30, § 69, p. 202.—Our Saviour teaches his disciples that they may receive light upon them from those who are able to give it, though they may be otherwise unknown to them, Luke xxiv. 25, .6, § 94, p. 494.

SUFFERINGS OF CHRIST.—Scripture doctrine concerning them, § 50, p. 46.

TEACHERS from God not to be known by their commission from man, but by their fruits, Matt. vii. 15—20, § 19, p. 140.—'Make the tree good, and his fruit good,' Matt. xii. 33, § 31, p. 237.

TRADITION, Matt. xv. 1—9, § 44, pp. 4, 12.

WORKS.—None of supererogation, Luke xvii. 10, § 70, p. 208.

* Sections i.—xliii. will be found in Vol. I.; Sections xliv.—c. in Vol. II.

BE YE NOT UNEQUALLY YOKED TOGETHER WITH UNBELIEVERS: FOR WHAT FELLOWSHIP HATH RIGHTEOUSNESS WITH UNRIGHTEOUSNESS? AND WHAT COMMUNION HATH LIGHT WITH DARKNESS?—2 Cor. vi. 14.

ANALYTICAL AND HISTORICAL TABLE.

PART IV. MATTHEW XV.—XXVII. MARK VII.—XV. LUKE IX. 18—XXIII. JOHN VII.—XIX.

ARRANGED IN THE ORDER OF TIME.

Comprehending the Space of Twelve Months; viz., from the End of the Second Year of the Ministry of Jesus Christ, U.C. 782, A.D. 29 (Ineunte), to the End of the Third Year of the same, U.C. 783, A.D. 30 (Ineuntem).

SECTION XLIV.—OF UNWASHEN HANDS, OR CEREMONIAL AND REAL DEFILEMENT.

Matthew xv. 1—20. Mark vii. 1—23. At Capernaum. pp. 3—12.

No. 44.—[Lesson 43.]—Jesus defends his disciples against the complaints of the Pharisees, that they did not observe the tradition of the elders in washing their hands before they ate bread.—Matt. xv. 1—20. Mark vii. 1—23. pp. 3—11.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Jesus' disciples not ceremonially clean	15. 1, 2	7. 1-5	—	—	Col. 2. 8, 20-.3.
Jesus' answer, 'Full well ye reject,' &c.	— 3	— 9	—	—
A case in point—the fifth commandment	— 4-6	— 10-.3	—	—	Ex. 20. 12.
Worship taught by tradition vain	— 7-9	— 6-8	—	—	Is. 29. 13.
What defileth a man	— 10, .1	— 14-.6	—	—	Ac. 10. 15; Rom. 14. (14-.7; 1 Ti. 4. 4.
Jesus' reply on the Pharisees being offended	— 12, .3	—	—	—
'Blind leaders of the blind,' &c. [Mt. 23. 16]	— 14	—	[6. 39]	—	Is. 9. 16; Mal. 2. 8.
Jesus explains ver. 10, .1, 'What defileth,' &c.	— 15-20	— 17-23	[— 45]	—	Je. 17. 9; Ga. 5. 19-21.

SECTION XLV.—A CANAANITISH WOMAN'S DAUGHTER HEALED.

Matthew xv. 21—.8. Mark vii. 24—30. The coasts of Tyre and Sidon. pp. 12—23.

No. 45.—[Lesson 44.]—Jesus visits the quarter of Tyre and Sidon: he heals the daughter of a Syro-Phœnician woman who was possessed with a devil. Matt. xv. 21—.8. Mark vii. 24—30. pp. 12—.6.

Jesus departs into the coasts of Tyre & Sidon	15. 21	7. 24	—	—	1 Ki. 5. 1-12.
A woman of Canaan beseeches him	— 22	—	[18. 38, .9]	—
Her apparently unfavourable reception	— 23	—	—	—
Christ sent to the lost sheep of the ho. of Isr.	— 24	—	—	—	[Mt. 10. 6.]
The woman continues to follow Jesus	— 25	— 25	—	—
Is a Greek, a Syro-Phœnician by nation	—	— 26	—	—	Ac. 6. 1.
Further trial of her spirit	— 26	— 27	—	—	[Mt. 7. 6.]
She accepts mercy upon any terms	— 27	— 28	—	—	Lu. 15. 19.
Jesus replies, 'Be it . . . . even as thou wilt'	— 28	— 29	—	—
Her daughter made whole fr. that hour [8. 13]	— 28	— 30	—	[4.50,1-3]

SECTION XLVI.—FOUR THOUSAND MEN, ETC., FED.

Matthew xv. 29—38. Mark vii. 31—viii. 9. In Decapolis. pp. 24—.7.

No. 46.—[Lesson 45.]—Jesus returns to the neighbourhood of Bethsaida, on the lake of Galilee, through the coasts of Decapolis: he heals a deaf man who had an impediment in his speech: and performs miracles of sundry kinds. Four thousand men, beside women and children, are fed with seven loaves of bread and a few fishes.—Matt. xv. 29—38. Mark vii. 31—viii. 9. pp. 24—.7.—(Comp. Sect. xl. Vol. I. p. 309.)

Jesus heals a deaf man who had an impediment in his speech. Matt. xv. 29. Mark vii. 31—.7. p. 24.

Jesus comes nigh to the sea of Galilee	15. 29	7. 31	—	—
Through the coasts of Decapolis	—	— 31	—	—
Heals a deaf man. 'Ephphatha'	—	32-.7	—	—	Is. 29. 18.

Jesus performs miracles of sundry kinds.—Matt. xv 29—31. p. 25.

Goes up into a mountain	15. 29	—	—	—
Heals the la., blind, dumb, maim., [Mt.10.1, 8]	— 30	—	—	—	Is. 35. 5, 6; Lu. 7. 22.
The mult. glorify the God of Isra. [— 9. 8]	— 31	—	[7. 16]	—

Four thousand men, beside women and children, are fed with seven loaves of bread and a few small fishes. On the same locality where the former instance of miraculous feeding took place.—Matt. xv. 32—.8. Mark viii. 1—9. pp. 26, .7.

Jesus compassionates the people [Mt. 14. 14]	15. 32	8. 1-3	—	—
The disch. have only 7 loaves, &c. [— 15-.7]	— 33, .4	— 4, 5	—	—
The 2nd multitude fed. [—18, .9; Lu. 24. 30]	— 35, .6	— 6, 7	—	—
Seven baskets left [Mt. 14. 20]	— 37	— 8	[9. 17	6. 12, .3]
The number fed [— 21]	— 38	— 9	—	—

SECTION XLVII.—THE PHARISEES DEMAND A SIGN.

Matthew xv. 39—xvi. 4. Mark viii. 10—.2. pp. 28—31.

No. 47.—[*Lesson 46.]—Jesus comes by sea to Dalmanutha, or Magdala, and makes answer to the Pharisees there, who demanded of him a sign from heaven.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Jesus & disci. cross to the co. of Magdala, &c.	15. 39	8. 10	—	—
Pharisees, &c., ask for a sign . [Mt. 12. 38]	16. 1	— 11	—	—	1 Co. 1. 22.
'Can discern the face of the sky; but,' &c.	— 2, 3	—	[12. 54—6]	—
'Sign of the prophet Jonas' [Mt. 12. 39, 40]	— 4	—	[11. 29, 30]	—	Jon. 1. 17.
'No sign . . . unto this generation' . .	—	— 12	—	—

SECTION XLVIII.—LEAVEN OF THE PHARISEES AND OTHERS.

Matthew xvi. 4—12. Mark viii. 13—21. pp. 31—.4.

No 48.—[Lesson 46, continued.]—Jesus returns to Bethsaida; and on the way cautions his disciples against the leaven of the Pharisees, &c.
Line from Dalmanutha across the lake to Bethsaida in Decapolis.

Jesus departs again by ship, &c. . . .	16. 4	8. 13	—	—
The disciples forget to take bread . . .	— 5	— 14	—	—
'Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees,' &c.	— 6	— 15	[12. 1]	—	Mt. 23. 5; 1 Co. 5. 6-8.
Vain reasoning of the disciples . . .	— 7	— 16	—	—
Jesus says to them, 'O ye of little faith,' &c.	— 8, 9	— 17 [.8]	—	—	— 6. 30.
Reminds them of the two miracul. feedings	— 9, 10	— 19, 20	—	—	— 14. 14-20; 15. 32-.7.
What is meant by the leaven, &c. . . .	— 11, .2	— 21	—	—

SECTION XLIX.—JESUS HEALS A BLIND MAN.—Mark viii. 22—.6. p. 34.

No. 49.—[Lesson 46, continued.]—At Bethsaida, in Decapolis.

Jesus gives sight to a blind man . .	—	8. 22—.6	—	—

SECTION L.—JESUS MAKES PROMISE TO PETER OF THE KEYS OF THE KINGDOM, AND IMMEDIATELY BEGINS TO TELL HIS DISCIPLES OF HIS APPROACHING SUFFERINGS AT JERUSALEM, AND ALSO OF HIS SECOND AND GLORIOUS ADVENT. —Matthew xvi. 13—28. Mark viii. 27—ix. 1. Luke ix. 18—27. Coasts of Cæsarea Philippi. pp. 35—50.

No. 50.—[Lesson 47.]—Jesus visits the vicinity of Cæsarea Philippi; he inquires of his disciples, first, whom the people, and then whom they themselves, considered him to be; Peter answers in the name of the rest: confessing Jesus to be the Christ. Jesus promises them a further opening into this great FOUNDATION TRUTH: until which they are to tell no man that he is the Christ.

Matt. xvi. 13—20. Mark viii. 27—30. Luke ix. 18—21. pp. 35—40.

Jesus enters the coasts of Cæsarea Philippi	16. 13	8. 27.	—	—
Prays privately with his disciples . .	—	—	9. 18	—	[Lu. 5. 16.]
'Whom do men say that I the Son of m. am?'	— 13	— 27	— 18	—
'Some say John the Baptist: some, Elias,' &c.	— 14	— 28	— 19	—
'Whom say ye that I am?'	— 15	— 29	— 20	—
Peter's confession [Jno. 1. 41-.9; 6. 69; 11. 27]	— 16	— 29	— 20	—	Ps. 2. 7; He. 1. 2, 5.
Jesus answers, 'Blessed art thou, Simon,' &c.	— 17	—	—	—	Mt. 11. 6; 25-.7.
Peter, a stone, Christ the Rock, &c. . .	— 18	—	—	[1. 42]	1 Co. 3. 11; Eph. 2. 20.
The keys of the kingdom promised . .	— 19	—	—	[20. 23]
Of binding and loosing . . [Mt. 18. 18]	— 19	—	—	—
The disciples not yet to make him known .	— 20	— 30	— 21	—	Lu. 4. 41; Mk. 3. 12.

From this time forward Jesus begins to foretell his sufferings and death, circumstantially, to the disciples: Peter expostulates with him, and is sharply rebuked: Jesus takes occasion thence to discourse both to his disciples and to the people on the duty of self-denial and taking up the cross, and proceeds to speak of the glory, promising a view of the coming kingdom.

Matt. xvi. 21—.8. Mark viii. 31—ix. 1. Luke ix. 22—.7. pp. 40—.4.

Jesus foretells his sufferings the first time .	16. 21	8. 31	9. 22	—	Mt. 17. 22, 23.
Peter's ignorance of this key of the kingdom	— 22	— 32	—	—
Is rebuked by Jesus	— 23	— 33	—	—
Christ our example . [Mt. 10. 38; Lu. 14. 27]	— 24	— 34	— 23	—

(The disciples instructed with regard to his second advent.
Matt. xvi. 25—.8. Mark viii. 35—.8; ix. 1. Luke ix. 24—.7.)

Who shall save his life . . [Mt. 10. 39]	16. 25	8. 35	9. 24	[12. 25.]	Rev. 20. 4.
'What is a man profited,' &c. . . .	— 26	— 36, .7	— 25	—	Job 27. 8; Lu. 12. 19-21.
Christ's coming in glory . [Mt. 25. 31; 26. 64]	— 27	— 38	— 26	—
Promises a sight of his kingly glory . .	— 28	9. 1	— 27	—	Mt. 17. 1-8; 2 Pe. 1. 16-.8.

* Lesson 46 embraces Sections 47, .8, .9.

SECTION LI.—Jesus is transfigured on the Holy Mount. Discourses on the coming of Elias. Heals a demoniac.

Matthew xvii. 1—21. Mark ix. 2—29. Luke ix. 28—42. Mount Hermon. pp. 51—69.

No. 51.—[Lesson 48.]—Jesus is transfigured on a certain mountain, in the presence of Peter, James, and John.—Matt. xvii. 1—8. Mark ix. 2—8. Luke ix. 28—36. pp. 51—.6.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Jesus takes the three up into a mountain	17. 1	9. 2	9. 28	——
Is transfigured before them	— 2	— 2, 3	— 29	[1. 14]	Rev. 1. 16; 2 Pe. 1. 18.
The two witnesses, Moses and Elias	— 3	— 4	— 30	——	De. 34. 5, 6; 2 Ki. 2. 11.
Subject of their conversation	——	——	— 31	——
Peter, &c., heavy with sleep	——	[14.37-42]	— 32	——
Peter's proposal to build three tabernacles	— 4	— 5, 6	— 33	——
A bright cloud overshadows them	— 5	— 7	— 34	——	Ex. 40. 34; 1 Ki. 8. 10, 1.
The Father acknowledges Jesus as the Christ	— 5	— 7	— 35	——	[Mt. 3. 17; Mk. 1. 11;
The King, 'My beloved Son'	— 5	— 7	— 35	——	(Lu. 3. 22.]
The Priest, 'In whom I am well pleased'	— 5	— 7	— 35	——	Is. 42. 1.
The Prophet, 'Hear ye him'	— 5	— 7	— 35	——	De. 18. 15, .8, .9.
The disciples 'sore afraid'	— 6	——	——	——
Bid to arise and not be afraid	— 7	——	——	——	Rev. 1. 17.
Jesus is found alone	— 8	— 8	— 36	——
The disciples silent on the subject	——	——	— 36	——

The next day, as they are coming down from the mountain, Jesus discourses with the three disciples on the coming of Elias.
Matt. xvii. 9—13. Mark ix. 9—13. Luke ix. 37. pp. 57, .8.

Jesus speaks of the rising from the dead	17. 9	9. 9,10	——	——	[Mt. xxviii. 7.]
They ask about the coming of Elias	— 10	— 11	——	——
'Elias truly shall first come, and restore,' &c.	— 11	— 12	[1. 16, .7]	——	Mal. 4. 5, 6; Ac. 3. 20, .1.
Had begun to come in John the Baptist	— 12, .3	— 13	[— 76, .8]	——
Jesus is met by much people	——	——	9. 37	——

Jesus heals a demoniac, which his disciples in his absence had not been able to do.
Matt. xvii. 14—.8. Mark ix. 14—27. Luke ix. 38—42. pp. 58—61.

The scribes found questioning the disciples	——	9. 14-.6	——	——
Who have failed to cast out a dumb spirit	17. 14-.6	— 17, .8	9. 38-40	——
'O faithless and perverse generation'	— 17	— 19	— 41	——	De. 32. 20.
The demoniac brought to Jesus	——	— 20	— 42	——
His father describes the case	——	— 21, .2	——	——
Jesus says, 'If thou canst believe,' &c.	——	— 23	[17. 6	11. 40]
The parent's prayer, 'Help thou,' &c.	——	— 24	——	——
The child is healed	— 18	— 25-.7	— 42	——

Jesus in private explains his disciples' inability.—Matt. xvii. 19—21. Mark ix. 28, .9. p. 61.

The disciples ask, 'Why could not we,' &c.	17. 19	9. 28	——	——
Jesus speaks of the power of faith	— 20	——	——	——
Faith removes mountains	— 20	——	——	——	[Mt. xxi. 21; Mk. 11. 23.]
Usefulness of prayer and fasting	— 2[illegible]	— 29	——	——	[— — 22—.4.]

SECTION LII.—Jesus again forewarns his disciples of his sufferings. He pays tribute. The disciples dispute about precedence. Jesus describes the manner in which they should follow him.—Matthew xvii. 22—.7 [xviii. 1—9]. Mark ix. 30—50. Luke ix. 43—50. John vii. 1. From Hermon to Capernaum. pp. 70—81.

No. 52.—[Lesson 49.]—Jesus journeys and resides in Galilee; and again plainly foretells his sufferings, &c.
Matt. xvii. 22, .3. Mark ix. 30—.2. Luke ix. 43—.5. John vii. 1. pp. 70—.2.

Jesus walks through Galilee	17. 22	9. 30	——	7. 1
While all are amaz. at his mighty power, &c.	——	——	9. 43	——
He again predicts his death and resurrection	— 22, .3	— 31	— 44	——
The disciples understand not, &c.	— 23	— 32	— 45	——

The disciples dispute among themselves. The collectors of the tribute money make application to Peter.—Matt. xvii. 24—.7. Luke ix. 46. pp. 72, .3.

The disciples dispute among themselves	——	——	9. 46	——	Lu. 22. 24.]
Peter directed to pay tribute	17. 24-.7	——	——	——

The disciples ask Jesus, 'Who is the greatest?' &c. Jesus questions them about their dispute; and, upon their making no answer, he proceeds, both by a significant action and by word of mouth, to instruct them in humility, and to avoid causing offence.
Mark ix. 33—50. Luke ix. 46—50. pp. 74— 9.

Jesus quest. the disci. concern. their dispute	[20.26,.7]	9. 33, .4	[22.24-30]	——
Jesus sets a child in the midst of them	[18. 2-5]	— 35-.7	9. 47, .8	——
The disciples' intolerance	——	— 38	— 49	——	Nu. 11. 28.
Jesus says, 'Forbid him not: for,' &c.	[26. 10]	— 39, 40	— 50	——
Cup of water given in Christ's name	[10. 42]	— 41	——	——
Of offending one of the little ones	[18. 6]	— 42	——	——
Better to part with right hand, &c.	[5. 30]	— 43, .4	——	——
——— foot	[18. 8]	— 45, .6	——	——
——— eye	[5. 29]	— 47, .8	——	——
Every sacrifice must be salted	——	— 49	——	——	Le. 2. 13; Eze. 43. 24.
Salt is good, &c. Have peace, &c.	[— 13]	— 50	——	——	Rom. 12. 18.

SECTION LIII.—Of offences, reconciliation, forbearance, and forgiveness. Matthew xviii. 1—35. At Capernaum. pp. 82—.6.

No. 53.—[Lesson 50.]—The disciples agree to refer their dispute to Jesus; he discourses to them upon the subject as before.—Matt. xviii. 1—22. pp. 82—.4.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Who is greatest in the kingdom of heaven? .	18. 1—4	[9. 33..7	9. 46..8]	——
Of receiving and of offending the little ones.	— 5, 6	[— 38, .42	— 47, .8]	——
Exercise self-denial rather than cause offence	— 7-9	[— 43..8]	——	——	Lu. 9. 25.
Reasons for not despising these little ones, ver. 10—.4.
1. Their ang. have ready access to the Father	18. 10	——	——	——	Ac. 12. 15.
2. The Son hath come to save the lost . .	— 11	——	[9. 56	3. 17]	1 Ti. 1. 15.
3. Rejoicing over the lost when found . .	— 12, .3	——	[15. 4—6]	——
4. Not the Father's will that one should perish	— 14	——	——	[10. 28]	2 Pe. 3. 9.
Means for recovering an erring brother, ver. 15—.7.
1. Tell him his fault privately . . .	18. 15	——	——	——
2. If he refuse, take one or two witnesses .	— 16	——	——	[8. 17]	2 Co. 13. 1.
3. If still careless, tell it to the church .	— 17	——	——	——	2 Th. 3. 6, 14.
In seeking to reform others, exercise self-watchfulness, ver. 18—20.
As ye do, it will be done to you [Mt. 16. 19]	18. 18	——	——	——	2 Co. 2. 10.
Unity in prayer	— 19	——	——	——	Ja. 5. 16; 1 Jno. 5. 14.
Christ in their midst . . [— 28. 20]	— 20	——	——	——
To forgive 'Until seventy times seven' .	— 21, .2	——	[17. 4]	——	Da. 9. 24.

Parable of the king and his servants.—Ver. 23—35. pp. 84, .5.

The servant who owed 10,000 talents . .	18. 23..7	——	——	——	2 Ki. 4. 1; Ps. 78. 38.
His fellow-servant who owed him 100 pence .	— 28 30	——	——	——
Binding his fellow-serv., he is himself bound	— 31..4	——	——	——
The warning as before suggested, ver. 18 .	— 35	——	——	——	Pr. 21. 13.

SECTION LIV.—Upon the approach of the Feast of Tabernacles, Jesus' brethren advise him to shew himself in Jerusalem. John vii. 2—9. At Capernaum. pp. 87—90.

No. 54.—[Less. 51 embraces Sect. liv., and part of Sect. lv.—John vii. 2—viii. 1.] pp. 87, .8.

Jesus' breth. bid him shew himself in Jerusal.	——	[3. 21]	——	7. 2-5
Jesus' answers, 'My time is not yet come' .	——	——	——	— 6-9	[Jno. 2. 4; 8. 20.]

SECTION LV.—Jesus sets out to go to Jerusalem. He teaches in the temple.—John vii. 10—x. 21. At Jerusalem. pp. 90—120.

No. 55.—[Lesson 51, continued. See Sect. liv.]—After the departure of his brethren, Jesus sets out to go to Jerusalem. Opinions of the Jews as to the character of Jesus, and the probability of his coming to the feast. John vii. 10—.3. p. 91.

Goes up as it were in secret	——	——	——	7. 10
Different opinions respecting him . . .	[31. 46]	——	[7. 16]	— 11-.3	Jno. 9. 16; 11. 56.

About the middle of the feast Jesus appears in the temple, and teaches. Ver. 14—30. pp. 91—.4.

Jesus teaches publicly in the temple . .	——	——	——	7. 14
The Jews marvel at his learning . . .	[13. 54	6. 2	4. 22]	— 15	Ac. 2. 7.
Jesus declares his teaching to be of God .	——	——	——	— 16	Jno. 14. 10—.24.
How men may discover it to be so . . .	——	——	——	— 17
The true mess. seeks glory of him who sent .	——	——	——	— 18
Jesus charges the Jews with seek. to kill him	[12. 14	3. 6]	——	— 19
Denying this, they proceed to blasphemy .	——	——	——	— 20
Charge him with sabbath breaking . .	——	——	——	— 21-.4
Jesus recognised by some belong. to Jerusal.	——	——	——	— 25
They reject him as knowing whence he is .	——	——	——	— 26..7	See the rule, ver. 17.
Yet they do not know . . . from whom he is	[11. 27]	——	——	— 28..9	Jno. 1. 18.
Some seek to take Jesus	——	[11. 18	19. 47]	— 30

Particulars of the last day of the feast, the twenty-first of the Jewish Tisri. John vii. 31.—viii. 1. pp. 94—.7.

Many believe Jesus to be the Christ . .	——	——	——	7. 31
Officers sent to take him	——	——	——	— 32	Jno. 11. 47.
His time of leaving is not yet	——	——	——	— 33	— 16. 16.
'Ye shall seek me, and,' &c.	——	——	——	— 34	Ho. 5. 6; Jno. 13. 33.
The Jews ask, 'Whither will he go,' &c. .	——	——	——	— 35, .6	Is. 11. 12; Ja. 1. 1.
Jesus earnestly invites to the Fountain of life [Jno. 6. 35]	——	——	——	— 37..9	Le. 23. 36; Joel 2. 28; (Is. 44. 3; 55. 1; 58. 11.
'This is the Prophet' . . [— 1. 21]	[11. 3]	——	——	— 40	De. 18. 18; Ac. 7. 37.
Others 'the Christ,' but some obj., comp. v. 27	[2. 5	——	2. 11]	— 41, .2	Ps. 132. 11; Mi. 5. 2; (Jno. 1. 46; 4. 42; 6. 69.
The people are divided	——	——	——	— 43, .4
The officers report—'Never man spake,' &c.	[7. 29	——	4. 22]	— 45, .6
The Pharis. ask, 'Have any of the rulers,' &c.	——	——	——	— 47..9	Ja. 5. 4, 5.
Nicodemus pleads for a fair investigation .	——	——	——	— 50, .1	Pr. 18. 13—see margin.
The sneer, 'Art thou also of Galilee?' .	——	——	——	— 52
They go each to his own home . . .	——	——	——	— 53
And Jesus to the mount of Olives . . .	——	——	[21. 37]	8. 1

PARTICULARS OF THE FOLLOWING DAY, TISRI THE TWENTY-SECOND, AFTER JESUS RETURN TO THE TEMPLE.—John viii. 2—x. 21. pp. 98—120.

[Lesson 52.]—The adulteress released. Jesus the light of the world. Abraham's seed, &c. John viii. 2—59. pp. 98—108.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Jesus teaches in the temple	—	—	—	8. 2
An adulteress brought before him	—	—	—	— 3-6
Jesus answers her accusers	—	—	—	— 7-9	Rom. 2. 22.
Says to her, 'Go, and sin no more'	—	—	[9. 56]	— 10, 11	[Jno. 5. 14]; 3. 17.
His followers shall not walk in darkness	—	—	[2. 32]	— 12	Is. 49. 6.
Accused of witnessing of himself	—	—	—	— 13
Adverts to the witness of the Father	—	—	—	— 14–18	Jno. 16. 32; Mt. 3. 17.
His answer to 'Where is thy Father?'	—	—	—	— 19	[— 5. 18; 14. 6, 7, 9; (16. 3; 17. 25.
'In the treasury,' 'his hour' not yet come	—	—	—	— 20
'Whither I go ye cannot come'	—	—	—	— 21	[— 13. 33]; Pr. 14. 32.
'Will he kill himself?' (see Note)	—	—	—	— 22
Intimates whence he is, and warns	—	—	—	— 23, 24	[— 3. 31.]
The question, 'Who art thou?'	—	—	—	— 25–27	[— 5. 17-30; He. 13. 8.
The Son of man, to be lifted up	—	—	—	— 28	[— 3. 14]; 5. 19, 30;
Contrasts his case with theirs	—	—	—	— 29	(Rom. 1. 4.
Many believe on him	—	—	—	— 30	[— 11. 45.]
Tells who are his disciples indeed	—	—	—	— 31	Rom. 2. 7; Col. 1. 23;
The truth makes free	—	—	—	— 32	Ho. 6. 3. (He. 10. 36, 39.
'We be Abraham's seed,' &c.	—	—	—	— 33	1 Co. 7. 22.
Their bondage spiritual	—	—	—	— 34–8
Not in the best sense children of Abraham	—	—	—	— 39, 40
They claim to have God for their Father	—	—	—	— 41
Jesus shews who is their Father	—	—	—	— 42–4	Is. 63. 16; 64. 8; Mal. 1. 6.
Exposes the ground of their unbelief	—	—	—	— 45–7	Jno. 10. 26, 27.
The Jews begin to blaspheme	—	—	—	— 48
Jesus' reply, 'I have not a devil,' &c.	—	—	—	— 49, 50	— 5. 41–4.
They become confident in their blasphemy	—	—	—	— 51–3
True honour, Jesus' knowledge of the Father	—	—	—	— 54, 55	— 5. 41; Ac. 3, 13.
Abraham's knowledge of Jesus	—	—	[10. 24]	— 56
Their ignorance of his Divinity	—	—	—	— 57
Jesus declares that he is 'I AM'	—	—	—	— 58	Ex. 3. 14; Is. 43. 13.
Escapes from being stoned	—	—	[4. 30]	— 59	Jno. 11. 8; [10. 31–9].

Jesus heals a blind man, and delivers the parable of the Good Shepherd.
John ix.—x. 21. pp. 108—117.

[Lesson 53.]—Jesus heals a blind man.—John ix. pp. 109—113.

A man blind from his birth, why?	—	—	[13. 2, 3]	9. 1-3	Jno. 11. 4; Ac. 28. 4.
Jesus speaks of approaching darkness, &c.	—	—	—	— 4, 5
Anoints the eyes of the blind man	—	—	—	— 6
Sends him to the pool of Siloam	—	[8. 23]	—	— 7	2 Ki. 5. 10; Ne. 3. 15.
The man being questioned by the Jews	—	—	—	— 8-12
Confesses Jesus to be a prophet	—	—	—	— 13–7	[Jno. 3. 2.]
His parents questioned	—	—	—	— 18-23	[— 16. 2]; Is. 26. 11.
The man's answer, 'One thing I know,' &c.	—	—	—	— 24, 25	Ps. 50. 14, 15.
'How opened he thine eyes?' &c.	—	—	—	— 26, 27
'We are Moses' disciples,' &c.	—	—	—	— 28, 29	Ps. 103. 7; He. 3. 5.
The man bears testimony for Jesus	—	—	—	— 30–3	[Jno. 10. 3]; Job 27. 9.
Is reproached and cast out	—	—	—	— 34
Jesus further reveals himself to him	—	—	—	— 35–8	[— 4. 26.] (Rom. 2. 19.
The blind made to see, the seeing made blind	—	—	—	— 39-41	[— 3. 19]; Is. 5. 21;

(Jesus intimates that this case of the man born blind may be taken to express the result of his coming into the world, by which the nations born blind have been made to see, whilst the Jews, who said, 'We see,' have been left to blindness and blasphemy.)

Jesus delivers the parable of the Good Shepherd.—John x. 1—21. pp. 114—117.

Parable of the sheepfold &c.	—	—	—	10. 1-6
Jesus is the door	—	—	—	— 7-9
The thief and the Saviour contrasted	—	—	—	— 10
The Good Sheph. contrasted with the hireling	—	—	—	— 11–5	Eze. 34. 12 23.
Other sheep than those of the Jewish fold	—	—	—	— 16	Is. 49. 6; 56. 8.
The Father's will	—	—	—	— 17, 18	Ph. 2. 8, 9; Ac. 2. 24, 32.
Disputings among the Jews for these sayings	—	—	—	— 19 21

SECTION LVI.—AT THE FEAST OF DEDICATION, JESUS REVISITS JERUSALEM.
John x. 22—39. pp. 120—125.

No. 56.—[Lesson 54 embraces Sects. lvi., lvii.]—Jesus distinguishes between the Jews and his sheep. Is accused of blasphemy. pp. 120—123.

Jesus walks in Solomon's porch	—	—	—	10. 22, 23	Ac. 3. 11-26; 5. 12.
Requested to say whether he be the Christ	—	—	—	— 24
Had already declared himself	—	—	—	— 25	Jno. 5. 36
What the characteristics of his sheep	—	—	—	— 26, 27	1 Jno. 4. 6.
Their security, and the cause thereof	—	—	—	— 28, 29	1 Pe. 1. 5; He. 7. 25.
Jesus declares his oneness with the Father	—	—	—	— 30	Jno. 17. 21–3
The Jews again take up stones to stone him	—	—	—	— 31	[— 8. 59.]
Jesus asks for his accusation	—	—	—	— 32	Ex. 4. 4.
They charge him with blasphemy	—	—	[4. 35]	— 33	Jno. 5. 17, 18.
Claims only what the scriptures warrant	—	—	—	— 34–6	[— 5. 27, 36, 37; 8. 42];
His works declare what he is	—	—	—	— 37	(Ps. 82; Is. 11. 2, 3
Enough to prove his oneness with the Father	—	—	—	— 38
Jesus again escapes	—	—	—	— 39

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Jesus' reply	—	—	12. 14	[18. 36]
He warns against covetousness	—	—	— 15	—	Jos. 7. 21; Ec. 11. 9;
Parable of the rich man	—	—	— 16-21	—	(Job 20. 22, &c.
Not to care for the body, but the soul	[6. 25-34]	—	— 22-31	—	Ps. 34. 10; He. 13. 5.
'Fear not, little flock,' &c.	—	—	— 32	[10. 27, .8]	Is. 40. 2.
Treasure in the heavens	[19. 21]	—	— 33, .4	—	Ac. 2. 45; 4. 34.
Waiting for the return of their Lord	[24. 43, .4]	—	— 35-40	—	Is. 11. 5; Eph. 6. 14.
The faithful and wise steward	[— 45-51]	—	— 41-.6	—	Ps. 37. 9.
Knowledge of duty enhances guilt	—	—	— 47, .8	[9. 41]	De. 25. 2; 1 Ti. 1. 13;
Jesus came 'to send fire on the earth'	—	—	— 49	—	(Ja. 4. 17.
Straitened until the predicted baptism	[20. 22	10. 38]	— 50	—
Division in households anticipated	[10. 34-6]	—	— 51-.3	[7.43; 9.16]	Mi. 7. 6.
He reproaches for not discerning 'this time'	[16. 2, 3]	—	— 54-.6	—
'Why even of yourselves judge ye not,' &c.	—	—	— 57	—
To seek immediate reconciliation	[5. 25, .6]	—	— .8, .9	—

SECTION LXIV.—The fate of the Galilæans. The barren fig tree. Luke xiii. 1—9. pp. 173—..5.

No. 64.—[Lesson 61 includes Sects. lxiv., lxv., lxvi.]—Jesus in Galilee, forewarns the Jews of the calamities coming on them in connection with the destruction of Jerusalem.

The Galilæans whose blood Pilate had, &c., a sign of what was about to befal them	—	—	13. 1-3	—	Ac. 5. 37; Is. 1. 11-.7.
So the eighteen and the tower in Siloam	—	—	— 4, 5	—	[Lu. 19. 42-.4.]
The fig tree which encumbered the ground	[21. 19]	—	— 6-9	—	Ex. 32. 10; Is. 5. 2.

SECTION LXV.—Jesus heals a woman. Parables.—Luke xiii. 10—21. pp. 175, ..6

No. 65.—[Lesson 61, continued, see above.]—Jesus on the sabbath day heals a woman who had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and justifies the act against the ruler of the synagogue.—Luke xiii. 10—.7. pp. 175, ..6.

A woman who had an infirm. 18 years, healed	—	[16. 18]	13. 10-.3	—	Ac. 9. 17.
The ruler of the synagogue is indignant	—	—	— 14	—	Ex. 20. 9.
Jesus vindicates his having liberated the wo.	—	—	— 15, .6	—	[Lu. 14. 5]; Pr. 11. 9.
His adversaries ashamed; the people rejoice	—	—	— 17	—	Is. 45. 24.

Jesus again delivers the parable of the grain of mustard seed, and also that of the leaven. Ver. 18—21. p. 176.

Parable of the grain of mustard seed	[13. 31, .2	4. 30-2]	13. 18, .9	—
Parable of the leaven hid in 3 meas. of meal	[— 33]	—	— 20, .1	—

SECTION LXVI.—Of the saved. Herod. Jesus predicts his death. Laments over Jerusalem.—Luke xiii. 22—35. pp. 177—.80.

No. 66.—[Lesson 61, continued, see above.]—Jesus answers the question, 'Lord, are there few that be saved?'—Luke xiii. 22—30. pp. 177, ..8.

Jesus journeys toward Jerusalem	—	—	13. 22	—
Is asked, 'Are there few that be saved?'	—	—	— 23	—
Bids them 'strive to enter in at the strait gate'	[7. 13, .4]	—	— 24	—
Ere the door be shut	[25. 10]	—	— 25	—	Is. 55. 6.
Past misused privileges will not then avail	[7. 23]	—	— 26, .7	—
The bitter envy and regret	[8. 12]	—	— 28	—
Whence shall come the heirs of the kingdom	[8. 11, .2]	—	— 29	—	Rev. 7. 9, 10.
The last first, and the first last	[19 30	10. 31]	— 30	—

Jesus is advised by certain of the Pharisees to depart out of Herod's dominions. He laments over Jerusalem.—Ver. 31—.5. pp. 178—.80.

Certain say, 'Depart hence: for Herod,' &c.	—	—	13. 31	—	[Lu. 3. 1; 23 7]; Am. 7. 12.
Jesus' answer, 'Go ye, and tell that fox,' &c.	—	—	— 32, .3	—	Zep. 3. 3.
Jesus' lament, 'O Jerusalem, . . which,' &c.	[23. 37]	—	— 34	—
Desolation and blindness predicted till the time spoken of, Ps. 118. 26	[21. 9	11. 9, 10]	— 35	[12. 13]

SECTION LXVII.—Jesus heals a man of the dropsy. Discourses on the mysteries of the kingdom, and of discipleship.—Luke xiv. pp. 181—..5.

No. 67.—[Lesson 62.]—Jesus, while eating bread on the sabbath day in the house of a certain ruler, a Pharisee, heals a man of the dropsy.—Luke xiv. 1—6. p. 181.

Jesus in the house of a chief Pharisee	—	—	14. 1	—
Watched if he would heal on the sabbath day	—	[3. 2]	— 1, 2	—	Lu. 6. 7; Ps. 37. 32.
Silences the Pharisees, as at Lu. 13. 15-.7	[12. 11, .2]	—	— 3-6	—	De. 22. 4.

Jesus gives suitable advice to the guests, and also to his host; and in answer to an observation of one of the guests, delivers a parable relating to the mysteries of the kingdom. Ver. 7—24. pp. 182—..4.

A parable, 'When thou art bidden,' &c.	—	—	14. 7-10	—	Pr. 25. 6, 7. .
The proud shall be abased [Lu. 18. 14	23. 12]	—	— 11	—	— 15. 33; Ja. 4. 6, 10.
Advises his host whom he should feast	[25. 34]	—	— 12-.4	—	— 22. 16.
The parable of the great supper [— 22. 30	22. 2]	—	— 15-.7	—
Those invited make various excuses	[— 5-7]	—	— 18-20	[1. 11]	1 Co. 7. 33.
Those in the streets and lanes are invited	[— 8]	—	— 21	—	Rev. 22. 17.
Those in the highways, &c.	[— 9, 10]	—	— 22, .3	—
None that were bidden allowed to partake	—	—	— 24	—	Pr. 1. 24.

Jesus warns the multitudes, who were following him in his journeyings, what was necessary to any one desiring to become his disciple.—Luke xiv. 25—35. pp. 184—.6.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Self-denial necessary in Jesus' disciple	[10. 37-.9]	——	14. 25-.7	——	Ac. 20. 24; Rev. 12. 11.
Unlike him, who began to build, &c.	——	——	— 28-30	——	Pr. 24. 27.
Unlike the king going improvidently to war	——	——	— 31, .2	——	— 20. 18.
Jesus' disciple must forsake all	[16. 24	10. 21]	— 33	——	Ph. 3. 7, 8.
Of salt which has lost its savour	[5. 13	9. 50]	— 34, .5	——

SECTION LXVIII.—Jesus' defence of himself against the Pharisees. He delivers three parables.—Luke xv. pp. 187—.95.

No. 68.—[Lesson 63.]—Jesus defends himself against the exceptions of the scribes and Pharisees, for receiving and eating with publicans and sinners. Luke xv. 1—10. pp. 187—.90 Eastward.

Jesus rec. publicans and sin. Phari. murmur	[9. 10-.2	2.15-.7]	15. 1, 2	——	[Lu. vi. 29.]
(Jesus delivers three parables, illustrative of what was about to be done for the lost.)	——	——	— 3-32	——	(119.176; 1 Pe. 2.10.25. Exe. 11.16; 34.11-.6; Ps.
1. The lost sheep	[18. 12, .3]	——	— 3-7	——
(Jesus speaks as if by contrast; thus, If one sheep out of a flock would be sought after, and rejoiced over when found, how much more the whole flock)	[10. 6]	——	——	——
2. The lost piece of silver	——	——	— 8-10	——
(If one out of ten pieces of silver would be sought for diligently, much more the whole ten; and the Lord accounted all the ten tribes his peculiar treasure (Le. 20. 26; De. 14. 2—had been lost, 2 Ki. 17. 20-.3.)

Jesus takes occasion from the same occurrence to deliver the parable of the elder and the younger brother; or, as it is commonly called, the parable of the prodigal son Ver. 11—32. pp. 190—..5.

3. The prodigal son	——	——	15. 11-24	——	Ps. 51. 4; Ho. 12. 1; Je. (3. 18, .9.
(If the younger son would be received back with rejoicing, equally so, at the least, may it be expected, would the first born, the favourite son, unto whom especially the inheritance had been promised, Je. 31. 9, 18-20.)
Refusal of the elder son to rejoice at his brother's return. His father's entreaty	——	——	— 25-32	——	Is. 35. 10; Rom. 11. 1; (Ph. 3. 6.
(The case of Judah, who was angry, and would not come in, and the father's gracious invitation to him also, to partake of the blessing.)

SECTION LXIX.—Parables—the unjust steward; and the rich man and Lazarus.—Luke xvi. pp. 196—205.

No. 69.—[Lesson 64.]—Jesus delivers the parable of the unjust steward, &c. Luke xvi. 1—18. pp. 196—..9.

(The wisdom of providing in time for eternity.)					(Rev. 20. 12. (1 Co. 4. 2; 1 Pe. 4. 5;
The steward who wasted his master's goods	——	——	16. 1, 2	——	Ec. 12. 14; Rom. 14.12;
Thinks to provide friends when put out, &c.	——	——	— 3-7	——
(This parable also is to be understood by way of contrast, for we act most justly towards our Lord, as well as most surely for ourselves, when we expend his goods for the benefit of others)	——	——	— 8, 9	[12. 36]	1 Th. 5. 5, 8.
If men would be intrusted with true riches, they must shew themselves faithful in what is already committed to their care	[25. 21]	——	— 10, .1	——
If not faithful in another man's, who, &c.	——	——	— 12	——	Jo. 24. 15-.9
'No servant can serve two masters,' &c.	[6. 24]	——	— 13	——	He. 12. 3.
The Pharisees being covetous, deride Jesus	[23. 14]	——	— 14	——	1 Sa. 16, .7; Ps. 7. 9.
Actions are differently viewed by God & man	[6. 5-8]	——	— 15	——	Is. 40. 8; 51. 6.
The law and prophets witnessed until John	[5. 18	13. 31]	— 16, .7	——
The gospel requires a stricter obedience than even that demanded by the law, exemplified in the case of divorce	[—32;	19.9 10.11,.2]	— 18	——	Mal. 2. 14-.6.

The parable of the rich man and Lazarus.—Ver. 19—31. pp. 199—202.

DISCOURSE ON THE RIGHT USE OF PROPERTY.			16. 19, &c.	——
The rich man and Laz.; their cases contrasted	——		— 19 21	——	[Lu. 12. 19]; Ac 3. 2.
Their cases in another state	——		— 22, .3	——
Prayer to saints, its ill success, for himself	——		— 24-.6	——	Job 5. 1; 21. 13.
And also for his brethren	——		— 27, .8	——
The sufficiency of scripture vindicated, in opposition to the voice from hell	——	——	— 29-31	——	Jno. 12. 10, .1.

SECTION LXX.—Jesus discourses on offences, forgiveness of injuries, and faith, and heals ten lepers.—Luke xvii. 1—19. pp. 206—..9.

No. 70.—[Lesson 65 includes Sects. lxx., lxxi.]—While Jesus is discoursing on the subject of offences, and on the forgiveness of injuries, the apostles ask for increase of faith. Jesus' reply.—Luke xvii. 1—10. pp. 206—..8.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Woe to them by whom offences come	[18. 6, 7	9. 42]	17. 1, 2	——	Re. 18. 21.
Brotherly forgiveness 'seven times a day'	[— 15-22]	——	— 3, 4	——	Le. 19. 17; Eph. 4. 32.
The apostles' prayer, 'Lord, incr. our faith'	——	[— 23, 4]	— 5	——
'We are unprofitable servants:' &c. [see Mt.	25. 3]	——	— 7-10	——	1 Co. 13. 2. Job 22. 3; Is. 64. 6.

Jesus heals ten lepers, one of them being a Samaritan.
Ver. 11—..9. In Galilee, before crossing into Peræa. pp. 208, ..9.

Jesus on his journey to Jerusalem	——	——	17. 11	[4. 4	Lu. 9. 51, .2.]
Ten lepers cry to him for mercy	——	[1. 40]	— 12, .3	——	Le. 13. 46.
Jesus commands, 'Go,' &c.; they are cleansed	[8. 4]	——	— 14	——	— 14. 2; [Lu. 5. 14.]
One, 'a Samaritan' glorifies God, &c.	——	——	— 15, .6	[4. 34, 42]
Jesus asks, 'Where are the nine?' &c.	——	——	— 17, .8	——	Ps. 106. 13; Eph. 2. 11-.8
'Arise, go thy way: thy faith hath made,' &c.	[8. 13	7. 29]	— 19	——	[Lu. 8. 48.]

SECTION LXXI.—Jesus passes out of Galilee into Peræa.
Matthew xix. 1, 2. Mark x. 1. p. 209.

No. 71.—[Lesson 65, continued.]—Crossing Jordan at the ford opposite Scythopolis. South-east corner of Galilee.

Multitudes healed by Jesus	19. 1, 2	10. 1	[6. 17	10. 40-.2]

SECTION LXXII.—When the kingdom of God should come Luke xvii. 20—37. pp. 210—..3.

No. 72.—[Lesson 66.]—Jesus answers the Pharisees concerning the coming of the kingdom of God; and addresses his disciples on the coming of the Son of man, which serves as a prelude to the prophecy afterwards delivered from mount Olivet.
Luke xvii. 20—37. In Peræa. East of Scythopolis.

The kingd. of God cometh not with observa.	[17. 12]	——	— 20	[1. 11]
Already among them (as promised, Mt. 16. 28)	——	——	— 21	——
His forewarns his disciples of worse days	[9. 15]	——	— 22	[16. 20]
Not to be deceived by 'See here; or,' &c.	[24. 26	13. 21]	— 23	——
'As the lightning, so the coming of the Son of man'	[— 27]	——	— 24	——	Job 37. 3.
Must first suffer and be rejected of the Jews	[16. 21]	——	— 25	——	[Lu. 9. 22.]
As in the days of Noah	[24. 37-.9]	——	— 26, .7	——	Ge. 6. 7. (2 Th. 1. 7-10.
As in days of Lot, the d. Son of man is reveal.	——	——	— 28-30	——	— 13. 10; 19. 12-25;
Then, no time to look back	[— 17, .8	— 15, .6]	— 31, .2	——	— 19. 26.
He that seeks to save his life, shall lose, &c.	[10. 39	8. 35]	— 33	[12. 25]
The separation that will then take place	[24. 40, .1]	——	— 34-.6	——	1 Th. 4. 17.
Wheresoever the body, thither the eagles, &c.	——	——	— 37	——	De. 28. 26; Job 39. 30.

SECTION LXXIII.—Two parables on prayer.
Luke xviii. 1—14. In Peræa. pp. 214—..7.

No. 73.—[Lesson 67.]—The parable of the unjust judge and the importunate widow. Luke* xviii. 1—8. pp. 214—..6.

The poor widow, an ex. of perseve.	[ch. 21. 36]	——	——	18. 1-8	——	Rom 12. 12; Eph. 6. 18; (Col. 4. 2; 1 Th. 5. 17.
'Shall he find faith on the earth'	——	——	——	— 8	——

Jesus delivers the parable of the Pharisee and the publican, with reference to certain who accounted themselves righteous, and despised others.—Ver. 9—14. pp. 216, ..7.

The Pharisee boasts—
1. His superiority to others	[Lu. 16. 15]	——	——	18. 9-11	——	Rev. 3. 17.
2. That he fasts twice in the week, &c.	——	——	——	— 12	——
The publican relies on God's mercy	——	——	——	— 13	——	Je. 31. 19.
Each dealt with according to ch. 14. 11	[23. 12]	——	——	— 14	——	Job 22. 29; 1 Pe. 5. 5, 6.

SECTION LXXIV.—Jesus treats of divorce, and welcomes little children.
Matthew xix. 3—15. Mark x. 2—16. Luke xviii. 15—.7. In Peræa. pp. 218—..22.

No. 74.—[Lesson 68.]—The Pharisees question Jesus concerning the lawfulness of divorce for every cause; his answer to them in public, and likewise to his disciples in private. Matt. xix. 3—12. Mark x. 2—12. pp. 218—..20.

Jesus questioned regarding the law of divorce	19. 3.	10. 2	——	——
He refers them to Moses	——	— 3	——	——	De. 24. 1-4.
Who, they think, favours this licence	[5. 31]	— 4	——	——
The bill of div. required for their hard., &c.	— 7, 8	— 5	——	——
Argum. agt. divorce fr. the first instit. of marr.	— 4-6	— 6-9	——	——	(Eph. 5. 31. Ge. 1. 27; 2. 24; 5. 2;

* This parable also is to be understood by way of contrast; thus, our Judge is not unjust, but 'the Lord our righteousness.' Our judge is he who feared God, and regarded man, so as to lay down his life for us, according to the Father's commandment. The church is not a poor widow, but his own chosen bride. Her prayers do not weary him; he is waiting to be gracious at the voice of her cry. This contrast is implied in ver. 7; Rev. 6. 10.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Crim. of divorce when prepar. to another mar.	19. 9	—	[16. 18]	—
The same warning to his disciples privately	[5. 32]	10. 10–.2	—	—	1 Co. 7. 10, .1.
Their objection, 'It is not good to marry'	— 10	—	—	—	Pr. 21. 19; 1 Co. 7. 25–.7.
Grace necessary to keep the law	— 11	—	—	—	1 Co. 7. 2, 9, 17, 32–.4.

Jesus reproves his disciples for preventing the bringing of little children to him.
Matt. xix. 13—.5. Mark x. 13—.6. Luke xviii. 15—.7. pp. 220—..2.

Disciples rebuke those who bring children	19. 13	10. 13	18. 15	—
Jesus says, 'Forbid them not,' &c.	— 14	— 14	— 16	—	1 Co. 14. 20; 1 Pe. 2. 1, 2.
How the kingdom of God is to be received	[18. 3]	— 15	— 17	[3. 3]	Ps. 131. 1, 2.
Jesus takes the little children in his arms	— 15	— 16	—	—	Ge. 48. 14, .5.

SECTION LXXV.—Jesus answers a rich young ruler. The danger of riches. Promise to the twelve, etc.

Matthew xix. 16–30. Mark x. 17–31. Luke xviii. 18–30. In Peræa. pp. 223—..30.

No. 75.—[Lesson 69.]—Jesus answers the question of a rich young ruler, regarding what he should do to inherit eternal life.
Matt. xix. 16–22. Mark x. 17–22. Luke xviii. 18–23. pp. 223—..6.

'Good Master, what good thing shall I do,' &c.	19. 16	10. 17	18. 18	—	[Lu. 10. 25–.8.]
Jesus asks why he calls him 'good'	— 17	— 18	— 19	—	Mi. 6. 8; 1 Tim. 3. 16.
'Keep the commandments'	— 17	—	—	—
The ruler asks, 'Which?'	— 18	—	—	—
Jesus directs to the second table of the law	— 18, .9	— 19	— 20	—	Ex. 20. 12–.7; Rom. 13. 9.
The ruler asks, 'What lack I yet?'	— 20	— 20	— 21	—	1 Jno. 1. 8.
Call to follow the Saviour	— 21	— 21	— 22	—	— 2. 15; 4. 9–17.
The ruler wanting in the one thing needful	22	— 22	— 23	—

Jesus takes occasion, from the example of this young man, to speak of the danger of riches, as hindering an entrance into the kingdom of heaven. Peter, in the name of the apostles, inquires what should be their portion who had forsaken all to follow him.
Matt. xix. 23–30. Mark x. 23—31. Luke xviii. 24—30. pp. 226—..30.

The rich shall hardly enter the kingdom	19. 23	10. 23	18. 24	—	1 Ti. 6. 8, 9.
That trust in riches ... easier for a camel, &c.	— 24	— 24, .5	— 25	—	Ps. 49. 6, 11, .2, 16-20;
'Who then can be saved?'	— 25	— 26	— 26	—	(1 Ti. 6. 17.
Things impos. with men, possible with God	— 26	— 27	— 27	—	Je. 32. 17, .8; Rom. 8. 3, 4.
Peter says, 'We have left all,' &c.	— 27	— 28	— 28	—
Jesus gives a special promise to the twelve	— 28	—	—	—	Rev. 20. 4; 2. 26.
Promise to the disciples generally	— 29	— 29, 30	— 29, 30	—	Ps. 37. 16; Is. 61. 7.
The 'first shall be last; and the last ... first'	— 30	— 31	[13. 30]	—	Ac. 13. 46.

SECTION LXXVI.—Parable of the labourers hired.

Matthew xx. 1–16. pp. 230—..3.

No. 76.—[Lesson 70.]—In Peræa, opposite Jericho.

The first hired at a penny a day	20. 1, 2	—	[10. 2]	—	Rev. 6. 6.
Those at the third hour on terms of free grace	— 3, 4	—	—	—	Pr. 19. 15; Ho 6. 10.
Those at the 6th, 9th, and 11th hour the same	— 5–7	—	—	—	He. 6. 12.
At evening the last are made first	— 8, 9	—	—	—
Those first hired begin to murmur	— 10–.2	—	—	—
The householder vindicates his conduct	— 13, .4	—	—	[17. 2]	Rom. 9. 21.
'Is thine eye evil, because I am good?'	— 15	—	—	—	De. 15. 9; Pr. 23. 6.
'So the last shall be first, and the first last'	— 16	[10. 31	13. 30]	—	Mt. 19. 30; 8. 11, .2; 22. 14.

SECTION LXXVII.—Jesus a third time predicts his sufferings, etc. He answers the two sons of Zebedee, and shews how power is to be exercised in the kingdom.—Matthew xx. 17—28. Mark x. 32—45. Luke xviii. 31—.4.

West of Jordan, near the ford opposite Jericho. pp. 234—..9.

No. 77.—[Lesson 71.]—Jesus enters Judæa; and a third time predicts to his disciples the circumstances of his sufferings and death.
Matt. xx. 17—.9. Mark x. 32—.4. Luke xviii. 31—.4. pp. 235, ..6.

Jesus predicts his death, &c., the third time	20. 17–.9	10. 32–.4	18. 31–.3	—	Is. 53. 5; Ac. 3. 18.
The import of the saying hid from the twelve	—	[9. 32]	— 34	—

James and John, with Salome, their mother, petition Jesus for the privilege of sitting on his right hand and on his left in his kingdom: the ten being offended thereby, Jesus addresses a discourse to them all in common.—Matt. xx. 20—.8. Mark x. 35—45. pp. 237—..9.

Request of the mother of Zebedee's children	20. 20, .1	10. 35–.7	—	—	1 Ki. 22. 19, (8. 17.
Jesus' reply to James and John [Mt. 26. 39 42]	— 22, .3	— 38-40	—	—	Ac. 12. 2; Rev. 1. 9; Rom.
Jesus forbids his disciples to exercise domin.	— 24–.6	— 41–.3	[22. 24]	—	1 Pe. 5. 3.
The leader to be the servant of all	— 27	— 44	[— 26]	—	1 Co. 9. 19.
Christ our example	— 28	— 45	[— 27	13. 4, 5, 14]	Is. 53. 10, .1; Da. 9. 24–.6; (1 Ti. 2. 6; Tit. 2. 14.

SECTION LXXVIII.—As Jesus is approaching Jericho, he heals a blind man.—Luke xviii. 35—43. pp. 240, ..1.

No. 78.—[Lesson 72, Sects. lxxviii., lxxix.]—East of Jericho.

Jesus heals a blind man	[20. 29-34	10. 46-52]	18. 35-42	—
The man follows Jesus, glorifying God	[— 34	— 52]	— 43	—

SECTION LXXIX.—Having entered and passed through Jericho, Jesus heals another blind man.

Matthew xx. 29—34. Mark x. 46—52. Luke xix. 1. pp. 242—..5.

No. 79.—[Lesson 72, continued.]—West of Jericho.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Jesus passes through Jericho	20. 29	10. 46	19. 1	—
Blind Bartimæus cries after Jesus	— 30, .1	— 46-.8	—	—
Jesus speaks comfort to him	— 32, .3	— 49-51	—	—
'Thy faith hath made thee whole'	— 34	— 52	—	—

SECTION LXXX.—Zacchæus entertains Jesus. Parable of a nobleman and his ten servants.—Luke xix. 2—27. West of Jericho. pp. 245—..51.

No. 80.—[Lesson 73.]—On the evening of the same day, the sabbath being at hand, Jesus stops at the house of Zacchæus.—Luke xix. 2—10. pp. 245—..7.

Zacchæus makes great exertions to see Jesus	—	—	19. 2-4	—
Jesus makes choice of him as his host	—	—	— 5, 6	—
All murm. at his hav. 'gone to be guest,' &c.	[9. 11]	—	— 7	—	(Mi. 6. 8.
Zacchæus pro. to shew mercy and do justice	—	—	— 8	—	Ex. 22. 1; 2 Sa. 12. 6;
Zacchæus a 'son of Abraham'	—	—	— 9	—	Ge.3.7; Rom.4.11,.2,.6.
The Son of man come to seek and save the lost	—	—	— 10	—	Eze. 34. 11.

Jesus, in the house of Zacchæus, delivers the parable of a nobleman and his servants.
Ver. 11—27. pp. 247—..50.

Parable of a nobleman and his ten servants	[25. 14-30	13. 34]	19. 11-27	—	Ac. 1. 4-11.
The servant who had gained ten pounds	[— 20, .1]	—	— 16, .7	—
" " " five "	[— 22, .3]	—	— 18, .9	—
Zacchæus pro. to shew mercy and do justice	[— 24-.9]	—	— 20-.6	—	Job 15. 5, 6.
Those who would not he should reign, &c.	[— 30]	—	— 27	[19. 14, .5]	Is. 1. 28.

SECTION LXXXI.—The anointing of Jesus at Bethany.—Matthew xxvi. 6—13. Mark xiv. 3—9. Luke xix. 28. John xi. 55—xii. 11. Bethany in Judæa. pp. 252—..8.

No. 81.—[Lesson 74.]—After the expiration of the sabbath, six days before the passover, that is, on Saturday, the evening of the ninth of Nisan, Jesus arrives at Bethany.
Luke xix. 28. John xi. 55—xii. 1. pp. 252, ..3.

Jesus ascending to Jerusalem	—	—	19. 28	—
The Jews ask, will he come to the feast?	—	—	—	11. 55, .6
Measures taken for his apprehension	—	—	—	— 57	Jno. 7. 1.
Jesus reaches Bethany 6 days bef. the passover	—	—	—	12. 1	— 11. 1, 43.

Jesus is entertained at supper in the house of Simon the leper; and is anointed there by Mary, the sister of Lazarus: the disciples, and especially Judas Iscariot, taking offence thereat, are reproved by Jesus.
Matt. xxvi. 6—13. Mark xiv. 3—9. John xii. 2—8. pp. 253—..8.

Sits at meat in the house of Simon the leper	26. 6	14. 3	[10. 38-42]	12. 2
The anointing by Mary of his head, &c.	— 7	— 3	[7.36,&c.]	— 3
Indignation of the apostles at the waste	— 8, 9	— 4, 5	—	— 4, 5
Why Judas opposed the anointing	—	—	—	— 6	1 Jno. 2. 18-29.
Jesus vindicates Mary against the apostles	— 10-.2	— 6-8	—	— 7, 8
The universal preaching of the gospel will manif. this free bestowal of love upon Jesus	— 13	— 9	—	—	Ps. 112. 6; Ec. 7. 1.

The first day in Passion Week, Sunday, the ninth of the Jewish Nisan.

John xii. 9—11. p. 257.

Much people go to see Jesus and Lazarus	—	—	—	12. 9
Chief priests consult to put Lazarus to death	—	—	—	— 10, .1	Lu. 16. 31.

The second day in Passion Week, Monday, the tenth of Nisan.

SECTION LXXXII.—Jesus' public entry into Jerusalem.—Matthew xxi. 1—11, 14—.7. Mark xi. 1—11. Luke xix. 29—44. John xii. 12—36. pp. 259—..74.

No. 82.—[Lesson 75.]—Jesus goes in procession from Bethany to Jerusalem. The people meet him.—John xii. 12, .3. p. 259.

Much people go to meet Jesus	—	—	—	12. 12, .3	Ps. 118. 25, 6.

Jesus sends for an ass from Bethphage.
Matt. xxi. 1—6. Mark xi. 1—6. Luke xix. 29—34. pp. 260—..2.

Jesus sends for an ass	21. 1-3	11. 1-3	19. 29-31	—
That the prophecy might be fulfilled	— 4, 5	—	—	—	Zec. 9. 9.
The disciples do as they were bid	— 6	— 4-6	— 32-.4	—

Jesus makes his public entry into Jerusalem.
Matt. xxi. 7—9. Mark xi. 7—10. Luke xix. 35—44. John xii. 14—.8. pp. 262—..5.

Preparation for Jesus' entry into Jerusalem	21. 7, 8	11. 7, 8	19. 35, .6	12. 14-.6	Ju. 10. 4; 12. 14.
He is welcomed at descent of mount Olivet	—	—	— 37, .8	—	Ps. 118. 26.
Why the people meet him	—	—	—	— 17, .8
Is requested to rebuke his disciples	—	—	— 39, 40	—
Hosanna to the Son of David	— 9	— 9, 10	—	—
Jesus weeps over the city, 'If thou,' &c.	[24. 2]	—	— 41-.4	—	De. 28. 52, &c.

All the city is moved; the Pharisees displeased.
Matt. xxi. 10, .1. Mark xi. 11. John xii. 19. pp. 265, .6.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS
Enters Jerusalem, all the city moved	21. 10, .1	11. 11	—	—
Pharis. vexed, 'the world ... gone after him'	—	—	—	12. 19

The blind and lame healed. Jesus departs from the temple.
Matt. xxi. 14—.7. Mark xi. 11. p. 266.

Blind and lame healed in the temple	21. 14	—	—	—	2 Sa. 5. 6.
'Out of the mouth of babes,' &c.	— 15, .6	—	—	—	Ps. 8. 2 (margin).
Jesus goes out with the twelve	— 17	11. 11	—	—

Greeks wish to see Jesus.—John xii. 20—36. pp. 266—..9.

Is told that Greeks desire to see him	—	—	—	12. 20-.2
Speaks of his glorification and passion	—	—	—	— 23, .4	1 Co. 15. 36.
Of the death and glorification of his saints	[10. 39	8. 35	17. 33]	— 25, .6
Prayer answered by a voice from heaven	—	—	[3. 21, .2]	— 27-30
The judgment of the world	—	—	—	— 31
The Son of man must be lifted up	—	—	—	— 32, .3	Ch. 3. 14, .5.
'Who is this Son of man?'	—	—	—	— 34
Jesus exhorts to walk in the light, &c.	—	—	—	— 35, .6

Jesus goes out of the city.—Matt. xxi. 17. Mark xi. 11. p. 269

Lodges in Bethany	21. 17	11. 11	—	—

The third day in Passion Week, Tuesday, the 11th of Nisan.

SECTION LXXXIII.—THE BARREN FIG TREE DENOUNCED. SECOND CLEANSING OF THE TEMPLE.

Matthew xxi. 18—22; 12, .3. Mark xi. 12—.9. Luke xix. 45—.8. pp. 275—.80.

No. 83.—[Lesson 76.]—Jesus, in the way from Bethany to Jerusalem, causes a barren fig tree to wither.—Matt. xxi. 18—22. Mark xi. 12—.4. pp. 275, ..6.

The barren fig tree denounced	21. 18, .9	11. 12-.4	[13. 6-9]	—
The disciples marvel at the sudden blight	— 20	[— 20, .1]	—	—
'If ye have faith,' &c.	— 21, .2	[— 22	17. 6]	—	[Mt. 17. 20.]

Jesus purges the temple.—Matt. xxi. 12, .3. Mark xi. 15—.9. Luke xix. 45—.8. pp. 276—..8.

Jesus drives out those who bought and sold	21. 12	11. 15, .6	19. 45	[2. 13-.6]	Je. 7. 11; 1 Co. 3. 17.
My house, the house of prayer for all	— 13	— 17	— 46	—	Is. 56. 7.
Different cond. of the people & their leaders	—	— 18	— 47, .8	—	— 3. 12.
Jesus goes out of the city at even	[— 17]	— 19	—	[8. 1]

The fourth day in Passion Week, Wednesday, the 12th of Nisan.

Sects. lxxxiv.—lxxxvi. pp. 280—361.

SECTION LXXXIV.*—CONVERSATION RENEWED CONCERNING THE FIG TREE. THE JEWISH RULERS QUESTION JESUS AUTHORITY. PARABLES RESPECTING THE TRANSFERRING OF THE KINGDOM TO ANOTHER PEOPLE.—Matthew xxi. 23—xxii. 22. Mark xi. 20—xii. 17. Luke xx. 1—26. pp. 280—.99. Jerusalem.

No. 84.—[Lesson 77.—Mark xi. 20—.6. Matt. xxi. 23—46. Mark xi. 27—xii. 12. Luke xx. 1—19.]—On the morning of the fourth day in passion week, Wednesday, the 12th of Nisan, as Jesus and the disciples are returning to Jerusalem, Peter renews the conversation relating to the fig tree, which had been cursed the day before. Mark xi. 20—.6. pp. 281—..2.

Conversation relating to the fig tree	[21. 21, .2]	11. 20-.6	—	—

Jesus answers the Pharisees, who demand of him by what authority he did the things before recorded.
Matt. xxi. 23—.7. Mark xi. 27—33. Luke xx. 1—8. At Jerusalem. pp. 282—..4

Jesus' authority called in question	21. 23	11. 27, .8	20. 1, 2	—	Ac. 4. 7-10.
'The baptism of John, whence was it?'	— 24, .5	— 29, 30	3, 4	—
The dilemma	— 25-.7.	— 31-.3	5-8	—

The Parable of a father and his two sons.—Matt. xxi. 28—32. In the temple. pp. 285, ..6.

Parable of the two sons sent to work, &c.	21. 28-30	—	—	—	Je. 3. 11; 31. 18-20.
Application of the parable, 'John came,' &c.	— 31, .2	—	—	—

The Parable of the vineyard let out to husbandmen
Matt. xxi. 33—46. Mark xii. 1—12. Luke xx. 9—19. pp. 286—.91.

Parab. of the vineyard let out to husbandmen	21. 33-41	12. 1-9	20. 9-16	—	Na. 2. 2; Ac. 7. 54; Ps. 80. 8-16; Is. 5. 1-7; Je. 2. 21; Ho. 10. 1.
'The stone which the builders rejected,' &c.	— 42	10, .1	— 17	—	Ps. 118. 22, .3.
'The kingd. of God shall be taken from you'	— 43	—	—	—	Je. 3. 11-.8.
'Whosoever shall fall on this stone,' &c.	— 44	—	— 18	—	Is. 8. 14, .5; Da. 2 34, .5.
The priests fear to take Jesus	— 45, .6	12	— 19	—

* SECT. lxxxiv. includes Lessons 77, .8.—See Lesson 77 above.

SING UNTO GOD, YE KINGDOMS, ETC.—Psa. lxviii. 32.

Parables on transferring the kingdom, continued. pp. 291—..7.

[LESSON 78.—Matt. xxii. 1—22. Mark xii. 13—..7. Luke xx. 20—..6.]—Jesus delivers the parable of the marriage feast.—Matt. xxii. 1—14. pp. 291—..4.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Marriage for the king's son	22. 1-10	—	[14. 15-24]	—	Re. 22. 17. (5. 3.
The guest without a wedding garment	— 11..4	—	—	—	Is. 61.10; Je.2.26; 2 Co.

Jesus answers the question of the Herodians concerning the payment of tribute to the Roman emperor.—Matt. xxii. 15—22. Mark xii. 13—..7. Luke xx. 20—..6. pp. 295—..7.

Conspiracy to entangle Jesus	22. 15, .6	12. 13	20. 20	—	Ps. 59. 3.
They ask, 'Is it lawful to give tribute,' &c.	— 17	— 14, .5	— 21, .2	—
Jesus puts them to silence	— 18-22	— 15..7	— 23..6	—	Rom. 13. 7.

SECTION LXXXV.*—JESUS PUTS TO SILENCE THE SADDUCEES AND PHARISEES. Matthew xxii. 23—xxiii. Mark xii. 18—44. Luke xx. 27—xxi. 4. John xii. 37—50. pp. 300—..21.

No. 85.—[Lesson 79.—Matt. xxii. 23—46. Mark xii. 18—37. Luke xx. 27—44.]—Jesus answers the inquiry of the Sadducees concerning the woman married to seven brethren in succession, in which was involved the question of a resurrection to come. Matt. xxii. 23—33. Mark xii. 18—27. Luke xx. 27—40. pp. 300—..4.

The Sadducees quibble, 'Whose wife,' &c.	22. 23-.8	12. 18-23	20. 27-33	—	De. 25. 5, 6.
Jesus points out the source of their error	— 29	— 24	—	—
Declares the resurrection state	— 30	— 25	— 34-..6	—	1 Co. 15. 42, .9, 52.
Quotes Moses in proof of resurrection	— 31, .2	— 26, .7	— 37, .8	—	Ge. 35. 12; Ex. 3. 6.
The multitude astonished at his doctrine	— 33	[— 37]	—	—
Certain of the scribes approve	—	—	— 39	—
The Sadducees are reduced to silence	[— 46	— 34]	— 40	—

A certain scribe and Pharisee, whose admiration had been excited by the reasoning of Jesus, desires of him a solution of the question, Which is the first and great commandment? Jesus' answer.—Matt. xxii. 34—40. Mark xii. 28—34. pp. 304—..6.

The Pharisees are gathered together	22. 34	—	—	—
'Which is the great commandment?'	— 35, .6	12. 28	—	—	Mk. 7. 8, 9, 13.
'Hear, O Israel'	—	— 29	—	—	De. 6. 4; Je. 7. 21, &c.
'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God,' &c.	— 37, .8	— 30	—	—	— 6. 5; 10. 12.
The second great commandment	— 39	— 31	—	—	Le.19.10..8; Rom.13.9.
On these two hang all the law, &c.	— 40	—	—	—	[Mt. 5. 17; 7. 12.]
A scribe answers discreetly	—	— 32-.4	—	—	Ho. 6. 6.
The Pharisees reduced to silence	[— 46]	— 34	—	—

Jesus inquires of the Pharisees whose son the Christ was to be, and shews their answer to be absurd.—Matt. xxii. 41—..6. Mark xii. 35—..7. Luke xx. 41—..4. pp. 306, ..7.

'What think ye of Christ? whose son is he?'	22. 41, .2	—	—	—
How can he be both David's son and Lord?	— 43..5	12. 35..7	20. 41..4	—	Ps.89.35-7; 110.1; 132.11.
The common people hear him gladly	—	— 37	—	—
None dare ask him any more questions	— 46	[— 34	— 40]	—

LESSON 80.—Of the scribes. The poor widow. The Jews' unbelief.—Mark xii. 38—44. Luke xx. 45—xxi. 4. John xii. 37—50. pp. 308—..12.

Jesus warns his disciples to beware of the scribes.—Mark xii. 38—40. Luke xx. 45—..7. p. 308.

The scribes, their ambition and rapacity	—	12. 38-40	20. 45-..7	—

Jesus declares the widow's mite to be a greater donation than the offerings of the rich. Mark xii. 41—..4. Luke xxi. 1—4. pp. 308, ..9.

The poor widow's two mites	—	12. 41-.4	21. 1-4	—	2 Ki. 12. 9.

St. John the evangelist comments on the continued infidelity of the Jews: and adds a last discourse of Jesus relating to the same subject, and probably now delivered. John xii. 37—50. In the temple. pp. 309—..12.

Comparatively none believed	—	—	—	12. 37-41	Is. 53. 1; 6. 10.
Why those who believed did not confess	—	—	—	— 42, .3	Jno. 3. 2, 3.
Jesus describes the true believer	—	—	—	— 44-..6
The case of him who does not believe	—	—	—	— 47, .8
Jesus spake with authority from the Father	—	—	—	— 49, 50

LESSON 81.—Jesus, being about to leave the temple for the night, and at the same time to make an end of his public ministry, denounces penal retribution upon the scribes and Pharisees, in eight woes; thus warning his disciples with regard to the pride, hypocrisy, guilt, and condemnation of the scribes and Pharisees.—Matt. xxiii. pp. 312—..21.

Those sitting in Moses' seat, say and do not	23. 1-3	—	—	—	Ne. 8. 1-4.
They impose heavy burd.—comp. Mt. xi. 28-30	— 4	—	[11. 46]	—	Ga. 5. 1-6.
Their love of shew and mastery	— 5-7	[12. 38, .9, 43; 20. 46]		—	De.6.4-8; Nu.15 38-40.
'Be not ye called Rabbi,' &c.	— 8-11	—	—	—	Ja. 3. 1.

* SECT. LXXXV. includes Lessons 79—81.—See Lesson 79 above.

	MATT.	MARK	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
He who exalts himself shall be abased, &c.	23. 12	——	[14.11; 18.14]	——	Job 22. 29; Pr. 15. 33;
1. Woe upon hypocrites, who shut up the ki.	— 13	——	[11. 52]	——	(29. 23.
2. „ who devour widows' houses, &c.	— 14	[12. 40	20. 47]	——
3. „ who make proselytes by all means	— 15	——	——	——
4. „ skilful in unrighteousness	— 16-22	——	——	——	Mt. 5. 33, .4.
5. „ who tithe mint, and omit judgment	— 23, 4	——	[11. 42]	——
6. „ clean without, whilst filthy within	— 25, .6	——	[— 39]	——	Rev. 17. 4; 18. 2.
7. „ like to whited sepulchres	— 27, .8	——	[— 44]	——
8. „ build the tombs of the prophets, and manifest the spirit of those who slew them	— 29-32	——	[— 47-51]	——	(1 Th. 2. 16. 2 Chr.36.16; Ac.7 51, .2;
Serpents forewarned of damnation	— 33	——	——	——	Is. 30. 8-14; Je. 19. 11.
How they would rec. the Lord's messengers	— 34	——	[— 49]	——
'That upon you may come all . . . blood,' &c.	— 35	——	[— 51]	——	Ge. 4. 8; 2 Chr. 24. 21.
Judgment to begin with that generation	— 36	——	[21. 32]	——
Lament over Jerusalem, as refusing peace	— 37	——	[13. 34]	——
Their house left desolate	— 38	——	——	——	Je. 7. 11-.5.
Not to see the Lord until his messengers are received in peace	— 39	——	[19. 41-.4]	——

SECTION LXXXVI.—JESUS' PROPHETIC DISCOURSES ON THE MOUNT OF OLIVES. —Matthew xxiv. 1—xxvi. 1—5; 14—. 6. Mark xiii. 1—xiv. 1, 2; 10, .1. Luke xxi. 5—xxii. 1—6. pp. 322—.61.

No. 86.—[Lesson 82.—This Section includes Lessons 82, .3, .4.]—As Jesus is leaving the temple, one of his disciples observes to him upon the buildings. Jesus' reply. The prophecy to four of the apostles, Peter and Andrew, James and John.—Matt. xxiv. 1—44. Mark xiii. 1—37. Luke xxi. 5—36. Upon mount Olivet. pp. 323—.42.

Destruction of the temple predicted	24. 1, 2	13. 1, 2	21. 5, 6	——	1 Ki. 9. 7; Je. 26. 18.
Three questions asked by the disciples	— 3	— 3, 4	— 7	——	On the order of these answers, see Sect. 86, p. 281, note at foot.
1. When shall these things be?	——	——	——	——
2. What the sign of thy coming?	——	——	——	——
3. And of the end of the world?	——	——	——	——
Beginning and end.
Jesus warns against deceivers	— 4, 5	— 5, 6	— 8	——	Eph. 5. 6; 2 Th. 2. 3.
Of wars and rumours of wars	— 6	— 7	— 9	——	Eze. 7. 26; Ps. 112. 7.
Of the sore judgments upon Jerusalem	— 7	— 8	— 10, .1	——	— 14.17, .8; Rev.6.4-8.
The beginning of sorrows	— 8	——	——	——
Persecution of the disciples	— 9	— 9, 10	— 12, .3	——	1 Pe.4.12-.9; Rev.6.9-11.
Promise of Holy Ghost for their defence	[10.19,20]	— 11	— 14, .5	——	Ac. 4. 13.
The disci. forewarned of offences & betrayal	— 10	— 12	— 16	——	Is. 8. 15.
Of being hated by all	[24. 9]	— 13	— 17	——
Exhorted to patience	——	——	— 18, .9	——
Of false prophets, iniquity abounding, &c.	— 11, .2	——	——	——	2 Ti. 3. 1-13.
He that endureth to the end shall be saved	— 13	— 13	——	——	Rev. 2. 10.
When the gospel shall be preached to all nations, then the end, &c.	— 14	——	——	——
Signs for flight, and for gathering
The ensign of desolation	— 15	— 14	——	——	Da. 9. 27; 12. 11.
A signal for flight	— 16	— 14	— 20, .1	——
No time to look back	— 17, .8	— 15, .6	[17. 31]	——	Ge. 19. 17.
These the days of vengeance	——	——	— 22	——
Woe to them that give suck, &c.	— 19	— 17	— 23	——	De. 28. 53-.7.
Pray that your flight be not in the winter, &c.	— 20	— 18	——	——
Unprecedented tribulation	— 21, .2	— 19, 20	23	——	— 28. 60-.8.
The great captivity and long treading down	——	——	— 24	——
False prophets and Christs	— 23-.6	— 21-.3	——	——	2 Th. 2. 11, .2.
Παρουσία of Son of man, and gather. of eagles	— 27, .8	——	——	——
Signs in the heavens, and upon earth	— 29	— 24, .5	— 25, .6	——	Rev. 6. 12-.7.
'Sign of the Son of man in heaven'	— 30	——	——	——	Is. 64. 1-4.
His coming 'with power and glory'	— 30	— 26	— 27	——
The gathering of the elect	— 31	— 27	——	——	1 Co. 15. 52; 1 Th. 4. 16.
The times contrasted—the one known, the other unknown.
To look to the end, from the beginning	——	——	— 28	——
The budding of fig tree shews summer nigh	— 32	— 28	— 29, 30	——
So these things the kingdom to be at hand	— 33	— 29	— 31	——	Ps. 24. 7.
This generation shall not pass till, &c.	— 34	— 30	— 32	——
'My words shall not pass away.'	— 35	— 31	— 33	——
Be prepared to stand before the Son of man	——	[4. 19?]	— 34-.6	——
The day and hour of 2nd advent not revealed	— 36	— 32, .3	——	——	Ac. 1. 6, 7.
Warning from the case of the flood	— 37-.9	——	[17. 26, .7]	——	1 Pe. 3. 20.
The separations at the Lord's coming	— 40, .1	——	[— 35, .6]	——
Watch therefore	— 42	[— 33]	——	——	1 Co. 16. 13.
„ as for the Master's return	——	— 34-.6	——	——	He. 9. 28.
„ as against a thief	— 43	——	——	——	2 Pe. 3. 10; Rev. 3. 3.
Be ready, 'for in such an hour,' &c.	— 44	[— 33-.5	21. 36]	——
'What I say . . . I say unto all, Watch'	——	— 37	——	——	1 Th. 5. 5-10.

The rest of the prophecy upon mount Olivet, as related by Matthew.

Chap. xxiv. 45—xxv. 30. pp. 343—.50.

[Lesson 83.—Parables on the second advent.—Matt. xxiv. 45—xxv. 30.]

The servant who beat his fellows.—Matt. xxiv. 45—51. pp. 343, .4.

The purpose for which the wise servant is given power	24. 45	——	[12. 42]	——	(1 Co. 4. 2. Je. 3. 15; Ac. 20. 28;

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
His reward, if obedient	24. 45, .7	—	[12. 44]	—
The evil servant described	— 48, .9	—	[— 45]	—	Ec. 8. 11; Rev. 17. 1, 2, 6.
His surprise and portion	— 50, .1	—	[— 46]	—	He. 4. 12, .3.

The parable of the ten virgins.—Matt. xxv. 1—13. pp. 345—..7.

THE TEN VIRGINS	25. 1-13	—	—	— Rev. 19. 7.
Five wise and five foolish	— 2-4	—	—	—
In what they are alike	— 5-7	—	[12. 35]	— 1 Th. 4. 16.
In what they differ	— 8-12	—	—	—
Watch therefore, &c.	— 13	—	[21. 36]	—

The parable of the ten talents.—Matt. xxv. 14—30. pp. 347—..50.

THE TALENTS	25. 14, .5	—	[19. 12]	— Rom. 12. 6; 1 Co. 12. 11.
Conduct of the three servants	— 16–.8	—	—	—
The Lord reckoneth with them	— 19	—	—	—
Case of him that had received two	— 20, .1	—	[— 16, .7]	— 2 Ti. 2. 12; He. 12. 2.
" " " five	— 22, .3	—	[— 18, .9]	—
" " " hid his lord's money	— 24–.7	—	[— 20–.3]	— 1 Co. 9. 16.
Double reward	— 28	—	[— 24]	—
'Unto every one that hath,' &c.	— 29	—	[— 26]	—
Reward of the unprofitable servant	— 30	—	—	—

[LESSON 84.]—Of the judgment of the nations. Conclusion of the parables. Conspiracy.—Matt. xxv. 31—xxvi. 1—5, 14—..6. Mark xiv. 1, 2, 10, .1 Luke xxii. 1—6; xxi. 37, .8. Mount of Olives. pp. 351—..7.

The judgment of the nations.—Matt. xxv. 31—46 pp. 351—..4.

Christ at his second advent	[16. 28]	25. 31	[8. 38	—	5. 27] Da. 7 13; Ps. 8. 4-9; 2 Th.
All nations gathered before him	[13. 41]	— 32	—	—	— (1. 7; Rev. 5. 11; He. 2. 6-9.
The sheep and the goats		— 33	—	—	— Eze. 34. 17, 20.
The king's welcome	[5. 3-10]	— 34–.6	—	—	— Ps. 2. 12; Ja. 1. 12; He 13.
The righteous say, 'When saw we thee,' &c.		— 37–.9	—	—	— (2; Ja. 1. 27; 2 Ti. 1. 16.
The king's answer		— 40	—	—	— Jno. 21. 15–.7.
His address to those on the left hand		— 41–.3	—	—	— 15. 2-6; Ja. 1. 28.
They ask, 'When saw we thee,' &c.		— 44	—	—	— (Lu. 14. 12–.4
The Lord answers		— 45	—	—	— 1 Jno. 3. 16–.7; 4. 10, .1, .6;
Their different destinations		— 46	—	—	— 2 Th. 1. 9.

The approach of the passover. Jesus betrayed to be crucified. Matt. xxvi. 1, 2. Mark xiv. 1. Luke xxii. 1. p. 355.

Jesus foretells his betrayal	26. 1, 2	—	—	—

The council of the Jews deliberate on the mode of apprehending Jesus. Judas Iscariot covenants with them to betray him. Matt. xxvi. 3—5, 14—..6. Mark xiv. 1, 2, 10, .1. Luke xxii. 2—6. Jerusalem. pp. 355—..7.

Chief priests, &c., consult to take Jesus	26. 3-5	14. 1, 2	22. 2	— Ps. 2. 2; Ac. 4. 25, .6.
Judas covenants to betray Jesus	— 14–.6	— 10, .1	— 3-6	— Zec. 11. 12, .3.

How Jesus employed himself the last two days of his public ministry, after he first visited the temple.—Luke xxi. 37, .8. p. 357.

Jesus continues to teach daily in the temple	—	—	21. 37, .8	[8. 2]

The fifth day in Passion Week, Thursday, the evening of Nisan the 14th.

SECTION LXXXVII.*—THE PASSOVER. JESUS WASHES HIS DISCIPLES' FEET. THE LORD'S SUPPER, &c.—Matthew xxvi. 17—35. Mark xiv. 12—31. Luke xxii. 7—39. John xiii. 1—xviii. 1. 1 Cor. xi. 23, .4. pp. 362—411.

No. 87.—[Lesson 85.—Matt. xxvi. 17—26. Mark xiv. 12—22. Luke xxii. 7—23. John xiii. 1—30. pp 362—..72.]—The preparation of the paschal supper.—Matt. xxvi. 17—..9. Mark xiv. 12—..6. Luke xxii. 7—13. pp. 362, ..3.

Peter and John sent to prepare the passover	26. 17, .8	14. 12–.5	22. 7-12	— Ex. 12. 3, 6
They find as Jesus had said, and make ready	— 19	— 16	— 13	—

At supper time, Jesus and the twelve sit down. Matt. xxvi. 20. Mark xiv. 17. Luke xxii. 14—..8. p. 364.

Sits down with the twelve	26. 20	14. 17	22. 14	— Rev. 19. 9.
Partakes of the passover, but refuses the cup	—	—	— 15–.8	— Rom. 14. 17.

Jesus rises from table, and washes his disciples' feet; after which he sits down again, and explains to them what he has done.—John xiii. 1—17. pp. 365—..7.

Washes the disciples' feet	—	—	—	13. 1-11	Eph. 5. 25, .6; Rev. 1. 5.
Exhorts them to follow his example	[23. 8-10	—	6. 46]	— 12–.7	Ph. 2. 5-8.

INSTITUTION OF THE LORD'S SUPPER.

Jesus institutes the breaking of bread: the first part of the Lord's supper. Matt. xxvi. 26. Mark xiv. 22. Luke xxii. 19. 1 Cor. xi. 23, .4. pp. 367—..9.

Break. of bread . . this do in rememb. of me	26. 26	14. 22	22. 19	1 Co. 11. 23, .5 1 Co. 10. 16.

* SECT. LXXXVII. includes Lessons 85—90.

LET ALL YOUR THINGS BE DONE WITH CHARITY.—1 Cor. xvi. 14.

GREET YE ONE ANOTHER WITH AN HOLY KISS.—1 Cor. xvi. 20.

Jesus foretells his betrayal by one of those sitting at meat with him. What ensues thereupon until the departure of Judas Iscariot from the supper chamber.
Matt. xxvi. 21—.5. Mark xiv. 18—21. Luke xxii. 21—.3. John xiii. 18—30. pp. 369—.72.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
'Behold, the hand... that betrayeth me,' &c.	[26. 21, .3]	——	22. 21, .2	——	Ps. 22; 55. 12; 41. 9.
'He that eateth bread with me hath,' &c.	——	——	——	13. 18, .9
'He that receiveth whomsoever I send,' &c.	[10. 40	——	9. 48]	— 20
'Verily... one of you shall betray me'	26. 21	14. 18	[22. 21]	— 21
The disciples inquire among themselves	——	——	— 23	— 22
'Lord, is it I?' His answer	— 22, .3	— 19, 20	[— 21	— 18]
Woe to the betrayer	— 24	— 21	[— 22]	——	Mt. 27. 3-5; Ac. 1. 16-20.
The betrayer indicated by the sop	——	——	——	— 23-.6	Jno. 13. 18, &c.
'That thou doest, do quickly,' &c.	——	——	——	— 27-.9	Rev. 3. 15, .6.
Judas' question answered	— 25	——	——	——
Leaves the supper chamber	——	——	——	— 30

[LESSON 86.]—UPON THE DEPARTURE OF JUDAS, JESUS COMFORTS HIS DISCIPLES: HE FORETELLS THAT PETER WILL THRICE DENY HIM. THE DISCIPLES ARE REBUKED BY JESUS. HE AGAIN FORETELLS THAT PETER WILL DENY HIM. JESUS BIDS ALL THE DISCIPLES DRINK OF THE CUP.

Matthew xxvi. 27—.9. Mark xiv. 23—.5. Luke xxii. 20; 24—38. John xiii. 31—.8. 1 Cor. xi. 25. pp. 373—..9.

Jesus comforts his disciples; and foretells that Peter will thrice deny him.
John xiii. 31—.8. pp. 373—..5.

Jesus speaks of his glorification	——	——	——	13. 31-.3
The new commandment	——	——	——	— 34, .5	Eph. 5. 2; 1 Jno. 2. 5.
Peter asks, 'Whither goest thou?'	——	——	——	— 36
„ willing to die for Jesus' sake	[26. 33-.5	14. 29-31	22. 33, .4]	— 37
Jesus foretells Peter will deny him thrice	——	——	——	— 38

The apostles dispute among themselves who should be greatest, and are rebuked by Jesus. Jesus again foretells that Peter will thrice deny him.—Luke xxii. 24—38. pp. 375—..7.

The apostles not to exercise lordship	[20. 25	9 34]	22. 24-.7	——	Ph. 2. 7; 1 Pe. 5. 3.
A kingdom appointed unto them	[25. 34]	——	— 28-30	——	Ps. 49. 14.
Simon again forewarned	——	——	— 31-.4	——	Je. 10. 23; 1 Pe. 5. 8
To use means for provision and defence	——	——	— 35-.6	——
Jesus numbered with the transgressors	——	[15. 28]	— 37, .8	——	Is. 53. 12.

Jesus institutes the blessing of the cup; the remaining part of the Lord's supper.
Matt. xxvi. 27—.9. Mark xiv. 23—.5. Luke xxii. 20. 1 Cor. xi. 25. pp. 378, ..9.

Jesus takes the cup, and gives to the disciples	26. 27, .8	14. 23, .4	22. 20	1 Cor. 11. 25
Promise of drinking it new in the kingdom	— 29	— 25	[— 18	Jno. 18. 36]

[LESSON 87.]—The supper being ended, Jesus discourses with his disciples before departing from the supper chamber.—John xiv. pp. 380—..6.

The disciples invited to trust in Christ	——	——	——	14. 1	Ps. 46, 1; 2 Co. 1. 9.
Jesus goes to prepare a place for them	——	——	——	— 2-4	1 Pe. 1. 4; Rev. 3. 12.
Thomas ignorant of both place and way	——	——	——	— 5
Christ the way, &c.	——	——	——	— 6, 7	He. 10. 19, 20; 1 Jno. 1. 2,
Philip asks to be shewn the Father [Jno. 1. 18]	——	——	——	— 8	Jno. 12. 45. (5. 12.
Jesus' reply—Is one with the Father [— 10. 30]	——	——	——	— 9, 10	Col. 1. 15; He. 1. 3.
Proved by the works which he did	——	——	——	— 11	[Jno. 5. 19.]
The believer to do greater works	——	[16. 17-20]	——	— 12
In answer to prayer in Jesus' name	——	——	——	— 13, .4	1 Pe. 4. 11.
Love to be shewn by obedience	——	——	——	— 15	1 Jno. 2. 3-5.
Promise of the Comforter	——	——	——	— 16, .7	(7-9.
Jesus will himself come to them	[6. 32]	——	——	— 18	1 Th. 4. 13-.8; 2 Th. 1.
Life through and in him	——	——	——	— 19, 20
Promise to him that loves Christ	——	——	——	— 21	Rev. 1. 2.
Inquiry of Judas, not Iscariot	[10. 3]	——	6. 16]	— 22
Jesus' reply—how to enjoy his presence	——	——	——	— 23
His word is that of the Father [see ver. 10]	——	——	——	— 24	De. 18. 18.
Has spoken these things being present	——	——	——	— 25
The Holy Ghost promised to teach, &c.	——	——	——	— 26	[Ch. 16. 13]; 1 Co. 2. 10-.6.
The Saviour's bequest, 'Peace,' &c.	——	——	——	— 27	Rom. 5. 1; Col. 1. 20.
Is going away and coming again	——	——	——	— 28, .9	Ph. 2. 6-11.
The prince of this world [ch. 12. 31]	——	——	——	— 30	Comp. Rev. 12. 3-9.
Jesus loves and obeys the Father [— 10. 17, .8]	——	——	——	— 31	Ph. 2. 8.

[LESSON 88.]—The consolation and mutual love of Christ and his people. Comfort under hatred and persecution. The office of the Holy Ghost.—John xv. pp. 387—..91.

Christ the True Vine	——	——	——	15. 1
The fruitful branches cleansed	——	——	——	— 2
The disciples made clean through his word	——	——	——	— 3	Eph. 5. 26; 1 Pe. 1. 22.
Of abiding in Christ, &c.	[7. 7-11]	——	——	— 4-7
How to glorify his Father [Jno. 14. 13]	[5. 16]	——	——	— 8	1 Pe. 2. 12.
How to abide in Christ's love	——	——	——	— 9-11	1 Jno. 4. 11.
His command—'Love one another'	——	——	——	— 12, .3	— 3. 16.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Calls the disciples his friends	—	—	—	15. 14, .5	Is. 41. 8; Jas. 2. 23.
Says why he has chosen them [Jno.6.70; 13.18]	[10. 6	16. 15	6. 13-.6]	— 16. .7	Is. 41. 9.
The world will hate them [— 17. 14]	[— 25]	—	—	— 18, .9	2 Co. 6. 17.
He reminds them of his word, ch. 13. 16	[— 17, 24	—	6. 40]	— 20, .1	Ac. 5. 17, .8; 12. 1-3.
The Jews' unbelief inexcusable [— 9. 41]	—	—	—	— 22, .3	1 Jno. 2. 23.
Have hated both him & his Father [— 14. 9]	—	—	—	— 24
Have hated him without a cause	—	—	—	— 25	Is. 65. 2, 6, 7.
Witness of the Spirit and apostles	—	—	—	— 26, .7	Jno. 14. 17; Lu. 1. 2.

[LESSON 89.]—Christ fortifieth his disciples against tribulation by the promise of the Holy Ghost, &c.: their prayers in his name acceptable. Peace.—John xvi. pp. 392—..7.

Jesus forewarns of persecution [ch.15.18-21]	—	—	—	16.1-3	Ac. 7. 58, .9; comp. 8. (1; 9. 1, 2
Says why he spoke not so plainly at beginning	—	—	—	— 4
None of them now ask, 'Whither goest,' &c.	—	—	—	— 5, 6
Expedient for them that he go away	—	—	—	— 7
The Comforter will convince the world of sin, righteousness, and judgment	—	—	—	— 8-11	Ac.3.13-.8; 19-21; 22-.4.
The disciples not yet able to bear all truth	—	—	—	— 12	Eph. 3. 5; Ac. 1. 7, 8.
The Spirit will guide into all truth	[17. 5]	—	—	— 13	[Ch.14. 17; 15. 26]; 1 Co.
He will glorify Jesus	[28. 18-20]	—	—	— 14, .5	1 Co. 12. 3. (2. 10.
Jesus speaks of 'a little while' [ch.7.33; 14.19]	—	—	—	— 16, .7
The saying not understood by the disciples	—	—	—	— 18
Likens the approaching crisis to childbirth	—	—	—	— 19-22	Mi. 4. 10.
Invites them to ask the Father in his name	—	—	—	— 23, .4
Will hereafter shew plainly of the Father	—	—	—	— 25-.7	Lu. 8. 10; Eph. 1. 4, 6.
His pre-existence, incarnation, and ascension	—	—	—	— 28	Mi. 5. 2. (with ver. 28.
The disciples think they now understand	—	—	—	— 29, 30	See ver. 16; comp. 17..9.
Jesus questions whether they yet believe	—	—	—	— 31	Lu. 24. 21; Jno.20.24..5.
Foretells their being scattered from him	—	—	—	— 32	Mt. 26. 31. (8. 37.
And tells how they may have peace	—	—	—	— 33	1 Jno. 4. 4; 5. 4; Rom.

[LESSON 90.]—JESUS' INTERCESSORY PRAYER. FORETELLS THE THIRD TIME PETER'S DENIAL OF HIM. HE PROMISES TO APPEAR IN GALILEE AFTER HIS RESURRECTION.—Matthew xxvi. 30—.5. Mark xiv. 26—31. Luke xxii. 39. John xvii.—xviii. 1. pp. 398—411.

Christ prays his Father to glorify him; to preserve his apostles in unity and truth; and to glorify them, and all other believers, with him.

John xvii. pp. 398—405.

'Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son'	—	—	—	17. 1
Eternal life, whence and what it is	—	—	—	— 2, 3	Ja. 2. 24; 1 Jno. 5. 20.
He declares what he had done	[9. 8	—	18. 43]	— 4
Prays for readmission to his original glory	—	—	—	— 5	Col. 1. 15-.7.
He declares what he had taught	[16. 16]	—	—	— 6-8	Ps. 22. 22; 1 Pe. 1. 22-.5.
And prays for his disciples	—	—	—	— 9
In recognition of whose they are, &c.	—	—	—	— 10	Jude, ver. 21.
Keep them in thy name	—	—	—	— 11
None lost, 'but the son of perdition'	—	—	—	— 12	2 Th. 2. 3-10.
Why this prayer in the disciples' hearing	—	—	—	— 13
Hated of the world	—	—	—	— 14
Prayer that they may be kept from evil	—	—	—	— 15	1 Co. 5. 10; 1 Jno. 5. 18.
" for their sanctifica. through the truth	[10. 5-8]	—	—	— 16-.9	Ps. 119. 9.
" for the oneness of believers	—	—	—	— 20-.2	Ge. 49. 10; Eph.4.11-.6.
" that the world may believe	—	—	—	— 23	Ps. 107. 42.
" that the disciples may be with him	[25. 34]	—	—	— 24	1 Th. 4. 17.
" 'O righteous Father, &c.'	[5. 44-.8]	—	—	— 25, .6	Rom. iii. 24-.6.

Jesus departs from the supper chamber to the mount of Olives; he foretells a third time that Peter should thrice deny him; he promises to appear to his disciples in Galilee after his resurrection.—Matt. xxvi. 30—.5. Mark xiv. 26—31. Luke xxii. 39. John xviii. 1. pp. 405, ..6.

Jesus departs to the mount of Olives	26. 30	14. 26	22. 39	18. 1	2 Sa. 15. 23.
Predicts the scattering of the disciples	— 31	— 27	—	—	Zec. 13. 7.
And his going before them into Galilee	— 32	— 28	[24. 6, 7]	—	[Mt. 28. 10, .6.]
Peter boasts of his singular fidelity	— 33	— 29	[22. 31-.4	13. 36-.8]
Jesus a third time forewarns him	— 34	— 30	[— 34	— 38]	Mt. 26. 69-75
Peter boasts that he will be faithful..so all	— 35	— 31	[— 33	— 37]	1 Co. 10. 12.

SECTION LXXXVIII.—PARTICULARS OF THE TRANSACTIONS IN THE GARDEN OF GETHSEMANE, BETWEEN THE TIME OF THE ARRIVAL OF JESUS THERE, AND THE APPROACH OF JUDAS WITH THE BAND TO APPREHEND HIM. — Matthew xxvi. 36—56. Mark xiv. 32—52. Luke xxii. 40—53. John xviii. 1—11. pp. 412—..23.

No. 88.—[Lesson 91.]—Jesus' agony.—Matt. xxvi. 36—.9. Mark xiv. 32—.6. Luke xxii. 40—4. John xviii. 1. Gethsemane. pp. 412—..4.

Jesus enters the garden with his disciples	26. 36	14. 32	22. 40	8. 1
Withdraws with Peter, James, and John	— 37, .8	— 33, .4	— 41	—	1 Pe. 5. 1.
Prays, 'if it be possible,' &c.—His submission	— 39	— 35, .6	— 42	—	Is. 51. 17; Ph. 2. 8.
Strengthened by an angel	[4. 11	1. 13]	— 43	—	He. 2. 7-9.
Agony and bloody sweat	—	—	— 44	—	5. 7.

BRETHREN, PRAY FOR US.—1 Thess. v. 25.

O LORD, CORRECT ME, BUT WITH JUDGMENT; NOT IN THINE ANGER, LEST THOU BRING ME TO NOTHING.—Jer. x. 24.

I PRESS TOWARD THE MARK FOR THE PRIZE OF THE HIGH CALLING OF GOD IN CHRIST JESUS.—Phil. iii. 14.

Jesus cometh to his disciples. p. 415.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
He finds them sleeping	26. 40, .1	14. 37, .8 [9. 32]	—	—	Rom. 7. 23; Ga. 5. 17.

Jesus goeth away, and prayeth a second time. p. ib.

'O my Father, if this cup may not pass,' &c.	26. 42	14. 39	—	—

He cometh to his disciples a second time. p. 416.

Finds them asleep again	26. 43	14. 40	—	—	[Mk. 9. 6.]

Jesus prayeth a third time. p. ib.

'Saying the same words'	26. 44	—	—	—

He cometh to his disciples a third time. p. ib.

He 'saith unto them, . . . the hour is at hand'	26. 45	14. 41	—	—	Ga. 2. 15.
'Rise, let us be going'	— 46	— 42	—	—	Mk. 14. 20; Mt. 26. 31.

Goeth to the eight disciples.—Luke xxii. 45, .6. p. ib.

He finds them sleeping for sorrow	—	—	22. 45	—
'Rise and pray,' &c.	—	—	— 46	—

Particulars of the transactions between the time of the arrival of Judas, with the band, and the apprehension of Jesus.

Matt. xxvi. 47—56. Mark xiv. 43—52. Luke xxii. 47—53. John xviii. 2—11. pp. 417—.22.

Judas, with a band from the chief priests	26. 47	14. 43	22. 47	18. 2, 3	Ps. 2. 2; Ac. 1. 16.
Jesus saith, 'I am.' They fall backward	—	—	—	— 4-6	[Jno. 8. 58]; Ex. 3. 14.
Jesus claims exemption for his disciples	—	—	—	— 7-9	[— 17. 11-9.]
The betrayer's token, a 'kiss'	— 48, .9	— 44, .5	— 47, .8	—	2 Sa. 20. 9.
They lay hold on Jesus	— 50	— 46	—	—	Ps. 41. 9; 55. 13.
Peter smites with the sword	— 51	— 47	— 49, 50	— 10
Jesus declines the use of the sword	—	—	— 51	—	[Ver. 38.]
Predicts with regard to those using the sword	— 52	—	—	—	Ge. 9. 6; Rev. 13. 10.
'The cup which my Father,' &c.	—	—	—	— 11	Mk. 14. 36.
The help of God sufficient	— 53	—	—	—	2 Ki. 6. 17; Da. 4. 35; 7. 10.
The scriptures must be fulfilled	— 54	—	—	—	Is. 53. 7.
'Are ye come out as against a thief,' &c.	— 55, .6	— 48, .9	— 52, .3	—
All forsake him, and flee	— 56	— 50	—	—	Job 19. 13; Ps. 31. 11.
A young man flees from them naked	—	— 51, .2	—	—	Rev. 16. 15.

SECTION LXXXIX.—Jesus before Annas, Caiaphas, and the Sanhedrim. Repentance of Peter and of Judas.

Matthew xxvi. 57—xxvii. 10. Mark xiv. 53—xv. 1. Luke xxii. 54—xxiii. 1. John xviii. 12—28. Jerusalem. pp. 424—.39.

No. 89.—[Lesson 92.]—Jesus is led to Annas and Caiaphas.

Matt. xxvi. 57. Mark xiv. 53. Luke xxii. 54. John xviii. 12—.4. p. 425.

Jesus is bound, and led away to Annas	—	—	—	18. 12-.4	Ps. 118. 27.
Is brought before Caiaphas the high priest	26. 57	14. 53	22. 54	—

Peter followeth afar off.—John xviii. 15, .6. p. ib.

Peter and another disciple follow Jesus	—	—	—	18. 15	Comp. Peter's boldness,
They obtain admission to the palace	—	—	—	— 16	(Ac. 2., 3., 4.

Jesus before Caiaphas.

Matt. xxvi. 57, .8. Mark xiv. 53, .4. Luke xxii. 54, .5. John xviii. 19—24. pp. 426, ..7.

Jesus having answered the high pr. is struck	—	—	—	18. 19-24	Is. 50. 6; Mi. 5. 1.
The chief priests, elders, and scribes assemble	26. 57	14. 53	22. 54	—
Peter with the servants in the hall	— 58	— 54	— 55	—

Jesus is examined by the Sanhedrim.

Matt. xxvi. 59—68. Mark xiv. 55—65. Luke xxii. 63—.5. pp. 427—.30.

Jesus before the sanhedrim. False witnesses	26. 59-62	14. 55-60	—	—	De. 19. 15; Ps. 27. 12; 35.
Jesus acknowledges that he is the Christ	— 63, .4	— 61, .2	—	—	(11; Ac. 6. 13.
Accused of blasphemy, spit upon, and buffeted	— 65-.8	— 63-.5	22. 63-.5	—	Le. 24. 16; Is. 50. 6.

Peter denies Christ.—Matt. xxvi. 69—75. Mark xiv. 66—72. Luke xxii. 56—62. John xviii. 17, .8; 25—.7. pp. 430—..3.

Peter's first denial, 'Woman, I know him not'	26. 69, 70	14. 66-.8	22. 56, .7	18. 17	Je. 17. 9.
„ second denial, 'Man, I am not'	— 71, .2	— 69, 70	— 58	— 18, 25
„ third —— begins 'to curse & to swear'	— 73, .4	— 70, .1	— 59, 60	— 26, .7	Ac. 2. 7; Jude, ver. 12, .6.
He remembers the words of Jesus and repents	— 75	— 72	— 61, .2	—	Je. 2. 19; 2 Co. 7. 10.

The sixth day in Passion Week, Friday, the 14th of Nisan.

In the morning, Jesus is again examined in the Jewish council chamber.—Lu. xxii. 66—71.

The council ask, 'Art thou the Christ?'	—	—	22. 66, .7	—
Jesus answ. by referring to his coming glory	[26. 63, .4]	—	— 68, .9	—	He. 1. 3; 8. 1.
'Art thou then the Son of God?' Jesus' ans.	—	—	— 70, .1	—	Ac. 3. 13.

Jesus, being condemned, is taken from the council to Pontius Pilate.
Matt. xxvii. 1, 2. Mark xv. 1. Luke xxiii. 1. John xviii. 28. pp. 434, ..5.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Jesus is delivered to the Roman governor .	27. 1, 2	15. 1	23. 1	18. 28	Mt. 20. 18, .9.

Judas Iscariot repents.—Matt. xxvii. 3—10. pp. 435—..7.

Judas repents, and confesses to the priests .	27. 3, 4	—	—	Job 20. 15.
He goes away and destroys himself . . .	— 5	—	—
The potter's field purchased	— 6-10	—	—	Zec. 11. 13.

SECTION XC.*—PARTICULARS OF JESUS' TRIAL BEFORE PILATE AND HEROD. DELIVERED TO BE CRUCIFIED.—Matthew xxvii. 11—26. Mark xv. 2—15. Luke xxiii. 2—25. John xviii. 28—xix. 16. pp. 439—.53.

No. 90.—[Lesson 93.]—Pilate comes out to the Sanhedrim.—John xviii. 28—32. pp. 440, ..1.

Pilate accommodates himself to their scruples	—	—	—	18. 28-32 Ac. 3. 13.

Pilate converses with Jesus in private.—Ver. 33—.8. pp. 441, ..2.

Pilate returns within and converses with Jesus	—	—	—	18. 33..5 Is. 55. 4; Da. 2. 44; 7. 14.
Jesus declares the nature of his kingdom .	—	—	—	— 36 Rom. 14. 17; 1 Ti 6. 13.
And the purpose for which he was born, &c.	—	—	—	— 37 Is. 9. 6; Lu. 2. 11.
'What is truth?'	—	—	—	— 38 Jno. 14. 6.

Pilate's first intercession for Jesus' release.—Ver. 38—40. pp. 442, ..3.

Pilate goes out and proposes Jesus' release .	—	—	—	18. 38-40 Ac. 3. 14.

Jesus is scourged.—John xix. 1—3. p. 443.

Jesus scourged and mocked by the soldiers .	[20. 19	10. 34]	—	19. 1-3 Ps. 129. 3; Is. 53. 5.

Pilate's second intercession, and Jesus presented to the people.—Ver. 4—8. pp. 443, .4.

Pilate's second interces. 'Behold the man!'	—	—	—	19. 4, 5 De. 18. 20.
The chief priests, &c., cry out, 'Crucify him'	—	—	—	— 6 Ac. 3. 13.
Because he made himself the Son of God .	—	—	—	— 7
Pilate hearing this is the more afraid . .	—	—	—	— 8 (18. 33 Comp. Mt. 26. 63; Jno.

Pilate goes in again.—Ver. 9—11. p. 444.

Pilate asks, 'Whence art thou?' Jesus is silent	—	—	—	19. 9 Is. 53. 7
Pilate speaks of his power	—	—	—	— 10
Jesus refers to the Divine appointment. .	—	—	—	— 11

Pilate's third intervession.—Ver. 12. p. ib.

Is met with, 'Thou art not Cæsar's friend'	—	—	—	19. 12 Ac. 17. 7

Pilate sits down on the judgment seat.—Ver. 13, .4. p. 445.

Jesus brought before the judgment seat .	—	—	—	19. 13, .4

PARTICULARS OF THE PROCEEDINGS AT THE TRIAL OF JESUS, FROM THE TIME OF PILATE'S SITTING DOWN ON THE JUDGMENT SEAT, UNTIL JESUS IS SENT UNTO HEROD.—Matthew xxvii. 11—.4. Mark xv. 2—5. Luke xxiii. 2—5. pp. 445, ..6.

Christ before Pilate, officially arraigned.
Matt. xxvii. 11—.4. Mark xv. 2—5. Luke xxiii. 2, 3. pp. 445.

Jesus accused of perverting the nation .	27. 11	—	23. 2	—	Ac. 16. 20. .1.
Pilate examines him publicly	— 11	15. 2	— 3	—	Rom. 2. 29.
Chief priests accuse Jesus—he answ. nothing	— 12	— 3	—	—
Pilate marvels at his silence	— 13, .4	— 4, 5	—	—

Pilate's fourth intercession.—Luke xxiii. 4, 5. p. 446.

'I find no fault in this man'	—	—	23. 4	—
They more fiercely repeat the accusation .	—	—	— 5	—

[Lesson 94.]—PARTICULARS OF JESUS' TRIAL FROM THE TIME OF HIS BEING SENT TO HEROD, UNTIL HE IS DELIVERED TO BE CRUCIFIED.—Matthew xxvii. 15—26. Mark xv. 6—15. Luke xxiii. 6—25. John xix. 14—.6. pp. 447—.53.

Jesus is sent to Herod	—	—	23. 6, 7	—	Lu. 3. 1; Mt. 14. 3-12.

Jesus before Herod; is sent back to Pilate.—Luke xxiii. 8—12. pp. 447, ..8.

Herod is glad, hoping to witness Jesus' power	—	—	23. 8, 9	—
The priests, &c., vehemently accuse Jesus	—	—	— 10	—
Herod mocks Jesus and returns him to Pilate	—	—	— 11, .2	— 2 Ki. 5. 11; Is. 49. 7; 53. 3.

Pilate again presents Jesus to the people.—John xix. 14, .5. p. 448.

'Behold your King'	—	—	—	19. 14 Ge. 49. 10.
The priests' reply, 'No king but Cæsar' .	—	—	—	— 15

* SECT. XC. includes Lessons 93, .4. Lesson 93 embraces Matt. xxvii. 11—.4; Mark xv. 2—5; Luke xxiii. 2—5; John xviii. 28—xix. 14. pp. 439—.46.

HE SHALL SEE OF THE TRAVAIL OF HIS SOUL, AND SHALL BE SATISFIED: BY HIS KNOWLEDGE SHALL MY RIGHTEOUS SERVANT JUSTIFY MANY; FOR HE SHALL BEAR THEIR INIQUITIES.—Isa. liii. 11.

NO PEACE, SAITH MY GOD, TO THE WICKED.—Isa. lvii. 21.

Pilate intercedes the fifth time for Jesus' release.—Luke xxiii. 13—.6. p. 449.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Pilate expostulates with the chief priests, and declares Jesus' innocence	—	—	23. 13-.5	—	Da. 6. 4; 1 Pe. 2. 15.
Proposes to chastise and release him	—	—	— 16	—	Pr. 12. 10.

Pilate intercedes the sixth time.
Matt. xxvii. 15—.8. Mark xv. 6—10. Luke xxiii. 17. pp. 449, .50.

The custom to release a prisoner at the feast	27. 15	15. 6	23. 17	—
Pilate offers them 'Barabbas, or Jesus'?	— 16-.8	— 7-10	—	—

Pilate's wife's message. The chief priests persuade the people.
Matt. xxvii. 19, 20. Mark xv. 11. Luke xxiii. 18, .9. pp. 450, ..1.

Pilate's wife intercedes for Jesus	27. 19	—	—	—	Ge.20.3-6; Job 33.14-.7.
The priests move the people to prefer Barab.	— 20	15. 11	—	—	Je. 5. 30, .1.
They cry, 'Release unto us Barabbas'	—	—	23. 18, .9	—	Ac. 22. 22.

Pilate's seventh and last intercession.
Matt. xxvii. 21—.5. Mark xv. 12—.4. Luke xxiii. 20—.3. pp. 451—..3.

Pilate asks what he is to do with Jesus	27. 21, .2	15. 12	23. 20	—
They say, 'Crucify him'	— 22	— 12, .3	— 21	—
He again remoustrates unsuccessfully	— 23	— 14	— 22, .3	—
Pilate washes his hands	— 24	—	—	—	De. 21. 6-8.
The people say, 'His blood be,' &c.	— 25	—	—	—
The voices of the people and priests prevail	—	—	— 23	—

Jesus delivered to the people.
Matt. xxvii. 26. Mark xv. 15. Luke xxiii. 24, .5. John xix. 16. p. 453

The murderer released to content the people	27. 26	15. 15	23. 24, .5	—	Ac. 3. 14.
Jesus scourged and delivered to be crucified	— 26	— 15	— 25	19. 16	Ex. 23. 2.

SECTION XCI.—PARTICULARS WHICH TRANSPIRED AFTER JESUS WAS DELIVERED TO BE CRUCIFIED UNTIL THE TIME OF HIS DEATH.—Matthew xxvii. 27—50. Mark xv. 16—37 Luke xxiii. 26—46. John xix.16—30. Golgotha. pp. 454—.69.

No. 91.—[Lesson 95.]—Jesus is crowned with thorns, mocked, and led away to crucifixion.
Matt. xxvii. 27—32. Mark xv. 16—21. Luke xxiii. 26—32. John xix. 16. pp. 455—..8.

Jesus is led into the common hall	27. 27	15. 16	—	—
Arrayed in a royal robe and crowned	— 28, .9	— 17, .8	—	[19. 2, 3]
Is spit upon and struck on the head	— 30	— 19	—	—	Is. 50. 6; He. 12. 2.
Led away to execution	— 31	— 20	—	—	Ac. 7. 58; He. 13. 12, .3.
Bears his cross (with Simon a Cyrenian)	— 32	— 21	23. 26	19. 16
'Daughters of Jerusa., weep not for me,' &c.	—	—	— 27-31	—	Is. 2. 19; Ho. 10. 8.
Two others, malefactors, led with him	—	—	— 32	—

Vinegar and gall offered, at Golgotha, &c.
Matt. xxvii. 33—.8. Mark xv. 22—.8. Luke xxiii. 33, .4. John xix. 17—24. pp. 458—.62.

Is brought to Golgotha	27. 33	15. 22	23. 33	19. 17
Vinegar with gall given him to drink	— 34	— 23	—	—	Ps. 69. 21.
Is nailed to the cross	—	—	— 33	— 18	De. 21. 23; Ga. 6. 14.
His prayer for the soldiers	—	—	— 34	—	Ac. 3. 17.
The title, in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin	—	—	[— 38]	— 19-22
They divide his garments, casting lots	— 35	— 24, .5	— 34	— 23, .4	Ps. 22. 18.
Jesus upon the cross—his accusation set up	— 36, .7	— 26	[— 38	— 19-22]
Two thieves crucified with him	— 38	— 27, .8	[— 32]	—	Is. 53. 12.

PARTICULARS OF WHAT TRANSPIRED FROM THE TIME WHEN JESUS WAS AFFIXED TO THE CROSS, TO THE TIME WHEN HE GAVE UP THE GHOST.—Matthew xxvii. 39—50. Mark xv. 29—37. Luke xxiii. 35—46. John xix. 25—30. pp. 463—..9.

Passers by rail on Jesus	27. 39, 40	15. 29, 30	23. 35	—	Ps. 22. 6, 7; 109. 25.
Mocked by the chief priests and scribes	— 41-.3	— 31, .2	— 35	—	— 22. 8
The soldiers mock him, offering vinegar	—	—	— 36-.8	—	Rev. 1. 8, 18.
Reviled by the thieves	— 44	— 32	— 39	—
The penitent thief, 'Lord, remember me	—	—	— 40-.3	—	Lu. 19. 10; 1 Ti. 1. 15.
The three Marys stand by the cross of Jesus	—	—	—	19. 25
Jesus commends his mother to John	—	—	—	— 26, .7
Darkness from the sixth to the ninth hour	— 45	— 33	— 44, .5	—	Am. 8. 9.
The cry, 'Eli, Eli,' &c.	— 46, .7	— 34, .5	—	—	Ps. 22. 1; He. 5. 7.
'I thirst'	—	—	—	— 28
Sponge filled with vinegar offered to Jesus	— 48, .9	— 36	—	— 29, 30	Ps. 69. 21. (Rom. 10. 4.
'It is finished'—Jesus gives up the ghost	— 50	— 37	— 46	— 30	— 31. 5; Da. 9. 24;

SECTION XCII.—PARTICULARS OF WHAT TRANSPIRED AFTER JESUS GAVE UP THE GHOST, UNTIL HE WAS TAKEN DOWN FROM THE CROSS, AND BURIED, AND A GUARD SET UPON THE SEPULCHRE.—Matthew xxvii. 51—66. Mark xv. 38—47. Luke xxiii. 47—56. John xix. 31—42. Jerusalem. pp. 470—.81.

No. 92.—[Lesson 96.]—Jesus is taken down from the cross and laid in the tomb.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
The vail of the temple rent, &c.	27. 51	15. 38	[23. 45]	——	Ex. 26. 31; 2 Chr. 3. 14.
The earthquake	— 51	——	——	——	Is. 26. 19; 1 Co. 15. 20.
Graves opened—resurrection of many saints	— 52, .3	——	——	——
The centurion's confession	— 54	— 39	— 47	——
The people smite their breasts and return	——	——	— 48	——
The women from Galilee stand afar off	— 55, .6	— 40, .1	— 49	——	Lu. 8. 3.
The legs of the two thieves broken	——	——	——	19. 31, .2	De. 21. 22, .3.
Jesus is pierced, &c.	——	——	——	— 33-.5	Ex. 12. 46; 1 Jno. 5. 6, 8;
Fulfilment of scripture	——	——	——	— 36, .7	Zec. 12. 10. (Rev. 1. 7.
The body begged by Joseph of Arimathæa	— 57, .8	— 42-.5	— 50-.2	— 38
Nicodemus comes bringing spices	——	——	——	— 39
Jesus' body is taken down, &c.	— 59	— 46	— 53	— 40
Laid in the tomb	— 60, .1	— 46, .7	— 53-.6	— 41, .2	Ex. 20. 8-11; Is. 53. 9.
The sepulchre sealed and guarded	— 62-.6	——	——	——	Da. 6. 17.

PART V. MATTHEW XXVIII. MARK XVI. LUKE XXIV. JOHN XX., XXI.

ARRANGED IN THE ORDER OF TIME.

Comprehending the Space of Forty Days' time; viz., from the Morning of our Lord's Resurrection, Easter Day, April 7th, unto the Day of his Ascension into Heaven, Thursday, May 16th, U.C. 783, A.D. 30.

SECTION XCIII.—JESUS RISES FROM THE DEAD.

No. 93.—[Lesson 97.]—Particulars at and after our Lord's resurrection.—Matt. xxviii. 1—8, 11—.5. Mark xvi. 1—11. Luke xxiv. 1—12. John xx. 1—18. pp. 483—.92.

Salome, &c., visit the sepulchre	28. 1	16. 1, 2	[24. 1]	——	Lu. 23. 56.
Earthquake and descent of angel	— 2-4	——	——	——	Ps. 104. 4; Da. 10. 6.
'Who shall roll us away the stone?'	——	— 3, 4	——	——	Ex. 14. 10-22.
An angel saith, 'He is risen,' &c. [Mt. 16. 21]	— 5, 6	[— 6	— 5, 6]	——
Young man (within the tomb)	[— 5, 6]	— 5, 6	——	——
'He goeth before you into Galilee'	— 7	— 7	——	[20. 1, 2]
The women leave the sepulchre	— 8	— 8	——	——
Report of the guard	— 11-.5	——	——	——
Joanna's party visit the sepulchre	[— 1-7	— 1-7]	— 1-7	——	Ac. 1. 10.
Jesus' resurrection reported to the apostles	——	——	— 8, 9, 11	——
Mary Magdalene tells to Peter and John	——	——	— 10	20. 1, 2
Peter and John visit the sepulchre	——	——	— 12	— 3-10	Ps. 16. 10; Ac. 2. 25-31;
Vision of angels to Mary	[— 1-6	— 1-6]	——	— 11-.3	(13. 34, .5.
Jesus appears to Mary	——	— 9	——	——
The manner of his appearance	——	——	——	— 14-.7	Rom. 8. 29.
Mary tells that she has seen the Lord	——	— 10, .1	——	— 18

SECTION XCIV.—JESUS APPEARS TO TWO DISCIPLES.
Mark xvi. 12. Luke xxiv. 13—32. pp. 493—.6.

No. 94.—[Lesson 98 embraces Sects. xciv., xcv.]—In the way to Emmaus.

Jesus appears to two disciples in the way	——	16. 12	24. 13-.7	——	(13. 27.
They describe the life and death of Jesus	——	——	— 18-20	——	Ac. 1. 6; 2. 22; 7. 22;
Their former hopes & his rumoured resurrec.	——	——	— 21-.4	——
Jesus reproves their unbelief, and speaks of the sufferings and the glory, &c.	——	——	— 25, .6	——	(De. 18. 15; Ps. 22. Ge. 3. 15; Nu. 21. 8, 9;
Opens up to them Moses, the prophets, &c., and all the scriptures	——	——	— 27	——
Is known to them in breaking of bread	[14. 19]	——	— 28-31	——	— 32. 26.
'Did not our heart burn within us'	——	——	— 32	——

SECTION XCV.—SUNDRY APPEARANCES OF JESUS AFTER HIS RESURRECTION.
Matthew xxviii. 9, 10. Mark xvi. 13, .4. Luke xxiv. 33—43. John xx. 19—29.
1 Cor. xv. 5. pp. 497—.501.

No. 95.—[Lesson 98, continued.]—The two disciples return to Jerusalem, and are informed that Jesus has appeared to Simon Peter; which is his third appearance.—Mark xvi. 13. Luke xxiv. 33—.5. 1 Cor. xv. 5. p. 497.

They return, and find the eleven together	——	——	24. 33	——
And that the Lord has appeared unto Simon	——	——	— 34	1 Cor. 15. 5
And relate what had happened to them	——	16. 13	— 35	——

VERILY THERE IS A REWARD FOR THE RIGHTEOUS: VERILY HE IS A GOD THAT JUDGETH IN THE EARTH.—Psa. lviii. 11.

THOU HAST SHEWED THY PEOPLE HARD THINGS: THOU HAST MADE US TO DRINK THE WINE OF ASTONISHMENT.—Psa. lx. 3.

Jesus appears the same evening to the eleven, in the absence of Thomas: which is his fourth appearance in all—but the first to the eleven.—Luke xxiv. 36—43. John xx. 19—25. At Jerusalem. pp. 498—900.

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Jesus' first appearance to the eleven	——	[6. 49]	24. 36-43	20. 19, 20	Ge. 45. 26; Ac. 10. 41.
Salutes and commissions them	[28. 18-20]	——	——	— 21	[Jno. 17. 18.]
The sign of inspiration	——	——	——	— 22	[— 14. 17.]
'Whose soever sins ye remit,' &c.	——	——	——	— 23	Ac. 2. 38; 26. 18.
Unbelief of Thomas	——	——	——	— 24, .5	2 Co. 5. 7; 1 Jno. 1. 1.

Eight days after, Jesus appears to the eleven again, Thomas being present: which is his fifth appearance.—Mark xvi. 14. 1 Cor. xv. 5. John xx. 26—.9. pp. 500, ..1.

Second appearance of Jesus to the eleven	——	16. 14	1Co.15.5	20. 26
Upbraids their hardness of heart	——	— 14	——	——
Thomas convinced, says, 'My Lord,' &c.	——	——	——	— 27-.9

Jesus appears to all or part of the women who had first visited the sepulchre on the morning of the resurrection, and sends a command by them to the disciples to depart into Galilee: which is his sixth appearance.—Matt. xxviii. 9, 10. In the vicinity of Jerusalem. p. 501.

Invitation to meet Jesus in Galilee	28. 9, 10	——	——	Rom. 8. 29; He. 2. 11.

SECTION XCVI.—Jesus appears to five hundred brethren.—Matthew xxviii. 16—20. 1 Corinthians xv. 6. On the Holy mount. p. 502.

No. 96.—[Lesson 99 includes also Sect. xcvii.]—Matt. xxviii. 16—20. 1 Cor. xv. 6.

The eleven go into Galilee	28. 16	——	——	——
His appearance upon the mountain	— 17	——	——	Co. 15. 6
Has received all power in heaven and in earth	— 18	——	——	——
The great commission—disciple all nations	— 19	——	——	——
'Baptizing them in the name,' &c.	— 19	——	——	——
'Teaching them to observe,' &c.	— 20	——	——	——
Jesus' sympathy and omnipresence	— 20	——	——	——

SECTION XCVII.—Jesus appears to certain of the disciples, at the sea of Galilee.—John xxi. 1—24. And to James.—1 Corinthians xv. 7.

No. 97.—[Lesson 99, continued—see Sect. xcvi.]—Jesus appears to certain of his disciples, while fishing in the lake of Galilee.—John xxi. 1—24. pp. 505—.10.

Third appearance to certain of his disciples	——	——	——	21. 1-14 Ac. 10. 41.
'Simon,...lovest thou me?' 'Feed my lambs'	——	——	——	— 15-.7 He. 13. 20; 1 Pe. 2. 25;
Predicts the manner of Peter's death	——	——	——	— 18, .9 2 Pe. 1. 14. (5. 2, 4.
'Follow thou me'	[16. 28]	——	——	— 19-21 Rev. 2. 25; 22. 7, 20.
'If I will that he tarry till I come'	——	——	——	— 22-.4
Jesus appears to James; his ninth appearance	——	——	——	1 Co. 15. 7

SECTION XCVIII.—Particulars of Ascension day.—Acts i. 4—11. Mark xvi. 15—.9. Luke xxiv 44—51. 1 Corinthians xv. 7. pp. 511—..7.

No. 98.—[Lesson 100.*]—On the morning of Ascension day, or Holy Thursday, Jesus appears to the apostles, assembled in Jerusalem: which is his tenth or last appearance. —Luke xxiv. 44—.9. Acts i. 4—8. 1 Cor. xv. 7. pp. 511—..5.

The disciples to wait for promise of the Father	——	——	——	Acts 1. 4	Jno. 7. 38; 12. 28.
Jesus the fulfiller of Moses, Prophets, Psalms	——	——	24. 44	——	Lu. 18. 31-.3.
Opens the disciples' understanding	——	——	— 45	——	Ps. 119. 18.
Behoved him to suffer and to rise again	——	——	— 46	——	— 40. 7.
The gospel to be preached to all nations	[28. 19]	——	— 47	——	——
The apostles to be witnesses	——	——	— 48	[Jno.15. 27]	Ac. 5. 32.
Endued with power from on high	——	——	— 49	[— 14.26]	— 2. 33.
John truly baptized with water	——	——	——	Acts 1.5	Mt. 3. 11.
They are to be baptized with the Holy Ghost	——	——	——	— 5	Jno. 14. 26.
Wilt thou now restore the kingdom to Israel?	——	——	——	— 6	Mt. 19. 28.
They cannot yet bear the knowl. of times, &c.	——	——	——	— 7	Jno. 16. 12.
But shall receive power	——	——	[— 49]	— 8	Ac. 15. 15-.8.

Jesus conducts the apostles unto Bethany, and again charges them to preach the Gospel.—Mark xvi. 15—.8. Luke xxiv. 50. pp. 515, ..6.

Jesus leads the apostles out unto Bethany	——	——	24. 50	——
The commis., 'Go ye into all the world,' &c.	——	16. 15	——	——	(10. 9; 1 Co. 1. 17.
The alternative, 'He that believeth,' &c.	——	— 16	——	——	Ac. 11. 16; 15. 9; Rom.
Signs following them that believe	——	— 17, .8	——	——	— 13. 6-12; 28. 3-6.

The ascension.—Mark xvi. 19. Luke xxiv. 50, .1. Acts i. 9—11. Bethany. p. 516.

The Lord having spoken to his disciples	——	16. 19	——	Acts 1.9
While blessing them is taken up	——	— 19	24. 50, .1	— 9	Ps. 110. 1; Col. 3. 1.
Two men stand by them in white apparel	——	——	——	— 10	Lu. 24. 4-7.
Who promise Jesus' return	——	——	——	— 11	— 19. 12.

SECTION XCIX.—[Lesson 100, continued.]—The apostles return to Jerusalem. Luke xxiv. 52, .3. Acts i. 12. p. 517.

They worship Jesus, and return with great joy	——	——	24. 52	Acts 1.12	Jno. 14. 28.
Are continually in the temple praising God	——	——	— 53	——	Ac. 2. 46, .7.

* Lesson 100 embraces Sections xcviii.—c.

SECTION C.—[Lesson 100, continued.]—CONCLUSION OF THE GOSPELS BY JOHN AND MARK. p. 518.

Conclusion of the Gospel by John, xx. 30, .1; xxi. 25. p. 518

	MATT.	MARK.	LUKE.	JOHN.	ILLUSTRATIONS.
Many of Jesus' signs not recorded	—	—	—	20. 30
Why these are written	—	—	—	— 31	1 Pe. 1. 8, 9.
Why, not the whole	—	—	—	21. 25

Conclusion of the Gospel by Mark, xvi. 20.

The apostles experience the truth of the prom.	—	16. 20	—	—	Mt.28.20; Mk.16.16,.7.

INDEX TO THE ADDENDA.

	Sect.	Page
Bethany, Time of arrival at	81	258
" " unction at	—	—
Christ, Evidence that Jesus is the	100	519
Conclusion of two years and a half of our Lord's ministry	53	88
Day of procession to the temple	81,2	258,72
Dedication, Feast of	56	124
Denials of Peter, Times of	89	437
Dispossessions. The two, Mt. xii. 22—45; Lu. xi. 14—26	62	161
Dispute (First) concerning precedence	52,	79, 80
'Drowned in the depth of the sea'	—	81
Eating with unwashen hands, On	44	11
Elders, The tradition of	—	12
Evidence (Summary) of Jesus' Messiahsh.	100	519
Galilee, Jesus departs from, into Persea, Mt. xix. 1	71	209
Hades, Existence and locality of	69	202
Harmony of accounts of sending forth the twelve and the seventy	60	148
'How long dost thou make us to doubt?'	54	124
Identity of Mt. xviii. 1—9; Mk. ix. 33—50; Lu. ix. 47—50	52	74
Israelitish origin of the English nation, Queries on	68	195
Jericho, Miracles performed at	79	244
Jno. vii. 2—xi. 54, Supplemental relation of	54	88
Jno. x. 24, 'How long dost thou make us to doubt?'	56	124
Jno. xx. 31, 'These are written,' &c.	100	519
Judas' repentance	89	438
Keys of the kingdom of heaven	50	47
Lu. ix. 51—xviii. 14, Supplementary relation of	59	138
Lu. ix. 51—62, Suggestions on the probable place and time of	—	139
'Many be called, but few chosen'	73	234
Mary the mother of Jesus	91	469
Matthew xviii. 1—22, On	52	79
Mt. xxiv ch., Prophecy on mount Olivet	86	358
" 'Kingdom against kingd.'	—	—
" 'Fearful sights'	—	—
" Persecution	—	359
" 'Neither . . . premeditate'	—	—
" 'Gospel of the kingdom'	—	—
" Abomination of desolation	—	—
" Those days . . . shortened	—	—
" Fall by the sword	—	360
" Jerusalem trodden down	—	361
" False Christs	—	—
" Retrospect of	—	—
Mt. viii. 18—22; Lu. ix. 57—62	59	137
Miracles performed at Jericho	79	244
Parallelism of Mt. viii. 19—22, with Lu. ix. 57—62	59	137
" of Mt. xi. 21—.3, 25—.7; xiii. 16, .7; Lu. x. 13—.5, 21—.4, The woe and blessing	60	149
" of Mt. xii. 22—45, with Lu. xi. 14—26: the two dispossessions, and blasphemy against the Holy Ghost	62	158
" of Lu. xi. 1—13; Mt. vi. 7—13; vii. 7—11	—	—
" of Lu. xi. 14—26, 29—32; Mt. xii. 22—30, 38—45	—	—
" of Lu. xi. 33—.6; Mt. v. 15; vi. 22, .3	—	160
" of Lu. xi. 37—54; Mt. xxiii. 4, 6, 7, 13, 23—36	—	—
" of Lu. xii. with portions of Mt. vi., x., xii., xvi., xxiv.; shewing also the principle of Hebrew parallelism in our Lord's discourses	63	171
" of Lu. xiii. 18—21, with Mt. xiii. 31—.3	65	176
" of Lu. xiii. 23—35, with portions of our Lord's discourses, as given by Matthew	66	180
" of Lu. xiv. 16—24, the parables of the great supper and of the marriage feast; Mt. xxii. 1—10	67	186
" of Lu. xvii. 23—.7, 30; and Mt. xxiv. 26, .7, 37—.9	72	213
" of Lu. xix. 12—27; Mt. xxv. 14—30	80	281
Passion week, Tuesday	83	279
" " Wednesday	84	288
Peter's denials, Times of	89	437
Prophecy on Mt. Olivet, Mt. xxiv. 1—44, &c.	86	358
Restoration of all Israel, Prophecies on	51	67
Reward in general, On the principle of	50	46
Seventy (The) and the twelve sent	60	148
Solomon's porch	56	124
'Suffer many things,' Mt. xvi. 21	50	46
Supper, Celebration of the last	87	408
Tabernacles, Feast of	54	89
Tabular view of Rev. xxi. 19, 20; ch. iv., and 1 Epistle of Peter	50	50
Temple (The) of Solomon	82	270
" The second	—	271
" of Herod	—	—
" The day of procession to the	81,2	258,72
" Time of cleansing the	83	279
Ten virgins, Parable of	86	345
Ten talents, "	—	—
Tradition of the elders	44	12
Transfiguration of Christ	51	66
'Which is the greatest?' &c., Mt. xviii. 1—22	52	79
Woe and blessing, Mt. xi. 21—.3, 25—.7; xiii. 16, .7; and Lu. x. 13—.5, 21—.4	60	149

INDEX TO THE GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICES.

	Sect.	Page
Akra	92	481
Arimathæa	—	479
Bethany	58	134
Bezetha	92	481
Cæsarea Philippi	50	44
Cedron, Kidron	87	407
Dalmanutha	47	30
Emmaus	94	496
Endor	51	65
Ephraim	58	134
Eshtaolon, Plain of	51	65
Gethsemane	88	422
Jericho	78	241
Jerusalem	55	118
"	92	479
Jordan, Beyond	57	125
Kishon	51	65
Magdala, El Meydel	47	30
Moriah	92	481
Mount Tabor	51	62
Nain, Nein	51	65
Olivet, Mount	86	354
Ophel	92	481
Sidon, or Zidon (Saida)	45	21
Siloam, Pool of	55	118
" Subterranean Communication between the Fountain of the Virgin and Pool of	—	119
" Village of	—	129
Tabor, Mount	51	62
Tyre, Tyrus (Sur or Soor)	45	16
Zion	92	481

SUFFER THE WORD OF EXHORTATION:—Hcb. xiii. 22.

THOU ART MY GOD, AND I WILL PRAISE THEE: THOU ART MY GOD, I WILL EXALT THEE.—Psa. cxviii. 28.

O GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD; FOR HE IS GOOD: FOR HIS MERCY ENDURETH FOR EVER.—Psa. cxviii. 29.

PART FOURTH.

MATTHEW CHAP XV.—XXVII. MARK VII.—XV LUKE IX. 18—XXIII.
JOHN VII.—XIX.

ARRANGED IN THE ORDER OF TIME

COMPREHENDING THE SPACE OF TWELVE MONTHS; VIZ.,—FROM THE END OF THE SECOND YEAR OF THE MINISTRY OF JESUS CHRIST, U.C. 782, A.D. 29 (INEUNTE), TO THE END OF THE THIRD YEAR OF THE SAME, U.C. 783, A.D. 30 (INEUNTEM).

THE LIP OF TRUTH SHALL BE ESTABLISHED FOR EVER: BUT A LYING TONGUE IS BUT FOR A MOMENT.—Prov. xii. 19.

BE-IT IS IN THE HEART OF THEM THAT IMAGINE EVIL: BUT TO THE COUNSELLORS OF PEACE IS JOY.—Prov. xii. 20.

PART FOURTH.

MATTHEW CHAP XV.—XXVII. MARK VII.—XV. LUKE IX. 18—XXIII. JOHN VII.—XIX.

ARRANGED IN THE ORDER OF TIME.

Comprehending the Space of Twelve Months; viz.,—from the End of the Second Year of the Ministry of Jesus Christ, U. C. 782, A. D. 29 (Ineunte), to the End of the Third Year of the same, U. C. 783, A. D. 30 (Ineuntem).

SECTION 44.—No. 44, (G. 1.)—Lesson 43.*—JESUS DEFENDS HIS DISCIPLES AGAINST THE COMPLAINTS OF THE PHARISEES, THAT THEY DID NOT OBSERVE THE TRADITION OF THE ELDERS IN WASHING THEIR HANDS BEFORE EATING BREAD.† Matt. xv. 1—20. Mark vii. 1—23.—AT CAPERNAUM.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. xv. 1. Mk. vii. 1. Scribes and Pharisees of Jerusalem come to Jesus.

——— vii. 2—4. Seeing some of his disciples eat with hands not ceremonially clean, they find fault. The Pharisees, and the Jews generally, observing the tradition of the elders, wash oft before they eat. They also wash upon returning from market, and are very particular with regard to the washing of vessels, tables, &c., affecting a scrupulous sanctity in their eating and drinking.

— xv. 2. — vii. 5. They ask Jesus, 'Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders?'

— xv. 3. ——— Jesus answers their question by asking another, 'Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God by your tradition?'

— xv. 4—6. — vii. 9—13. It is to be remembered, that they were especially disobedient to the Father's commandment, even that they should believe in Him whom he hath sent. But, not only was their heavenly Father dishonoured, in their not honouring the Son; this, their great sin, had its counterpart in the earthly relationship; they allowing a son to alienate from the parent that which God had directed to be given for the parent's benefit. Thus they allowed the child most effectually to curse his parents, and that in the form of a vow to God; who has expressly commanded honour to parents, and forbid the child to curse them under pain of death.

— xv. 7—9. — vii. 6, 7. Our Lord, to the testimony of Moses, adds that of the prophets: He quotes Is. xxix. 13, to shew that mere formal worship is dishonouring to God; and that rites prescribed by human authority, and put in the place of the Divine teaching, are vain—are, in the sight of God, a breach of the third commandment. This was the case of the Pharisees; laying aside the commandment of God, which requires cleanness of heart, they devoted themselves to external purifications.

Mt. xv. 10, .1. Mk. vii. 14, .5 This trust in ceremonial religion is that against which the people require to be especially warned. Jesus does not intrust the correction of the evil, to either lay or ecclesiastical authority, apart from the people themselves; but calling the multitude, he bids them both . . hear and understand his words. He speaks to them a parable, respecting what defileth: in which he teaches that we ought to be more attentive to what we say than to what we eat; that it is more our duty to watch against injuring the souls of others, by what proceeds out of our mouths, than against injuring ourselves by what goes into them.

— xv. 12. ——— The disciples report that the Pharisees are offended because of the saying; respecting what defileth a man.

— xv. 13, .4. ——— Jesus intimates that he is not sorry to lose such followers. He does not desire those for disciples who are not of the Father's planting, and advises to let them go, saying, 'The be blind leaders of the blind,' &c.

— xv. 15. — vii. 17. Jesus, having entered a house, Peter, and other disciples, request to be told the meaning of the parable, respecting what defileth a man.

— xv. 16—.8. — vii. 18—20. Our Lord, in reply, seems to intimate, that not to know that which is taught in this parable, is to be without understanding. He shews the absurdity of making holiness to consist in meats, the best of which go into defilement and corruption; but not so great defilement as that which comes out of the mouth of those whose hearts are fountains of impurity.

— xv. 19, 20. — vii. 21—.3. He adverts to the various evils which are opposed to the law of the ten commandments: on which see the 'Scripture Illustrations,' p. 16.

* The Lessons, as arranged, for the SYSTEM OF GRADUATED SIMULTANEOUS INSTRUCTION will be thus inserted in this volume.

† See ADDENDA, p. 11, 'Eating with unwashen hands.'

MATT. xv. 1—20.
[Ch. xiv. ℣ xlii. p. 323.]

1 Then came-to Jesus scribes and Pharisees, which were of Jerusalem,

MARK vii. 1—5, 9—13, 6—8, 14—23.
[Ch. vi. ℣ xlii. p. 323.]

"Then came-togetner unto him the Pha- 1 risees, and certain of-the scribes, which-came from Jerusalem. And when-they- 2 saw some of-his disciples eat bread with-defiled κοιναις, that is to say, with unwashen, hands, they-found-fault. For the 3 Pharisees, and all the Jews, except they-wash νιψωνται their hands oft πυγμη, eat not, holding κρατουντες the tradition of-the elders. And when they come from the- 4

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. vii. 1. then came together, &c.—Jesus had just before been deserted by many of his disciples, Jno. vi. 66, § 43, p. 334—these probably would spread an evil report of the doctrine of Christ, and encourage his old enemies, the Pharisees, to make a new attack—see before, Mk. iii. 22, § 31, p. 235.

from Jerusalem—From Jerusalem had also come those who spoke blasphemy, immediately before Jesus began to speak in parables, ch. iii. 22, § 26.—the Jerusalem Jews had previously manifested great hostility against him—see Jno. v. 18, § 23, p. 177.

2. defiled—Jerusalem had been warned of the inefficacy of external washing to take away sin: 'For though thou wash thee with nitre, and take thee much sope, yet thine iniquity is marked before me, saith the Lord GOD,' Je. ii. 22—and of the necessity of having the heart washed from wickedness and of being purified from vain thoughts: 'O Jerusalem, wash thine heart from wickedness, that thou mayest be saved. How long shall thy vain thoughts lodge within thee?' iv. 14—The Baptist directed attention to the better baptism, which the prophets had required, and which Christ was to minister, Lu. iii. 16, § 7, p. 51—but the Jews still continued their quibbling about the 'divers washings, and carnal ordinances,' which had been 'imposed on them until the time of reformation,' He. ix. 10—comp. Jno. iii. 25, § 13, p. 89, 'Then there arose a question between some of John's disciples and the Jews about purifying'—Jesus led his disciples out of the way of such disputes, iv. 1—3, § 13, p. 91.

3. wash—'There is a generation that are pure in their own eyes, and yet is not washed from their filthiness,' Pr. xxx. 12—let us each hear the exhortation, 'Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil,' &c., Is. i. 16—and, with the psalmist, resolve, saying, 'I will wash mine hands in innocency: so will I compass thine altar, O LORD,' Ps. xxvi. 6—and let our prayer be accordingly, 'Wash me throughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin.' 'Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean: wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow,' li. 2, 7.

tradition of the elders—Paul, before his conversion, being a Pharisee, was exceedingly zealous of the traditions of his fathers: 'And profited in the Jews' religion above many my equals in mine own nation, being more exceedingly zealous of the traditions of my fathers,' Ga. i. 14—he warns equally against heathen philosophy and Jewish superstition, saying, 'Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments [Marg., or, elements] of the world, and not after Christ,' Col. ii. 8—and Peter contemplates the redemption by Christ, as delivering from the vain conversation received by tradition from the fathers: 'Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers; 19, but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot,' 1 Pe. i. 18, 19—The things which are to be held fast by Christians, are not the traditions of men, but those that have been given to us of God: 'Therefore, brethren, stand fast, and hold the traditions which ye have been taught, whether by word, or our epistle,' 2 Th. ii. 15—and again, referring to what he had written in the first epistle, Paul says, 'Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not after the tradition which he received of us,' iii. 6—the tradition referred to, was that which directed that they should, with quietness, work, and eat their own bread, following in this important respect apostolic example—see 1 Th. iv. 11, 12.

elders—from the words of Moses, there seemed to be encouragement for placing considerable confidence in the report of the elders: 'Ask thy father, and he

NOTES.

Mk. vii. 1. Pharisees. See § 7, p. 56, ADDENDA, 'Pharisees;' and on MT. xvi. 1, § 47, p. 28, 'SCR. Illus.'

Scribes. Not a sect, but an order of men; probably Levites, who were devoted to letters and public teaching; while the priests officiated at the sacrifices—see § 25, p. 198, ADDENDA, 'Scribes.' These emissaries from the chief priests and rulers of the people, seem to have followed our Lord from place to place, laying snares for him, by proposing questions, and provoking him to speak so as that they might have matter of accusation against him.

2. Unwashen, &c. It does not appear that their hands were actually unclean, but only that they were not ceremonially washed according to the tradition of the elders.

The disciples, it is to be observed, were not found fault with for a mere impropriety, but for the omission of what the Pharisees accounted a religious duty. Like those generally who are destitute of spiritual religion, their attention was occupied with external rites, for which there is little or no authority in the word of God.

3. All the Jews. i.e., the great body of the people; all those who observed the traditions; for the Sadducees and a few others are said to have rejected this custom.

Holding, κρατουντες, 'carefully adhering to, and observing;' literally, 'holding fast in mind.' So at ver. 8, p. 7, and 2 Th. ii. 15, 'Therefore, brethren, stand fast, and hold the traditions,' &c.

The tradition of the elders. Tradition means something transferred from one to another by memory; some precept or custom not commanded in the written law, but which they held themselves bound to observe.—See ADDENDA, p. 11, 'The tradition of the elders.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. vii. 1—4. Let us be more desirous of inward purity for ourselves, than prone to find fault with others for their want of ceremonial observances.

Men who are destitute of saving grace may yet be very zealous for, and diligent in, the use of outward religious forms, according to the tradition of the elders.

MATT xv 2 3.

saying,
2 Why do thy disciples transgress παραβαίνουσι the tradition παράδοσιν of the elders πρεσβυτέρων?
for they wash not their hands
when they eat bread.

3 But he answered and-said unto them,
Why do ye also transgress the commandment ἐντολὴν of God by your tradition?[a]

MARK vii. 5, 9.

market, except they wash βαπτίσωνται, they eat not. And many other things there be, which they have received to hold, as the washing βαπτισμοὺς of cups, and pots, brasen vessels, and of tables κλινῶν
Then the Pharisees and scribes 5 asked him,[b]
Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders, but eat bread
with unwashen hands?
[For ver. 6, see p. 7.]
And he said unto them 9

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

will shew thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee,' De. xxxii. 7. . . . —but it is to be considered, that the Father to whom we are to address ourselves, is God—'Is not he thy father that hath bought thee? hath he not made thee, and established thee?' ver. 6—and the things to be told are things reported in the Scriptures, respecting the ways of the Lord, and his working with Israel, ver. 7—15—There were seventy elders of Israel, upon whom the Lord put of the spirit which was upon Moses—'And it came to pass, when the spirit rested upon them, they prophesied, and did not cease,' Nu. xi. 16, 17, 25. . . . —elders ought to be instructors of others—but 'great men are not always wise: neither do the aged understand judgment,' Job xxxii. 7, 9—and the psalmist could say, 'I have more understanding than all my teachers: for thy testimonies are my meditation. I understand more than the ancients, because I keep thy precepts,' Ps. cxix. 99, 100.

Mt. xv. 3. why do ye also transgress, &c., by your tradition?—God only had a right, and not man, to add unto the word, De. xviii. 18, 19—see § 10, p. 72, ver. 45, ('Of the Prophet')—'Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish ought from it, that ye may keep the commandments of the LORD your God which I command you,' iv. 2—'What thing soever I command you, observe to do it: thou shalt not add thereto, nor diminish from it,' xii. 32—'Add thou not unto his words, lest he reprove thee, and thou be found a liar,' Pr. xxx. 6—This warning against adding to, or taking from, the words of God, is particularly given with regard to the Apocalypse, Re. xxii. 18, 19, 'For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book: 19, and if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book.'

commandment of God—see on ver. 4, p. 6—Jesus did not come to do that which he here reproaches the Pharisees for doing. He came, not to destroy, but to fulfil, the law and the prophets—see ch. v. 17—20, § 19, p. 123—Having shewn that we are saved, through the satisfaction to the law, by Christ, the apostle says, 'Do we then make void the law through faith? God forbid: yea, we establish the law.' Ro. iii. 31—the ministration of the law was changed, the ministration of the Spirit being substituted for the ministration of death, written and engraven upon tables of stone; but, except as being magnified and made honourable, the law itself was not changed—see 2 Co. iii.—the law, which was before written upon tables of stone, was now to be written by the finger of God upon the 'fleshy tables of the heart,' Je. xxxi. 31—4, ... He. viii. 8—13, 'Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah: 9, not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day when I took them by the hand to

NOTES.

4. Except they wash, &c. This is best explained by Grotius and Fritz., 'unless they wash themselves,' i.e. their bodies (namely, in opposition to the washing of the hands before mentioned); because after coming from a place of such public resort, and where people in a crowd must touch one another, they might unintentionally have touched some impure person or thing, and hence might require a more exact ablution than merely washing the hands. Here, however, we need not suppose immersion implied (that being never used except when some actual, and not possible pollution had been incurred); but merely ordinary washing.

[Have received to hold. The full sense is, 'which they had received [from their ancestors], that they may firmly keep them.' Ἔχειν, from ἔχω, a liquid measure holding a pint and a half. This word is frequent in the later writers, and is from the Latin Sextus. Χαλκίων, copper or brazen vessels. Earthen vesse s are not mentioned, because those, if supposed to be polluted, were at once broken—see Le. xv. 12, 'And the vessel of earth, that he toucheth which hath the issue, shall be broken: and every vessel of wood shall be rinsed in water.']

Washing, &c. The word in the original is that from which our word baptism is derived—the outward washings in which the Pharisees prided themselves, to the neglect of inward purity. Their ceremonial washings extended, not merely to the person, but to pots, cups, &c. Yet it is to be doubted whether they exceeded the presumption of the modern Pharisees, who pretend to do that with their water baptism which the Scriptures declare can only be done by God; that is, to constitute children of men the children of God and heirs of eternal life.

Mt. xv. 2. They wash not their hands. The custom of washing their hands before meals was so strictly commanded the Jews at this time, that, to neglect it, was to be held guilty of a heavy and capital crime 'He that takes meat,' says Rabbi Akiba, 'with unwashed hands, is worthy of death.' It is said he himself perished by washing his hands, in preference to drinking the water provided for him in prison, when a part of it was casually spilt.

3. Why do ye also transgress, &c. Christ here tears up the very foundation on which their whole reasoning was erected, and shews by a manifest example, how tradition is often at variance with the Divine laws.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mt. xv. 2, 3. We are not to take our religion upon trust from tradition; but to examine, by the word of God, what we are taught by men; and we are to beware of allowing human teaching to subvert Divine authority.]

[Mk. vii. 5, 9. Those who are the most religious in man's esteem, may, like the Pharisees, be the systematic opposers of the truth of God, both in preaching and in practice.]

THE LORD OF HOSTS, . . . IS WONDERFUL IN COUNSEL, AND EXCELLENT IN WORKING.—Isaiah xxviii. 29.
THE WORD OF THE LORD IS RIGHT; AND ALL HIS WORKS ARE DONE IN TRUTH.—Psalm xxxiii. 4.

Matt. xv. 4—6.	Mark vii. 10, .1.
	[c]Full-well ye-reject ἀθετεῖτε the com mandment of God, that ye-may-keep τηρήσητε your-own tradition.[d]
4 . [d]For God commanded, saying,	For Moses said, 10
Honour thy father and mother:	Honour thy father and thy mother;
and, He that-curseth κακολογων	and, Whoso curseth κακολογων
father or mother, let-him-die the-death	father or mother, let-him-die the-death
θανατῳ τελευτατω.	θανατῳ τελευτατω:
5 But ye say, Whosoever shall-say to his	but ye say, If a-man shall-say to his- 11
father or his mother,[e]	father or mother,
It is a-gift,	[e]It is Corban, that is to say, a-gift, by-whatsoever thou-mightest-be-profited	by-whatsoever thou-mightest-be-profited
by me;	by me;[f]
6 [f]and honour not his father or his mother,
he shall be free.	he shall be free.
Thus have-ye-made- the commandment of God -of-none-effect ηκυρωσατε by your tradition.[g]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

lead them out of the land of Egypt; because they continued not in my covenant, and I regarded them not, saith the Lord. 10, For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts: and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people: 11, and they shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest. 12, For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more. 13, In that he saith, A new covenant, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away'—see also ch. x. 16.

4. Honour thy father and mother—The fifth commandment, in the observance of which, continuance and prosperity in the land were promised to the children of Israel, De. v. 16—The honour required, is not honour in word only, but in deed and in truth; being willing to sacrifice what was necessary for their advantage or good name:—what was contributed for the support of a parent was not to be given grudgingly, but in expression of esteem. The word 'honour' is thought to be used in reference to temporal support—'Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honour, especially they who labour in the word and doctrine,' 1 Ti. v. 17.

He that curseth, &c.—'He that curseth his father, or his mother, shall surely be put to death,' Ex. xxi. 17—see as to the stubborn and rebellious son, De. xxi. 18—21, 'If a man have a stubborn and rebellious son, which will not obey the voice of his father, or the voice of his mother, and that, when they have chastened him, will not hearken unto them: 19, then shall his father and his mother lay hold on him, and bring him out unto the elders of his city, and unto the gate of his place; 20, and they shall say unto the elders of his city, This our son is stubborn and rebellious, he will not obey our voice; he is a glutton, and a drunkard. 21, And all the men of his city shall stone him with stones, that he die: so shall thou put evil away from among you; and all Israel shall hear, and fear'—'Whoso curseth his father or his mother, his lamp shall be put out in obscure darkness,' Pr. xx. 20—see also xxx. 17, 'The eye that mocketh at his father, and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young eagles shall eat it.'

NOTES.

[Mk. vii. 9. Full well ye reject. καλῶς ἀθετεῖτε. The best commentators are agreed that this is to be taken as an ironical reproof. Thus the καλῶς corresponds to our Aptly; a use frequent in the classical writers. . . . To use the words of Mr. Greswell, 'irony, when in the mouth of superior virtue and wisdom,—when levelled against the opposite vice or folly, is dignified, though keen, rebuke; and instances of irony so employed by our Saviour himself, the account of his discourses in the Gospels (especially when speaking of his enemies, the scribes and Pharisees,) would supply in abundance.'—And see Introduction, on Mt. xv. 4—6; Mk. vii. 9—13, p. 3.]

Mt. xv. 4. For God commanded, &c. That is, in the fifth commandment, Ex. xx. 12, and xxi. 17.

Honour thy father and mother. Τίμα, כבד Heb., implies support. Thus St. Paul, 1 Ti. v. 17. So Mk. vii. 12 illustrates this text. And in this manner the best Jewish commentators explain Nu. xxiv. 11. So the Greeks, as Hierocles, Grotius; 'To honour parents is to make provision for them.' Jerusal. Targ. on Deut. xv. 4. According to the Jewish canons, a son is bound to afford his father meat, drink, and clothing, to lead him in and out, and to wash his hands and feet. Philo declares, 'children have nothing which is not their parents',' as having either received it from them, or having received from them the faculties by which they procure it; that, therefore, they can never recompense them, and are both inhuman and ungodly if they neglect to succour them.

[Curseth father or mother. Ex. xxi. 17; Le. xx. 9; Pr. xx. 20. The Greek word κακολογέω signifies not only to revile, and to speak with contempt and injury; but to slight and to set light by. Thus Exo. xxii. 7, 'they set light by father and mother.']

5. A gift, &c. Alienating, by an oath, to a pretended sacred use, that whereby a parent should be supported; after which the son, who had thus in effect cursed his father or his mother, was prevented from contributing to the parents' support, through a perverse interpretation of the words, 'Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths' This kind of swearing our Lord forbids, Mt. v. 33—7, § 19. p. 126.

[It is a gift. (Corban, Mk. vii. 11.) We must take

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

10 ver. Jesus did not come to make void the commandments of God, as the Pharisees had done by their traditions: he recognises the ten commandments, as here he does the first of the second table of the law, 'Honour thy father and thy mother:' which in its highest sense embraces the first table.

11—3 ver. God hates robbery for a burnt-offering, and will not accept as a gift that which is not ours to give; and far less will he accept of that which is given out of a desire to injure those he hath commanded us to cherish.

[Men may receive the commandment in form, whilst they make it void by what they add thereto. Let us therefore examine, not only whether we have the truth, but whether we hold nothing inconsistent with the truth.]

WHO IS HE THAT SAITH, AND IT COMETH TO PASS, WHEN THE LORD COMMANDETH IT NOT?—Lam. iii. 37.

OUT OF THE MOUTH OF THE MOST HIGH PROCEDETH NOT EVIL AND GOOD.—Lam. iii. 38.

MATT. xv. 7—9.

7 ... ‡Ye hypocrites, well did-‧Esaias ‧prophesy of you,

8 saying, This people
draweth-nigh unto-me with their mouth, and honoureth me with-their lips ;
but their heart is far πορρω απεχει from me.
9 But in-vain they-do-worship me, teaching for doctrines the-commandments
of-men.‡

MARK vii. 12, .3 ; 6—8.

‡ And ye-suffer him no-more to-do ought 12 for-his father or his mother ; making-‧the 13 word of God ‧-of-none-effect ακυρουντες through-your tradition, which ye-have-delivered : and many such like-things παρομοια do-ye.‡ [For ver. 14, see p. 8.]

[Ver. 5, see p. 5.]
He answered and-said unto-them, 6

Well hath-‧Esaias ‧prophesied of you hypocrites,
as it-is-written, This people honoureth me with-their lips,

but their heart is-far πορρω απεχει from me.
Howbeit in-vain do-they-worship me, 7 teaching for doctrines the-commandments
of-men.

‡ For laying-aside αφεντες the command- 8
ment of God, ye-hold κρατειτε the tradition of men, as the-washing βαπτισμους of-pots

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. vii. 13. word of God—or 'commandment of God,' Mt. xv. 6.

of none effect—see ver. 3, p. 4—'It is time for thee, LORD, to work : for they have made void thy law,' Ps. cxix. 126.

Mt. xv. 7. hypocrites—they substituted an outward baptism, or washing, for the internal cleansing which God requires—see before, Mk. vii. 1—4, p. 4—they pretended a zeal for God and his law, whilst giving forth such judgments upon the law as were entirely inimical to the spirit of it, and exalting human authority above the Divine.

well did Esaias, &c.—Is. xxix. 13—the prophet had (ver. 9—12) been speaking of the manner in which men have dishonoured God by neglecting to listen to him, whilst unfolding to his children his purposes. The learned and the ignorant alike excuse themselves from the study of prophecy—' Wherefore the Lord said, Forasmuch as this people draw near me with their mouth, and with their lips do honour me, but have removed their heart far from me, and their fear toward me is taught by the precept of men : therefore, behold, I will proceed to do a marvellous work among this people, even a marvellous work and a wonder : for the wisdom of their wise men shall perish, and the understanding of their prudent men shall be hid,' &c., Is. xxix. 13, .4. It is as little as may be expected of a son, that he listen with respect to the voice of his father. This is the honour that our heavenly Father claims of his children, an honour which He seldom in truth receives—even when the word seems to be delighted in, the description may apply, ' And they come unto thee as the people cometh, and they sit before thee as my people, and they hear thy words, but they will not do them : for with their mouth they shew much love, but their heart goeth after their covetousness,' Eze. xxxiii. 31.

9. commandments of men—the word here translated 'commandments' is not the same as in ver. 3 and 6, pp. 5, 6, ' commandment of God,' and may be rendered ' canons or decisions of men,' the appointments of the elders.

NOTES.

δωρον, a gift, simply of something consecrated, or supposed to be consecrated, to pious uses, by a collusion between the son and the priests, so as to leave the father destitute. For (to use the words of Bp. Jebb, Sacr. Lit. p. 246,) ' when the Jews wished to evade the duty of supporting their parents, they made a pretended, or at least an eventual dedication of their property to the sacred treasury ; or rather a dedication of all that could or might have been given by them to their parents, saying, Be it Corban.' From that moment, though at liberty to expend such property on any selfish purpose, they were prohibited from bestowing it on their parents. Thus κορβαν, δωρον, might imply the notion of prohibition ; but it could not express it. On either interpretation, however, to say to a parent, Corban, &c., was a breach of the commandment, in spirit, if not in letter, and was virtually κακολογειν πατερα.—Bloomf.—and see Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxviii. pp. 454—.9.]

Mk. vii. 13. Tradition, which ye have delivered. Tradition seems to have here the same sense with judgment or decision. The elders, perhaps the sanhedrim, had delivered their judgment upon the matter ; and they claimed to be the authorized interpreters of the law, and to have the power of adding observances. But He, who is the Truth, warns us that it is very unsafe to follow even the elders in their making void the commandment of God, that they may keep their own tradition—see Mt. xv. 14, p. 9.

Mt. xv. 7. Ye hypocrites. An attempt to get rid of the duty of providing for needy parents, under an appearance of piety towards God, might well be called hypocrisy.

9. In vain they do worship me. Their attempts to worship are vain, or are not real worship—they are mere forms.

' Their fear [or worship] toward me is taught by the precept of men.'

[Doctrines the commandments of men. διδασκαλια ἀνθρωπων, institutions merely human. The word Ἐνταλμα occurs but thrice in the New Testament, viz., here, in the parallel place, Mk. vii. 7, and in Col. ii. 22—see next par. in all these places it is joined with ἀνθρωπων ; as it is also in the passage of the Septuagint here quoted. Moreover, in all those in vain ' who teaches 'for doctrines the commandments of men.' God must be allowed his own authority in his own house. It is awful presumption to profess to recognise the presence of God, while regarding as supreme the authority of man.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xv. 7—9. However men may deceive their fellowmen, they cannot deceive God— all things are open to the eye of him with whom we have to do.

Outward forms of worship, although good in their place, are of no avail, unless there be in truth a drawing near unto God.

[The profane swearer is not the alone breaker of the third commandment ; he takes 'the name of God in place of being acceptable service to the Most High, it is taking the name of the Lord in vain, when the worship is not of Divine, but of mere human appointment.

Matt. xv. 10—.3.	Mark vii. 14—.7.
	and cups: and many other such like things ye-do. [For ver. 9, see p. 5.]
	[Ver. 13, see p. 7.]
10 And he-called the multitude, and-said unto-them, Hear, and understand:	And when-he-had-called- all the people 14 unto him, he-said unto-them, Hearken-unto me every-one-of you, and understand:
11 not that which-goeth into the mouth defileth κοινοι a man; but that which-cometh-out of the mouth, this defileth a man	there-is nothing from-without a man, 15 that entering into him can defile καινωσαι him: but the-things which-come-out of him, those are they that-defile the man.
	If any-man have ears to-hear, let-him- 16 hear. And when he-was-entered into the- 17 house from the people,[k] 12 [k] Then came his disciples, and-said unto-him, Knowest-thou that the Pharisees were-offended εσκανδαλισθησαν, after-they- 13 heard this saying? But he answered and-said, Every plant, which my heavenly Father hath-not-planted, shall-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. vii. 14. hearken unto me—this was according to the appointment of the Father, who had said of 'that Prophet,' the Mediator of the new covenant, 'unto him ye shall hearken,' De. xviii. 15.

and understand—Pr. iv. 5—(see border)—God wills that his children should follow him in light, and not be like those who are led by the blind—see Mt. xv. 14, p. 9—' He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life,' Jno. viii. 12, § 55, p. 109.

16. if any man have ears, &c.—' He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches,'

Re. ii. 7, 11, .7, 29; iii. 6, 13, 22—' If any man have an ear, let him hear,' xiii. 9.

Mt. xv. 13. Every plant, &c.—Jno. xv. 1, 2, ' I am the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman. 2, Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away: and every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit,' § 87, p. 387—see as to the gathering out of the tares to be burned, Mt. xiii. 30—42, § 33, p. 260, and ver. 43.

my heavenly Father, &c.—' No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him,' Jno. vi. 44, § 43, p. 330.

NOTES.

places, the ἁγιάσματα are mentioned with evident disapprobation, and contrasted, by implication, with the precepts of God, which, in the New Testament, are never denominated ἁγιάσματα, but ἐντολαὶ. For these reasons, it is more suitable to the original to distinguish them.]

[The commandments of men here, are things enjoined by human authority, as is plain from these words of St. Paul, Col. ii. 21, .2, ' Touch not; taste not; handle not; which all are . . . the commandments and doctrines of men;' though they come from their cochmim, or wise men; though they be the traditions of the elders, or governors of the church; though they come from those scribes and Pharisees, which sit in the chair of Moses: yet, without a Divine institution, they are only 'commandments of men.']

11. Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth. This appears to be an answer to the question put by the Pharisees to Christ, ver. 2, ' Why do thy disciples transgress?' &c. If, in eating with unwashed hands, any particles of dust, &c., cleaving to the hands, might happen to be taken into the mouth with the food, this did not defile, did not constitute a man a sinner; for it is on this alone that the question hinges—Thy disciples eat with unwashed hands, therefore they are sinners, for they transgress the oral law; which, as we have seen, the Jews esteemed of equal authority to the written law. Our Lord intimates that any impurity that should enter along with the food cannot defile the man, because it in no wise affects his soul, but passes into the stomach, and secretary vessels, where it is purged, or the part of it fit for nutrition purified and separated from that which is unfit.

It is true a man may bring guilt upon himself by eating what is pernicious to his health, or by excess in the quantity of food or liquor; and a Jew might have done it, by presumptuously eating what was forbidden by the Mosaic law, which still continued in force: yet in all these instances, the pollution would arise from the wickedness of the heart, and be just proportionable to it, which is all our Lord asserts.

12. The Pharisees were offended, &c. They were offended, not less at the superiority of his arguments which put them to silence, than at the diminution of their reputation with the multitude, as ' blind guides,' who cavilled indeed at trifles, and were zealous for external purity, while by their captious questions and calumnies they were plotting against his reputation and his life—τὸν λόγον, this saying, viz., concerning traditions.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

10 ver. It is not merely for the professed instructors of the people, but also for the people themselves, for every one of them, to hear and understand the words of Christ, Mk. vii. 14, .5. All are to remember that the great fountain of evil is the human heart, and that nothing outward can have power to defile, unless we are betrayed by the enemy that lurks within. ' Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life,' Pr. iv. 23.

It is the right and the duty of every one who can listen to the words of Christ, to hear, know, and so obey his word, whatever may be the tradition of the elders to the contrary.

[Mt. xv. 12—.4. Let the labourers in the vineyard of the Lord follow his example, and not seek to secure to themselves followers, whose trust is in mere outward religion, and who cannot bear to have their hypocrisy exposed.]

[13 ver. It is of little avail that men are by their fellow-men planted in the church. If they are not the planting of the Lord, they shall be rooted up.]

[It is evident from these words of our Lord, that

Matt. xv. 14—.8.	Mark vii. 18—20.
14 be-rooted-up. Let-'them'-alone: they-be blind leaders-of-the-blind. And if the-blind lead the-blind, both shall-fall into the-ditch.
15 Then answered Peter and-said unto-him, Declare unto-us this parable.	his disciples asked him concerning the parable.
16 And Jesus said, Are ye also yet without-understanding?	And he-saith unto-them, Are ye so without-understanding also? 18
17 Do-'not'-ye'-yet'-understand, that whatsoever[t] entereth-in at the mouth	Do-ye-not-perceive that whatsoever [t]thing from-without entereth into the man, it-can not defile him;
goeth into the belly, and is-cast-out into the draught?	because it-entereth not into his heart, 19 but into the belly, and goeth-out into the draught, purging all meats?
18 [m] But those-things which-proceed-out of the mouth come-forth from the heart; and-they defile κοινοι the man.[n]	And he-said,[u] 20 That which-cometh-out of the man, that defileth κοινοι the man.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xv. 14. let them alone—leave them, refuse to follow them: the sheep are not to follow those who come among them, not to give life, but for a living—'a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers,' Jno. x. 5, &c., § 55, p. 114.

blind leaders, &c.—see a particular description of them, xxiii. 13—33, § 85, p. 315—one of the principal evidences of their blindness, was mistaking ceremonial washing for holiness, or making the latter dependent upon the former: 'Thou blind Pharisee, cleanse first that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside of them may be clean also,' xxiii. 26, § ib.—our Lord had before warned against following such guides, saying, 'Can the blind lead the blind? shall they not both fall into the ditch?' Lu. vi. 39, § 27, p. 209—'O my people, they which lead thee cause thee to err, and destroy the way of thy paths,' Is. iii. 12—It is, therefore, not the duty of the people implicitly to follow their leaders: 'For the leaders of this people cause them to err; and they that are led of them are destroyed,' Is. ix. 16—yea, even the Lord's professed 'watchmen are blind: they are all ignorant, . . . yea, they are greedy dogs which can never have enough, and they are shepherds that cannot understand: they all look to their own way, every one for his gain, from his quarter,' lvi. 10, 11—'A wonderful and horrible thing is committed in the land; the prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests bear rule by their means; and my people love to have it so: and what will ye do in the end thereof?' Je. v. 30, 31; Mal. ii. 7—9, 'The priest's lips should keep knowledge, and they should seek the law at his mouth: for he is the messenger of the Lord of hosts. 8, But ye are departed out of the way; ye have caused many to stumble at the law; ye have corrupted the covenant of Levi, saith the Lord of hosts. 9, Therefore have I also made you contemptible and base before all the people, according as ye have not kept my ways, but have been partial in the law.'

16. Are ye also yet without understanding?—'Whom shall he teach knowledge?—whom shall he make to understand doctrine?' Is. xxviii. 9, 10—'Do ye not yet understand,' &c., Matt. xvi. 9—11, § 45. 'For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God; and are become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat,' He. v. 12.

Mk. vii. 18. can not defile him, &c.—'For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost,' Rom. xiv. 17—'But meat commendeth us not to God: for neither, if we eat, are we the better; neither, if we eat not, are we the worse,' 1 Co. viii. 8—'Every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving: For it is sanctified by the word of God and prayer,' 1 Ti. iv. 4, 5—'Unto the pure all things are pure: but unto them that are defiled and unbelieving is nothing pure; but even their mind and conscience is defiled. They profess that they know God; but in works they deny him, being abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate,' Tit. i. 15, 16—'Whosoever eateth flesh and drinketh blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day. For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed. He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him,' Jno. vi. 54—56, § 58—'Whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord, unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body. For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep,' 1 Co. xi. 27—30.

NOTES.

Mt. xv. 14. Let them alone. Ἄφετε αὐτούς, Let them alone, have done with them; regard not what they say, or do, against me and my doctrine. The Pharisees were blind guides indeed, and deluded themselves, yet presuming to guide others to their own destruction, and that of their followers.

[15. Declare unto us this parable. The sense here is 'moral maxim, or weighty apophthegm.' It is not that Peter did not understand it (for it was by no means obscure, inasmuch that our Lord says, καὶ ὑμεῖς ἀσύνετοί ἐστε); but that his prejudices prevented his receiving it. Indeed he could scarcely believe his ears, that a distinction of meats availed not; and therefore asks an explanation.]—Bloomfield.

Peter, in the name of the disciples, (for Mk. vii. 17 says, οἱ μαθηταί,) asked the explanation of the saying, or sentence, in ver. 15—see Note, Mt. xiii. 3, § 32, p. 243.

17. Do not ye yet understand, &c. The meaning of this may be thus expressed: The food which is eaten does not affect the mind, and therefore cannot pollute it: the doctrine of the Pharisees, that neglect of washing defiles a man, or makes him a sinner, cannot be true.

18—20. Here our Lord proceeds to say what does manifestation of the truth, and by refraining from countenancing them in their evil.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

the enjoyment of the outward rites of religion is not to be mistaken for the planting of God: for, so far from the Pharisees being defective as to that, they in carnal ordinances superabounded: and particularly in washings or baptisms. This occasioned the present remarks of our Lord, which certainly are not in favour of the idea that men are regenerated, either in infancy, or at any other age, by water baptism. This kind of doctrine appears to be that which our Lord characterizes as blindness. Outward washing does not make the heart clean; but the heart being made clean, outward purity will follow in consequence. 'Thou blind Pharisee, cleanse first,' &c., Mt. xxiii. 26, § 85—see 'Scrip Illus.,' supra.]

Mt. xv. 13, 14. The disciples of Jesus are not commanded to punish false teachers, otherwise than by endeavouring to root up their false doctrines, by the

[Let us not seek to make those who are themselves ignorant of God, the spiritual guides of others. Though they should profess subjection to the law of God, and be as strict in their religious observances as were the Pharisees, still they may be only 'blind leaders of the blind,' leading others to destruction.]

Men will not, in the judgment of God, be excused because of the blindness of their guides. We cannot throw our responsibility upon our teachers. Each must answer for himself to God.

15 ver. Let us not merely hear the words, but seek to understand their import.

[18 ver. Let us be careful how and what we speak, that it be good to the use of edifying; and, still more,

MATT. xv. 19.	MARK vii. 21, .2.
19 For out-of the heart proceed evil thoughts διαλογισμοι, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, °false-witness,ᵖ blasphemies:	°For from-within, out-of the heart of men, 21 proceed evil thoughts διαλογισμοι, adulteries, fornications, murders, thefts, covetousness, wickedness πονηριαι,° 22 ᵖ deceit, lasciviousness, an-evil eye, blasphemy, pride ὑπερηφανια, foolishness αφροσυνη:

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS

ther, if we eat, are we the better; neither, if we eat not, are we the worse,' 1 Co. viii. 8—'Wherefore if ye be dead with Christ from the rudiments of the world, why, as though living in the world, are ye subject to ordinances. . . . , after the commandments and doctrines of men?' Col. ii. 20—2.

Mk. vii. 21. from within, out of the heart, &c.—'And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually,' Ge. vi. 5; Ps. xiv. 1—3. 'The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. They are corrupt, they have done abominable works, there is none that doeth good. 2, The LORD looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, and seek God. 3, They are all gone aside, they are all together become filthy: there is none that doeth good, no, not one'—Those who were more particularly the subject of discourse, had come from Jerusalem, whose destruction was fast hastening on, as predicted, Je. iv. 11—3. 'At that time shall it be said to this people and to Jerusalem, A dry wind of the high places in the wilderness toward the daughter of my people, not to fan, nor to cleanse, 12, even a full wind from those places shall come unto me: now also will I give sentence against them. 13. Behold, he shall come up as clouds, and his chariots shall be as a whirlwind: his horses are swifter than eagles. Woe unto us! for we are spoiled'—Now the voice to that city was, 'O Jerusalem, wash thine heart from wickedness, that thou mayest be saved. How long shall thy vain thoughts lodge within thee?' ver. 14—for a paraphrase upon these words, and in illustration of the present subject, see Mt. xxiii., § 85, p. 312—that which is true of the human heart generally, was most true of Jerusalem, the heart of the Jewish state: 'The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it?' Je. xvii. 9—It may be observed that Jerusalem is the subject of the prophecy, both before and after, ver. 3, 19, &c.—Jerusalem is spoken of as the heart of the earth: 'Thus saith the Lord GOD; This is Jerusalem: I have set it in the midst of the nations and countries that are round about her,' Eze. v. 5—11.

Mt. xv. 19. evil thoughts—Such false reasonings as those whereby the Pharisees had contrived to get rid of the obligation to obey the fifth commandment, Mk. vii. 9—13, pp. 5—7.

murders—Forbidden by the sixth commandment, 'Thou shalt not kill,' De. v. 17—in respect to which Jerusalem was emphatically guilty, Eze. xxii. 1—4, ... 'O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets,' &c., Mt. xxiii. 37, § 85, p. 320—'it cannot be that a prophet perish out of Jerusalem,' Lu. xiii. 33, § 66, p. 179.

adulteries, fornications—forbidden by the seventh, De. v. 18—in the breaking of which commandment Jerusalem was pre-eminent, Eze. xvi.

thefts—forbidden by the eighth commandment, De. v. 19—in this respect, also, Jerusalem was singularly guilty, Eze. xxii. 12, .3. . . . Mi. iii. 10—.2.

false witness—forbidden by the ninth commandment, De. v. 20—in this, also, Jerusalem was most guilty, not only against man, Eze. xxii. 9. . . . , but against God, Mal. iii. 13, 4. . . . —sought for against Jesus 'by the chief priests, and elders, and all the council,' Mt. xxvi. 59, 60, § 89.

Mk. vii. 22. covetousness—forbidden by the tenth commandment, De. v. 21—covetousness, or, in other words, a desire for what is forbidden of God, may be regarded as the fountain of wickedness, deceit, and lasciviousness; it polluteth all it toucheth—see the Lord's witness respecting the Jews, even after their return from Babylon, Hag. ii. 14, 'So is this people, and so is this nation before me, saith the LORD; and so is every work of their hands; and that which they offer there is unclean.'

an evil eye—this the Pharisees had, when they would have denied to our Lord's disciples the most common necessaries of life, upon the sabbath, Mt. xii. 1, 2, § 21, p. 188; Lu. vi. 7, § 25, p. 195; and Jno. v. § 23, p. 175.

blasphemy—see the third commandment, De. v. 11—in this respect the Jerusalem scribes were emphatically guilty, Mk. iii. 22—30, § 31, pp. 235—.7.

pride—'The wicked, through the pride of his countenance, will not seek after God: God is not in all his thoughts,' Ps. x. 4—The second commandment threatens punishment upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate the Lord, De. v. 9—but this was the case of Jerusalem according to the testimony of the True Witness, 'He that hateth me hateth my Father also. If I had not done among them the works which none other man did, they had not had sin: but now have they both seen and hated both me and my Father,' Jno. xv. 23, .4, § 87, p. 391—the prevailing character of those who thus hated God, and that which made them reject the meek and lowly Jesus, was pride—see the description of them, Mt. xxiii. 1—12, § 85, p. 312.

foolishness—the character of the breaker of the first commandment, De. v. 6, 7—'The fool hath said in defile the man; namely, evil words, as emanating from corrupt hearts—comp. Ja. iii. 6—(see border.)

NOTES.

19. Evil thoughts, διαλογισμοι πονηροι, or, 'reasonings,' 'wicked dialogues.'

Blasphemies. The verb βλασφημεω, when applied to men, signifies 'to speak INJURIOUSLY of their persons, characters, &c.;' and when to God, 'to speak INJURIOUSLY of HIS nature, works, &c.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

let us be watchful over the operations of our own minds, that they be acceptable to Him who searcheth the heart.]

The various forms of outward evil in man are but the development of evil already existent in the heart; the true state of which is known to God.

[It is remarkable that Jerusalem, which the Lord had set in the midst of the nations, should so truly represent the human heart; should be so truly the heart of the earth, and voluntarily present to the Lord himself such evidences of her defilement. What marvellous grace that he should, for our redemption, have exposed himself to the concentrated malignity of that heart of the earth.]

[It is lamentable when the capital of a country becomes a fountain of evil, spreading abroad uncleanness in principle or practice; and, like Jerusalem, sending forth its emissaries to impede the free diffusion of truth in the provinces, to bind upon the people the traditions of the elders, and to lead them into a dependence upon carnal ordinances. When the heart of a community is thus exercised in alienating men from God, and from each other, its destruction, like that of the Jewish state, is to be looked for from the Saviour of men, the great Governor of nations.]

Let us take warning: the city which was called holy was conspicuous for defilement: whilst boasting of ceremonial baptisms, she was most abominable in the sight of Him who seeth the heart.

	MATT. xv. 20.	MARK vii 23.
20	these are the-things which-defile a man:	all these-evil-things come from-within, 23 and defile the man.
	? but to-eat with-unwashen hands defileth not a man.
	[Ver. 21, § xlv. p. 13.]	[Ver. 24, § xlv. p. 13.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

his heart. There is no God,' Ps. xiv. 1; liii. 1—'They are foolish: for they know not the way of the LORD, nor the judgment of their God,' Je. v. 4—such was the character of these blind guides, notwithstanding their parade of religious observances: thus accordingly are they addressed, 'Ye fools and blind,' &c., Mt. xxiii. 17, § 85, p. 316.

Thus in Mt. xv. 19, there is a recognition of the second table of the law, in a direct order, whilst in Mk. vii. 22 (latter half) there is a recognition of the first table in an inverse order. All Jerusalem's accumulated guilt might be traced up to a breach of the first commandment—to the foolishness of not taking the Lord alone to be her God: 'Woe to her that is filthy and polluted, to the oppressing city! She obeyed not the voice; she received not correction; she trusted not in the LORD; she drew not near to her God,' Zeph. iii. 1, 2—'THE FEAR OF THE LORD is THE BEGINNING OF WISDOM: AND THE KNOWLEDGE OF THE HOLY . . . UNDERSTANDING,' Pr. ix. 10.

ADDENDA.

ON THE QUESTION CONCERNING EATING WITH UNWASHEN HANDS.—Matthew xv. 1—20; Mark vii. 1—23.—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxviii. pp. 452—.63.

'In order to compare these accounts, the most convenient distribution of the narrative is, into what took place with the Pharisees and with the multitude, in public. (Mt. xv. 1—11, Mk. vii. 1—16,) and what with the disciples in private, (Mt. xv. 12—20, Mk. vii. 17—23.) The difficulty in reconciling them is much greater as concerns the former, than as concerns the latter: and with regard to each there is proof of one omission, at least, in St. Matthew, supplied by St. Mark: first, the immediate cause of the question of the Pharisees, (Mk. vii. 2;) and secondly, the renewal of the conversation in private, after the decision in public, when Jesus and the disciples were come into some house, (Mk. vii. 17;) neither of which things is specified, though both may be implied, in St. Matthew.

'With regard to this single omission, . . . it is sufficiently accounted for by considering to what it relates. The part in question is a prophetical denunciation, levelled against the Pharisees; whose persons, and not whose doctrines, are denoted by the figurative language which it employs. They had taken offence at the recent decision, (Mt. xv. 11, 12;) and the disciples, who reported this fact to their Master, apprehended some evil consequences from their resentment. The declaration subjoined was intended to reassure them; and predicts that in due time both the Pharisees and their followers should come to nothing. Let them alone, that is, leave them to themselves; and they will run blindly to their own destruction. They were no plantation of the Heavenly planting; and therefore should at last be rooted out. All this was certainly prophecy; but prophecy with a limited application; and like the longer and more particular denunciations which occur hereafter, (Lu. xi. 39—52, § 62; Mt. xxiii. § 85) personally regarded only the scribes and the Pharisees of that generation, and was to be fulfilled only in their personal history. It however, St. Mark wrote for Gentiles, or at least for persons unacquainted with Jewish sects and Jewish usages; (of which the explanation premised to the account is a sufficient proof;) it does not appear what particular interest in the fate of a sect or party, among the Jews, these were likely to take: nor consequently why such denunciations, having been already recorded by St. Matthew, might not be purposely omitted by St. Mark. Such seems to be the principle on which he acts everywhere else: for neither in his account of the ministry of John, nor in that of the ministry of Christ, do any of the penal denunciations with a special and a limited reference, which stand so prominently in St. Matthew, occur in St. Mark.

'The first part of our Lord's reply in St. Mark is the last in St. Matthew; and the last in St. Matthew is the first in St. Mark: that is, Mark vii. 6—8 answers to Matthew xv. 7—9; and Matthew xv. 3—6 answers to Mark vii. 9—13.'

Mr. Greswell prefers St. Matthew's order—'first, because the reply of our Lord, as recorded by him, is recorded continuously, and as one reply, without interruption from first to last.

'Secondly, because the terms of the first sentence of this reply are so clearly accommodated to the terms of the question just before, (ver. 3, 2,) that no one can doubt whether the former was immediately retorted upon the latter, or not.

'Thirdly, because, though the hypocrisy of the interrogators could not but be known to our Lord, and could not but be justly the subject of his reproaches, from the first; yet for the sake of those about him it might still be necessary openly to expose that hypocrisy, before he reproached them with it: in which case it was more likely that he would begin as St. Matthew represents him to do, than as St. Mark. . . .

'St. Mark, beginning his account of our Saviour's reply, ch. vii. 6, begins with the latter part of it first; and therefore what follows from ver. 9—13 either was repeated in the course of the reply, or is given by way of recapitulation. . . .

'To set aside the historical matter, Mk. vii. 3, 4, the question of the Pharisees, ver. 5, may still be correctly recorded, as well as Mt. xv. 2. . .

'The latter part of our Lord's reply, Mt. xv. 7—9, admits of being harmonized with Mark vii. 6—8.

'The account will then be concluded by Mk. vii. 8: for the allusion there to the washings of cups and quarts is critically in reference to what was premised at ver. 3, 4; and on that ground alone might justly be considered a part of what was actually said. It is more necessary to remark that, with ch. vii. 9, the Evangelist suspends the thread of our Lord's discourse; and when he resumes it at ver. 9, it is with the historical premonition, καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς; which might as well be rendered, He said, moreover, unto them, as, And he said to them; the first, a mode of speaking proper for a recapitulation, and the second, one proper for a continuation.

'We may suppose then that by the pause at ch vii. 8 the evangelist designed to imply that Jesus made an end of speaking there—and that what follows from ch. vii. 9 was intended to explain ch. vii. 8. . . .

'This part of St. Mark, then—viz., ch. vii. 9—13, must be harmonized with Matthew xv. 3—6, and the way to harmonize them is as follows:

	Matthew.	Mark.
I.	xv. 3	vii. 9
II.	〃 〃	〃 〃

which will ensue upon it with equal emphasis and propriety; for it is in the nature of reproof to dwell

CEASE YE FROM MAN, WHOSE BREATH IS IN HIS NOSTRILS: FOR WHEREIN IS HE TO BE ACCOUNTED OF?—Isa. ii. 22.

THE FRUIT OF RIGHTEOUSNESS IS SOWN IN PEACE OF THEM THAT MAKE PEACE.—James iii. 18.

ADDENDA—(continued.)

on the subject of animadversion, and to repeat the same thing in other words . . . .

	Matthew.	Mark.
III.	xv. 4, 5	vii. 10, .1
IV.	xv. 6	vii. 12, .3.

'With regard to the rest of the narrative, or Mt. xv. 10—20. Mk. vii. 14—23, there is little or no difficulty. The brief, idiomatic, and sententious form of Mt. xv. 10, .1, in the address to the multitude, may be considered a proof that these were our Saviour's very words; which St. Mark, for the sake of avoiding the ambiguity of the expressions, coming out of the mouth; or, going into the mouth, has changed for what they were intended to denote, coming out of a man; or, going into a man—coming out of the heart; or, going into the heart. It is possible, however, that our Lord might have first pronounced Mt. xv. 11, and then added Mk. vii. 15, .6. connecting them by a γάρ. Οὐδὲν γάρ ἐστιν ἔξωθεν . . . ἐκπορεύεται.

'The remainder of the conversation, that is, with the disciples in private, is most easily adjusted together. I will observe only that ἄφετε, Mt. xv. 15, is simply equivalent to εἶπεν, Mk. vii. 18, after which the two accounts proceed, as the Harmony will show in its proper place, almost in common to the end.'

'THE TRADITION OF THE ELDERS, p. 4.

'The word Παράδοσις, tradition, has occupied a most distinguished place both in the Jewish and Christian church. Man is ever fond of mending the work of his Master; and hence he has been led to put his finishing hand even to Divine revelation! This supplementary matter has been called Παράδοσις, from παραδίδωμι to deliver from hand to hand; to transmit—and hence the Latin term, tradition, from trado, to deliver, especially from one to another; to hand down. Among the Jews, tradition signifies what is also called the oral law, which they distinguish from the written law; this last contains the Mosaic precepts, as found in the Pentateuch; the former the traditions of the elders; i.e., traditions, or doctrines, that had been successively transferred from Moses through every generation, but not committed to writing. The Jews feign that when God gave Moses the written law, he gave him also the oral law, which is the interpretation of the former. This law Moses at first delivered to Aaron; then to his sons Eleazar and Ithamar—and after these, to the seventy-two elders, who were SIX of the most eminent persons out of each of the twelve tribes. These seventy-two elders, with Moses and Aaron, delivered it again to all the heads of the people; and afterwards to the congregation at large. They say also, that, before Moses died, he delivered this oral law, or system of traditions, to Joshua, and Joshua to the elders which succeeded him—THEY to the prophets, and the PROPHETS to each other, till it came to JEREMIAH, who delivered it to BARUCH his scribe, who repeated it to EZRA, who delivered it to the men of the great synagogue, the last of whom was SIMON the just. By Simon the just it was delivered to ANTIGONUS of Socho; by him to JOSE, the son of Jochanan; by him to JOSE, the son of Joezer; by him to NATHAN the Arbelite, and JOSHUA, the son of Perachiah; and by them to JUDAH, the son of Tabbai, and SIMEON, the son of Shatah; and by them to SHEMAIAH and ABTALION; and by them to HILLEL; and by Hillel to SIMEON his son, the same who took Christ in his arms when brought to the temple to be presented to the Lord; by Simeon it was delivered to GAMALIEL his son, the preceptor of St. Paul, who delivered it to SIMEON his son, and he to Rab JUDAH HAKKODESH his son, who compiled and digested it into the Book which is called the MISHNA; to explain which the two Talmuds, called the Jerusalem and Babylonish Talmuds, were compiled, which are also called the Gemara, or complement, because by these the oral law, or Mishna, is fully explained. The Jerusalem Talmud was completed about A D. 300; and the Babylonish Talmud about the beginning of the sixth century. These contain the whole of the traditions of the elders, and have so explained, or rather frittered away the words of God, that our Lord might well say, "Ye have made the commandment of God of none effect by your tradition." In what estimation they are held by the Jews, the following example will prove: "The words of the scribes are lovely beyond the words of the law; for the words of the law are weighty and light, but the words of the scribes are all weighty." '—A. Clarke.

SECTION 45.—(G. 2.)—[Lesson 44.]—JESUS VISITS THE QUARTER OF TYRE AND SIDON: HE HEALS THE DAUGHTER OF A SYRO-PHŒNICIAN WOMAN WHO WAS POSSESSED WITH A DEVIL. Matt. xv. 21—.8 Mark vii. 24—30.*

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. xv. 21. Jesus journeys north-westward, into that part of the land, possession of which had been retained by the Canaanites; and where were the once flourishing cities, Tyre and Sidon.

— xv. 22. He is met by a woman of Canaan, calling upon him as 'Lord,' and 'Son of David,' to have mercy upon her, by delivering her daughter from satanic influence.

— xv. 23. Jesus gives her no answer, and the disciples, wearied with her importunity, and perhaps desirous of not having public attention drawn to them by her means, request him to send her away.

— xv. 24 He answers the disciples, that he is 'not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel.'

— xv. 25. Mk. vii. 24, .5. Jesus, seeking at this time retirement, enters into a house, but he cannot be hid. The woman perseveres in her prayer, and falling at his feet, she worships him, saying, 'Lord, help me.'

Mt. xv.— Mk. vii. 26. In order to understand the words of Jesus and of the woman, it is proper to notice that she was of Canaan, and of that particular district in which Hiram, the friend of David, and of his son Solomon, had reigned; and that her language was the Greek, that in which our heavenly Father hath been pleased to give the bread of life to his children.

Mt. xv. 26. — vii. 27. Jesus says to her, 'Let the children first be filled;' intimating that there is an order in the bestowment of blessing, according to which her claim was far from being the first.

— xv. 27. — vii. 28. The woman accepts the terms proposed, and presses her suit upon the very consideration, from which a proud, unbelieving heart would have turned away.

— xv. 28. — vii. 29, 30. Jesus acknowledges her as being in the most important respect a daughter of Abraham, and grants her all her heart's desire. And upon her returning home she finds that it is even so as Jesus had said.

* 'There is no proof that Jesus ever visited in this quarter before. But now, probably, like Elijah in the days of Ahab, he might go in the direction of Zarephath, or Sarepta; for that is midway between Tyre and Sidon, and, according to Jerome, situated on the high road.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. pp. 354, .5.

No. 45. Jesus visits the quarter of Tyre and Sidon.

Matt. xv 21.	Mark vii. 24.
[Ver. 20, ♀ xliv. p. 11.]	[Ver. 23, ♀ xliv. p. 11.]
21 Then Jesus went thence, and-departed into the coasts-of-Tyre and Sidon.	And from-thence he-arose, and-went 24 into the borders-of-Tyre and Sidon, Jesus heals the daughter of a Syro-Phœnician woman.

Matt. xv. 22—8.*	Mark vii. 24—30.
22 "And, behold, a-woman of-Canaan came-out of the same coasts, and-cried unto-him, saying, Have-mercy-on me, O-Lord, thou-son of-David; my daughter is-'grievously'-κακως vexed-with-a-devil.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. vii. 24. Tyre—frequently referred to in the prophetic Scriptures—see Notes, infra, and Geog. Notice, pp. 16—20. Sidon—see Geog. Notice, pp. 21—23.

Mt. xv. 22. Canaan—the name of the country dwelt in by the descendants of the younger son of Ham, Ge. x. 6, 15—20—Ham exposed the nakedness of Noah, his father, ch. ix. 22—and, in consequence, the curse of the lowest servitude to his brethren came upon Canaan's posterity, ver. 24—7—When Abram was led into the land of promise, 'the Canaanite was then in the land,' ch. xii. 6—the whole of that land was promised to Abram: 'the Lord made a covenant with Abram, saying, Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates,' ch xv. 18—'I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and I will be their God,' ch. xvii. 8—possession was given of the land of Canaan to Israel, under Joshua, Jos. xxiv. 11—3—upon the condition of obedience to a covenant, 14—25—which they very soon broke, Jud. ii. 11—.5 iii. 1, 3—7, 'Now these are the nations which the Lord left, to prove Israel by them, 3, five lords of the Philistines, and all the Canaanites, and the Sidonians, and the Hivites that dwelt in mount Lebanon, from mount Baal-hermon unto the entering in of Hamath. 4, And they were to prove Israel by them, to know whether they would hearken unto the commandments of the Lord, which he commanded their fathers by the hand of Moses.' 5, And the children of Israel dwelt among the Canaanites, Hittites, and Amorites, and Perizzites, and Hivites, and Jebusites: 6, and they took their daughters to be their wives, and gave their daughters to their sons, and served their gods. 7, And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the Lord, and forgat the Lord their God, and served Baalim and the groves'—even in the days of Solomon, that part of Canaan, where Jesus now was, was reigned over by a prince, Hiram, king of Tyre, who had at least a nominal independence, 1 Ki. v. 1—12.

son of David—ch. ix. 27, § 36, p. 265; Lu. xviii. 38, § 78; Mt. xx. 30, [Mk. x. 47,] § 79—Hiram, the king of Tyre, had been 'a lover of David,' 2 Sa. v. 11; 1 Ki. v. 1—& had 'made a league' with Solomon, ver. 12—a type of the true Son of David, Ps. lxxii. . . .—who was in truth to build a house for the name of the Lord, 2 Sa. vii. 12—.6—typified by the temple which Hiram assisted Solomon to build, 1 Ki. ix. 10, .1; Eph. ii. 18—22.

grievously vexed—see also xvii. 15, § 51, p. 59, 'Lord, have mercy on my son: for he is lunatick, and sore vexed,' &c.

NOTES.

[Mt. xv. 21. Then Jesus went thence, &c. It may be remarked, that the ministry of Christ, as carried out by the apostles, was especially to the north-west of the land of Israel; and this course, which had been pointed out by the prophets, Is. xli. 1—3. . . . was indicated by the personal ministry of our Lord himself: he was now in the extreme north-west corner of the land, in 'the coasts of Tyre and Sidon.' There is no instance recorded of his proceeding in the opposite direction from Jerusalem during the whole period of his ministry.]

Tyre. Called by the Hebrews, Tor, now Soor, a colony of Sidon, see Is. xxiii. 12, built about 1700 years B.C. Tyre was celebrated for wealth, manufactures, commerce, and purple dye. Nebuchadnezzar besieged it thirteen years—see xxiii. 1—16, p. 16; Eze. xxvi. 2—13, p. 17; xxviii. 2—19. A new and strong city was built on the neighbouring island, which was taken and burnt by Alexander, 332 years B.C., having connected it with the main land by a causeway composed of materials taken from the old city, whereby was accomplished the prediction, xxvi. 12, 'They shall lay thy stones and thy timber and thy dust in the midst of the water.' Its utter destruction was fully foretold Isa. xxiii. 1, 6, 12, 15—8; Eze. xxvi. 13, 4; Zech. ix. 3, 4, p. 17; Amos i. 9, 10, 'Thus saith the Lord; For three transgressions of Tyrus, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because they delivered up the whole captivity to Edom, and remembered not the brotherly covenant: 10, but I will send a fire on the wall of Tyrus, which shall devour the palaces thereof.' See Joel iii. 4—8, p. 16. It was raised again, by the Romans, into a colony. Now, where it once stood, see Geog. Notice, p. 16. nothing but the wretched huts of a few fishermen are to be seen.—See Geog. Notice, pp. 16—20.

Sidon, now Saida, the most ancient and important maritime place in the old world; it is thought to have taken its name from Sidon, the first-born of Canaan. Homer highly extols its people as manufacturers. It is about twenty-five miles north of Tyre. During the crusades it rose into importance. It was captured by the seamen and troops under the command of Commodore Napier, on the 27th of September, 1840.—See Geog. Notice, pp. 21—.3.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mt. xv. 22. In the Canaanitish woman we are given an example of prevailing prayer. There was much to discourage her, she being supposed to be a woman of Canaan, a descendant of the race against whom the sentence of extirpation had gone forth: and yet there was promise, that 'he that remaineth, even he, shall be for our God, and he shall be as a governor in Judah, and Ekron as a Jebusite;' which promise was to be fulfilled, in connection with the coming of the King of Sion. The woman had thus the promised mercy of the Son of David to plead; and she does plead, as if she knew the promise delivered in the midst of threatening, Zech. ix. 2—9, p. (29). Utterly disclaiming any ground of trust in ourselves, let us have confidence in God, because of his promises.]

In her prayer she acknowledged Jesus to be both Lord and the Son of David, or the promised Messiah.

She prays for deliverance for her daughter; not so much from temporal evil, although that, of course, was included. It is for deliverance from spiritual evil that she supplicates the saving power of Jesus.

* 'St. Matthew, from ver. 22—4, inclusive, relates what took place in public; and ver. 25—8, what in private; whereas St. Mark, from first to last, confines himself to the latter only.'—Greswell, Vol. II. p. 355.

Matt. xv. 23—.5.	Mark vii. 25, .6
23 But he answered her not a-word λογον. And his disciples came and-besought him, saying, Send-her-away; for she 24 crieth after us. But he answered and said, I-am-not-sent but unto the lost sheep of-the-house of-Israel.[b]	[b]and entered into an house, and-would-have no-man know it: but he-could not be-hid. For a-certain-woman, whose 25 young-daughter had an-unclean spirit, heard of him, and-came and-fell at his feet:[c]
25 Then came she
[c]and-worshipped him, saying, Lord, help βοηθει me.[d]	[d]The woman was a-Greek, a-Syro-phe- 26 nician by-nation; and she-besought him

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xv. 23. Send her away, &c.—supposed to mean, 'grant her request'—the word is translated, 'put away,' Mt. i. 19, § 2, p. 13; and, 'let depart,' Lu. ii. 29, § 4, p. 25.

for she crieth, &c.—The motive here adduced was that which prevailed with the unjust judge, Lu. xviii. 1—8, § 73, p. 214—'he would not for a while: but afterward he said within himself, Though I fear not God, nor regard man; yet because this widow troubleth me, I will avenge her, lest by her continual coming she weary me,' ver. 4, 5.

24. lost sheep, &c.—see on Mt. ix. 36, 'as sheep having no shepherd,' § 39, p. 294; and on the instructions to the twelve, x. 6, § 46. p. 295, 'But go rather to the lost sheep.'

house of Israel—that which was principally called the 'house of Israel,' had been separated from the 'house of Judah' at the death of Solomon, 1 Ki. xii. —had been carried away captive by the Assyrians, 2 Ki. xviii. 9—12, 'And it came to pass in the fourth year of king Hezekiah, which was the seventh year of Hoshea son of Elah king of Israel, that Shalmaneser king of Assyria came up against Samaria, and besieged it. 10, And at the end of three years they took it: even in the sixth year of Hezekiah, that is the ninth year of Hoshea king of Israel, Samaria was taken. 11, And the king of Assyria did carry away Israel unto Assyria, and put them in Halah and in Habor by the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes: 12, because they obeyed not the voice of the Lord their God, but transgressed his covenant, and all that Moses the servant of the Lord commanded, and would not hear them, nor do them'—They were now lost among the Gentiles, as predicted by the prophets, Is. vii. 8, 9, . . . Ho. i. 6—9, . . . —In gospel times they were to be found as having become 'sons of the living God,' ver. 10—when Israel and Judah are again to be united under their One Head, ver. 11—The Lord promised to follow the lost people into the wilderness, and espouse them to himself according to the everlasting covenant, Ho. ii. . . . —see Ho. viii. 10—3, 'For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts: and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people: 11, and they shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest. 12, For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more. 13, In that he saith, A new covenant, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away'—Rev. vii. 2—4, 'And I saw another angel ascending from the east, having the seal of the living God: and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels, to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the sea, 3, saying, Hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads. 4, And I heard the number of them which were sealed: and there were sealed an hundred and forty and four thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel.'

Mk. vii. 26. a Greek—this seems to refer to the language in which she was accustomed to speak—

NOTES.

Mt. xv. 25. Worshipped him. Bowed down to him—did him reverence. To 'worship,' is to bow down with reverence; and so worship is, (1.) Civil reverence, given to one of authority or worth, Mt. ix. 18, § 36, p. 279; xviii. 26, § 53, p. 85; Lu. xiv. 10, § 97, p. 182. —(2.) Outward religious homage, given as an acknowledgment of Deity, Mt. iv. 10, § 8, p. 66; Da. iii. 5, 12, 4.—(3.) Inward religious honour, whereby one thinks of, trusts to, loves and fears God, because of his infinite excellency, mercy, power, wisdom, and the like, Jno. iv. 24, § 13, p. 94.

Lord, help me. A proper cry for a poor sinner who needs the help of the Lord Jesus.

Mk. vii. 26. The woman was a Greek. It does not follow that she was an idolatress, for in the neighbouring countries there were worshippers of the true God, as Cornelius, Lydia, and others.

A Syro-phenician. The first part of this, 'Syro,' is from the word Tyre, or Soor, after which city, the

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xv. 23. The woman was earnest in her prayer; she made an effort to come unto the Lord with her suit, and cried unto him, as having the object of her request deeply at heart.

She is persevering in prayer, notwithstanding seeming neglect. Jesus answered her not a word, and yet she continued to cry after him, even so as to annoy his disciples. We are not to suppose that the Lord intends to deny us, because he delays to give a favourable answer.

[24 ver. From the ground of our Lord's refusal to send this supposed Canaanitish woman away, let us be taught to persevere with hopeful confidence in prayer, knowing that it was unto us, who were lost, and who are found in these isles afar off, cast out unto the ends of the earth, that the Good Shepherd was more especially sent, even as had been foretold in the prophets, Je. xxxi. 10, p. (39). 'Hear the word of the Lord, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock.' Is. xli. 1—5, p. (41); xlv. 22—5, &c., p. (22).]

24, .5 ver. We may take encouragement in prayer from the consideration, that if this woman had such compassion upon her child, God, the Father of the fatherless, will not have less compassion upon his outcasts, the children of promise; the more especially as we are assured that this was the special object of the mission of the Son of God into our world.

MATT. xv. 26—.8.

26 But he answered and-said,
It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs.
27 And she said,
'Truth, Lord: yet the dogs f eat of the crumbs
g which fall from their masters' table.
28 Then Jesus answered and-said unto-her,
O woman, great is thy faith: be-it γενηθητω unto-thee even-as thou-wilt.A

MARK vii. 27—.9.

that he-would-cast-forth the devil out-of her daughter.
But Jesus said unto-her, 27
Let the children first be-filled:
for it is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it unto-the dogs.
And she answered and said unto-him,' 28
Yes, Lord: yet the dogs
f under the table eat of the children's crumbs.g

A And he-said unto-her, For δια this 29

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

thus the Greeks are contrasted with the Hebrews, 'And in those days, when the number of the disciples was multiplied, there arose a murmuring of the Grecians against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration,' Ac. vi. 1—and with the Barbarians, 'I am debtor both to the Greeks, and to the Barbarians; both to the wise, and to the unwise,' Ro. i. 14.

Mk. vii. 27. Let the children first be filled [or, fed]—there is an order in the Divine procedure with regard to the Gospel. It was first preached to the Jews: 'Now they which were scattered abroad upon the persecution that arose about Stephen travelled as far as Phenice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word to none but unto the Jews only,' Ac. xi. 19—'Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold, and said, It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken to you: but seeing ye put it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles,' xiii. 46—it then went forth to those Gentiles toward the north-west, among whom the twelve tribes were scattered abroad—see Ja. i. 1; 1 Pe. i. 1; and Rom. ix. 24—6. 'Even us, whom he hath called, not of the Jews only, but also of the Gentiles? 25, As he saith also in Osee [when speaking of Israel as lost among the Gentiles—see p. 14, " xv 24'], I will call them my people, which were not my people; and her beloved, which was not beloved. 26, And it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people; there shall they be called the children of the living God.'

When the people of promise have grown into the predicted multitude, of fulness of nations, Ge. xlviii. 19—see ver. 28, p. 16—when the people appointed unto the birthright. (1 Ch. v. 2)—'the children of God that were scattered abroad,' (Jno. xi. 52, § 58, p. 133)—are come in, deliverance will be brought forth to all the tribes of Israel; and also to the dispersed remnant of the house of Judah, Ro. xi. 25, 6—comp. Eze. xxxvii. . . . . The order is stated, Is. xi. 12, 'And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four,' &c.

the dogs—see on Mt. vii. 6, § 19, p. 138.

Mt. xv. 27. 'Truth'—this word is the same which is translated 'Yea,' Philem. 20. and 'surely,' and 'even so,' Rev. xxii. 20—'Even so, Lord: yet the dogs under the table eat,' &c.—it is thus that the prodigal son is willing to be restored to his father's house, 'I am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants,' Lu. xv. 19, § 68, p. 192—comp. with the case of Ephraim, Je. xxxi. 18—20. . . . . the children of promise will thus be most willing to partake of the grace of God, even as the common Gentiles.

the dogs eat of the crumbs, &c.—a similar idea is presented, Is. xliii. 19—21. . . . .—when the Lord will bestow the promised blessing upon his chosen people, it will not be to the exclusion of those tribes and families of men, who have been as beasts and birds of prey, dwelling amid desolations, and delighting in darkness: 20, 'The beast of the field shall honour me, the dragons and the owls: because I give waters in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert, to give drink to my people, my chosen. 21, This people have I formed for myself; they shall shew forth my praise'—so when the power of the anointing will be made to appear, xi. 1—6. . . . . 'The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid,' &c.—'They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain'—and why?—because of the abundance of blessing, of which they partake: 'for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the LORD, as the waters cover the sea,' ver. 7—9.

28. great is thy faith—there may be here an allusion to the first name of the father of the faithful, Abram, referred to in connection with the promise of blessing to all the families of the earth, Ge. xii. 1—3—'And I will make of thee a GREAT NATION, and I will bless thee, and make thy name GREAT; and thou shalt be a blessing: and I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed,' ver. 2, 3—This people, in whose blessing the nations whole country eastward to the desert, and northward to Asia Minor, was called Syria.—See GEOG. NOTICE, Vol. i. p. 117. 'PHŒNICIA' was the strip of land at the foot of Lebanon, and along the upper border of the Mediterranean Sea; that part of the country to which our Lord had now come.

NOTES.

Mt. xv. 26. To cast it to dogs. The Jews were accustomed to call all Gentiles dogs, while they boasted that they themselves were the children of God. Our Lord here adopted the language of the Jews when they spoke of the Gentiles, evidently with a view to strengthen his subsequent commendation.

28. Great is thy faith. That is, thy trust, confidence. The word here seems to include, also, the humility and perseverance manifested in pressing her suit. The daughter was healed then. On going home, she found her well and composed, Mk. vii. 30, p. 16.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mt. xv. 26, 7. The promised ample provision, for the creatures of God generally, cannot be expected until the children have come to their Father's table and have had their portion. As we therefore desire the deliverance of the whole creation, let us especially seek for blessing upon our own people.]

28 ver. To this woman, who, if of the house of Israel, was so lost as such, that she was called a woman of Canaan, 'a Greek, a Syro-phenician by nation,' Jesus granted her whole heart's desire, saying, 'O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee even as thou wilt.' Let us from this learn the value

MATT. xv. 28

And her daughter was-made-whole ἀπὸ from that very hour.ᵏ

[Ver. 29, ☞ xlvi. p 24.]

MARK vii. 29, 30.

saying go-thy-way; the devil is-gone-out of thy daughter.ᵏ

ᵏ And when-she-was-come to her house, 30 she-found the devil gone-out, and her daughter laid upon the bed.

[Ver. 31, ☞ xlvi. p. 24.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

generally are to partake, were to be made great through the blessing of faith, Ge. xlviii. 14—6. . . . —comp. He. xi. 21, 'By faith Jacob, when he was a dying, blessed both the sons of Joseph'—and when requested not to cross his hands in so doing, he refused, and said, 'I know it, my son, I know it: he also shall become a people, and he also shall be GREAT: but truly his younger brother shall be GREATER than he, and his seed shall become a multitude of nations,' Ge. xlviii. 19—This people, made great through the blessing of faith, were to become types of blessing, not only for the nations generally, but for Israel: 'And he blessed them that day, saying, In thee shall Israel bless, saying, God make thee as Ephraim and as Manasseh: and he set Ephraim before Manasseh,' ver. 20—soon may it be said unto this people, as prevailing in prayer, like their father Jacob, xxxii. 24—30. . . . and like this woman of Canaan, 'O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee even as thou wilt'—then will the people of the God of Abraham be indeed great, and by them will the Lord be 'greatly exalted,' Ps. xlvii. 9. . . .—and the more they are exalted, the more will they know that it is for blessing unto all as they have opportunity, according to the law of the kingdom, Lu. xxii. 24—30, ☞ 87, p. 275—'He that is greatest among you, let him be as the younger; and he that is chief, as he that doth serve,' ver. 26.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

and power of faith. Mere natural descent is nothing in comparison of this.

['Kind and honourable are those parents who bring their children to Jesus, and will not be denied his blessing. Graciously he travels to meet distressed sinners, and yet he may occasionally seem to deny himself to those for whom he has the strongest affection, and for whom he intends the most speedy deliverance, and most distinguished honours. Strong is the power of faith, when he animates and strengthens it under trials. It breaks through every discouragement, and lays hold on the most indirect hints of mercy. And great is the honour it gains in thus honouring Christ. And since this world is so full of miseries and wants, let us bring all to Christ, that, to his own glory, he may heal the former, and supply the latter.']

['His grace indeed makes a wonderful change even in the weakest believer. It gives the highest and most honourable views of Christ; the tenderest compassion to afflicted friends; earnest importunity in prayer for their relief; and great humility and patience under seeming insults and denials of help. And Jesus sometimes tries the faith of his people by great discouragements, even while he secretly upholds and animates it, till at last he crowns it with the full enjoyment of all that it can wish.']

'We should come with humility and faith. We can never think too little of ourselves, or too much of the mercy and faithfulness of Christ. It is the prayer of humility and faith which is answered.'

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICES.

Tyre, p. 12.

TYRE, TYRUS, (SUR, SOOR.)—SCRIPTURE NOTICES.

'. . . The strong city Tyre,' Jos. xix. 29. B.C. 1444.*

'And Hiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and cedar trees, and carpenters, and masons: and they built David an house,' 2 Sa. v. 11. B.C. 1013.—See 1 Ki. v. 1. B.C. 1014.

'. . . The strong hold of Tyre . . .'—2 Sa. xxiv. 7. B.C. 1017.

'And it came to pass at the end of twenty years, when Solomon had built the two houses, the house of the LORD, and the king's house, (Now Hiram the king of Tyre had furnished Solomon with cedar-trees and fir-trees, and with gold, according to all his desire,) that then king Solomon gave Hiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee,' 1 Ki. ix. 10, &c. 2 Ch. ii. B.C. 992.

'Yea, and what have ye to do with me, O Tyre, and Zidon, and all the coasts of Palestine? will ye render me a recompence? and if ye recompense me, swiftly and speedily will I return your recompence upon your own head; 5, because ye have taken my silver and my gold, and have carried into your temples my goodly pleasant things. 6, the children also of Judah and the children of Jerusalem have ye sold unto the Grecians, that ye might remove them far from their border. 7, Behold, I will raise them out of the place whither ye have sold them, and will return your recompence upon your own head: 8, and I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hand of the children of Judah, and they shall sell them to the Sabeans, to a people far off: for the LORD hath spoken it,' Joel iii. 4—8. B.C. 800.

'I will send a fire on the wall of Tyrus, which shall devour the palaces thereof,' Amos i. 10. B.C. 787.

'The burden of Tyre. Howl, ye ships of Tarshish; for it is laid waste, so that there is no house, no entering in: from the land of Chittim it is revealed to them. 2, Be still, ye inhabitants of the isle; thou whom the merchants of Zidon, that pass over the sea, have replenished. 3, And by great waters the seed of Sihor, the harvest of the river, is her revenue; and she is a mart of nations. 4, Be thou ashamed, O Zidon: for the sea hath spoken, even the strength of the sea, saying, I travail not, nor bring forth children, neither do I nourish up young men, nor bring up virgins. 5, As at the report concerning Egypt, so shall they be sorely pained at the report of Tyre. 6, Pass ye over to Tarshish; howl, ye inhabitants of the isle. 7, Is this your joyous city, whose antiquity is of ancient days? her own feet shall carry her afar off to sojourn. 8, Who hath taken this counsel against Tyre, the crowning city, whose merchants are princes, whose traffickers are the honourable of the earth? 9, The LORD of hosts hath purposed it, to stain the pride of all glory, and to bring into contempt all the honourable of the earth. 10, Pass through thy land as a river, O daughter of Tarshish: there is no more strength. 11, He stretched out his hand over the sea, he shook the kingdoms: the LORD hath given a commandment against the merchant city, to destroy the strong holds thereof. 12, And he said, Thou shalt no more rejoice, O thou oppressed virgin, daughter of Zidon: arise, pass over to Chittim; there also shalt thou have no rest. 13, Behold the land of the Chaldeans; this people was not, till the Assyrian founded it for them that dwell in the wilderness: they set up the towers thereof, they raised up the palaces thereof; and he brought it to ruin. 14, Howl, ye ships of Tarshish: for your strength is laid waste. 15, And it shall come to pass in that day, that Tyre shall be forgotten seventy years, according to the days of one king: after the end of seventy years shall Tyre sing as an harlot. 16, Take an harp, go about the city, thou harlot that

* These dates are supplied from the Oxford edition of the Bible, and will serve to give a chronological view of the historical and prophetical notices.

THE LORD IS NIGH UNTO ALL THEM THAT CALL UPON HIM, TO ALL THAT CALL UPON HIM IN TRUTH.—Psalm cxlv. 18
HE WILL FULFIL THE DESIRE OF THEM THAT FEAR HIM: HE ALSO WILL HEAR THEIR CRY, AND WILL SAVE THEM.—Psalm cxlv. 19.

hast been forgotten; make sweet melody, sing many songs, that thou mayest be remembered.

17, And it shall come to pass after the end of seventy years, that the LORD will visit Tyre, and she shall turn to her hire, and shall commit fornication with all the kingdoms of the world upon the face of the earth. 18, And her merchandise and her hire shall be holiness to the LORD: it shall not be treasured nor laid up: for her merchandise shall be for them that dwell before the LORD, to eat sufficiently, and for durable [Heb. old] clothing.' Is. xxiii. B.C. 715.

Eze. xxvi. 'And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, 2, Son of man, because that Tyrus hath said against Jerusalem, Aha, she is broken that was the gates of the people: she is turned unto me: I shall be replenished, now she is laid waste: 3, therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against thee, O Tyrus, and will cause many nations to come up against thee, as the sea causeth his waves to come up. 4, And they shall destroy the walls of Tyrus, and break down her towers: I will also scrape her dust from her, and make her like the top of a rock. 5, It shall be a place for the spreading of nets in the midst of the sea: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD: and it shall become a spoil to the nations. 6, And her daughters which are in the field shall be slain by the sword; and they shall know that I am the LORD. 7, For thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will bring upon Tyrus Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, a king of kings, from the north, with horses, and with chariots, and with horsemen, and companies, and much people. 8, He shall slay with the sword thy daughters in the field: and he shall make a fort against thee, and cast a mount against thee, and lift up the buckler against thee. 9, And he shall set engines of war against thy walls, and with his axes he shall break down thy towers. 10, By reason of the abundance of his horses their dust shall cover thee: thy walls shall shake at the noise of the horsemen, and of the wheels, and of the chariots, when he shall enter into thy gates, as men enter into a city wherein is made a breach. 11, With the hoofs of his horses shall he tread down all thy streets: he shall slay thy people by the sword, and thy strong garrisons shall go down to the ground. 12, And they shall make a spoil of thy riches, and make a prey of thy merchandise: and they shall break down thy walls, and destroy thy pleasant houses: and they shall lay thy stones and thy timber and thy dust in the midst of the water. 13, And I will cause the noise of thy songs to cease; and the sound of thy harps shall be no more heard. 14, And I will make thee like the top of a rock: thou shalt be a place to spread nets upon; thou shalt be built no more: for I the LORD have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD. 15, Thus saith the Lord GOD to Tyrus; Shall not the isles shake at the sound of thy fall, when the wounded cry, when the slaughter is made in the midst of thee? 16, Then all the princes of the sea shall come down from their thrones, and lay away their robes, and put off their broidered garments: they shall clothe themselves with trembling; they shall sit upon the ground, and shall tremble at every moment, and be astonished at thee. 17, And they shall take up a lamentation for thee, and say to thee, How art thou destroyed, that wast inhabited of seafaring men, the renowned city, which wast strong in the sea, she and her inhabitants, which cause their terror to be on all that haunt it! 18, Now shall the isles tremble in the day of thy fall; yea, the isles that are in the sea shall be troubled at thy departure. 19, For thus saith the Lord GOD; When I shall make thee a desolate city, like the cities that are not inhabited; when I shall bring up the deep upon thee, and great waters shall cover thee; 20, when I shall bring thee down with them that descend into the pit, with the people of old time, and shall set thee in the low parts of the earth, in places desolate of old, with them that go down to the pit, that thou be not inhabited; and I shall set glory in the land of the living; 21, I will make thee a terror, and thou shalt be no more: though thou be sought for, yet shalt thou never be found again, saith the Lord GOD.'* B.C. 588. —And see Je. xxv. 15—22. B. C. 606.—xlvii. 4, p. 21. B.C. 600.—xxvii. 3, 16. B.C. 598.

The prophecy of Ezekiel is worthy of deep consideration, especially to these, the inhabitants of Tarshish, mentioned the first among the merchants of Tyre, and whose sons are now the merchant princes of the earth. The utter impoverishment and desolation of Tyre, as it was found in the last century, 'like the top of a rock,' predicted Eze xxvi. 1—6. The commencement of her ruin by Nebuchadrezzar, and again, her being made 'like the top of a rock,' ver. 7—14. How her fall would astound the isles and princes of the sea, ver. 15—18. The deep to be brought up over her, ver. 19—21.

Chap. xxvii. Lamentation for Tyrus; her beautiful situation and extensive traffic called to remembrance, ver. 1—4. The countries contributing to the fitting out of her vessels, ver. 5—7; to the supplying her with mariners, and with pilots, &c., ver. 8, 9; and with military defence, ver. 10, 11. Tarshish, supposed to be western Europe, and particularly Britain, was her merchant, 'by reason of the multitude of all kind of riches,' with what are known to have been the mineral productions of Britain, 'with silver, iron, tin, and lead, they traded in thy fairs,' ver. 12. Her other merchants, both at home and abroad, are enumerated, ver. 13—24.

The contrast between her former state, when the ships of Tarshish did sing of her in her markets; and that state in which all shall stand aloof from her, bitterly lamenting, ver. 25—36.

Chap. xxviii. The prince of Tyrus, his wisdom and pride, ver. 1—5; his degradation and death, ver. 6—10; the extraordinary privileges he had enjoyed, as being let into hidden wisdom; as having been in 'Eden, the garden of God;' as having for his covering the most rich and varied treasure; as being himself 'the anointed cherub that covereth,' and as having been upon 'the holy mountain of God,' &c., ver. 11—5. His iniquity, violence, corruption, and destruction, ver. 16—9.

'And . . . the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, Son of man, Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon caused his army to serve a great service against Tyrus: every head was made bald, and every shoulder was peeled: yet had he no wages, nor his army, for Tyrus, for the service that he had served against it,' xxix. 17, 18. B.C. 572.

'They gave money also unto the masons, and to the carpenters [or, workmen]; and meat, and drink, and oil, unto them of Zidon, and to them of Tyre, to bring cedar-trees from Lebanon to the sea of Joppa, according to the grant that they had of Cyrus king of Persia,' Ezra iii. 7. B.C. 536.

'And Tyrus did build herself a strong hold, and heaped up silver as the dust, and fine gold as the mire of the streets. Behold, the Lord will cast her out, and he will smite her power in the sea; and she shall be devoured with fire,' Zec. ix. 3, 4. B.C. 487.

'There dwelt men of Tyre also therein, which brought fish, and all manner of ware, and sold on the sabbath unto the children of Judah, and in Jerusalem,' Ne. xiii. 16. B.C. 434.

'And the daughter of Tyre shall be there with a gift,' Ps. xlv. 12.

'They are confederate against thee . . . the Philistines with the inhabitants of Tyre . . .' lxxxiii. 5—7.

'. . . We . . . sailed into Syria, and landed at Tyre: for there the ship was to unlade her burden. 4, And finding disciples, we tarried there seven days: who said to Paul through the Spirit, that he should not go up to Jerusalem. 5, And when we had accomplished those days, we departed and went our way; and they all brought us on our way, with wives and children, till we were out of the city: and we kneeled down on the shore, and prayed. 6, And when we had taken our leave one of another, we took ship; and they returned home again,' Ac. xxi. 3—6. A.D. 60. (According to Greswell, A.D. 56.)

1 Ki. v. 1; Lu. vi. 17, § 27, p. 207; x. 13, § 60, p. 142; Ac. xii. 20 A.D. 44.—See also Scrip. Notices for Sidon, p. 21.

---

* For a minimum description of the glory and merchandise of Tyre, see Eze. xxvii.; also, ch. xxviii.

* About three hours south of Tyre is the far-famed rocky promontory, Album Promontorium, or Cape Blanco. It is a mighty mass of limestone, and ascends precipitously from the brink of the sea, whose restless breakers dash around its base. Our road to Tyre lay over this vast rock. The pass itself is called Palæ Tyrinrum, and is said to have been the work of Alexander the Great. . . . It looked very formidable as we began the ascent; but the way on the southern side was easy compared with what awaited us on the north ern. From the summit the view was magnificent, and we were enabled to catch our first distant glimpse of Tyre. After pausing a few minutes, we began the descent. The way is cut in stairs, steep and difficult. It must have been a work of immense labour and cost. Sometimes the path lay on the very brow of the rock, overlooking the sea from a frightful perpendicular height, guarded only by a low natural parapet of rock.'—A Pastor's Visit &c., p. 370.*

The plain of Soor, Sur, or Tyre, is narrow at first, but gradually spreads out, and presently has a wide extent, with a gentle rising of its eastern side into hills, with mountains towering beyond. The soil is rich and productive. As Soor is approached, the mountains and hills fall back, making a kind of amphitheatre, rising more or less as it approached the mountains, but forming a rich and valuable back country to this former mistress of the sea . . .

About an hour from Tyre, a little eastward (almost a quarter of an hour) from the shore, are some remarkable and ancient curiosities, consisting of fountains and reservoirs, originally intended to supply Tyre with fresh water by means of an aqueduct. They are called 'Ras el-'Ain,' 'the head of the fountain.' Around these fountains there is much verdure, and many fig-trees, and the whole scene is rural and refreshing. About one hour and a quarter to the south and east of 'Ras el-'Ain,' and not far from the village of Hunnanieh, in the road traveled by Dr. Robinson from Safed to Tyre, is one of the most remarkable monuments of antiquity yet remaining in the Holy Land. It is an immense sarcophagus of limestone, resting upon a lofty pedestal of large hewn stones, bearing the name of 'Kubir Hai'an,' 'Sepulchre of Hiram.' . . . the friend and ally of Solomon. The sarcophagus is twelve feet long by six feet in height and breadth, and the lid is three feet thick The present name may have come down by tradition; but more probably it is of mercly Muhammedan application, like so many other names of Hebrew renown attached to their weiys and monuments in every part of Palestine.—Robinson's Res. Vol. III. p. 386.

On the extreme end of a low sandy isthmus (which seems to have crawled out as far as it could, and gives the idea of having been the natural rather than an artificial approach,) stands the fallen city of Tyre, seeming, at a distance, to rest on the bosom of the sea. The only gate of the city is situated close by the water on the northern side, and consists of a low arch, scarcely high enough for a man on horseback.

'Tyre, now Sur, was built at some very remote period by a colony from Sidon—see p. 19. The prophet Isaiah, xxiii. 12, speaks of it as the "daughter of Zidon." The Tyrians had two cities under one name: the oldest being on the shore of the main land; and the other upon a small island, about one-third of a mile from the shore. Old Tyre, on the main land, was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar, as foretold by Ezekiel, ch. xxvi. p. 17; xxix. 17, 8. Then the capital seat of the Tyrians was removed to the island, and was strongly fortified: together they included nearly twenty miles, and probably one million of souls. The prophet Ezekiel fully informs us of the commerce of these ancient people. They were celebrated for ship-building; and were the principal traders to all the then known parts of the world, and exchanged their commodities for the tin and copper of the British Islands. Their city was the grand depot for the richest productions of all nations. Gold, precious stones, and spices, from Ethiopia and Arabia; emeralds, fine linen, and embroidery work, coral, agate, and wool of delicate hue and texture, from Damascus and other parts of Syria; chests of cedar wood, for imparting fragrance to splendid wearing apparel, from Mesopotamia and other bordering countries; wheat, honey, oil, and balm, as well as wrought iron, steel, and aromatic gums, from various quarters of Palestine; silver, iron, tin, and lead, from Tarshish, that is, from Spain; and these out western islands; brazen vessels; and cruelly oppressed slaves from Ionia in Greece; lambs, with other creatures used as provision, from Arabia; and ivory from various parts of the East. Such was the luxurious prodigality of the people, that they were generally clad in costly stuffs of the richest colours, and the far-famed Tyrian purple,—and even the very sails of their ships were of fine linen with embroidered work from Egypt,' Eze. xxvi.—xxviii.—Wade.

Dr. Robinson writes—'After breakfast I wandered out alone towards the south end of the peninsula, beyond the city, where all is now forsaken and lonely like the desert; and there bathed in the limpid waters of the sea, as they rolled into a small and beautiful sandy cove among the rocks. I continued my walk along the whole western and northern shore of the peninsula, musing upon the pomp and glory, the pride and full of ancient Tyre. Here was the little isle, once covered by her palaces and surrounded by her fleets; where the builders perfected her beauty in the midst of the seas, where her merchants were princes, and her traffickers the honourable of the earth; but, alas! "thy riches, and thy fairs, thy merchandise, thy mariners, and thy pilots, thy calkers, and the occupiers of thy merchandise, and all thy men of war, that are in thee, and in all [or, 'even with all'] thy company," Eze. xxvii. 27—where are they? Tyre has indeed become "like the top of a rock, a place to spread nets upon," xxvi. 14. The sole remaining tokens of her more ancient splendour lie strewed beneath the waves, in the midst of the sea; and the hovels which now nestle upon a portion of her site present no contradiction of the dread decree, "Thou shalt be built no more." Ibid.

'The peninsula on which Tyre, now Sur (or Soor), is built was originally a long narrow island, parallel to the shore, and distant from it less than half a mile . . . . . The isthmus was first created by the famous causeway of Alexander—see p. 18. . . . . At present the isthmus cannot be much less than half a mile in width; and although consisting of loose sand, yet it is covered with traces of the foundations of buildings, probably out of the middle ages. It lies between the shore and the more northern part of the island; so that the latter, as seen from the shore, seems to project further towards the south of the isthmus than towards the north, and forms here a larger bay; although the harbour, or rather road,

* 'We ascended the ladder of Tyre, or Ras-el-Abiad, as it is called. It is the promontory of a ridge of limestone rock, the only means of passing which is by a gallery cut in the perpendicular side overhanging the sea. The road is only a few feet wide; and as I did not want a repetition of my horse's vagaries when ascending Carmel, I got off, and walked for half a mile at the top, where there was no parapet, and overhanging a precipice of about 1000 feet directly into the sea. The early sunny morning, the freshness of the breeze, the height and boldness of the beetling cliff, had altogether a very exhilarati..g effect on my spirits. It gave me a thrilling sensation of delight to look down into the depth below, and watch the sparkling and transparent waters, as they seemed to gather up their strength, and heave their heavy waves against the rock, and then break and dash amongst the masses of its splintered fragments that lay in wild confusion at the bottom, and which, with their hues of emerald, were clearly distinguishable through many fathoms of the dark green waters. . . . . There was much in the scene in common with Flamborough Head. . . . I continued my way to overtake my baggage; and when I did so, I found it stopped on this narrow pass by having met a caravan of camels. The passing was a serious matter on so narrow a ledge; and after a great deal of squabbling, Omar had to lead his horses with the baggage on a little way where there was a bank, and to wait there until the camels passed. I stood with my horse close to the rock, and allowed the camels to pass outside; and so little room was there, that they grazed me as they did so.

'Lamartine entered the Holy Land by this route, and made the passage over this rocky pathway by night; he seems to have been greatly impressed by it, and says, "This route along the precipice, with all the varied, solemn, and sublime accompaniments of the night, the moon, and the abysses, continued for about an hour, one of the hours the most strongly imprinted on my memory that God has permitted me to contemplate on earth! a sublime portal for to-morrow's entry into the land of miracles."'—Ayre's Diary, May, 1842, pp. 86, 7.

in which vessels lie, is that on the north. The island, as such, is not far from a mile in length. The part which projects on the south beyond the isthmus is perhaps a quarter of a mile broad, and is rocky and uneven; it is now unoccupied, except as "a place to spread nets upon." The southern wall of the city runs across the island, nearly on a line with the south side of the isthmus. The present city stands upon the junction of the island and isthmus, and the eastern wall includes a portion of the latter. On the north and west, towards the sea, are no walls; or at least they are so far broken away and neglected as to be like none.

'The inner port or basin on the north was formerly enclosed by a wall, running from the north end of the island in a curve towards the main land. Various pieces and fragments of this wall yet remain, sufficient to mark its course; but the port itself is continually filling up more and more with sand, and now-a-days only boats can enter it. Indeed, our host informed us, that even within his own recollection the water covered the open place before his house, which at present is ten or twelve rods from the sea, and surrounded with buildings; while older men remember, that vessels formerly anchored where the shore now is.

'The western coast of the island is wholly a ledge of ragged, picturesque rocks, in some parts fifteen or twenty feet high; upon which the waves of the Mediterranean dash in ceaseless surges. The city lies only upon the eastern part of the island; between the houses and the western shore is a broad strip of open land, now given up to tillage. This shore is strewed from one end to the other, along the edge of the water and in the water, with columns of red and gray granite of various sizes, the only remaining monuments of the splendour of ancient Tyre. I mean, here, of course, Tyre before the Christian era; or at least before it fell under the Muhammedan dominion. At the N.W. point of the island forty or fifty such columns are thrown together in one heap beneath the waves. Along this coast, too, it is apparent that the continual washing of the waves has in many places had the effect to form layers of new rock, in which stones, bones, and fragments of pottery, are cemented as constituent parts.

'There are also occasional columns along the northern shore. I examined here very particularly the old wall of the port, at its western extremity; where its abutments are at first built up along the shore, before it strikes off into the water. It is here constructed of large hewn stones, and at first I took it to be of very ancient date. But on looking further I perceived that the foundations rest on marble columns laid beneath, a proof that these portions of the walls at least, if not the whole port in its present form, cannot probably be much older than the middle ages.

'The remains of the ancient cathedral church of Tyre are quite in the south-eastern corner of the present city. It was in the Greek style, and must have been originally a large and splendid edifice, but is now in utter ruin. . . . . The earthquake of 1837 did great injury to these noble ruins, throwing down a lofty arch, and several other portions, which had been spared till then.

'Eusebius describes it as the most splendid of all the temples of Phenicia. . . . It was probably in this cathedral that the bones of the emperor Frederick Barbarossa were entombed.

'The present Sur is nothing more than a market-town, a small sea-port, hardly deserving the name of city. Its chief export is the tobacco raised upon the neighbouring hills, with some cotton, and also charcoal and wood from the more distant mountains. The houses are for the most part mere hovels, very few being more than one story high, with flat roofs. The streets are narrow lanes, crooked and filthy. Yet the many scattered palm-trees throw over the place an oriental charm; and the numerous Pride of India trees interspersed among the houses and gardens, with their beautiful foliage, give it a pleasing aspect. The taxable men at this time were reckoned at four hundred Muhammedans and three hundred Christians; implying a population of less than three thousand souls.* Of the Christians, very few are of the Greek rite; the great body being Greek-Catholics. The latter have a resident bishop; while the bishop of the former, who is under the patriarch of Antioch, resides at Hasbeiya. We heard here of no Jews, though in Jerusalem we were informed, that two years before a considerable number had taken up their residence in Tyre.

'Sur at the present day is supplied with water almost wholly from two deep fountains, with buildings over them, a few paces outside of the gate on the north side of the peninsula; the one nearest the gate being the largest, and chiefly used. This is a singular place for fresh water to spring up; and the conjecture is not unnatural, that they stand in some unknown connection with the ancient fountains of Ras el-'Ain. . . . .

'"TYRE is said to have been founded by a colony from Sidon, two hundred and forty years before the building of Solomon's temple. The original city is usually held to have stood upon the main land; and Tyre is already mentioned in the division of the land by Joshua, as "the strong city," and afterwards under David, as a "strong-hold," Josh. xix. 29; 2 Sa. xxiv. 7, p. 16. In the letter of Hiram to Solomon, as given by Josephus, the Tyrians are described as already occupying the island. In the days of Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, about 720 B.C., the chief city was upon the island, and the city on the land already bore the name of Palætyrus, "Old Tyre;" the latter submitted to that monarch, while the former was blockaded by him for five years in vain. Nebuchadnezzar, also, at a later period, laid siege to Tyre for thirteen years; whether it was at last captured by him, we are not expressly informed. Then came the celebrated siege by Alexander the Great, about 332 B.C., who succeeded after seven months in taking the island-city, after having with great labour and difficulty built up a causeway or mole, from the main land to the walls. For this purpose Palætyrus was razed, and the stones employed for the mole, and other works of the besiegers.† Tyre continued to be a strong fortress; after Alexander's death it fell under the dominion of the Seleucidæ, having been besieged for fourteen months by Antigonus. At a later period it came under that of the Romans. The mole of Alexander having remained, had now divided the strait into two harbours; and thus Tyre is described by Strabo, as a flourishing trading city, with two ports. Such it was in the times of the New Testament, when it was visited by our Lord and his apostles, and afterwards by Paul, Ac. xxi. 3—8, p. 17. It early became a Christian bishopric, and in the fourth century Jerome speaks of Tyre as the most noble and beautiful city of Phenicia, and as still trading with all the world. Thus it continued apparently, under the Muslim rule, and until the time of the crusades.

'Not until after they had been for twenty-five years in possession of the Holy City were the crusaders able to lay siege successfully to Tyre, at that time a flourishing city and strong-hold of the Muslim power. William of Tyre, writing upon the spot,

* Dr. Wilson, who visited Tyre in May, A.D. 1845, thinks the population would amount to about 5000 souls.—Vol. II. p. 221.

† 'Her final overthrow was yet to be accomplished, and this was in a great degree reserved for Alexander the Great (about B.C. 332), who, by a scheme of gigantic magnitude, rendered the city, even in its insular position, accessible to the then usual mode of warfare and siege. In vain had he endeavoured to effect its subjugation by attacks made from the sea, and it was unapproachable in any other way. He then conceived the stupendous idea of constructing a mole which should at once connect it with the main land; and this was actually accomplished by driving piles and pouring in incalculable quantities of soil and fragments of rock; and it is generally believed, partly on the authority of ancient authors, that the ruins of old Tyre were absorbed in this vast enterprise, and buried in the depths of the sea, so realizing the word of prophecy, see Eze. xxvi. 19—21, p. 17; and after a close siege of seven months, the city also being attacked with fire, a surrender was made; he is said to have sold 30,000 Tyrians as slaves, so returning the recompence of Tyre upon her own head, by selling her sons and daughters, and then was brought about the terrible announcement of the prophet, Joel iii. 8; Zech. ix. 3, 4—see p. 17.—A Pastor's Visit, &c., p. 376.

WITH THE MERCIFUL THOU WILT SHEW THYSELF MERCIFUL; WITH AN UPRIGHT MAN THOU WILT SHEW THYSELF UPRIGHT.—Psa. xviii. 25.

WITH THE PURE THOU WILT SHEW THYSELF PURE; AND WITH THE FROWARD THOU WILT SHEW THYSELF FROWARD.—Psa. xviii. 26.

describes the city at the time as very strongly fortified, being enclosed towards the sea in most parts by a double wall with towers; on the north, within the city, was the walled port, with an entrance between double towers; and on the east, where it was accessible by land, it was protected by a triple ditch which might be filled from the sea on both sides. On the 11th of February, A. D. 1124, the Christian host sat down before Tyre; and on the 27th of the following June, the city was delivered into their hands. On entering the wealthy emporium, the pilgrims were surprised at the strength of its fortifications, the size and splendour of the houses, the loftiness of the towers, the solidity of the walls, and the beauty of the port, with its difficult entrance.

'For more than a century and a half, Tyre appears to have remained in the possession of the Christians, and maintained its prosperity. The entrance of the port was closed every night by a chain between the towers; and the city was celebrated for the manufacture of glass, and the production of sugar. After the battle of Hattin—(see Sect. xlii. p. 323, NOTE)—in A. D. 1187, when Jerusalem and nearly all Palestine were wrested from the Christians by Saladin, this city was almost the only place of importance which held out against his arms. The Sultan, indeed, invested Tyre in November of the same year; but after three months of fruitless effort was compelled to give up the siege. The city afterwards became an apple of contention among the Christians themselves; and about the middle of the thirteenth century appears to have been chiefly, if not wholly, under the control of the Venetians. . . .

'The strength and almost impregnable position of Tyre appear to have restrained the rapid and formidable Bibars from any direct attempts against the city at first; although in A. D. 1267 he plundered the territory round about, under pretext of vengeance for the murder of one of his Mamluks; and did not retire until the inhabitants had paid a fine of blood of fifteen thousand gold pieces, and set at liberty all the Saracen prisoners in their possession. He then granted a truce for ten years. Meantime, he subdued the castles in the interior, and got possession of Yafa, Arsuf, and Cæsarea, in the south; and of Antioch and other cities in the north; so that the Christians were henceforth confined chiefly to the coast north of Carmel. But such was now the relative tenor of their remaining possessions, and such the predominancy of the Muhim might on every side, that only a single blow was wanting to drive out wholly the name and power of the Franks from the Holy Land.

'Hence, when in March, A. D. 1291, Melek el-Ashraf, then Sultan of Egypt and Damascus, invested 'Akka, and took it by storm, with horrible atrocities, after a siege of two months; on the evening of the very day of its capture, the Frank inhabitants of Tyre embarked with their effects on board their ships, and abandoned this important city to the Saracens, who took possession of it the next day. Sidon, after some delay, was forsaken in like manner. Beirut was seized by treachery, and the fortifications of both places destroyed. The subsequent abandonment of 'Athlit (Castrum Peregrinorum) and Tortosa in the same year completed the entire expulsion of the Frank power from the soil of Syria and Palestine.

'Not long before this time, Tyre is described by Brocardus, as fortified on the land side by strong quadruple walls, with which there was connected on the island a citadel with seven towers, regarded as impregnable. These fortifications appear to have been razed by the Saracens, as at Sidon and Beirut; and the place itself was abandoned more or less by the inhabitants. Abulfeda, not many years afterwards, describes Tyre as being desolate and in ruins; and edh-Dhahiry speaks of it in the same manner, in the middle of the fifteenth century. It therefore never recovered from the blow, but continued apparently to sink deeper and deeper in abandonment and desolation. Travellers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries describe it as only a heap of ruins, broken arches and vaults, tottering walls and fallen towers, with a few miserable inhabitants housing in the vaults amid the rubbish.* Yet Fakhr ed-Din, the celebrated chief of the Druzes, in the first half of the seventeenth century, made some attempts to restore its importance, and erected here a spacious palace and other buildings, but they were soon suffered to fall to decay; and in the time of D'Arvieux the little that remained of the palace served as a khan for travellers. Maundrell, at the close of the same century, found "not so much as one entire house left," and only a few poor fishermen harbouring themselves in the vaults. In Pococke's day (1738) the French factory at Sidon exported large quantities of grain from Tyre: but the same traveller speaks here only of two or three Christian families and a few other inhabitants. Hasselquist in 1751 describes Tyre as a miserable village, having scarcely more than ten inhabitants, Muhammedan and Christian, who lived from fishing. In A. D. 1766, the Metawileh from the neighbouring mountains, having taken possession of Tyre and built up the present walls, laid thus the foundation for its partial revival. Twenty years later, according to Volney, the village, although consisting of wretched huts, covered a third part of the peninsula; but its only exports were still a few sacks of grain and cotton, the Metawileh from the neighbouring mountains, having taken possession of Tyre and built up the present walls, laid thus the foundation for its partial revival. Twenty years later, according to Volney, the village, although consisting of wretched huts, covered a third part of the peninsula; but its only exports were still a few sacks of grain and cotton, and its only merchant a Greek factor in the service of the French establishment at Sidon. The export of tobacco to Egypt has given it an impulse during the present century; in 1815 this formed already its chief staple, along with cotton, charcoal, and wood; and the population was continually increasing. Yet the greater prosperity and importance of the trade of Beirut will probably prevent any further extensive enlargement.

'In connection with the preceding account of ancient Tyre, a question arises in regard to the site of the earliest land-city, Palætyrus; of which no known vestige now remains. The only distinct notice we have of its position is from Strabo, three centuries after its destruction by Alexander. He says it stood thirty stadia south of the insular city. Strabo is here following the direction from north to south, and goes next to Ptolemais. Both the direction and the distance carry it, therefore, to the vicinity of "Ras el-'Ain." It probably lay on the south of those fountains along the coast, and the hill in that quarter may perhaps have been its citadel. That no remains are now visible is simply accounted for by the fact, that Alexander, more than twenty centuries ago, carried off its materials to erect his mole; and what he left behind would naturally be swallowed up in the erections and restorations of the island-city, during the subsequent centuries. Even in the more modern Tyre of Abdallah, what has become of her double and triple walls, her lofty towers, her large and massive mansions? not only have these structures been overthrown, but their very materials have in a great measure disappeared, having been probably carried off by water, and absorbed in the repeated fortifications of 'Akka and other constructions.'—Robinson's Researches, Vol. III. pp. 395—408.

Its utter destruction sends forth a loud warning to all kings, and princes, and people, on the earth; and to Britain especially, who, noted like Tyre of old, sits as queen in the sea. May not that come upon us which was declared of Tyre!

'What a lesson does Tyre—even in her present state—address to the hearts of thoughtful, ay, of thoughtless men! When those who are citizens of a country so highly honoured, so spiritually privileged, so distinguished as England, come forth and gaze upon her, and remember how our Lord himself said, "Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works, which were done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. But I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of judgment, than for you"—when they have these awful words sounding in their ears as they gaze, have they not reason to tremble for their country, lest her privileges be fatally abused—lest she finally fail of giving glory to God, and lest his righteous judgments leap forth in vindication of his oft insulted majesty? The woe has come upon Chorazin and Bethsaida. The woe is still upon Tyre. Where may it fall next? Can we not discern the signs of the times?'—A Pastor's Visit, p. 377.

* 'But this once famous Tyre is now no other than a heap of ruins; yet they have a reverent aspect, and do instruct the pensive beholder with their exemplary frailty.'—Quaresmius. And, 'Of ancient Tyre there just remains that utter nothing which seems best suited to prepare the Christian for imbibing the spirit of the prophetic language.'—Jowett's Researches, p. 136.

SIDON, p. 12.

SIDON, OR ZIDON, (SAIDA.)—SCRIPTURE NOTICES.

'And Canaan begat Sidon [Heb. Tsidon] his first-born,' Ge. x. 15; 1 Chr. i. 13.

'And the border of the Canaanites was from Sidon, as thou comest to Gerar, unto Gaza [Heb. Azzah]; as thou goest, unto Sodom, and Gomorrah, and Admah, and Zeboim, even unto Lasha,' Ge. x. 19.

'Zebulun shall dwell at the haven of the sea: and he shall be for an haven of ships; and his border shall be unto Zidon,' xlix. 13. B.C. 1689.

'And the LORD delivered them [the kings of the Canaanites] into the hand of Israel, who smote them, and chased them unto great Zidon,' Josh. xi. 8. B.C. 1450.

'And the children of Israel did evil again in the sight of the LORD, and served . . . the gods of Zidon,' Ju. x. 6. B.C. 1161.

'And David prepared . . . cedar trees in abundance: for the Zidonians and they of Tyre brought much cedar wood to David,' 1 Chr. xxii. 3, 4. B.C. 1017.—See also Ezra iii 7, p. 17. B.C. 536.

'Now therefore command thou that they hew me cedar trees out of Lebanon; . . . . for thou knowest that there is not among us any that can skill to hew timber like unto the Sidonians,' 1 Ki. v. 6. B.C. 1014.

'Arise, get thee to Zarephath, which belongeth to Zidon,' xvii. 9. B.C. 910.

'Be still, ye inhabitants of the isle; thou whom the merchants of Zidon, that pass over the sea, have replenished. 3, And by great waters the seed of Sihor, the harvest of the river, is her revenue; and she is a mart of nations. 4, Be thou ashamed, O Zidon: for the sea hath spoken, even the strength of the sea, saying, I travail not, nor bring forth children, neither do I nourish up young men, nor bring up virgins,' Is. xxiii. 2—4. B.C. 715.—See p. 16.

'The day that cometh to spoil all the Philistines, and to cut off from Tyrus and Zidon every helper that remaineth,' Je. xlvii. 4. B.C. 600.

'Thus saith the LORD to me; Make thee bonds and yokes, and put them upon thy neck, 3, and send them to the king of . . . Tyrus, and to the king of Zidon, by the hand of the messengers which come to Jerusalem unto Zedekiah king of Judah; 4, and command them to say unto their masters, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Thus shall ye say unto your masters . . . Now have I given all these lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, my servant,' Je. xxvii. 2—6. B.C. 598.

'Again the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, 21, Son of man, set thy face against Zidon, and prophesy against it, 22, and say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against thee, O Zidon; and I will be glorified in the midst of thee: and they shall know that I am the LORD, when I shall have executed judgments in her, and shall be sanctified in her. 23, For I will send into her pestilence, and blood into her streets; and the wounded shall be judged in the midst of her by the sword upon her on every side; and they shall know that I am the LORD,' Eze. xxviii. 20—.3. B.C. 588.

'Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works, which were done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. But I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of judgment, than for you,' Mt. xi. 21, .2, § 29, p. 227; Lu. x. 13, &c., § 60, p. 142.

'But Jesus withdrew himself with his disciples to the sea: and a great multitude from Galilee followed him, and from Judæa . . . and they about Tyre and Sidon,' Mk. iii. 7, 8, § 26, p. 200.

'And he came down with them, and stood in the plain, and the company of his disciples, and a great multitude of people out of all Judæa and Jerusalem, and from the sea coast of Tyre and Sidon, which came to hear him, and to be healed of their diseases,' Lu. vi. 17, § 27, p. 207

'And the next day we touched at Sidon. And Julius courteously entreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go unto his friends to refresh himself,' Ac. xxvii. 3. A.D. 62 (Greswell, A.D. 58.)

Lu. iv. 26, § 15, p. 104, 'unto Sarepta, a city of Sidon;' Ac. xii. 20; Jos. xiii. 4, 6; Ju. i. 31; 2 Sa. xxiv. 6, B.C. 1017; Eze. xxvii. 8, ...: xxviii. 21, B.C. 588; Je. xxv. 22, B.C. 606; Joel iii. 4, B.C. 800

Dr. Robinson says—'Monday, June 25th, 1838. Our journey for this day was along the coast from Tyre to Sidon, a distance usually reckoned at eight hours. . . . We left the gate of Tyre at six o'clock. . . . In thirty-five minutes we came to a large spring of fine water . . . supposed to possess medicinal qualities. We reached the "Khan el-Kasimiyeh" at 7h. 45m. o'clock. . . . At 8h. 45m. o'clock we descended the steep bank of the river, and crossed it by a fine modern bridge of one arch. The stream is perhaps one-third as large as the Jordan above the lake of Tiberias, and flows to the sea, with many windings, through a broad low tract of meadow land. It is the same stream which, under the name of "el-Litany," drains the great valley of "el-Buka," between Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon, and then breaks down through to the sea, by a mountain gorge at the south end of Lebanon. It was in this river that the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa is supposed to have been drowned.

'Our road lay for the remainder of the day along the celebrated Phœnician plain, sometimes at the foot of the mountains, and sometimes near the shore. This plain extends from Ras el-Bejad, or Abyad, the Promontorium Album of the ancients, nearly three hours south of Tyre, or Sur (see p. 17), to the Nahr el-Auly, an hour north of Saida, a distance of ten or eleven hours. Its breadth is unequal, but is nowhere more than half an hour, except round the cities of Tyre and Sidon; where the mountains retreat somewhat further. . . . The surface is not a dead level, but undulating; the soil is fine and fertile, and everywhere capable of tillage, though now suffered for the most part to run to waste. The adjacent heights are hardly to be called mountains; they constitute indeed the high tract running off south from Lebanon, which has some higher bluffs and ridges further east, . . . and are generally arable and cultivated to the top. The hills, too, are enlivened by villages; of which there is not a single one in all the plain until near Sidon. At 10h. 30m., on the shore, we came to a confused heap of stones and several old wells, marking a former site called 'Adlan. On the mountains above are two or three villages, one called el-Ansariyeh; and in the plain were fields of millet in bloom. In the side of the projecting mountain are many sepulchral grottoes; . . these are all of the Roman type, having a door leading into a chamber about six feet square, with a sort of bed left in the rock on three sides for the dead bodies. The doors are gone, and not a bone is left. . . . We may perhaps compare it with the Mearah [cavern] 'that . . . beside the Sidonians,' mentioned in Joshua xiii. 4. But this is very questionable.

'We crossed at 11h. 20m. a small dry Wady studded with oleanders, and came at 11h. 45m. to a Wely near the shore, with a small khan close by, called el-Khudr, the Arab name of St. George. Five minutes beyond is a site of ruins on the left, broken foundations, and irregular heaps of stones. Opposite to the spot, high up on the southern slope of a partially isolated hill, and hardly half an hour distance, is a large village with two or three welys, bearing the name of Surafend. In this name we here have the Zarephath of the Old Testament, and the Sarepta of the New; a place situated, according to Josephus and Pliny, between Tyre and Sidon, and belonging to the territory of the latter. Eusebius and Jerome have the name; and the latter speaks of Paula as having visited the spot.

'At twelve o'clock we came in sight of Saida, . . . looking verdant and beautiful in the midst of a forest of trees. . . . Ten minutes later brought us to a fine fountain near the shore, called "Ain el-Kanderah," shaded with many trees, and watering a small tract of gardens. At 12h. 30m. we crossed a dry water course; . . . and at 12h. 55m. came to "Ain el-Burak," another fine fountain and stream. . . .

THE LORD KNOWETH THE WAY OF THE RIGHTEOUS: BUT THE WAY OF THE UNGODLY SHALL PERISH.—Psalm i. 6.
HEARKEN UNTO THE VOICE OF MY CRY, MY KING, AND MY GOD: FOR UNTO THEE WILL I PRAY.—Psalm v. 2.

'At 1h. 15m. we reached Nahr es-Zaherany, a moderate stream; on our right were the ruins of a modern bridge, and near by lay a Roman mile stone; 30m. beyond another wady; and at two o'clock, on our right, was the village "el-Ghazieh." Here the mountains retire, leaving a broader plain around SAIDA; and the meadows and gardens belonging to the city commence, and extend north to the Auly. At 2h. 30m. crossed the "Nahr Samik," and were detained at the quarantine station about three hours.

'We set forward at 5h. 15m., and soon passed another Roman mile stone, a large column with a Latin inscription, containing the names of Septimus Severus and Pertinax, lying by the wayside. . . . The path led for a time along an avenue of large acacias, and still larger tamarisks (turfa), . . . and we rode for the whole way among gardens and country seats, until at 5h. 50m. we reached the southern part of the city.'—Robinson's Res. Vol. III. pp. 402—17.

'Approaching from the south it presented a striking picture; but not such as to give an idea of its real magnitude, or to be compared with that on the north and north-east. It occupies an elevated site, and projects far into the sea. On the east it has a bold fortified wall, over which the minarets stand up gracefully. . . . Its bazaars are pleasantly shaded; there is an abundant supply of grapes and watermelons . . . and most fragrant jessamine flowers, whose blossoms are much larger than those produced in Europe, and their fragrance exceedingly powerful.

'A gate opening to the north-east leads immediately to the sands of the sea shore, upon which the brisk waves of the Mediterranean roll gracefully. From thence Sidon appears in its beauty. The eastern side is enclosed by fine plantations of vigorous growth—cypresses, figs, tamarisks, and palms, which hide much of the poor and ruinous architecture, but exhibit the summits of some high fortifications, and the minarets of two mosques. . . . From hence several ledges of mount Lebanon are distinctly visible. There is scarcely a finer maritime position anywhere a-round, as it gracefully occupied by the fallen SIDON. It is all that the most picturesque fancy can desire.

'SIDON was once the abode of magnificence and luxury; and even in our Lord's day it was proverbial for this, as appears from the spirit of his allusion to it. . . . From a passage in Ge. x. 15, 19, see p. 21, it is probable that the son of Canaan was its founder. In the time of Joshua, B.C. 1445, it appears to have arrived at the height of its national glory. There is no doubt that the Sidonians supplied the first navigators in the old world. Their ships not only commanded the Mediterranean, but carried on an extensive traffic with the British isles, in tin and other commodities; and they had, moreover, colonies in Africa, and settlements in Europe. They were a gifted and ingenious people, and excelled not only in the fine arts, but in various kinds of manufacture. The glass of SIDON, the purple of TYRE, and exquisitely fine linen, were the products of their country, and of their own invention. They had a remarkable skill in the working of metals, timber, and stone: and the share they had in the work of the temple of Solomon gives proof of the extent to which their talents had been cultivated.'—A Pastor's Visit, pp. 378—80.

'Saida, the ancient SIDON, lies on the N.W. slope of a small promontory, which here juts out for a short distance obliquely into the sea, towards the S.W. The highest ground is on the south, where the citadel, a large square tower, is situated on an old structure, said by some to have been built by Louis IX. in A.D. 1253. A wall encloses the city on the land side, running across the promontory from sea to sea; it is kept in tolerable repair. The ancient harbour was formed by a long low ridge of rocks, parallel to the shore in front of the city. Before the time of Fakhr-ed-Din, there was here a port capable of receiving fifty galleys; but that chieftain, in order to protect himself against the Turks, caused it to be partly filled up with stones and earth, so that ever since his day only boats can enter it. Larger vessels lie without the entrance, on the north of the ledge of rocks, where they are protected from the S.W. winds, but exposed to those from the northern quarter. Here, on a rock in the sea, is another castle of the time of the crusades, the form of which is in part adapted to that of the rock; it is connected with the shore at the northern end of the city, by a stone causeway with nine arches, lying between the inner and outer port.

'The streets of Saida are narrow, crooked, and dirty, like those of most Oriental cities. The houses are many of them large and well built of stone; and the town, in this respect, presents a strong contrast to modern Tyre. Those especially along the eastern wall are distinguished for their size and height; they are built directly on the wall, so as to constitute a part of it, and enjoy a pure air and a pleasing prospect of the fields and country. Within the city are six khans, called by the Arabs Wekaiehs, for the use of merchants and travellers. The largest of these is the Wekaleh formerly belonging to the French factory and consulate, and still called the French Khan; a large quadrangle of about one hundred and fifty feet on a side, with a fountain and basin in the middle, and covered galleries all around. It was erected by Fakhr-ed-Din early in the seventeenth century.

'The taxable males of Saida, as we were told, amount as registered to seventeen hundred; which, according to the usual proportion, would indicate a population of nearly seven thousand souls. Yet Ibrahim, who certainly had the best opportunities of information, estimated the whole number of inhabitants at not over five thousand.* About two-thirds of the whole are Muslims, one-eighth part Jews, and the remainder Greek Catholics and Maronites in about equal proportions, with a very few Arab-Greeks.

'The commerce of Saida, which five-and-twenty years ago was still considerable, has of late years fallen off, in consequence of the prosperity of Beirut; the latter having become exclusively the port of Damascus. The chief exports from Saida are silk, cotton, and nutgalls. Indeed we had now begun to enter upon the region in which silk is extensively cultivated, as is indicated by the orchards of mulberry-trees around the villages. The earthquake of 1837 threw down several houses in Saida and injured many others, but only a few persons were killed.

'The beauty of Saida consists in its gardens and orchards of fruit-trees, which fill the plain and extend to the foot of the mountains. The city and the tract around are abundantly supplied with water, by aqueducts and channels which conduct it from the Auly and other smaller streams, as they issue from the mountains. The environs exhibit everywhere a luxuriant verdure, and the fruits of Saida are reckoned among the finest of the country. Hasselquist enumerates pomegranates, apricots, figs, almonds, oranges, lemons, and plums, as growing here in such abundance as to furnish annually several ship-loads for export; to which D'Arvieux adds also pears, peaches, cherries, and bananas, as at the present day. At the foot of the mountains are many ancient excavated sepulchres.

'SIDON was the most ancient of all the Phenician cities, and is mentioned both in the Pentateuch and in the poems of Homer, which Tyre is not, Ge. x. 15, 19—see p. 21. In the division of the Promised Land by Joshua, Sidon is spoken of as a great city, and was assigned to Asher; but the Israelites never subdued it, Josh. xix. 28; Ju. i. 31; x. 12. In later ages the younger Tyre outstripped Sidon in the career of prosperity and power, but both were equally renowned for their commerce, their manufactures, and the cultivation of the fine arts, as well as for the luxury and vices usually attendant upon commercial prosperity, Is. xxiii. 2, p. 16; Eze. xxvii 8. When the Assyrian Shalmaneser entered Phenicia, about 720 B.C., Sidon and the rest of Phenicia, except Insular Tyre, submitted to the conqueror, and remained long under the dominion of the Assyrians and Persians. Under Artaxerxes Ochus, about 350 B.C., Phenicia revolted from the Persian yoke; and Sidon was captured and destroyed by that monarch. Yet it was soon built up again, and in 332 B.C. opened its gates to Alexander the Great, on his approach.

'After Alexander's death Sidon continued alternately in the possession of the Syrian and Egyptian monarchs, until it came at last under the Roman power; at this time it was still an opulent city. This was during the times of the New Testament,

* Dr. Wilson, who visited Sidon, A.D. 1845, supposes the population to be about six thousand.

IN DEATH THERE IS NO REMEMBRANCE OF THEE: IN THE GRAVE WHO SHALL GIVE THEE THANKS?—Psalm vi. 5.
HE PRESERVETH NOT THE LIFE OF THE WICKED: BUT GIVETH RIGHT TO THE POOR.—Job xxxvi. 6.

when our Lord visited the territories of Tyre and Sidon; and Paul afterwards found here Christian friends on his passage to Rome, Ac. xxvii. 3—see p. 21. There doubtless was early a Christian church and bishop at Sidon; though the first bishop whose name is preserved was Theodorus, who was present at the council of Nicea, in A.D 325. In the same century, Eusebius and Jerome still speak of Sidon as an important city, but we know little more of it until the time of the crusades.

'The original host of the crusaders, in their progress from Antioch towards Jerusalem, in A.D 1099, marched along the whole Phenician coast, leaving the strong cities of Beirut, Sidon, Tyre, 'Akka, and others, unmolested, so far as the latter suffered them to pass without hindrance. Their first and great object was the Holy City. The Muslim commander of Sidon, however, then subject to the khalif of Egypt, at first opposed himself to their progress; but his troops were driven back into the city by the pilgrims; and the latter then rested for several days in its environs, where their light troops brought in much booty from the vicinity. Not until A.D. 1107, were the crusaders able to undertake in earnest the reduction of Sidon; and even when at first the inhabitants succeeded in purchasing a reprieve from king Baldwin I., a reprieve with gold. Yet they themselves proved faithless; and in the next year (1108) Baldwin formally laid siege to Sidon; but after great efforts, was obliged to abandon the enterprise.

'In A.D. 1111, the siege was again renewed, with better success; and after six weeks' siege, surrendered to king Baldwin on the tenth day of December. It was bestowed as a fief on the knight Eustache Grenier.

'Sidon remained in the possession of the Christians until A.D. 1187, when it fell into the hands of Saladin, without resistance, immediately after the battle of Hattin—see Sect. 42, p. 323, NOTE. The Sultan appears to have dismantled the fortifications, and partially destroyed the city; for when in A.D 1197, after the hard-fought general battle with Melek el-'Adil in the vicinity, the Christians entered Sidon, they found it desolated. The pilgrims stabled their horses in mansions ornamented with the cedar of Lebanon; and cooked their food at fires fragrant with the odours of the same precious wood, collected from the ruins. The crusaders proceeded to Beirut, of which they took possession, while Melek el-'Adil again appeared in their rear, and completed the destruction of Sidon.

'The Christians, however, rebuilt and occupied the city; which, after half a century, was once more taken and dismantled by the Saracen forces in A.D. 1249, during the siege of Damietta by Louis IX. of France. Four years later, in A.D. 1253, when an officer of the French king with a small party of troops had begun to restore the city, a Muslim host again approached, and took possession of the place. The garrison, with a few of the inhabitants, withdrew to the castle upon the rock, which being entirely surrounded by water, afforded them security; but of the remaining inhabitants, two thousand were slain, and four hundred carried off as prisoners to Damascus, after the city had been laid waste. In July of the same year, only a few weeks afterwards, king Louis himself repaired to Sidon, and caused the city to be rebuilt with high walls and massive towers. The Templars, in A.D. 1260, purchased Sidon from Julian, its temporal lord; and, with the exception of its being plundered by the Mogols in the same year, they retained possession of it for thirty years. In A.D. 1291, after the atrocious and terrible overthrow of 'Akka by the Sultan el-Ashraf, and the abandonment of Tyre, the Templars also left Sidon to its fate, and withdrew first to Tortosa and afterwards to Cyprus. Sidon was taken possession of by the Muhammedans, and once more dismantled.

'Eight or ten years before this event, Brocardus describes Sidon as a large place; although a great part of it lay in ruins. On the north was a fortress in the sea, built originally by crusaders from Germany; and on the hill upon the south another, then occupied by the templars.

'After its abandonment by the Franks, Sidon appears not to have been, like Tyre, entirely forsaken by its inhabitants. Abulfeda speaks of it not long after as a small town, having a citadel; and according to edh-Dhahiry, in the middle of the fifteenth century it was a place of some importance, constituting one of the ports of Damascus, and visited by ships. At the beginning of the seventeenth century, Frank travellers describe it as still for the most part in ruins, with few inhabitants, and a single khan.

'About this time Sidon received a new impulse from the genius and activity of the celebrated Fakhr ed-Din. This Emir of the Druses having got possession of all the towns along the coast, gave way to his propensity for building, not only at Beirut and Tyre, but also at Sidon. Here he erected a vast seraglio or palace for himself; and also the large khan, afterwards occupied by the French, besides other structures. His policy was to encourage commerce; and although he filled up the port of Sidon, yet in consequence of his measures and protection, the trade of that city revived to some extent, and a greater activity was awakened along the whole coast. Professing to be himself descended from French ancestors, he treated the Christians in his dominions with great equity, especially the Franks; granting privileges and immunities to the Latin convents, and encouraging the comrce of the French, which had now extended itself to these shores.

'At that period the French were the only nation who took part in the commerce of Sidon and its vicinity. Their trade had become so extensive and firmly established, as to bring annually 200,000 crowns into the coffers of the Grand Seignior. . . . Saida was the central point, and traded directly with the Druses; but the merchants established there had likewise factors in Ramleh, 'Akka, Beirut, Tripolis, and sometimes Tyre, who purchased up the products of the country, and transmitted them to Saida, whence they were shipped to Marseilles. The exports were cotton, both raw and spun, silk, rice, nutgalls, ashes from the desert, bird dung, senna, and a few other drugs; and the imports were chiefly cloth, spices, dye-stuffs, and some jewellery. Huseiquist, in A. D. 1751, states that more than twenty ships were every year freighted for France, laden chiefly with spun cotton and raw silk; but carrying also the beautiful silken and half-silken stuffs of Damascus, to Italy; and likewise nutgalls, oil, and ashes, to France. The imports were cloth, spices, Spanish iron, and dye-stuffs; all of which were mostly sent to Damascus, which now furnished great part of the trade both of Saida and Beirut.

'In A.D. 1791, Jezzar Pasha drove the French out of all his territories, including Saida; and since then its little trade has been carried on chiefly by the natives. At the present day the tide of European commerce has turned to Beirut, and Sidon is rarely visited by foreign vessels.'—Robinson's Researches, Vol. III. pp. 417—28.

'Concerning Sidon, Jehovah hath spoken; and his word has been fulfilled. Sidon is even now another witness to the truth of prophecy, Eze. xxviii. 20—3, see p. 21. It was upwards of three centuries before the time of Christ that this prophecy was signally fulfilled by the Persians, under Ochus (see p. 22); from which time to the present she has never lifted up her head. The "GREAT ZIDON" speaks volumes to the men of this generation, from the littleness to which the judgments of God have brought her. Her future condition will depend much upon the ultimate fate of the Ottoman empire, and the adjustment of the questions [should they admit of adjustment] between the contending tribes of Lebanon, the Maronites and Druses; and these are all in the hand of God. It is probable that the lapse of a few years may bring about results that will be felt throughout the length and breadth of Syria and Palestine, all intimately connected with the hope and prospects of Israel.'—A Pastor's Visit, A. D. 1842, pp. 378—80.

ARE THY DAYS AS THE DAYS OF MAN? ARE THY YEARS AS MAN'S DAYS?—Job x. 5.

HAST THOU EYES OF FLESH? OR SEEST THOU AS MAN SEETH?—Job x. 4.

SECTION 46.—(G. 3, 4.)—[Lesson 45.]—JESUS RETURNS TO THE NEIGHBOURHOOD OF BETHSAIDA,* ON THE LAKE OF GALILEE, THROUGH THE COASTS OF DECAPOLIS: HE HEALS A DEAF MAN WHO HAD AN IMPEDIMENT IN HIS SPEECH: AND PERFORMS MIRACLES OF SUNDRY KINDS. FOUR THOUSAND MEN, BESIDE WOMEN AND CHILDREN, ARE FED WITH SEVEN LOAVES OF BREAD, AND A FEW FISHES. Matt. xv. 29—38. Mark vii. 31—viii. 9.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. xv. 29. Mk. vii. 31. Jesus leaves the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, but still continues in a Gentile country; journeying eastward he approaches 'the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the coasts of Decapolis.' It may be remembered that here his fame had been spread, by the man out of whom Legion had been cast, Mk. v. 20 [Lu. viii. 39], § 35, p. 273. And here he had already reproved the inhospitality of the inhabitants by the feeding of the five thousand, § 40, pp. 309—14.

——— — vii. 32.—7. Jesus heals a man 'that was deaf, and had an impediment in his speech.' Compare this case with that of a blind man upon Jesus' return to the same side of the lake, Mk. viii. 22—6, § 49, p. 34

— xv. 29—31. ——— Having gone up to a mountain, Jesus sits down there: where multitudes come to him, bringing others who have need of healing. He makes not only 'the dumb to speak,' but also 'the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to see.' The people who, it may be presumed, are mainly Gentiles, glorify 'the God of Israel.'

Mt. xv. 32—8. Mk. viii. 1—9. Where the Jewish multitude had been fed, Jesus now manifests similar compassion and power in behalf of his Gentile followers. These have been with him three days, and some of them are from far. He had before fed five thousand with five loaves and two fishes; now four thousand are fed with seven loaves, and a few little fishes. Twelve large baskets had remained over and above in the former instance; whilst in the present seven smaller baskets were filled with the fragments. Having thus again reproved the inhospitality of the inhabitants of Decapolis, and at the same time indicated God's purpose of taking another people into the place of the Jews, to be fed with the bread of life, he sends away the multitude.

(G. 3,) No. 46. Jesus returns to the neighbourhood of Bethsaida, on the lake of Galilee.

MATT. xv. 29.

[Ver. 28, § 45, p. 16.]

29 And [b] Jesus departed from[a] thence,
[d] and-came nigh-unto the sea of Galilee;[a]

MARK vii. 31.

[Ver. 30, § ib.]

[a] And again,[b] 31 departing from [a] the coasts of-Tyre and Sidon,[d]
he-came unto the sea of Galilee,
[a] through the-midst of-the coasts of-Decapolis.

Jesus heals a deaf man, who had an impediment in his speech.

MARK vii. 32—7.†

32 And they-bring unto-him one that was deaf, and had-an-impediment-in-his-speech 33 μογιλαλον; and they-beseech him to put his hand upon-him. And he-took him aside from the multitude, and-put his fingers into his ears, and he-spit, and-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. vii. 31. again departing, &c.—the journey which Jesus now took was eastward, along the north border of the land, (as possessed under the law,) and near the centre of that which was promised to Abraham—see on Mt. xv. 29, § 45, p. 18—in leaving the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, and proceeding in the direction indicated, he would come near unto 'mount Sion, which is Hermon,' De. iv. 48.

Decapolis—the country east of the sea of Galilee, where his power had been made known by the man out of whom legion had been cast, v. 18—20, § 35, p. 273—and where the feeding of the five thousand had taken place, Jno. vi. 1—13, &c., § 40, pp. 309—14.

32. and they bring unto him, &c.—see the case of a man who was brought to Jesus, probably near the same place, but upon his return from the other side of the lake, viii. 22—6, § 49, p. 34—the two cases, the one of a deaf, the other of a blind man, are both recorded by the same evangelist, and remarkably similar. In both Jesus takes the person aside, uses various instrumentality, and gradually, and as if with difficulty, procures the enjoyment of the blessing desired. In both cases there is also a charge not to publish the matter. It is likely that all this was significant with regard to the further and more important unstopping of the ears of the deaf, and opening the eyes of the blind.

deaf, &c.—among the blessings promised in connection with Israel's restoration, the hearing ear is not one of the least: 'In that day shall the deaf hear the words of the book,' Is. xxix. 18. . . . . 'The eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing;' &c., Is. xxxv. 5, 6—see also xlii. 18—20.

33. took him aside—it was to those who went with Jesus apart from the multitude that he said, 'Blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your ears, for they hear,' Mt. xiii. 16, § 32, p. 246.

NOTES.

Mk. vii. 31. Decapolis See Mt. iv. 25, § 18, p. 116. He did not go immediately into Capernaum, or any city where he was known, but into the retired regions beyond the sea of Galilee.—See GEOG. NOT. § 18, p. 117.

32. To put his hand upon him. That is, to cure him. Blessings were commonly imparted by laying on of the hands.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mk. vii. 31. Jesus passed from the extreme north-west border of the land to the north-east, giving to his followers an example of diligence in the ministry. The lost sheep of the house of Israel are to be sought for, as having been scattered on every mountain and hill—see Eze. xxxiv.

32 ver. Jesus came to unstop the ears of the deaf, and make the tongue of the stammerer speak plainly. Let us beseech him to have mercy upon us, and upon our neighbours, that they with us may be enabled to hear the words of the book, and speak the praises of our God.

* See Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. p. 356, ..7. † Ib. Vol. I. Diss. I. p. 29. On Supplemental Relations.

IF I BE WICKED, WOE UNTO ME; AND IF I BE RIGHTEOUS, YET WILL I NOT LIFT UP MY HEAD.—Job. x. 15.
IF GOD WILL NOT WITHDRAW HIS ANGER, THE PROUD HELPERS DO STOOP UNDER HIM.—Job ix. 13.

MARK vii. 34—7.*

34 touched his tongue; and looking-up to heaven, he-sighed, and saith unto-him, Eph-35 phatha, that is, Be-opened. And straightway his ears were-opened, and the string 36 of-his tongue was-loosed, and he-spake plain. And he-charged them that they-should-tell no-man: but the-more he charged them, so-much-the-more a-great-deal μᾶλλον 37 περισσοτερον they-published it; and were-beyond-measure ὑπερπερισσως astonished, saying, He-hath-done all-things well: he-maketh both the deaf to-hear, and the dumb to-speak.

Jesus performs miracles of sundry kinds. Matt. xv. 29—31.

30 And went-up into a mountain, and-sat-down there. And great multitudes came-unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, 31 and cast-them-down at Jesus' feet; and he-healed them: insomuch-that the multitude wondered, when-they-saw the-dumb to-speak, the-maimed to be whole, the-lame to-walk, and the-blind to-see: and they-glorified the God of-Israel.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. vii. 33. touched his tongue—Jesus afterwards acted in a similar way in onening the eyes of the blind, ch. viii. 22—6. which see, § 49, p. 34.

34. looking up—'My voice shalt thou hear in the morning O LORD; in the morning will I direct... unto thee, and will look up.' Ps. v. 3—at the feeding of the five thousand, 'when he had taken the five loaves and the two fishes, he looked up to heaven, and blessed,' &c., Mk. vi. 41, § 40, p. 313—and when about to call Lazarus forth from the grave, 'Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me.' Jno. xi. 41, 2, § 88, p. 131—and after his consolatory address to his disciples, Jno. xiii.—vi. § 87, pp. 37.—vii. Jesus 'lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee,' xvii. 1, ib. p. 398.

he sighed—longing, as we may suppose, for the time when the call of the Good Shepherd will be heard, and thus the great commandment, 'Hear, O Israel,' be obeyed; when their deaf ears will be unstopped, and they will hear him saying, 'O that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments! then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea: thy seed also had been as the sand, and the offspring of thy bowels like the gravel thereof,' Is. xlviii. 18, 19.

Be opened—as in the beginning, when God said, 'Let there be light: and there was light,' Ge. i. 3—so to the leper, 'Be thou clean,' Mt. viii. 3, § 21, p. 160—to the blind, 'Receive thy sight,' Lu. xviii. 42, § 78, p. 240—to the widow's son, carried out to his burial, 'Young man, I say unto thee, Arise,' Lu. vii. 14, § 29, p. 222—and to Lazarus, 'Come forth,' Jno. xi. 43, § 88, p. 131.

37. done all things well—these words seem to imply that the attention of the people had been occupied with the means used in effecting the cure. They thought it had been performed with dexterity, or cleverly, and that successfully.

dumb to speak—see Mt. ix. 32, 3, § 36, p. 285.

Mt. xv. 29. went up into a mountain, or, the mountain, as also ch. v. 1, § 19, p. 129; xiv. 23, § 41, p. 318; xxviii. 16, § 96, p. 503—probably that which was anciently called Bashan—a prolongation of Hermon, or Anti-Libanus—'The hill of God is as the hill of Bashan; an high hill as the hill of Bashan. Why leap ye, ye high hills? this is the hill which God desireth to dwell in; yea, the LORD will dwell in it for ever,' Ps. lxviii. 15, 6.

30. great multitudes—'And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the LORD's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us,' &c., Is. ii. 2, 3; xxv. 6—8.

lame—when the gathering above described takes place—see Mi. iv. 1—5, 'in that day, saith the LORD, will I assemble her that halteth, and I will gather her that is driven out, and her that I have afflicted,' &c., ver. 6, 7—'Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing,' &c., Is. xxxv. 6.

31. glorified the God of Israel—Jesus had been journeying in a country inhabited by Gentiles, such as the woman of Canaan, ver. 22, § 45, p. 13—among whom he had made no secret of the fact, that the special objects of his mission were the lost sheep of the house of Israel, ver. 24, § ib. Being made partakers of the benefit designed more especially for the children of Israel, those Gentiles who had followed Jesus in his progress through the heathen country, from the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, &c., 'glorified the God of Israel,' as contrasted with the gods of the Gentiles.

NOTES.

Mk. vii. 34. Looking up to heaven. To denote that he acted by a divine power, in perfect union with the Father. To lift up the eyes to heaven is an act of imploring aid from God, and denotes an attitude of prayer, as Ps. cxxi. 1, 2—see border.

Ephphatha. The word is Syriac, the language which our Lord used in addressing the man.

35. The string of his tongue was loosed. The difficulty in his speaking was removed.

[36. Charged them. It is possible that for the same purpose that he enjoined silence, he himself concealed in a measure the power of his word, under the appearance of using means which could be effectual only in his hand. Those who were right-minded would see this, whilst others would be disposed to ascribe the merit of the cure to the means—a less dangerous conclusion certainly than that to which the Pharisees had come, Mt. xii. 22—4, § 31, p. 234.]

Mt. xv. 31. Insomuch that the multitude... glorified the God of Israel. The persons by whom our

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xv. 29, 30. Let us do what we can to bring all who are afflicted in mind, body, or estate, under the influence of Christ's healing power

31 ver. The acknowledgment of the divine goodness in one case, is the way to draw down further blessing. They who had said, 'He hath done all

* This is an instance where a concise account of St. Matthew is expanded into a circumstantial detail by St. Mark, who is frequently so accommodated to St. Matthew, as to begin where he ends, or vice versa, to end where he begins—thus Mk. vii. 32—7, comes in exactly between Mt. xv. 29, and xv. 30; Mk. vii. 25, § 45, p. 14, takes up Mt. xv. 24, § ib.; Mk. viii. 12, § 47, p. 30, concludes Mt. xvi. 1—4, § ib.; Mk. viii. 19, 20, § 42, p. 33, follows on Mt. xvi. 10, § ib.; Mk. ix. 33—50, § 52, p. 79, concludes where Mt. xviii. 1—35, § 53, p. 82, begins: and what is among the most striking instances of all, Mk. xvi. 5—8, § 93, p. 486, in his account of that event, begins precisely where Mt. xxviii. 6, § ib., in his account just before, had made an end.—See Greswell, Vol. I. Diss. i. p. 29, 'On the supplemental character of the Gospels.'

(G. 4.) Four thousand men, beside women and children, are fed with seven loaves of bread and a few small fishes. On the same locality where the former instance of miraculous feeding took place.

MATT. xv. 32—8.
(Comp. § xl. p. 310.)

32 Then Jesus called his disciples-unto him, and-said,
I-have-compassion on the multitude, because they-continue-with προσμενουσι
me now three days, and have nothing to-eat and I-will not send-them-away fasting, lest they-faint in the way.

33 And his disciples say unto-him, Whence should we have so-much bread in the-wilderness, as-to-fill so-great a-multitude?
34 And Jesus saith unto-them,
How-many loaves have-ye?
And they said, Seven,
and a-few little-fishes.

MARK viii. 1—9.
1 In those days the-multitude being very-great, and having nothing to-eat,
Jesus called his disciples-unto him, and-saith unto-them,
2 I-have-compassion on the multitude, because they-have-now-been-with προσμενουσι
me three days, and have nothing to-eat:
3 and if I-send-them-away fasting to their-own houses,
they-will-faint by the way:
for divers of-them came from-far.
4 And his disciples answered him,
From-whence can a-man satisfy these men with-bread here in the-wilderness?
5 And he-asked them,
How-many loaves have-ye?
And they said, Seven.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xv. 32. compassion—with regard to Israel it is said, Is. lxiii. 9, 'In his love and in his pity he redeemed them: and he bare them, and carried them all the days of old'—see his compassion exemplified in the case of Nineveh, Jon. iii. 10. . . . . —Jesus directed that national distinction should not prevent the expression of kindness to the needy—see his answer to the question, 'Who is my neighbour?' Lu. x. 30—7, § 60, p. 146—he had already exercised compassion on the multitudes by curing their lame, blind, dumb, maimed, &c.—see ver. 30, p. 25—now he manifests the same by supplying them with bread in the wilderness. Ver. 36—8, p. 27—'The Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy,' Ja. v. 11—we are to follow his example in exercising compassion, Col. iii 12, 'Put on therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercies, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness,' &c.—1 Joh. iii 17, 'Whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?'

I will not send them away, &c.—previous to the feeding of the five thousand, the disciples had come to him, saying, 'Send the multitude away,' Lu. ix. 12, § 40, p. 312—'for they have nothing to eat,' Mk. vi 36, § ib.—now Jesus prevents such a proposal, and may in part have intimated his intention to his disciples, by saying, they 'have nothing to eat: and I will not send them away fasting.'

Mk. viii. 3. from far—probably from the coasts of Tyre and Sidon. It is likely these were mainly Gentiles, as those who were formerly fed were Jews belonging to the neighbourhood of the sea of Galilee, ch. vi. 33, § 40, p. 310; Joh. vi. 26, 59, § 43, pp. 325, 32.

Mt. xv. 33. Whence . . . so much bread? &c.—upon the former occasion they said, 'Shall we go and buy two hundred penny-worth of bread, and give them to eat?' Mk. vi. 37, § 40, p. 312—it was less wonder they should have spoken thus in the first instance; but after having experienced his almighty power and goodness in feeding the five thousand, it is remarkable they should put the question they now do—yet so it was with ancient Israel, 'they soon forgat his works,' &c., Ps. cvi. 13—but it is possible that the disciples did not expect that Jesus would work a miracle for a multitude of Gentiles, like that which he had previously wrought for their own Jewish brethren—that, however he might manifest his compassion by bestowing upon them healing, he would not spread a table for the unclean Gentiles, as he had for the Jews: they might think that this would be like taking the children's bread and casting it to dogs, Mk. vii. 27, § 45, p. 15.

31. How many loaves have ye?—the very words he had used in the first instance, Mk. vi. 38, § 40, p. 312.

seven—comp. Mt. xiv. 17, &c., § ib.

NOTES.

Lord was now surrounded seem to have been mostly such as followed him from the parts of Tyre and Sidon, and the neighbouring heathen country. Hence they are said, on seeing his miracles, to have 'glorified the God of Israel.' To glorify, here means to praise, to acknowledge his power and goodness, distinguishing him from the heathen gods.

Mk. viii. 1. In those days. While in the coasts of Decapolis, where he had cured the deaf man.

Mt. xv. 32. Three days, and have nothing to eat. Meaning, probably, that during that time they had been deprived of their ordinary regular food. They had had only a very scanty supply, and on the third day even that began to fail.

Three days. Probably the time which had elapsed since attention had been drawn to him by the Canaanitish woman, and during his journey through the heathen and mountainous region that lay in his route to the eastern side of the sea of Galilee.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

things well,' had now not only to acknowledge that he made the dumb to speak, but also that he made the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to see. Let us pray that soon the name of our God may cease to be blasphemed among the Gentiles; and that those who are left of the heathen round about may, as witnessing the power of Christ to heal, be made to glorify 'the God of Israel.'

Mk. viii. 1, 2. Jesus would have his disciples to consider the case of the poor and needy, who have nothing to eat; he hath given us example, saying, 'I have compassion on the multitude.' In the same country where the former miracle of feeding the multitudes was performed, our Lord again spreads a table in the wilderness.

[Mt. xv. 34. Let not the disciples of Jesus say they have not enough for all, but let them unitedly give what they have to Christ, for the good of the many, and he will make it sufficient. Let us make use of what we are given in the ordinary course of providence, before we expect God's miraculous interposition.]

35..6 ver. To make a thankful use of what we have for the good of others, is the way to get more.

LET US HAVE THE MIND OF JESUS, AND CONSIDER THE CASE OF THOSE WHO ARE STILL DESTITUTE
BOTH OF THE BREAD THAT PERISHETH AND OF THAT WHICH ENDURETH TO EVERLASTING LIFE.

Matt. xv. 35—.8.	Mark viii. 6—9
35 And he-commanded the multitude to-sit-down on the ground.	And he-commanded the people 6 to-sit-down on the ground.
36 And he-took the seven loaves and the fishes, and-gave-thanks, and-brake them, and gave to his disciples,[c]	and he-took the seven loaves, and-gave-thanks, and-brake, and gave to his disciples [c] to-set-before them;
and the disciples to-the multitude.	and they-did-set-them-before the people.
	And they-had a-few small-fishes: and he- 7 olessed, and-commanded to-set-them also - before them.[d]
37 [d]And they-did-all-eat, and were-filled and they-took-up of-the broken-meat that was-left τὸ περισσευον seven baskets full.	So they-did-eat, and were-filled: 8 and they-took-up of-the-broken-meat that was-left περισσευματα seven baskets.
38 And they that-did-eat were four-thousand men, beside women and children.[e]	And they that-had-eaten were 9 about four-thousand:
[Ver. 39, § 47, p. 28.]	[e] and he-sent-them-away.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xv. 36. gave thanks—Matthew and Mark had before said that Jesus 'blessed, and brake,' Mt. xiv. 19; Mk. vi. 41, § 40. p. 213—but now they use the word which in describing the former miracle had been used by John—see Jno. vi. 11, § ib.

gave to his disciples, &c.—As before, in the ministration to the five thousand, so now to these men, many of whom had come from far, the disciples were appointed to minister, according to the law of the kingdom, Lu. xxii. 26, 'He that is greatest among you, let him be as the younger; and he that is chief, as he that doth serve'—see § 87, p. 375.

Mk. viii. 7. and he blessed, &c.—the word here made use of in reference to the fishes had been before used, ch. vi. 41, § 40, p. 313.

Mt. xv. 37. they did all eat, and were filled—the same statement with regard to the former miracle is given by all the evangelists, Mt. xiv. 20; Mk. vi. 42; Lu. ix. 17; Jno. vi. 11, 2, § ib. p. 314.

took up, &c.—Jesus had in the former instance directed that this should be done, 'that nothing be lost,' Jno. vi. 12, § ib.

38. four thousand, &c.— the two evangelists who narrate both miracles also distinguish the numbers, 'five thousand men, beside women and children,' Mt. xiv. 21, § ib.—'four thousand men, beside women and children,' xv. 38—' And they that did eat of the loaves were about five thousand men,' Mk. vi. 44, § ib.—' And they that had eaten were about four thousand,' viii. 9—it may be noticed, that with regard to numbers, Matthew is of all the evangelists the most particular. This, from his previous occupation, was to be expected from him.

NOTES.

Mt. xv. 37. Baskets. σπυρίδας, 'hand-baskets,' i.e., baskets with handles. But those mentioned in the former miracle, κοφίνους, were suspended from the shoulder, and were probably larger.—So Watson.

38. Four thousand. 'This miracle should be compared with the former of the same kind, when five thousand were fed—see § 40, p. 312. Taking them separately there is no discrepancy, but comparing Mt. xv. 34—8, and Mk. viii. 5—9, with Lu. ix. 13—7, there will be found many differences which infidels and sceptics wilfully misrepresent. The consideration of these miracles will shew the advantage and importance of a right knowledge of the Harmony, Chronology, and Geography, or, we may say, of the Structure, of the Four Gospel Narratives. There are numerous other instances which a right knowledge of the harmony, geography, and chronology, would prove beautifully consistent, although apparently contradictory; and even prove that they are true, admitting the book not to be inspired. These two miracles, viz., the feeding of the five thousand and of the four thousand in the "desert place," are set down by scoffers as contradictory statements, and as sufficient to impugn the authority and inspiration of the Gospel; yet even children who may have had but very little practice in Mr. M.'s system will be able to shew that there is no contradiction. Mt. xv. 32—8, and Mk. viii. 1—9, say the number was four thousand, that they were fed with seven loaves and a few fishes. and the fragments amounted to seven baskets full; Lu. ix. 12—7, states the number to be five thousand, the victuals five loaves and two fishes, and the fragments twelve baskets full. Now both accounts were quite possible, and the objectors who call it a contradiction, either knowingly tell a falsehood, or they omit to take the trouble to compare the harmony, chronology, and geography of the Gospels, as in Mr. M.'s chart, which fully and simply lays down the whole of our Lord's ministry. To illustrate this—"A short time since, Mr. Hampton ascended in a balloon from Montpelier Gardens, and descended near Cheltenham without injury;" an account published at the time might rightly describe the fact; but an account published many years hence may state that "Mr. Hampton went in a balloon from Cheltenham, and descended in a parachute at some distance, and received some severe bruises;" (for both accounts are true, being separate in time.) Here is an apparent contradiction, but still it did not disprove the fact. The apparent contradiction of the feeding of the four thousand and the five thousand may easily be cleared up, inasmuch as they were different events, occurring some time after each other. If we look at No. 40 on the chart of our Lord's life and ministry, we shall find the time and locality of the feeding of the five thousand, but we must traverse a considerable distance, and go through a considerable lapse of time, before we come to the feeding of the four thousand; this fact the infidel writers have not the honesty to point out.) They might find that after feeding the five thousand, Jesus walked on the sea to Peter (No. 41), that he landed at Bethsaida (No. 42) in Galilee, and discoursed in a synagogue at Capernaum (No. 43), as we see in John, chap. vi.; he next disputed with the Pharisees concerning tradition, according to Matthew and Mark (No. 44), then departed into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, and healed a Syro-phenician woman's daughter who was possessed of a devil (No. 45); he then (No. 48) "departed from the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, and came nigh unto the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the coasts of Decapolis;" that he there healed a deaf man, Mk. vii. 32—7, &c. Afterwards great multitudes came to him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet; and he healed them, Mt. xv. 30, 1. All this, which must have occupied considerable time, occurred between the feeding of the five thousand (recorded by Mt. xiv. 13—21; Mk. vi. 30—44; Lu. ix. 10—7; Jno. vi. 1—13) and the feeding of the four thousand (recorded by Mt. xv. 32—8; Mk. viii. 1—9). A child well grounded in the structure of the Gospels would be able easily to overturn every similar objection. It must not be forgotten that in this instance Matthew and Mark record both miracles, therefore the perversion of the narrative can only be attributed to the wickedness of the objectors.'—Extract from a Lecture on Graduated Simultaneous Teaching in Sabbath Schools.

GIVE UNTO THE LORD THE GLORY DUE UNTO HIS NAME: BRING AN OFFERING, AND COME INTO HIS COURTS.—Psalm xcvi. 8

SECTION 47.—(G. 5.)—[Lesson 46.*]—JESUS COMES BY SEA TO DALMANUTHA, OR MAGDALA, AND MAKES ANSWER TO THE PHARISEES THERE, WHO DEMANDED OF HIM A SIGN FROM HEAVEN. Matt. xv. 39—xvi. 4. Mark viii. 10—.2.—[Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. pp. 360—..2.]

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. xv. 39. Mk. viii. 10. Having sent away the second multitude which he had fed on the eastern side of the sea of Galilee, Jesus comes by ship with his disciples 'into the coasts of Magdala,' &c.

— xvi. 1. — viii. 11. He is met by Pharisees, &c., who, tempting him, ask to be shewn 'a sign from heaven.'

— xvi. 2, 3. ——— Jesus reminds them that the signs of the evening were different from those of the morning. They could discern the face of the sky; if they were equally honest in their inquiries in the things of God, they might as well discern 'the signs of the times;' and not thus, at his first coming, ask for a sign connected with his second advent.

Mt. xvi. 4. Mk. ——— To that 'wicked and adulterous generation' there should no sign be given, but that of the prophet Jonas.

——— — viii. 12. Jesus sighs deeply in spirit, and intimates that the sign, the sufferings of Christ, to be given in that generation, they were unprepared to perceive.

MATT. xv. 39—xvi. 1—4.

39 [a]And he-sent-away the multitude,[b] and-took ship,

and came into the coasts of-Magdala.
Ch. xvi. 1. The Pharisees also [c]with the-Sadducees[d] came,

[e]and-tempting desired him that-he-wouldshew them a-sign from ϵκ heaven.

MARK viii. 10—.2.

[b]And straightway he-entered into a ship 10 with his disciples, and-came into the parts of-Dalmanutha.
And the Pharisees[c] 11

[d]came-forth,
and began to-question with-him, seeking of him a-sign from ano heaven, tempting him.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xv. 39. sent away the multitude—the four thousand whom he had miraculously fed in the wilderness eastward of the sea of Galilee, ver. 32—.8; Mk. viii. 1—9. § 46, p. 26; so after feeding the five thousand, Mt. xiv 22; Mk. vi. 45, § 41, p. 317.

Mk viii. 10. with his disciples—he now accompanied his disciples to the western side of the lake, whereas after the former feeding he had constrained them to go away alone, Mt. xiv. 22, &c., § ib.

parts of Dalmanutha—'coasts of Magdala,' Mt. xv.39.

Mt. xvi. 1. the Pharisees—see on ch. iii. 7, § 7, p. 52 —their attention was much occupied with outward washings—see before, Mk. vii. 1—13, § 44, p. 4—to the neglect of inward purity, Mt. xxiii. 25—.8, § 85, p. 317—they rested in the typical sacrifices, and saw not their need of Christ, as 'the end of the law for righteousness,' Rom. x. 4; as coming in the flesh 'to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself,' He. ix. 26.

Sadducees—as the Pharisees denied the truth connected with Christ's first coming, so did the Sadducees the truth regarding his second advent: Christ comes to 'reward every man according to his works,' ch. xvi. 27, § 50, p. 43—but the possibility of this the Sadducees denied, in refusing to acknowledge the existence of angel or spirit, Ac. xxiii. 8, or to believe in a resurrection of the body, Mt. xxii. 23, § 85, p. 300—thus had these two sects made void the word of God—the one, with regard to Christ's first coming; and the other, the promise of his coming in glory.

tempting—they had before asked why he ate with sinners, ch. ix. 11, § 36, p. 277—why his disciples prepared food on the sabbath, Lu. vi. 1, 2, § 24, p. 188 —why they partook of food with unwashen hands Mt. xv. 2, § 44, p. 5—all these questions had been concerning eating, on which subject Jesus had lately spoken so as to offend them, ver. xv. 12, § ib. p. 8—hereafter, their questions are of various kinds, and seem to have been proposed with a desire to entangle him in his talk—see ch. xix. 3, § 74, p. 218: xxii. 15—.8, 35, .6, §§ 84, .5, pp. 295, 304; Jno. viii. 6, § 55 p. 99.

a sign—they may have thought that he had rather evaded the demand made in the synagogue at Capernaum, 'What sign shewest thou then, that we may see, and believe thee? what dost thou work?' Jno. vi. 30, § 43, p. 327—a like demand had been previously made by the Pharisees, Mt. xii. 38, § 31, p. 238—they

NOTES.

Mt. xv. 39. Magdala means Tower, and from which probably was Mary Magdalene, ch. xxvii. 55, .6. § 92; xxviii. 1, § 93; Lu. viii. 2, § 30, p. 233. Mary Magdalene was a native of Galilee. Had Magdala been on the eastern side of the lake, she would have been a native of Perea.

Mk. viii. 10. Dalmanutha was west of the sea of Tiberias, in the district of Magdala. 'These were either different denominations for the same region, or separate denominations for distinct but contiguous regions. And as our Lord before was at Bethsaida, on the eastern side of the lake, and in order to arrive at Magdala would have to cross "to the other side," we may infer that each of these regions, whether the same or adjacent, were yet situate on the western side of the lake.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. p. 360.

[Mt. xvi. 1. A sign from heaven. Their not acknowledging our Lord as the Messiah, was owing, neither to the want of evidence, nor capacity to judge of that evidence. This our Saviour signified in the reproof which he gave them; for discerning so accurately, by the appearance of the sky, what sort of weather would be, whilst they were so stupid as not to understand, by the accomplishment of the ancient prophecies, Ge. xlix. 10; Is. xi. 1; xxxv. 5; Da. ix. 24, (see 'Scrip. Illus.' ver. 3, p. 29,) and by the miracles which he performed, that the time foretold by the prophets, and expected by all ages, even the time of the Messiah, was at hand. By 'a sign from heaven,' was probably meant some peculiar manifestation from thence, as 'fire from heaven,' 1 Ki. xviii. 23—38; or a glorious appearance in the heaven—see on Mt. xii. 38, § 31, p. 238. 'This is the second instance of the kind in the first three Gospels.'—Greswell, Vol. II. p. 360.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mt. xvi. 1. It is no new thing for superstition to league itself with infidelity, in opposition to the cause of truth; thus even when our Saviour was personally upon earth, the Pharisees were joined with the Sadducees in this evil work.

Although it be fair and right to question religious teachers as to the truth and tendency of their doctrines, yet we must beware of a cavilling spirit, and of evil intent in so doing.

* Lesson 46, in the System of Graduated Simultaneous Instruction, embraces Sections 47, .8, .9.

CURSED BE HE THAT MAKETH THE BLIND TO WANDER OUT OF THE WAY.—Deut. xxvii. 18.
THEIR WINE IS THE POISON OF DRAGONS, AND THE CRUEL VENOM OF ASPS.—Deut. xxxii. 33.

MATT. xvi. 2—4. MARK.

2 He answered and-said unto-them, When-it-is evening, ye-say, It will be fair-wea-
3 ther εὐδία: for the sky is-red. And in-the-morning, It will be foul-weather χειμων to-day: for the sky is-red and-lowring στυγναζων. O ye hypocrites, ye-can γινωσ-κετε discern the face of-the sky; but can-
4 ye not discern the signs of-the times? A-wicked and adulterous generation seeketh-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

are now more definite, and ask a sign from heaven—the mission of Moses was attested by numerous signs, some of which were from heaven—at the word of Joshua the sun was stayed in its course in the heaven, Jos. x. 12—4—and at that of Isaiah it went back ten degrees upon the sun dial of Ahaz, Is. xxxviii. 8—in the case of Samuel the sign of thunder was given, 1 Sa. xii. 16—8—Elijah had made his public appearance with the announcement, 'As the LORD God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand, there shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to my word,' 1 Ki. xvii. 1—' and it rained not on the earth by the space of three years and six months. And he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit,' Ja. v. 17, .8—it had been intimated that Messiah should himself appear in the heavens, Da. vii. 13—and that wonders in the heavens &c., should precede the day of the Lord, Joel ii. 30, .1, 'And I will shew wonders in the heavens and in the earth, blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and the terrible day of the LORD come'—. . . . . ' overlooking the coming of the Messiah in humiliation, as Is. liii., &c., and applying to the first advent predictions that belong to the second, these men were wise in their own conceit, in place of being wise to know the signs of that particular time—see ver. 3—Jesus had already given a sign correspondent to the object of his first coming—his coming to give himself, the bread of life, for the life of the world—see on Jno. vi. § 43, pp. 325—.34—and see on ch. ii. 18, § 12, p. 81, &c.

Mt. xvi. 2, 3. when it is evening, ye say, &c., and in the morning, &c.—they were able to discern between the signs belonging to the evening, and those belonging to the morning—had they exercised their minds with equal impartiality and diligence upon spiritual things, they would have distinguished between the signs of their time, which was to be followed by a long and dark night, Jno. ix. 4, § 55, p. 109, during which they were in danger of being left to wander in darkness, xii. 35, § 82, p. 269, and the signs belonging to that blessed morning, in the prospect of which the disciples are invited to lift up their heads, Lu. xxi. 25—8, § 86, p. 337.

3. hypocrites—this was their general character, see ch. xxiii. § 85—and particularly so in the present instance—they had come tempting him, ver. 1, p. 28.

but can ye not discern—so Lu. xii. 54—6, § 63, p. 170—Je. viii. 7—9. 'Yea, the stork in the heaven knoweth her appointed times; and the turtle and the crane and the swallow observe the time of their coming; but my people know not the judgment of the LORD. 8, How do ye say, We are wise, and the law of the LORD is with us? Lo, certainly in vain made he it; the pen of the scribes is in vain. 9, The wise men are ashamed, they are dismayed and taken: lo, they have rejected the word of the LORD; and what wisdom is in them?'

the signs of the times—not signs of the time; but the signs belonging to one time, from those belonging to another—the signs to precede or accompany the first appearing of Christ were come—the messenger before his face, Mal. iii. 1—the seventy weeks predicted in Daniel ix. 24—the departure of the sceptre from Judah, Ge. xlix. 10—Edom had in the family of Herod been given the dominion, xxvii. 40—comp. Ps. ii. 1, 2, 'Why do the heathen rage?' &c., and Ac. iv. 27, 'For of a truth against thy holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Israel, were gathered together'—and especially was it predicted that Messiah should appear in the very circumstances in which Jesus is now found, Is. liii. 2, 3, 'For he shall grow up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he hath no form nor comeliness; and when we shall see him, no form nor comeliness that we should desire him. 3, He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not'—thus their very unbelief and despite witnessed to the truth of his Messiahship.

4. a wicked and adulterous generation—alluding, probably, in a pointed manner to the characteristics of the two sects—the wicked or malevolent Pharisees, ch. xxiii. 25—34, § 85, p. 317; and the adulterous Sadducees or Herodians, who were willing to prostitute the church to worldly purposes, giving unto Cæsar the things that were God's, xxii. 15—21, § 84, p. 295, &c.—when a people repose that confidence in the creature, and yield that obedience which belongs to God alone, they are said to be 'adulterous.'

seeketh after a sign—' The wicked, through the pride of his countenance, will not seek after God: God is not in all his thoughts,' Ps. x. 4—they seek not after God: they desire not fellowship with the Father of lights, the eternal, the everlasting God, but after a sign; that which for a while gratifies the senses—that whose existence is limited, and which is only the outward indication of something more important—the Jews continued seeking after a sign, 1 Co. i. 18—25.

NOTES.

Mt. xvi. 2, 3. He answered, &c. The meaning of this answer is, There are certain indications by which you judge about the weather. In the evening you think you can predict the weather to-morrow. You have evidence in the redness of the sky by which you judge. So there are sufficient indications on which you should judge concerning me and this time.

In the morning ... the sky is red and lowering. That is, there are dark and threatening clouds in the sky, which in the east are made red by the rays of the rising sun. This, in Judea, was the sign of a tempest.

Ye can discern the face, &c. The wise men published an annual judgment on the rains of the coming year.

Can ye not discern the signs, &c. If they had not been influenced by malice, and if their minds had not been blinded by prejudice, the Jews might with very little sagacity have discerned the variety of signs which marked out this time for the arrival of the Messiah.—See ' Scrip. Illus.' supra.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mt. xvi. 2, 3. The same faculties of observation, which are occupied successfully in noting the phenomena of nature, connected with our temporal interests, would, if we were truly in earnest about the cause of God, be as sedulously and successfully employed in discerning 'the signs of the times,' with regard to God's great working in providence. We ought not to be ignorant of what God has predicted in his word, nor of what he, in his providence, is accomplishing, according as he foretold.]

MATT. xvi. 4.

after a-sign; and there-shall-'no sign'-be-given unto-it, but the sign of-the prophet Jonas.

[Remainder of ver. 4, § 48, p. 31.]

MARK viii. 12.

And he-sighed-deeply ἀναστενάξας in-his 12 spirit, and-saith, Why doth-'this generation'-seek-after a-sign? verily I-say unto-you, There-shall-'no sign'-be-given unto-this generation.

[Ver. 13, § 48, p. 31.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. viii. 12. sighed deeply in his spirit, &c.—longing for the full accomplishment of that of which he spoke to the woman of Samaria—'The hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him,' Jno. iv. 23, § 13, p. 94—'he sighed,' Mk. vii. 34, § 46, p. 25.

Why doth this generation seek? &c.—why should they be so desirous of seeing the sign of Messiah's coming in glory, seeing they are so unprepared to stand in the judgment?—'Who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth?' Mal. iii. 2—'Woe unto you that desire the day of the LORD! to what end is it for you? the day of the LORD is darkness, and not light,' &c., Am. v. 18—20.

no sign...unto this generation—no sign such as they desired—'a sign from heaven,' ver. 11, p. 28—a sign of Messiah's appearing in glory—this was about to take place on the Holy Mount, Mt. xvii. 1, &c., § 51, p. 51—but they who could not, in his humiliation, see the sign of his exaltation, were not to be privileged with seeing 'the king in his beauty'—in this sign even the chosen disciples had previously to be instructed, ver. 31; ix. 1, § 50, p. 44—in looking for another sign than what belonged to their time, the Pharisees were overlooking the signs already given, and which were the very signs predicted—refusing these, they were to have none whatever—see on 'signs of the times,' Mt. xvi. 3, p. 29.

NOTES.

[Mt. xvi. 4. But the sign of the prophet Jonas. Christ had already wrought miracles sufficient to demonstrate both his divine mission, and his divinity; only one more was necessary to take away the scandal of his cross and death, to fulfil the Scriptures, and to establish the Christian religion; and that was, his resurrection from the dead, which he here states was typified in the case of Jonah.]

[The prophet Jonas, who, as a propitiation, was cast out into the devouring deep, where he remained three days and three nights; at the expiration of which he was cast forth alive, Jon. i., ii. . . . . So was Jesus, as a propitiation, exposed for three days and three nights to the deepest humiliation, amid the rage of priests and people; and at length he arose in resurrection life, three days and three nights after he knew that his death was determined upon—see Mt. xxvi. 14—6, [Mk. xiv. 10, 1; Lu. xxii. 3—6,] § 86, p. 356. And as Jonah went to Nineveh, whither Israel was to be carried: so Christ, after his resurrection, in the preaching of the gospel, has come in the direction in which the lost sheep of the house of Israel were afterwards to be found, Rev vii. 2.]

[Mk. viii. 12. Sighed deeply in his spirit. ἀναστενάξας τῷ πν. The ἀνα is intensive, and signifies what is deep (for the notions of height and depth concur); i.e. 'having fetched a deep groan, or sigh from the very heart;' his soul, his heart, was deeply affected at their wickedness and hypocrisy—revolving in his mind some new proof of the obduracy of the people.]

'In this history, the answer which St. Matthew ascribes to Jesus was most probably returned to the inquirers on the spot. The conduct and language ascribed to Jesus by St. Mark, we may suppose would be to his disciples in private, when the parties concerned in it had been dismissed.'—See Greswell, Vol. II. pp. 351, .2

PRACTICAL REFLECTION.

Mt. xvi. 4. To have the advantage of the signs which God is pleased to give, for confirmation of his word, it is necessary that we be sincere seekers after truth, and simply obedient thereto, when it is made known to us. A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign in vain. None of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall understand. Da. xii. 10.

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICES.

DALMANUTHA, p. 28.

DALMANUTHA—see NOTE, Mk. viii. 10.—Of DALMANUTHA nothing is left which can lead us to conjecture its site, but the gospel history. From that history it seems that Magdala and Dalmanutha were both on the western side of the lake. The Evangelists Matthew and Mark agree in determining the second miracle of feeding the multitude to have occurred 'nigh to the sea of Galilee;' Jesus passed through the midst of Decapolis, a region on the eastern side of the lake: after which, according to Mt. xv. 39, 'he sent away the multitude, and took ship, and came into the coasts of MAGDALA;' and Mk. viii. 10, as plainly affirms, that 'he entered into a ship with his disciples, and came into the parts of DALMANUTHA.' If Jesus crossed the lake from the region of Decapolis, he must have gone to the western side of it. The narrative proceeds in Mt. xvi. 4, 5, § 48, p. 31: (the Pharisees having demanded a sign,) 'he left them, and departed. And when his disciples were come to the other side;' this must have been to the eastern side; which is corroborated by Mark—see viii. 13, 'And he left them, and entering into the ship again, departed to the other side.' In the 22nd ver. he expressly says, 'And he cometh to Bethsaida,' after which both these Evangelists state, that Jesus came into the coasts of Cæsarea Philippi, with which neighbourhood Bethsaida, on the eastern side of the lake, is easily reconcilable.

MAGDALA, p. 28.

MAGDALA 'is recognised in the modern el-Mejdel, about three miles north of Tiberias, on the western side of the lake. The name Mejdel is obviously the same with the Hebrew Migdal-el, of Joshua xix. 38, "in the tribe of Naphtali," and the Greek Magdala of the New Testament, chiefly known as the residence of Mary Magdalene. The ancient notices of its position are exceedingly indefinite; the Rabbins in the Jerusalem Talmud, compiled at Tiberias, several times speak of Magdala as adjacent to Tiberias and Hammath, or the hot springs. Mejdel is at present a miserable little Muslim village, looking much like a ruin, though exhibiting no marks of antiquity.* It lies at the S.E. corner of the plain, supposed to be

* 'The houses are certainly mean enough; but we observed among them some indications of ancient ruins, both of walls and foundations. In the rocks on the clefts adjoining the place there are several conspicuous caverns.'—Dr. Wilson, 'Lands of the Bible,' Vol. II. p. 136.

IF THOU SHALT CONFESS WITH THY MOUTH THE LORD JESUS, AND SHALT BELIEVE IN THINE HEART THAT GOD HATH RAISED HIM FROM THE DEAD, THOU SHALT BE SAVED.—Rom. x. 9.

the rich region of Gennesareth, which see, Sect. xlii. p. 323, Vol. I. From Mejdel, the coast onwards trends off towards the N.N.E., leaving a beautiful plain an hour in length and about twenty minutes in breadth, forming almost a crescent.'—Robinson's Biblical Researches, Vol. III. pp. 276, ..7.

'From el-Mejdel is to be viewed the whole of the upper margin of the lake, which appears like a semicircle; and where Jordan enters is easily seen in the opening of the hills. The eastern mountains in the region of Bashan are steep and lofty, not a single tree to be discerned. The ridge of Hermon in the north, sprinkled with snow, forms the grandest object in sight. The deep serenity and calm, with the bright sun playing upon the waters, and the curious insects—one species shaped like a frog, and green as the leaves on which they sat—peopling the oleanders and other shrubs which margin the lake, give rise to many sad, yet pleasing emotions. From Mejdel, the margin of the lake takes a turn to the S.E.; and as the hills approach close to the lake, the pathway is often a considerable height above the water: sometimes a wady, or mountain stream, descends from the hills, and the shore forms a gentle sloping cove, with a pebbly beach, and then again becomes abrupt.' —Ibid.

'It was probably on such pebbly spots that Jesus walked, and the people gathered around him till the pressure of eager listeners was so great, that to escape their importunity he entered into a ship, and sat and taught, as the whole multitude stood on the shore. And perhaps it was in one such solitary walk, round one of these retired coves, that he called James and John, having left Andrew and Simon, and passed on a little further thence.'

SECTION 48.—(G. 6.)—[Lesson 46, continued.]—JESUS RETURNS TO BETHSAIDA; AND ON THE WAY CAUTIONS HIS DISCIPLES AGAINST THE LEAVEN OF THE PHARISEES, AND CERTAIN OTHER SECTS. Matt. xvi. 4—12. Mark viii. 13—21.—[Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. pp. 362, ..3.]

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. xvi. 4. Mk. viii. 13. Jesus leaves the Pharisees; and, re-entering the ship, departs to the other side.

— xvi. 5. — viii. 14. The disciples having forgotten to take bread have only one loaf with them in the ship.

— xvi. 6. — viii. 15. Jesus charges his disciples to 'take heed,' and also to 'beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees, and of the leaven of Herod. NOTE—Herod seems to have made use of religion as an instrument of state policy; as the Jewish sects did, for the exaltation of the priesthood: the Pharisees looking for their support from the people, and the Herodians putting their trust in the prince.

— xvi. 7. — viii. 16. The disciples suppose that Jesus is reproaching them on account of their not having taken heed to provide a sufficiency of bread.

— xvi. 8—10. — viii. 17, .8. Jesus earnestly expostulates with them for their want of understanding, and laments their little faith. He reminds them of the two miracles of feeding which had lately taken place, near where they now were; and bids them note the number of loaves, and the number of the men that were fed, and the quantity left in each case.

Mt. ——— Mk. viii. 19, 20. He makes the disciples repeat to him these particulars. NOTE—Giving them thus an example of the manner in which they were to instruct others, when given the keys of the kingdom of heaven, and privileged to dispense the bread of life to the famishing multitudes, both of Jews and of Gentiles.

— xvi. 11. — viii. 21. Again he asks them 'How is it that ye do not understand?' It was not concerning bread for the body that he bade them beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees; but regarding that food for the soul, which, as being made stewards of the household of faith, they were to be employed in distributing to the people.

— xvi. 12. ——— They now understand that he had bidden them beware 'of the doctrine of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees.' NOTE—They, by leaning upon earth, the one upon the people, the other upon the prince, had alike come short of the truth respecting the great object of divine revelation—Christ in his first and second advents; the knowledge of which was now more fully to be given to the disciples.—And see NOTE, ver. 6, p. 32.

No 48 Line from Dalmanutha across the lake to Bethsaida in Decapolis

MATT. xvi. 4—12. [Ver. 4, § xlvii. p. 30.]	MARK viii. 13—21. [Ver. 12, § xlvii. p. 30.]
And he-left them, and-	"And he-left them, and	13
departed	entering into the ship again departed to the other-side.[5]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. viii. 13. entering into the ship again—Jesus re-embarked in the same vessel in which he had passed from the eastern side of the lake, ver. 10, p. 28—he now went 'to the other side' from where the preceding conversation took place—Mark says that they 'departed to the other side,' and Matthew speaks of what took place when they 'were come to the other side,' Mt. xvi. 5, p. 32—they now, therefore, appear to have returned to the same side where Jesus parted with the multitude that had followed him from the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, and from Decapolis, Mk. vii. 24—viii. 9, §§ 45, .6, pp. 13—27—his short stay on the western side of the lake may have been just sufficient to give time for the multitude to disperse entirely—see also after the feeding of the five thousand, Jno. vi. 15, &c., § 41, p. 317.

THE CURSE OF THE LORD IS IN THE HOUSE OF THE WICKED: BUT HE BLESSETH THE HABITATION OF THE JUST.—PROV. iii. 33.

THE WISE IN HEART WILL RECEIVE COMMANDMENTS: BUT A PRATING FOOL SHALL FALL.—PROV. x. 8.

Matt. xvi. 5—7.	Mark viii. 14—6.
5 [b]And when [c]his disciples were come to the other-side, they had-forgotten to-take bread.[a]	Now the disciples 14 had-forgotten to-take bread, [a]neither had-they in the ship with them more-than one loaf.[d]
6 [d]Then Jesus[e] said unto-them, [f]Take-heed and beware of the leaven of-the Pharisees and of-the-Sadducees.[g]	And he- 15 [e]charged them, saying,[f] Take-heed, beware of the leaven of-the Pharisees, [g]and of-the leaven of-Herod.
7 And they reasoned among themselves, saying, [h]It is because we-have-taken no bread.	And they-reasoned among themselves, 16 saying,[h] It is because we-have no bread.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvi. 6. Take heed—the disciples had need of the admonition—' Only take heed to thyself, and keep thy soul diligently, lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen,' De. iv. 9—' Take heed, and hearken, O Israel; this day thou art become the people of the Lord thy God. 10, Thou shalt therefore obey the voice of the Lord thy God, and do his commandments and his statutes,' xxvii. 9, 10—the need they had of being admonished to remember the works, and attend to the words of the Lord immediately appears, ver. 18—23, &c., § 50, pp. 37—41.

beware of the leaven, &c.—see on ch. xiii. 33, § 32, p. 248—in reproach of ancient Israel it was said, 'Offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving with leaven, and proclaim and publish the free offerings: for this liketh you, O ye children of Israel, saith the Lord God,' Am. iv. 5—the same ostentatious love of display actuated the scribes and Pharisees—' All their works they do for to be seen of men,' Mt. xxiii. 5, § 85, p. 318—in place of humbling themselves to be taught of God, their religion consisted in pomp and lording it over others—the disciples of Christ were not to follow such teachers, l—12 § ib. p. 312—To the Corinthians, 1 Co. v. 6—8, who were puffed up, it is said, 'Your glorying is not good. Know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump? 7, Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened. For even Christ our Passover is sacrificed [or slain] for us: 8, therefore let us keep the feast [or the holy day], not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.'

of the Pharisees—who fashioned their doctrine and deportment so as to give them favour with the people—teaching self-righteousness, to the rejection of the Lord our Righteousness, Ro. x. l—11; Ph. iii. 5—9—the leaven of the Pharisees is said to have been hypocrisy, Lu. xii. l, § 63, p. 163—all their works they did to be seen of men—Peter was in danger of being biassed in his statements and conduct by the character and opinions of those around him—see on Mt. xvi. 3, p. 29.

Mk. viii. 15. leaven of Herod—see on Mt. xvi. 6—supra.

NOTES.

Mt. xvi. 5. Were come to the other side, viz., the coast of Bethsaida. Our Lord was now on his way to Cæsarea Philippi, see ver. 13, § 50, p. 35; and Mk. viii 22, .7, §§ 49, 50, pp. 34, .5.

[6. Take heed (an emphatical expression, mind and studiously attend to—Be on your guard) and beware of the leaven, &c. Our Saviour fitly compared the doctrine of the Pharisees and Sadducees to leaven, because of its pernicious influence to sour men's tempers with pride and other evil passions. Leaven is used in making bread. Its use is to pass through the flour, and cause it to ferment or to swell, and become light. It passes secretly, silently, but certainly. None can see its progress. So it was with the doctrines of the Pharisees. They were insinuating, artful, plausible. They concealed the real tendency of their doctrines, they instilled them secretly into the mind, and they pervaded all the faculties, like leaven. The doctrine of the Pharisees led to superstition, pride, and hypocrisy; that of the Sadducees to the denial of a divine Providence and of a future state of existence. This was the leaven of which Christ bade his disciples beware. For the tenets of the Pharisees and Sadducees—see the Notes on ch. iii. 7, § 7, p. 52. Erroneous doctrines are like leaven in the following respects: 1st. They are at first slight and unimportant in appearance. 2nd. They are insinuated into the soul unawares and silently, and are difficult of detection. 3rd. They act gradually. 4th. They act most certainly. 5th. They will pervade all the soul, and bring all the faculties under their control.]

Mk. viii. 15. The leaven of Herod. In Matthew, it is 'of the Sadducees;' which are both the same, Herod and his courtiers being Sadducees or favourers of them: or the Sadducees being sticklers for Herod and his government, of which the Pharisees had no good opinion.

Mt. xvi. 6. And of the Sadducees, whose rejection of the resurrection and other truths connected with the second advent, allowed of their bending considerably to expediency in order to please the ruling power. Of this sect, probably, were the sect called after Herod, who was himself a singular example of looseness of principle.

[Notice the practical refutation given to the doctrine of the Pharisees—all being fed in company, and by the same means, without those distinctions on account of ceremonial cleanness which was the great burthen of their teaching. 'The leaven of the Pharisees' was still farther opposed by this, that the same appears to have been in the second miracle of feeding, wrought for Gentiles, as had been in the first for Jews indiscriminately.]

[The practical atheism of the Herodians, who treated religion merely or chiefly as a matter of state policy, and who conducted matters upon the supposition that God does not directly interfere in human affairs, was also contradicted by the fact of

PRACTICAL REFLECTION.

[Mt. xvi. 6. We should take heed and beware of the false principles that prevail around us; as, although we may not formally adopt them, yet it is with difficulty we can be kept from their influencing our opinions and conduct.]

MATT. xvi. 8—10.

8 Which when-'Jesus'-perceived γνους, he-said unto-them,
O-ye-of-little-faith,
why reason-ye among yourselves,
because ye-have-brought no bread?
9 Do-ye-'not-yet'-understand,[i] neither remember

[k] the five loaves of-the five-thousand, and 10 how-many baskets ye-took-up? Neither the seven loaves of-the four-thousand, and how-many baskets ye-took-up?[l]

MARK viii. 17—21.

And when-'Jesus'-knew γνους it, 17
he-saith unto-them,

Why reason-ye,
because ye-have no bread?
[i] perceive-ye not-yet, neither understand?
have-ye your heart yet hardened πεπωρωμενην?
Having eyes, see-ye not? and having 18 ears, hear-ye not?
and do-ye-'not'-remember?[k]

[l] When I-brake the five loaves among five- 19 thousand, how-many baskets full of-fragments took-ye-up? They-say unto-him, Twelve. And when the seven among 20 four-thousand, how-many baskets full of-fragments took-ye-up? And they said,
Seven. And he-said unto-them,[m] 21

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvi. 9. Do ye not yet understand?—As if alluding to what he had before said respecting that which defileth—'Hear, and understand,' ch. xv. 10, 16, 17, § 44, pp. 8, 9.

Mk. viii. 18. Having eyes, see ye not?—a description of those who content themselves with the outside of religion, who receive not the truth contained in the words of a parable—'Go, and tell this people, Hear ye indeed, but understand not; and see ye indeed, but perceive not,' Is. vi. 9—'this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them,' Mt. xiii. 15, § 32, p. 248.

do ye not remember?—They had been exhorted to the remembrance of what was done by the Lord, as well as that they were earnestly to listen to his instructions—see on 'Take heed,' Mt. xvi. 6, p. 32.

Mt. xvi. 9. five loaves of the five thousand, &c.—the abundance provided for the multitude who had come together from the cities on the shores of the sea of Galilee—see xiv. 13—21, § 40, pp. 310—4.

Mk. viii. 19. baskets... Twelve—the word which is here translated baskets, is the same as that made use of by the four evangelists in describing the first feeding, Mt. xiv. 20; Mk. vi. 43; Lu. ix. 17; Jno. vi. 13, § 40, p. 314.

Mt. xvi. 10. seven loaves of the four thousand, &c.—the sufficiency for the multitude that had followed him from the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, &c., xv. 29—38, [Mk. vii. 31—viii. 9,] § 46, pp. 24—7.

Mk. viii. 20. baskets... Seven—the word here translated baskets is different from the former, and is the same with that used by Mt. xv. 37, and Mk. viii. 8, § 46, p. 27, in describing the second feeding.

NOTES.

five thousand being abundantly fed from five loaves; whilst seven loaves were made to answer the purpose for a smaller number of people. The supply was according to the wants of the case: the baskets of fragments being larger and more in number, when the supply had been smaller and the demand greater.]

'From the accidental circumstance of their having forgotten to lay in before their departure any supply of bread; (implying that in their journeyings to and fro, they were accustomed to carry with them their own provision, and also that their departure from Magdala had been precipitate and sudden;) and because they were aware that the mutual animosity of the Jewish sects made them avoid, as much as possible, all dealings, even of buying or selling, with those of an opposite αἱρεσις or party: the apostles interpreted literally.'—Greswell.

Mt. xvi. 8. O ye of little faith! After the works they had so lately witnessed, they should have known that Jesus referred to something more important than bread for the body. The miracles had been full proof that he could supply all their wants without such anxiety.

[9. baskets. In the relation formerly given of both miracles, and here, where our Lord recapitulates the principal circumstances of each, the distinction of the vessels employed for holding the fragments is the vessels employed for holding the fragments is carefully marked in the Greek; being in ver. 9, κοφινους, and in ver. 10, σπυριδας. The former is a basket or a little pannier of a larger size than the latter; σπυρις signifying properly a mound or hand-basket. Yet in the old Glossaries, κόφινος is rendered by Corbis, Corbula, Quadrus, Cista; and σπυρις by Sporta, Fiscella, Fiscina; all of which have the same signification.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xvi. 6—12. Let us never forget, that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump; and that we ought to purge out the old leaven, that we may be a new lump, 1 Co. v. 6, 7.

[7—9 ver. The self-righteousness of the Pharisees, the philosophic pride of the Sadducees, and the worldliness of the Herodians, alike operate upon the mind, so as to make it reject the testimony of Jesus, as having come to save his people from their sins; and make them meet, through his grace, for the inheritance of the saints in light.]

MATTHEW xvi. 11, .2.	MARK viii. 21.
11 ᵐ How is it that ye-do-not-understand νοειτε that I-spake it not to-you concerning bread, that-ye-should-beware of the leaven of-the Pharisees and of-the-Sadducees?	How is it that ye-do-not-understand συνιετε?
12 Then understood-they how that he-bade them not beware of the leaven of bread, but of the doctrine of-the Pharisees and of-the-Sadducees. [Ver. 13, § 1. p. 35.]

NOTES.

Mk. viii. 21. How is it that ye do not understand?—this is the seventh time he has put a similar question, ver. 17—21.
1. Perceive ye not yet? ver. 17.
2. Neither understand? ib.
3. Have ye your heart yet hardened? ib.
4. Having eyes, see ye not? ver. 18.
5. And having ears, hear ye not? ib.
6. And do ye not remember? ib.
7. How is it that ye do not understand? 21.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xvi. 8. Our faith in Jesus is to be a living faith, leading us to a fixedness of trust in him, as our all-sufficient Provider, both for time and eternity; so that we need not fear want in following the Lamb whithersoever he goeth.

9, 10 ver. We should have a lively remembrance of the Lord's past interpositions in our behalf, or in behalf of others through our instrumentality; that so we may the better be enabled to resist temptation to unbelief; to which, as being among unbelievers, we are constantly exposed.

11, .2 ver. We should not be so anxious about temporal provision, as about that which was so constantly the theme of our Lord's discourses—the nourishment of the soul.

SECTION 49.—(G. 7.)—[Lesson 46, continued.]—JESUS HEALS A BLIND MAN AT BETHSAIDA. Mark viii. 22—.6.—[See Greswell, Vol. II. pp. 363—.6.]

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mk. viii. 22—.6. Having come to Bethsaida, a blind man is brought to Jesus; who leads the man out of the city, and gradually, and as if in private, gives him the power of seeing clearly. NOTE.—Jesus had a little before, and not far from the same locality, in a similar manner, opened the ears and loosed the tongue of one deaf and dumb, Mk. vii. 32—.7, § 46, p. 24; . . . . still more recently, he had reproached his disciples, saying, 'Having eyes, see ye not? and having ears, hear ye not?' viii. 18, § 48, p. 33; . . . . . he was about to open their ears to hear of his sufferings, ver. 31, &c., § 50, p. 40, and their eyes to behold his glory, ix. 1, 2, §§ 50, .1, pp. 44, 51; . . . . he, more particularly, gradually, and by various means, now began to exercise their senses in discerning good from evil, and one truth from another.

No. 49. At Bethsaida, in Decapolis. MARK viii. 22—.6.

22 And he-cometh to Bethsaida; and they-bring a-blind-man unto-him, and besought him
23 to touch him. And he-took the blind-man by-the hand, and-led him out-of the town; and when-he-had-spit on his eyes, and-put his hands upon-him, he-asked him if he-saw
24 ought. And he-looked-up, and-said, I-see men as trees, walking. 25 After that he-put his hands again upon his eyes, and made him look-up: and he-was-restored ἀπεκατε-
26 στάθη, and saw every-man clearly τηλαυγως. And he-sent-him-away to his house, saying, Neither go into the town, nor tell it to-any in the town. [Ver. 27, § 1. p. 35.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. viii. 22. Bethsaida—In a desert belonging to the city called Bethsaida, the feeding of the five thousand appears to have taken place—see Lu. ix. 10, § 40, p. 310—and Gkos. NOTES, § ib., p. 315.

blind man—the case of this blind man appears to be a good deal parallel to that of one who was deaf, whom they brought unto Jesus upon his previous entrance into Decapolis, ch. vii. 32—.7, § 46, pp. 24, .5.

besought him to touch him—'they beseech him to put his hand upon him,' 32, § ib.

23. And he took the blind man by the hand, &c.—'And he took him aside from the multitude,' 33, § ib.

and when he had spit on his eyes—'and put his fingers into his ears, and he spit,' 33, § ib.

25. After that he put his hands again upon his eyes, and made him look up, &c.—'and touched his tongue; and looking up,' &c., ver. 33, .4, § ib.

28. nor tell it to any, &c.—'And he charged them that they should tell no man,' &c., ver. 36, § ib. p. 25.

see afterwards a similar injunction to the disciples before the Transfiguration, ch. viii 30, § 50, p. 38—and again upon coming down from the mount, ix. 9, § 51, p. 57—the first upon being given to hear of Jesus as the Christ, Mt. xvi. 16, .7, 20, § 50, pp. 38, .9—and the second upon being privileged to see Christ in his kingdom, Mk. ix. 1—9, §§ 50, .1, pp. 44, 51—they were just before reproached as both deaf and blind, ch. viii. 18, § 48, p. 33.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. viii. 23—.5. Our Lord used means, which might hide his divine power from the natural eye, but not from the pure in heart; who would rather see in the simplicity and unlikeliness of the means of cure, that the healing virtue was not necessarily in the means, but from him who wrought the miracle. [Jesus is sometimes pleased gradually to open the eyes of the blind, and afterward to give increased correctness of spiritual vision; so that the convert is not to take it for granted, that, because Jesus has given him to see, that now his vision is perfect: the hands of Jesus may yet again require to be put upon him, that he may be able to see every man clearly.]

THEREFORE LET US KEEP THE FEAST, NOT WITH OLD LEAVEN, NEITHER WITH THE LEAVEN OF MALICE AND WICKEDNESS; BUT WITH THE UNLEAVENED BREAD OF SINCERITY AND TRUTH.—1 Cor. v. 8.

SECTION 50.—(G. 8, 9.)—[Lesson 47.]—JESUS VISITS THE VICINITY OF CÆSAREA PHILIPPI; HE INQUIRES OF HIS DISCIPLES, FIRST, WHOM THE PEOPLE AT LARGE, AND THEN WHOM THEY THEMSELVES, CONSIDERED HIM TO BE; PETER ANSWERS IN THE NAME OF THE REST: AND IS BLESSED BY JESUS. FROM THIS TIME FORWARD JESUS BEGINS TO FORETELL HIS SUFFERINGS AND DEATH, CIRCUMSTANTIALLY, TO THE DISCIPLES: PETER EXPOSTULATES WITH HIM, AND IS SHARPLY REBUKED: JESUS TAKES OCCASION THENCE TO DISCOURSE BOTH TO HIS DISCIPLES AND TO THE PEOPLE ON THE DUTY OF SELF-DENIAL AND TAKING UP THE CROSS, AND PROCEEDS TO SPEAK OF THE GLORY, PROMISING A VIEW OF THE COMING KINGDOM. Matt. xvi. 13—28. Mark viii. 27—ix. 1. Luke ix. 18—27.—[See Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. p. 367.]

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. xvi. 13. Mk. viii. 27. Jesus, proceeding northward, through Decapolis, comes into the coasts of Cæsarea Philippi: a locality alike remarkable for the victory of faithful Abraham, and the sin and punishment of his unworthy descendants. — See 'Scripture Illustrations.'

———— ———— Lu. ix. 18. Jesus retires for prayer, his disciples being with him.

— xvi. 13, 4. — viii. 27, .8. — ix. 18, .9. Upon recommencing their journey, the disciples, at the request of Jesus, report the opinions expressed by men concerning him.

— xvi. 15, .6. — viii. 29. — ix. 20. Upon being required to state their own views of the Son of man, Peter makes confession, 'Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.'

— xvi. 17—9. ———— ———— Jesus recognises the importance of the truth which Peter has avowed: declares it to be the foundation truth upon which his church should be built. He promises to give unto Peter 'the keys of the kingdom,' and makes known the vast responsibility under which the disciples should be called to act.

— xvi. 20. — viii. 30. — ix. 21. By forbidding them to speak of him as the Christ, intimates that as yet they are unfit for opening up the great truth which Peter had confessed.

— xvi. 21. — viii. 31. — ix. 22. From this time Jesus begins most plainly to present to his disciples, the first grand key-doctrine of divine revelation—his suffering and death.

— xvi. 22. — viii 32. ———— Having spoken that saying openly, Jesus is laid hold upon by Peter, and rebuked, as if he had passed the bounds of both prudence and truth — xvi. 23. — viii. 33. ———— Turning, and looking upon his disciples, Jesus rebukes Peter as an enemy, and as having a greater regard to what man was likely to relish, than to what God was pleased to reveal.

Mt. xvi. 24. Mk. viii. 34. Lu. ix. 23. Jesus having called the people with his disciples, declares still more publicly, and with an application to each individual follower, the truth which Peter had been so unwilling should go abroad.

— xvi. 25. — viii. 35. — ix. 24. He that would preserve his life shall lose it, and he that will lose his life for the sake of that Gospel, the truth respecting which Peter had so strongly opposed, the same shall save it; such being given through the death of Christ, the hope of a blessed resurrection.

— xvi. 26. — viii. 36. — ix. 25. Nothing that a man can receive will compensate him for the loss of his soul.

— xvi. 26. — viii. 37. ———— Man has nothing to give adequate to the redemption of his soul: hence the sufferings of Christ; He having become the Redeemer of those that were lost and had nothing to pay.

— xvi. 27. ———— ———— Jesus proceeds to give the second key of the treasures hid in Christ, the knowledge of the glory connected with the Redeemer's second advent: which is equally opposed to the doctrine of the Sadducees, as was the truth of his first coming to that of the Pharisees. 'The Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works.'

———— ———— — viii. 38. — ix. 26. The danger of Peter's position, as being ashamed of Jesus and of his words.

— xvi. 28. — ix. 1. — ix. 27. Jesus gives promise that some of those standing there should not taste of death till they are privileged to see Christ in his kingdom.

Jesus visits the vicinity of Cæsarea Philippi; he inquires of his disciples, first, whom the people at large, and then whom they themselves, considered him to be; Peter answers in the name of the rest: and is blessed by Jesus.

(G. 8.) No. 50. Line going Northward from Bethsaida

MATT. xvi. 13—20. [Ver. 12, ℓ xlvii. p. 34.]	MARK viii. 27—30. [Ver. 26, ℓ xlix. p. 34.]	LUKE ix. 18—21. [Ver. 17, ℓ xl. p. 314.]
13 When Jesus came into the coasts of Cæsarea Philippi,	27 [a]And Jesus went out, and his disciples, into the towns of Cæsarea Philippi: [b]	[b]And it came to pass, as 18

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATION.

Mt. xvi. 13; Mk. viii. 27. Cæsarea Philippi—the Cæsarea here, at which place is the eastern source of the Jordan, and not far from 'mount Sion, which is Hermon,' De. iv. 48—must be distinguished from Cæsarea, on the Mediterranean, . . . frequently visited by the apostles, Philip, Ac. viii. 40; Paul, ix. 30;

NOTE.

Mt. xvi. 13. Cæsarea Philippi, now Banias, once Paneas, the site of the eastern source of the Jordan, is about one day's journey, east, from Sidon, and one day and a half west, from Damascus. Philip, the tetrarch, embellished and enlarged it, and named it Cæsarea, in honour of the emperor Tiberius; afterwards, in compliment to Nero, it was called Neronias. Philippi was added to distinguish it from Cæsarea, a seaport on the Mediterranean Sea.—See GEOG. NOT. p. 44.

A MAN MAY BASK IN THE BEAMS OF PROSPERITY NOW, AND BURN IN THE FLAMES OF ETERNITY HEREAFTER.

THAT RELIGION IS SPURIOUS WHICH DOES NOT ENABLE US TO RENOUNCE SELF, AND TO BECOME CRUCIFIED UNTO THE WORLD.

MATT. xvi. 14—.6	MARK viii. 28, .9.	LUKE ix. 19, 20.
		he was alone praying, his disciples were with him: [c]
he asked his disciples, saying, Whom do men say that I [d] the Son of man am?	[c] and by the way he asked his disciples, saying unto them, Whom do men say that I [d] am?	and he asked them, saying, Whom say the people that I am?
14 And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist: some, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or [e] one of the prophets	28 And they answered, John the Baptist: but some say, Elias; and others, One of the prophets	19 They answering said, John the Baptist; but some say, Elias; and others say, [e] that one of the old prophets is risen again.
15 He saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am?	29 And he saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am?	20 He said unto them, But whom say ye that I am? [f]
16 [f] And Simon Peter answered and-said, [g]	And Peter answereth and-saith	Peter answering said,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Peter, x. 23, .4, &c.—CÆSAREA PHILIPPI is by some supposed to have been the city anciently called DAN,* the place where Abraham overtook the captors of Lot, and commenced obtaining that victory, consequent upon which he received the blessing from Melchizedek, Ge. xiv.—'And the LORD shewed him (Moses) all the land of Gilead, unto Dan,' De. xxxiv. 1—A city built hereabouts by the Zidonians was called Laish; when a company of Danites took possession of it they called it Dan, 'after the name of Dan their father,' Jud. xviii. 27—.9—'they set up Micah's graven image, which he made, all the time that the house of God was in Shiloh,' ver. 31—Jeroboam made two calves of gold, and said unto them (the Israelites), 'It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem: behold thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt. 29, And he set the one in Beth-el, and the other put he in Dan. 30, And this thing became a sin: for the people went to worship before the one, even unto Dan,' 1 Ki. xii. 28–30—By this device, which appears to have been eminently successful at DAN, where a preparation had, it seems, been made at the very first implanting of the Israelites there, 'Jeroboam drave Israel from following the LORD, and made them sin a great sin . . . . 23, Until the LORD removed Israel out of his sight, as he had said by all his servants the prophets. So was Israel carried away out of their own land to Assyria unto this day,' 2 Ki xvii. 21—.3—It was on this, the north-east part of the land, that the Lord first began to cut Israel short, by the Syrians—'and Hazael smote them in all the coasts of Israel; from Jordan eastward, all the land of Gilead, the Gadites, and the Reubenites, and the Manassites, from Aroer, which is by the river Arnon, even Gilead and Bashan,' x. 32, .3—It was from this quarter also that Israel began to be carried away captive by the Assyrians, xv. 27—.9.

Lu. ix. 18. as he was alone praying—Luke is particular in noticing this characteristic of the Redeemer, as ch. v. 16, § 21, p. 161—see on iii. 21, § 8, p. 59.

Mk. viii. 27. by the way, &c.—Jesus and his disciples had, in the course of their journey, retired for prayer; and on recommencing their walk, he engages them in profitable conversation upon a subject the most interesting in itself, and one of which they were to be the divinely appointed expositors to the world; and for their enlightenment upon which we may suppose the prayer of our Saviour had just before been presented, Lu. ix. 18.

Mt. xvi. 13. the Son of man—see on Jno. i. 51, § 10.

14. John the Baptist—Herod gave currency to this idea, Mk. vi. 16, § 40, p. 305.

Elias—Lu. ix. 8, § ib., p. 305; Mt. xvii. 10—.3, § 51.

15. whom say ye?—'it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven,' Mt. xiii. 11, § 32, p. 244—'unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required: and to whom men have committed much, of him they will ask the more,' Lu. xii. 48, § 63, p. 169.

16. Simon Peter answered, &c.—when many were leaving Jesus, Peter, in the name of the twelve, had

NOTES.

Mt. xvi. 14. Some say John the Baptist. It was the expectation of the Jews, that Elias or Elijah should come again to prepare the way of the Messiah.—See ch. xi. 14, § 29, p. 225. Herod and the Scribes believed in the Pythagorean notion of the transmigration of souls, as implied Mt. xiv. 2; [Mk. vi. 14, .5; Lu. ix. 7, 8;] § 40, p. 305.

[Or one of the prophets. From the account which Josephus has given of the tenets of the Pharisees, it appears that their notion of the immortality of the soul was the Pythagorean metempsychosis; that the soul, after the dissolution of one body, winged its flight into another; and that these removals were perpetuated and diversified, through an infinite succession, the soul animating a sound and healthy body, or being confined in a deformed and diseased frame, according to its conduct in a prior state of existence. From this notion, derived from the Greek philosophy, we find the Jews speculated variously concerning the Lord Jesus Christ, and indulged several conjectures, which of the ancient prophets it was whose soul now animated him, and performed such astonishing miracles.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xvi. 13—.5. Upon engaging in prayer, and when alone, it is most expedient that we put to ourselves the question of Christ, as to whom HE, the Son of man, is; as through him alone we can approach the Father with acceptance. It is most important that we not only be able to answer the inquiry, 'Whom do men say that I the Son of man am?' but this question, 'Whom say ye that I am?' Let us distinguish between the report of others' belief, and the true expression of our own.

16 ver. Jesus is the Christ. The Anointed of the Father, through whom alone his people can come into blessing, and he who confessed himself the Son of the Living God.

* See GEOG. NOTICE, p. 44, 'Cæsarea Philippi.' Laish, or Dan, is about four miles west of Cæsarea Philippi—as see NOTE, ibid.

BEHOLD MY SERVANT, WHOM I UPHOLD; MINE ELECT, IN WHOM MY SOUL DELIGHTETH; I HAVE PUT MY SPIRIT UPON HIM: HE SHALL BRING FORTH JUDGMENT TO THE GENTILES.—Isa. xlii. 1.

MATT. xvi. 17, 18.	MARK viii. 29.	LUKE ix. 20.
[a] Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.	[s] unto-him,[a] Thou art the Christ.	The Christ of God.

17 And Jesus answered and-said unto-him, Blessed art-thou, Simon Bar-jona: for flesh and blood hath- not revealed it unto-thee, but my Father which is in 18 heaven And I-say also unto-thee, That said, 'We believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God,' Jno. vi. 69, § 43, p. 334—Nathanael had made a similar confession upon his first introduction to Jesus, ch. i. 49, § 10, p. 73.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvi. 16. the Christ—so Andrew, 'He first findeth his own brother Simon, and saith unto him- We have found the Messias, which is, being interpreted, THE CHRIST,' Jno i. 41, § 10, p. 71—Under this title the Son of God is spoken of in the second psalm, ver. 2—comp. Ac. iv. 26, .7, 'The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord, and against his Christ,' &c.—Jesus had forbidden the devils to make this confession, Lu. iv. 41, § 17, p. 112—The name Christ, more particularly refers to the intimate union between the Lord and his people, through the power of the anointing, which they have of him, 1 Co. xii. 12—27.

Son of the living God—'I will declare the decree : . . Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee,' Ps. ii. 7—The living God was more particularly revealed, by the Lord coming down to deliver Israel out of Egyptian bondage, giving them a distinct national existence as his people: 'And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: and he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you,' Ex. iii. 14—'And God spake unto Moses, and said unto him, I am the LORD:' (or Jehovah, the Living Life-giving One, or the 'I AM THAT I AM'—He 'which is, and which was, and which is to come')—'And I appeared unto Abraham, &c., by the name of God Almighty, but by my name JEHOVAH was I not known to them,' vi. 2, 3—In the redemption from death, by the coming of the Son of God, in his bestowing upon us spiritual life, and in his constituting us heirs of everlasting life, God hath still more manifested himself as the Living God, Jno. iii. 16, § 12, p. 86 ; v. 21—6, § 23, pp. 177, .8—Ga. ii. 20, 'I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live ; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me,' —He. ix. 14, .5, 'How much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God? 15, And for this cause he is the mediator of the new testament, that by means of death, for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first testament, they which are called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance'—and ch. xii. 18, 22.

17. Blessed art thou—Jesus had at the beginning shewn in what the blessedness of man consists, ch. v. 3—12, § 19, pp. 120—2— . . which blessedness can only be had in him through faith, xi. 6, § 29, p 223—'They which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham,' Ga. iii. 9.

Simon (hearing)—A name expressive of the relation in which the believer stands to God the Father —'Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me,' Jno. vi. 45, § 43, p. 330—The Son of God spake only that which he had heard of the Father, viii. 26, .7, § 55, p. 402; xii. 48—50, § 85, p. 312—It is through hearing the words of the Father, spoken by the Son, that the disciples are washed, 'Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you,' xv. 3, § 87, p. 387—Of the Holy Ghost also it is said, 'Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak,' &c., xvi. 13.

Bar-jona ('son of a dove')—referring to the relation in which the child of God stands to the Spirit, who as a dove descended upon the Son of God at his baptism, Lu. iii. 22, § 8, p. 59—and by the spirit of peace and love, accompanying the cleansing word of the Father, are believers known to be the sons of God, 'For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God,' Ro. viii. 14—'But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, 23, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law. 24, And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts. 25, If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit. 26, Let us not be desirous of vain glory, provoking one another, envying one another,' Ga. v. 22—.6.

for flesh and blood, &c.—Jesus had before said, 'I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes . . . . . and no man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him,' ch. xi. 25—7, § 29, pp. 227, .8—and Peter had said, 'Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life' Jno. vi. 68, § 43, p. 334.

18. Peter (a stone)—expressive of the relation in which the believer stands to Christ, the Rock—Peter himself, testified of him, saying, 'To whom coming, as unto a living stone, disallowed indeed of men, but chosen, &c. . . . Ye also, as lively stones, are built up,' &c.. 1 Ep. ii. 4, 5—this foundation was to be laid in Sion, to which locality our Lord was now approaching, see ver. 13, p. 35—and as if in allusion to the three names, the disciples can say, 'I will praise thee: for thou hast HEARD me, and art become my

NOTES.

Lu. ix. 20. The Christ of God. The anointed of God. The Messiah appointed by God, and who had been long promised by Him.

[Mt. xvi. 17. Blessed art thou, &c. Seemingly in allusion to the name of 'Simon,' which means 'hearing,' and that of his father 'Jona,' which means 'dove,' the emblem of the Holy Spirit, by whom we are given to hear the words of our Father, Jesus said, 'Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven.' And then, referring to the other name of Simon, he said, 'And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter'—that is, a stone, a loose rolling stone; but, pointing to the only true foundation, of which Peter had just testified, he added, 'upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.'—See ADDENDA, § 27, p. 213 and p. 28, 'Simon.']

Flesh and blood hath not, &c. A Hebrew phrase for 'a man' here on earth. It is common in Jewish

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xvi. 17. Bar-jona was not only called Simon Hearing, as having his ear opened to hear the teaching of the Father respecting his Son; he was also called Peter, a stone, to be built upon that Rock, with regard to which he had made confession.

If we would in truth be disciples of Christ, we must in reality be that which the first disciple was also in name. We must be hearers of God, born of the Spirit — and 'as lively stones,' built upon the Rock, 'CHRIST, THE SON OF THE LIVING GOD.'

MATT. xvi. 18. MARK. LUKE.

thou art Peter, and upon this rock ταυτῃ τῃ πετρᾳ I-will-build my church την εκκλησιαν; and the-gates of-hell shall-not-salvation. 22, The STONE which the builders refused is become the head stone of the corner. 23. This is the LORD'S DOING; (being born of the Spirit—see Jno. iii. 7;) it is marvellous in our eyes,' Ps. cxviii. 21—3.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvi. 18. upon this rock—upon Christ—' He is the Rock, his work is perfect,' &c., De. xxxii. 4, 18, 30, 31. . . . —' Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ,' 1 Co iii. 11—He is 'the Foundation of the apostles and prophets,' Eph. ii. 20—they all testified of him, ' To him give all the prophets witness, that through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins,' Ac. x. 43.

I will build—observe the remarkable reference to the Trinity, in the building, Eph. ii. 18—22—where the character, privilege, ground, manner and object of the building are described.

build my church—in contrast to those who were assembled to him only for a time, such as those who partook of the five loaves, immediately after which, many of them, not being able to hear his words, ' went back, and walked no more with him,' Jno. vi. 66, 6, § 43, pp 332, 4—so also the company he had lately left, Mt. xvi. 4, § 47, p. 28—and whom he had directed his disciples to let alone, xv. 14, § 44, p. 8—even the twelve were all to ' be scattered, every man to his own,' until re-united unto him, as having suffered and risen again. Jno. xvi. 32, § 87, p. 397; xx. 19—23, § 95, p. 408—There may also be an implied contrast to the case of the church, or congregation of Israel, the standing of which was upon human obedience, not indeed as regarded the obtaining of blessing according to the covenant made with Abraham, but for retaining possession of the inheritance given to them under the national covenant ministered by Moses, Je. xxxi. 31—4. . . . Rom. iv. 1—13.

my church—It is his—He bought it for himself with his own blood. ' Christ also loved the Church, and gave himself for it; 26, that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word, 27, that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish,' Eph. v. 25—7—' And he is the head of the body, the church,' Col. i. 18.

gates of hell—There may here be an allusion to their being, at this time, near that gate or entrance of the land, 'the entering in of Hemath;' by which, it is probable, the enemy had come in, that swept away the church or congregation of Israel into a land of forgetfulness; when they were, in the language of prophecy, put in graves—' Behold, I will raise up against you a nation, O house of Israel, saith the LORD the God of hosts; and they shall afflict you from the entering in of Hemath unto the river (or ravine) of the wilderness,' Am. vi. 14—' And Israel shall surely go into captivity forth of his land,' vii. 17—also ix. 1—10, . . . —and again, that rebuilding against which nothing will be able to prevail, 11—5—The gates of death are spoken of, Job xxxviii. 17; Ps. ix. 13; cvii. 18—and the gates of the grave, Is. xxxviii. 10—It was predicted that Christ, the foundation of his church, would prevail over death, Ps. xvi. 10—and this was fulfilled in Christ, ' Whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death: because it was not possible that he should be holden of it,' Ac. ii. 24, &c. —and neither death, nor any other enemy will be able to prevail against those who are made one with him, Ro. viii. 33—9—The last enemy, death, shall be destroyed, 1 Co. xv. 26—' So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, . . . then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory,' 54—In the introduction to the epistles to the seven churches, Jesus saith, ' I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death,' Rev. i. 18.

NOTES.

writers. Thus, 1 Co. xv. 50, ' flesh and blood,' i.e., our present gross corruptible bodies, ' cannot inherit the kingdom of God.' So Eph. vi. 12, ' We wrestle not against flesh and blood,' &c., and Ga. i. 16, ' I conferred not with flesh and blood.' It is evident from our Lord's observation, that it requires an express revelation of God in man's soul, to give him a saving acquaintance with Jesus Christ.

[Mt. xvi. 18. Upon this rock. ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ πέτρᾳ—this true confession of thine—that I am THE MESSIAH, that I am come to reveal and communicate THE LIVING GOD, that the dead lost world may be saved—upon this very rock, myself, thus confessed, alluding probably to Ps. cxviii. 22, ' The stone which the builders refused is become the head stone of the corner;' and to Is. xxviii. 16, ' Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone,' &c.—I will build my church. see the headnote, my assembly, or congregation; i.e. of persons who are made partakers of this precious faith. That Peter is not designed in our Lord's words, must be evident to every unprejudiced mind. Peter was only one of the builders in this sacred edifice, Eph. ii. 20, ' Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone,' Peter himself (with the rest of the believers) was built on this living foundation stone; therefore, Jesus Christ did not say, on thee, Peter, I will build my church, but changed immediately the expression and says, upon that very rock, ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ πέτρᾳ, to shew that he neither addressed Peter, nor any other of the apostles.]

Christ did not mean, as the Roman Catholics say, to exalt Peter to supreme authority above all the other apostles—see ch. xx. 26, ' Whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister,' and Ac. xv., where the advice of James, and not of Peter, was followed—see also Ga. ii. 11, where Paul withstood Peter to his face, because he was to be blamed—a thing which could not have happened if Christ, as the Roman Catholics say, meant that Peter should be absolute and infallible. Least of all, is anything said here, or anywhere else in the Bible, that Peter should have infallible successors.

I will build my church. The church to which our Lord here promises stability, and a final conquest over the power of the grave, is the building raised by himself as the Master-builder; that is, by persons commissioned by him, acting under his direction, and assisted by his Spirit, on the solid rock of the truth of St Peter's faith.

Will build my church. The word church means literally those called out, and often means an assembly or congregation—see Ac. xix. 32; vii. 38, ' This is he, that was in the church in the wilderness with the angel which spake,' &c. It is applied to Christians as being called out from the world. It means, sometimes, the whole body of believers, Eph. i. 22, ' Gave him to be the head over all things to the church.' 1 Co. x. 32, ' Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the Gentiles, nor to the church of God.' This is its meaning in this place. It means, also, a particular society of believers, worshipping in one place, Ac. viii. 1, ' Persecution against the church which was at Jerusalem,' ix. 31, ' Then had the churches rest throughout all,' &c.; 1 Co. i. 2, &c., ' Unto the church of God which is at Corinth.' Sometimes, also, a society in a single house, as Rom. xvi. 5, ' Greet the church that is in their house.' In common language it means the church visible—i.e., all who profess religion—or invisible, i.e., all who are real Christians, professors or not.

Or hell. ' The machinations and powers of the invisible world.' πυλαι ᾅδου, ' the gates of Hades,'

HE IS THE ROCK, HIS WORK IS PERFECT: FOR ALL HIS WAYS ARE JUDGMENT:
A GOD OF TRUTH AND WITHOUT INIQUITY, JUST AND RIGHT IS HE.—Deut. xxxii. 4.

MATT. xvi. 19, 20.	MARK viii. 30.	LUKE ix. 21
19 prevail against κατισχυσουσιν it. And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.
20 Then charged he διεστειλατο his disciples	30 And he charged επετιμησεν them	And he straitly charged επετιμησας them, 21

SING PRAISES TO GOD, SING PRAISES: SING PRAISES UNTO OUR KING, SING PRAISES.—Psalm xlvii. 6.

FOR GOD IS THE KING OF ALL THE EARTH: SING YE PRAISES WITH UNDERSTANDING.—Psalm xlvii. 7.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvi. 18. shall not prevail—Jacob had his name Israel given to him because of his prevailing with the Angel of the covenant, Ge. xxxii. 28—'By his strength he had power with God: yea, he had power over the Angel, and prevailed: he wept, and made supplication unto him,' &c., Hos. xii. 3, 4—it is as thus prevailing, that we get the victory over death, He. ii. 14—8—'Forasmuch,' &c.—Re. xii. 10, 11.

19. and I will give unto thee the keys, &c.—Christ is the door, which is here implied, as opposed to the gates of hell, in ver. 18—'I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture,' Jno. x. 9, § 55, p. 115—Christ the entrance into eternal life, had been revealed to Peter—but he had yet to be given the keys of 'This gate of the LORD, into which the righteous shall enter,' Ps. cxviii. 20—see before, on Peter, ver. 18, p. 37—In Christ 'are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge,' Col. ii. 3—but the Jewish teachers had taken away the key of this treasury—they neither entered in themselves, and them that were entering in they hindered, Lu. xi. 52, § 62, p. 157. Thus they were ignorant, even of the prophecies which referred to their own time—see on Mt. xv. 3—12, § 44, pp. 5—8—they were opposed—(see ver. 6—9, p. 32, 3)—to the two grand truths which open the words of the prophets: 'The sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow,' 1 Pe. i. 11—these two keys, our Lord immediately proceeds to give to Peter—see on 'the sufferings of Christ,' Matt. xvi. 21—6—on 'the glory that should follow,' 27, 8, p. 43; xvii. 1—8, § 51, p. 51—Previous to their possession of these keys, the disciples were not in a capacity to open up the truth respecting Christ, so true—but after Christ had suffered, and was risen from the dead, Peter, by the use of these two keys, opened the kingdom of heaven, first to the Jews, Ac. ii. iii.—and then to the Gentiles, ch. x.—the two great subjects dwelt upon in these discourses being, as in Acts iii., 'the sufferings,' 13—8—and 'the glory' of Christ, 19—26—These two keys are also left us by Peter in his two epistles: the first being upon 'the sufferings of Christ,' their doctrinal and practical importance; and the second upon 'the glory that should follow,' 2 Pe. i. 16—8—see ADDENDA, pp. 47—50, 'Peter's Epistles.' and whatsoever thou shalt bind, &c.—The same, ch. xviii. 18, § 53, p. 83—If Peter understood these words as giving him authority to bind persons at his will, he was mistaken. He immediately after sought to bind, or prescribe limits to Jesus himself, for which he was sharply reproved—see ver. 23, p. 41—neither did it give him authority over his brethren—see on Jno. xxi. 21, 2, § 97, p. 510—it did not give him authority to encourage the imposing upon the church burdensome rites, or other terms for Christian communion, than those which Christ himself has enjoined, Ga. ii. 11—21—these are faith in Christ as having suffered for our sins, and a willingness to suffer for his sake—the doctrine taught, and the duty to which we are called in the first epistle of Peter.

whatsoever thou shalt loose, &c.—In Peter's second epistle, there is an opening of prophetic truth respecting 'the glory that should follow;' which, in the same order, is more fully given in the Apocalypse, that describes the loosing of the seals in heaven by the Lamb that had been slain: see Rev. v. vi., after a door had been opened in heaven, ch. iv.—It may be remarked, that according as we do to others, it is done for us by our Father in heaven; if we bind up others, as girding them for the Christian warfare, we will ourselves be strengthened; if we bind heavy burdens upon others, we shall ourselves be likely to come under oppression; if we will not forgive men their trespasses, neither will our heavenly Father forgive us—see the case of the servant who bound his fellow-servant, Mt. xviii. 23—34, § 53, p. 84—On the contrary, if we seek earnestly to confer spiritual freedom upon others, we shall ourselves the better enjoy the Gospel—if we liberally lay open what we know of the Scriptures of truth, they will be farther unfolded to us: 'There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty,' Pr. xi. 24—we must especially be careful against dealing in a niggardly spirit with the treasures of the kingdom.

20. Then charged, &c.—They required to be given the keys before they could open the door—they needed to be made better acquainted with Christ, both as to his sufferings and his glory, before they could unfold the truth respecting him to others—they were shortly after to be 'eye-witnesses of his majesty,' ch. xvii. 1—5, § 51, p. 51; but this key they were not to use, until they were put in possession of the other also, in being made eye-witnesses of his sufferings; not until these were completed, were they to speak of his appearing in glory, ver. 9, § ib. p. 52.

NOTES.

are, by profane and sacred writers, used for the state of death; and here is a promise that not even death itself should prevail against the genuine members of Christ's church.—Comp. Rom. viii. 38, 39.

[Mt. xvi. 19. The keys of the kingdom of heaven. The key was a badge of high office and distinction in the regal governments of antiquity, and it was a custom with the Jews to accompany and denote promotion by the delivery of a key. 'To confer the key,' is a phrase equivalent to bestowing a situation of great distinction and trust.—See Is. xxii. 22, 'And the key of the house of David will I lay upon his shoulder; so he shall open, and none shall shut; and he shall shut, and none shall open.' Peter was also given authority along with the other apostles, to declare what should be binding upon believers, and what they should be released from. They were released from the ceremonial law, but left without law to Christ.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xvi. 18. The gates of hell, or the councils of the evil one, may prevail against other churches, built upon other foundations; but against the church of Christ, built on Jesus Christ himself, the sure foundation, as confessed by Peter, Satan can never prevail. Soon may those who profess faith in Christ, know the riches of his name; and, in the use of the keys given to Peter, come to possess those treasures which are all hid in Christ Jesus, 2 Pe. i. 2—4.

[19 ver. The lawyers, who looked not to Christ, as the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth, had taken away the key of knowledge; but our Lord, as revealing the truth respecting his first and second comings, delivers two keys in lieu thereof to Peter. He gives the two grand key-doctrines of divine revelation—the knowledge of the sufferings of Christ at his first coming, he presents in what immediately succeeds, and the knowledge of the glory that shall follow at his second coming, he afterwards gave on the mount of Transfiguration.]

Let us remember, that if we bind others on earth, we shall ourselves be bound; but if we forgive men their trespasses, our Heavenly Father will also forgive us our trespasses.

MATT. xvi. 20.	MARK viii. 30.	LUKE ix. 21.
that they-should-tell no-man that he was Jesus the Christ.	that they-should-tell no-man of him.	and-commanded παρηγγειλε them to-tell no-man that-thing;

(G. 9.)—From this time forward Jesus begins to foretell his sufferings and death, circumstantially, to the disciples: Peter expostulates with him, and is sharply rebuked: Jesus takes occasion thence to discourse both to his disciples and to the people on the duty of self-denial and taking up the cross, and proceeds to speak of the glory, promising a view of the coming kingdom.

MATT. xvi. 21—.8.	MARK viii. 31—ix. 1.	LUKE ix. 22—.7.
21 [a] From that-time-forth began Jesus to-shew unto his disciples, how that he [b]	31 And he-began to-teach them, that [b] the Son of man [c]	saying, 22 The Son of man
[c] must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many-things [d]	must suffer many-things, [d] and be-rejected ἀποδοκιμασθηναι	must suffer many-things, and be-rejected ἀποδοκιμασθηναι of the elders and chief-priests and scribes, and be-killed and be-raised-again the third day.	of the elders, and of the chief-priests, and scribes, and be-killed, and after three days rise-again αναστηναι.	of the elders and chief-priests and scribes, and be-slain, and be-raised the third day.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvi. 21. From that time, &c.—Jesus lost no time in fulfilling the promise he had made unto Peter, ver. 19, p. 39, but immediately began to make known to him the sufferings of Christ, the first of the (two) keys of the kingdom of heaven—see on ver. 19, p. 39.

must go unto Jerusalem—The subject of discourse with those also that appeared with him in glory—they 'spake of his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem,' Lu. ix. 31, § 51, p. 54—Jesus on another occasion said, 'Nevertheless I must walk today, and to-morrow, and the day following: for it cannot be that a prophet perish out of Jerusalem,' xiii. 33, § 66, p. 179—The place where he was to be made a sacrifice for our redemption, Jesus again pointed out, Mt. xx. 18, .9, § 77, p. 2[5]—After the temple had been built at Jerusalem, 'the LORD appeared to Solomon by night, and said unto him, I have heard thy prayer, and have chosen this place to myself for an house of sacrifice,' 2 Chr. vii. 12.

suffer many things—One of the two grand subjects of Old Testament prophecy concerning Christ; and without the knowledge of which, the prophets cannot be truly understood—Jesus, after his resurrection, reproached his disciples for being so slow in apprehending these two great truths, Lu. xxiv. 25—.7, § 94, p. 494—Paul was in the habit of going, on the sabbath days, into the synagogues of the Jews, and reasoning with them out of the Scriptures, 'OPENING and alleging, that Christ must needs have suffered, and risen again from the dead; and that this Jesus, whom (said he) I preach unto you, is Christ,' or 'Messiah the Prince,' Ac. xvii. 1—3.

I. The sufferings of Christ were for atonement: Is. liii. 4—6, 10—.2. . . . Rom. iii 24—.6; iv. 22—.5; v. 6—11; 1 Pe. i. 17—21; ii. 24; 1 Jno. ii. 2; iv. 10.—See ADDENDA, p. 46, 'Scrip. Illus.' of 'The Sufferings of Christ,' &c.

II. That Christ, as our High Priest, might have a sympathy with us in our sufferings, and that we might have the fuller confidence in his intercession: He. ii. 17, .8; iv. 15, .6.

III. For the crucifixion of self, as teaching us the folly of all trust in the flesh, in that nothing less could avail for our redemption, than the sacrifice of the Son of God: Rom. vii. 4—6; Ga. v. 11—24.

IV. They are also for our example, teaching—

1. Submission to the will of God, 1 Pe. iv. 1, 2.
2. Patient endurance of evil, forgiveness of enemies, ii. 21—.4.
3. Love to the brethren, Eph. v. 1, 2; Gal. vi. 2; 1 Jno. iii. 16—see the border—and 1 Pe. i. 2.

Mk. viii. 31. rejected—This had been expressly predicted, when he was spoken of as the STONE—the Stone to be exalted in glory as head of the corner, was first to be refused by the builders, Ps. cxviii 22—'He is despised and rejected of men,' &c., Is. liii. 3—they even preferred a murderer to the Prince of life: 'Not this man, but Barabbas,' Jno. xviii. 40, § 90, p. 443—'This is the Stone which was set at nought of you builders, which is become the head &c.,' Ac. iv. 11.

of the elders, &c.—Lu. xxii. 66, &c. § 89.

and be killed, &c.—Prefigured by the killing of the paschal lamb, comp. Ex. xii.; 1 Co. v. 7; and predicted Is. liii. 7, 8—comp. Ac. viii. 32—.5—'But ye denied the Holy One and the Just, and desired a murderer to be granted unto you; 15, and killed the Prince of life, whom God hath raised from the dead; whereof we are witnesses,' iii. 14, .5—comp. Jno. xviii. 40, § 90.

rise again—see on Jno. ii. 19, § 12, p. 82—'Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up,' Mk. xvi. 9, § 93, p. 491—'Now when Jesus was risen,' &c.—'Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins,' Ac. v. 31—'Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather, that is risen again,' &c. Rom. viii. 34; Rev. i. 18.

NOTES.

Mt. xvi. 21. He must go unto Jerusalem, &c. The apostles were probably looking for a display of his kingly glory, and he proceeds to make them acquainted with his priestly office.

Of the elders and chief priests and scribes. The elders, with the chief priests and scribes, composed the sanhedrim. Hence that great council is called πρεσβυτέριον, Ac. xxii. 5; Lu. xxii. 66, § 89. These elders of the people are to be distinguished from the elders of the cities, who were only the heads of the lower courts of justice. The scribes were assessors, or learned assistants.—See ADDENDA, § XXV. p. 199, 'Scribes.' These three orders including the chief priests, are named promiscuously in the Gospels whenever the sanhedrim is mentioned.

PRACTICAL REFLECTION.

[Mt. xvi. 20. A man may receive much divine instruction as to a doctrine, and yet not be prepared to act the part of a teacher thereof to others; even that important truth which lies at the foundation of all spiritual edification, the apostles were not to make known until they were acquainted with its import.]

HEREBY PERCEIVE WE THE LOVE OF GOD, BECAUSE HE LAID DOWN HIS LIFE FOR US: AND WE OUGHT TO LAY DOWN OUR LIVES FOR THE BRETHREN.—1 Jno. iii. 16.

MATT. xvi. 22, 23.	MARK viii. 32, 33.	LUKE.
	32 And he spake that saying openly παρρησίᾳ.
22 Then Peter took him, and-began to-rebuke επιτιμαν him, saying, Be-it-far-from thee ἵλεως σοι, Lord: this shall not be unto-thee.	And Peter took him, and began to-rebuke επιτιμᾶν him.
23 But he turned,	33 But when he had-turned-about and looked-on his disciples, he-rebuked Peter, saying,
and-said unto Peter, Get-thee behind me, Satan: thou-art an-offence unto-me σκανδαλον μου: for thou-savourest φρονεις not the-things that be of God, but those that be of men.	Get-thee behind me, Satan: for thou-savourest φρονεις not the-things that be of God, but the things that be of-men.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvi. 22. Be it far from thee—This seems to have been the first part of Peter's rebuke. He wished Jesus to have some regard for himself, for his reputation, which would be entirely destroyed, if, in place of exalting his followers to dignity and office in Messiah's kingdom, it were noised abroad that he was himself about to die the death of a common malefactor—see 1 Cor. i. 23, 'We preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumblingblock,' &c.

Mk. viii. 33. turned about—They appear to have been walking in company, ver. 27, p. 35, Jesus in advance of the disciples.

rebuked Peter—Peter had rebuked Jesus, and he is himself immediately rebuked. This is in illustration of what his Lord had just before said, 'Whatsoever thou shalt bind,' &c., Mt. xvi. 19, p. 39—see further, xviii. 18—35, § 53, pp. 83—5.

Get thee behind me, Satan—It is to be remembered, that he whom our Lord was now addressing, was Peter, whom the adherents of the Pope claim for the foundation of their church. If the Rock built upon be not Christ, but Peter, there can be no doubt but that the foundation built upon is Satan. No wonder that of a church having such a foundation it should be said, 'Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird,' Rev. xviii. 2.

Mt. xvi. 23. thou art an offence, &c.—Peter, as opposing the truth taught by Christ, was like a stone out of place, 'a stumblingblock,' or 'rock of offence'—it is likely our Lord here alludes to the implied rebuke of Peter; even that Jesus was in danger of giving needless offence to his followers—see xv. 12, 3, § 44, p. 8.

for thou savourest not—Peter had more concern about what would be agreeable for man to hear, than anxious to know what God was pleased to reveal—against this leaven of the Pharisees our Lord had just before warned the disciples, ch. xvi. 6—12, § 48, pp. 32—4—the warning was not unheeded on the part of Peter, Ga. ii. 11, 12.

NOTES.

Mk. viii. 32. And he spake that saying openly. He had before been conversing with his disciples privately, when he charged them to 'tell no man that he was Jesus the Christ,' Mt. xvi. 20, p. 40; regarding his approaching rejection and death, he speaks openly, so as that any one near him might hear, Mk. viii. 34.

And Peter took him. προσλαβόμενος — took him up—suddenly interrupted him, as it were calling him to order. Only Mark, who is supposed to have written under the direction of Peter, notices that which probably influenced that forward disciple the most in this matter: viz., Christ speaking openly of his sufferings and death. Peter may have been afraid that such an announcement would be likely to destroy altogether his Master's waning popularity. Whether such a thing was or was not about to happen, he may have thought that it was very inexpedient to say such a thing. To this tendency to savour the things that be of men, our Lord adverts, ver. 33.

Mt. xvi. 22. Be it far from thee, Lord. The phrase as used by the LXX, generally signifies, God forbid; or, as we render it, Far be it from thee!—See 2 Sa. xx. 20; 1 Chr. xi. 19.

[This shall not be, &c. The second part of Peter's rebuke—not only was it inexpedient that Jesus should speak as he had spoken, but he had spoken that which was not to be: this was probably Peter's opinion at the time; and if so, it shews that he, in being given a knowledge of the atonement of Christ, the first grand key-doctrine of divine revelation, was given possession of something which he had not previous to the present conversation.]

23. Satan, שָׂטָן, Heb. 'An adversary,' (2 Sa. xix. 22; 1 Ki. v. 4.) It frequently signifies 'an evil counsellor.' Satan spake by Peter, and used him (without Peter's intention) as an instrument to shun the cross: it was, therefore, proper to recognise Satan as well as Peter in the suggestion. The proper translation is, 'Get thee behind me, thou adversary.'

Thou art an offence. That is, a stumblingblock. Your advice and wishes are in my way. If followed, they would prevent the very thing for which I came.

Thou savourest not. I. e., dost not relish, or thou dost not understand, or discern the things of God.

[Peter had said 'Be it far from thee!' literally, 'Be merciful to thyself.' This is a Hebrew expression, and marks the horror which one has of a thing, and expresses as much as 'God forbid.' Our Lord's reproof was directed not against the address, but against Peter's gross and carnal views. Our Lord now spoke to Peter in such a manner as plainly proved that He looked upon Peter as a very unfit foundation for His church; however many, who have fallen from the goodness of God, have pretended to take him for theirs.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xvi. 21. To those who are appointed to confess Christ, the knowledge of what he came to do when he appeared the first time, is especially necessary. Jesus would not have his disciples to expect otherwise than according to truth. At that time, not the acknowledgment of his being the promised Messiah, but shame and suffering, awaited him in Jerusalem.

[Our faith must not stand in the wisdom of men. The elders, the chief priests and scribes in Jerusalem, were they who rejected the Christ, the Son of the Living God, who had been confessed by ignorant and unlearned fishermen of Galilee.]

23 ver. The Romanists have said, that Peter is the rock upon which their church is built; but observe

THE HEART IS DECEITFUL ABOVE ALL THINGS, AND DESPERATELY WICKED: WHO CAN KNOW IT?—Jer. xvii. 9. WHO HATH DIRECTED THE SPIRIT OF THE LORD, OR BEING HIS COUNSELLOR HATH TAUGHT HIM?—Isa. xl. 13.

Matt. xvi. 24—.6.	Mark viii. 34—.6.	Luke ix. 23—.5
24 Then	34 [a]And when he had called unto him the people with his disciples also, he said [i] unto them,	And 23
said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross,	[b]Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, [k]	he said [i] to them all, [k] If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross [l]daily, and follow me	and follow me.	and follow me. [m]
25 For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: and whosoever will lose his life for my sake	35 [m]For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's,	For whosoever will save 24 his life shall lose it: but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, shall find it.	the same shall save it.	the same shall save it.
26 For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose ζημιωθῇ his own soul?	36 For what shall it profit a man, [n] if he shall gain the whole world, and lose ζημιωθῇ his own soul? [p]	For 25 [n]what is a man advantaged, if he gain the whole world, and lose απολεσας himself,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. viii. 34. take up his cross—Jesus had before spoken of this, when sending out the twelve, Mt. x. 38, § 39, p. 312; and again he repeats the same, Lu. xiv. 27, § 67, p. 185—Jesus bore his own cross, Jno. xix. 17, § 91, p. 458—Peter well understood this duty afterwards—see 1 Ep. ii. 20—4; iii. 14—8; iv. 1, 12, 3, 6, 9—see on Mk. viii. 38, p. 43.

and follow me—The Christian may not expect to fare better than his Master, Mt. x. 24, 5, § 39, p. 300; Lu. vi. 40, § 27, p. 259; Jno. xv. 20, § 87, p. 390—It is to be noticed that our Lord had just before said unto Peter, 'Get thee behind me, Satan,' ver. 33; and that after his resurrection, he repeatedly reminds him of the present admonition, Jno. xxi. 19, 22, § 97.

35. whosoever will save, &c.—see Mordecai's warning to Esther, 'Think not with thyself that thou shalt escape in the king's house, more than all the Jews,' &c., Est. iv. 13; and that of Jeremiah, to the Jews who sought safety in Egypt, Je. xlii. 14—8—Our Lord admonished his disciples in a similar manner, Mt. x. 28, § 39, p. 301—'He that findeth his life shall lose it: and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it,' ver. 39, § ib. p. 302—'Whosoever shall seek to save his life shall lose it; and whosoever shall lose his life shall preserve it, Lu. xvii. 33, § 72, p. 212—'He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal,' Jno. xii. 25, § 82, p. 267—Many of the Old Testament saints 'were tortured, not accepting deliverance; that they might obtain a better resurrection. He. xi. 35—'And I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, . . . and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years.' Rev. xx. 4.

Mt. xvi. 26. what is a man profited, &c.—'What is the hope of the hypocrite, though he hath gained, when God taketh away his soul?' Job xxvii. 8—To the rich man, who had more than his barns would hold, and who, in contemplating their enlargement said, 'I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry . . . God said . . . Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be, which thou hast provided? So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God,' Lu. xii. 19—21, § 63, p. 165.

NOTES.

Mk. viii. 34. Called the people. This was no small part of the reproof given to Peter; that what he was afraid might be casually heard, his Master should purposely call the people to hear, and that, with an application to each individual follower. Not only was Christ to die, as being rejected of men, but every disciple must be willing to die the death of a common malefactor.

Mt. xvi. 24. Will come after me. Be my disciple, embrace my religion.

[Deny himself. Renounce all worldly desires. It must be remembered that human nature is in a state of depravity and corruption: man is not upright; his passions and affections do not naturally move in subordination to the higher principle within him, but are disposed to rebellion. We are in mercy commanded to abstain from sensual gratifications, and to forego many indulgences, though in themselves not, strictly speaking, perhaps, vicious or immoral; the gratifying of which not only tends to ruin our own souls, but brings discredit upon the religion which commands us to come out from the world and be separate, and not so much as to touch the unclean thing.]

Take up his cross. It was usual for persons who were condemned to be crucified, to carry to the place of execution the whole or part of the fatal gibbet on which they were to suffer. Hence the expression of taking up one's cross, was used to signify a person suffering any evil willingly.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

what kind of a foundation they have chosen: it is that which our Lord rejected, and which he called Satan, and which he declared to be an offence unto him; Peter being at that time more regardful of what was palatable to man than according to the truth of God. 'Their rock is not as our Rock, even our enemies themselves being judges,' De. xxxii. 31.

Mt. xvi. 24. Jesus would not have the people deceived as to what was to be expected in following him. His disciples must lay their account with shame and suffering, and they must take all patiently, as following the crucified One.

25 ver. He who seeks ease and pleasure at the expense of truth and duty, loses peace and blessing: but he who is willing to part with all, for the sake of Christ and the gospel, will be infinitely a gainer.

[We must not merely contemplate the sufferings of Christ doctrinally, so as to exercise faith upon that all-sufficient atonement for sin, which he has made; we must contemplate them practically, so as to be willing, like him, to suffer all things for the sake of the truth, and the welfare of others.]

THEY THAT WAIT UPON THE LORD SHALL RENEW THEIR STRENGTH; THEY SHALL MOUNT UP WITH WINGS AS EAGLES; THEY SHALL RUN, AND NOT BE WEARY; AND THEY SHALL WALK, AND NOT FAINT.—Isa. xl. 31.

MATT. xvi. 27.	MARK viii. 37, 38.	LUKE ix. 26.
[q] or what shall a man give in exchange for αντάλλαγμα his soul?	37 Or what shall a man give in exchange for αντάλλαγμα his soul?	[p] or be cast away ζημιωθεὶς [q]?
27 For the Son of man shall μέλλει come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works τὴν πρᾶξιν. [r]	38 [r] Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation; of him also shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he [s] cometh in the glory	For whosoever 26 shall be ashamed of me and of my words, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he [s] shall come in his own glory,

BEHOLD, THE LORD GOD WILL COME WITH STRONG HAND, AND HIS ARM SHALL RULE FOR HIM:

BEHOLD, HIS REWARD IS WITH HIM, AND HIS WORK BEFORE HIM.—Isa. xl. 10.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvi. 26. what shall a man give, &c.—'Shall I give my first-born for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good,' &c., Mi. vi. 7, 8—'For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh,' Rom. viii. 3—our Lord Jesus Christ 'gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us from this present evil world, according to the will of God and our Father,' Ga. i. 4—'Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins,' 1 Jno. iv. 10—'As it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment: so Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation,' He. ix. 27, 8.

27. For the Son of man shall come in the glory, &c.—Our Lord having presented the disciples with the first key, the knowledge of 'THE SUFFERINGS OF CHRIST,' ver. 21—3, proceeds now to the second, 'THE GLORY THAT SHOULD FOLLOW'—see on ver. 19, p. 39—Messiah had been spoken of in prophecy as the Son of man coming in the clouds of, &c., Da. vii. 13. . . . —'The LORD my God shall come, and all the saints with thee,' Zec. xiv. 5—see the promise to the twelve, Mt. xix. 28, § 75, p. 228, and on the Lord's second advent, xxiv. 30, § 86, p. 338; xxv. 31, § ib., p. 351, and Jesus' avowal before the sanhedrim, xxvi. 64, § 89, p. 429. Jesus' departure subsequent to his first advent, is preparatory to his second coming, Jno. xiv. 3, § 87, p. 380—'For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout,' &c., 1 Th. iv. 16—'the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels,' &c. 2 Th. i. 7—'He shall come to be glorified in his saints,' ver. 10—'And Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousands of his saints,' &c., Jude 14—'Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him,' &c., Rev. i. 7.

reward every man, &c.—'But every man in his own order: Christ the first-fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming,' 1 Co. xv. 23—on the reward then, see Mt. xix. 28—30, § 75, p. 228—the different degrees of reward which these are to enjoy, is noticed in the parable of the talents, xxv. 14—30, § 86, p. 347; Lu. xix. 12—comp. ver. 20—7, § 80, p. 248—On the principle of reward in general, see ADDENDA, p. 46, 'On the principle,' &c.

Mk. viii. 38. ashamed of me and of my words, &c.—Only in Christ is redemption to be found, and of that redemption we are made heirs through faith in his word. He who rejects this way of salvation provided by Christ's first coming, is altogether unprepared for his second advent—'I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth,' &c., Rom. i. 16—'Be not thou therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me his prisoner: but be thou partaker of the afflictions of the gospel according to the power of God,' 2 Ti. i. 8. It may be noticed that Peter seems to have been just before ashamed of the words of Christ—see on Mk. viii. 31—3, p. 43, 4—and he afterwards seemed to be ashamed of Jesus himself, xiv. 66—71, § 89, p. 430—but he did not continue ashamed—see Ac. ii., iii. 12—6; iv. 8—12.

shall the Son of man be ashamed—Mt. vii. 23, § 19, p. 141; x. 32, 3, § 33, p. 201; Lu. xii. 8, 9, § 63, p. 164; Jno. xii. 42, 3, § 83, p. 310—'If we suffer, we shall also reign with him: if we deny him, he also will deny us,' 2 Ti. ii. 12—see on Mk. viii. 31, p. 42, &c.

Lu. ix. 26. his own glory, &c.—'He shall come to be glorified in his saints,' &c., 2 Th. i. 10—'Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples,' Jno. xv. 8, § 87, p. 388—see

NOTE.

[Mk. viii. 38. This adulterous and sinful generation. Spiritual adultery appears to be that which is more particularly adverted to by our Lord. It is frequently and severely reprobated by the prophets. Because of unfaithfulness to the marriage covenant made with them when he brought them up out of Egypt, the Lord had given Israel a 'bill of divorce,' and sent them away, and her treacherous sister, Judah, feared not, but went and played the harlot also. 'And the LORD said. . . . The backsliding Israel hath justified herself more than treacherous Judah,' Jer. iii. 8—11. The Lord was now bearing with the Jews, and he did bear with them, even unto the death; after which, in resurrection life he turned away from treacherous Judah, to seek after backsliding Israel, whom he had put away; to whose sin of adultery the treacherous Judah added the sin of crucifying 'the Lord of glory,' of murdering her husband, come to redeem her from the hands of her enemies, unto whom she had sold herself for nought.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xvi. 27. Our hope in Christ is to regard his second and glorious advent, the knowledge of which is he second grand key-doctrine of divine revelation, and without which we cannot be expected to unlock the treasures which are hid in Christ.

Mk. viii. 38. Peter at the trial of Jesus appeared to be ashamed of him, as he was now ashamed of the words which Jesus had spoken openly; and had he go continued, he would doubtless have incurred the punishment—'Of him also shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he cometh, &c.—but, that there is forgiveness with God, for those who truly repent, was abundantly manifested in the case of that forward but frail disciple.

MATT. xvi. 28.	MARK ix. 1.	LUKE ix. 27.
	of his Father	and in his Father's,
	with the holy angels.	and of-the holy angels.*
	Ch. ix.
	1 And he-said unto-them,	But I-tell you 27
28 Verily I-say unto-you,	Verily I-say unto-you,	of-a-truth αληθως,
There-be some	That there-be some	there-be some standing here,	of-them that-stand here,	standing here, which shall-not-taste of	which shall-not-taste of-	which shall-not-taste of-death, till they-see	death, till they-have seen	death, till they-see ἑως αν ιδωσι	ἑως αν ιδωσι	ἑως αν ιδωσι
the Son of man coming	the kingdom of God come	the kingdom of God.
ερχομενον	εληλυθυιαν
in his kingdom.	with εν power.
[Ch. xvii. 1, § li., p. 51.]	[Ver. 2, ibid.]	[Ver. 28, ibid.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

also Mt. x. 37, § 39, p. 302; xxiv. 30, § 86, p. 338; xxv. 31, § ib. p. 351; Is. xxiv. 13—.5.

Lu. ix. 26. and of the holy angels—The saints will be delighted in, both by God and by the highest creature intelligences: but of him that is ashamed of Christ now, will the Son be ashamed, 'when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels,' Mk. viii. 38—see Lu. xii. 9, § 63, p. 164; Rev. iii. 5—The existence of these, and the truth generally, connected with the doctrine of the second advent, was denied by the Sadducees; as was the truth respecting the first advent denied by the Pharisees—see on 'the keys,' Mt. xvi. 19, p. 39—and see on ch. xxv. 31, § 86, p. 351.

Mt. xvi. 28. some standing here—Peter, James, and John—see Mk. ix. 2, § 51, p. 51.

not taste of death—He had before shewn that all who would follow him into the enjoyment of the kingdom, must be willing to die the death of a malefactor, ver. 24—.5, p. 42.

see the Son of man coming, &c.—see on the Transfiguration, when the Foundation of the Kingdom was laid, and when Christ appeared as he shall appear in his glory. Then it was given to the three chosen witnesses to have a sight of the kingdom; to see Him who is our Peace in the glory of the Father, ch. xvii. 1—8, § 51, p. 51; 2 Pe. i. 16—.8.

NOTES.

[Mk. ix. 1. Verily I say unto you, &c. 'To encourage them, he assured them that though his kingdom was now obscure and despised—though he was cast out and little known—yet the time was near when he should be regarded in a different manner, and his kingdom be established with great power. This cannot refer to the end of the world, and there is no need of referring it to the destruction of Jerusalem.—Barnes.]

The promise began to have its fulfilment when Christ, upon the mount of Transfiguration, (§ 51, p. 51) received from the Father honour and glory. It had its further development in the witness of the Holy Ghost, given on the day of Pentecost; when the church, being found in holiness before the Lord, was presented before the world in unity and power; and thousands were instantaneously added to the number of the saved.

Mt. xvi. 28. Son of man coming in his kingdom. Mk. and Lu. have explained this. Mk. ix. 1, 'Till they have seen the kingdom of God come with power.' Lu. ix. 27, 'Till they see the kingdom of God.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mk. ix. 1. The sight of Christ in glory, which Peter, and some others of those who now heard Jesus speak, saw a few days after on the mount of Transfiguration, gives a key to the glory that shall follow. The knowledge of the means whereby the kingdom of heaven is opened to all believers, was now given to Peter; and the sight of Christ in glory, as he appeared on the mount of Transfiguration, as truly affords a key to the knowledge of the glory that shall follow.]

Let us beware of rejecting Christ as the only One Foundation, who died for our sins; by whom alone an all-sufficient atonement hath been made for sin.—This Peter was in danger of doing, and so his pretended successors have done. Out of gratitude to God for the words of salvation he has sent, let love to Christ and his gospel be the spring and motive of all our actions. As Peter confessed, so ought we to confess that Jesus is "THE CHRIST, THE SON OF THE LIVING GOD."

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICE.—CÆSAREA PHILIPPI, p. 35.

CÆSAREA PHILIPPI, anciently 'Panea,' Banias, is a village situated at the foot of the eastern mountain Lebanon, about fifteen miles from the northern extremity of lake Tiberias. At this place is the eastern source of the river Jordan.* 'The town is situated in a corner of a recess in the plain, and is surrounded on all sides by hills, except on the west. It lies at the base of the lofty Jebel esh Sheikh, some of the

* See Sect. viii. Vol. I. p. 61. Of the other source ('Tell el-Kadhi,' the western) Dr. Wilson says: 'We climbed up the highest point of the Tell, a few yards distant from the mill (Dr. Wilson and his companions slept at this mill, hospitably though poorly entertained by its Christian owner), and made a few annotations, and took the bearings of two or three places by the compass. The hill here is known by the names of the Tell el-Kadhi, and Ras esh-Sheriah. The word 'Kadhi' in Arabic signifies 'Judge,' an exact accordance in etymological meaning, which I have never noticed in this connection with the Hebrew DAN (judicious). Ras esh-Sheriah means 'the head of the watering place,' applied to the Jordan by way of distinction, as the chief river of irrigation and sacred ablution in the Holy Land. The river which originates here is called the Nahr ed-Dhan, or river of DAN, for the Hebrew ד is often represented by the Arabic ض. The Tell itself is of basaltic tufa; but there are ruins both of huts and houses upon it, heaps of stones and old foundations, as we particularly noticed. We did not hesitate, on these accounts, to conclude that it is really the site of the ancient DAN, which is placed by Eusebius and Jerome at four miles from Paneas, on the way to Tyre. A small grove of large trees lying about two miles to the south, which we noticed first when on the western side of the valley, the miller told us is called the Shajar ed-Difneh. We started at this information, which he communicated to us of his own accord, and without any idea of its possible import. It struck us for the moment, that though the word Difneh means a laurel, this may be the exact locality of the Daphne (Δαφνη) mentioned by Josephus, and supposed by Reland and others to be a corruption of the word Dan, and to which Josephus refers when speaking of the lake Semechonites (which he makes thirty furlongs in breadth and sixty in length); he says that "its marshes extend as far as the place called Daphne, which has fountains supplying the lesser Jordan, under the fountain of the golden calf, and

EXALT THE LORD OUR GOD, AND WORSHIP AT HIS HOLY HILL; FOR THE LORD OUR GOD IS HOLY.—Psalm xcix 9.
THE LORD DIRECT YOUR HEARTS INTO THE LOVE OF GOD, AND INTO THE PATIENT WAITING FOR CHRIST.—2 Thess. iii. 5.

flanks and prolongations of which are remarkably fertile and beautiful, like the plain below, presenting a sparse forest of very thriving trees. A considerable part of the town, in the form of a trapezium, has been regularly fortified; and its defences yet remain to some good extent. Among them there is a handsome gateway, and eight large towers shewing massive walls, and still bearing distinctive names. Among these we marked the Birj el-Bawadi, opposite a bridge, a strong tower with massive walls, having an Arabic inscription over the outer door, but of materials probably of older date than those of the times of the crusaders; the Birj el-Hairun, now fallen; and the Birj el-Atlas, fallen to the plinth, and having old bevelled stones. Along these towers there passes a stream called Nahr Sari, said to rise at a place called Mejdel, in a gash of the hills to the east. A fosse lay along the Birj el-Atilah, the Birj ed-Daulah, and the Birj el-Ali. A tomb of Chunam, said to be that of a Sultan Ibrahim, is within an enclosure. The bridge over the stream to the south is called Jisr ed-Dardarah. Its lower parts may be of Roman construction. . . . The houses and huts at present occupied at Banias may amount to sixty (Dr. Robinson says one hundred and fifty—see Bib. Res., Vol. III. p. 347). A ruinous castle similar to that now noticed, called by distinction the Kulat Banias, bearing E. by S. from the town, is situated on the height above. It is a conspicuous object at a great distance.

'The principal object of interest to us at Banias, was of course the celebrated cave, which forms one of the most famous sources of the Jordan. It is at present called the Musharat Banias, or Ras Nahr. It is north of the town in a cliff, which it enters for a few feet. It is much choked up with stones. The water, at the time we saw it, was rising a few yards from its front, the spring at this station being about as copious as that at Dan. Over the cave, and to the east of it, are niches, evidently intended for the accommodation of statues, have been cut in the rock. Some of them are nearly filled up with cowdung, earth, and stones. There are several Greek inscriptions on the tablets below, or beside the niches. . . . From the fragments of one it appears to have been annexed to a dedication by a priest of Pan.'—Dr. Wilson's 'Lands of the Bible,' Vol. II. pp. 175—..7.

The name Banias is merely the Arabic pronunciation of the ancient Paneas of the Greeks and Romans.

'The formation of a large temple at this source of the Jordan, by Herod the Great, is noticed by Josephus. "So when he had conducted Cæsar [Augustus] to the sea, and had returned [home]," he says, "he built him a most beautiful temple of the whitest stone, in the country of Zenodorus, near the place called Panium." This is a very fine cave in a mountain, under which there is a great cavity in the earth, and the cavern is abrupt, and prodigiously deep, and full of still water; over it hangs a vast mountain, and under the caverns arise the springs of the river Jordan. Herod adorned this place, which was already a very remarkable one, still further by the erection of this temple, which he dedicated to Cæsar.'—Dr. Wilson, ibid. p. 177.

'At a later period, the place made part of the territory of Philip, tetrarch of Trachonitis; was enlarged and embellished by him, and named Cæsarea Philippi, in distinction from the Cæsarea of the sea coast. Under this name it appears in the New Testament, and was visited by our Lord. Agrippa afterwards gave it the name of Neronias for a time: Vespasian visited it; and Titus, after the capture of Jerusalem, exhibited here public spectacles, in which the captive Jews were compelled to fight with one another, or with wild beasts, and many perished. Coins of Cæsarea-Paneas, as it was also called, are still extant. In the fourth century it was already a bishopric of Phenicia under the patriarchate of Antioch; its bishop, Philocalus, was present at the council of Nicea in A.D. 325; and another, Olympius, at the council of Chalcedon in A.D. 451. In the days of Eusebius and Jerome, the earlier name Paneas was again predominant; and has continued current under the Muhammedan dominion to the present day.

'During the crusades Banias was the scene of various changes and conflicts. It first came into the possession of the Christians in A.D. 1123 or 1130, along with the fortress es-Subeibeh on the mountain; being delivered over to them by its Ismaelite governor, after their unsuccessful attempt upon Damascus in behalf of that sect. The city and castle were given as a fief to the knight Rayner Brus. The earlier therefore, is an error which has arisen from the Saracens. In A.D. 1132, during the absence of Rayner, Banias was taken after a short assault by the Sultan Isma'il of Damascus. It was recaptured by the Franks, aided by the Damascenes themselves, in A.D. 1139; the temporal control restored to Rayner Brus; and the city made a Latin bishopric under the jurisdiction of the archbishop of Tyre. Banias fell afterwards by inheritance into the possession of the constable Honfroy, who called in the aid of the Hospitalers for its protection; in A.D. 1157 it was besieged by the formidable Nureddin, who succeeded in taking and burning the town, but was not able to master a fortress situated in a part of the city itself. The place was relieved, and the fortifications immediately rebuilt by king Baldwin III. But in A.D. 1165, Nureddin again attacked Banias during the absence of Honfroy, and with better success; after a short siege the place surrendered, and never came again into the power of the Franks.

'The castle mentioned by Burckhardt as situated south of the city across the torrent, has an Arabic inscription with a date later than A.D. 900, corresponding to A.D. 1204; but whether it was then first erected, or may perhaps have been the fortress above mentioned in a part of the city, we are nowhere informed. In A.D. 1172, king Amalric besieged Banias for fifteen days in vain. The place, with others, was dismantled by Sultan Mu'adh-dhem in A.D. 1219. The Christians once more, in A.D. 1253, made an expedition from Tyre against Banias, under the command of the seneschal Joinville, and got possession of the town for a moment; but not being able to subdue Kulat es-Subeibeh on the mountain, they immediately abandoned their conquest, and retired to Sidon.'—Robinson's Bib. Res. Vol. III. pp. 358—.61.

sent into the great Jordan." The other stream rising at Banias, unites with that from the Tell el-Kadhi; but the point of junction we were not able to discern. The Nahr ed-Dhan proceeds from the Tell, first, in a serpentine course, in a south-west direction, and afterwards in a straighter line in a southerly. The Nahr Banias comes down upon it from the north-east. From the position in which we were, we noticed a small pool in the marsh, above the lake, probably the "small lake" north of the Huleh of Mr. Buckingham, the existence of which Dr. Robinson ascribes to his imagination. The Mazarah, the cave or tomb of Sid Yahuda, on the elevated ground called Jebel Jura, or Jeidar (Iturea), on the eastern side of the marshes, bore S. by E. of the Tell on which we were. The village of Ain Fit lay S. E. by E. The town of Banias lay E. Two remarkable conical hills in the distance bore north-half-west; Kedes, the KEDESH NAPHTALI of the Bible, lay to the south-west. In the fields of wheat around the Tell, we observed great quantities of a grass like rye, called zawan by the Arabs. This we set down decidedly as the Zizania of the gospels, translated "tares" in our version. Its seeds, which are considered noxious, are carefully separated by the people from the pure grain before it is sent to be ground. . . . After a sleepless night, in which we were pricked and puncturred by myriads of an imprehensible adversary, the pulex irritans, at six a.m. we started for Banias, distant an hour and a half. . . . The country through which we passed was, taking all things into consideration, the most beautiful and fertile which we had witnessed since we had commenced our journey. We could well understand and sympathise in the report given of LAISH and its neighbourhood by its Danite spies, "We have seen the land, and, behold, it is very good," and looking to its position and resources, understand how its original inhabitants "dwelt careless," "quiet and secure," Ju. xviii. 7.

About twenty-five minutes before arriving at Banias, we came upon some old ruins, foundations, heaps of stones, broken pillars, capitals, and pedestals. Remains such as these were visible here and there even among the cultivated fields; and doubtless they were connected with the ancient city.'—Dr. Wilson's 'Lands of the Bible,' Vol. II pp. 171—..6.

WAIT ON THE LORD, AND KEEP HIS WAY, AND HE SHALL EXALT THEE TO INHERIT THE LAND: WHEN THE WICKED ARE CUT OFF, THOU SHALT SEE IT.—Psalm xxxvii. 34.

ADDENDA.

'ON THE PRINCIPLE OF REWARD IN GENERAL.'—See Matt. xvi. 27, p. 43. 'Scrip. Illus.'

JOB xxxiv. 11, 'For the work of a man shall he render unto him, and cause every man to find according to his ways.'—PSALM lxii. 12, 'Thou renderest to every man according to his work.'—PROV. xxiv 12, 'If thou sayest, Behold, we knew it not; doth not he that pondereth the heart consider it? and he that keepeth thy soul, doth not he know it? and shall not he render to every man according to his works?'—ISAIAH iii. 10, 11, 'Say ye to the righteous, that it shall be well with him: for they shall eat the fruit of their doings. 11, Woe unto the wicked! it shall be ill with him: for the reward of his hands shall be given him.'—JER. xvii. 10, 'I the LORD search the heart, I try the reins, even to give every man according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings.'—xxxii 19, 'Great in counsel, and mighty in work: for thine eyes are open upon all the ways of the sons of men: to give every one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings.'—1 COR. iv. 5, 'Therefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and will make manifest the counsels of the hearts: and then shall every man have praise of God.' —2 COR. v. 10, 'For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.'—GAL. vi. 5—9, 'For every man shall bear his own burden. 6, Let him that is taught in the word communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things. 7, Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. 8, For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting. 9, And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.'—EPHES. vi. 8, 'Knowing that whatsoever good thing any man doeth, the same shall he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free.'—COLOSS. iii. 24, 25, 'Knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance: for ye serve the Lord Christ. 25, But he that doeth wrong shall receive for the wrong which he hath done: and there is no respect of persons.'—2 THESS. i. 7—10, 'And to you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, 8, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ: 9, Who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power; 10, when he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe (because our testimony among you was believed) in that day.'—REV. ii. 23, 'And I will kill her children with death; and all the churches shall know that I am he which searcheth the reins and hearts: and I will give unto every one of you according to your works.'—xi. 18, 'And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great; and shouldest destroy them which destroy the earth.'—xx. 12—15, 'And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works. 13, And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works. 14, And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death. 15, And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire.'—xxii. 12, 'And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be.'

'SUFFER MANY THINGS.'—Matt. xvi. 21, p. 40.

I. The sufferings of Christ were for atonement—see

ISAIAH liii. 4—6, 10—2, 'Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. 5, But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. 6, All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the LORD hath laid on him the iniquity of us all.'—10, 'Yet it pleased the LORD to bruise him; he hath put him to grief: when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the LORD shall prosper in his hand. 11, He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by his knowledge shall my righteous servant justify many; for he shall bear their iniquities. 12, Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he hath poured out his soul unto death: and he was numbered with the transgressors; and he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors.'—ROMANS iii. 24—26, 'Being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus: 25, whom God hath set forth to be a propitiation through faith in his blood, to declare his righteousness for the remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God; 26, to declare, I say, at this time his righteousness: that he might be just, and the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus.'—iv. 22—5 'And therefore it was imputed to him for righteousness. 23, Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him; 24, but for us also, to whom it shall be imputed, if we believe on him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead; 25, who was delivered for our offences, and was raised again for our justification.'—v. 6—11, 'For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly. 7, For scarcely for a righteous man will one die: yet peradventure for a good man some would even dare to die. 8, But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. 9, Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him. 10, For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life. 11, And not only so, but we also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement.'—1 PETER i. 18—21, 'Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers; 19, but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot: 20, who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifest in these last times for you, 21, who by him do believe in God, that raised him up from the dead, and gave him glory; that your faith and hope might be in God.'—ii. 24, 'Who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed.'—1 JOHN ii. 2, 'And he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world.'—iv. 10, 'Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins.'

II. That Christ, as our High Priest, might have a sympathy with us in our sufferings, and that we might have the fuller confidence in his intercession:

HEBREWS ii. 17, 18, 'Wherefore in all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren, that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in things pertaining to God, to make reconciliation for the sins of the people. 18, For in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted.'—iv. 15, 16, 'For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin. 16, Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.'

III. For the crucifixion of self, as teaching us the folly of all trust in the flesh, in that nothing less could avail for our redemption, than the sacrifice of the Son of God:

ROMANS vii. 4—6, 'Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of

IF YE CALL ON THE FATHER, WHO WITHOUT RESPECT OF PERSONS JUDGETH ACCORDING TO EVERY MAN'S WORK, PASS THE TIME OF YOUR SOJOURNING HERE IN FEAR.—1 Pet. i. 17.

Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God. 5, For when we were in the flesh, the motions of sins, which were by the law, did work in our members to bring forth fruit unto death. 6, But now we are delivered from the law, that being dead wherein we were held; that we should serve in newness of spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter.'—GALATIANS v. 11—24. 'And I, brethren, if I yet preach circumcision, why do I yet suffer persecution? then is the offence of the cross ceased. 12, I would they were even cut off which trouble you. 13, For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another. 14, For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this; Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. 15, But if ye bite and devour one another, take heed that ye be not consumed one of another. 16, This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh. 17, For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would. 18, But if ye be led of the Spirit, ye are not under the law. 19, Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these; Adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, 20, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, 21, envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God. 22, But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, 23, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law. 24, And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts.'

IV. They are also for our example, teaching—

1. Submission to the will of God, 1 PETER iv. 1, 2, 'Forasmuch then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind: for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin; 2, that he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh to the lusts of men, but to the will of God.'

2. Patient endurance of evil, forgiveness of enemies, 1 PETER ii. 21—4, 'For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps: 22, who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth: 23, who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, he threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously: 24, who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed.'

3. Love to the brethren, GALATIANS vi. 2, 'Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ.'—EPHESIANS v. 1, 2, 'Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children; 2, and walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweetsmelling savour.'—1 JOHN iii. 16, 'Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.'

OF THE KEYS OF THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN EXHIBITED IN THE TWO EPISTLES OF PETER.

It was remarked, at p. 39, that the keys of the kingdom of heaven, which were promised to the apostle Peter, he was privileged to use in opening the kingdom to the Jews, as in Acts ii. iii.; and to the Gentiles, ch. x.; and that he hath left them for our use in his two epistles: the first of which is more particularly concerning THE SUFFERINGS OF CHRIST; and the second, respecting THE GLORY THAT SHOULD FOLLOW. This connection it may now be good to illustrate more at length.

With regard to the first epistle, that upon THE SUFFERINGS OF CHRIST, it is worthy of remark, that it runs correspondent in order and subject with the fourth chapter of the APOCALYPSE; which describes the opening of the kingdom of heaven to the beloved disciple, according to the promise made to him, Jno. i. 51, § 10, p. 73.—See 'Nathanael,' § ib. p. 72. By connecting these two, the first Epistle of Peter with Rev. iv., it may be seen, that Jesus did indeed give 'THE KEYS OF THE KINGDOM' to Peter: by connecting with these two, the twelve precious stones garnishing the foundations of the heavenly city, the three portions of scripture, Rev. xxi. 19, 20; Rev. iv; and the first Epistle of Peter, are seen as mutually illustrating each other.—See 'TABULAR VIEW,' p. 50.

I. 1 PE. i. 1—12.

This epistle, regarding the sufferings of Christ, is addressed to those who are suffering affliction: they are described as strangers and scattered, and 'in heaviness through manifold temptations:' having their faith tried as it were by 'fire,' ch. i. 1, 6, 7. But, on the other hand, they have the benefit of the sufferings of Christ: they are within the bond of the covenant. The ark of the covenant, according to which God espoused Israel to himself, had within it the ten commandments, the rules of righteous obedience to God; and over it was the mercy-seat sprinkled with blood. In allusion to which, those to whom this epistle is addressed, are here, ver. 2, said to be 'elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ.'

Their relation to the Father, and to the better inheritance reserved in heaven, ready to be revealed in the last time, is stated, ver. 3—5.

Their assimilation to Christ in suffering, their love to him, their rejoicing in the hope of his glory, and the present salvation of their souls through faith in him, ver. 6—9.

The relation in which their salvation stands to the Holy Ghost, is next alluded to, ver. 10—2. Of the grace which should come unto them, 'the Spirit of Christ' spake by the Old Testament prophets; who sought diligently to know the nature and time thereof, when they 'testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow.' These were and are the two grand subjects of the Spirit's witness. By them the treasures hid in Christ are opened up. These, 'THE KEYS OF THE KINGDOM,' could not before the sufferings of Christ be made use of, as now they are, 'by them that have preached the gospel . . . . . with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven,' . . represented by the cherubim overshadowing the blood-sprinkled mercy seat, 'which things the angels desire to look into.' How much more earnestly should they be inquired into by us, concerning whose salvation are the things which the inhabitants of heaven 'desire to look into!'

Let us avail ourselves of the kind condescension of God our Redeemer, and seek that we may be empowered, by the Spirit of truth, to use the keys that are thus put into our hands, whereby the ark of the covenant may be opened, and the treasures of Divine truth unfolded to our view. We shall find in the very beginning of their blessed contents a permission, yea, even a command, to take the Lord alone to be our God, according to his covenant of 'redeeming love;' according to the riches of the grace given of the Father, procured by the Son, and applied by the Spirit; as is at once so fully and so briefly expressed in these first twelve verses of this first Epistle of Peter.

This obedience to the first commandment is more briefly expressed, Rev. iv. 1, 2; where, through Christ the door, there is access to the Father, by the Holy Ghost.

The glorious light of salvation, into which we are thus led, is represented by the first of the stones garnishing the foundations of the heavenly city. It is said to be 'like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper stone, clear as crystal.' Rev. xxi. 11. Of this stone, the JASPER, is the building of the walls which are called salvation.—Comp. Rev. xxi. 18, with Is. lx. 18.

II. 1 Pe. i. 13—6.

As obtaining a knowledge of the True God and his great salvation, and taking him as our God, we are to be formed for his pleasure, after his image; we are to stand ready to serve him; be sober, patiently waiting for our reward from him—which reward is

GIRD UP THE LOINS OF YOUR MIND, BE SOBER, AND HOPE TO THE END FOR THE GRACE THAT IS TO BE BROUGHT UNTO YOU AT THE REVELATION OF JESUS CHRIST.'—1 Pet. i. 13.

all of grace, and is to be looked for at the revelation of Jesus Christ.

Our obedience is to be that of children; who, through the transforming power of love, are to be conformed to the image of God's dear Son. The knowledge of Him who hath done the will of God, is revealed to us, that we may be changed from what we were previous to his revealing himself to us in Christ Jesus.

It is as being made conformable to Jesus that we are obedient to the command, 'Be ye holy; for I am holy.' We are to be assimilated to our heavenly pattern; to him who hath left 'us an example,that we should follow his steps;' 'Holiness to the Lord' is conformity to Jesus.

This obedience to the second commandment—our not making images to worship, but being ourselves made after the image of Christ, in holiness and righteousness, is represented by the sapphire throne, —Comp. Eze. x. 1, with Rev. iv. 2; xxi. 19. In our heaven-assimilated affections let God be enthroned, and let him who sits upon the throne make all things new after the heavenly pattern. It was, it may be noticed, with ribands of blue, the colour of the sapphire, the second garnishment of the foundations of the heavenly city, that the engraving, 'Holiness to the Lord,' was to be bound unto the mitre of the high priest; and by having a border of blue around their garments, were the children of Israel to be reminded of the fidelity they owed unto their heavenly Sovereign. The throne on the firmament, like unto the terrible crystal, is, Eze. i. 26, said to be 'as the appearance of a sapphire stone.'

III. 1 Pe. i. 17—21. 17, 'And if ye call on the Father, who without respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your sojourning here in fear:' &c.

We are to have a reverential regard to the Divine Majesty—to his justice—which nothing less could satisfy than the precious blood of Christ. God, who is just as well as merciful, could not allow sin to pass unpunished, even when found upon his beloved Son.

It is upon this most solemnizing ground of acceptance with God, that we approach him as our Father, and call upon him to use supplies of grace which we require. With a holy fear, mingled with a childlike confidence, let us trust in him 'that raised him (Christ) up from the dead, and gave him glory, that your faith and hope might be in God.' God is in earnest with regard to our condition; let us not, in a light or trifling spirit, presume to approach him, or be called by his name. Let us worship him in spirit and in truth. Thus let us be obedient to the third commandment, having an awful sense of the Divine Majesty; approaching him with holy reverence and childlike confidence, as 'a just God and a Saviour,' Isa. xlv. 21.

It is thus he is spoken of, Rev. iv. 3, as 'like a jasper and a sardine stone;' the jasper expressive of his being the God of salvation; and the red sardine of his being equally a God of justice, 'a consuming fire.'

This harmony of the Divine attributes displayed in the work of our redemption in Christ Jesus, is expressed in the third garnishment of the foundations of the heavenly city, the CHALCEDONY, a stone having a beautiful mingling of colours on a dark ground.

IV. 1 Pe. i. 22—25.

Being brought into the family of God by his Son, who, having loved us unto death, loves us for ever. Let our love be as pure, truthful, and incorruptible as that which God hath manifested towards us in the gift of his Son.

'All flesh is as grass;' what is human is liable to wither and corrupt; but let us shew that we are born of the incorruptible seed of the word 'which liveth and abideth for ever.'

Let our love to each other be like the covenant whereby we are bound together in the enjoyment of grace unto 'the hope of glory.' It is unfading, everlasting. While we rejoice in 'the word of the Lord [which] endureth for ever,' let us rest in his love, and abide in its manifestation. Let this be especially the case upon that blessed day, which he hath given his children, in which to meet together and enjoy a foretaste of their everlasting rest.

His sabbaths he gave as a sign unto his people. The day of rest is as the bow in the cloud given unto Noah after the deluge. Thus it is said, Rev. iv. 3, 'And there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like unto an emerald.' The evergreen emerald is a fit representation of that unfading word which by the gospel is preached unto us; that rest to our souls, that everlasting life, which we are given to enjoy in Him who abideth for ever [the fourth garnishment].

V. 1 Pe. ii. 1—6.

As becomes the children of God, let us put away all that is inconsistent with goodness and truth. 'As newborn babes,' let us 'desire the sincere milk of the word, that [we] may grow thereby;' that we may acquire strength to do the will of our heavenly Father, having all our confidence fixed in the Son of his love. He was 'disallowed indeed of men,' but it is by building alone upon that Living Stone, and, as a holy priesthood, offering up spiritual sacrifices by Jesus Christ, that our persons and services are 'acceptable to God.' Let us honour the Father by honouring Him whom he hath appointed to be both the Foundation Stone, and the Chief Corner Stone. It is as being united unto Him, that we are in truth and in love united to God, and to each other.

Thus let us honour our Father who is in heaven, by worshipping him, according to his appointment, through the Son of his love, in conjunction with the whole household of faith. This is represented, Rev. iv. 4, by its being said that, 'round about the throne were four and twenty seats' (or thrones). Let the royal priesthood encircle the throne of their Father in peace and in love. The more nearly they approach Him whom they love, the more closely will they come to each other; and the more they by his Spirit unite in this blessed approach unto him through his Son, the more they are the objects of the Father's delight.

This blessed union in Christ, unto God and each other, is represented by the fifth stone garnishing the foundations; the SARDONYX being a stone comprising the characters of two other stones, the sardius and the onyx,—Rev xxi. 20.

VI. 1 Pe. ii. 7—10.

Let us, as being the Israel of God, 'a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people,' shew forth the virtues, the life-giving power of Him who 'hath called . . . . . out of darkness into his marvellous light.' 'Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer:' 'and walketh in darkness' [1 Jno. iii. 15; ii. 11]: but we have been called out of darkness into the light of salvation, that herein we might walk unto the glory of God.

We had destroyed ourselves, and become Lo-ammi and Lo-ruhamah (Ho. i. 6—9); but we were slain under the law, in order that we might be given life under the gospel: so that we, who were made not a people, are now the people of God; and we, upon whom the Lord had not mercy, have now obtained mercy.

The royal priesthood unto which we are appointed is beautifully expressed, Rev. iv. 4 (second clause), where it is said, 'And upon the seats (thrones) I saw four and twenty elders sitting, clothed in white raiment.' Their peaceful priesthood is expressed by their being seated, and 'clothed in white raiment;' and their kingly state is intimated by their being seated on thrones.

They are a royal priesthood resting under the protection of the Almighty; and he is as a wall of fire around them. Associated with the king who reigns in righteousness, they are 'princes' ruling in judgment.' This seems to be aptly represented by the sixth garnishment, the SARDIUS,—Rev. xxi. 20.

VII. 1 Pe. ii. 11, .2.

Let us, as looking forward to that blessed state unto which we are redeemed, feel that here we are but 'as strangers and pilgrims:' as such, let us 'abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul.' Let our conduct before those among whom we sojourn, be such, as to illustrate the doctrines we profess; so that those who revile us as evil doers may, by good works, which they by our example have been taught, be led to 'glorify God in the day of visitation.' Thus may we by faith obtain the victory, and turn even our temptations and trials into occasions of triumph.

Thus let us be obedient to the seventh commandment, and be faithful to him who hath espoused us to himself to be his peculiar people.

The victory obtained by faith in our dear Redeemer is not an empty glory, but that which obtains a rich reward.

BEHOLD, I STAND AT THE DOOR, AND KNOCK: IF ANY MAN HEAR MY VOICE, AND OPEN THE DOOR, I WILL COME IN TO HIM AND WILL SUP WITH HIM, AND HE WITH ME.—Rev. iii. 20.

And thus the royal priesthood are said, Rev. iv. 4 (last clause), to have 'on their heads crowns of gold.'

The CHRYSOLYTE, or golden stone, is the seventh precious stone garnishing the foundations of the heavenly city, Rev. xxi. 20.

VIII. 1 Pe. ii. 13—iii. 1—7.

Here believers are taught how, even in the most unfavourable circumstances, they may live above the world. We are to glorify God in the various relations of life, even in those in which we have the least power of regulating our own conduct, and consequently of doing good to others. We are to withhold from no one his due; and in all things we are to render ourselves unto God.

i. As subjects, under kings and governors, ver. 13—7.

ii. As servants, who may be called to follow Christ in his sufferings, by suffering wrongfully, ver. 18—25.

iii. Wives, as being in subjection to their husbands, are exhorted to possess a meek and quiet spirit, 'which is in the sight of God of great price,' ch. iii. ver. 1—6. A word is added, in which the case of the wife is recommended to the consideration, tenderness, esteem, and devotional sympathy of the husband, ver. 7.

Thus let us be obedient to the eighth commandment: not only rulers and masters, but subjects and servants are entrusted with much for others' advantage by the great Householder. Let us be faithful in our stewardship; and in the most lowly circumstances be guided by heavenly principles.

In Rev. iv. 5, it is said, 'Out of the throne proceeded lightnings and thunderings and voices.' Let what we do in the several relations of life, be done as having God ruling in the heart. Let it be done with alacrity to the declaration of his praise, and in expression of his truth, represented by the lightnings, thunderings and voices, proceeding out of the throne.—Comp. Eze. i. 14, 24, 25, &c.

This heavenly mindedness, this constant engagement in the service of God, is expressed by the heaven-coloured BERYL, the eighth garnishment of the heavenly city, Rev. xxi. 20. Of the wheels, in Ezekiel's vision of the glory, it is said, ch. i. ver. 16, 'The appearance of the wheels and their work was like unto the colour of a BERYL.' The body of the man clothed in linen, and girded with fine gold of Uphaz, seen by Daniel in a vision, is said to have been like the beryl, Da. x. 6.

IX. 1 Pe. iii. 8—22.

Unanimity and tenderness towards each other; a carefulness to avoid everything like a breach of the ninth commandment; a willingness to suffer for righteousness' sake; a readiness to testify to the truth, by being ever ready to give to every one a reason of the hope that is in us, with meekness and fear; patience under false accusation from others, whilst earnestly labouring for their spiritual good; following the example of Christ, who also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit. These are the dispositions we are to cherish as being witnesses for a crucified Saviour.

Let us persevere in witnessing to the truth, notwithstanding all discouragement. It was not until after Christ's sufferings and death, that the testimony of the Spirit was given in power, to apply the words which Jesus had spoken during his personal ministry. So also it was long before, when by his Spirit he preached in the days of Noah. There seemed to be little fruit of all the prophesying of Noah during 120 years, while the ark was preparing. They were 'some time disobedient,' even it would appear until Noah was shut up in the ark; but when they were themselves shut out from that only place of safety; when they felt that they were shut up, as it were, in prison, ready to have the sentence of death executed upon them; when they saw the long-threatened flood coming fast upon them, giving full evidence to the truth of all that Noah had declared, then might the Spirit of God be expected to apply with power the truth to their hearts; and then may multitudes whose bodies were destroyed by the flood, have received the salvation of their souls. So let us, as having the sentence of death in ourselves, become dead to the flesh, that our souls may be saved. Let us have, not the mere name, but the reality of baptism. Let us be planted together in the likeness of his death, and rise in the likeness of his resurrection. Let us as before God give forth the answer of a good conscience. Let us in our testimony be directed and upheld by Him who 'is at the right hand of God; angels authorities and powers being made subject unto him.'

Jesus is 'The Faithful and True Witness;' and the truth which he ministered, the living water whereby the royal priesthood are made clean, and meet to minister in the temple of the Lord, was represented by the Brazen Sea, at the door of the tabernacle. The Holy Ghost witnesseth of Jesus, and this was represented by the Seven Golden Candlesticks in the sanctuary, without the inner veil.

In Rev. iv. 5, 6, both of the veils are removed, and the 'sea of glass,' representing the truth of Christ, and the 'seven lamps of fire,' representing the witnessing of the Spirit, are all beheld in one view together with the mercy-seat, or throne of the Father, in the Holy of Holies.

The brightness of that light, and the purity and preciousness of the truth, are expressed by the bright TOPAZ, the tenth of the precious stones garnishing the foundations of the New Jerusalem, Rev. xxi 20. May our confession of the truth, our testimony for Christ, be like this ninth garnishment, clear and bright.

X. 1 Pe. iv. 1—11.

'Forasmuch then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind: for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin; that he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh to the lusts of men, but to the will of God.' Long enough have we lived to the pleasing of evil men. As not choosing their company and occupation, we may expect to suffer reproach from those who cannot understand our motives and principles of action. But let us not retaliate; they must soon give account to Him who is ready to judge the quick and the dead.

Let us regard the end of all things as at hand, and so be 'sober, and watch unto prayer.' Let us have that 'fervent charity' among ourselves, which shall keep under a multitude of sins. And let our charity be shewn, not in word only, but in deed, 'without grudging.' Let us each reckon ourselves 'stewards of the . . . . grace of God,' which is 'manifold:' speaking that which God is pleased to speak through us, and ministering that which he enables us to minister; seeking in all things, not our own glory, but that God 'may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom be praise and dominion, for ever and ever. Amen.'

Thus, by the absence of all selfishness, and by generous devotedness to God for the good of each other, each loving another as himself, let us be obedient to the tenth commandment; the principle of which is still farther developed to the end of the epistle.

In Rev. iv. 6, 7, we have a description of the living creatures, corresponding to the entertainment of the apostle. They are said to be 'in the midst of the throne, and round about the throne.' Their life is in that love in which the God of glory reigns. They are 'full of eyes before and behind,' having a due consideration of that which is past, and looking forward unto the things which are before. And they have each received his gift, so as that they are parts of one whole. One is characterized by the courage of the lion of the tribe of Judah; another by the patient industry of the ox, the standard of Ephraim; a third has the prudence of the man, the standard of Reuben; and a fourth the heaven-soaring spirit of the eagle, the standard of the tribe of Dan. Under these four standards were the hosts of Israel arranged, Nu. ii.

The unfading life of the Living Creatures, and the good procured by the united action of their various gifts and graces, may be expressed by the gold and green of the tenth garnishment—the CHRYSOPRASUS, Rev. xxi. 20.

XI. 1 Pe. iv. 12—9.

Let us not be moved from our steadfastness, by even 'fiery trial;' but be prepared for it as that which is common to the saints; rejoicing to be partakers of Christ's sufferings, knowing 'that, when his glory shall be revealed,' we shall 'be glad also with exceeding joy.' Let us account it happiness to 'be reproached for the name of Christ,' seeking to make it an occasion of glorifying God. Let us at the same time beware of incurring suffering by any misconduct on our part; but if as a christian any man is subjected to obloquy, let him not be ashamed, let him rather 'glorify God on this behalf.' Let not the Christian presume, 'for judgment must begin at the house of God;' and let not others presume, for 'if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?' Wherefore let them that suffer according to the will of God commit the keeping of their souls to him in well doing, as unto a faithful Creator.'

TO HIM THAT OVERCOMETH WILL I GRANT TO SIT WITH ME IN MY THRONE, EVEN AS I ALSO OVERCAME, AND AM SET DOWN WITH MY FATHER IN HIS THRONE.—Rev. iii. 21.

That modest and unostentatious procedure, that willingness to be hid to which the apostle exhorts, is represented by each having six wings, Rev. iv. 8; the arrangement of which is described, Is. vi. 2, 'with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly.' Thus around and within they are full of eyes; having a due consideration of the case of others, and a watchfulness with regard to themselves. And that diligence in seeking to glorify God, whether in suffering or in well-doing, is spoken of thus, Rev. iv. 8, 'and they rest not day and night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.' This inflexible zeal for the glory of God, combined with modesty and mildness, is fitly represented by the eleventh garnishment of the foundations, the JACINTH (xxi. 20), whose colour, violet and purple, may be taken to express both humility and royalty; some are of a flame colour, which may be the symbol of zeal.

XII. 1 Pet. v.

'The elders.' Peter addresses, not as his pretended successors of Rome would have done, but simply as an elder like one of themselves. He however describes himself as having obtained possession of the keys of the kingdom of heaven; as being 'a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed.' He exhorts them, as much as in them lies, to 'feed the flock of God,' taking the oversight not as a matter of duty merely, but with a willing mind; not for the sake of the living, but as delighting to give and to serve; not as lording it over the heirs of the kingdom, but being themselves what God would have his flock to become; looking not for a perishing renown from man, but for the crown of glory from the Chief Shepherd at his appearing. Likewise the younger are to submit themselves unto the elder; yea, all are to be subject one to another, being clothed with humility, ver. 6, 7, 'Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time: casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you.' This confidence in the good providence of God is to be combined with sobriety and watchfulness, and that humility with the most manly virtue in resisting the enemy and in suffering affliction; and while enduring hardness ourselves, we are to have a sympathy with our brethren, in whom the same afflictions are being accomplished.

The concluding prayer is correspondent to the tenor of this epistle concerning the sufferings of Christ, ver. 10, 11, 'But the God of all grace, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you. To him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.'

This address to the elders, and monition to the younger; this exhortation that they live in humble service to God, and for each other, is beautifully correspondent to Rev. iv. 9—11.

And the same humility on the part of the royal priesthood is expressed by the twelfth and last stone garnishing the foundations, the AMETHYST, a stone of a violet colour, bordering upon purple, the purple expressing royalty, and the violet humility, Rev. xxi. 20.

THE SECOND EPISTLE treats of 'THE GLORY THAT SHOULD FOLLOW;' or, the second coming of Christ, and the establishment of his kingdom in glory: first, in relation to the people of God, ch. i.; and secondly, in relation to those who are falsely called Christians, the sensual, ch. ii.; and lastly, in relation to the sceptical, upon whom the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night, ch. iii.

A TABULAR VIEW OF REVELATION xxi. 19, 20; CHAP. iv.; AND 1 EP. PETER.

Rev. xxi. 19, 20.		Chap. iv.	1 Ep. Peter.
And the foundations of the wall of the city were garnished with all manner of precious stones.
The 1st, JASPER;	1	After this I looked, and, behold, a DOOR was opened in heaven: and the first VOICE which I heard was as it were of a trumpet talking with me; which said, Come up hither, and I will shew thee things	i. 1—12.
	2	which must be hereafter. And immediately I was in the SPIRIT:
2nd, SAPPHIRE;		And, behold, a throne was set in heaven, and one sat on the throne.	13—.6.
3rd, a CHALCEDONY;	3	And he that sat was to look upon like a jasper and a sardine stone:	17—21.
4th, an EMERALD;		And there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like unto an emerald.	22—.5.
5th, SARDONYX;	4	And round about the throne were four and twenty seats [thrones]:	ii. 1—6.
6th, SARDIUS;		And upon the seats I saw four and twenty elders sitting, clothed in white raiment;	7—10.
7th, CHRYSOLITE;		And they had on their heads crowns of gold.	11, .2.
8th, BERYL;	5	And out of the throne proceeded lightnings and thunderings and voices:	2—ii. 1—7.
9th, a TOPAZ;	6	And there were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God. And before the throne there was a sea of glass like unto crystal:	8—22.
10th, a CHRYSOPRASUS;		And in the midst of the throne, and round about the throne, were four beasts [MARG. living creatures] full of eyes before and behind.	iv. 1—11.
	7	And the first beast (i. c.) was like a lion, and the second beast (i. c.) like a calf, and the third beast (i. c.) had a face as a man, and the fourth beast (i. c.) was like a flying eagle.
11th a JACINTH;	8	And the four beasts had each of them six wings; about and within they were full of eyes: and they rest not day and night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.	12—.9.
12th, an AMETHYST.	9	And when those beasts (i. c.) give glory and honour and thanks to	Ch. v.
	10	him that sat on the throne, who liveth for ever and ever, the four and twenty elders fall down before Him that sat on the throne, and worship him that liveth for ever and ever, and cast their crowns
	11	before the throne, saying, Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created.

HE THAT OVERCOMETH SHALL NOT BE HURT OF THE SECOND DEATH.—Rev. ii. 11.

AND WHOSOEVER WILL, LET HIM TAKE THE WATER OF LIFE FREELY.—Rev. xxii. 17.

SECTION 51.—(G. 10, .1.)—[Lesson 48.]—SEVEN DAYS AFTERWARDS, JESUS IS TRANSFIGURED ON A CERTAIN MOUNTAIN, IN THE PRESENCE OF PETER, JAMES, AND JOHN. THE NEXT DAY, AS THEY ARE COMING DOWN FROM THE MOUNTAIN, JESUS DISCOURSES WITH THE THREE DISCIPLES ON THE COMING OF ELIAS. HE HEALS A DEMONIAC, WHICH HIS DISCIPLES, IN HIS ABSENCE, HAD NOT BEEN ABLE TO DO; AND AFTERWARDS IN PRIVATE EXPLAINS TO THEM THE REASON WHY THEY COULD NOT DO THE SAME. Matt. xvii. 1—21. Mark ix. 2—29. Luke ix. 28—42.—[Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. pp. 367—.74.]

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

THE kingdom having been proclaimed by the Baptist, Mt. iii. 2, § 7, p. 50, by Christ himself, iv. 17, § 16, p. 108, and by his twelve apostles, x. 7, § 39, p. 296, &c., and Jesus having promised that some of those then with him should, before death, see him as he shall come in his kingdom, xvi. 28, § 50, p. 44—He, six days after having so explicitly spoken to them respecting the two grand key-doctrines of divine revelation, 'the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow'—(compare xvi 19—23, § 50, p. 39—44; 1 Pe. i. 11)—proceeds to fulfil his promise, by making Peter, James, and John, eye-witnesses of his majesty on the holy mount—see 2 Pe. i. 16—.8, 'Scrip. Illus.' on Lu. ix. 31, p. 54

Mt. xvii. 1, 2. Mk. ix. 2, 3. Lu. ix. 28, .9. The three, who were also to be witnesses of his agony in the garden (Mt. xxvi. 37, § 88, p. 413), Jesus leads up into an high mountain, where, whilst engaged in prayer, he is transfigured before them.

— xvii 3. — ix. 4. — ix. 30, .1. Moses and Elias appear with him in glory, and speak of 'His decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem.' ——— ——— — ix. 32. State of the disciples immediately previous to the vision.

— xvii. 4. — ix. 5, 6. — ix. 33. Peter's request on seeing the departure of the glorified ones, in whose company he had found it good to be.

— xvii. 5. — ix. 7. — ix. 34, .5. A cloud overshadows them, and the Son of God, the Foundation promised to be laid in Sion, receives from the Father honour and glory.

— xvii. 6. (— ix. 6. — ix. 34.) The disciples, who were thrown into a state of excitement at the departure of Moses and Elias, and who 'feared as they entered into the cloud,' are still farther afraid upon hearing the voice from the excellent glory.

— xvii. 7, 8. — ix. 8. — ix. 36. When the voice is past, they find no man with them save Jesus only.

— x.ii. 9. — ix. 9. ——— When descending the mountain, they are commanded by Jesus, to conceal this vision of his glory, till, after having suffered, he should be 'risen from the dead.'

——— ——— — ix. 10. (— ix. 36.) The disciples obey, but are as yet ignorant concerning his death and resurrection.

— xvii. 10—.3 — ix. 11—.3. ——— In answer to a question of his disciples, Jesus informs them that, 'Elias truly shall first come, and restore all things,' but the manner of this coming had been already exemplified in the Baptist, unto whom men had done as they listed—from which Jesus again takes occasion to warn them of his approaching sufferings.

——— ——— — Lu. ix. 37. When they come down from the mountain much people meet him.

——— Mk. ix. 14, .5. ——— The scribes are found questioning the disciples. The people upon beholding Jesus are greatly amazed, and gladly salute him.

Mt. xvii. 14—.6. — ix. 16—.8. — ix. 38—40. Upon asking the scribes the matter of dispute, he is answered by one of the multitude, that his son, a most miserable lunatic, had been brought to the disciples, but they had been unable to relieve him.

— xvii. 17. — ix. 19. — ix. 41. Jesus laments their want of faith and their perversity; and, having said, 'How long shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you?' he bids the father to bring him his son.

——— — ix. 20. — ix. 42. The truth of the father's statement respecting his son, is fully made evident while the latter is being brought unto Jesus.

——— — ix. 21, .2. ——— The father states in answer to Jesus, that his son has been thus afflicted from childhood; and adds, 'But if thou canst do any thing, have compassion on us, and help us.'

——— — ix. 23. ——— Jesus replies, 'If thou canst believe,' &c.

——— — ix. 24. ——— The father, with tearful earnestness, cries out, 'Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief.' — xvii. 18. — ix. 25—.7. — ix. 42. Jesus casts out the foul spirit; lifts up as from the dead him that had been possessed, and delivers him, healed, to his father.

— xvii. 19—.21. — ix. 28, .9. ——— Jesus being privately questioned by his disciples, tells them that their impotency in this case had been occasioned by their unbelief. Again he speaks of the power of faith as he had spoken to the father of the child; and adds a word on the importance of prayer and fasting, that the wonder-working power of faith may in such a case come into full manifestation.

(G. 10.) No. 51. Jesus is transfigured on a certain mountain, in the presence of Peter, James, and John.—See NOTE, p. 52.

MATT. xvii. 1—8. [Ch. xvi. 28, § l. p. 44.]	MARK ix. 2—8. [Ver. 1, § ibid. p. 44.]	LUKE IX. 28—36. [Ver. 27, § ibid. p. 44.]
1 And after six days	2 [a]And after six days	And it-came-to-pass about 28 an-eight days after these sayings,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvii. 1. after six days—or, as in Luke ix. 28, 'about an eight days after,' including the day on which the promise was made, 'There be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom,' Mt. xvi. 28, § 50, p. 44, and the day on which the promise was fulfilled, in their seeing Christ in his kingly glory, Lu. ix. 28, .9.

NOTES.

[Mt. xvii. 1. Six days—from the confession of Peter. Luke says, "about an eight days." Luke is so guarded "about an eight days," that it is evident he did not mean to affirm the interval of eight entire days; but either of seven whole days and part of an eighth; or of six whole days and parts of two more days. It is probable that Christ was transfigured exactly one year before His ascension into heaven.'—*Greswell.—See ADDENDA, p. 66, 'The Transfiguration.']

* On the difference in the two statements of the number of days, see Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. pp. 367, .8; and for the locality of this manifestation of our Lord in glory, see p. 363, ibid.; see also ADDENDA, p. 67.

MATT. xvii. 1.	MARK ix. 2.	LUKE ix. 28. .9.
Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John [b] his brother, and bringeth-them-up into an-high mountain apart,	Jesus taketh with him Peter, and James, and John, [b] [c] and leadeth-them-up into an-high mountain apart by-themselves: [d]	he-took Peter and John and James, and-went up into a-mountain [d] to-pray. And as he prayed, 29 the fashion εἶδος of-his countenance was-altered [e] ἕτερον,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvii. 1. Peter, James, and John—the three first named of the twelve disciples, Mk. iii. 16, .7, § 27, p. 206—and been chosen to be with Jesus when he raised Jairus' daughter, Lu. viii. 51, § 36, p. 283—in their hearing were delivered the predictions on the mount of Olives, Mk. xiii. 3, &c., § 86, p. 324—they were also chosen to be with him during his agony in Gethsemane, xiv. 32, .3, § 88, p. 412—John (Nathanael) had confessed him, saying, 'Thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Israel,' Jno. i. 49, § 10, p. 73—and Jesus had promised him, saying, 'Verily, verily, I say unto you, Hereafter ye shall see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of man, ver. 51—Peter had made a similar confession, vi. 68, .9, § 43, p. 334—and again, Mt. xvi. 16, § 50, p. 36—these two were afterwards among the most forward witnesses to the truth, Ac. iv. 13, .8—20—and see on Jno. xxi. 15—23, § 97,——

—James appears to have been the first of the apostles who was put to death for the testimony of Jesus—Ac. xii. 1, 2, 'Herod the king stretched forth his hands to vex certain of the church. And he killed James the brother of John with the sword'—see on Jno. i. 45, § 10, p. 72, 'Nathanael,' and § 97, p. 506.

The names of these three appear to have some reference to what is said (Da. ii.) with regard to the kingdom about to be set up, 'In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed (represented by 'a stone,' ver. 34) and the kingdom shall not be left to other people' (It is preserved by the grace of the Lord), 'but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms (it shall utterly supplant them), and it shall stand for ever,' Da. ii. 44—see NOTE.

an high mountain—When locality was last noted, xvi. 13, § 50, p. 35—they were in the neighbourhood of Hermon (desolate), 'which the Sidonians call Sirion (deliverance—song of the dove); and the Amorites call it Shenir' (change, or transfiguration), De. iii. 9—It is also called 'mount Sion, which is Hermon,' iv. 48—Sion is identified with Zion, Ps. cxxxiii. 3, ...—'As the dew of Hermon, and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion: for there the LORD commanded the blessing, even life for evermore'—and it was in Zion that the foundation of the kingdom was to be laid, Is. xxviii. 16, 'Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation'—there Christ, as king, was to be acknowledged by the Father, Ps. ii. 6, 7—see on Lu. ix. 35, p. 55—here the Nazarene was to be planted, 'upon an high mountain and eminent: in the mountain of the height of Israel,' &c., Eze. xvii. 22, .3—see on 'Nazarene,' § 5, p. 35—here also is to be the manifestation of the kingdom, Eze. xx. 40, 'For in mine holy mountain'—comp. 2 Pe. i. 18—'in the mountain of the height of Israel, saith the Lord GOD, there shall all the house of Israel, all of them in the land, serve me: there will I accept them,' (all Israel, which had been cast afar off, Eze. xi. 15, 16,) —then, addressing those who were nigh—' And there will I require your offerings, and the first-fruits of your oblations, with all your holy things,' xx. 40—see NOTES.

Lu. ix. 28. to pray, &c.—see on ver. 18, § 50, p. 36.

29. the fashion of his countenance was altered, &c.—'His face did shine as the sun,' Mt. xvii. 2—'We beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,' &c., Jno. i. 14, § 7, p. 48—He 'manifested forth his glory,' ii. 11, § 11, p. 78—see also 2 Pe. i. 18—When Jesus appeared to John, as described, Rev. i. 16, 'his countenance was as the sun shineth in his strength'—and when the separation of the tares from the wheat takes place, 'Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear,' Mt. xiii. 43, § 33.

NOTES.

Mt. xvii. 1. Taketh Peter, James, and John. As the law required no more than two or three witnesses to constitute a regular and judicial proof (De. xix. 15), our blessed Lord frequently chose to have only this number of witnesses present at some of the most important and interesting scenes of his life. These three disciples seem to have been distinguished by Christ's peculiar confidence, and were frequently admitted by him to the more intimate transactions of his life, from which the others were excluded.—See 'Scrip. Illus.' supra.

[The names of the three disciples, Peter, James, and John, were expressive of the preparation of his people for the coming of our Lord: Peter, a stone—they must as lively stones be built upon him, in him, and unto him, who is the One Living Stone. James or Jacob, a supplanter—they must, like Jacob, have wrestled and overcome. It will be said of them, 'They overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death,' Rev. xii. 11 and then shall be enjoyed that which is contained in the name John, Grace of the Lord. It is in this way the stone cut out of the mountain without hands, shall become a great mountain, and, utterly supplanting the kingdoms of this world, fill the whole earth with the manifestation of the divine favour.]—See 'Scrip. Illus.' supra.

An high mountain. Generally said to be Tabor* in Galilee, a famous spot in history (Ju. iv. 14), but for what reason does not appear.—Barnes, Macknight, Gill. It is more probable that the transfiguration took place in Upper Galilee—comp. ch. xvi. 13; xvii. 20, pp. 35, 61. The order of the history determines the transfiguration to some mountain not far from Cæsarea Philippi, rather than to Tabor, which was situated in the south of Galilee; for after the transfiguration, it is said, Mk. ix. 30, § 52, p. 70, that 'they departed thence, and passed through Galilee,' and then came to Capernaum.—Macknight.—See 'Scrip. Illus.' supra.

Apart. κατ' ἰδίαν. Denotes the privacy of persons, in particular transactions, and not the situation of places.—See foot-note, p. 53.

Mk. ix. 2. By themselves. μόνους. This is explanatory of κατ' ἰδίαν.

* 'Although the expressions used by St. Matthew and St. Mark do not specify any particular mountain, yet the context evidently points at some mountain in the neighbourhood of Cæsarea. And this probability is converted into certainty by the words of St. Luke, ἀνέβη εἰς τὸ ὄρος (as it is found in all the MSS., confirmed by the Pesch. Syr. Version), where the article limits the sense to some mountain, which might be called the mountain in respect to Cæsarea; and that cannot well be any other than some part of the ridge of Hermon, most probably that part of it which runs out into the plain of the Jordan, within six miles of Cæsarea, called the Mons Paneum. The tradition above mentioned seems to have arisen from the confounding of the two mounts Hermon; one very near Tabor, the other near Cæsarea. It should seem

MATT. xvii. 2, 3.	MARK ix. 3, 4.	LUKE ix. 30.
2 and was-transfigured μετεμορφώθη before them: f and his face did-shine as the sun, and his raiment ἱμάτια was white as the light g ὡς το φῶς.	e and he-was-transfigured μετεμορφώθη before them.f
	3 And his raiment ἱμάτια became shining στιλβοντα, h exceeding white as snow; so-as no fuller on earth can white them.i	and his raiment ἱματισμος was white g and glistering ἐξαστραπτων h
3 *i*And, behold, there-appeared unto-them k Moses and Elias	4 And there-appeared unto-them Elias with Moses:	And, behold, there- 30 talked-with him k two men, which were Moses and Elias:l who appeared in glory,l 31

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvii. 2. white as the light—'white and glistering,' Lu. ix. 29—'exceeding white as snow; so as no fuller on earth can white them,' Mk. ix. 3—Of the angel that appeared at the door of the sepulchre, when Christ was risen from the dead, it is said, 'His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow,' Mt. xxviii. 3, § 93, p. 465—of the Bride, the Lamb's wife, it is said, 'To her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white (or bright): for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints,' Rev. xix. 8—and the armies in heaven that follow the Bridegroom, are described as being 'clothed in fine linen, white and clean,' ver. 14.

3. Moses and Elias—the two witnesses referred to at the close of the Old Testament, Mal. iv. 4—6—the writings of Moses are at the commencement of the written word, Lu. xxiv. 27, 44, §§ 94, 98, pp. 495, 512. Elijah did not leave his words in writing, they being words for the time then present, and, like the words of the Baptist, to be immediately fulfilled, 1 Ki. xvii., &c.—Moses had been the mediator of the old covenant, whereby Israel had been married to the Lord; whilst through the ministry of Elijah was given the 'bill of divorce,' according to which Israel was cut off from being the people of God, 1 Ki. xix. 1 Jer. iii. 8; Hos. 1.—Moses had fasted 'forty days and forty nights' at the receiving of the law, Ex. xxiv. 18; xxxiv. 28—and Elijah the same at the time of the divorce, and as journeying to Horeb, 1 Ki. xix. 8—Moses had died, and was buried, De. xxxiv. 5, 6—and his appearance in glory on the mount may be regarded as representing the saints who have fallen asleep, and who will be raised from their graves at the coming of Christ, 1 Th. iv. 14—whilst the case of Elijah was more like that of the Lord's people, who will be found alive at the same coming of Christ—he having been caught up without passing through death, 2 Ki. ii. 1—11; 1 Th. iv. 15—7—see the description of the two witnesses, Rev. xi. 3—12.

NOTES.

[Mt. xvii. 2. Was transfigured. μετεμορφώθη. 'The word (which sometimes imports a change of substance) here denotes only a change in external appearance, agreeably to the sense of its primitive μορφὴ in the Old and New Testament. Thus, in the plainer words of Lu. ix. 29, τὸ εἶδος τοῦ προσώπου αὐτοῦ ἕτερον ἐγένετο. A similar appearance is ascribed to Moses, when he came down from Sinai, after receiving the Tables of the covenant, Ex. xxxiv. 29, sq., where it is said that his face shone δεδόξασται, namely, with a kind of glory, as it were an ἀναύγασμα τῆς δόξης τοῦ θεοῦ.']—Bloomfield.

[Christ took on him the form of a servant, μορφὴν δούλου, Ph. ii. 7. He drew a veil over the glory of his Godhead; but now, in his transfiguration, he put by that veil, appeared ἐν μορφῇ θεοῦ, in the form of God, ii. 6, and gave his disciples a glimpse of his glory.]

Lu. ix. 29. White and glistering. The Lord was transfigured so as to appear in that brightness, and beauty, and power, in which He will come, the 'second time without sin unto salvation,' He. ix. 28.

Mk. ix. 3. So as no fuller, &c. γναφεὺς—from γνάφος, a tool with which the ancients used to raise the nap of old cloth. This was one of the employments of an artisan called γναφεὺς: and with it were united that of cleansing soiled garments, and restoring them to their original state: either by dyeing them, or by the use of fuller's earth and alkali, restoring their whiteness.

Mt. xvii. 3. Moses and Elias. That Moses and Elias actually appeared in their own proper persons, there is not the least reason to doubt. For though, indeed, the sepulchre of Moses was not known, yet his body was actually buried in a valley in the land of Moab,

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xvii. 3. At our blessed Lord's second advent, his saints shall appear with him in glory; both those who have been buried, as was Moses, and those who shall be found alive, and who, without being previously laid in the grave, shall be caught up, as was Elias.

It is possible for men in mortal bodies, such as Peter, and James, and John, to have intercourse with men in glorified bodies, such as Moses and Elias—and thus our Lord, in the fact before us, has answered the objection of those who say it is impossible that the glorified saints, in the kingdom, can be upon the earth along with men in mortal bodies.

4 ver. It is not merely possible for men, such as we are, to have fellowship with the glorified saints, but we have the testimony of an eyewitness of the glory, that it is good for men so to be.

[Peter shewed his previous ignorance of the knowledge of the glory, when he spake of making tabernacles for heavenly visitants. It was not the time of their coming to dwell with men upon the earth; and when that time is come, they will not, like men in these frail mortal bodies, require such tabernacles in which to dwell; they shall have a building of God, not made with hands.]

---

that after it had been preserved by ancient tradition, that mount Hermon was the scene of the Transfiguration, those who lived in later ages supposed the Hermon to be that near Tabor, as was natural; since the two were often associated. So Ps. lxxxix. 12, 'Tabor and Hermon shall rejoice in thy name;' and others afterwards fixed on Tabor itself, on account of its very close contiguity, and its being most κατ' ἐξοχὴν, in their mistaken view of the expression, referring it to the mountain; for Mr. Maundrell, in his Travels, remarks that it stands 'apart:' and all travellers describe it as being of a conical form, detached from the neighbouring mountain, and terminating in a point.'—Bloomfield. See ADDENDA, 'The Transfig.,' p. 66.

SING ALOUD UNTO GOD OUR STRENGTH: MAKE A JOYFUL NOISE UNTO THE GOD OF JACOB.—Psalm lxxxi. 1.
TAKE A PSALM, AND BRING HITHER THE TIMBREL, THE PLEASANT HARP WITH THE PSALTERY.—Psalm lxxxi. 2.

MATT. xvii. 4.	MARK ix. 4, 5.	LUKE ix. 31—3.
talking with him.	and they were talking with Jesus.	*m*and spake of his decease την εξοδον which he should accomplish εμελλε πληρουν at Jerusalem. But 32 Peter and they that were with him were heavy βεβαρημενοι with sleep: and when they were awake διαγρηγορησαντες, they saw his glory, and the two men that stood with him. And it came to pass, as 33 they departed from him,
4 Then answered Peter, and-said unto Jesus, Lord κυριε, it is good for us to be here: "if thou wilt, let us make	5 And Peter answered and-said to Jesus, Master Ραββι, it is good for us to be here: and let us make	Peter said unto Jesus, Master Επιστατα, it is good for us to be here: " and let us make

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. ix. 4. talking with Jesus—they 'spake of his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem,' Lu. ix. 31—'Of which salvation the prophets have inquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you: searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow,' 1 Pe. i. 10, 11.

Lu. ix. 31. appeared in glory—' Set your affection (or mind) on things above, not on things on the earth. 3. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God. 4. When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory,' Col. iii. 2—4—Peter bare witness, saying, 'For we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eyewitnesses of his majesty. 17. For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. 18. And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount,' 2 Ep. i. 16—8—see also 1 Jno. iii. 2.

decease, or 'exodus'—the same word which is used in the Gr. translation of that remarkable prophecy which speaks of the guilt of Jerusalem in rejecting the king of Israel, 'Whose goings forth (exodoi) have been from of old, from everlasting' (or from the days of eternity'), Mi. v. 1, 2—He himself said, 'I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but he sent me,' Jno. viii. 42, § 55, p. 105—'I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world,' xvi. 28, § 87—the several steps in this coming forth in humiliation, to the accursed death of the cross, at Jerusalem, are marked, Ph. ii. 6—8, 'Who, being in the form of God,' &c.—upon the consideration of that atonement he was to accomplish at Jerusalem, was Jesus now to be acknowledged as the Foundation of the kingdom, as in Lu. ix. 35, p. 55.

32. heavy with sleep—so also when they were with him during his agony in the garden, Mk. xiv. 37—42, § 88.

saw his glory—'And we beheld his glory,' Jno. i. 14—so Peter, in his second Epistle, which more particularly relates to the second key, 'the Glory,' says, ch. i. 16, 'We have not followed cunningly devised,' &c.—see on ver. 31, supra—When Israel had entered into covenant with the Lord, 'Moses, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel,' were admitted into the presence of the King, 'And they saw the God of Israel: and there was under his feet as it were a paved work of a sapphire stone, and as it were the body of heaven in his clearness,' Ex. xxiv. 9—11—see the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the Lord, Eze. i. 26—8.

two men that stood—when the disciples saw Jesus taken up into heaven, 'Behold, two men stood by them in white apparel; which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven,' Ac. i. 10, 11, § 98.

Mt. xvii. 4. it is good, &c.—'He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the LORD require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?' Mi. vi. 8—see on 'Hear ye him' p. 56.

NOTES.

and therefore must have seen corruption; and as the whole transaction was miraculous, it was just as easy to Omnipotence to restore life and form to a body mouldered into dust, as to reanimate a body that was preserved uncorrupted and entire; and indeed, was a much more exact emblem of our own resurrection.

Mt. xvii. 4. The names of Moses, 'Drawn out,' and Elias, 'My God is Jehovah,' are expressive with regard to the two classes represented. The sleeping saints will be drawn out or brought forth from their graves; and the saints who live to the coming of the Lord, and who will then be changed, will have seen the mighty power of the Lord put forth in accomplishment of his word, and be led to exclaim, 'The LORD he is God.' 'Lo, this is our God; we have waited for Him, and He will save us: this is the LORD; we have waited for Him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation,' Is. xxv. 9.

Lu. ix. 31. Who appeared in glory. The two who appeared with Christ in glory, were like him in this respect, that they each fasted forty days and forty nights, and probably in the same wilderness. Moses, at the giving of the law, when Israel entered into covenant with God at Horeb; Elias, when backsliding Israel was divorced from that covenant; and our Lord, upon being publicly manifested as the Fulfiller of all righteousness, when declared to be accepted of the Father in behalf of His people—see on Mk. i. 13, § 9.

His decease. Literally, his exit, or departure. The word translated here decease—that is, exit, or going out—is elsewhere used to denote death.—See 2 Pe. i. 15, 'After my decease,' &c.

[Accomplish. 'To fulfil the death,' gives a strong peculiarity to this passage. To depart from life is the common lot; but to fulfil his decease was peculiar to Christ.]

IF ANY MAN BE IN CHRIST, HE IS A NEW CREATURE: OLD THINGS ARE PASSED AWAY; BEHOLD, ALL THINGS ARE BECOME NEW. AND ALL THINGS ARE OF GOD, WHO HATH RECONCILED US TO HIMSELF BY JESUS CHRIST.—2 Cor. v. 17, 8.

MATT. xvii. 5.	MARK ix. 6, 7.	LUKE ix. 34, .5.
here three tabernacles, one for-thee, and one for-Moses, and one for-Elias.°	three tabernacles; one for-thee, and one for-Moses, and one for-Elias. 6 °For he-wist not what to-say; for they-were sore-afraid.ᵖ	three tabernacles; one for-thee, and one for-Moses, and one for-Elias: not knowing what he-said.
5 ᵖ While-·he yet-·spake, behold, a-bright cloud overshadowed them:ᵠ	7 And there-was a-cloud that overshadowed them·	While-·he thus-·spake, 34 there-came a-cloud, and overshadowed them: ᵠ and they-feared as they entered into the cloud.
and behold a-voice out-of the cloud, ʳ which-said, This is my beloved Son,	and a-voice came out-of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son	And there-came a-voice 35 out-of the cloud,ʳ saying, This is my beloved Son:

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvii. 4. let us make here three tabernacles—of the time of which it is written, 'My servant David shall be their Prince for ever,' it is also promised, 'My tabernacle also shall be with them: yea, I will be their God, and they shall be my people,' Eze. xxxvii. 25—.7—on 'the feast of tabernacles,' see Jno. vii. 2, § 54, p. 87—'Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God,' Rev. xxi. 3—Peter seems to have manifested equal ignorance with regard to the 'glory,' as he had before in respect to the 'sufferings of Christ:' the saints in the resurrection life do not require to dwell in tabernacles of man's making—'God is not ashamed to be called their God: for he hath prepared for them a city,' He. xi. 16; 'a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God,' ver. 10—'new Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God,' Rev. iii. 12—the glorified saints will not require to have tabernacles built for them, but those who dwell upon the earth, and are as Peter, James, and John were on the holy mount, Is. lxv. 21—.3, 'They shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. 22, They shall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat: for as the days of a tree are the days of my people, and mine elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands. 23, They shall not labour in vain, nor bring forth for trouble; for they are the seed of the blessed of the LORD, and their offspring with them.'

Mk. ix. 6. wist not what to say—so also in the garden of Gethsemane, 'neither wist they what to answer him;' xiv. 40, § 88.

sore afraid—'they feared as they entered into the cloud,' Lu. ix. 34—'they fell on their face, and were sore afraid,' Mt. xvii. 6, p. 56.

7. a cloud . . . overshadowed them—a cloud was a symbol of the Divine presence: thus God went before the Israelites in a cloudy pillar, dark by day, and bright by night, Ex. xiv. 19, 20, 'And the angel of God, which went before the camp of Israel, removed and went behind them; and the pillar of the cloud went from before their face, and stood behind them: and it came between the camp of the Egyptians and the camp of Israel: and it was a cloud and darkness to them, but it gave light by night to these: so that the one came not near the other all the night'—God appeared in a cloud on mount Sinai, xxiv. 15, .6, 'And Moses went up into the mount, and a cloud covered the mount. And the glory of the LORD abode upon mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it six days: and the seventh day he called unto Moses out of the midst of the cloud'—ver. 17, 'And the sight of the glory of the LORD was like devouring fire on the top of the mount in the eyes of the children of Israel'—Nu. ix. 15, .6, 'And on the day that the tabernacle was reared up the cloud covered the tabernacle, namely, the tent of the testimony: and at even there was upon the tabernacle as it were the appearance of fire, until the morning. So it was alway: the cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire by night.' When the temple was finished, 'the house was filled with a cloud, even the house of the LORD; so that the priests could not stand to minister by reason of the cloud: for the glory of the LORD had filled the house of God,' 2 Chr. v. 13, .4—Christ was the antitype of the tabernacle and of the temple: 'And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt [tabernacled] among us, (and we beheld his glory,' &c.) Jno. i. 14—Jesus said to the Jews, 'Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up . . . he spake of the temple of his body,' ii. 19—21, § 12, p. 82—'The LORD will create upon every dwelling-place of mount Zion, and upon her assemblies, a cloud and smoke by day, and the shining of a flaming fire by night: for upon all the glory shall be a defence,' Is. iv. 5—see 'Note,' infra.

Lu. ix. 35. This is my beloved Son—the voice that was heard at the baptism of Jesus, Mt. iii. 17, § 8,

NOTES.

Lu. ix. 33. Three tabernacles. σκηνὰς. Booths, composed of branches of trees, such as travellers are accustomed to construct when they meet with a pleasant spot.

[Mt. xvii. 5. A bright cloud overshadowed them. This cloud is called by St. Peter, who beheld it, 'the excellent glory,' 2 Ep. i. 17, the Shechinah, or visible symbol of the Divine presence. Many MSS. read νεφέλη φωτὸς, a cloud of light; and this reading is admitted into Griesbach's text. Ἐπεσκίασεν, would be more correctly translated circumfusil, circumdedit. The Greek σκιαζω signifies 'to envelop in shade,' which seems inconsistent with the descent of a bright cloud; but the Shechinah was at once dark and bright—a dark cloud, which sent forth rays of light.]

Lu. ix. 34 As they entered into the cloud. Meaning, by a common permutation of terms, 'when the cloud enveloped them.' They were afraid, because the cloud was a symbol of the Divine presence.

Mt. xvii. 5. This is my beloved Son, &c. i. e., 'in whom I am always well pleased,' including past, present, and to come. This was the voice of God. This

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mt. xvii. 5. From the Shechinah, the dwelling-place of the God of Israel, in which he tabernacled of old, proceeded the voice which bore witness of Jesus. It testified of him as the KING, the true David, 'This is my beloved Son;' as the PRIEST, whose service and sacrifice is well pleasing to God, 'In whom I am well pleased;' as the PROPHET, one fully accredited to declare the will of God, 'Hear ye him.']

Let us hearken diligently unto Him as our Prophet, repose wholly our confidence in Him as our Priest, and be obedient unto Him as our King, delighting to do whatsoever He hath commanded.

AS THE SUFFERINGS OF CHRIST ABOUND IN US, SO OUR CONSOLATION ALSO ABOUNDETH BY CHRIST.—2 Cor. i. 5. FOR OF HIM, AND THROUGH HIM, AND TO HIM, ARE ALL THINGS: TO WHOM BE GLORY FOR EVER.—Rom. xi. 36.

Matt. xvii. 6—8.	Mark ix. 8.	Luke ix. 36.
in whom I-am-well-pleased; hear-ye him.	hear him.	hear him.
6 And when-the disciples- heard it, they-fell on their face, and were-sore-afraid.
7 And		[a]And when-the voice-was-past εν τω γενεσθαι την φωνην,
[a] Jesus came and- touched them, and said, Arise, and be-not-afraid.
8 And when-they-had-lifted-up their eyes, they-saw no-man, save Jesus only.	8 [a]And suddenly, when-they-had-looked-round-about, they-saw no-man any-more, save Jesus only with themselves.	Jesus was-found alone.
		[a]And they kept-it-close εσιγησαν, and told no-man in those days any of those things which they-had-seen.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

p. 60—under this name of David, or 'Beloved,' the promised king of Israel had been spoken of by the prophets, Je. xxx. 9 ('But they shall serve the LORD their God, and David their king, whom I will raise up unto them'); Eze. xxxvii. 24 ('And David my servant shall be king over them'); Ac. ii. 25—36—It was thus he had been acknowledged when entering upon his public ministry, Mt. iii. 17, § 8, p. 60—it was thus that it had been promised he should now be acknowledged, Ps. ii.—notwithstanding the Jews' rejection of Jesus as king, the prediction was fulfilled, 'Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion. I will declare the decree: the LORD hath said unto me, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee,' ver. 6, 7.

Mt. xvii. 5. in whom I am well pleased—so the three evangelists report the voice of the Father at the baptism of Jesus, Mt. iii. 17; Mk. i. 11; Lu. iii. 22, § 8, p. 60; only Matthew notices these words as being now spoken; they express an acceptance of Christ in his priestly character, as having come to do the will of God, 'Wherefore when he cometh into the world,' &c., He. x. 5—13, and the Father's readiness to grant at his request, as in Ps. ii., all authority to execute both judgment and mercy—'Ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession,' ver. 8—'Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel,' ver. 9.

hear ye him—'hear him,' Mk. ix. 7; Lu. ix. 35—these words are not reported as having been spoken at the baptism of Jesus, Mt. iii. 17, Mk. i. 11, Lu. iii. 22, § 8, p. 60; they are in substance the concluding words of the second psalm, 'Be wise now therefore, O ye kings: be instructed, ye judges of the earth. 11. Serve the LORD with fear, and rejoice with trembling. 12. Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and ye perish from the way, when his wrath is kindled but a little. Blessed are all they that put their trust in him,' ver. 10—12—The Father had recognised Jesus as being the Prophet he had spoken of to Moses, De. xviii. 18, 19—see the conclusion of our Lord's sermon on the mount: 'Whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them,' &c., Mt. vii. 24—7, § 19, p. 141; and at the end of his discourse in the plain: 'Whosoever cometh to me, and heareth my sayings, and doeth them,' &c., Lu. vi. 47—9, § 27, p. 210—Peter testifies, 'he received from God the Father,' &c., 2 Ep. i. 17, 18—see on Lu. ix. 31, p. 54—This voice appears to be that referred to by Jesus after producing evidence to shew that he was the Messiah who ought to be heard, 'How can ye believe, which receive honour [acclamations such as "Hear him!"] one of another, and seek not the honour that cometh from God only?' Jno. v. 44, § 23, p. 180—observe the recognition here made by the Father, of the words before spoken by Jesus, in reference to the name of his first disciple, Simon, Mt. xvi. 17, § 50, p. 37.

6. sore afraid—see Mk. ix. 6; Lu. ix. 34, p. 55.

8. save Jesus only—'save Jesus only with themselves,' Mk. ix. 8—'Jesus was found alone,' Lu. ix. 36.

NOTES.

was the second time that, in a remarkable manner, he had declared this.—See Mt. iii. 17, § 8, p. 60.

Mt. xvii. 5. Hear ye him. The words evidently refer to what Moses said to Israel, De. xviii. 15, 'The LORD thy God will raise up, &c.—See also Ac. iii. 22. 'For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A Prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you,' and vii. 37.

6. Fell on their face. So Saul of Tarsus, Ac. ix. 4.

8. They saw no man, save Jesus. One great purpose of the transfiguration may have been to represent the cessation of the Jewish, and the commencement of the Christian dispensation. Moses and Elias disappear—the former objects of the disciples' veneration are no more; Christ remains alone 'the Way, the Truth, and the Life;' no man can come unto the Father but through him.

PRACTICAL REFLECTION.

Mt. xvii. 5. Jesus, the beloved Son, is the substance of those types which were appointed by Moses, to foreshadow the bloodshedding of the Lamb of God; and he is the great subject of the prophets, represented by Elias. It is Jesus that is to be seen and heard in them all. It was the Spirit of Christ in them, which did testify of 'the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow.'—See 1 Pe. i. 11.

(G. 11.)—The next day, as they were coming down from the mountain, Jesus discourses with the three disciples on the coming of Elias.

Matt. xvii. 9—13.	Mark ix. 9—12.	Luke ix. 37.
		[a] And it-came-to-pass, 37 that on the next day,[b]
9 [b]And as-they-came-down from the mountain, Jesus charged them,[c] saying, Tell the vision to-no-man, until ἐως ου the Son of man be-risen-again from the-dead.	9 And as-they-came-down from the mountain, he-charged them [c]that they-should-tell no-man what-things they-had-seen, till ει μη οταν the Son of man were-risen from the-dead. 10 And they-kept εκρατησαν that saying with themselves, questioning-one-with-another συζητουντες what the rising from the-dead should-mean.[d]
10 [d]And his disciples asked him, saying, Why then say the scribes that Elias must δει first come? 11 And Jesus answered and-said unto-them, Elias truly shall-first-come ερχεται, and restore αποκαταστησει all-things.[e]	11 And they-asked him, saying, Why say the scribes that Elias must δει first come? 12 And he answered and-told them, Elias verily cometh ελθων first, and-restoreth αποκαθιστᾳ all-things; [e]and how it-is-written of the Son of man, that he-must-suffer many-things, and be-set-at-nought εξουδενωθη.[f]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvii. 9. Tell the vision to no man, &c.—contrast with the publicity he gave to the doctrine of his sufferings, Mk. viii. 31—.8, § 50, p. 40.

Mk. ix. 9. risen from the dead—He had just before the transfiguration predicted both his death and resurrection, viii. 31 § 50, p. 40—see again ix. 31, § 52, p. 71.

10. what the rising, &c., should mean—the disciples do not appear to have had clear views on this subject until after the prediction was fulfilled—see Lu. xxiv. 6—8, § 93, p. 488; 25, .6, § 94, p. 494—the resurrection of Jesus is the pledge of ours, ¶ Co. xv. 20—3.

Mt. xvii. 11. Elias truly shall first come—'Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord,' &c. Mal. iv. 5, &c.—Elijah means, 'the Lord he is God,' 'And ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the Lord your God, and none else: . . . before the great and the terrible day of the Lord come,' Joel ii. 27—31. . . . —So sure as Jesus would depart, was the Holy Ghost to come, Jno. xvi. 7—15, § 87, p. 393—The Spirit of Life who is to raise 'all Israel' as from the dead; and the Spirit of Power by whom they are to stand upon their feet 'an exceeding great army,' Eze. xxxvii.

restore all things—prayer for this was offered up by Elijah, at the time that the prophets of Baal were made ashamed, and cut off: 'Hear me, O Lord, hear me, that this people may know that thou art the Lord God, and that thou hast turned their heart back again,' 1 Ki. xviii. 37—'He shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers,' Mal. iv. 6—'I will heal their backsliding,' &c., Ho. xiv. 4—'Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; 20, and he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: 21, whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began,' Ac. iii. 19—21.—The restitution of which all the prophets have spoken, is the restoration of 'the lost sheep of the house of Israel,' All Israel are to be made anew the people of God—see Addenda, 'Prophecies concerning the restoration of Israel,' p. 67—to this restitution or regeneration our Lord alludes in his promise to the twelve, Mt. xix. 28, § 75, p. 228—The apostle of the Gentiles speaks of this turning to the Lord: 'And so all Israel shall be saved: as it is written, There shall come out of Sion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob: for this is my covenant unto them, when I shall take away their sins.'

NOTES.

Mt. xvii. 11. Elias truly shall first come. 'ερχεται πρωτον. i.e., is coming, is about to come. The present is here used for the future.'—Bloomf.

[And restore all things. 'The original sense of the verb 'Αποκαθιστημι, is, Instauro, Reâintegro. I begin anew. It is most properly applied to the sun and planets, and in regard to which the finishing and the recommencing of their course are coincident. Besides, their return to the place whence they set out does, as it were, restore the face of things to what it was at the beginning of their circuit. Hence the word has two meanings, which, on reflection, are more nearly related than at first they appear to be. One is to restore, the other to finish. John the Baptist came as the last prophet of the old dispensation, to finish that state of things, and to usher in a new one.'—Ibid.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. ix. 9, 10. Well might the disciples be forbid to speak of the glory, when, as yet, they were so ignorant of the sufferings of Christ as to question among themselves 'what the rising from the dead should mean.'

[Let us earnestly seek that soon may be restored to the church all wherewith she was adorned in the days of her youth. Soon may 'all Israel' be in truth 'Holiness unto the Lord,' Jer. ii. 3, and the promise be realized, Is. xlv. 25, 'In the Lord shall all the seed of Israel be justified, and shall glory.']

MATT. xvii. 12, 13.	MARK ix. 13.	LUKE ix. 37
12 f But I say unto you, That Elias is come already ηδη ηλθε, and they knew επεγνωσαν him not, but have done unto εν him whatsoever they listed.ε	13 But I say unto you, That Elias is indeed come εληλυθε, and they have done unto him whatsoever they listed, ε as it is written of him.ᴬ
ᴬ Likewise shall μελλει also the Son of man suffer 13 of them. Then the disciples understood that he spake unto them of John the Baptist.ᶠ
		ᶠ When they were come down from the hill, much people met him.

Jesus heals a demoniac, which his disciples had not been able to do.—In the plain.

MATT. xvii. 14—18.	MARK ix. 14—27.	LUKE ix. 38—42.
	14 ᵍ And when he came to his disciples, he saw a great multitude about them, and the scribes questioning 15 with them. And straightway all the people, when they beheld him, were greatly amazed, and running to him saluted him. 16 And he asked the scribes, What question ye with them? ›
14 ᵇ And when they were come to the multitude, there came to him a certain man, kneeling down to him,	17 And one of the multitude answered	And, behold, a man 38 of the company cried out, away their sins,' Rom. xi. 26, 27—'The vail is upon their heart. 16. Nevertheless when it shall turn to the Lord, the vail shall be taken away. 17. Now the Lord is that Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.' 2 Cor. iii 15—7. Thus it is not a mere individual under the name of 'Elias which was for to come,' but 'the spirit and power of Elias,' as in John the Baptist; the spirit of intercession, God answering by mighty signs, as in the case of Elijah; and that for the restoring Israel to the evangelical worship of the one true God, a work begun by Elijah in his cutting them off from being the Lord's people as under the law: this was necessary as preparatory to their being espoused to the Lord according to the gospel, Ho. ii. 19, 20, 'And I will betroth thee unto me for ever; yea, I will betroth thee unto me in righteousness, and in judgment, and in lovingkindness, and in mercies. 20. I will even betroth thee unto me in faithfulness: and thou shalt know the LORD'—the preparation of the bride is the sign of the Bridegroom's coming, Rev. xix. 7—9.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvii. 12. Elias is come already—John the Baptist was not the very individual who had been taken up to heaven; but he was Elias 'in spirit,' which it had been predicted should come, and is to come.

Mk. ix. 14. came to his disciples—He had taken the three, Peter, and James, and John, 'apart' from the other disciples, 'by themselves,' as well as from the multitude, when he went up into the mountain on which he was transfigured—see ver. 2, p. 52.

15. greatly amazed, &c.—'it came to pass, when Moses came down from mount Sinai with the two tables of testimony in Moses' hand, when he came down from the mount, that Moses wist not that the skin of his face shone while he talked with him. And when Aaron and all the children of Israel saw Moses, behold, the skin of his face shone; and they were afraid to come nigh him,' Ex. xxxiv. 29, 30—the result was different in the case of Jesus. 'All the people . . . running to him saluted him'—comp. 2 Co. iii. 12—8.

Mt. xvii. 14. kneeling down to him—'God . . . hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is

NOTES.

Mt. xvii. 12. Know him not, or, οὐκ ἐπέγνωσαν αὐτὸν, they have not acknowledged him. That is, the Jewish rulers have not acknowledged him as the forerunner of the Messiah. But it appears that many of the people acknowledged John to be the precursor of our Lord; indeed some, from the power and demonstration of his preaching, were inclined to think that he was more, even the Messiah himself.—See Lu. iii. 15, § 7, p. 54.

Have done . . . whatsoever they listed. The word list is an old English word, signifying to choose, to desire, to be inclined—see Jno. iii. 8, § 12, p. 84. 'The wind bloweth where it listeth.' It means here, that they had done to John as they pleased; i. e., they had put him to death, Mt. xiv. 10, § 40, p. 308.

Mk. ix. 14. The scribes—See ADDENDA, § 25, p. 199.

[Mt. xvii. 14. Kneeling down to him. γονυπετῶν. The adoolutio ad genua, an attitude of supplication,

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mt. xvii. 10—3. Like to the Elias, which has come, may we expect the Elias which is to come, a man or men like John the Baptist, preparing the people for the coming of the Lord, and through whose instrumentality, all Israel, who through the ministry of Elias were divorced from the old covenant, shall be restored according to the new.]

Those who are in the sight of God the most honourably engaged in his work, may expect the greatest neglect; or even, like their Lord, the greatest dishonour from men.

We may not expect the coming of the Lord in glory, before the promised restoration of Israel.

I BESEECH YOU THEREFORE, BRETHREN, BY THE MERCIES OF GOD, THAT YE PRESENT YOUR BODIES A LIVING SACRIFICE, HOLY, ACCEPTABLE UNTO GOD, WHICH IS YOUR REASONABLE SERVICE.—Rom. xii. 1.

MATT. xvii. 15—.7	MARK ix. 17—.9.	LUKE ix. 38—41.
and saying,[a]	and-said, [a] Master Διδασκαλε, I-have-brought unto thee my son, which-hath a-dumb spirit;[d]	saying, Master Διδασκαλε, [d] I-beseech thee, look upon my son: for he-is mine only-child.[e]
15 [a] Lord Κυριε, have-mercy-on my son: for he-is-lunatick, and sore vexed for oft-times he-falleth into the fire, and oft into the water.[f]		[f] And, lo, a-spirit taketh 39 him, and he- suddenly -crieth-out;[g] and
[* MARG. 'dasheth him.']	18 [g] and wheresoever he-taketh him, * he-teareth ῥησσει him: and he-foameth, and gnasheth τριζει with his teeth, and pineth-away [h] ξηραινεται:	it-teareth σπαρασσει him that he-foameth-again,
		[h] and bruising συντριβον him hardly departeth from him.[i]
16 [i] And I-brought him to thy disciples,[k]	and I-spake to thy disciples [k] that they-should-cast- him -out;[l]	And I-besought 40 thy disciples to cast- him -out; and they-could not.
[l] and they-could not cure him.	and they-could not.
17 Then Jesus answered and-said, O faithless and perverse διεστραμμενη	19 He answereth him,+ and-saith, O faithless + or, them.	And Jesus answering 41 said, O faithless and perverse διεστραμμενη above every name: that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow,' Ph. ii. 9, 10—'Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need,' Heb. iv. 16.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. ix. 38. only child—an only son is recognised in scripture as an object peculiarly dear; thus, bitter mourning is described as 'the mourning of an only son,' Am. viii. 10; Zec. xii. 10—Jesus in compassion to a sorrowing widow, had raised her only son to life, Lu. vii. 12—.5, § 29, p. 221.

39. crieth out—he shrieked, or made a loud distressing sound, this is possible for one to do who cannot articulate sounds rationally. The case of this youth, who was both 'lunatick,' Mt. xvii. 15, and 'dumb,' Mk. ix. 17, appears to have been particularly afflictive in other respects.

Mk. ix. 18. they could not—Jesus had, before going up into the mountain, spoken so as to sift the faith of his disciples, ch. viii. 31—.8, § 50, p. 40; it was on account of the weakness of their faith that they could not cast out the unclean spirit, Mt. xvii. 20, p. 61—hereafter they rejoiced in the devils being subject to them, Lu. x. 17, § 60, p. 143.

Mt. xvii. 17. O faithless, &c.—from Mk. ix. 19, it appears that this was particularly spoken to the father of the child; and there seems to be allusion to the same want of faith in ver. 23, where it is intimated that the recovery of the child was somehow contingent upon the parent's faith; at the same time it appears, from Mt. xvii. 20, p. 61, that faith was wanting on the part of the disciples also—see NOTE.

perverse—this is not in Mk. ix. 19, where the parent is particularly addressed; it may have been addressed to the scribes, who it is likely had seized upon the opportunity, when Jesus was absent, and when his disciples were weak, to tease, and if possible baffle them, before the multitude—see Mk. ix. 14—.8, p. 58. There must have been either something remarkable in Jesus' appearance upon coming down from the mount, and whereby they were confounded; or they must have been very self-condemned; for although Jesus had asked them, 'What question ye with them?' ver. 16, they were silent; their voice was no more heard. The perversity of the scribes, however, still remained. Jesus knew the heart, and acted here in fulfilment of the prophecy, that he should not 'reprove after the hearing of his ears,' Is. xi. 3 frequent in Homer, &c. The prostration before the knees was different from, in genua procumbens, kneeling. The ancients consecrated the ear to memory; the forehead to genius; the right hand to faith, and the knees to mercy. Hence those who entreated favour, fell at, and touched the knees of the person they supplicated. The action was that of the deepest reverence, and suitable to the humblest supplication.]

NOTES.

[Mt. xvii. 15. He is lunatick. σεληνιαζεται, 'he is moon-struck.' Meaning not insane, but epileptic; which disease was thought to be greatly influenced by the moon, as well as madness. The symptoms mentioned at Lu. ix. 39, seem to shew that this disease was an epilepsy, caused by the power of an evil spirit.]

Lu. ix. 39. Bruising him. συντριβον αὐτὸν. Literally, 'breaking down, crushing his strength.'—Bloomf.

Mt. xvii. 17. O faithless and perverse generation, &c. This reproof seems directed to all according as they had deserved it. Yet Dr. Whitby refers these words to the Scribes, who at that time were disputing with the disciples. Perhaps ἄπιστος is to be referred to the disciples, and probably to the father; and διεστραμμένη to the Scribes; the former ὑμῶν to the disciples, and the latter to the Scribes. (See ch. x. 1, § 39, p. 294,) from which it may be concluded that their want of faith in Christ had rendered the disciples incapable of doing this miracle.—See 'Scrip. Illus.,' supra.

Matt. xvii. 17, 18.	Mark ix. 19—25.	Luke ix. 42.
generation, how long shall-I-be with you? how long shall-I-suffer ανεξομαι you? [m] bring him hither to-me.	generation, how long shall-I-be with you? how long shall-I-suffer ανεξομαι you? bring him unto me. 20 [n]And they-brought him unto him: and when-he-saw him, straightway the spirit tare him; and he-fell on the ground, and-wallowed foaming.	generation, how long shall-I-be with you, and suffer ανεξομαι you? [m] Bring thy son hither. [o] And as-he-was-yet-a-coming, 42 the devil threw-him-down, and tare him
	21 And he-asked his father, How long-is-it-ago since this came unto-him? And he 22 said, Of-a-child. And oft-times it-hath-cast him into the-fire, and into the-waters, to destroy him: but if thou-canst do anything ει τι δυναται, have-compassion on 23 us, and-help us. Jesus said unto him, If thou-canst ει δυναται believe, all things are-possible δυνατα to him-that-believeth.
	24 And straightway the father of-the child cried-out, and-said with tears, Lord, I-believe; help-thou mine unbelief.
	25 When-Jesus-saw that the-people came-running-together,
18 And Jesus rebuked the-devil αυτῳ;	he-rebuked the foul spirit, saying unto-him, Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I charge thee, come-out of him, and enter no more	And Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvii. 17. how long ... suffer you?—it had been predicted, 'If ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword,' Is. i. 20—they had refused to hear the great Prophet—see on Jno. vi. 25–71, § 43, p. 325—Christ had now been set as King upon his holy hill of Sion, Ps. ii. 6, 7 . . and see on the Transfiguration, ver. 1, p. 52—if they rebelled against their King, it only remained for them to be devoured with the sword, which, as again predicted, Mt. xxiii. 36, § 85, p. 320, came (by the Romans) upon that generation—On account of the perversity of Israel, under Moses, the Lord said, Nu. xiv. 11, 'How long will this people provoke me? and how long will it be ere they believe me, for all the signs which I have shewed among them?'—And 'how long shall I bear with this evil congregation, which murmur against me?' &c., ver. 27—the Lord did bear with Israel in the wilderness forty years:—. . . . 'Forty years long was I grieved with this generation, and said, It is a people that do err in their heart, and they have not known my ways,' Ps. xcv. 10. Forty years, represented by the forty days during which the Prophet was to bear the iniquity of the house of Judah, Eze. iv. 6, was actually the time the Jews were suffered to continue in the land after publicly rejecting the King of Israel, Jno. xviii. 39, 40, xix. 15, § 90.

Lu. ix. 41. Bring thy son hither—for the vindication of the truth, and for confirming the faith of his wavering disciples, it was useful that this cure should be effected publicly and personally by Jesus. In the two instances particularly described in the immediately preceding narrative:—. . . . . of the deaf, Mk. vii. 32—7, § 46, p. 24, and of the blind, viii. 22—6, § 49, p. 34, Jesus had chosen to do good in private.

Mk. ix. 20. tare him, &c.—the case was here shewn to be exactly as the father had represented, ver. 18, p. 59.

21. How long is it ago, &c.—our Lord did not require this information for himself, but for the same purpose as he required the child to be brought to him—see on Mt. xvii. 17, supra.

23. If thou canst believe, &c.—alluding probably to the saying of the father, 'if thou canst do anything,' ver. 22—To the two blind men who came unto him for healing, Jesus said, 'Believe ye that I am able to do this?' They said unto him, Yea, Lord. Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you,' Mt. ix. 28, 29. § 36, p. 285—so to Jairus, 'Fear not: believe only, and she shall be made whole.' Lu. viii. 50, § ib. p. 282—to Martha at the grave of Lazarus, 'Said I not unto thee, that, if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God?' Jno. xi. 40, § 58, p. 131—see farther on Mt. xvii. 20, p. 61—in his own country 'he did not many mighty works there, because of their unbelief,' xiii. 58, § 37, p. 288.

24. Lord, I believe; help thou mine, &c.—'Let us . . . come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need,' He. iv. 16.

25. foul spirit—called 'the devil,' Mt. xvii. 18—'the unclean spirit,' Lu. ix. 42.

NOTES.

Mk. ix. 22. If thou canst do, &c. From this it appears that the father had fuller confidence in the compassion of Jesus than in his power.

23. If thou canst believe. This was an answer to the request. I can help him. If THOU canst believe, it shall be done. Jesus here demanded faith or confidence in himself, in his power of healing. So he demands faith of every sinner that comes to him; and none that come without confidence in him can obtain the blessing.

PRACTICAL REFLECTION.

Mk. ix. 17—24. Let us with earnest prayer present the Jews unto Jesus—sorrowing over them as over an only son; and hear our Lord declaring 'If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth.'

MATT. xvii. 18.

and he δαιμονιον departed out-of him:

MARK ix. 26, .7.

26 into him. And the spirit cried, and rent him sore. and-came-out of him: and he-was as one dead; insomuch-that many said, He-is-dead.
27 But Jesus took him by-the hand, and-lif,ed-him-up; and he-arose.[o]

LUKE ix. 42.

and healed the child,

[o] and the child was-cured from that very hour.[p]

[p] and delivered-him-again to his father. [Ver. 43, p. 70.]

Jesus in private explains his disciples' inability.

MATT. xvii. 19—21.

19 [b] Then came the disciples to Jesus apart, and-[c] said,
Why could not we cast-him-out?
20 [d] And Jesus said unto-them, Because-of your unbelief: for verily I-say unto-you, If ye-have faith as a-grain of-mustard-seed, ye-shall-say unto this mountain, Remove hence to-yonder-place; and it-shall-remove; and nothing shall-be-impossible unto-you.
21 Howbeit this kind[e] goeth-not-out but by prayer and fasting.
[Ver. 22, § lii. p. 70.]

MARK ix. 28, .9.

[c] And when-he-was-come into the-house,[b] 28 his disciples [c] asked him privately,
Why could not we cast-him-out?[d]
And he-said unto-them, 29

This kind [e] can come-forth by nothing, but by prayer and fasting.
[Ver. 30, ibid.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xvii. 19. apart—'privately,' Mk. ix. 28.

20. Because of your unbelief—so Israel, under the law, 'could not enter in because of unbelief,' He. iii. 19—Jesus had before reproved the disciples for their unbelief, Mk. iv. 40, § 34, p. 267—and again, after his resurrection, he 'upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart,' xvi. 14, § 95, p. 200—and upon giving full proof to Thomas that he was Jesus risen from the dead, he said, 'Be not faithless, but believing,' Jno. xx. 27, § ib.

faith as a grain, &c.—'If ye had faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye might say unto this sycamine tree, Be thou plucked up by the root, and be thou planted in the sea; and it should obey you,' Lu. xvii. 6, § 70, p. 207—also Mt. xiii. 31, .2, § 32, p. 248.

this mountain—they had just before come down from the mountain on which the transfiguration had taken place, ver. 9, p. 57.

Remove hence to yonder place—Of another mountain (that of Corruption) he said, 'Verily I say unto you, That whosoever shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith,' Mk. xi. 23, § 84, p. 282 It is however to be remembered, that 'though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing,' 1 Co. xiii. 2.

nothing shall be impossible unto you—so he had said to the father of the child, 'All things are possible to him that believeth,' Mk. ix. 23, p. 60—Paul said, 'I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me,' Ph. iv. 13.

21. prayer and fasting—not every kind of prayer and fasting, Is. lviii. 1—5, 6—10, 'Is not this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke? 7, Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? when thou seest the naked, that thou cover him; and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh? 8, Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily: and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the LORD shall be thy rereward. 9, Then shalt thou call, and the LORD shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am. If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke, the putting forth of the finger, and speaking vanity; 10, and if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noon day.'

NOTES.

[Mk. ix. 24. Help thou mine unbelief. i. e., my deficient, or wavering faith. The sense is, 'I have a faith, but it is infirm; supply its deficiency, regard it as complete, and heal my son accordingly.' Let not the defect of my faith be in the way of this blessing.]

Mt. xvii. 20. As a grain of mustard seed. A degree, however small, of active, growing faith. A grain of mustard seed was used proverbially by the Jews to express the least thing.

21. By prayer and fasting. That is, in order to work miracles, to cast out devils, faith of the highest kind is necessary. That faith is produced and kept vigorous by much prayer, and by such abstinence from food as fits the mind for the highest exercises of religion, and leaves it free to hold communion with God.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mk. ix. 24—.7. Let us confess our unbelief, and truly desire to have faith in the promises of God, and act accordingly; and, however hard the struggle may be, the dumb and deaf spirit will be rebuked, the ears of the deaf will be unstopped, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing.

Mt. xvii. 20. When the disciples of Jesus truly have faith—when they really expect what he hath promised, and that in the way he hath appointed, then that system of corruption, which hath so long stood as a mountain of difficulty to the progress of the truth, will be removed, 'And nothing shall be impossible,' &c.

THIS IS HIS COMMANDMENT, THAT WE SHOULD BELIEVE ON THE NAME OF HIS SON JESUS CHRIST, AND LOVE ONE ANOTHER, AS HE GAVE US COMMANDMENT.—1 John iii. 23.

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICE.—MOUNT TABOR.

Traditionally the scene of our Lord's transfiguration.—See Note on Matt. xvii. 1, p. 52, 'An high mountain.'

'Monday, June 18th, 1838. Two principal roads lead from Nazareth to Tiberias. The more usual one passes out N.E. over the hills to Er-Reineh, a small village more than half an hour distant, and to Kefr Kenna; leaving the village el-Kesbhad on a high hill at the left, just before reaching the latter place; thence it goes by Lubieh to the lake. The second leaves Nazareth over the lower eastern hills, and leading by the village 'Ain Mahil, and the Khan et-Tujjar, turns more N.E. by Kefr Sabi to Tiberias. We followed a third route, lying still further on the right, in order to ascend MOUNT TABOR and spend the afternoon and night upon its summit. In doing this we anticipated much gratification, and were not disappointed. As a guide, we took with us a young man of Nazareth, a Christian, recommended by Abu Nasir.

'Setting off from Nazareth, or rather from the fountain of the Virgin, at 7h. 25m., we came in ten minutes to the top of the low hills on the east of the valley, and kept along on high ground, directing our course towards TABOR. After half an hour we descended into and crossed a broad Wady, running out to the great plain on the right. Hitherto the hills had exhibited only grass and herbs; here they began to be covered with low oak-trees of the deciduous leaves, the first of the kind we had yet remarked. Along the gradual ascent beyond this valley, there was a large orchard of these oaks; and they extend more or less thickly, quite to the foot of TABOR. At 8h. 45m. we reached the brow of the descent towards that mountain; and could look down upon the low ridge which alone connects it on the N.W. with the hills we had just crossed. Deburieh was visible below us on the S.W. slope of this ridge. Descending, we came in twenty-five minutes to the bottom, in a Wady, and at 9h. 15m. to another Wady; the two unite, and run out southwards into the plain just by Deburieh. The branch of the Damascus road passes up this latter Wady, and so over the low ridge to Khan et-Tujjar. We came to the proper base of the mountain at 9h. 20m., leaving Deburieh about ten minutes distant on our right.

'The village of Deburieh is small and unimportant, lying on the side of a lodge of rocks just at the base of TABOR. It is said to have once had a christian church, the ruins of which are still visible. This would seem not improbably to be the Daberath of the Old Testament, belonging to Issachar, but assigned to the Levites; the same apparently with the Dabira of Eusebius and Jerome by MOUNT TABOR in the region of Diocesarea; and probably too the Daburitu of Josephus in the great plain.

'The mountain, as we approached it on this side, presented the form of a truncated cone; we began to ascend it at 9h. 25m. from the W.N.W. Our muleteers at first made some difficulty, on account of the loaded animals; their purpose had been to stop below and let us ascend on foot, which by no means tallied with our plans. But we found the path good, except in two or three spots, and even these were far less difficult than the passes of 'Ain Jidy and es-Sufah; so that I rode with facility quite to the summit. The path winds considerably, and is obviously ancient; in several places steps are hewn out in the rock. The soil is good all the way up; and the grass tall and abundant, though now dried up. The sides of the mountain are mostly covered with bushes and orchards of oak trees (Ilex and Ægilops), with also occasionally the Butm, like the glades of a forest, presenting a beautiful appearance and fine shade. We were an hour in reaching the top, and encamped at 10h. 30m. for the day and night on the south-western brow, overlooking the wide extent of plains below. The path by which we ascended from the W.N.W. is the most feasible; the acclivity on that side being perhaps less steep; yet there is no part of the mountain where a person on foot would find any difficulty whatever in the ascent.

'TABOR is a beautiful mountain, wholly of limestone; bearing among the Arabs, like so many other mountains, only the general name Jebel et-Tur. It stands out alone towards the S.E. from the high land around Nazareth; while the north-eastern arm of the great plain of Esdraelon sweeps around its base, and extends far to the north, forming a broad tract of table-land, bordering upon the deep Jordan valley, and the basin of the lake of Tiberias. The mountain as seen from the S.W. presents, as has been already remarked, the appearance of the segment of a sphere; seen from the W.N.W. the form inclines more to the truncated cone. The top of the mountain, as a whole, is rounded off, and is perhaps in all twenty minutes in diameter; but the proper summit consists of a beautiful little oblong plain or basin, twelve or fifteen minutes in length from N.W. to S.E., by six or eight in breadth. This is skirted on the S.W. by a ledge of rocks of some altitude, covered with foundations and ruins; and on the N.E. by lower rocks; and this higher ground on both sides is thickly overgrown with bushes and small trees, while the basin itself lies in grass without trees or ruins. We pitched our tent at the S.E. extremity of this little plain, and were delighted with our temporary abode. No person besides our party was at this time on the mountain to interrupt us; and although there was a hot Sirocco wind, which in the afternoon brought up a hazy atmosphere, yet even this was more tolerable here than in the plains below. At 10 o'clock the thermometer stood here at 89° F. At 2 P.M. it had fallen to 80°. At sunset it stood only at 74°; and the next morning at sunrise, at 64° F.

'We estimated the height of TABOR, after many comparisons, at not over one thousand feet above the plain; and if anything, less. Indeed, it appeared to us to be little more elevated above Esdraelon, than is mount Gerizim above the plain at its foot.* The mountains towards the south, those of Duhy and Gilboa, are apparently at least as high, and shut out the prospect in that direction. The former we had first seen from the high ground south of Jenin and Kubatiyeh, where it was nearly in a line between us and TABOR, and entirely excluded all view of the latter mountain; so that not even a trace of its rounded summit was any where visible. From TABOR, in like manner, no point of the mountains of Samaria is visible over the little Hermon. All this shews, at least, that TABOR cannot rise much above the summit of the latter. As seen from TABOR, mount Gilboa lies to the left of the little Hermon, and is somewhat higher. Nor are the highest of the hills west of Nazareth much inferior in elevation to TABOR; they shut out the view, not only of the bay of 'Akka, but likewise of the whole horizon of the sea; which is not seen except over some of the lower ridges in that direction.

'Immediately after our arrival, I took a walk round the whole brow of the mountain, in order to examine the ruins, mark the main features of the surrounding country, and enjoy the glorious prospect. This we repeated several times during the day; and also the next morning, when the air was again clear and pure, and everything could be seen with the utmost distinctness. The ruins upon the summit of TABOR belong to different ages. All around the top may be traced the foundations of a thick wall built of large stones, some of which are bevelled, shewing that the wall was perhaps originally entirely of that character. In several parts are the remains of towers and bastions. Thus towards the N.E., almost beneath the brow, is a structure apparently of this kind, which must have been quite extensive. But the chief remains are upon the ledge

* 'So too Elliott estimates the height of TABOR as not exceeding 1,000 feet; Travels, ii. p. 363. It was with some surprise that I saw the result of Schubert's barometrical measurement of TABOR, viz., Elevation above the sea, 1,748 Paris feet; elevation of the plain at the base, 458 feet; leaving for the height above the plain, 1,310 Par. feet. This would make it 100 feet higher than his estimate of Carmel. Reise, iii. p. 175. I am well aware of the uncertainty of all mere estimates; but the barometrical observations which have as yet been made around the Dead Sea and the lake of Tiberias, viz., those of Schubert, Russegger, and Bertou, are in no degree less inconsistent and unsatisfactory.'

THE LORD IS MY LIGHT AND MY SALVATION; WHOM SHALL I FEAR?

THE LORD IS THE STRENGTH OF MY LIFE; OF WHOM SHALL I BE AFRAID?—Psalm xxvii. 1.

of rocks on the south of the little basin, and especially towards its eastern end. Here are high heaps of ruins, mingled in indiscriminate confusion, consisting of walls and arches and foundations, apparently of dwelling-houses as well as other buildings, some of hewn and some of large bevelled stones. The walls and traces of a fortress are seen here and further west along the southern brow; of which one tall pointed arch of a Saracenic gateway is still standing, and bears the name of Bab el-Hawa, "Gate of the Wind." Connected with it are loopholes, and others are seen near by. These latter fortifications belong obviously to the era of the crusades; but our experience at Jerusalem and elsewhere, had taught us to refer the large bevelled stones to a style of architecture not later than the times of the Romans; before which period, indeed, a town and fortress already existed on MOUNT TABOR. In the days of the crusaders, too, and earlier, there were here churches and monasteries.

'On the S.E. part, near the highest point among the ruins, is a small vault, where the Latin monks from Nazareth celebrate an annual mass in memory of the Transfiguration; the scene of which an early, though probably legendary tradition, places upon this mountain. The spot is merely a rude cellar with an altar, and a small side vault with three niches or altars. The Greeks show the remains of a church on the north side of the little basin; in which they have a temporary altar, and celebrate the same event. The Greek priests of Nazareth are said to come hither on the festival of the Virgin; on which occasion thousands of pilgrims repair to the mountain with their families, to celebrate the day. The summit has many cisterns, now mostly dry; in one we found good water. A wandering family sometimes take up their abode here, or a pilgrim comes to sojourn upon the sacred mountain for a few days; but the usual loneliness of the spot, and its forest of oaks and abundant herbage, have made it the chosen retreat of numerous wild swine. We started two of these animals in our rambles around the summit.

'The view from TABOR is very extensive and beautiful; far more so, indeed, than we had anticipated from the relative height of the adjacent mountains. The sirocco of the afternoon thickened the air, and for a time dimmed the prospect; but the next morning was again bright, and gave us the full enjoyment of one of the finest landscapes in Palestine. The view towards the whole western and northern quarter, between S.W. and N.N.E., was similar to that from the Welj near Nazareth, though less near and less distinct. It embraced the western part of the great plain with its villages, as far as to Lejjun and Carmel; but the sea-view was mostly shut out by intervening heights. Whether the sea is visible at all on the left of Carmel, as at Neby Isma'il, I am unable to say; but my impression is, that we did not thus perceive it. The northern end of Carmel, likewise, and the bay of 'Akka, do not appear; but on the right of Nazareth a portion of the sea is seen in the north-west, as well as slight glimpses in other parts. In the north and north-east are Safed and its mountains, the highest point in all that region; but overtopped by Jebel Jermuk, a low ridge or saddle with two points, called by the Arabs Kkurun Hattin, "Horns of Hattin." On the right of the same plain the whole outline of the basin of the lake of Tiberias can be traced; but only a small spot of the lake itself is visible in the N.E. on the right of Jebel Hattin.* Beyond the lake, the eye takes in the high table-lands of Jaulan and Hauran; and further south, beyond the Jordan, the higher mountains of the ancient Bashan and Gilead.

'Towards the south the view is of course bounded by the adjacent mountains of Duhy and Gilboa; the high portions of the latter being seen over the low ridge, or rather the high plain, running out eastwards from the former, and forming there the northern side of the valley of Jezreel. We could look over this tract into the broad valley of the Jordan around Beisan, though that place itself was not visible; and could distinctly perceive that the valley from the west spreads itself out to a wide plain as it enters that of the Jordan; so that the latter plain might be said to come up and meet it, or rather that a branch from the Jordan valley runs up towards 'Ain Jalud. On the north of Beisan, as seen from Tabor and also from Zer'in, the valley of Jezreel is not skirted by mountains, but by the high table-land above mentioned; to which the side of the valley rises by a gradual ascent. The view extends in this quarter far down the Jordan valley, and to the mountains of Gilead beyond; but those who have thought they could distinguish from here the waters of the Dead Sea, have forgotten that the direction of that sea from TABOR brings it directly behind the mountains of Duhy and Gilboa.

'The mountain of Duhy, as already remarked, sinks down towards the east into a low ridge, or line of flat hills, along the valley of Jezreel. On its northern side, as seen from TABOR, this mountain exhibits a double ridge; that is, upon its northern slope another much lower ridge springs up and runs off eastward, parallel to the main mountain; of which, indeed, it truly constitutes a part. Further east, this ridge and that running off from the mountain itself, are about of equal height; and between them lies the higher plain or table-land, above described as bordering on the valley of Jezreel. This tract between the two low ridges or lines of hills, is drained by a small Wady, called by Burckhardt Wady 'Osheh, which runs down to the valley of the Jordan at some distance north of Beisan.

'North of this tract, the somewhat lower plain around TABOR fills up the space quite to the brow of the Jordan valley, and northwards towards Lubieh and Hattin. Here in the N.E. is seen the Khan et-Tujjar; from which the bed of a shallow Wady runs first southwards, and then S.E., and breaks down through the hills to the valley of the Jordan, about half an hour north of Wady 'Osheh. This is called Wady el-Bireh, apparently from a village of that name in the vicinity, marked in our lists. All along this Wady a small silvery thread of water was visible, coming from the fountain near the Khan. This Wady, as it descends to the Jordan valley, is deep; but further north, the plain appears to slope up eastwards gradually to the very brow of the cliffs over the Ghor and lake of Tiberias, presenting there no appearance whatever of hills as seen from this side.

'It was to us a matter of particular interest to ascertain, if possible, the line of division between the waters running to the Jordan, and those flowing to the Mediterranean through the plain of Esdraelon. This it was not difficult to do, as the plain lay spread out like a map before us, and all its channels and water-courses, though now mostly dry, were nevertheless distinctly visible. The water-shed, then, is within the arm of the great plain on the south of TABOR, about on a line between this mountain and the top of the little Hermon. All the waters east of this line go to the Jordan through Wady el-Bireh, in which water was now running; and from the village of Endor on the northern slope of the lower ridge of Hermon, a shallow Wady passes down N.E. to join the same. Not far west of Endor, another little Wady in like manner goes off N.W. to join those running towards the Mediterranean.†

'On the northern slope of the mountain of Duhy, just below the summit towards the N.W., is seen the small village of the same name. Somewhat lower down, in the same direction, is the little hamlet of Nein; and further east on the northern slope of the lower parallel ridge, lies Endor, merely an ordinary village. These two are ancient places—(see p. 65, the second paragraph.) On the line of low hills stretching

* 'I say this advisedly; because various travellers seem to speak of seeing much more of the lake from TABOR. See Morison, p. 214. Buckingham's Travels in Pal. p. 108. &c. Schubert's Reise, iii. p. 176.'

† 'We were the more particular in this examination, because the fountain near Khan et Tujjar is sometimes said to be the source of the Kishon, and to flow off around MOUNT TABOR westwards. So D'Arvieux expressly; Memoires, Par. 1735, tom. ii. p. 279, 80. Mr. PAXTON also erroneously makes a branch of the Kishon rise north of TABOR, and flow east of the mountain, and then south and west around its foot. Letter xx. p. 178. Lond. 1839.'

off eastwards from the little Hermon, we could perceive again Kumieh, which we had seen from Zer'in; while on the northern line of hills, the extension of the lower parallel ridge, between the Wadys 'Osheh and el-Bireh, lie the villages el-Murussus, Denna, and Kaukab el-Hawa. Somewhere in the same region are also Tumrah, Kefrah, and Shutta.* North of Wady el-Bireh, towards the brow of the Jordan valley, lie the villages Sirin, 'Aulam, &c.

'From the S.E. part of the summit of TABOR, we took many important bearings, recorded in the note below.†

'MOUNT TABOR is several times mentioned in the Old Testament; first as on the border of Issachar and Zebulun; and then as the place where Deborah and Barak assembled the warriors of Israel, before their great battle with Sisera. The beauty of the mountain and its conspicuous position, rendered it a favourite object of poetic contemplation; and when the psalmist exclaims: "Tabor and Hermon shall rejoice in thy name;" he selects these two as the representatives of all the mountains of Palestine; the former as the most graceful, and the latter as the loftiest. There appears also to have been, in those days, a city of the same name, doubtless situated upon the mountain, which belonged to the tribe of Zebulun, but was assigned to the Levites. (1 Chr. vi. 77. Perhaps also the city is meant in Josh. xix. 22.)

'In the New Testament, MOUNT TABOR is not mentioned. In Greek and Roman writers the name takes the form Itabyrion or Atabyrion, which appears also in the Septuagint. (Hos. v. 1.) The historian Polybius relates, that Antiochus the Great of Syria, after having captured the city Philoteria near the lake of Tiberias, "ascended the mountain and came to Atabyrion, a place lying on a breast-formed height, having an ascent of more than fifteen stadia; and by stratagem and wile he got possession of the city," which he afterwards fortified. This was in the year 218 B.C. and shews that the former city upon the mountain still remained. According to Josephus (Jos. Antiq. xiv. 6. 3. B. J. i. 8. 7.), a battle took place at mount Itabyrion, about 53 B.C., between the Roman forces under the proconsul Gabinius, and the Jews under Alexander, son of Aristobulus, in which ten thousand of the latter were slain. At a later period, Josephus himself caused MOUNT TABOR to be fortified, along with various other places. (Jos. Vita, § 37. B. J. ii. 20. 6.) He describes the mountain as having an ascent of thirty stadia; on the north it was inaccessible, and the summit was a plain of twenty-six stadia in circumference. This whole circuit Josephus caused to be enclosed with a wall in forty days; the materials, and also water, being brought from below, since the inhabitants had only rain water. (Jos. B. J. iv. 1. 8.) This account, although exaggerated, corresponds well with the remains still found on the mountain. Still later, and after Josephus himself had fallen into the hands of the Romans, a great multitude of the Jews took refuge in this fortress; against whom Vespasian sent Placidus, with six hundred horsemen. By a feint he induced the great body to pursue him into the plain, where he slew many and cut off the return of the multitude to the mountain, so that the inhabitants, who were suffering from want of water, made terms and surrendered themselves and the mountain to Placidus. (Jos. B. J. iv. 1. 8. Josephus himself had been captured some time before; B. J. iii. 8. 1—9.)

'It thus appears, that from the earliest times, a fortified city had existed on MOUNT TABOR. The language of Josephus implies, that the city, as well as the fortress, remained in his day; for he speaks expressly of the inhabitants of the place as straitened for water; in distinction from the body of strangers who had occupied the mountain.

We hear nothing more of MOUNT TABOR until the fourth century, when it is often mentioned by Eusebius and Jerome in the Onomasticon, but only in reference to its general character, and as a known point from which to determine the position of various places. In the same century, however, appears to have sprung up the opinion, which soon grew into a tradition, that the summit of MOUNT TABOR had been the place where our Lord was transfigured in the presence of his three disciples; and that this, therefore, was the "holy mount" referred to by St. Peter, 2 Ep. i. 18.

'That century was the hotbed of like superstitions, which have spread their legendary fruits far and wide over Palestine and over Christendom.

'Eusebius, who died about A.D. 340, makes no allusion whatever to the opinion in question, although nothing would have been more natural had it then existed, inasmuch as he describes the mountain in reference to the Old Testament. The first notice of TABOR as the place of the Transfiguration, appears a few years later, as a passing remark, in the works of Cyril of Jerusalem; and Jerome twice mentions the same thing, though slightly, and so as to imply that there was not yet a church upon the summit. All these circumstances, in connection with the fact that the Evangelists nowhere make the slightest allusion to TABOR, go to shew that the legend was of recent origin, and that the foreign ecclesiastics, who now visit the northern part of the lake, not very far from Cæsarea Philippi, where there are certainly mountains enough. But a circumstance which those writers overlooked, and which puts MOUNT TABOR in this case entirely out of the question, is the fact above substantiated, that long before and after the event of the Transfiguration, the summit of TABOR was occupied by a fortified city.

'Yet the legend having once got footing, continued to gain ground; the mountain became more sacred, and churches were erected. Towards the close of the sixth century, Antonius Martyr speaks here of three churches corresponding to the three tabernacles proposed to be erected by Peter. A century later (about A.D. 696) Arculfus found also the same three churches on TABOR, and a large monastery with many cells, the whole being surrounded by a wall of stone. St. Willibald, about A.D. 765, mentions in like manner the monastery and a church. Sæwulf, about A.D. 1103, speaks only of three monasteries of ancient construction, corresponding to the three tabernacles; but this is probably an error instead of churches. In this state the crusaders found the mountain.

'We have seen above, that Tancred, to whom Galilee was assigned as a fief, erected a Latin church upon MOUNT TABOR, and this appears to have been soon followed by a Latin monastery, tenanted by Black Friars of the reformed order of Benedictines of Clugny, in France.... But their quiet was not of long continuance, for during the temporary incursion of the Mohammedans from Damascus, in A.D. 1113, the convent was laid waste and the monks massacred. The convent was probably soon restored. In A.D. 1183, the monasteries on TABOR were assaulted by a portion of the troops of Saladin, during his encampment at and below 'Ain Jalud; but were preserved by the bravery of the monks, and of the country people who took refuge with them. Two years afterwards, in A.D. 1185, Phocas describes here two monasteries, one Greek, the other Latin. The former was towards the left, or north; the latter was tenanted

* 'Has this perhaps any connexion with the Beth-shittah of Judg. vii. 22, through which the Midianites fled when defeated by Gideon in the valley of Jezreel?'

† 'Bearings from MOUNT TABOR, beginning at the West above Nazareth and proceeding towards the right: Neby Isma'il N. 68° W. 'Ain Mahil N. 54° W. Mes-hed N. 10° E. (?) esh-Shajerah N. 12° E. Lubieh N. 19° E. Sated N. 24° E. Jebel esh-Sheikh or Hermon about N. 28° E. Khan et-Tujjar N. 32° E. Jebel Hattin, middle, N. 34° E. Kefr Sabt N. 44° E. Tiberias, not visible, about N. 58° E. Ma'iderah E. Wady el-Bireh, as it passes down to the Jordan valley, S. 52° E. Kaukab el-Hawa S. 37° E. Kefrah S. 25° E. Boisan, not visible, about S. 15° E. Gilboa, eastern end of high part, S. Tumrah S. 3° W. Kumieh S. 10° W. Endor S. 16° W. Wezar S. 19° W. Little Hermon, east end of high part, S. 23° W. Kefr Muur S. 26° W. Little Hermon, summit S. 35° W. Village Duby S. 37° W. Nein S. 40° W. Lejjun S. 68° W.'

BEHOLD, HAPPY IS THE MAN WHOM GOD CORRECTETH: THEREFORE DESPISE NOT THOU THE CHASTENING OF THE ALMIGHTY: FOR HE MAKETH SORE, AND BINDETH UP: HE WOUNDETH, AND HIS HANDS MAKE WHOLE.—Job v. 17, 8.

by a multitude of Latin monks, and stood upon the highest point of all, towards the S. E. The altar occupied the very spot where the Transfiguration was supposed to have taken place.

'In A.D. 1187, not long before the battle of Hattin, MOUNT TABOR was laid waste by the troops of Saladin. Twenty-five years afterwards (A.D. 1212), Melek el-'Adil, the brother of Saladin, and now Sultan of Damascus, as a check upon the christian forces in 'Akka, erected upon this mountain a strong fortress, the remains of which are still to be seen; he not only employed his troops in this service, but collected workmen from the provinces. In A.D. 1217, the pilgrim-host from 'Akka laid siege to this fortress, which was defended by chosen troops; so that the Christians were obliged to abandon the attack after two fierce and unsuccessful assaults. Yet their attempt brought this fruit, that the fortress was razed by order of Melek el-'Adil himself. Whether the monasteries were destroyed during these events, we are not informed; but at any rate, the work of desolation was completed in A.D. 1263, under Sultan Bibars, while encamped at the foot of the mountain. By his orders, not only was the church at Nazareth, but also that of the Transfiguration on MOUNT TABOR, levelled to the ground. Brocardus, about A.D. 1283, mentions here only the ruins of various palaces and towers, already the retreats of many wild beasts; and such the summit of TABOR has remained unto the present day.

'Of the places seen from MOUNT TABOR, the names of ENDOR, NEIN, and Kaukab el-Hawa, demand some further illustration.

'Endor is obviously the Endor of the Old Testament, assigned to Manasseh, though lying without the borders of that tribe: mentioned also in connection with the victory of Deborah and Barak; but chiefly known as the abode of the sorceress, whom Saul consulted on the eve of the fatal battle of Gilboa. The name does not occur in the New Testament; but in the days of Eusebius and Jerome, Endor was still a large village four Roman miles south of MOUNT TABOR, corresponding to the present site. It was recognised in the time of the crusades, and is mentioned by Brocardus; but appears afterwards to have been again lost sight of, at least partially, until the seventeenth century. The Arabic orthography of this name, obtained from an intelligent native, and correct according to the present pronunciation, exhibits perhaps a solitary instance, where the letter 'Ain of the Hebrew has in the Arabic passed over into a softer letter at the beginning of a word; perhaps too the only instance, where the Hebrew word En (fountain), does not in Arabic retain the corresponding and usual form 'Ain.

'Nein is the Nain of the New Testament, where occurred the affecting scene of our Lord's raising the widow's son. Eusebius and Jerome describe it as not far from Endor; the crusaders recognised it, and it has since been mentioned by most travellers to the present day. It has now dwindled to a small hamlet, occupied at most by a few families.'—Robinson's Biblical Researches, Vol. III. pp. 209—.26.

The following has much that is instructive and interesting to the scripture student. Dr. Robinson continues:—' From the summit of TABOR we had our last view of the great plain of Esdraelon; and I therefore subjoin here what remains to be said respecting the plain and its waters, so far as they go to form the river Kishon. Singular as it may appear, after so many centuries, during which Palestine has been overrun with swarms of pilgrims and travellers, there yet exists no correct nor intelligible account of the eastern portions of this plain. Even the great map of Jacotin, exact and faithful as it is for the northern portions of the plain, and the arm around TABOR, is nevertheless entirely without accuracy in respect to the portions eastward of Zer'in and Jenin.

'The celebrated plain of Esdraelon, now known among the natives as Merj Ibn 'Amir, exclusive of the three great arms towards the east, may be said to fill the form of an acute triangle. A line forming the eastern side, drawn from Jenin along the western ends of Gilboa and Little Hermon, so as to strike the northern mountains not far from the mount of Precipitation, would not vary much from the magnetic meridian; this indeed was nearly the course travelled by us; and the length of this side of the triangle is not far from six hours. From Jenin, as we have seen, the hills that skirt the plain on that side, and also the line of Carmel, stretch off from S.E. to N.W. or more exactly, from S.E. by S. to N.W. by N. On the northern side of the plain, the mountains which there rise more abruptly, extend, as seen from TABOR, in the general direction from E.N.E. to W.S.W. and run down at length into a line of lower hills towards Carmel, between the great plain on the left and the valley which drains el-Buttauf on the right. A narrow valley along the base of Carmel, between that mountain and these hills, affords a passage for the KISHON from the great plain to the sea.—The length of this northern side of the triangle of the plain, is apparently four or five hours.

'East of this large triangle, which is everywhere a level tract of fertile, though now neglected soil, the plain of Esdraelon sends out towards the brow of the Jordan-valley the three great arms already described, each nearly an hour in breadth, and separated from each other by the ridges of Gilboa and Little Hermon. The remarkable and distinguishing feature of these three great portions of the plain is, that while both the northern and southern decline towards the west, and their waters flow off through the Kishon to the Mediterranean; the middle arm sinks down between them eastwards, so that its waters, from a point within the triangle as above described, run with a more rapid descent to the valley of the Jordan, along what was anciently known as the valley of Jezreel.

'Through the plain of Esdraelon, the "ancient river" Kishon is of old represented as pouring its waters in such abundance, as to sweep away the troops of Sisera during the battle of Deborah and Barak, Ju. v. 21, "The river of Kishon swept them away, that ancient river, the river Kishon," and we still find the same river a considerable stream, under the name of el-Mukutta', flowing along the base of Carmel into the bay of 'Akka. But, as already remarked, in crossing the whole plain from Jenin to Nazareth on the 16th of June, although we passed several channels of some size, running westwards from both the northern and southern arms, yet not one drop of water did we find in all those parts of the plain, which in the rainy season send their waters to the Mediterranean.

'But this was a year of drought; and it would be a false conclusion, to affirm for this reason, as Shaw has done, that the Kishon has no communication with TABOR, and never flowed through the plain. Not improbably in ancient times, when the country was perhaps more wooded, there may have been permanent streams throughout the whole plain, like that which still runs eastward along the middle arm; and even now, in ordinary seasons, during the winter and spring, there is an abundance of water on the plain flowing westwards to form the Kishon. The large fountains all along the southern border furnish at such times more powerful streams; and all the water-courses from the hills and along the plain are full and overflowing. During the battle of MOUNT TABOR, between the French and Turks, in 1th, 1799, many of the latter are expressly said to have been drowned in the stream coming from Deburieh, which then inundated a part of the plain. Monro, in crossing the arm of the plain from Solam to Nazareth, on the first or second of May, describes himself as passing in half an hour from Solam "a considerable brook from the eastward, and afterwards some others, which flow into a small lake on the northern side of the plain, and eventually contribute to swell the Kishon." This account corresponds with the channels we saw. In April, 1829, Prokesch, in travelling directly from Ramleh to Nazareth, entered the plain of Esdraelon at or near Lejjun; here he came upon the Kishon, flowing in a deep bed through marshy ground; and after wandering about for some time to find the way through the morass, was at length set right by an Arab, who pointed out the proper ford.

'All these considerations, and especially these marshes in the region of Lejjun or Megiddo, fully bear out the sacred writer, in affirming that the forces of Sisera were swept away by the Kishon; swollen as the stream probably was by the tempest and rain, with which the Lord interfered in behalf of the Israelites. (Ju. v. 20, 1; compare Joseph Ant. v. 5. 4.)

'The earlier writers were therefore justified in placing a principal source of the Kishon in the vicinity of MOUNT TABOR:* although probably the branch fed from the southern arm of the plain and the southern hills, is in general not less important. The water-shed in the arm of the plain between TABOR and the Little Hermon, as we have seen, is about on a line between those two mountains; although during the rains much water must necessarily come from the Wadys north-west of TABOR, and there form what Burckhardt calls the river of Deburieh, issuing upon the great plain near that village.

SURELY EVERY MAN WALKETH IN A VAIN SHEW: SURELY THEY ARE DISQUIETED IN VAIN:

HE HEAPETH UP RICHES, AND KNOWETH NOT WHO SHALL GATHER THEM.—Psalm xxxix. 6.

'Yet in regard to this source of the Kishon, a most singular error has prevailed ever since the time of the crusades, which seems not wholly to be done away even in the present century. I find it first in Brocardus; who relates that the torrent Kishon has its source in the rain-water which descends from the eastern side of TABOR, whence the stream flows partly eastwards to the lake of Galilee, and partly westwards to the Mediterranean. There is so much foundation for this report, as may be found in the fact, that all the waters on the eastern side of TABOR, including the fountain near Khan et-Tujjar, do actually flow off eastwards through Wady el-Birch to the Jordan; but, as we have seen above, only the western and southern parts of TABOR send their waters to the Mediterranean.

'It appears, then, that the Kishon of the plain is not now a permanent stream, but usually flows only during the season of rain, and for a short time afterwards. Yet the river, as it enters the sea at the foot of Carmel, never becomes dry; and we must therefore seek for its perennial sources along the base of that mountain. Whether the brook at Leijun reaches the bed of the Kishon during the summer, we are not informed; but the main sources appear to be lower down, in the valley by which the channel issues from the plain. When Maundrell crossed the Kishon here on the 22nd of March, three and a half hours from Leijun, the water was low and inconsiderable. Shaw is the only traveller who appears to have noticed the sources of the permanent stream. "In travelling under the eastern brow of Carmel," he says, "I had an opportunity of seeing the sources of the river Kishon, three or four of which lie within less than a furlong of each other. These alone, without the lesser contributions nearer the sea, discharge water enough to form a river half as big as the Isis." The length of the stream from these sources to the sea, he estimates at seven miles, or about two and a half hours. It was probably somewhere along this permanent stream that Elijah slew the prophets of Baal. (1 Ki. xviii. 40.)

'The quantity of water in the Mukutta' as it passes through the lower plain to the sea, is not inconsiderable. Schubert forded it in May in travelling directly from Nazareth to Haifa, and found it scarcely forty feet in breadth, and three or four feet deep; the water coming half way up the bodies of the mules. Monro crossed the river near its mouth, at the S.E. nook of the bay of 'Akka, in a boat; he describes the stream as about thirty yards in width, and deep; so that the asses, with their heads tied to the boat, were compelled to swim. Yet Shaw relates, that the Kishon, when not swollen by the rains, "never falls into the sea in a full stream, but insensibly percolates through a bank of sand, which the north winds throw up against the mouth of it;" thus he found it in the middle of April, A.D. 1722, when he passed it.†

'Such were, in general, the results of our observations and inquiries respecting the noble plain of Esdraelon and the objects around it. We took leave of it from the summit of MOUNT TABOR, as it lay extended before us, quiet and peaceful, in the brilliant light of an oriental morning; so tranquil indeed, that it was difficult to connect with it the idea of battles and bloodshed, of which for a long succession of ages it has been the chosen scene. Here Deborah and Barak, descending with their forces from MOUNT TABOR, attacked and discomfited the host of Sisera with his "nine hundred chariots of iron," from Endor to Taanach and Megiddo, where the Kishon swept them away. (Ju. iv. 12—5, 19—21; Ps. lxxxiii. 9, 10.) In and adjacent to the plain, Gideon achieved his triumph over the Midianites; and here too the glory of Israel was darkened for a time, by the fall of Saul and Jonathan upon Gilboa. (Ju. vii.; 1 Sa. xxix. 1; xxxi.) It was also adjacent to Aphek in the plain, that Ahab and the Israelites obtained a miraculous victory over the Syrians under Benhadad; (1 Ki. xx. 26—30;) while at Megiddo, the pious Josiah fell in battle against the Egyptian monarch, 2 Chr. xxxv. 20—4; 2 Ki. xxiii. 29, 30. Then came the times of the Romans, with battles under Gabinius and Vespasian. The period of the crusades furnishes likewise its account of contests in and around the plain; and almost in our day the battle of MOUNT TABOR was one of the triumphs of Napoleon. From MOUNT TABOR the view took in also, on the one side, the region of Hattin, where the renown of the crusaders sunk before the star of Saladin; while, not far distant, on the other side, the name of 'Akka, or Ptolemais, recalls many a deadly struggle of the same epoch. There too Napoleon was baffled and driven back from Syria; and in our own day, torrents of blood have flowed within and around its walls, during the long siege and subsequent capture of the city by the Egyptian army, in A.D. 1832.

'The ink with which these lines were penned was hardly dry, when the coasts of Syria were again visited by war, and 'Akka became the closing scene of the struggle between the allied English and Austrian fleets, and the forces of Mohammed 'Aly. On the third day of November, 1840, 'Akka was bombarded for several hours; until the explosion of a magazine destroyed the garrison, and laid the town in ruins.'—Robinson's Bib. Res. ibid, pp. 227—34.

* 'Onomast. art. Cison. In Greek the Kishon, like the Kidron, is very appropriately called χείμαρρος, storm-brook, wintry torrent. Sept. Ju. iv. 13; v. 21, &c. Euseb. l. c.

† 'Shaw's Travels, 4to. p. 274. See also Irby and Mangles, p. 194. Mariti, Voyages, ii. p. 20. Neuw. 1791.'

ADDENDA.

THE TRANSFIGURATION OF CHRIST.—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. pp. 367—72.

'HE WAS TRANSFIGURED BEFORE THEM,' Mark ix. 2, p. 53.

'The next event on record is the Transfiguration, which seems to have been, at least in its primary sense, the fulfilment of the concluding words in the above discourse, as they are reported by each of the evangelists. And so Theophylact understood it: οὐδὲν γὰρ ἕτερον ἡ μεταμόρφωσις ἦν, ἀλλ' ἡ τῆς δευτέρας παρουσίας προμήνυσις. The interval of time between this transaction and the last is differently represented. By St. Matthew and St. Mark, it is placed six days afterwards; by St. Luke, about eight. The expression of the latter, however, ὡσεὶ ἡμέραι ὀκτὼ, is so guarded that it must be evident he did not intend to affirm the interval of eight entire days, but either of seven whole days and part of an eighth; or of six whole days, and parts of two more days. And as to the expression of St. Matthew and St. Mark, μεθ' ἡμέρας ἕξ—I shall shew hereafter that this may, and perhaps must be understood of six whole days, and a part of a seventh; in which case there will be no difference between the two statements, except of one day: and this may be explained as follows.

'Luke ix. 37, our Lord and the three apostles are said to have come down from the mountain, τῇ ἑξῆς ἡμέρᾳ; which seems to me to imply very plainly that the Transfiguration took place the night before. And this conclusion is further confirmed by the circumstance before and during the event itself—that Jesus went up into the mountain for the purpose of private prayer, in order to which he is not seen to have retired apart at other times, except in the night, or early in the morning; that the apostles were sleeping at the commencement of the Transfiguration, and were awakened on purpose to behold it; that the whole transaction, awful and mysterious as it was, would be rendered still more solemn and impressive, if it happened amidst the darkness and stillness of the night.

LIFT UP YOUR HEADS, O YE GATES; AND BE YE LIFT UP, YE EVERLASTING DOORS; AND THE KING OF GLORY SHALL COME IN. WHO IS THIS KING OF GLORY? THE LORD STRONG AND MIGHTY, THE LORD MIGHTY IN BATTLE.—Psalm xxiv. 7, 8.

'On all these accounts I think we may infer that our Saviour took the three apostles up into the mountain either at the close of the preceding day, or what is equally probable, some time in the ensuing night; that the Transfiguration occurred soon after, and therefore in the night; that when this was over, they did not come down until the following day. Now in this case, from the day of the confession of Peter, reckoned as the first, to the day before the Transfiguration, reckoned as the last, the interval might be exactly seven days and six nights; but from the same time to either the night of the Transfiguration, considered as part of the same Jewish νυχθήμερον, or to the morning of the day after it, the interval might be eight days and seven nights, or what St. Luke would call ἡμέραι ὀκτὼ. If St. Matthew and St. Mark go by the former rule, and St. Luke goes by the latter, it is manifest that their statements may both be correct; and would both be consistent the one with the other. It is a probable conjecture, though I have not the means of rendering it demonstratively certain, that both the prediction of the Transfiguration and the Transfiguration took place on the same day of the week; either the Jewish sabbath, or the Christian Sunday. If either of these things was the case, then each mode of speaking concerning the distance of time between them would be strictly true. Let me assume that Christ was transfigured this year, at the same distance of time from the day of Pentecost, at which he ascended into heaven in the next. The day of Pentecost this year fell upon June 6, and the day analagous to Ascension-day before that was May 27. A.D. 29, May 27, according to the Tables was Friday, but, according to my computation, was Sunday. Moreover, the day of Pentecost itself the next year fell upon May 26, and May 26 on the first day of the week.

'The scene of the Transfiguration is described by the Evangelists simply as an high mountain; the other particular, κατ' ἰδίαν, which might be understood to belong to the same description, being rather to be understood of the taking the apostles apart. Yet I can discover no good reason for questioning the ancient ecclesiastical tradition, which supposes it to have been mount Tabor.* Nor is it improbable that either this mountain, or the mountain of Beatitudes near to Capernaum, was the very mountain on which our Lord was manifested in Galilee, Mt. xxviii. 16, § 96, after his resurrection.... The Transfiguration both in itself as regarded the material fact, and in its secret meaning as referred to what was probably its moral end and purpose, must be considered on every account one of the most memorable transactions in our Saviour's lifetime on earth; which not only have the first three evangelists recorded, accordingly, with proportionate distinctness, and the fourth, Jno. i. 14, § 7, p. 48, if I mistake not, in no obscure terms alluded to; but to arrive at which, as it appears to me, was the specific object of this part of their accounts from the first. The minuteness with which they relate the particulars of the intermediate events, from the beginning of the year down to the time of this single transaction, compared with the brevity of their narratives for many months afterwards, is implicitly an argument that they were desirous to arrive regularly at this: but having done so, had nothing of equal interest or importance to dwell upon, for some time after. I place it therefore between the third feast of the Passover, and the third feast of Pentecost; concerning both which we have the clearest proof that our Lord attended neither of them in Jerusalem. The circumstances of the narrative, directly afterwards, shew that the feast of Pantecost was either still to come, or already past; the former of which suppositions is just as probable as the latter. It might happen, therefore, ten days before it, on the day which we have conjectured May 27.'

* But see NOTE on Mt. xvii. 1, p. 52; also, 'GEOG NOTICE,' p. 64, second column.—See NOTE † infra.

PROPHECIES CONCERNING THE RESTORATION OF 'ALL ISRAEL.

See 'First . . . . restore all things.'—Mt. xvii. 11, p. 57.

ISAIAH xliv. 1—7, 'Yet now hear, O Jacob my servant; and Israel, whom I have chosen: 2, Thus saith the LORD that made thee, and formed thee from the womb, which will help thee; Fear not, O Jacob, my servant; and thou, Jesurun, whom I have chosen. 3, For I will pour water upon him that is thirsty, and floods upon the dry ground: I will pour my Spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thine offspring: 4, and they shall spring up as among the grass, as willows by the water courses. 5, One shall say, I am the LORD'S; and another shall call himself by the name of Jacob; and another shall subscribe with his hand unto the LORD, and surname himself by the name of Israel. 6, Thus saith the LORD the King of Israel, and his Redeemer the LORD of hosts; I am the first, and I am the last; and beside me there is no God. 7, And who, as I, shall call, and shall declare it, and set it in order for me, since I appointed the ancient people? and the things that are coming, and shall come, let them shew unto them.'

xlv. 22—5, 'Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else. 23, I have sworn by myself, the word is gone out of my mouth in righteousness, and shall not return, That unto me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear. 24, Surely, shall one say, In the LORD have I righteousness and strength: even to him shall men come; and all that are incensed against him shall be ashamed. 25, In the LORD shall all the seed of Israel be justified, and shall glory.'

JEREMIAH iii. 11—8, 'And the LORD said unto me, The backsliding Israel hath justified herself more than treacherous Judah. 12, Go and proclaim these words toward the north, and say, Return, thou backsliding Israel, saith the LORD; and I will not cause mine anger to fall upon you: for I am merciful, saith the LORD, and I will not keep anger for ever. 13, Only acknowledge thine iniquity, that thou hast transgressed against the LORD thy God, and hast scattered thy ways to the strangers under every green tree, and ye have not obeyed my voice, saith the LORD. 14, Turn, O backsliding children, saith the LORD; for I am married unto you: and I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion: 15, and I will give you pastors according to mine heart, which shall feed you with knowledge and understanding. 16, And it shall come to pass, when ye be multiplied and increased in the land, in those days, saith the LORD, they shall say no more, The ark of the covenant of the LORD: neither shall it come to mind: neither shall they remember it; neither shall they visit it; neither shall that be done any more. 17, At that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of the LORD; and all the nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of the LORD, to Jerusalem: neither shall they walk any more after the imagination of their evil heart. 18, In those days the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I have given for an inheritance unto your fathers.'

† 'The "holy mount" would more probably be mount Hermon, to which I have already directed the reader's attention—see pp. 38—40. (See Mt. xvi. 13, § 50, p. 35—and xvii. 1, 'Scrip. Illus' p. 52, supra. 'An high mountain.') We have seen that mount Sion is identical with mount Hermon (De. iv. 48) and in the Transfiguration we see, in part, the fulfilment of the prediction in the second Psalm, ver. 6, "Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion." May it not have been on account of the failure of Israel, that a temporary Zion was given them in the more barren district of Judæa? and the Transfiguration on the "holy mount," 2 Pe. i. 18, where the sample of the future kingdom was given, may be understood as a pledge of the restoration to Israel, of the original "Sion, which is Hermon"?—Journeyings in the Land of Israel, by Robert Willan, p. 76—and comp. Ps. lxii. 16; lxxxix. 12; cxxxiii.; De. iii. 9; 4 Camt. iv. 8; Is. xxix. 17; lx. 13; Ze. x. 10; Eze. xx. 40, 47, 48.

I WILL EXTOL THEE, MY GOD, O KING; AND I WILL BLESS THY NAME FOR EVER AND EVER.—Psalm cxlv. 1.
EVERY DAY WILL I BLESS THEE; AND I WILL PRAISE THY NAME FOR EVER AND EVER.—Psalm cxlv. 2.

JEREMIAH xxiii. 7, 8, 'Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that they shall no more say, The LORD liveth, which brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt; 8, but, The LORD liveth, which brought up and which led the seed of the house of Israel out of the north country, and from all countries whither I had driven them; and they shall dwell in their own land.'

xxxi. 27—37, 'Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will sow the house of Israel and the house of Judah with the seed of man, and with the seed of beast. 28, And it shall come to pass, that like as I have watched over them, to pluck up, and to break down, and to throw down, and to destroy, and to afflict; so will I watch over them, to build, and to plant, saith the LORD. 29, In those days they shall say no more, The fathers have eaten a sour grape, and the children's teeth are set on edge. 30, But every one shall die for his own iniquity: every man that eateth the sour grape, his teeth shall be set on edge. 31, Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: 32, not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the LORD: 33, but this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the LORD, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. 34, And they shall teach no more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the LORD: for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the LORD: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more. 35, Thus saith the LORD, which giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night, which divideth the sea when the waves thereof roar; The LORD of hosts is his name: 36, If those ordinances depart from before me, saith the LORD, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before me for ever. 37, Thus saith the LORD; If heaven above can be measured, and the foundations of the earth searched out beneath, I will also cast off all the seed of Israel for all that they have done, saith the LORD.'

EZEKIEL xi. 15—20, 'Son of man, thy brethren, even thy brethren, the men of thy kindred, and all the house of Israel wholly, are they unto whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, Get you far from the LORD: unto us is this land given in possession. 16, Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Although I have cast them far off among the heathen, and although I have scattered them among the countries, yet will I be to them as a little sanctuary in the countries where they shall come. 17, Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; I will even gather you from the people, and assemble you out of the countries where ye have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel. 18, And they shall come thither, and they shall take away all the detestable things thereof and all the abominations thereof from thence. 19, And I will give them one heart, and I will put a new spirit within you; and I will take the stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them an heart of flesh: 20, That they may walk in my statutes, and keep mine ordinances, and do them: and they shall be my people, and I will be their God.'

xx. 40, 'For in mine holy mountain, in the mountain of the height of Israel, saith the Lord GOD, there shall all the house of Israel, all of them in the land, serve me: there will I accept them, and there will I require your offerings, and the firstfruits of your oblations, with all your holy things.'

xxxvii. 11—4, 'Then he said unto me, Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel: behold, they say, Our bones are dried, and our hope is lost: we are cut off for our parts. 12, Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel. 13, And ye shall know that I am the LORD, when I have opened your graves, O my people, and brought you up out of your graves, 14, and shall put my Spirit in you, and ye shall live, and I shall place you in your own land: then shall ye know that I the LORD have spoken it, and performed it, saith the LORD.'

HOSEA i. 10, .1, 'Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; and it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God. 11, Then shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head, and they shall come up out of the land: for great shall be the day of Jezreel.'

ii. 23, 'And I will sow her unto me in the earth; and I will have mercy upon her that had not obtained mercy; and I will say to them which were not my people, Thou art my people; and they shall say, Thou art my God.'

xiv., O Israel, return unto the LORD thy God; for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity. 2, Take with you words, and turn to the LORD: say unto him, Take away all iniquity, and receive us graciously: so will we render the calves of our lips. 3, Asshur shall not save us; we will not ride upon horses: neither will we say any more to the work of our hands, Ye are our gods: for in thee the fatherless findeth mercy. 4, I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely: for mine anger is turned away from him. 5, I will be as the dew unto Israel: he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon. 6, His branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive tree, and his smell as Lebanon. 7, They that dwell under his shadow shall return; they shall revive as the corn, and grow as the vine: the scent thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon. 8, Ephraim shall say, What have I to do any more with idols? I have heard him, and observed him: I am like a green fir tree. From me is thy fruit found. 9, Who is wise, and he shall understand these things? prudent, and he shall know them? for the ways of the LORD are right, and the just shall walk in them: but the transgressors shall fall therein.'

AMOS ix. 14, .5. 'And I will bring again the captivity of my people of Israel, and they shall build the waste cities, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof; they shall also make gardens, and eat the fruit of them. 15, And I will plant them upon their land, and they shall no more be pulled up out of their land which I have given them, saith the LORD thy God.'

MICAH vii. 15—20, 'According to the days of thy coming out of the land of Egypt will I shew unto him marvellous things. 16, The nations shall see and be confounded at all their might: they shall lay their hand upon their mouth, their ears shall be deaf. 17, They shall lick the dust like a serpent, they shall move out of their holes like worms of the earth: they shall be afraid of the LORD our God, and shall fear because of thee. 18, Who is a God like unto thee, that pardoneth iniquity, and passeth by the transgression of the remnant of his heritage? he retaineth not his anger for ever, because he delighteth in mercy. 19, He will turn again, he will have compassion upon us; he will subdue our iniquities; and thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea. 20, Thou wilt perform the truth to Jacob, and the mercy to Abraham, which thou hast sworn unto our fathers from the days of old.'

JOEL ii. 21—32, 'Fear not, O land; be glad and rejoice: for the LORD will do great things. 22, Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field: for the pastures of the wilderness do spring, for the tree beareth her fruit, the fig tree and the vine do yield their strength. 23, Be glad then, ye children of Zion, and rejoice in the LORD your God: for he hath given you the former rain moderately, and he will cause to come down for you the rain, the former rain, and the latter rain in the first month. 24, And the floors shall be full of wheat, and the fats shall overflow with wine and oil. 25, And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten, the canker-worm, and the caterpiller, and the palmer-worm, my great army which I sent among you. 26, And ye shall eat in plenty, and be satisfied, and praise the name of the LORD your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you: and my people shall never be ashamed. 27 And ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the LORD your God, and none else: and my people shall never be ashamed. 28, And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions: 29, and also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my Spirit. 30, And I will show wonders in the heavens and in the earth, blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke. 31, The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and the terrible day of the LORD come. 32, And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of the LORD shall be delivered: for in mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall be deliverance, as the LORD hath said, and in the remnant whom the LORD shall call.'

iii. 16—21, 'The LORD also shall roar out of Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and the earth shall shake: but the LORD will be the hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel. 17, So shall ye know that I am the LORD your God dwelling in Zion, my holy mountain: then shall Jerusalem be holy, and there shall no strangers pass through her any more. 18, And it shall come to pass in that day, that the mountains shall drop down new wine, and the hills shall flow with milk, and all the rivers of Judah shall flow with waters, and a fountain shall come forth of the house of the LORD, and shall water the valley of Shittim. 19, Egypt shall be a desolation, and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the violence against the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land. 20, But Judah shall dwell for ever, and Jerusalem from generation to generation. 21, For I will cleanse their blood that I have not cleansed: for the LORD dwelleth in Zion.'

OBADIAH 17—21, 'But upon mount Zion shall be deliverance, and there shall be holiness; and the house of Jacob shall possess their possessions. 18, And the house of Jacob shall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau for stubble, and they shall kindle in them, and devour them; and there shall not be any remaining of the house of ESAU; for the LORD hath spoken it. 19, And they of the south shall possess the mount of Esau; and they of the plain the Philistines: and they shall possess the fields of Ephraim, and the fields of Samaria: and Benjamin shall possess Gilead. 20, And the captivity of this host of the children of Israel shall possess that of the Canaanites, even unto Zarephath; and the captivity of Jerusalem, which is in Sepharad, shall possess the cities of the south. 21, And saviours shall come up on mount Zion to judge the mount of Esau; and the kingdom shall be the LORD'S.

NAHUM i. 12—5, 'Thus saith the LORD; Though they be quiet, and likewise many, yet thus shall they be cut down, when he shall pass through. Though I have afflicted thee, I will afflict thee no more. 13, For now will I break his yoke from off thee, and will burst thy bonds in sunder. 14, And the LORD hath given a commandment concerning thee, that no more of thy name be sown: out of the house of thy gods will I cut off the graven image and the molten image: I will make thy grave; for thou art vile. 15, Behold upon the mountains the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace! O Judah, keep thy solemn feasts, perform thy vows: for the wicked shall no more pass through thee; he is utterly cut off.'

HABAKKUK ii. 13, 4, 'Behold, is it not of the LORD of hosts that the people shall labour in the very fire, and the people shall weary themselves for very vanity? 14, For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the LORD, as the waters cover the sea.'

ZEPHANIAH iii. 9—20, 'For then will I turn to the people a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of the LORD, to serve him with one consent. 10, From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia my suppliants, even the daughter of my dispersed, shall bring mine offering. 11, In that day shalt thou not be ashamed for all thy doings, wherein thou hast transgressed against me: for then I will take away out of the midst of thee them that rejoice in thy pride, and thou shalt no more be haughty because of my holy mountain. 12, I will also leave in the midst of thee an afflicted and poor people, and they shall trust in the name of the LORD. 13, The remnant of Israel shall not do iniquity, nor speak lies; neither shall a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth: for they shall feed and lie down, and none shall make them afraid. 14, Sing, O daughter of Zion; shout, O Israel; be glad and rejoice with all the heart, O daughter of Jerusalem. 15, The LORD hath taken away thy judgments, he hath cast out thine enemy: the king of Israel, even the LORD, is in the midst of thee: thou shalt not see evil any more. 16, In that day it shall be said to Jerusalem, Fear thou not: and to Zion, Let not thine hands be slack. 17, The LORD thy God in the midst of thee is mighty; he will save, he will rejoice over thee with joy; he will rest in his love, he will joy over thee with singing. 18, I will gather them that are sorrowful for the solemn assembly, who are of thee, to whom the reproach of it was a burden. 19, Behold, at that time I will undo all that afflict thee: and I will save her that halteth, and gather her that was driven out; and I will get them praise and fame in every land where they have been put to shame. 20, At that time will I bring you again, even in the time that I gather you: for I will make you a name and a praise among all people of the earth, when I turn back your captivity before your eyes, saith the LORD.'

HAGGAI ii. 20—3, 'And again the word of the LORD came unto Haggai in the four and twentieth day of the month, saying, 21, Speak to Zerubbabel, governor of Judah, saying, I will shake the heavens and the earth; 22, and I will overthrow the throne of kingdoms, and I will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the heathen; and I will overthrow the chariots, and those that ride in them; and the horses and their riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother. 23, In that day, saith the LORD of hosts, will I take thee, O Zerubbabel, my servant, the son of Shealtiel, saith the LORD, and will make thee as a signet: for I have chosen thee, saith the LORD of hosts.'

ZECHARIAH ii. 6—11, 'Ho, ho, come forth, and flee from the land of the north, saith the LORD: for I have spread you abroad as the four winds of the heaven, saith the LORD. 7, Deliver thyself, O Zion, that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon. 8, For thus saith the LORD of hosts; After the glory hath he sent me unto the nations which spoiled you: for he that toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye. 9, For, behold, I will shake mine hand upon them, and they shall be a spoil to their servants: and ye shall know that the LORD of hosts hath sent me. 10, Sing and rejoice, O daughter of Zion: for, lo, I come, and I will dwell in the midst of thee, saith the LORD. 11, And many nations shall be joined to the LORD in that day, and shall be my people: and I will dwell in the midst of thee, and thou shalt know that the LORD of hosts hath sent me unto thee.'

x. 6—12, 'And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph, and I will bring them again to place them; for I have mercy upon them: and they shall be as though I had not cast them off: for I am the LORD their God, and will hear them. 7, And they of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man, and their heart shall rejoice as through wine: yea, their children shall see it, and be glad; their heart shall rejoice in the LORD. 8, I will hiss for them, and gather them; for I have redeemed them: and they shall increase as they have increased. 9, And I will sow them among the people: and they shall remember me in far countries; and they shall live with their children, and turn again. 10, I will bring them again also out of the land of Egypt, and gather them out of Assyria; and I will bring them into the land of Gilead and Lebanon; and place shall not be found for them. 11, And he shall pass through the sea with affliction, and shall smite the waves in the sea, and all the deeps of the river shall dry up: and the pride of Assyria shall be brought down, and the sceptre of Egypt shall depart away. 12, And I will strengthen them in the LORD; and they shall walk up and down in his name, saith the LORD.'

MALACHI iv.—

SECTION 52.—(G. 12—.4)—[Lesson 49.]—JESUS JOURNEYS, AND RESIDES IN GALILEE: AND AGAIN PLAINLY FORETELLS HIS SUFFERINGS, DEATH, AND RESURRECTION. ON THEIR WAY BACK TO CAPERNAUM, THE DISCIPLES DISPUTE AMONG THEMSELVES, CONCERNING PRECEDENCE. THE COLLECTORS OF THE TRIBUTE MONEY MAKE APPLICATION TO PETER: JESUS QUESTIONS PETER ON THIS SUBJECT; AND THEN SENDS HIM TO THE LAKE. THE DISCIPLES ASK JESUS, 'WHO IS THE GREATEST?' JESUS QUESTIONS THEM; AND, UPON THEIR MAKING NO ANSWER, HE PROCEEDS TO INSTRUCT THEM, BOTH BY A SIGNIFICANT ACTION AND BY WORD.—Matt. xvii. 22—xviii. 1—9.* Mark ix. 30—50. Luke ix. 43—50. John vii. 1.—[See Greswell, Vol. II. pp. 374—.8, and Diss. xxix. pp. 464—.81.]

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. xvii. 22. Mk. ix. 30. Lu. —— Jno. vii. 1. Jesus departs from the Holy Mount, at the foot of which the dispossession last recorded appears to have taken place—(see Lu. ix. 37—42, § 51, p. 58)—He passes through Galilee, but refrains from presenting himself in Jewry [illegible] the Jews are already determined to accomplish his death; the truth respecting which, it was so difficult to bring before the minds of the disciples.

— xvii. 22, .3. — ix. 30, .1. — ix. 43, .4. Jesus at this time shuns notoriety; and while they are all amazed at the mighty power of God, He again earnestly forewarns the disciples of his sufferings, death, and resurrection.

— xvii. 23. — ix. 32. — ix. 45. They as yet understand not the full import of his words and are afraid to inquire.

———— ———— ———— ix. 46. The disciples, by the way, reason among themselves which of them should be greatest.

— xvii. 24. — ix. 33. They come to Capernaum—NOTE—Cæsarea Philippi, considerably north of Capernaum, was the last city mentioned, and that just before the Transfiguration—see Mt. xvi. 13, § 50, p. 35.

— xvii. 24, .5. The collectors of the tribute for the temple ask Peter if his Master pays tribute, Peter takes upon him to answer for Jesus, making his Lord pay tribute to his Father's house.

— xvii. 25—.7. When come into the house, Jesus confronts Peter, charging him with having given an answer inconsistent with the confession he had made, that Jesus is the Son of God. As he had made his Master a debtor, he is himself made a debtor to the same amount, and is sent back to his fishing to procure the means of paying for both. The money is procured in such a way as to shew that Jesus 'is Lord of all,' whom even the fishes of the sea obey.

— xviii. 1. Disciples come to Jesus, asking, 'Who is the greatest?' &c.

Mt. ———— Mk. ix. 33—.5. Lu. ix. 47, .8. Jesus perceiving their thought, asks what had been the subject of their dispute; and when they are silent, he sits down, calls the twelve, and saith, that the way to be first, is to be last, and servant of all.

— xviii. 2. — ix. 36. — ix. 47. He sets a child in their midst, &c.

— xviii. 3, 4. ———— ———— Christ's disciples must become as little children.

— xviii. 5. — ix. 37. — ix. 48. Jesus regards as done to himself that which is done to little children in his name.

———— — ix. 38—40. — ix. 49, 50. John tells Jesus, that they had seen one casting out devils in his name, and that they had forbidden him, because he followed not with them. Jesus commands his disciples not to obstruct others in doing good, although not of their company.

———— — ix. 41. Jesus continues his discourse from ver. 37, relative to receiving little ones in his name; and says that a cup of water to such, shall not lose its reward.

— xviii. 6, 7. — ix. 42. The awful evil of offences, especially to him who causes them.

— xviii. 8, 9. — ix. 43—.8. We are to be willing to part with whatever causes us to stumble, though seemingly necessary to seeing our way, and making progress therein. Better to part with a hand, a foot, or an eye, than having two hands, &c., to be cast into hell fire: 'where their worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched.'

———— — ix. 49, 50. Every one must endure the fire: either the fire which cannot be quenched, or the fiery trial, through which the righteous now pass for purification. Believers are to present themselves a living sacrifice—in which sacrifice the salt of the covenant, excluding all corruption, must be present. The children of God are to diffuse the healing and preserving power of divine truth around them, and be at peace among themselves.

No. 52.—(G. 12.)—Jesus journeys, and resides in Galilee: and again plainly foretells his sufferings, death, and resurrection.

MATT. xvii. 22, .3. [Ver. 21, § li. p. 61.]	MARK ix. 30—.2. [Ver. 29, ibid.]	LUKE ix. 43—.5. [Ver. 42, ibid.]	JOHN vii. 1. [Ch. vi. § xliii. p. 334.]
	30 And they-		[a] After these things Jesus [b]
22 And while they abode in Galilee,	[b] departed thence, and-passed through Galilee; [c]		walked in Galilee: [c] for he would not

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. vii. 1. After these things—One of the last things mentioned by John, was the confession of Peter, 'Thou art that Christ, the Son of the Living God.' ch. vi. 69, § 43, p. 334—the truth implied in which confession had been opened up in connection with the Transfiguration, as recorded by the other Evangelists, §§ 44—51.

Mk. ix. 30. departed thence—The last locality named by Mark was Cæsarea Philippi, viii. 27, § 50, p. 35—he had since ascended the mount of Transfiguration.

NOTES.

[Mt. xvii. 22. And while they abode, &c. ἀναστρεφομένων . . . ἐν τῇ Γαλιλαίᾳ. 'This should not be rendered, "while they abode in Galilee," nor "while they returned to Galilee," nor even "while they passed through." For though it may seem to be required by Mk. ix. 30, παρεπορεύοντο διὰ τῆς Γαλιλαίας, yet there is no authority for such a sense; nor do the words of St. Mark require it; for παρεπορεύοντο there means, "they passed along through" (as in ii. 23), i. e., travelled through. And that is the very sense of ἀναστρέφεσθαι here, of which Wets. will supply examples. Render, "as they were travelling in Galilee," i. e., as we find from verse 24, on their way to Capernaum.'—Bloomfield.]

* See ADDENDA, p. 79, on the identity of Mt. xvii. 1—9, with Mk. ix. 33—50; Lu. ix. 46—50

THE WORST THAT MAN CAN DO AGAINST BELIEVERS, IS TO SEND THEM OUT OF THE EARTH.
THE BEST THAT MAN CAN DO FOR BELIEVERS, IS TO AID THEIR FLIGHT TO HEAVEN.

MATT. xvii. 23.	MARK ix. 31, .2.	LUKE ix. 43—.5.	JOHN vii. 1.
			walk in Jewry, because the Jews sought to kill him.[d] [Ch. vii. 2, § liv. p. 87.]
	[d] and he would not that any man should know it.[d]
		[a] And they were all [a] amazed at the mighty power μεγαλειοτητι of God. But while they wondered every one at all things which Jesus did, he said unto his disciples, Let these sayings 44 sink down θεσθε into your ears:
	31 For he taught his disciples, and said unto them,
Jesus said unto them,
The Son of man shall μελλει [f] be betrayed into the hands of men, 23 and they shall kill him, [g] and the third day he shall be raised again.	The Son of man is delivered into the hands of men, and they shall kill him; [g] and after that he is killed, he shall rise the third day.	for the Son of man shall μελλει [f] be delivered into the hands of men.
	32 But they understood not ηγνοουν that saying, [h]	But they understood not ηγνοουν this saying. 45

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS

ix. 2, § 51, p. 51—and descended thence to his disciples, 9—14, § ib. p. 57—now, for the first time, there is a distinct notice of his leaving the coasts of 'Cæsarea Philippi.'

Mk. ix. 30. passed through Galilee—proceeding southward in the direction of Judæa—but he abode in Galilee, Mt. xvii. 22,—for he would not walk in Jewry, because the Jews sought to kill him,' Jno. vii. 1—and even in his walks through Galilee he seems to have desired concealment, Mk. ix. 30.

Lu. ix. 43. mighty power of God—which Jesus had manifested in casting out the dumb and deaf spirit, Mk. ix. 25—.7, § 51, p. 60.

Mk. ix. 31. taught his disciples—He had spoken to them openly of his sufferings just before his Transfiguration, Mt. xvi. 21—.6; [Mk. viii. 31—.7; Lu. ix. 22—.5,] § 50, pp. 40—3.—The lesson he had given on this foundation truth he now repeats, Mt. xvii. 22, .3; [Mk. ix. 31, .2; Lu. ix. 43—.5]—and a third time he presses it upon their attention, Mt. xx. 17—.9; [Mk. x. 32—.4; Lu. xviii. 31—.4,] § 77, p. 235.

Lu. ix. 44. delivered into the hands, &c.—He had before spoken of his sufferings and death, Mt. xvi. 21, &c., § 50, p. 40—but he now adds the knowledge of a circumstance peculiarly painful, viz., his betrayal, ch. xvii. 22—which was to be by one of the twelve, Jno. vi. 70, .1, § 43, p. 334.

Mk. ix. 31. he shall rise—This prediction appears to be that which was particularly referred to by the two in shining garments, on the morning of the resurrection, Lu. xxiv. 6, 7, § 93 p. 4-8—'Remember how he spake unto you when he was yet in Galilee, saying, The Son of man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again.'

32. they understood not—So once and again before, when he spake of his resurrection, Jno. ii. 22, § 12, p. 82; Mk. ix. 10, § 51, p. 57—as appears from Lu. ix. 44, .5, their want of understanding was especially with regard to his sufferings—yet they understood so much as to be 'exceeding sorry,' Mt. xvii. 23—but it is likely their hearts were set in so contrary a direction that they could not believe their own ears—so Peter, xvi. 21—.3, § 50, p. 40—and they were afraid to inquire into the subject, Lu. ix. 45—they disliked to have the truth made more plain to them; which it is likely was one of the principal causes of their dulness of apprehension—see the case of the Jews, Jno. viii. 43, § 55, p. 105.

NOTES.

Lu. ix. 43. While they wondered, &c. While they were admiring his power to deliver, he would not have them to be ignorant of his sufferings, whereby the great deliverance was to be procured.

Mk. ix. 32. Understood not. When they saw his works, they believed him to be the Messiah, but did not know that Christ must suffer before entering into his glory.—See Lu. xxiv. 26, § 94.

[Lu. ix. 45. It was hid from them. Not by God—but by their previous false belief. And from this we learn, that the plainest truths of the Bible are unintelligible to many because they have embraced some

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Jno. vii. 1. It is proper to follow the Lamb of God, in avoiding persecution, when we can otherwise be to an equal degree usefully employed. As far as duty will allow, we must avoid involving others in the guilt of persecuting the servants of God.]

Lu. ix. 43, .4. As Jesus would not tell his disciples of his sufferings, without shewing them his glory, so neither would he allow them to be amazed at the mighty power of God, which he manifested, without again warning them of the approaching time of tribulation.

[44 ver. It is needful that the wondrous things which Jesus hath spoken respecting his kingdom should sink down into our ears, in order to prepare and were-	[k] and it was hid παρακεκαλυμμενον from them, that they-afraid to ask him.	perceived αισθωνται it not: and they- feared to ask him of that saying.[i]

MATT. xvii. 23.	MARK ix. 32.	LUKE ix. 45.	JOHN.
[i] And they were- [k] exceeding -sorry.

(G. 13.)—On their way back to Capernaum, the disciples dispute among themselves, which was the greatest. The collectors of the tribute money make application to Peter: Jesus questions Peter on this subject; and then sends him to the lake.*

MATT. xvii. 24—.7.	MARK ix. 33.	LUKE ix. 46.
		[a] Then there-arose εισηλθε 46 a-reasoning among them, which of them should be greatest. [b]
24 [b] And when- they -were- come to Capernaum, they that received tribute money came to Peter, and said, Doth- not your master - pay τελει tribute ?	33 And he- came to Capernaum
25 He saith Yes. And

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS

Lu. ix. 46. Then there arose, &c.—This reasoning, about which of them should be the greatest, was when they were journeying—see Mk. ix. 34, p. 74, and not long after the Transfiguration, ver. 2, &c., § 51, p. 51, and immediately after Jesus had warned them of his approaching humiliation, ver. 43—.5, p. 71.

which of them should be greatest. —From what our Lord had said, Mk. ix. 1, p. 44, they may have expected that the kingdom was about to be set up in outward power and splendour; and even the three who witnessed the Transfiguration may have supposed that they had therein been given the greater assurance that the reign of Messiah, as expected by their countrymen, and in which they hoped to participate, was about to commence: although Jesus had repeatedly warned them that his death was about to take place, and that they must be willing to die an ignominious death as following their crucified Master, Mt. xvi. 21—.6, § ib., p. 40.

Mt. xvii. 24. when they were come to Capernaum— This is the first place in Galilee mentioned since our Saviour's being in the coasts of Cæsarea Philippi, Mk. viii. 27, § 50, p. 35; ix. 33, supra.

tribute—The tax appointed for the service of the tabernacle, Ex. xxx. 12—.6; xxxviii. 25, .6—and afterwards of the temple, 2 Ch. xxiv. 9.

25. He saith, Yes—This appears to have been an overready acquiescence on the part of Peter; for from what follows it would appear that Jesus was not accustomed to pay this tax for the support of his Father's house, in which rather he claimed to exercise authority, Jno. ii. 13—.7, § 12, p. 81; Mt. xxi. 12, .3, § 83, p. 277—Our Lord had, for the present, forbid his disciples to make known that which was the ground of his exemption from this tax, his being 'Christ, the Son of the Living God,' compare xvi. 20, § 50, p. 39; xvii. 26, p. 73—Our Lord at this time wished for concealment, Mk. ix. 30, p. 71—If even in these circumstances Peter thought himself justified in departing from the strictness of truth, he erred: it is plain that our Lord does not allow such liberties erroneous belief or opinion, and which they are unwilling to abandon. The proper way of reading the Bible is not to impose upon it a meaning of our own; but to seek, as in the sight of God, to know its true import, that so we may enter into the counsel of God; and be prepared, by his gracious aid, to suffer and to do his holy will.]

NOTES.

Mt. xvii. 24. Tribute money. 'This tribute was required from every male israelite above the age of twenty, once in the year; and to be paid into the corban, or treasury of God, for the current expenses of the temple service. . . . . Our Lord's argument, ver. 25—.7, supposes that he himself stood in the relation of Son to Him for the benefit of whose service the tax was understood to be levied; a supposition which would manifestly be true if the tax was levied for the service of the temple, and our Saviour himself stood in the relation of Son to the God of Israel.'—Greswell.

Vespasian ordered it afterwards to be paid into the Roman treasury.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

for the trials through which those have to pass who would enter into his glory.]

[Lu. ix. 45. Let us not be surprised at the darkness of mind, and dullness of hearing, which many disciples have manifested with regard to the glory, when we see, that even the chosen disciples who heard Jesus speak so frequently of his death and resurrection, understood not that saying. 'It was hid from them, that they perceived it not.']

Let us, from the case of the apostles, be led to suspect our own ignorance. To us Jesus may have spoken many things which we have not yet been given ears to hear.

Mt. xvii. 24, &c. Let us, from the case of Peter, learn

* On this first dispute concerning precedence, see Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxix. pp. 464—81, and ADDENDA, infra, p. 79.

THE PEARLS OF THE SAINT'S NECKLACE, ARE ALL THE GRACES OF GOD'S WORD,
THE THREAD IS SCARLET, AND THE CHIEF PEARLS ARE FAITH, HOPE, AND CHARITY.

MATTHEW xvii. 25—7.

when he was come into the house, Jesus prevented προεφθασεν him, saying, What thinkest thou, Simon? of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute τελη η κηνσον? of their own children, or 26 of strangers αλλοτριων? Peter saith unto him, Of strangers. Jesus saith unto-27 him, Then are the children free. Notwithstanding, lest we should offend them, go thou to the sea, and cast an hook, and take up the fish that first cometh up; and when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt find a piece of money στατηρα: that take, and give unto them for me and thee

MARK ix. 33.

and being in the house,

LUKE

[Ch. xviii. 1, § liii. p. 82.] SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

to his followers, a liberty that leads to bondage. It may be noticed, that as Peter had unwarrantably brought Jesus under an obligation in this matter, he is himself made a debtor to the same amount, and sent back to his former worldly calling, in order to procure the means of payment, 25—7, supra.

Mt. xvii. 25. children—or, 'sons;' not subjects as contrasted with foreigners; but sons, or members of the king's own family, in distinction from his subjects. Believers are sons—'heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ,' Rom. viii. 17.

26. Then are the children free—This liberty is claimed more especially for Gentile believers—see Peter before the church at Jerusalem, 'Why tempt ye God, to put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear?' Ac. xv. 10, and Ga. iv. 1—7.

27. lest we should offend, &c.—There would have been occasion of stumbling, if, after Peter's asserting that his Master paid tribute, it was found he did not. That may be done in order to avoid offence, which may not be done as matter of right—so Paul circumcised Timothy, Ac. xvi. 1—3, but would not allow that the same should be forced upon Titus, Ga. ii. 1—5.—'It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak,' Rom. xiv. 21—'We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves . . . For even Christ pleased not himself,' xv. 1—3—'Giving no offence in any thing, that the ministry be not blamed,' 2 Cor. vi. 3; 1 Th. v. 22—see border.

cast an hook—Our Lord had set Peter apart to another employment, saying, 'Fear not; from henceforth thou shalt catch men,' Lu. v. 10, § 20, p. 156; but this exemption from his former occupation was, it would seem, conditional upon his faithfulness in the more honourable service unto which he was called. He was now reproved, by being, for the moment, sent back to his former employment. In one other instance do we find our Lord directing Peter in the exercise of his fishing, and that also was in reproof, Jno. xxi. 6, 15—8. § 97.

take up the fish—As he was not to cast a net into the sea, but a hook, so he was not to catch fishes, but only one fish. Jesus might have given to Peter a draught of fishes sufficient for the purpose, in place of one fish with a piece of money in its mouth; or he might have called up from the deep enough to pay for all the disciples, but he commands no more than is needful; and what he does, is done in such a way, as to shew that he is the Son of man who is constituted Heir of all things; and of whom it is written, Ps. viii. 5—9, 'Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honour. 6. Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet: 7, all sheep and oxen, yea, and the beasts of the field; 8, the fowl of the air, and the fish of the sea, and whatsoever passeth through the paths of the seas. 9, O LORD our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth!'—comp. He. ii. 6—10.

for me and thee—Only Peter, who had brought Jesus under an obligation in the matter, is joined with him in the paying of tribute. The other disciples are left to the enjoyment of that liberty claimed for the children of God by him who is emphatically the 'Son of God'—see on ver. 26. It may be noticed, that this gives no claim to exemption from the payment of tribute for the support of civil government, Rom. xiii. 1—7—still less does it exempt from the service of God, for 'ye are not your own. For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's,' 1 Co. vi. 19, 20—'I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service,' Rom. xii. 1.

NOTES.

Mt. xvii. 25. Of their own children, or of strangers? &c. Of strangers only; otherwise our Saviour's argument would not be good. And by strangers are meant all the king's subjects, except his children.

The reasoning is this; Earthly kings exempt their own children from paying tribute; but this being levied in the name of God, and for his house and service; I, who am his Son, and superior to the temple, may well be exempted. This tribute is alluded to by Titus, when he tells the Jews at the siege, we have permitted you to raise the tribute for the service of God.

27. Thou shalt find a piece of money. This was an Attic silver coin, equal in value to the sacred shekel, four drachmas, or four denarii, about 2*s.* 6*d.* Eng., the tax required for two persons, our Lord and Peter.

What an illustrious degree of knowledge and power did our Lord discover in the case before us! and how greatly this circumstance would tend to encourage Peter and his brethren in a firm dependence on divine Providence.

It is better to recede somewhat from our just rights, than by stubbornly insisting on them, to offend our brethren.

[Our Lord would rather work a miracle than allow Peter to offend, in not paying the tribute for himself and his master, after acceding to the demand. But he did not direct payment to be made for the other apostles, who might justly plead exemption, and for whom no engagement, as to payment, had been made.]

And thee. This was no especial compliment to that disciple himself—there was no single coin in circulation exactly equal to two drachmas, or the half shekel of the sanctuary.—See 'Scrip. Illus.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTION.

not to be hasty in acceding to unjust requirements: but when we have made engagements, let us if possible fulfil them.

[Lu. ix. 46. It was well that the dispute, as to which should be greatest, took place when our Lord was upon earth. Those are inexcusable who have continued it to our own day, as if our Lord had not settled it for ever—directing the strife to be, as to who should, in the humblest manner, serve the others most.]

PARALLELISM OF MATT. xviii. 1—9; MARK ix. 33—50; LUKE ix. 47—50.

(G. 14.)—The disciples ask Jesus, 'Who is the greatest?' &c.; Jesus questions them about their dispute; and, upon their making no answer, he proceeds, both by a significant action, and by word of mouth, to instruct them in humility, and to avoid causing offence.—See NOTE at foot.

MATT. xviii. 1—9.*	MARK ix. 33—50.	LUKE ix. 47—50.
1 [a]At the same time [εν εκειν τη ωρα] came the disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who [τις αρα] is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?[b]		[b] And Jesus, perceiving 47 the thought [διαλογισμον] of their heart,[c]
	33 [c]He asked them, What was it that ye disputed among yourselves by the way?
	34 But they held their peace: for by the way they had disputed among themselves,
	35 who should be the greatest. And he sat down, and called the twelve, and saith unto them, If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all, and servant of all.[d]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xviii. 1. Who is the greatest, &c.—The question, as the disciples here put it to Jesus, is somewhat different in form from that in which it had been discussed among themselves—it was, 'which of them should be greatest,' Lu. ix. 46, p. 72—That dispute they were rather ashamed to acknowledge, Mk. ix. 34, . . .—The Lord had before intimated, Mt. v. 19, § 19, p. 124, that those who do and teach the commandments of God 'shall be called great' according to the rule before given of God by his prophet, 1 Sa. ii. 30, 'Them that honour me I will honour; and they that despise me shall be lightly esteemed.'

NOTES.

Mt. xviii. 1. At the same time. Or, 'in that hour,' i. e., the same hour in which Peter had been confronted by Jesus, and effectually reproved by him, in being sent away to procure the tribute money, for which he had made his Lord a debtor.

[Came the disciples. Peter had before this come into the house—probably he had been the first to enter after his Master—the consequence of the preceding dispute having been, that either he took the first place among the disciples, or it was given him by their consent: they understanding by our Saviour's words, xvi. 17—9, § 50, p. 37, that such was his will. The severe reproof which immediately followed (ver. 23), would, however, throw some doubt upon the matter; and now this doubt would be increased by seeing Peter dismissed as they are entering. It is likely that Jesus spoke to Peter by himself, xvii. 25, yet there would be something in Peter's look which told them that he did not now think himself so high in his Lord's estimation as he previously had been in his own. That all the disciples were not engaged in the conversation that immediately ensued upon Peter's dismissal, appears from the fact, that it is not till after having asked concerning the subject of disputation, that Jesus calls the twelve together, as Mk. ix. 35. The disciples who were likely to enter immediately after Peter, and by whom it is probable the question was proposed, were James and John: these, as recorded Mt. xx. 20—.8; Mk. x. 35—45, we afterwards find making a request such as brings upon them the indignation of the other ten disciples, and gives occasion for our Lord to repeat much the same sentiment as that noticed, Mt. xviii. 4; Mk. ix. 35; Lu. ix. 48, last clause. That John had been already aiming at the exercise of undue authority, even beyond their own circle, is evident from his own account of himself, Mk. ix. 38, .9; Lu. ix. 49, 50.]

Who is the greatest? &c. The conjunction αρα in the original is not expressed by our common translation. It implies a connection of the question with something which had preceded. The words might have been rendered, who then (or therefore, or next) is greater in the kingdom? &c.—the meaning, If Peter is not, who then is greater?

[Lu. ix. 47. And Jesus perceiving, &c. Jesus saw something amiss in the spirit of his disciples, which had made them catch so readily at the evidence of Peter's fall, and perhaps secretly rejoice over the humbling he had met with. Some may have anticipated this, and so have been the less unwilling to allow him all that he claimed. If so, they required correction as much as Peter, and it was not without present occasion as well as future utility, that our Lord gave the admonition to avoid offences, and instructions regarding the manner in which Christians should deal with an erring brother, recorded more particularly by Matthew.]

Mk. ix. 33. What was it that ye disputed, &c. Jesus answers their question, Mt. xviii. 1, by asking this other, which points to that in which the present state of things originated, a striving for the mastery; the result of which appears to have been the presumption of Peter, in answering for his Lord without due authority, and his seeming degradation from the place he had chosen to occupy, and which may have been coveted by one or other of the inquirers.

35. Called the twelve, &c. By this it would appear that the previous conversation had not been with the body of the disciples, but with those who were accustomed to keep nearest to Jesus, such as James and John: who are generally mentioned after Peter in the lists of the apostles; and who, we afterwards find, did actually ask for places of honour in the kingdom.

PRACTICAL REFLECTION.

[Mk. ix. 35. The disciples are not to submit to those who put themselves forward as lords over God's heritage; but they are to shew their regard for their heavenly Master, by seeking out those who are like him, and receiving such in his name. In so doing, they receive him who is 'the Sent of the Father.'—He

* Mr. Greswell thinks this is a repetition of the transaction recorded by Mk. ix. 33; Lu. ix. 47—see ADDENDA, p. 80, 'On the dispute concerning precedence.' The parallelism of Mt. xviii. 1—9; Mk. ix. 33—50; Lu. ix. 47—50, is here given for convenient comparison; and Mr. Greswell's arrangement is preserved at sect. liii. p. 82.—See ADDENDA, p. 79.

MATT. xviii. 2—5.	MARK ix. 36—8.	LUKE ix. 47—,9.
2 [a] And Jesus called [b] a-little-child [c] unto him, and set him in the-midst of-them,	36 And he took a-child, and set him in the-midst of-them: [a] and when he had taken him in his arms ἐναγκαλισάμενος,	took a-child, and set him by him
3 and said, [f] Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.	he said unto them, [f]	and said unto them, 48
4 Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven.
5 And whoso shall receive one such little child in [ε] πι my name receiveth me. [g]	37 Whosoever shall receive one of such children in [ε] πι my name, receiveth me: [g] and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me. [h]	Whosoever shall receive this child in [ε] πι my name receiveth me: and whosoever shall receive me receiveth him that sent me: [h] for he that is least among you all, the same shall be great.
	38 And John answered him,	And John answered 49

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xviii. 2. little child—'Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein,' Mk. x. 15, § 74, p. 221—'As new-born babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby,' 1 Pe. ii. 2—'I have behaved and quieted myself (Heb. my soul), as a child that is weaned of his mother: my soul is even as a weaned child,' Ps. cxxxi. 2.

3. converted, &c.—Alluding probably to their contentions about 'which of them should be greatest,' Lu. ix. 46, p. 72—and from which they required to be turned; else they could not be given admission into the kingdom of God—for 'God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble,' Ja. iv. 6—The King of heaven delights to make the humble heart his throne, Is. lvii. 15, 'Thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy: I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones.'

4. humble himself—'Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up,' Ja. iv. 10.

Lu. ix. 48. Whosoever shall receive, &c.—This saying may have been in the first instance specially designed for those of the disciples who had, as is supposed, secretly begun to grudge the three favoured disciples their privileged familiarity with Jesus—see Mk. v. 37, § 36, p. 283; ix. 2, § 51, p. 52.

NOTES.

[Mt. xviii. 2. Called a little child, &c. The more forcibly to impress on their minds the truth he wishes to inculcate, our Lord employs the aid of example; here adopting a method of instruction always prevalent in the East, that by emblems and symbolical actions; a mode of conveying one's meaning, which having first been resorted to from the poverty of early language, was afterwards continued, from the advantage it possessed of forcible and vivid illustration; since none of the conceptions of the mind are so distinct as the direct impression of the senses. Of these symbolical and significant actions the writings of the Old Testament supply numerous examples; nor are they wanting in the New. Those of the former are generally of a prophetic character; those of the latter, partly vehicles of prophecy, partly of counsel and instruction. Those of our Lord are generally of the latter description; as when he washed his disciples' feet, broke the bread at the institution of the Eucharist, and breathed on them to represent the communicating to them the Holy Ghost.—And see Greswell on the Parables, Vol. II. p. 276—83.]

3. Except ye be converted, &c. Unless ye be changed from your ambitious desires.

As little children. 'The child, in the literal sense of the word, is the emblem of weakness, destituteness, ignorance, imperfection; the child, in the sense of the regenerate Christian, is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven; the richest in Christian graces; the most confirmed in spiritual strength, and the most advanced in spiritual improvement; the pattern of Christian loveliness; the acme of Christian moral dignity; in a word, the full grown man in Christ.'—Greswell.

5. Receive . . . in my name. Because he belongs to Christ. The word 'receive' means, to approve, love, or treat with kindness, to aid in the time of need.—See Mt. xxv. 35—40, § 86, p. 352.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mt. xviii. 2—4. The followers of Christ are to be simply desirous of obeying his call, like the little child whom Jesus placed in the midst of his disciples. He who can most divest himself of all vain assumption, and yield himself the most entirely to the disposal of Christ, will attain to honour; whilst those who have been more solicitous of putting themselves forward, than of manifesting the free grace of God, will be rejected.]

is the Apostle of our profession, and those who are like him form the true apostolic church. Intolerant bodies of men, who claim authority to tyrannize over the children of God, are not acknowledged by him, however the world may wonder after them.]

5 ver. Inasmuch as we are desirous of honouring our dear Lord, let us for his sake receive with love the weakest believer, and treat him with kindness.

TAKE MY YOKE UPON YOU, AND LEARN OF ME; FOR I AM MEEK AND LOWLY IN HEART: AND YE SHALL FIND REST UNTO YOUR SOULS.—Matt. xi. 29.

MATT. xviii	MARK ix. 38—42.	LUKE ix. 49, 50.
	saying, Master, we-saw one casting-out devils in thy name,	and-said, Master, we-saw one casting-out devils in thy name;
	[f] and-he followeth not us: and we-forbad ἐκωλύσαμεν him, because he-followeth not [g] us.	and we-forbad ἐκωλύσαμεν him, because he-followeth not [g] with us.
	39 But Jesus said, Forbid him not:	And Jesus said unto him, 50 Forbid him not:
	[f] for there-is no-man which shall-do a-miracle in ἐπὶ my name, that can lightly speak-evil-of me ταχὺ κακολογῆσαί.
	40 For he-that is not against us is on-our part. ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν.	for he-that is not against us is for us ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν. [Ch. ix. 51, § lix., p. 135.] [And see the foot-note, ibid.]
6 But whoso shall-offend one of-these little-ones which believe in me, it-were-better for-him that a-millstone were-hanged about his neck, [m] and that he-were-drowned in the depth of-the sea.	41 For whosoever shall-give-you a-cup of-water-to-drink in my name, because ye-belong-to Christ ὅτι χριστοῦ ἐστε, verily I-say unto-you, he-shall-not-lose his reward. 42 And whosoever shall-offend one of-these little-ones that-believe in me, it-is better for-him that a-millstone were-hanged about his neck, [m] and he-were-cast into the sea.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. ix. 38. we forbad him—So when two men, Eldad and Medad, prophesied in the camp, Nu. xi. 27—9, 'there ran a young man, and told Moses, and said, Eldad and Medad do prophesy in the camp. 28, And Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of Moses, one of his young men, answered and said, My lord Moses, forbid them. 29, And Moses said unto him, Enviest thou for my sake? would God that all the LORD's people were prophets, and that the LORD would put his Spirit upon them!'

39. Forbid him not—It is thus, an act of disobedience to Christ, to forbid man to do good in the name of Christ, because they do not belong to our company—see another instance of hastiness of spirit manifested by James and John, under the appearance of zeal for their Master's honour, when they were again checked and even rebuked by Jesus, Lu. ix. 54—6, § 59, p. 136.

Lu. ix. 50. he that is not against us, &c.—The apostle, writing from Rome, rejoiced in good being done, whether by those of his company or not: 'Notwithstanding, every way, whether in pretence, or in truth, Christ is preached; and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice,' Ph. i. 18—this is to be with Christ: who hath also said, 'He that is not with me is against me: and he that gathereth not with me scattereth,' Lu. xi. 23, § 62.

Mk. ix. 41. For whosoever shall give, &c.—'Whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward,' Mt. x. 42, § 39, p. 303—see also xxv. 40, § 86.

Mt. xviii. 6. offend, &c.—'Judge this rather, that no man put a stumblingblock or an occasion to fall in his brother's way,' Rom. xiv. 13—'It is impossible but that offences will come: but woe unto him, through whom they come!' Lu. xvii. 1, § 70, p. 206—'It is a righteous thing with God to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you,' 2 Th. i. 6.

NOTES.

Mt. xviii. 6. Offend. σκανδαλίσῃ, &c., shall cause to stumble, &c. Tempt them to sin, or lay obstructions in their way, and render it rough and difficult and thereby impede their progress in it.

One of these little ones. Meaning, Christians in general, namely, those of ordinary capacity and attainments; honest and sincere, though not highly-gifted believers.

A millstone. Μύλος is a millstone. 'Ονικὸς is added to indicate its being too large to be managed by the hand, and only by the assistance of an ass. Water corn-mills were not invented till a little before the time of Augustus. Windmills long after. The millstones of the ancients were sometimes turned by slaves or women (see ch. xxiv. 41, § 86, p. 342), but commonly by asses or mules. The expression is a

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mk. ix. 39. It was well that, not only the doctrine of pre-eminence, but that of exclusive authority to minister in the name of Jesus, was tried so early. Our Lord would not allow the apostles to forbid those who followed not with them, from doing good in his name. And it is remarkable that the transgressor in this case was 'the beloved disciple,' who had afterwards the same intolerance exercised toward himself, by Diotrephes, who loved 'to have the pre-eminence among them,' 3 Jno. ver. 9.]

41 ver. We are to be thankful for the least help given to the cause of God, and to receive such graciously, as does our Lord, who hath said of the givers, 'Verily, . . . he shall not lose his reward.'

[42 ver. Let those that would have the pre-eminence in the church, and who would forbid those that follow not with them, hear the words of our Lord, 'Whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea.'—See this sentence executed, Rev. xviii. 21.]

Mt. xviii. 6. Let us not despise those who have no other claim on us than that of being believers in Jesus; and let us be most careful not to say or do anything which would justly give them offence, or cause them to stumble in the way of righteousness. It were better to lose our own natural life than to injure the spiritual life of others.

IN MANY THINGS WE OFFEND ALL. IF ANY MAN OFFEND NOT IN WORD, THE SAME IS A PERFECT MAN, AND ABLE ALSO TO BRIDLE THE WHOLE BODY.—James iii. 2.

Matt. xviii. 7, 8.	Mark ix. 43—.6.	Luke.
7 Woe unto the world because of offences! for it must needs be ἀναγκη γαρ εστιν that offences come; but woe to that man by whom the offence cometh!
8 Wherefore if thy hand [a]	43 And if thy hand [a] offend thee, cut it off. it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell γέενναν, into the fire that never shall be-
	44 quenched: where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.
or thy foot offend thee, cut them off, [c] and cast them from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, rather than having two hands or two feet to be cast [b] into everlasting fire το πυρ το αιωνιον.	45 And if thy foot offend thee, cut it off: [c] it is better for thee to enter halt into life, than having two feet to be cast into hell, [b] into the fire that never shall be quenched: 46 where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xviii. 7. Woe unto the world because, &c.—'The name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles through you,' Rom. ii. 24—comp. Eze. xxxvi. 20—.3.—The very priests had caused many to stumble at the law, Mal. ii. 7, 8.—The Christian must ever speak and act so as not needlessly to offend the world, Rom. xii. 17, .8. 'Provide things honest in the sight of all men . . . As much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men'—2 Ti. ii. 24, .5, 'The servant of the Lord must not strive; but be gentle unto all men, . . . in meekness instructing those that oppose themselves; if God peradventure will give them repentance to the acknowledging of the truth.'

it must needs be, &c.—It had been predicted, Da. xi. 35, 'And some of them of understanding shall fall, to try them, and to purge, and to make them white, even to the time of the end'—and the apostle warns, 2 Ti. iii. 1—13, 'That in the last days perilous times shall come. 2. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, . . . 13. Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived.'

Mk. ix. 43. if thy hand offend thee, &c.—'Thy right hand,' &c., Mt. v. 30, § 19, p. 126. Under the law, Israel were to deny themselves to their nearest and dearest relatives, should they seek to draw them from the worship of the one true God, De. xiii. 6—11. And under the gospel no member of the body, however highly prized, is to be endured as setting at nought the precepts of the Saviour, 1 Co. v. 1—3, 12, .3.

44. where their worm, &c.—'And they shall go forth, and look upon the carcases of the men that have transgressed against me: for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched; and they shall be an abhorring unto all flesh,' Is. lxvi. 24.

45. thy foot, &c.—This language is sometimes used with regard to members of the church, 'For the body is not one member, but many. 15, If the foot shall say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body; . . . . 27. Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular,' 1 Co. xii. 14, .5, 27—Every individual Christian should keep his body in subjection to the law of Christ—Rom. viii. 13, 'For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye through figurative one for an immense stone. The punishment here alluded to, though not in use among the Jews themselves, was so among the Greeks, Romans, and the surrounding nations; where it was inflicted on criminals of the worst sort, especially parricides and those guilty of sacrilege. The custom seems to have grown into a proverb for dreadful and inevitable ruin.—See ADDENDA, p. 81, 'Drowned, &c.

NOTES

[Mt. xviii. 7. It must needs be that offences come. 'Ανάγκη γάρ ἐστιν ἐλθεῖν τὰ σκάνδαλα, for the coming of offences is unavoidable. Temptations to sin and stumblingblocks are inevitable, by reason of the wickedness, obstinacy, malice, inconstancy, and weakness of men; yet so terrible are the consequences of those offences, that it is better to endure the greatest deprivation or corporeal pain, than occasion them.]

Mk. ix. 43. Thy hand offend, &c. If one who is as useful or dear to thee as a hand or an eye, prevent thee from walking in the ways of God, or hinder thee therein, renounce all intercourse with him.

[44, .6. Their worm. 'This figure is clearly taken from Is. lxvi. 24, 'Scr. Ill.' In describing the great prosperity of the kingdom of the Messiah, Isaiah says that the people of God shall go forth, and look upon the carcases of men who have transgressed against God Their enemies shall be slain. The people of

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mt. xviii. 7. Woe indeed hath come unto the world because of the stumblings of the disciples of Jesus; the world hath not been able to distinguish between the truth, and the faults of those who profess the truth.]

[Because of the pride, contentions, uncharitableness, and miserable selfishness, prevailing among those who have professed the holy name of Jesus, the world hath been made to stumble and remain in darkness, destruction, and death.]

MATT. xviii. 9.	MARK ix. 47—50.	LUKE.
9 And if thine eye offend thee, pluck-it-out,	47 And if thine eye offend thee, pluck-it-out:
and cast it from thee: it-is better for-thee to-enter into life with-one-eye, rather-than having two eyes to-be-cast into hell fire.	it-is better for-thee to-enter into the kingdom of God with-one-eye, than having two eyes to-be-cast into hell fire
[Ver. 10, § liii., p. 82.]	τὴν γέενναν τοῦ πυρός:
	48 where their worm dieth not, and the fire
	49 is-not-quenched. For every-one shall-be-salted with-fire, and every sacrifice
	50 shall-be-salted with-salt. Salt is good:

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live'—1 Co. ix. 26, 27. 'I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; . . but I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway.'

Mk. ix. 47. if thine eye—'Thy right eye,' Mt. v. 29, § 19.—Ps. cxix. 37, 'Turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity; and quicken thou me in thy way.'

49. salted with fire—'The fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is,' 1 Co. iii. 13—'That the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ,' 1 Pe. i. 7—'Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you: but rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that, when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy,' iv. 12, 13—For those who refuse to suffer with Christ now, there remaineth 'a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries,' He. x. 27—'when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ,' 2 Th. i. 7, 8—'For, behold, the LORD will come with fire, and with his chariots like a whirlwind, to render his anger with fury, and his rebuke with flames of fire. For by fire and by his sword will the LORD plead with all flesh: and the slain of the LORD shall be many,' Is. lxvi. 15, 16.

every sacrifice . . . with salt—So under the law, Lev. ii. 13, 'Every oblation of thy meat offering shalt thou season with salt; neither shalt thou suffer the salt of the covenant of thy God to be lacking from thy meat offering: with all thine offerings shou shalt offer salt'—so also in prophecy, Ezr. xliii. 24. 'And thou shalt offer them before the LORD, and the priests shall cast salt upon them, and they shall offer them up for a burnt offering unto the LORD'—Jesus said to his disciples, 'Ye are the salt of the earth,' Mt. v. 13, § 19, p. 122—and before a people are signally given over to a reprobate mind and to destruction, they are generally as signally given an opportunity of salvation, by the Lord's sending his messengers among them: thus the old world was given warning by Noah, 'a preacher of righteousness,' 1 Pe. iii. 19, 20; 2 Pe. ii. 5—Sodom, before being consumed, was reproved by the presence of Lot, 6—8—and deliverance by the father of the faithful, Ge. xiv.—To Egypt Moses was sent, Ex. iii.—and before the removal of Israel, Elijah and Elisha were sent to give warning of their approaching doom, 1 Ki. xix.—And 'the LORD testified against Israel, and against Judah, by all the prophets, and by all the seers, saying, Turn ye from your evil ways, and keep my commandments and my statutes, according to all the law which I commanded your fathers, and which I sent to you by my servants the prophets,' 2 Ki. xvii. 13—Just before the Babylonish captivity, Isaiah, Jeremiah, &c., were sent to the Jews—so to Nineveh, see Jon. iii.—Our Lord's ministry was chiefly in Galilee and Jerusalem, which the most suffered in the wars with the Romans; and the Roman world, upon which the judgments of God were threatened to fall the most terribly, has been favoured with the most frequent, earnest, and long-continued calls to flee 'from the wrath to come'—This shews that past spiritual privileges are no guarantee for the future enjoyment of the like favours, but are rather an intimation of approaching trial.

NOTES.

God shall triumph. The figure is taken from heaps of the dead slain in battle; and the prophet says that the number shall be so great that their worm—the worm feeding on the dead—shall not die, shall live long, as long as there are carcases to be devoured; and that the fire which was used to burn the bodies of the dead, shall continue long to burn, shall not be extinguished till they are consumed. The figure, therefore, denotes great misery, and certain and terrible destruction. In these verses it is applied to the state beyond the grave, and is intended to denote that the destruction of the wicked will be awful, wide spread, and eternal. It is a mere image of loathsome, dreadful, and eternal sufferings. Of what that suffering will consist, it is probably beyond the power of any living mortal to imagine. The word "their," in the phrase "their worm," is used merely to keep up the image or figure. Dead bodies, putrifying in that valley, would be overrun with worms, while the fire was not confined to them, but spread to other objects, kindled by combustibles through all the valley.'—Barnes.]

[Mk. ix. 49. Every one shall be salted with fire. 'The full sense, then, seems to be this: "Every [believer] will be (or is) seasoned and prepared, by the fiery trials of this life, for eternal glory—even as every victim is seasoned with salt [for sacrifice]:" intimating, that the seasoning or preparation is as necessary to the purpose (i. e., final acceptance) in the one case as in the other. Thus our Lord means to say, that there is a ἀρμοσμὸς for every believer, which is as necessary to put him to the proof, as the seasoning is to the sacrifice. The seasoning was necessary to the victim, in order to purify it, and render it acceptable; and so is the moral seasoning necessary to those who are commanded to offer their bodies "a living sacrifice," Rom. xii. 1.'—Bloomf.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Mt. xviii. 8, 9. It is better to part with that which is most necessary to the well-being of the natural life, than to allow it to remain a hindrance to the spiritual good of ourselves or others.

[Mk. ix. 43—8. However needful or dear to us, as a hand, a foot, or an eye, an unscriptural assumption, such as apostolic succession or baptismal regeneration, may be, let us freely part with it, rather than partake of the sins of Babylon, and receive also of her plagues.]

Let us lay our account with the fiery trial, which every true disciple, in fully following the truth, must be willing to pass through. We cannot escape the fire—we must either endure the fiery trial, which is to try us, now—or we may expect to suffer hereafter the punishment of the fire which is not quenched.

LET YOUR SPEECH BE ALWAY WITH GRACE, SEASONED WITH SALT, THAT YE MAY KNOW HOW YE OUGHT TO ANSWER EVERY MAN.—Col. iv. 6.

MATTHEW.	MARK ix. 50.	LUKE.
	but if the salt have lost-his-saltness, where-with will-ye-season it? Have salt in your-selves, and have-peace one-with-another [Ch. x. 1, § lxxi. p. 209.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mk. ix. 50. salt is good—so Lu. xiv. 34 § 67, p. 185.

Have salt in yourselves—'Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men,' Mt. v. 13, § 19, p. 122.

have peace one with another—Let each be earnestly desirous of putting away corruption from his own heart, speech, and behaviour; and then we may successfully seek after peace one with another. 'The wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality [or, without wrangling], and without hypocrisy. And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace,' Ja. iii. 17, 18.

NOTES.

Mk. ix. 50. Have salt in yourselves. Have the preserving purifying principle always; the principle of denying yourselves, of suppressing pride, ambition, contention, &c., and thus you will be an acceptable offering to God.

Have peace. Avoid contention and quarrelling, struggling for places, honours, and office, and seek each other's welfare, and religion will be honoured and preserved in the world, and prove that you are indeed my disciples.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mk. ix. 49, 50. Let us not only be willing to die, as a sacrifice for the pure truth of the gospel, but in suffering, let us preserve the love of the brethren, as having the love of God in our hearts—this salt of the covenant must not be wanting, else all our sacrifices will be nothing worth.]

Before any one complain of the faults of others, let him examine his own heart and life, and see whether he has salt in himself.

[When the disciples of Christ possess each in himself the salt of the covenant, they may reasonably expect to enjoy 'peace one with another.']

ADDENDA.

ON THE IDENTITY OF MATT. xviii. 1—9: MARK ix. 33—50; LUKE ix. 47—50, p. 74.

Mr. Greswell supposes that what is recorded, Mk. ix. 33—50; Lu. ix. 46—50, took place previous to the disciples coming to Jesus with their inquiry, as reported Mt. xviii. 1. He regards this as a distinct and subsequent event, occurring after Peter's return from procuring the tribute money, whereas it may be the question of the disciples precedes that of our Lord. It is, however, worthy of remark, that Matthew, who alone takes notice of Peter being sent away, ch. xvii. 27, does not mention his return until after the discourse upon offences, when he is reported as coming unto Jesus, with the inquiry regarding forgiveness: a subject upon which, as we may well suppose, his mind had been much exercised while sent away to witness the evidence of that great truth which he had before confessed, ch. xvi. 16—8, § 50, p. 36—but now practically denied; and on account of which former confession, the words had been spoken which are supposed to have afforded ground for the doctrine of Peter's supremacy. Peter had in effect, ver. 22, p. 41, denied that Jesus was the Son of man, come into the world to suffer unto the death for the sins of men; and now he had practically denied that Jesus is the Son of God, from whom tribute was not due, but unto whom it should be paid. After having so repeatedly erred, and had such convincing proof that he required forgiveness, it was no wonder that Peter should return from his errand with such a question as that reported, ch. xviii. 21. Peter had now abundant evidence that Jesus is both the Son of God and the Son of man, who can command even the fishes of the sea to pay him tribute. The exceeding grace of God's beloved Son, in becoming our brother, and in exercising such forbearance and forgiveness to one so weak, so presumptuous, and so erring, must have touched Peter's heart, and made him feel that he also owed tribute to his Lord. And as Jesus had told him to express his desire or sense of the Divine forgiveness by forgiving others, it was natural for Peter, upon his return, to come, submitting himself to his Lord, acknowledging that he had a right to command him until seven, or a fulness of times. It was therefore not necessary that Peter should hear the preceding conversation, in order to come with such an inquiry. This inquiry is probably sufficiently accounted for by his own personal circumstances.

It is also to be noticed, that not only had the disciples come to Jesus after his being in the house, and subsequent to the withdrawal of Peter, ch. xvii. 25; xviii. 1—but that Jesus had, at the beginning of his discourse, called the twelve, or body of his disciples, together unto him, after which there is no notice of Peter until ch. xviii. 21, where he is spoken of as coming unto Jesus, which would not have been said if he previously had been in the company. In this case it would have been, 'Peter answered and said,' the same as of John, Mk. ix. 38; Lu. ix. 49, p. 75. It is the same evangelist who tells us of Peter's being sent away who notices his return, and previous to what is reported, Mt. xviii. 21, we have not from any of the evangelists the least intimation of his being present, from the time of his being sent out of the house immediately upon entering it, ch. xvii. 27, p. 73.

A difficulty has been supposed to exist in the seemingly different account given by Matthew and Mark respecting the origin of the conversation—but the difficulty vanishes when we interpose between the inquiry of the disciples and that of our Lord, the observation of the third evangelist, who accounts for our Lord's conduct on the occasion, by telling us that Jesus perceived the thought of their heart.

Our Lord, to whom all hearts are open, bids them look to the form in which the subject had been discussed among themselves; he speaks to the secret motives of his disciples, repelling the assumptions of the ambitious, and repressing the risings of envy or jealousy in all. At the same time he teaches them how to apply themselves to the remedy of such evils as had been threatening to rise up among them: so that they might remain in happy harmony among themselves, be powerful in prayer with God, and efficient in the work unto which they were called, as being sent, like their Lord, for the recovery of the lost. They were themselves dealt with according to the principle of free grace, and so were not to be rigidly exact in requiring all they might think due to themselves from others. According to this view, only the latter part of the discourse was delivered in the hearing of Peter, whose return and inquiry are noted, Mt. xviii. 21, p. 84.

Jesus, by his answer, gives abundant consolation to his repentant disciple—consolation not now alone needed by Peter—and as the result of such experience of weakness and failure on his part, and of forgiving grace on the part of his Saviour, he who was to take the most prominent part in the first promulgation of the gospel, is taught to exhibit that gospel in forbearance, forgiveness, gentleness, and LOVE.

FLEE . . . YOUTHFUL LUSTS: BUT FOLLOW RIGHTEOUSNESS, FAITH, CHARITY, PEACE, WITH THEM THAT CALL ON THE LORD OUT OF A PURE HEART.—2 Tim. ii. 22.

ON THE FIRST INSTANCE OF THE DISPUTE AMONG THE DISCIPLES CONCERNING PRECEDENCE.— Mark ix. 33—50; Luke ix. 46—50, and Matt. xviii. 1—9, p. 74.—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxix. pp. 464—81.

'As I have considered it necessary to detach, Mk. ix. 33—end, and Lu. ix. 46—50 (which, as far as it extends, is obviously the same with that) from Mt. xviii. 1—9, and much more from the remainder of this chapter; the grounds of the separation require to be distinctly stated. . . . .

'While our Lord, accompanied by the Twelve, was still on his way to Capernaum, but before they were actually arrived there, we learn, from the express testimony of St. Mark, and the implicit testimony of St. Luke, that a dispute occurred among them on the subject of pre-eminence; which, though known to Jesus at the time, he did not, however, think proper then to reprove.

'When they were come into the city, but not yet arrived at the house to which they were going in the city; we learn, from the account of St. Matthew (ch. xvii. 24), that the collectors of the didrachma applied to Peter, apart from Jesus, if not from the rest of the Twelve, with the inquiry, Doth not, or, will not, your Master pay the didrachma? . . . .

'When they were all come into private, before Peter had informed him of this application, and consequently, before any other business could have been transacted, our Lord shewed him, in the manner recorded Mt. xvii. 25—end, that he was already aware of it; and by Peter's own admission, who had so recently acknowledged him as the Son of God (ch. xvi. 16, § 50, p. 36), ought to have been considered by him exempt from a tribute imposed for the service of God. That he might not, however, give unnecessary offence, he sends him to the lake, to angle for a fish; in whose mouth he should find a stater: and with this he instructs him to pay the tax in Jesus' behalf and in his own. . . .

'It should be remembered that Capernaum, whence Peter was dispatched, was at some distance from the lake; that he had to go to the lake, and to return thence; and to find out the collectors of the tribute, and to discharge his commission to them, before he could come back to the house. There was room then for much to transpire in this house, during his absence, at which he could not possibly be present, at least throughout (v.) and something of this kind seems actually to have taken place.

'All the particulars, connected with the history of the tribute money, are related by St. Matthew only; whose account is such as clearly to imply that nothing else could have preceded in the house, after their arrival in it, this event. Yet St. Mark expressly, and St. Luke by implication, do each of them shew that, as soon as Jesus, with the disciples, was come into the house, he inquired about the subject of the dispute by the way. This inquiry, then, could not have preceded the departure of Peter; but took place either during his absence or after his return.

'Now the disciples, according to the same authority, though questioned by our Lord himself, made no answer to the inquiry as so put; because, as we are also informed, the subject of the dispute had been which was the greatest; that is, because, for some reason or other, they did not venture to acknowledge the subject of such dispute. But, according to St. Matthew, xviii. 1, either then or some time after, they came to Jesus of their own accord, to prefer the very same question. And if this fact should appear inconsistent with that, ver. 21, a little further on, may assist us to explain the inconsistency.

'Peter is there mentioned as present, and as a hearer of the discourse which had just been pronounced; a discourse which it is needless to observe arose solely and directly out of the question at xviii. 1, itself. If so, Peter must have been present when that question was put; and, consequently, he had executed his commission and returned to the house, before that question was put. When the disciples therefore were interrogated by our Lord himself, and made him no answer (which must have been almost as soon as they were got into the house), Peter would be away; when they came to him, with the same question, of their own accord, he must have been returned. . . . . .

'It is a singular fact, that up to this period of the gospel history there are no instances on record of any dispute among the followers of our Lord, upon the subject of their comparative personal superiority; but after the present period there are. It is not less singular that this first instance of such a dispute followed, at no great distance of time, upon the Transfiguration. At the Transfiguration three only of the apostles, Peter, and James, and John, were permitted to be present; and these had been strictly commanded to conceal the fact not merely from the knowledge of the world at large, but even from their fellow disciples, until the Son of man should be risen from the dead: a prohibition which, as St. Luke informs us, they were accordingly careful to observe.

'Now the Transfiguration was altogether so mysterious and remarkable a scene; it exhibited our Saviour in so novel, and so unexpected a character; it invested him with a personal glory and majesty, so different from his former habitual humiliation, that the privilege of being present at such a transaction must have appeared to the three disciples a very high distinction, conferred exclusively on themselves, and which the very injunction of secrecy consequent upon it could not fail to enhance in their estimation. To have been eye-witnesses of an event, and even to have taken some part in it themselves, which they were not permitted so much as to mention to others, could not be regarded in any other light.

'As therefore the disputes among the Twelve, on the subject of pre-eminence, begin to be dated from the time of the Transfiguration, but not before it; it is not an improbable conjecture that they were produced by the effect of that event itself, in disposing the three apostles, who had witnessed it, to believe that their Master's kingdom, such as they all expected, was now at hand; and consequently, that personal honours and advancements, of some kind or other, might safely be anticipated by them all. In this expectation each would be eager for the highest rank; and measuring the extent of their future, by the degree of their present distinctions, each would be anxious to appear and to be acknowledged the greatest. In all these instances, the point in dispute among them, whensoever it is stated, seems to be as much the question who was even then, as who should be hereafter, the greatest—comp. in particular Lu. xxii. 24 [§ 87], which is a case to the point. The four disciples, who, as we have seen, had private, antecedent reasons for holding together, might begin to take too much upon them in comparison of the rest. The natural ardour of the disposition of Peter is proved by his whole history; and that the sons of Zebedee, besides being persons of some rank and property originally, were by no means deficient in ambition, or in the desire of individual aggrandisement, appears from their memorable petition [Mit. xx. 20. || Mk. x. 35—.7. § 77], preferred some months after the present time.

'In every dispute then upon this subject, Peter and the sons of Zebedee, as we may presume, would take an active, and probably even a leading part. When therefore the disciples were questioned about their dispute, if Peter was absent, as it would appear he must have been, they might not, or they could not know what to reply. Nor would it be any objection to the supposition of his absence in particular, that the evangelist, proceeding to recount the discourse which our Lord delivered of his own accord, in consequence of their silence, tells us that he called to him previously, τοὺς δώδεκα. (Mk. ix. 35.) Ever after the appointment of the apostles, and so long as their number consisted of twelve, the phrase οἱ δώδεκα is a denomination equivalent to οἱ ἀπόστολοι; and as ordinarily employed means no more than that. After the fall of Judas, and before the substitution of Matthias, they are called on the same principle οἱ ἕνδεκα. It is not except in a special case, where a part of the whole body was expressly to be opposed to the rest, that the phrase οἱ ἕνδεκα occurs; as for instance, to discriminate the rest of the Twelve from the two sons of Zebedee. Now no such discrimination could possibly be here intended by St. Mark; for he makes no mention of the departure of Peter: and therefore in speaking of the Twelve could not use a term which would imply that he or any other of them was absent. There is a similar instance of the use of terms, Lu. xxiv. 33; 1 Co. xv. 5 [§ 95], compared with Jno. xx. 24 [§ ib.]. Besides, the discourse which follows, whatever it might be pronounced to be, was doubtless designed not for a part of them, but for all; and whether heard at the time by all, or not, would doubtless be repeated to all.

'Yet the act, which both by St. Mark and by St. Luke is distinctly attributed to John, I cannot help thinking is a proof, even in them, that Peter was absent. The material fact itself, the dispossession of spirits in the name of Jesus by one who followed not with them, is rendered sufficiently probable by Mt. xii. 27 [§ 31, p. 236], or Lu. xi. 19 [§ 62], which shews the practice of exorcism to have been common among the Jews in our Saviour's time; and it is confirmed by an instance of the fact in the case of the sons of Sceva, Ac. xix. 13, 4. Josephus has given an account of one Eleazar, a famous exorcist in the time of Vespasian (Ant. Jud. viii. ii. 5), and has described also a certain plant, which was to be found only at Machærus (Bell, vii. vi. 3), of great repute in such exorcisms. He confirms, too, the fact in his own time, or at least the popular belief in his own time, in the fact of the reality of demoniacal possession, and designates demons themselves as the spirits of wicked men.

'This interruption (for it must be regarded as one) taking place in the midst of our Lord's discourse, and almost as soon as he had begun to speak, was evidently made in the name of the body; and concerned a question relating to the rights and privileges, real or imaginary, of the apostolic body. That John therefore was the spokesman in this instance, and not Peter, which is contrary to every other case on record, is some ground for the presumption that Peter was not present at the time.

'It is not a less probable account of the origin of their own question, so soon after, that Peter might by then have returned; and been informed of what had passed in his absence. St. Matthew is express (ch. xviii. 1) that the question was put on the very same day upon which the incident occurred with respect to the tribute money; and not long after the mission of Peter himself. The phrase, ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ὥρᾳ, ἢν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ, is among the number of his idioms; as the phrase, ἐν αὐτῇ τῇ ὥρᾳ, ἢν αὐτῇ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ, is among those of St. Luke. He is equally express that it was put by the disciples of their own accord. It is evident from more than one instance of the fact in the gospel history, that, neither when travelling from place to place, nor when stationary in the same house, did the disciples approach indiscriminately to the person of their Master. Hence upon one occasion, as they were going up to Jerusalem for the last time, we find it accordingly specified that, ἦν προάγων αὐτοὺς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, καὶ ἐθαμβοῦντο, καὶ ἀκολουθοῦντες ἐφοβοῦντο (Mk. x. 32, § 77). Nor can we doubt that to this custom of the Master's always walking before, or at the head of the disciples—see also 2 Ki. ii. 3, 5—is to be traced the origin of that usual mode of designating the act of becoming a believer in, or a disciple of Christ, by following after him: and even of that highly mystical, though apposite and beautiful description of the relation between the Messiah and his true church, which takes up so much of the tenth chapter of St. John's Gospel: and in one of the most striking and characteristic of its circumstances, that of the Shepherd's walking to and fro at the head of his flock, and of the sheep's being taught to follow him, is derived from an actual fact in pastoral life among the Jews. The phrase, προσήλθον οἱ μαθηταί, is consequently to be literally understood; as implying that they came to Jesus formally, and for the express resolution of their own doubt.

'Besides this, however, the very terms in which the question is couched, are an internal, and almost a convincing evidence, that something had passed before, omitted indeed by St. Matthew, but obviously such as possibility as would thus be supplied by St. Mark. Classical readers need not to be reminded of the difference between these two propositions, τίς μείζων ἐστὶν, and τίς ἄρα μείζων ἐστὶν—ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τῶν οὐρανῶν; nor English readers of the plain distinction between saying, Who is greatest, and Who, then, is greatest, in the kingdom of heaven? Both would imply the same doubt, and both would solicit its solution: but the latter would also imply that something must have preceded, known both to the interrogators and to the person addressed, such as might have suggested the question, which the other would not. The particle ἄρα, in its proper inferential sense, is never useless, or without signification, either in the gospels or out of them; and the received translation having omitted it here altogether, is chargeable with an inaccuracy. If the disciples, having been previously questioned on a certain point by our Lord, without returning an answer, had subsequently resolved of their own accord to ask him about it; or if, without having been questioned concerning the point in dispute, yet knowing that he was aware of it, they had agreed to refer it to him: this is the very form of words with which they would be likely to approach him: Tell us, what then is the case—which then is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven? It is certain, however, from St. Mark's account, that no such reference as this could have voluntarily proceeded from the disciples, prior to any question of our Lord's: if it was made then at all—as it is equally clear from St. Matthew it must sometime have been made—it must have been a made subsequently to our Lord's question had been put; and consequently after what he did and said, when his question, though put, had met with no answer from them. And this point being once established, whatever account we may give of the origin of the subsequent question (which I think is sufficiently explained by supposing the return of Peter in the mean time, and his being made acquainted with what had passed in his absence), the entire distinctness of this part of St. Mark and of St. Luke, from any part of the eighteenth chapter of St. Matthew, follows as matter of course.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxix. pp. 464—77.

'DROWNED IN THE DEPTH OF THE SEA.'—Matt. xviii. 6, p. 76.

'Among the Greeks, sacrilege was punished by drowning: see Diod. Sic. xvi. 35. The first person so punished at Rome, was for an act of supposed impiety and profaneness; viz., M. Tullius, or M. Aquilius, in the reign of Tarquinius Superbus, because he had betrayed the secrets of the Sibylline books, committed to his care. For this he was sewed up in a sack, and thrown into the sea . . . . Probably because the Christians were considered ἄθεοι, profane, godless, in an eminent sense of the term; drowning with weights of lead, or with millstones about their necks, was the kind of death to which Christian martyrs were sometimes subjected. On the same principle, too, might many of the Jews have suffered, who were thus treated in the persecution under Antiochus Epiphanes and Antiochus Eupator, 2 Macc. xii. 3, 4.

'Parricides or matricides in particular were always so punished at Rome: being sewn up in sacks, with a cock, a dog, an ape, and a viper, and cast into the sea. The first person who underwent this death for the crime in question, among the Romans, according to Florus, was Publicius Malleolus, B.C. 102, for the murder of his mother. In like manner, spintriæ, and such as were guilty of unnatural enormities, were punished by drowning. Monstrous births, or children born with any unnatural deformity, were drowned at Rome.

'State prisoners were sometimes so executed in Persia. Augustus punished the pedagogi of his grandson, Caius Cæsar, and his other confidential attendants, for a breach of their trust, by hanging weights about their necks and drowning them. Avidius Cassius, in the reign of Marcus Aurelius, made drowning a military punishment. The poet Sotades was enclosed in a vessel of lead, and drowned for a satire on Ptolomey Philadelphus. Dio Chrysostom tells us, it was the law at Thasus to cast into the sea any thing inanimate that had been the means of a person's death. The Galileans testified their hatred of Herod by drowning his partisans in the lake of Galilee.'—Greswell, 'On the Parables,' Vol. II. p. 322.

BETTER IS THE POOR THAT WALKETH IN HIS INTEGRITY, THAN HE THAT IS PERVERSE IN HIS LIPS, AND IS A FOOL.—Prov. xix. 1. HE THAT GETTETH WISDOM LOVETH HIS OWN SOUL: HE THAT KEEPETH UNDERSTANDING SHALL FIND GOOD.—Prov. xix. 8.

SECTION 53.—(G. 15.)—[Lesson 50.]—THE DISCIPLES AGREE TO REFER THEIR DISPUTE TO JESUS; HE DISCOURSES TO THEM UPON THAT SUBJECT AS BEFORE: AND DELIVERS TWO PARABLES.—Matt. xviii. 1—35.—AT CAPERNAUM.*

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mt. xviii. 1—6. Christ's disciples must become like little children: the duty of receiving such, and the danger of causing them to stumble.

—— 7—9. We must be willing to part with whatever would be likely to prove an occasion of stumbling to ourselves.

—— 10. Jesus shews why his disciples should not offend one of these little ones.

1st. Because their angels do always behold the face of his Father.

2nd. Their redemption is so precious, that for this the Son of God came down from heaven.

—— 12—4. The parable of the lost sheep.

—— 15—7. Course to be pursued in cases of offence.

1st. Endeavour to recover the erring brother, without exposing his fault to another.

2nd. Should he refuse to listen to thee alone, take two or three more.

3rd. 'If he shall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the church.'

4th. Should he refuse to take counsel from the church, let him be as one not in fellowship with thee.

Mt. xviii. 18. Jesus again refers to the responsibility of his disciples in binding and loosing, inasmuch as what they upon earth do with regard to others, shall be done for themselves in heaven.

—— 19. The efficacy of united prayer.

—— 20. Where two or three are met in the name of Christ, He is in their midst.

—— 21. Peter comes to Jesus, asking how oft forgiveness may be extended to an offending brother—till seven times?

—— 22. Jesus says, 'until seventy times seven.'

—— 23—35. Jesus still farther opens the duty of believers in relation to each other, in the parable of the two servants who were both debtors; the one in a large sum to his lord, and the other of a trifling amount to his fellow-servant; the first, when loosed, binds his fellow-servant, and is himself again bound.

MATT. xviii. 1—35. [Ch. xvii. 27, § lii. p. 73.]

No. 53.—(G. 15.)—The disciples agree to refer their dispute to Jesus; he discourses to them upon the subject as before.—Matt. xviii. 1—13. Capernaum.

1 At the same time ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ὥρᾳ came the disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who τίς ἄρα
2 is the-greatest in the kingdom of heaven? And Jesus called-a-little-child unto him,
3 and-set him in the-midst of-them, and said, Verily I-say unto-you, Except ye-be-converted, and become as little-children, ye-shall- not-enter into the kingdom of heaven.
4 Whosoever therefore shall-humble himself as this little-child, the-same is greatest in 5 the kingdom of heaven. And whoso shall-receive one such little-child in ἐπὶ my 6 name receiveth me. But whoso shall-offend one of-these little-ones which believe in me, it-were-better for-him that a-millstone were-hanged about his neck, and that he-were-drowned in the depth of-the sea.
7 Woe unto-the world because-of offences! for it must needs be ἀνάγκη γάρ ἐστιν that-
8 offences come; but woe to that man by whom the offence cometh! Wherefore if thy hand or thy foot offend thee, cut them off, and cast them from thee: it-is better for-thee to-enter into life halt or maimed, rather-than having two hands or two feet to-be-
9 cast into everlasting fire τὸ πῦρ τὸ αἰώνιον. And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it-is better for-thee to-enter into life with-one-eye, rather-than having two eyes to-be-cast into hell fire.
10 Take-heed that ye-despise καταφρονήσητε not one of these little-ones; for I-say unto-you, That in heaven their angels do always διὰ παντὸς behold the face of-my Father 11 which is in heaven. For the Son of man is-come to-save that which-was-lost.
12 How think ye? if a man have an-hundred sheep, and one of them be-gone-astray, doth-
13 he not leave the ninety-and-nine, and-goeth into the mountains, and-seeketh that which-is-gone-astray? And if so-be that-he-find it, verily I-say unto-you, he-rejoiceth

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xviii. 10. despise not, &c.—so Rom. xiv. 1, 'Him that is weak in the faith receive ye,' &c. 3, 'Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not; and let not him which eateth not judge him that eateth,' &c. 10, 'Why dost thou judge thy brother? or why dost thou set at nought thy brother?'—1 Co. viii. 9, 'Take heed lest by any means this liberty of yours become a stumblingblock to them that are weak.'

angels, &c.—'Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation?' He. i. 14—see on Lu. i. 11, § 1, p. 3, &c.

11. come to save, &c.—so Lu. ix. 56, § 59, p. 136; xix. 10, § 80, p. 248; Jno. iii. 17, § 12; x. 10, § 55.

12. seeketh that which is gone astray—This first of the two parables in the present discourse, is illustrative of the first advent of Christ, as the second

NOTES.

[Mt. xviii. 10. Their angels. From this passage some have inferred, that every faithful servant of Christ has an angel constantly attached to his person, to superintend, direct, and protect him. The doctrine of guardian angels has prevailed more or less in every age of the church, and is certainly countenanced by this and several other passages of holy writ.

Behold the face, &c. i. e., Have access into the Divine presence. There is probably a reference in these words to the oriental custom by which monarchs are sequestered from the public view, and none admitted to see them but such as are in especial favour. —Comp. Lu. i. 19, the angel 'Gabriel;' 1 Ki. x. 8, and Est. i. 14.

11. For the Son of man is come, &c. The particle for in this verse introduces another reason to enforce the caution not to despise these little ones. Despise not any fellow-Christians, however humble; for the Son of man came to save lost and ruined men, without exception or distinction.

12. Goeth into the mountains. Into the mountain pastures, which abounded in Judæa, and were chiefly

PRACTICAL REFLECTION.

Mt. xviii. 11. Let us not despise even those who in the estimation of men are lost. Let us be followers of Him who came 'to seek and to save that which was lost,' Lu. xix. 10.

* On the first instance of dispute, &c., see § 52. p. 80, and for SCRIP. ILLUS., NOTES, and PRAC. REFLEC., on ver. 1—9, see pp. 74—8.

WE DO NOT GET FORWARD BY KEEPING OTHERS BACK; BUT BY ASSISTING THEM TO THE UTMOST IN GAINING THE PRIZE.

HE, THAT BEING OFTEN REPROVED HARDENETH HIS NECK, SHALL SUDDENLY BE DESTROYED, AND THAT WITHOUT REMEDY.—Prov. xxix. 1.

MATTHEW xviii. 14—9.

14 more of that sheep, than of the ninety-and-nine which went-not-astray. Even-so it-is not the-will of θελημα εμπροσθεν your Father which is in heaven, that one of-these little-ones should-perish.

15 Moreover if thy brother shall-trespass against thee αμαρτηση εις σε, go and tell-him-his-fault ελεγξον between thee and him alone: if he-shall-hear thee, thou-hast-gained

16 εκερδησας thy brother. But if he-will-not-hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in the-mouth of-two or three-witnesses every word may-be-established σταθη.

17 And if he-shall-neglect-to-hear παρακουση them, tell it unto-the church: but if he-neglect-to-hear the church, let-him-be unto-thee as an heathen man and a publican.

18 Verily I-say unto-you, Whatsoever ye-shall-bind on earth shall-be bound in heaven: 19 and whatsoever ye-shall loose on earth shall-be loosed in heaven. Again I-say untoparable, ver. 23—34, is of his second advent—see on the Keys of the Kingdom of Heaven, xvi. 19—28, § 50, pp. 39—43—Patience of the good Shepherd in seeking out the lost sheep, Lu. xv. 4—7, § 68, p. 189—as had been predicted with regard to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, Eze. xxxiv. 11—6, 'I, even I, will both search my sheep, and seek them out . . . I will seek that which was lost, and bring again that which was driven away,' &c.—also Je. xxxi. 8, 'Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and gather them from the coasts of the earth'—And Is. xli. 9, 'Thou whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, and called thee from the chief men thereof, and said unto thee, . . . I have chosen thee, and not cast thee away'—see § 51, p. 67, ADDENDA, 'Proph. concern. the Restor. of all Israel.'

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xviii. 13. rejoiceth, &c.—see the joy of the father at the recovery of the lost son, Lu. xv. 22—4, 32, § 68, p. 193, and comp. Je. xxxi. 20.

14. Even so, &c.—Lu. xii. 32, § 63—Jno. vi. 39, 40, § 43, p. 329—'Wherefore lift up the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees; and make straight paths for your feet, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way; but let it rather be healed,' He. xii. 12, 13—'And be ye kind one to another, tender hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you,' Eph. iv. 32.

15. if thy brother, &c.—'Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine heart: thou shalt in any wise rebuke thy neighbour, and not suffer sin upon him,' Le. xix. 17—'Let the righteous smite me: it shall be a kindness: and let him reprove me; it shall be an excellent oil,' &c. Ps. cxli. 5—'Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness,' &c. Ga. vi. 1.

gained thy brother—'He that winneth souls is wise,' Pr. xi. 30—'A wholesome tongue is a tree of life,' xv. 4—see also ver. 1, 2—'Brethren, if any of you do err from the truth, and one convert him,' &c., Ja. v. 19, 20.

16. two or three witnesses, &c.—see De. xix. 15—also Jno. viii. 17, § 55; 2 Co. xiii. 1; He. x. 28—'Against an elder receive not an accusation, but before two or three witnesses,' 1 TI. v. 19.

17. tell it unto the church—so upon the 'murmuring of the Grecians against the Hebrews,' 'The twelve called the multitude of the disciples,' and proposed removing the occasion of offence by the election of deacons, Ac. vi. 1—3—The apostle urges obedience to our Saviour's rule, of referring offences to the judgment of the church: 'Dare any of you, having a matter against another, go to law before the unjust, and not before the saints?' &c., 1 Co. vi. 1—4—Under Divine direction the church exercised authority not only over private members, but even with regard to apostles, Ac. xiii. 1—3.

let him be, &c.—'Mark them which cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine . . . such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple,' Rom. xvi. 17, 8—'Put away from among yourselves that wicked person,' 1 Co. v. 13—'Withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly,' 2 Th. iii. 6.

18. bind, loose, &c.—so to Peter, ch. xvi. 19, § 50, p. 39—It is done for us in heaven as we do to each other upon earth, Ps. xviii. 25, 'With the merciful thou wilt shew thyself merciful'—ver. 26, 'And with the froward thou wilt shew thyself froward'—'If ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you: but if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses,' Mt. vi. 14, 15, § 19, p. 133—see this principle of the Divine government afterwards illustrated in the parable of the king who took account of his servants, and who bound over for punishment him that had laid his fellow-servant in bonds, ver. 23—34, p. 84.

NOTES.

grazed by sheep. So Eze. xxxiv. 6, 'My sheep wandered through all the mountains,' and 2 Chr. xviii. 16.

Mt. xviii. 13. He rejoices more. We are not to infer from this similitude, that God sets more value, or looks with more complacency and approbation, on one repenting sinner, than on many righteous persons who have uniformly and devoutly served him. The meaning of the parable is, that God greatly delights in the conversion and salvation of men, and is at as much pains to reclaim them as a shepherd is to bring back a sheep that is strayed from his flock.

15. If thy brother shall trespass against thee. In this passage (ver. 15—.7) there are evident allusions to the laws and customs of the Jews, who, for the conviction of any offender, required the testimony of at least two witnesses (see ch. xxvi. 60—5, § 89, p. 427); and in the case of notorious and obstinate offenders, reproved them publicly before the synagogue. But the obvious meaning in regard to ourselves is, that even against those who have ill-treated and injured us, we should not immediately proceed to extreme severity and rigour; but first try the effects of private, gentle, and friendly admonition. (This should not be blazoned abroad. It can do no good. It does injury. It is what the enemies of religion wish. Christ is often wounded in the house of his friends; and religion, as well as an injured brother, often suffers by spreading his faults before the world.) If that fail, then call in two or three persons of character and reputation, to add weight and authority to our remonstrances; and if that has no effect, we are then justified in bringing the offender before the proper tribunal—to the particular congregation to which we belong; to be censured or punished as he deserves.

17. Let him be unto thee as, &c. It means that we should disown him as a christian brother, and treat him as we do other men not connected with the church.

18. Whatsoever ye shall bind, &c. It is said that the phrases to bind and to loose were Jewish, and most frequent in their writings. It belonged only to the teachers among the Jews to bind and to loose.

PRACTICAL REFLECTION.

Mt. xviii. 13, 4. We are to use all diligence in seeking to recover to the way of righteousness those that have formerly appeared to walk therein. We are not to take it for granted that because they have stumbled, it is the will of God they should fall, and be left to perish. 'It is not the will of your Father which is in heaven,' in whom yourselves have found mercy, 'that one of these little ones should perish.'

MATTHEW xviii. 20—.4.

you, That if two of-you shall-agree συμφωνησωσιν on earth as-touching any thing περι παντος πραγματος that they-shall-ask, it-shall be-done for-them of πατρα my Father which 20 is in heaven. For where two or three are gathered-together in my name, there am-I in the-midst of-them.
21 Then came Peter to-him, and-said, Lord, how-oft shall-'my brother'-sin against me, 22 and I-forgive him? till seven-times? Jesus saith unto-him, I-say not unto-thee, Until seven-times: but, Until seventy-times seven.

The parable of a king holding account with his debtors.

23 Therefore is-the kingdom of heaven likened unto-a-certain king, which would take 24 account of his servants. And when-'he'-had-begun to-reckon, one was-brought unto-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xviii. 19. if two of you shall agree, &c.—The offended brother was to take with him one or two more, in dealing with the offender, ver. 16, and they are to approach the case in the spirit of united prayer—so Jude 20—3, &c., 'praying in the Holy Ghost, 21, keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life. 22, And of some have compassion, making a difference: 23, and others save with fear,' &c.

20. in my name—Jesus promised his disciples, saying, Jno. xiv. 26, 'But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things,' &c.—The Holy Ghost teaches what to ask in prayer, Rom. viii. 26, 'For we know not what we should pray for as we ought: but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered'—Praying in the Spirit, or in the name, or by the power of Christ, we have the assurance of being heard—so Jno. xvi. 23, 4, § 87, 'Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you. Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name: ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full'—It is in the name of Christ that discipline should be exercised in the church, 1 Co. v. 4—13; and as in His presence the offender should be forgiven, 2 Co. ii. 10—Christ is the centre of unity in the body; in reference to which all the members are to be viewed, Eph. iv. 15, 6—'One body in Christ,' Rom. xii. 5.

21. seven times, &c.—The number of times in a day, mentioned, Lu. xvii. 4, § 70, p. 206.

22. Until seventy times seven, &c.—Da. ix. 24—'Seventy weeks (or seventy times seven, 490 years) are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression,' &c.—comp. He. ix.: such was the example of Divine forbearance: 'Put on therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercies,' &c., Col. iii. 12—5.

23. take account, &c.—This second parable in the discourse has a reference more particularly to the second advent of Christ, when the Lord will reward every man according to his works—see on the two keys, ch. xvi. 19—28, § 50, p. 39—'Every one of us shall give account of himself to God,' Rom. xiv. 12—'We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ,' 2 Co. v. 10—'Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap,' Ga. vi. 7—see § 50, p. 46, ADDENDA, on 'Rewards in general.'

24. ten thousand talents—'Of a talent of pure gold' was the candlestick with its furniture made, Ex. xxv. 39—the hill of Samaria was bought by Omri, king of Israel 'for two talents of silver,' 1 Ki. xvi. 24.

NOTES.

Mt. xviii. 19. If two of you, &c. This would be especially appropriate for two of the disciples of Christ met together for the purpose of reguiding an erring brother. A proper preparation for the work of reconciliation, is being ourselves agreed in prayer to God, our heavenly Father.

20. For where two or three are, &c. The reason of our success in prayer is, that Christ is one with us, and we one with Christ; and never more so than when seeking, in the spirit of humble prayer, and earnest longing love, for the recovery of the lost.

In my name. See 'Scrip. Illus.' supra.

There am 'I in the, &c. This is such a spiritual and efficient presence as implies Divinity, involving the attribute of omnipresence. Comp. ch. xxviii. 20, § 96.

21. Till seven times? Though seven was a number of perfection among the Hebrews, and often meant much more than the units in it imply; yet it is evident that St. Peter uses it here in its plain literal sense, as our Lord's words sufficiently testify. It was a maxim amongst the Jews to forgive only thrice.

22. Until seventy times seven. So that the duty of forgiving injuries has no limit; how frequently soever a Christian is injured, if real penitence and contrition follow the offence, he is always bound to forgive.—See PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

23. The kingdom of heaven likened, &c. The gospel dispensation, or the conduct of God therein, may be compared with that of a king in the following parable. God will deal with the members of his church, as a certain king did with his servants. He will call all to a strict account, and to the unmerciful he will shew no mercy.

Of his servants. His collectors of the revenues, or governors of provinces, who would have to pay a certain annual sum for their government, as is customary in Turkey and in the East. Hence the immense sum said to be due, which we may suppose would be in arrears, since in the East sometimes governors of provinces are deeply in arrears, and do not pay till compelled by an armed force.

24. Ten thousand talents. Namely, of silver; for in all numbers occurring in ancient authors, gold is never to be supposed, unless mentioned. Yet a vast sum in comparison with a hundred pence, and therefore well denoting the immense difference between our sins against God, and those of ourselves one against another.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mt. xviii. 19, 20. Disagreements among God's children hinder their prayers from being heard; but he will hear the unanimous cry of his people, praying, in the Spirit, in the name of Him whom 'the Father heareth alway.']

[21, 22 ver. It may be worthy of remark, that the 'seventy times seven,' or 'seventy weeks,' was the number determined upon the Jews themselves, during which the Divine forbearance would not be exhausted; but after, upon the expiration of the seventy weeks, or four hundred and ninety times, they were given up to blindness of eye and hardness of heart.]

The readiness of God to grant our requests should greatly prevail upon us to accede to the reasonable requests of our brethren.

[Although God is long-suffering, yet is there a limit to his forbearance, as in the case of the Jews, so may there be to ours; but if we stay our irreconcilable temper until we have reached the measure of our Divine pattern, we never can indulge therein.]

MATTHEW xviii. 25—35.

25 him, which-owed οφειλετης-him ten-thousand talents. But forasmuch-as he had not to-pay, his lord commanded him to-be-sold, and his wife, and children, and all that he-26 had, and payment-to-be-made. The servant therefore fell-down, and-worshipped him, saying, Lord, have-patience with me μακροθυμησον επ' εμοι, and I-will-pay thee all.
27 Then the lord of-that servant was-moved-with-compassion, and-loosed him, and forgave 28 him the debt. But the same servant went-out, and-found one of- his -fellow-servants, which owed him an-hundred pence: and he-laid-hands-on him, and-took-him-by-the 29 throat επνιγε, saying, Pay me that thou-owest. And his fellow-servant fell-down at his 30 feet, and-besought him, saying, Have-patience with me, and I-will-pay thee all. And 31 he would not: but went and-cast him into prison, till he-should-pay the debt. So when-his fellow-servants -saw what was-done, they-were- very -sorry, and came and-told 32 διεσαφησαν unto their lord all that was-done. Then his lord, after-that-he-had-called him, said unto-him, O-thou-wicked servant, I-forgave thee all that debt, because thou-33 desiredst me: shouldest not thou also have-had-compassion-on ελεησαι thy fellow-34 servant, even as I had-pity-on thee? And his lord was-wroth οργισθεις, and-delivered him to-the tormentors, till he-should-pay all that was-due unto-him.
35 So-likewise shall- my heavenly Father -do also unto-you, if ye- from your hearts - forgive not every-one his brother their trespasses. [Ch. xix. 1, ℣ lxxi. p. 209.]

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Mt. xviii. 27. loosed him, &c.—see the loosing exemplified in the Jewish remnant, Ezr. ix. 8, 9, 'And now for a little space grace hath been shewed from the LORD our God, to leave us a remnant to escape, and to give us a nail [or, a pin: that is, a constant and sure abode] in his holy place, that our God may lighten our eyes, and give us a little reviving in our bondage. For we . . . bondmen; yet our God hath not forsaken us in our bondage,' &c.—15, 'O LORD God of Israel, thou art righteous: for we remain yet escaped, as it is this day: behold, we are before thee in our trespasses: for we cannot stand before thee because of this'—see also Ps. lxxviii. 38.

30. And he would not—The Jews had been mercifully dealt with, Ho. i. 7, yet they refused to shew mercy to even the Holy One and the Just; and that although 'Pilate was determined to let him go,' Ac. iii. 13—5.

34. his lord was wroth, &c.—Paul, speaking of the Jews, says, 1 Th. ii. 15, 16, 'Who both killed the Lord Jesus, and their own prophets, and have persecuted us; and they please not God, and are contrary to all men: forbidding us to speak to the Gentiles that they might be saved, to fill up their sins alway: for the wrath is come upon them to the uttermost'—as our Lord predicted, Mt. xxiii. 35, 36, &c., § 85, p. 319.

35. So likewise, &c.—see on 'bind, loose,' &c. ver. 18, p. 84—Pr. xxi. 13, see border, p. 86—'He that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity: he that killeth with the sword must be killed with the sword,' Rev. xiii. 10—'Just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints,' xv. 3—see on Mt. vi. 15; vii. 12, § 19, pp. 133, 9—'God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ according to my gospel,' Rom. ii. 16—In that day only those will be acknowledged to have been believers who, in their tempers, disposition, and conduct have made confession of the truth—comp. Mt. x. 32, 3, § 39; xvi. 27, § 50; xxv. 34—46, § 86.—One of the first lessons taught in the gospel, according to which we are to be judged, is forgiveness, Eph. iv. 32, 'Be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.'

NOTES.

Mt. xviii. 25. Commanded him to be sold, and his wife, &c. A custom for the satisfaction of creditors, which, how cruel soever we justly esteem it, was in early ages established by the laws of many countries, in Europe as well as Asia, republican as well as monarchial.—See Ex. xxii. 3; Le. xxv. 39—47; 2 Ki. iv. 1.

28. An hundred pence. The Roman denarius was equivalent to seven pence halfpenny; consequently a hundred denarii would be about 3l. 2s. 6d. sterling.

Took him by the throat. The Greek word πνιγω is here used in its proper signification; for when a man is taken by the collar, and haled along against his will, he is in danger of being strangled. Perhaps no word more fully expresses the meaning of πνιγω than the Anglo-Saxon term throttle: it signifies (like the Greek) to half choke a person by seizing his throat.

34. To the tormentors. To the jailers or keepers of the prison. βασανιστης properly denotes examiner, particularly one who has it in charge to examine by torture. Hence it came to signify jailer, for on such, in those days, did this charge commonly devolve. They were commanded, by any means, and by every kind of cruelty, to extort payment from the wretched debtor. And if he had nothing, to wrest the sum owed from the compassion of his relatives and friends; who, to release an unhappy creature for whom they had a regard, from such extreme misery, might be induced to pay the debt: for the person of the insolvent debtor was at the disposal of the creditor.

Till he should pay all. Which, from its great amount, could never be. Consequently, as Mr. Gresswell observes, the punishment was eternal, so far as that which can never cease to be inflicted while it is capable of being endured, may be said to be so.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Mt. xviii. 23—34. The justice of God took effect upon the Jews at the time of their being delivered up into captivity under the Babylonians. But forasmuch as they made submission unto him whom they had offended, and craved release, it was so far granted unto them, and the debt was not immediately charged upon them. As, however, after their return they manifested the most intolerant and unforgiving spirit, persecuting those who offended against them with the most relentless fury, we see that the sentence hath been put into execution: 'His lord was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors, till he should pay all that was due unto him.' Nor can the Jews be now released until they accept of the punishment of their iniquity, Le. xxvi. 43; Is. liii. 3—8.]

[By the judgment which hath, before all eyes, so long lain upon the once favoured people, the Jews, we are sufficiently warned, that God will most certainly call the Christian world to account for the use made of the far greater favours—the richer display of grace, given under the present dispensation. May we be prepared to render our account with joy.]

24, 8 ver. As an hundred pence is as nothing compared with ten thousand talents, great indeed is the disproportion between that for which we have to forgive our brother, and that for which we require to be ourselves forgiven of God.

35 ver. All that has happened to the self-righteous and persecuting Jews, is for warning to us, and we are to know that we want the sign of being ourselves forgiven of God, if we from the heart 'forgive not every one his brother their trespasses.' As living thus in practical denial of the gospel, we are as unprepared for the second advent of our blessed Redeemer, as the Jews were for the first. Let us seek that in that day it may be found, that we have indeed from the heart obeyed the gospel.

ADDENDA.

ON THE CONCLUSION OF TWO YEARS AND A HALF OF JESUS' MINISTRY.

'We have brought down the history of the ministry in Galilee, through a period of nearly two years and six months—to the arrival of the third feast of Tabernacles; and the whole of this period we have seen to be so fully occupied, that we may conclude we possess, in its history, a continuous outline, if not a particular detail, of the course and succession of events. During the first year there was no proof of any chasm in this continuity, except for the interval between the first feast of Tabernacles, and the second feast of the Passover; which yet, we had apparently good reason to believe, was filled up either by a studied privacy, such as the occasion required, or by a stationary abode in Capernaum. During the second year there was no proof of any interruption whatever; it was full of action and employment throughout. The same observation holds good of the first two months of the third: and the remaining four, belonging to the first half of this year, were passed as before, either in an intentional seclusion, or in a residence of greater or less continuance at Capernaum.

'In this period upon the whole we have discovered clear evidences of three general,* and at least two partial,† circuits—the two last of the general, and each of the partial, within the compass of the same year; and the first of the general during the first six months of the year before it. All these were begun originally from Capernaum, and all were terminated finally at Capernaum, and all were confined to the precincts of Galilee. The ministry of our Lord, during the whole of this period, was so strictly limited to Galilee, that, excepting the single occasions when he visited Jerusalem, we have no proof that he was ever out of it; we have no proof that he once crossed the lake before the middle of his second year [§ 34, Mt. viii. 18—28]; nor that he visited Decapolis, Tyre, or Sidon, or journeyed in the dominions of Philip, as such, before the beginning of his third [§ 45, Mt. xv. 21]; nor even then expressly and formally for his usual purposes of teaching or preaching, but rather for the sake of privacy and concealment. In like manner we have no proof, at least from the first three gospels, that he was ever in Perœa, until he is described as passing thither in the course of his last journey to Jerusalem, [§ 71, Mt. xix. 1, 2]; nor that he was ever in Samaria except on the two occasions, Jno. iv. 4 [§ 13], early in his first year, and Lu. ix. 52 [§ 59], late in his third.‡

'During the first half of the third year in particular, though it may be assumed as certain that, almost the whole of the time, our Lord was constantly journeying from place to place, yet it is also certain that he was not journeying upon a circuit; or, strictly speaking, with a view to the usual functions of his ministry at all: so that we have no proof as yet of any fourth circuit within this period, similar to those which had preceded in the two former years. Different as our Lord's conduct, for thus much of the present year, may consequently seem in comparison with his conduct heretofore, it is not more so than in comparison with his conduct for the remainder of this year itself: a circumstance which proves indisputably that he had motives for desiring the concealment of his person, and suspending the course of his ministry, affecting this portion of its duration, but none before or after it.

'These motives, it is probable, were twofold; partly to escape from the excitement of the multitude on what had been hitherto the exclusive theatre of his personal agency; lest the accumulated effect of so many wonderful works, combined with their own ardent, but unfounded hopes and expectations, now grown more enthusiastic than ever, should lead them to some rash act, such as openly casting off the Roman yoke, and declaring Jesus their king: partly to avoid the society of his enemies, the Scribes and Pharisees, who had long been resolved upon his death, and waited only for a favourable opportunity of effecting it. Hence it was that, for a considerable interval of time, he continued to travel in parts where he was comparatively a stranger, and possibly might not be recognised; whither also the Pharisees were not likely to follow him: or if they did, where they would have less influence than in Galilee or in Judæa. The effect of a protracted absence might be to abate the ardour, and to diminish the expectations, of the common people, on the one hand, and to dispense with the necessity of preserving his life, from the malice and machinations of his enemies, by supernatural means, on the other. It was the least of two evils to abstain, for a time, from coming in contact with his adversaries, and exasperating their hostility to its utmost pitch, until the purposes of the Divine Providence were ripe for execution, instead of suffering those purposes to be prematurely accelerated, or of frustrating the ebullitions of sudden violence by actual recourse to miracle. With the last six months, however, of the present year; that is, from the time when the review of our Lord's ministry previously has been brought to a close; the period was either arrived, or at hand, during which the course of external events, considered as the instrumental or secondary means, by which the same Providence designed to work in the gradual consummation of its own effects, was to be so controlled and accelerated as to terminate naturally in his death. With the arrival of this period, then, the season of temporary precaution or concealment was past, and our Lord had no longer any measures to keep with his enemies: and it will be seen accordingly that he again appears in public, even among those whom he had hitherto seemed most to avoid, with more openness, regularity, and boldness, than he had ever assumed before.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. pp. 379—82.

* First,—No. 18, Mt. iv. 23—5; Mk. i. 35—9; Lu. iv. 42—4. Second,—No. 30, Lu. viii. 1—3. Third,—No. 38, Mt. ix. 35; Mk. vi. 6.

† First,—No. 26, Mt. xii. 15—21; Mk. iii. 7—12. Second.—No. 39, Mt. xi. 1.

‡ See ADDENDA, Sect. lix. p. 138—on Luke ix. 52.

☞ 'The course of events, from this period forward, is to be computed from Jno. vii. 2 [§ 54]; and will be found to be regularly carried onwards by him as far as ch. xi. 54 [§ 58]; where, in like manner, it will be perceived to be taken up by Lu. ix. 51 [§ 59]; by whom also it will be carried forward to xviii. 15, where his account will be finally rejoined by Mt. xix. 13, Mk. x. 13 [§ 74]; and after an interval of almost six months, all will proceed in conjunction (St. John likewise, from ch. xi. 55, in its proper place) [§ 81], to the close of the Gospel History.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. p. 378.

SECTION 54.—(G. 16.)—[Lesson 51.*]—UPON THE APPROACH OF THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES, THE BRETHREN OF JESUS ADVISE HIM TO SHEW HIMSELF IN JERUSALEM.†—John vii. 2—9. AT CAPERNAUM.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Jno. vii. 2—5. Upon the approach of the feast of tabernacles, Jesus is bid, by his unbelieving brethren, to go into Judæa, and shew himself openly.

—— 6—9. Jesus intimates his knowledge of danger in connection with his approaching visit to Jerusalem—danger, however, which they had no occasion to fear, and from which he was himself for the present to be delivered. Having thus spoken, he remains still in Galilee.

No. 54. At Capernaum.

JOHN vii. 2—9. [Ch. vii. 1, § lii. p. 71.]

2 Now the Jews' feast of tabernacles ἡ σκηνοπηγια was at-hand. 3. His brethren therefore said unto him,‡ Depart hence, and go into Judæa, that thy disciples also may-see 4 θεωρησωσι the works that thou-doest. For there is no-man that doeth any-thing in secret, and he-himself seeketh-to-be known-openly. If thou-do these-things, shew thyself to-the 5 world. For neither did-his brethren-believe in him. 6, Then Jesus said unto-them, 7 My time is-not-yet-come: but your time is alway ready. The world cannot hate you;

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. vii. 2. feast of tabernacles—On the fifteenth day of the seventh month, Le. xxiii. 34—when, during seven days, the children of Israel dwelt in booths made of boughs and branches of trees, &c., in commemoration of their dwelling in booths when delivered out of Egypt, ver. 40—4; Ne. viii. 14—8—The feast was to begin, on the fifteenth, with a burnt offering of thirteen young bullocks, &c.—and these were gradually to decrease in number, one each day, until on the seventh day there should be only seven, Nu. xxix. 12—34, and ver. 35—' On the eighth day ye shall have a solemn assembly: ye shall do no servile work therein:' the offering then, as on the tenth of the same month, being only one bullock, &c., ver. 35—9. comp. ver. 7—11—The feast of tabernacles was one of the three great festivals appointed to Israel under the law, a time of great rejoicing, De. xvi. 13—7—and one of the two spoken of, Eze. xlv. 21—5—Being after the gathering in of the fruits of the earth, it is called 'the feast of ingathering'—see Ex. xxiii. 16; xxxiv. 22—In Rev. xiv. are described, not only the first fruits, ver. 4, but also the harvest, ver. 16, and vintage, ver. 19, when will be the feast of tabernacles previously described, ch. vii. 9—17, and afterwards adverted to, xxi. 3, 4—see also on this future solemnization of the feast of Tabernacles, Zec. xiv. 16—9.

3. His brethren—see Mt. xii. 46, § 31, p. 240; xiii. 55, § 37, p. 287.

Depart hence—He had for some time confined his ministry to Galilee, ver. 1, § 52, p. 70.

into Judæa—see ver. 1, fb.

that thy disciples—This may have been said sneeringly, inasmuch as in Galilee many of his disciples had gone back from following him, ch. vi. 66, § 43, p. 334.

may see the works—It is stated, ch. ii. 23, § 12, p. 82, that, 'when he was in Jerusalem at the passover, in the feast day, many believed in his name, when they saw the miracles which he did.'

4. shew thyself to the world—As he passed through Galilee, 'he would not that any man should know it,' Mk. ix. 30, § 52, p. 70—Yet Jesus acted openly when in Jerusalem at this very feast, Jno. vii. 14, &c., § 55, p. 91—Jesus himself said to the high priest, Jno. xviii. 20, § 89, p. 426—' I spake openly to the world'—see of Paul, Ac. xxvi. 26.

5. neither did his brethren believe—see Mk. iii. 20, .1, § 30, p. 233—where they are heard saying, 'He is beside himself'—and Ac. i. 13, .4, they are found associating with the disciples.

6. My time, &c.—so to his mother, previous to turning the water into wine, at the marriage in Cana, ch. ii. 4, § 11, p. 77—On 'his hour,' see viii. 20, p. 101.

7. cannot hate you—' If ye were of the world, the world would love his own,' ch. xv. 18, § 87, p. 390—He had before said to his disciples, Lu. vi. 26, § 27, p. 208, 'Woe unto you, when all men shall speak well of you!' &c.—so James iv. 4, 'Know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God?'

NOTES.

Jno. vii. 2. The feast of tabernacles. Called the pitching of tabernacles, from the tents or booths which on that occasion were erected in and about Jerusalem, and designed to commemorate the dwelling of the Israelites in tents in the wilderness, Ne. viii. 14—8. It was one of the three feasts which every male Israelite was obliged to attend.—See 'Scrip. Illus.' supra, and ADDENDA, p. 89.

3. Brethren. It is probable that as yet our Lord's brethren did not believe him to be the Messiah, nor attend upon him as his disciples—see ver. 5.—See ADDENDA, § 37, p. 290, 'On the brethren of our Lord.'

4. No man . . . doeth any thing in secret, &c. The general sense here is apparent from the context; render, 'No one doth any thing great in secret, who himself desireth to be in publicity and notoriety.'

6, 7. My time is not yet. Not meaning 'the time of his death,' as some understand, but the time of his

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. vii. 2, 3. The disciples of Jesus may well lay their account with being misunderstood and misrepresented by the world, when even the blessed and holy Jesus, who had wrought so many miracles, was thus taunted by his own brethren.

4 ver. How difficult is it for the natural man to appreciate the motives that actuate the child of God! Jesus, in doing good in secret, and not for the purpose of display, was but exemplifying his own doctrine.

* Lesson 51, in the 'System of Graduated Simultaneous Instruction,' embraces Sect. 54 and part of Sect. 55, or Jno. vii. 2—viii 1.

† See Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. XXX. pp. 482—516, on the supplementary relation of Jno. vii. 2—xi. 54, to the first three gospels; and see ADDENDA, p. 88.

‡ 'This remonstrance is to be ascribed to the fact, that they knew him to have been absent from Judæa, and from Jerusalem in particular, for some time past.'—Greswell, Vol. II. p. 250. See ADDENDA, p. 88.

KEEP THY HEART WITH ALL DILIGENCE; FOR OUT OF IT ARE THE ISSUES OF LIFE.—Prov. iv. 23.

PUT AWAY FROM THEE A FROWARD MOUTH, AND PERVERSE LIPS PUT FAR FROM THEE.—Prov. iv. 24.

JOHN vii. 8, 9.

8 but me it-hateth, because I testify of it, that the works thereof are evil. Go-∙ ye ∙-up unto 9 this feast: I go-∙not ∙-up ∙-yet unto this feast; for my time is-∙not-yet ∙-full-come. When-he-had-said these words unto-them, he-abode still in Galilee.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. vii. 7. but me it hateth—see the parable of the nobleman and servants, Lu. xix. 14, § 80, p. 218—so Jesus, to his disciples, when about to leave the world, Jno. xv. 18, § 87, 'If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you'—on the sin and inexcusableness of this hatred, see 21, .5.

because I testify, &c.—so Pr. xv. 12, A scorner loveth not one that reproveth him: neither will he go unto the wise'—so the prophet, Am. v. 10, 'They hate him that rebuketh in the gate, and they abhor him that speaketh uprightly'—see also on Jno. iii. 19, 20, § 12, p. 86—and Jesus' testimony, when last in Jerusalem, Jno. v. 40—.7, § 23, p. 180—and to certain scribes and Pharisees which came from Jerusalem, Mt. xv. 1—20; Mk. vii. 1—23, § 44, pp. 4—11.

NOTES.

going up to the feast at Jerusalem, and manifesting himself publicly. See ver. 8. 'An∙ time and manner will be suitable for you to go there: you have nothing to fear.' The reason is intimated in the verse following, where the natural form of expression would be, 'I cannot go thus publicly, because of the hatred of a world whose ways and works I have reproved; but they have no such reason to hate you.'—Bloomfield.

Jno. vii. 7. I testify of it. I bear witness against it.

8. I go not up yet. Jesus assigns a sufficient reason for delaying his attendance, in the danger to which he would be exposed by going up too openly, or too soon. He chose to remain behind until the multitude had gone up, that there might be no appearance of parade or ostentation.

PRACTICAL REFLECTION..

Jno. vii. 5—9. Those who are hated of the world, because they testify of it, that the works thereof are evil, must use discretion in their public appearances, that so the greatest amount of good may be accomplished with the least damage to the cause of truth.

ADDENDA.

ON THE SUPPLEMENTARY RELATION OF JOHN VII. 2—XI. 54, TO THE FIRST THREE GOSPELS.—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxx. pp. 482—516.

'The gospel of St. John, which, after the close of ch. vi. [§ 43, p. 334], and the general statement contained in vii. 1 [§ 52, p. 71], resumes the thread of its accounts with the conversation between our Lord and his brethren, vii. 3—9 [p. 87], at a time when the feast of tabernacles was just at hand, vii. 2, resumes it either with the return of Jesus to Capernaum, Mt. xvii. 24; Mk. ix. 33; Lu. ix. 46 [§ 52, p. 72], or with his residence there, subsequent to the return, and before the arrival of the feast. . . . .

'St. John resumes the gospel history where the former evangelists had, for a time, suspended it, and consequently in this instance, as well as in others, has written with a view to supply the omissions of his predecessors, so he continues it down to the time where they had resumed it again; and, therefore, has so supplied those omissions, that what he has added of his own is an exact measure of what was deficient in them. . . . .

'The ultimate cause of the admonition [Depart hence, ver. 3] was the fact of his continued absence from Jerusalem, for the last eighteen months. . . . .

'The reply of our Lord, ver. 8, does not, as it has been falsely represented, assert that he should not go up to the feast at all, but merely that he should not go up yet; and he assigns a sufficient reason for delaying his attendance, in the danger to which he would be exposed by going up too openly, or too soon. He suffered his brethren, therefore, and, perhaps, even his apostles, to set out, the usual time, before him; and when all had been some time gone, he set out, and arrived, himself οὐ φανερῶς, ἀλλ' ὡς ἐν κρυπτῷ, ver. 10. . . . . [§ 55].

'The feast of tabernacles began on the fifteenth of Tisri, and lasted from thence, for eight days in all, to the twenty-second inclusively, Lc. xxiii. 34—.9; Nu. xxix. 12—38; 2 Chr. vii. 8—10. Yet, De. xvi. 13—.6; Le. xxiii. 40—.2; Ne. viii. 18; Eze. xlv. 25, the feast as such is specified as a feast of seven days only, and the dwelling in booths, peculiar to it, is similarly also restricted. We must consider, therefore, the feast as such to have extended only from the fifteenth to the twenty-first of the month, inclusively; and the Jews, as we shall see by and by, always understood it accordingly. The middle day between these extremes would, consequently, be the eighteenth—and, ἐν δὲ τῇ ἐσχάτῃ ἡμέρᾳ τῇ μεγάλῃ τῆς ἑορτῆς, Jno. vii. 14, our Lord first appeared in the temple: a description of the time, however, which is not so determinate as critically to denote the middle day exactly, but also either the day before that, the seventeenth, or the day after it, the nineteenth; though, perhaps, one of those days it must denote.

'We may suppose, then, our Lord would set out from Capernaum about the fourteenth of Tisri, and arrive in Jerusalem about the sixteenth. . . . .

'To judge from the practice of our Saviour, at other times, when he resorted to the temple for the purpose of teaching, as at vii. 14, he resorted thither about the usual period of the morning service—that is before πρωΐ, and passed the remainder of the day in the temple.'—Greswell, Vol. II. pp. 482—.6.

'Among the other circumstances which transpired at this feast, our Saviour is represented as alluding to some past, but some well known, event—and that, clearly, a miracle performed by himself—as the cause of all the hostility which had begun, and still continued, to be entertained against him. Now, with regard to this miracle; the matter of fact itself; the consequences ascribed to the fact; the parties addressed; the drift of the reasoning employed upon it; the circumstances before and after this point of time in the narrative; demonstrate it to be some individual, and specific, miracle; wrought upon the spot; wrought in the cure of an infirm person; wrought upon some sabbath day; and followed by a resolution, on the part of the Jews, grounded upon this fact more particularly, to take away the life of him who had performed it: all which criteria meet together in the history of the miracle recorded at John v. 1—16 [§ 23, pp. 175, .6,] as performed at the pool of Bethesda; performed on the man who had been thirty-eight years in his infirmity; performed on a sabbath, and followed by a special determination, on the part of the rulers of the Jews, for this supposed contempt of the sabbath, to effect the destruction of Jesus.

'To this miracle our Saviour is now referring: which being the case, if the miracle was performed at the time of the feast, ch. v. 1, and is referred to, for the first time, here, at the feast of tabernacles, UNTO YOU, O MEN, I CALL: AND MY VOICE IS TO THE SONS OF MAN.—PROV. VIII. 4.

BY ME PRINCES RULE, AND NOBLES, EVEN ALL THE JUDGES OF THE EARTH.—PROV. VIII. 16.

ch. vii. 2, one conclusion appears to me irresistible: This was the first time, since the performance of it, when there was an opportunity of referring to it: our Lord, and the people of Jerusalem, had never met again, from that period until this, when they met again at the feast of tabernacles.' . . . .—Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. pp. 251, .2. 'On the Ministry in Judæa.'

'The use we may make of the reference in question is consequently this; that our Lord had never been present in Jerusalem, attending upon any feast, between the time of the festival, Jno. v. 1, and the time of the feast of tabernacles, ch. vii. 2; a conclusion demonstratively certain of the feast of the passover, ch. vi. 4 [§ 40, p. 311], which is one of the number; and that upon independent grounds: first, from the testimony of the other evangelists, each of whom records the first miracle of feeding, as well as St. John, and all of whom shew how our Lord was employed before and after it:—secondly, from the declarantion of St. John himself, ch. vii. 1, that, "After these things" (meaning the discourse in the synagogue of Capernaum, only a day ór two later than the miracle, and, consequently, also before the passover) "Jesus walked in Galilee; for he would not walk in Judæa, because the Jews were seeking to kill him."—Ibid, p. 253.

'Now, between the passover, Jno. vi. 4 [§ 43, p. 311], and the feast of tabernacles, vii. 2, there would be an interval of six months at least, during which our Lord could not have been in Jerusalem: and if the feast, referred to at ch. v. 1 [§ 23, p. 175], was a passover also, between that and the passover, ch. vi. 4, there would be an interval of at least twelve months more: so that for eighteen months at least, between the feast, Jno. v. 1, and the feast of tabernacles, ch. vii. 2 (during which there would be five different legal solemnities, viz. the Pentecost, Tabernacles, and Encænia, of the first twelve months, and the Passover, and Pentecost, of the last six), our Lord could not once have been up to Jerusalem.' . . . .—Ibid, p. 254.

'It is a remarkable fact, that after so long and systematic an absence from Jerusalem, as eighteen months before the feast of tabernacles, Jno. vii. 2, our Lord attended every feast, for the next six months, in its order. These attendances come in, it is true, to supply an entire, or at least a partial, blank, for the same length of time, in the other gospels. But, what is also remarkable, these six months are the last six months of his ministry—beginning at the feast of tabernacles, and expiring at the feast of the passover: which being the case, the reason of the fact must be sought for in the moral of the parable of the barren fig-tree, Lu. xiii. 6—9 [§ 64, p. 174]; and will from that be found to have been due to some necessity, more especially incumbent on our Saviour, for the concluding period of his ministry, to be diligent both in Judæa, and out of Judæa, with a view either finally to convince the Jews, and bring about the national repentance and conversion, or, at least, to leave them without excuse to the ultimate consequences of an invincible unbelief.'—Ibid, p. 260.

THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES.

(It commenced on the 15th Tisri (October), the first month in the civil year, and continued in all eight days, from the 15th to the 22nd inclusive.)

'It was instituted to commemorate the dwelling of the Israelites in tents [booths] while they wandered in the desert, Le. xxiii. 34, 43. Hence it is called by St. John the feast of tents, σκηνοπηγια, Jno. vii. 2. It is likewise termed the feast of ingathering, Ex. xxiii. 16; xxxiv. 22. Further, the design of this feast was, to return thanks to God for the fruits of the vine, as well as of other trees, which were gathered about this time, and also to implore his blessing upon those of the ensuing year. The following were the principal ceremonies observed in the celebration of this feast:—

'1. During the whole of this solemnity they were obliged to dwell in booths, Ne. viii. 16; Le. xxiii. 42.

'2. Besides the ordinary daily sacrifices, there were several extraordinary ones offered on this occasion, which are detailed in Nu. xxix. 12—34.

'3. During the continuance of this feast, they carried in their hands branches of palm-trees, olives, myrtles, and willows, Le. xxiii. 40; Ne. viii. 15, * singing "Hosanna, save, I beseech thee!" Ps. cxviii. 25, in which words they prayed for the coming of the Messiah. These branches also bore the name of Hosanna, as well as all the days of the feast. In the same manner was Jesus Christ conducted into Jerusalem by the believing Jews, who, considering him to be the promised Messiah, expressed their boundless joy at finding in him the accomplishment of those petitions, which they had so often offered to God for his coming, at the feast of tabernacles, Mt. xxi. 8, 9, § 82, p. 263. During its continuance, they walked in procession round the altar with the above-mentioned branches in their hands, amid the sound of trumpets, singing Hosanna; and on the last or seventh day of the feast, they compassed the altar seven times. This was called the Great Hosanna. To this last ceremony St. John probably alludes in Rev. vii. 9, 10, where he describes the saints as standing before the throne, "clothed with white robes, and palms," &c.

'4. One of the most remarkable ceremonies performed at this feast every day, both morning and evening, in the later period of the Jewish polity, was the libation or pouring out of water, drawn from the fountain or pool of Siloam, upon the altar. As, according to the Jews themselves,† this water was an emblem of the HOLY SPIRIT, Jesus Christ applied the ceremony and the intention of it to himself, when he "cried, saying, If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink," Jno. vii. 37, 2, see p. 55.

'In the last day, that great day of the feast, ch. vii. 37, the Jews fetched water from that fountain in a golden pitcher, which they brought through the water-gate into the temple, with great rejoicing. The officiating priest poured it, mixed with wine, upon the morning sacrifice, as it lay on the altar, see on ver. 37. Water was offered to God this day, partly in reference to the water which flowed from the rock in the wilderness, 1 Co. x. 4, but chiefly to solicit the blessing of rain on the approaching seed-time.

'No festival was celebrated with greater rejoicings than this, which Josephus calls "a most holy and most eminent feast."‡ Dancing, music, and feasting were the accompaniments of this festival, together with such brilliant illuminations as lighted the whole city of Jerusalem.'—Horne's Introd. Vol. III. pp. 315—.7.

'We may conclude, that the rejoicing and thanksgiving, enjoined at this festival on account of the harvest, were chiefly, if not wholly, appropriated to the eighth day. And it is observable that they were commanded to dwell in booths no longer than the seven days, a circumstance which shows that the eighth day was not observed on the same account as the seven preceding.'—Jennings's Jewish Antiquities, p. 364.

'In every seventh year, at this feast, the law of Moses was also read in public, in the presence of all the people, see De. xxxi. 10—2, "At the end of every seven years, in the solemnity of the year of release, in the feast of tabernacles, 11, when all Israel is come to appear before the LORD thy God in the place which he shall choose, thou shalt read this law before all Israel in their hearing. 12, Gather the people together, men, and women, and children, and thy stranger that is within thy gates, that they may hear, and that they may learn, and fear the LORD your God, and observe to do all the words of this law: 13, And that their children, which have not known any

* 'Lamy adds, that the Jews tied these branches with gold and silver strings, or with ribands, and did not lay them aside the whole day; carrying them into their synagogues, and keeping them by them while they were at their prayers.'

† 'The sense of the Jews is in this matter plainly shewn by the following passage of the Jerusalem Talmud:—"Why is it called the place or house of drawing? because from thence they draw the Holy Spirit: as it is written, And ye shall draw water with joy from the wells of Salvation."'

‡ 'Ant. Jud. lib. viii. c. 4. § 1. The greatness of these rejoicings, and their happening at the time of vintage, led Tacitus erroneously to suppose that the Jews were accustomed to sacrifice to Bacchus.'

THE MORE A TREE OF RIGHTEOUSNESS IS SHAKEN BY THE WIND, THE MORE IT IS ROOTED IN CHRIST.
IT IS BETTER TO BE IN THE HUMBLE POSTURE OF A MOURNER, THAN WITH THE PROUD GESTURE OF A SCORNER.

thing, may hear, and learn to fear the LORD your God, as long as ye live in the land whither ye go over Jordan to possess it."

'The drawing of the water out of the pool of Siloam, &c., is said to have been done with such expressions of joy, that it became a common proverb, "He that never saw the rejoicing of drawing water, never saw rejoicing in all his life." To this ceremony our Saviour is supposed to refer, "If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink. He that believeth on me, as the scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water;" Jno. vii. 37, .8, p. 95; thereby calling off the people from their carnal mirth, and festive and pompous ceremonies, to seek spiritual refreshment for their souls. The Jews pretend to ground this custom on the following passage of Isaiah, "With joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation," ch. xii. 3. This libation was performed every day of the feast, at the time of the morning sacrifice; but the greater part of their rejoicing on that occasion was adjourned till evening; when a wild and ridiculous scene of mirth was acted in the court of the temple, by those who were esteemed the wise men of Israel, namely, by the elders and members of the Sanhedrim, the rulers of the synagogues, and doctors of the schools, and such others as were most honoured for their age and piety. All the temple music played, and these old men danced, while the women in the balconies round the court, and the men on the ground, were spectators. All the sport was to see these venerable fathers of the nation skip and dance, clap their hands and sing; and they who played the fool most egregiously, acquitted themselves with most honours: for in this they pretended to imitate the example of David, who "danced before the LORD with all his might;" and said, "I will yet be more vile than thus, and will be base in mine own sight," 2 Sa. vi. 14, 22. In this manner they spent the greater part of the night, till at length two priests sounded a retreat with trumpets. This mad festivity was repeated every evening, except on the evening before the sabbath which fell in this festival, and on the evening before the last and great day of the feast. It seems, these two evenings were accounted too holy for such ridiculous gambols.'—Ibid. p. 367.

SECTION 55.—(G. 17—20)—[Lesson 51, *continued.]—AFTER THE DEPARTURE OF HIS BRETHREN, JESUS HIMSELF SETS OUT TO GO TO JERUSALEM: OPINIONS OF THE JEWS REGARDING THE CHARACTER OF JESUS, AND THE PROBABILITY OF HIS COMING TO THE FEAST. ABOUT THE MIDDLE OF THE FEAST JESUS APPEARS IN THE TEMPLE, AND TEACHES. PARTICULARS OF THE LAST DAY OF THE FEAST, THE TWENTY-FIRST OF THE JEWISH TISRI. PARTICULARS OF THE FOLLOWING DAY, TISRI, THE TWENTY-SECOND, AFTER JESUS IN THE MORNING RETURNS TO THE TEMPLE.—John vii. 10—x. 21.—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxiii. pp. 250—.61, 'On the Ministry in Judæa,' and ibid. Diss. xxx. pp. 482—516, 'On the supplementary relation of John vii. 2—xi. 54, to the first three Gospels.'†

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Jno. vii. 10. When his brethren are gone, Jesus also goes up unto the feast; but so privately, as to prevent all occasion of tumult on his account.

—— 11—.3. A search made for Jesus at the feast—a difference of opinion respecting him—his friends are withheld from publicly acknowledging him.

—— 14, .5. Jesus, in the midst of the feast, appears in the temple, and that in the most public manner—the Jews are astonished at the extent of his knowledge.

—— 16—.8. Jesus declares that his teaching proceeds immediately from God—that any one truly desirous of doing the will of God shall know this; he also lays down the rule according to which we should judge whether a man's teaching be from himself, or from God: in the former case, he will seek his own glory; in the latter, that of Him who sent him.

—— 19. He adverts to their want of conformity to the will of God, as revealed by Moses; and questions their motive for going about to kill him.

—— 20. They accuse him of having a devil, and question the truth of the charge he had brought against them.

—— 21—.4. Jesus shews their partiality, in charging him with a breach of the sabbath on account of healing a man, whilst they themselves performed circumcision on that day.

—— 25—.7. He is recognised by some of the people of Jerusalem, as being the person who was indeed sought for, to be killed. They wonder at the boldness of his present appearance, accusing the rulers of a want of vigilance, in allowing him this freedom without being sure that he is the very Christ.

—— 28, .9. Jesus expressively declares his true humanity, and his Divine mission.

—— 30. Some seek to take him, but his hour is not yet.

—— 31. Many of the people acknowledge that his miracles are sufficiently numerous to comport with the idea of his being THE CHRIST.

—— 32. The Pharisees hear that such things are murmured concerning him; and they and the chief priests send officers to take him.

Jno. vii. 33, .4. Jesus tells them that his stay with them is yet to be for a little prolonged, when he will depart, and they will seek for their Messiah in vain; and fail of reaching the place unto which he is about to withdraw.

—— 35, .6. The Jews wonder if he will go to the dispersed among the Greeks, and become their instructor, so that they should not be able to find him. NOTE—To the dispersed among the Greeks, and in the Greek language, were primarily sent forth those rivers of living water, to which Jesus now calls our attention.

—— 37—.9. On the last, the great day of the feast, Jesus earnestly invites to the Fountain of life, promising to the believer the power of sending forth rivers of living water; which promise was to be realized in the gift of the Holy Spirit, upon Jesus being glorified.

40—.2. Many of the people conclude that he is the Prophet, spoken of by Moses. Others think him the Messiah, promised in the Psalms. Others start an objection, that in this case, he ought to be of the seed of David, and born in Bethlehem, which they take for granted he is not.

—— 43, .4. A division among the people—some are disposed to apprehend him, but no one lays hands on him.

—— 45, .6. The officers return to the chief priests, &c., and acknowledge the power of his discourse.

—— 47—.9. The Pharisees prejudge his case, accusing him of deceiving the people, whom they pronounce accursed; proposing themselves at the same time as standards of orthodoxy.

—— 50, .1. Nicodemus questions the propriety of their thus judging a matter before hearing it.

—— 52. They turn upon Nicodemus with words of reproach, as if he also were of Galilee; and bid him search and see that he had no ground to look for a prophet from that quarter.

—— 53; viii. 1. The council breaks up: each goes to his own house, Jesus to 'the mount of Olives.'

* Lesson 51 in the System of Graduated Simultaneous Instruction,' includes John vii. 2—viii. 1, § 54, and part of § 55. † See ADDENDA, § 54, p. 83, supra.

THERE IS NO SIN SO LITTLE AS NOT TO KINDLE AN ETERNAL FIRE:

ITS FIRST-BORN IS DEATH, AND ITS LAST STATE IS HELL.

(G. 17.)*—After the departure of his brethren, Jesus himself sets out to go to Jerusalem: opinions of the Jews as to the character of Jesus, and probability of his coming to the feast.

No. 55. JOHN vii. 10—.3. Line from Capernaum to Jerusalem.

10 But when his brethren were gone up, then went he also up unto the feast, not 11 openly, but as it were in secret. Then the Jews sought him at the feast, and said, 12 Where is he? And there was much murmuring among the people concerning him: for some said, He is a good man: others said, Nay; but he deceiveth πλανᾷ the people.
13 Howbeit no man spake openly of him for fear of the Jews.

(G. 18.)—About the middle of the feast Jesus appears in the temple, and teaches. ‡

JOHN vii. 14—30. Jerusalem.

14 Now about the midst of the feast Jesus went up into the temple, and taught. 15 And the Jews marvelled, saying, How knoweth this man letters, having never learned?
16 Jesus answered them, and said, My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me. 17 If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether

[a] Or, some indeed said. [b] Or, scripture; or, learning. [c] Or, be determined to.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. vii. 11. the Jews sought, &c.—see xi. 56, § 81.

12. murmuring, &c.—ver. 43, p. 96. 'There was a division among the people because of him.'—Again, ix. 16—22; x. 19—21, pp. 110, ..7.

some said—The multitude took him for a prophet, Mt. xxi. 46, § 84, p. 291—see the disciples' report of the opinions respecting him, xvi. 14, § 50, p. 36—many had concluded that he was 'a great prophet,' Lu. vii. 16, § 29, p. 222—yea, 'that Prophet that should come into the world.'—See on Jno. vi. 14, § 41, p. 317.

a good man—see on 'Good Master,' Mt. xix. 16, § 75, p. 223—The principal accusation against him, hitherto, was that of not refraining from doing good on the sabbath day, Mk. iii. 1—6, § 25, pp. 185—..8. deceiveth the people—This was the report of the priests, Mt. xxvii. 63, § 92, p 477.

13. fear of the Jews—'The fear of man bringeth a snare,' Pr. xxix. 25—This fear influenced the parents of the man that had been born blind, Jno. ix. 22, p. 111—and even some of the chief rulers, xii. 42, § 85, p. 310—such as Nicodemus, iii. 2, § 12, p. 83—and Joseph of Arimathæa, xix. 38; Mk. xv. 43, § 92, p. 474—both of whom, however, ultimately surmounted that fear, Jno. xix. 39, th. p. 475.

14. midst of the feast—The day on which ten bullocks were appointed to be offered, Nu. xxix. 23—.5.

15. marvelled—so at his appearance in the temple, when twelve years old, Lu. ii. 47, § 6, p. 41—also when he began to preach in his own country, iv. 22, § 15, p. 104; Mt. xiii. 54, § 37, p. 286—His disciples were afterwards marvelled at on the same account, Ac. ii. 7.

How knoweth, &c.—Jesus had already told them, ch. v. 20, § 23, p. 177, 'The Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things that himself doeth.'—See again, viii. 28, p. 103.

16. My doctrine, &c.—see on ver. 15; iii. 11, § 12, p. 84; 31 .2, § 13, p. 90—and viii. 28—38, pp. 103, ..4; xii. 49, § 85, p. 312; xiv. 10—24, § 87, p. 382.

17. his will, &c.—The Father had declared his will; even that the words of 'that Prophet' should be listened to, De. xviii. 18, .9—that they should receive his instructions, and put their trust in him, Ps. ii. 10—2. . . .—the Father had declared his will on the holy mount, Mt. xvii. 5—'Hear ye him,' § 51, p. 55—and the apostle saith, 'This is the will of God, even your sanctification,' 1 Th. iv. 3.

shall know, &c.—Much of this blessedness of obedience to the will of God consists in a clear under-

NOTES

Jno. vii. 10. Then went he also up, &c. It is probable he set off on the first day of the feast, and reached Jerusalem in the evening of the third day, not making his appearance till the middle of the feast, which lasted eight days.—See ADDENDA, p. 88.

11, .3, .5. The Jews. i. e., the rulers of the Jews.

12. Much murmuring. 'Much whispering.' The word in the original means such an expression of opinion as is not intended to be publicly heard. See ver. 13, and comp. ver. 32, p. 94.

13. No man spake openly of him. His enemies were not silent; but his friends had not confidence to speak what they really thought. There are many such 'friends' of Jesus in the world.

14. About the midst of the feast. 'To judge from the practice of our Saviour at other times, when he resorted to the temple for the purpose of teaching, he resorted thither about the usual period of the morning service; that is, before noon; and passed the remainder of the day in the temple.'—Greswell.

The temple. See ADDENDA, § 1, p. 8 'The temple,' and § 82, p. 270.

16. My doctrine. My teaching, or what I teach. This is the proper meaning of the word here translated doctrine.

Is not mine. 'Is not mine alone.'

[His that sent me. As much as to say, 'I do not proceed upon any authority or power distinct from that of the Father: my plans and actions are inseparable from his; my doctrine, works, and glory are his, and his are mine: the union is perfect and indissoluble.'—Bloomf.]

17. If any man will do his will, &c. i.e., if any man wills to do the will of God—has his will brought into subjection to the Divine will—so that his desire is to know that will in order that he may do it—to any one

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. vii. 10—.3. Those who think of Jesus merely as a good man, may not be expected to risk all for him, as should those who truly believe in Him as 'the Christ, the Son of the living God.'

14, .5 ver. They leave much out of account, who make no allowance for the teaching of God.

[16 ver. May those who are sent of Christ be able to say with him, 'My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me.' Let us ever be earnestly desirous of having our own minds brought into conformity with the Divine mind, that God may freely make use of us for the communication of his will to men.]

* Some commentators suppose that Luke ix. 51—62, should precede this visit to Jerusalem, but which Mr. Greswell places after the Feast of Dedication and the raising of Lazarus. See Sect. 59, p. 135.

† 'This uncertainty of the Jews, especially of the Jews of Jerusalem, is most naturally accounted for by supposing them aware that he had not been at any of the feasts for some time past.'—Greswell, Vol. II. p. 251.

‡ See ADDENDA, p. 88, fifth paragraph, first column, commencing 'The feast of tabernacles began,' &c.

THE WICKED FLEE WHEN NO MAN PURSUETH: BUT THE RIGHTEOUS ARE BOLD AS A LION.—Prov. xxviii. 1.
THE TONGUE OF THE WISE USETH KNOWLEDGE ARIGHT: BUT THE MOUTH OF FOOLS POURETH OUT FOOLISHNESS.—Prov. xv. 2.

JOHN vii. 18—20.

18 I speak of myself:[a] He that speaketh of himself[b] seeketh his own glory: but he that seeketh his glory that sent him, the same is true, and no unrighteousness ἀδικια is in him.

19 Did not Moses give you the law, and yet none of you keepeth τον νομον the law? Why 20 go ye about to kill me? The people answered and said, Thou hast a devil:[c] who goeth-

[a] Or, from myself. [b] Or, from himself. [c] Or, demon.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

standing of Divine revelation, Ps. xix. 9—11. . . . 'The judgments of the LORD are true and righteous altogether. 10, More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb. 11, Moreover by them is thy servant warned: and in keeping of them there is great reward.'—Submission to the Father prepares for the teaching of Christ, Jno. vi. 29, § 43, p. 327, 'This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent.'—ver. 45, ib. p. 330, 'Every man . . . that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me.'—To obey God, in being conformed to him who was meek and lowly, is the way to become truly wise, Ps. xxv. 9, 'The meek will he guide in judgment: and the meek will he teach his way.'—Mt. xi. 25—30, § 29, p. 227, 'I thank thee, O Father,' &c., 'Come unto me,' &c.—Blessed communion with God is given unto those who obey him; Jno. xiv. 23, § 87, Jesus answered, 'If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.'

Jno. vii. 18. speaketh of himself—The apostle could say, 2 Co. iv. 5, 'We preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the LORD; and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake.'—Neither did he speak from himself, 2 Co. ii. 17, 'For we are not as many, which corrupt [or, deal deceitfully with] the word of God: but as of sincerity, but as of God, in the sight of God speak we in Christ.'

his own glory—Jesus said, ch. v. 41, § 23, p. 180, 'I receive not honour from men.'—ver. 44, ib., 'How can ye believe, which receive honour one of another, and seek not the honour that cometh from God only?'—so ch. viii. 50, p. 107, 'I seek not mine own glory,' &c.—so the apostle, Ph. ii. 3, 'Let nothing be done through strife or vain-glory:'—1 Th. ii. 6, 'Nor of men sought we glory, neither of you, nor yet of others.'—The king of Assyria, in seeking his own glory, was put to shame, Is. xxxvii.—as had been predicted, ch. x.—see also the case of Hezekiah, ch. xxxix.—of Nebuchadnezzar, Da. iv.—of the hypocrite, Mt. vi. 2, 5, § 19, p. 131—the scribes and the Pharisees, xxiii. 5—7, 12, § 85, p. 313.

19. Did not Moses give you the law?—Ex. xxiv. 3, 4, . . . 'Moses came and told the people all the words of the LORD, and all the judgments: and all the people answered with one voice, and said, All the words which the LORD hath said will we do. And Moses wrote all the words of the LORD, and rose up early in the morning, and builded an altar under the hill, and twelve pillars, according to the twelve tribes of Israel.'—xxxi. 18, 'And he gave unto Moses, when he had made an end of communing with him upon mount Sinai, two tables of testimony, tables of stone, written with the finger of God.'—xxxiv. 1, &c.—Jesus said to the Jews, Jno. v 45, .6, § 23, p. 180, 'there is one that accuseth you, even Moses, in whom ye trust,' &c.

none of you keepeth the law—He had before said . . . . ch. v. 46, ib., 'Had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me: for he wrote of me.'—The law pointed unto Christ, 'For Christ is the end,' &c., Rom. x. 4—'Our schoolmaster,' Ga. iii. 24—In rejecting Christ, who is both God and man, they were guilty of a breach of both the two great commandments, Mt. xxii. 37—40, § 85, p. 305.

Why go ye about, &c.—This seems to explain the object of the search, mentioned, ver. 11, p. 91—see the description of the great adversary, Job i. 7, 'And the LORD said unto Satan, Whence comest thou? Then Satan answered the LORD, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it.'—ii. 2; 1 Pe. v. 8, 'Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil,' &c.

to kill me—They had before sought to compass his destruction, Mt. xii. 14, § 25, p. 197; Jno. v. 16—8, § 23, p. 176.

20. Thou hast a devil—see again ch. viii. 48—52, p. 106; x. 20—Jesus warned his disciples that they might expect the like reproach, Mt. x. 25, § 39, p. 300.

who goeth about, &c.—Their very language in denying the charge, was in transgression of the sixth commandment, according to the explanation of it given Mt. v. 21, .2, 'Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not kill; and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment: but I say unto you, That whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment:' &c.—see Jno. v. 16—8, &c., § 23, p. 176.

NOTES.

thus sincere in inquiry after truth, the truth which it most concerns him to know, will not be denied, 'He shall know of the doctrine, whether it be,' &c.

Jno. vii. 18. He that speaketh of himself, &c. Here our Lord furnishes another and external criterion by which to judge whether this doctrine be of God. 'The false teacher seeks the praise of men: but the true legate of God seeks the glory of God in the salvation of men. He speaks the truth, and there is no unrighteousness in his teaching.'

Whosoever will, by humble, serious, and impartial reading, hearing, meditation, and prayer, labour to understand the will of God, in order to practise it, he shall experience such delight and power in my doctrine, as shall prove it really Divine.

[19. Did not Moses give you the law? They had accused Jesus of violating the law because he had healed a man on the sabbath, and for that they had sought his life; ch. v. 10—.6, § 23. He here recalls that charge to their recollection, and shews them that though they pretended great reverence for that law, yet they were really its violators in having sought his life.]

20. Hast a devil. Δαιμονιον, 'a demon.' This reply of the people is that kind of evasive answer which is not unfrequently given by persons who have secret designs of evil in their hearts.—Lonsdale.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. vii. 17. It is in obedience that the blessing of God in the gospel is to be found; God abundantly confirms his truth to those who do his will. In the keeping of God's commandments there is a great reward; and especially in obeying the commandment to believe on him whom he hath sent.

[18 ver. In as far as any ministry seeks its own glory, it proves that it is not from God. Let us be like Jesus, who sought not his own glory as a man, but who simply sought the glory of him that sent him. Let no sinister design lead into any false way; let our service be according to the will of God, and unto his glory, and we shall know that it is from him.]

19 ver. Those who are most observant of the outward forms of religion, as were the Jews, may yet be very negligent as to the substance of the law.—Love to God, and love to man.

In hating Jesus, the Jews were directly guilty of a breach of these two great commandments upon which 'hang all the law and the prophets.'

EVERY ONE THAT IS PROUD IN HEART IS AN ABOMINATION TO THE LORD: THOUGH HAND JOIN IN HAND, HE SHALL NOT BE UNPUNISHED.—Prov. xvi. 5.

JOHN vii. 21—7.

21 about to-kill thee? Jesus answered and said unto-them, I-have-done one work, and 22 ye-all-marvel.* Moses therefore gave unto-you circumcision; (not because it-is of 23 Moses, but of the fathers;) and ye-on the-sabbath-day-circumcise a-man. If a-man on the-sabbath-day receive circumcision, that the law of-Moses should-not-be-broken;[a] are-ye-angry at-me, because I-have-made a-man every-whit whole[b] on the-sabbath-day?
24 Judge not according-to the-appearance[c] κατ' ὄψιν, but judge righteous judgment.
25 Then said some of-them of Jerusalem, Is not this-he, whom they-seek to-kill?
26 But, lo, he-speaketh boldly,[d] and they-say nothing unto-him. Do-the rulers-know 27 indeed that this is the very Christ? Howbeit we-know this-man whence he-is: but [a] Or, without breaking the law of Moses.

[b] Or, perfectly cured a man.

[c] Or, after the outward appearance.

[d] Or, openly.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. vii. 21. done one work—referring probably to his having given health and strength to an impotent man on the sabbath day, ch. v. 8, § ib. p. 175.

all marvel—Jesus had neither learned of their wise men, ver. 15, p. 91—nor received a commission from them, Mt. xxi. 23, § 84. p. 282—but he dared to oppose their partiality in the application of the law of the sabbath, by doing a work of mercy on that day, Jno. v. 10—3, § 23, p. 176.

22. not because it is of Moses—Moses gave circumcision, Ex. xii. 48, . . . Le. xii. 3—but it did not originate with him, having been appointed to Abraham long before, Ge. xvii. 10—27.

23. every whit whole—see ch. v. 8, 9, § 23. p. 175.

24. Judge not, &c.—so Christians are exhorted, Jas. ii. 1, 'My brethren, have not the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory, with respect of persons.'

the appearance—It is likely that our Lord here alludes to what was said to Samuel, 1 Sa. xvi. 7, 'man looketh on the outward appearance, but the LORD looketh on the heart.'—If it be objected that they, as being merely men, could not look upon the heart; then it is answered, that there was the greater need for their looking unto Him who can do so—and who had as surely indicated his will with regard to this Son of David, as with regard to David himself, when he said of him to Samuel, ver. 12, 'Arise, anoint him: for this is he.'—Comp. Mt. iii. 17, § 8, p. 59, 'This is my beloved Son,' &c.

25. they seek to kill—He had charged them with this malicious design, ver. 19, p. 92—which they, without lessening their malice, had seemed to deny, ver. 20, ib.

26. Do the rulers, &c.—see on ver. 48, p. 97.

27. Howbeit we know, &c.—see ch. vi. 42, § 43, p. 330.

NOTES.

Jno. vii. 21. One work. The healing of the man on the sabbath at the pool of Bethesda, ch. v. § 23, p. 175.

Ye all marvel. Wonder that I should do such a thing on the sabbath day.

22. Moses therefore gave, &c. The word therefore seems not to be well placed by our translators. It should stand in connection with the former sentence. 'Ye all marvel therefore' because I have healed a man on the sabbath day.

Of the fathers. See 'Scrip. Illus.' supra.

23. If a man, &c. The argument is, If a man may be circumcised on the sabbath day, without the sabbath being thereby broken, it is unreasonable in you to be angry with me, if, in place of wounding by circumcision, I have made a man perfectly well, and thus the more capable of enjoying the appointed rest. Are ye angry at me, because I have done upon a man a work, not of the ceremonial law, but of mercy, by making him altogether sound on the sabbath day?

24. Judge rwhteous judgment. 'Judge not of me according to the outward appearance of things, condemning me . . . but judge of me and my works righteously, and according to the true spirit of the law.'—Lonsdale and Hale.

[The force of the argument is, 'do not condemn in me what you approve of in Moses: if you allow a man to be circumcised on the sabbath, because Moses ordered it, but do not allow him to be healed, when I do it, you judge κατ' ὄψιν according to the person, and not according to justice.'—Bloomf.]

19—24. When, on the sabbath day, ye circumcise children, and apply cures to the wounded, how absurd is it to seek to murder me, because, on the sabbath, I perfectly cured the man who had long been infirm at the pool of Bethesda?

[The multitude which heard our Lord at this time was composed of three classes of persons:—1. The rulers, priests, and Pharisees, declared enemies of Christ.—2. The inhabitants of Jerusalem, who knew the sentiments of their rulers concerning him.—3. Strangers, who from different quarters had come up to Jerusalem to the feast, and who heard Christ attentively, being ignorant of the designs of the rulers, &c., against him.]

[26. Do the rulers know indeed, &c. They could not account for the liberty Jesus enjoyed, and it would seem they spoke ironically of the superior knowledge of the rulers. Comp. ver. 27. The sense is, 'Can it be that the rulers no longer seek to kill him, but suffer him to speak without molestation, because they now know for certain that he is indeed the Christ?']

27. We know . . . whence he is. We know the place of his birth and residence. They knew him as 'Jesus of Nazareth.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Jno. vii. 20—4. Let us beware of hasty judgments and railing accusations. Let us, like honest men, look to the truth of the law, rather than merely to the outward form thereof, as did the ancient, and too often the modern lawyers.]

22 ver. Our Saviour's reasoning, with regard to circumcision in relation to the sabbath, argues the priority of the sabbath to circumcision, which yet was long before the time of Moses. The sabbath, therefore, is not a mere Mosaic institution; nor is it so much a day for ritual observances, as for enjoying rest in God, and for communicating blessing to our fellow creatures.

Let us judge as favourably of others' conduct as we do of our own.

[25, .6 ver. Let us not, like those of Jerusalem, desire the restraining of all teachers with whose claims the rulers are not perfectly satisfied. We may see, from the case of the Teacher sent from God, that it is most unsafe to leave to the ruler the power of determining who alone shall be the religious teachers of the people.]

* This reference to the miracle performed as recorded Jno. v. 1—9, § 23, p. 175, is the first opportunity which Jesus had of referring to it in Jerusalem, and is presumptive evidence that this was the first time he had visited that city since the performance of it.—See Greswell, Vol. II. p. 252.

A WORD FITLY SPOKEN IS LIKE APPLES OF GOLD IN PICTURES OF SILVER.—PROV. XXV. 11.
AS A DOG RETURNETH TO HIS VOMIT, SO A FOOL RETURNETH TO HIS FOLLY.—PROV. XXVI. 11.

JOHN vii. 28—30.

28 when Christ cometh, no-man knoweth whence he-is. Then cried Jesus in the temple as-he-taught, saying, Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am: and I am not 29 come of myself, but he that-sent me is true, whom ye know not. But I know him: for 30 I am from him, and he hath sent me. Then they sought to take him: but no man laid hands on him, because his hour was not yet come.

(G. 19.)—Particulars of the last day of the feast, the twenty-first of the Jewish Tisri.
[Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxx. p. 486.]

JOHN vii. 31—viii. 1.

31 And many of the people believed on him, and said, When Christ cometh, will he do more miracles than these which this man hath done?
32 The Pharisees heard that the people murmured[a] such things concerning him; and the 33 Pharisees and the chief priests sent officers to take him. Then said Jesus unto them, 34 Yet a little while am I with you, and then I go ὑπαγω unto him that sent me. Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come.

Or, were saying privately.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. vii. 27. no man knoweth*—They were fulfilling the prophecies, such as Is. liii. 1—3, . . .—which predicted their despising the Messiah when he should appear in humiliation.

28. is true*—The truth of God was manifested, in giving his Son to confirm the first promise, Ge. iii. 15—and indeed all 'the promises made unto the fathers,' Rom. xv. 8—Is is as looking to this manifestation of the truthfulness of God, that the apostle makes his solemn averment—2 Co. i. 18—20, 'But as God is true, our word toward you was not yea and nay. 19, For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, who was preached among you by us, even by me and Silvanus and Timotheus, was not yea and nay, but in him was yea. 20, For all the promises of God in him are yea, and in him Amen, unto the glory of God by us.'

29. I know him, &c.*—see Mt. xi. 27, § 29, p. 228; Jno. viii. 55, p. 107.

30. sought to take him*—*see ver. 1, § 52, p. 70; 19, 20, p. 92—and again, viii. 37, p. 104.

31. When Christ cometh, &c.*—*see the answer of Jesus to John, when he sent messengers, saying, 'Art thou he that should come,' &c., Mt. xi. 3—6, § 29, p. 222.

32. murmured, &c.*—see before, ver. 12, p. 91.

the Pharisees*—These men who sought their own glory—comp. ver. 18, p. 92, with Mt. xxiii. 5—7, § 85—seem to have prompted the chief priests to violence against Christ—again, Jno. xi. 47, § 58, p. 132—We find them in council with the chief priests, saying, 'What do we? for this man doeth many miracles.'—See also what they say among themselves, xii. 19, § 82, 'Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing? behold, the world is gone after him.'

33. Yet a little while*—*see ch. xvi. 16, § 87, 'A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me, because I go to the Father.'

NOTES.

[Jno. vii. 27. When Christ cometh, no man knoweth whence he is. From Mt. ii. 5, § 5, p. 33, it appears that the common expectation of the Jews was, that he was to be born at Bethlehem. But they also supposed that after his birth he would be hidden or taken away in some mysterious manner, and appear again from some unexpected quarter. We find allusions to this expectation in the New Testament, where our Saviour corrects their common notions, Mt. xxiv. 23, § 86, p. 334. 'Then if any man shall say unto you, Lo, here is Christ, or there; believe it not.' And again (ver. 26), 'If they shall say unto you, Behold, he is in the desert; go not forth: behold, he is in the secret chambers; believe it not.' The following extracts from Jewish writings shew that this was the common expectation. 'The Redeemer shall manifest himself, and afterwards be hid. So it was in the redemption from Egypt. Moses shewed himself, and then was hidden.' So on the passage, Cant. ii. 9, 'My beloved is like a roe or a young hart:' they say, 'A roe appears, and then is hid; so the Redeemer shall first appear, and then be concealed, and then again appear.' 'So the Redeemer shall first appear, and then be hid, and then at the end of forty-five days shall re-appear, and cause manna to descend.' See Lightfoot.]

28. Ye both know me, &c. 'The sense is, ye do indeed both know me, and my earthly parentage: and yet "I am not come of myself;" but he that "sent me" is a true and faithful Being whom ye do not know, as ye ought to know him.' Comp. ch. viii. 54, 55, . . . —Lonsdale.

30. His hour. It was now autumn, but it was not until the feast of the Passover, in the spring of the next year, that our Lord was delivered into the hands of his enemies.

31. Of the people. ek tou ochlou. 'Of the multitude,' the inferior sort.

[32. Sent officers to take him. 'The Sanhedrim never before, nor after, took so bold and decisive a step as this. Yet the attempt of his enemies was defeated without any violence; without any concealment of his person; and by a coercion, however extraordinary or not to be expected, of a purely moral kind (see ver. 45, &, p. 96). This instance of the disappointment of one of the most deliberate designs upon his safety is a singular one in the gospel history; and is more memorable on every account than even those occasions when, to preserve himself from sudden violence, he had recourse to miracle on the spot.'—Greswell, Vol. II. p. 489.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. vii. 28, .9. Let us beware of resting contented with a partial knowledge of the Saviour. Many who knew Jesus as a man, were yet fatally ignorant of him as the Christ.

That very despised condition, on account of which the Jews rejected Jesus, was the same which shewed that God is true—his sending his Son into the world, in the very circumstances prefigured in the law, and predicted in the prophets.

[31 ver. May we know that Jesus is indeed come, and is 'the very Christ,' by our having experience of his wonder-working power, not only for us, but in us.]

32 ver. Let us beware of resting in any form of religion, in place of seeking communion with God. Jesus had no enemies so watchful for evil against him as the most outwardly religious people among the Jews.

JOHN vii. 35—8.

35 Then said the Jews among themselves, Whither will he go, that we shall not find him? will he go unto the dispersed διασπορὰν among the Gentiles,[a] and teach the Gen-36 tiles? What manner of saying is this that he said, Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come?
37 In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, If any man 38 thirst, let him come unto me, and drink. He that believeth on me, as the scripture

[a] Or, Greeks.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. vii. 34. Ye shall seek me—so the prophet had forewarned, Ho. v 6, 'They shall go with their flocks and with their herds to seek the LORD; but they shall not find him; he hath withdrawn himself from them.'—Jesus afterwards, Jno. xiii. 33, § 87, reminds his disciples of what he here says to the Jews.

35. dispersed—The house of Israel were to be sifted 'among all nations,' Am. ix. 9. . . . —to be discovered as having been removed 'far unto all the ends of the earth,' Is. xxvi. 15—The dispersed of Judah, as contrasted with the outcasts of Israel, are spoken of, ch. xi. 12, 'And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth.'—The scattering or dispersing of Israel, as distinguished from the Jews, is spoken of, Eze. xi. 16, 'Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Although I have cast them far off among the heathen, and although I have scattered them among the countries, yet will I be to them as a little sanctuary in the countries where they shall come.'—So 'to the twelve tribes scattered abroad,' the epistle of James is sent, ch. i. 1—and 'to the strangers scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia,' the epistles of Peter are sent, 1 Pe. i. 1.—That the twelve tribes of Israel were to be found in the west, seems to be intimated by the gospel being sent so directly from the east; it being designed to seal one hundred and forty-four thousand out of all the tribes of Israel, Rev. vii. 2—4.

37. In the last day, &c.—Le. xxiii. 36, 'On the eighth day shall be an holy convocation unto you; and ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD: it is a solemn assembly; and ye shall do no servile work therein.'

If any man thirst, &c.—This gracious invitation the Lord had before given by the prophet, Is. iv. 1. . . . 'Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the . . . waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price.'—Of this living water Jesus had before spoken to the woman of Samaria, Jno. iv. 10—4, § 13, p. 92—The promise is again given, Rev. xxi. 6, 'I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely.'—And among the very last words of the inspired volume, xxii. 17, 'Let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely.'

38. He that believeth on me—Is. lvii. 13, 'He that putteth his trust in me shall possess the land, and shall inherit my holy mountain;'

as the scripture, &c.—To him who, humbled because of his iniquity, putteth his trust in the Lord, Is. lvii. 15. . . . removeth the stumbling-block, and expresseth his contrition by abstaining from covetousness, the Lord hath not only promised a reviving, but such a reviving as will enable him to refresh the souls of others, ver. 15, &c.—and that by publishing, 'Peace, peace to him that is far off, and to him that is near,' ver. 19—Upon true evangelical repentance, expressed by simple devotedness to God, for the good of all, lviii. 1—10. . . . —the promise is farther, ver. 11, 'And the LORD shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not.'—It is thus the Lord will accomplish his promise, xliv. 3, 'I will pour water upon him that is thirsty, and floods upon the dry ground: I will pour my Spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thine offspring:'—The promise was in a measure fulfilled, when Peter, after his contrition, and as putting his trust in the Lord, was enabled to preach the gospel with power to the repentant Jews, Ac. ii., iii.—The apostles were also employed preaching, and in sending abroad those rivers of living water, the New Testament epistles: by which not only were the first believers refreshed, but whereby we should earnestly endeavour to irrigate the thirsty land, and cover every barren spot with fruitfulness and beauty.

NOTES.

Jno. vii. 33, 4. Yet a little while am I with you. Our Lord intimates that, in spite of their evil designs, he should remain with them till the time appointed for his return to his Father in heaven; and that then they would seek him in vain.—Comp. ch. viii. 20, 21, p. 101.

35. The dispersed among the Gentiles. See Scrip. Illus.' supra—the Gentiles—the Greeks.

[37. In the last day, . . . of the feast. The eighth, that great day of the feast, when there was to be an holy convocation, attended with some extraordinary sacrifices. It was not only the last day of this feast, but of all the yearly feasts.]

If any man thirst, &c. An allusion to the custom of drawing water from the pool of Siloam, and offering it up in the temple with much solemnity, and the sound of various voices and instruments.

['Agreeably to our Saviour's invariable principle of drawing instruction from the occasion, it would furnish a striking opportunity for the prophetical declaration which he pronounced accordingly. The ceremony consisted in fetching water from the fountain of Siloah, in carrying it in procession round the altar of burnt offerings, accompanied by a recitation of Is. xii. 3, 'With joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation:' and finally, of pouring out a libation thereof over the sacrifice upon the altar. The primary intention of these ceremonies was both to commemorate the miraculous supply of water in the wilderness, and to typify the anticipated blessing of heaven, in the recurrence of the autumnal rains against the arrival of seed-time. But the appositeness of the ceremony to the future facts of the christian history, which is the application our Lord makes of it, is too plain and perceptible not to have been remarked by almost every commentator. Ch. viii. 6, too, 'the waters of Shiloah' are figuratively employed as a description of the Messiah himself.'—Greswell, Vol. II. p. 490.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. vii. 34. Let us seek the Lord while he may be found. Let us embrace him, as now presented in the offers of his grace, so shall we be with him in glory.

35 ver. The jeer of the Jews has been turned into prophecy, in judgment upon them, but in mercy unto us, to whom the word, the gospel of the grace of God, has come, that was sent away from the Jews, to the dispersed among the Gentiles.

37 ver. Our qualification for receiving from Christ the water of life, is our feeling the need thereof. Let us come to Jesus, and be active in our reception of blessing from him, for ourselves, and for the communication thereof to others.

[38 ver. Let us not be contented without drinking deep of the water of life; but if we would truly know this blessedness, let us earnestly seek to dispense the same plentifully to all around; and let us be persuaded that we can never send forth rivers of living water, except as being joined unto Jesus by a true and living faith; and, as we would see the fulfilling of scripture, let us seek that faith may thus work by love, not only for our own purification and

JOHN vii. 39—47.

39 hath-said, out-of his belly shall-flow rivers of-living water. (But[a] this spake-he of the Spirit, which they that-believe on him should ελαλον receive: for the-Holy Ghost was 40 not-yet given; because-that Jesus was not-yet-glorified.) Many of the people there-41 fore, when-they-heard this saying, said, Of-a-truth this is the Prophet. Others said, 42 This is the Christ. But some said, Shall Christ come out-of Galilee? Hath not the scripture said, That Christ cometh of the seed of-David, and out-of the town of-Beth-43 lehem, where David was? So there-was a-division[b] σχισμα among the people because-44 of him. And some of them would have-taken him; but no-man laid hands on him.
45 Then came the officers to the chief-priests and Pharisees; and they said unto-them, 46 Why have-ye not brought him? The officers answered, Never man spake like this 47 man. Then answered them the Pharisees, Are ye also deceived? 48, Have any of [a] Or, and.

[b] Or, schism; or, dissension.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. vii. 39. this spake he of the Spirit—He had before made use of the same figure to express the purifying power of the Holy Ghost, as when he said, ch. iii. 5, § 12, p. 83. 'Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.'—Of which water see farther, ch. iv. 10—.4, § 13, p. 92.

they that believe on him should receive—so the apostle of the Gentiles testifies, that the Spirit was received by faith, Ga. iii. 2—9.

not yet—It was after our Lord's ascension that the Spirit was to be given as promised, Ps. lxviii. 18, 'Thou hast ascended on high, thou hast led captivity captive: thou hast received gifts for men [Heb. in the man]; yea, for the rebellious also, that the LORD, &c. —Jno. xvi. 7—13, § 87, p. 393, 'It is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you,' &c.—and ch. xiv. 16, 7, 26, § ib. p. 333.

not yet glorified—When Jesus was glorified, then did the disciples understand the things concerning Christ, and remember what had been written of him, ch. xii. 16, § 82, p. 262—This understanding was given them by the Spirit, who was to glorify Jesus, xvi. 13, 14, § 87, p. 394—see the Father's promise, xii. 28, § 82, p. 267—and the recognition of its fulfilment, Ac. ii. 13—see Jno. xvi. 5, § 87; xiii. 31, § ib.; xiv. 3, § ib.—and comp. Ac. ii. 33.

40. Of a truth this is the Prophet—spoken of by Moses, De. xviii. 15—8—see before, on Jno. vi. 14, § 41, p. 317.

41. the Christ—The Messiah, or anointed, promised unto David, Ps. ii. &c. . . . .—announced by the angel at his birth, as 'Christ the Lord,' Lu. ii. 11, § 4, p. 9—so revealed to Simeon by the Holy Ghost, ver. 26, § ib. 24—so confessed by Nathanael, Jno. i. 49, § 10, p. 73—by Peter, vi. 69, § 43, p. 334.

Shall Christ come out of Galilee?—so Nathanael had asked, ch. i. 46, § 10, p. 72, 'Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth?'—see ver. 52, p. 97, inf.

42. of the seed of David—In this they were right, see Ps. cxxxii. 11, &c. . . . . Is. xi. 1, &c. . . . . but they were wrong in supposing that Christ was not the son of David, Mt. i. 1, § 4, p. 23, 'of the seed of David according to the flesh,' Rom. i. 3.

Bethlehem—Out of Bethlehem, in the land of Judah, He was to come forth that was 'to be Ruler in Israel,' Mi. v. 2. . . . . —see the fulfilment, Mt. ii. § 5, p. 31; Lu. ii. 1—17, § 4, p. 19.

43. division—see ch. ix. 16, p. 110; x. 19—21, p. 117.

45. Then came the officers—sent ver. 32, p. 94.

46. Never man spake like, &c.—Mt. vii. 29, § 19, p. 142, 'For he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes.'—His word had power to repel even those who came to apprehend him in Gethsemane, Jno. xviii. 6, § 88, p. 409.

47. deceived—see Mt. xxvii. 63, § 92, p. 477.

NOTES.

Jno. vii. 38. Out of his belly. i. e., 'within him.' The sense is the same as at ch. iv. 14, § 13, p. 93.

[Rivers of living water. 'The effusion of the gifts of the Holy Spirit is often so mentioned,' see Is. xliv. 3, &c. 'Those who have truly the spirit of Christ shall diffuse large, and liberal, and constant blessings on their fellow men.']

[39. Should receive. ελαλον λαμβανειν, 'were about to receive,' namely, after the resurrection and ascension of Christ, according to his promise, ch. xiv. 16, § 87, p. 383; and xvi. 7, § ib. p. 393. The full effusion of the extraordinary gifts of the Spirit shed on the disciples, as foretold by Isaiah and Joel, took not place till after the ascension of Christ, and on the day of Pentecost.]

40. The Prophet. See 'Scrip. Illus.' supra.

41. The Christ. The very Messiah.

['The impression produced on the people, ver. 40, .1, by the application of the ceremony (ver. 37, .8) to himself, aided perhaps by the traditionary reference to the Messiah, which even the Rabbis made of it, would be a very natural circumstance, and leaves it scarcely open to a question, whether it was not to this incident more especially that the emissaries of the Pharisees alluded in their own justification, ver. 46, shortly after.'—Greswell, Vol. II. p. 491.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

refreshment, but for the abundant bestowment of the same blessings upon others.]

[Jno. vii. 39. It is only by receiving the Spirit for ourselves that we can expect to be made useful in communicating spiritual blessing to others; and let us ever remember, that the blessing as promised must be looked for from the risen Man, our glorified Redeemer.]

40, .1 ver. Let us beware of prejudice, and be willing to receive Christ from whatever quarter he may come to us; and let us never forget, that in receiving the most despised Galilean in his name, we do thereby entertain the Lord of glory.

42 ver. Let us beware of rashly coming to a conclusion upon the facts of a case, else our reasoning upon these facts may be most unsound and dangerous.

44 ver. Let the Christian follow his Lord in the path of duty, and he will find that he has no occasion

JOHN vii. 49—viii. 1.

49 the rulers or of the Pharisees believed on him? But this people[a] who knoweth not 50 the law are cursed. Nicodemus saith unto them, (he that came to Jesus aυτον by-51 night, being one of them,) Doth our law judge any man,[b] before it hear him, and 52 know what he doeth? They answered and said unto him, Art thou also of Galilee?
53 Search, and look: for out of Galilee ariseth no prophet. And every man went unto his own house.

Ch. viii. 1. Jesus went unto the mount of Olives.*

[a] Or, the common people. [b] τον ανθρωπον.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. vii. 48. Have any of the rulers, &c.—Job xxxii. 9, 'Great men are not always wise:'—1 Co. i. 27, 'God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty;'—Jno. xii. 42, § 85, p. 310, 'Nevertheless among the chief rulers also many believed on him; but because of the Pharisees they did not confess him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue:'—even in this council there was a Nicodemus, ver. 50—2.

49. knoweth not the law, &c.—It was not the knowledge alone of the law which had been enjoined, but the doing of it. De. xxvii. 26, 'Cursed be he that confirmeth not all the words of this law to do them.'—According to this, they were all in the same condemnation—see ver. 19, p. 92—and Rom. iii. 19, 20, 'Now we know that what things soever the law saith, it saith to them who are under the law: that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become guilty before God. Therefore by the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified in his sight: for by the law is the knowledge of sin.'—Ga. iii. 10—2, 'For as many as are of the works of the law are under the curse: for it is written, Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them. 11, But that no man is justified by the law in the sight of God, it is evident: for, The just shall live by faith. 12, And the law is not of faith: but, The man that doeth them shall live in them.'

50. Nicodemus, &c.—see ch. iii. 1, &c., § 12, p. 83; xix. 39, § 92, p. 475.

51. Doth our law, &c.—The law required justice to be done without respect of persons, Ex. xxiii. 1—3; Le. xix. 15, 'Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment: thou shalt not respect the person of the poor, nor honour the person of the mighty: but in righteousness shalt thou judge thy neighbour.'—That they should 'hear the small as well as the great,' and 'not be afraid of the face of man,' De. i. 17—see also xix. 15.

52. out of Galilee, &c.—'Shall Christ come out of Galilee?' ver. 41, p. 96—Yet there the light was to break forth, Is. ix. 1, 2, 'Nevertheless the dimness shall not be such as was in her vexation, when at the first he lightly afflicted the land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali, and afterward did more grievously afflict her by the way of the sea, beyond Jordan, in Galilee of the nations. The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined.'—As had been the case, Mt. iv. 15, &c., § 16, p. 107.

viii. 1. Jesus went unto, &c.—Jesus had said, Mt. viii. 20, § 34, p. 265, 'The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.'

mount of Olives—see Lu. xxi. 37, § 86, p. 357.

NOTES.

Jno. vii. 48. The rulers. The members of the Sanhedrim, who were supposed to have control over the religious rites and doctrines of the nation.

49. This people. Probably meaning the people of Galilee. See ver. 52. The sense is, 'But the multitudes who do not know how to interpret the law and the prophets aright, follow this decision, and are therefore cursed.'

Are cursed, with a judicial blindness; are under God's curse, having no understanding of the law, De. xxvii. 26, 'Cursed be he that,' &c. — See 'Scrip. Illus.' above.

50. Nicodemus . . . being one of them. i. e., 'Being a member of the council. Only the words, "he that came to Jesus by night," ought to be included in the parenthesis.'—Lonsdale.

51. Doth our law, &c. Soft as these words are, there is a severe sting in them. This question confounded these unjust judges, and for the present prevented the accomplishment of their design.

52. Art thou also of Galilee? To be a Galilean was a term of reproach. They knew well he was not of Galilee, but they meant to ask whether he also had become a follower of the despised Galilean. Art thou also one of the Galilean sect, one of the believers in Jesus of Galilee

Out of Galilee ariseth no prophet. Jonah and Nahum are said to have been both of Galilee; the meaning seems to be, that there is no prediction that any prophet should come out of Galilee, and especially no prophet that was to attend or precede the Messiah. They assumed, therefore, that Jesus could not be the Christ.

Ch. viii. 1. Mount of Olives. The mountain about a mile directly east of Jerusalem. The garden of Gethsemane, to which he was accustomed to resort, ch. xviii. 2, § 88, p. 417, was on the western side of that mountain; and Bethany, the abode of Martha and Mary, on the east of it, xi. 1, § 58, p. 127. See GEOG. NOTICE, § 86, p. 354.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

to fear the face of any enemy; here Jesus has boldly confronted his bitterest enemies, and in the most public manner told them the truth, and yet no man has power to lay hands on him. See before, ver. 30, p. 94.

Jno. vii. 48. Let us beware of making the Pharisees our standard of religious belief; and especially let us avoid the example of those who seek to assume dominion over the faith of others.

[49 ver. Those who pride themselves upon their knowledge, so as to despise and curse others, are themselves in the most deplorable ignorance. The publicans and sinners go into the kingdom of heaven before the scribes and Pharisees.]

50 ver. In dealing with classes of men, let us not forget that there may be exceptions; there was at least one, Nicodemus, even among the Pharisees and rulers of the Jews.

51 ver. When urged by our prejudices, or the evil insinuations of others, to condemn rashly, let us remember the gentle and yet severe reproof of the Jewish ruler, 'Doth our law,' &c.

52 ver. Let us never be tempted to answer just reproof by reproach, as the Pharisees here answer Nicodemus; who, it is likely, was a man of great caution, anxious in his search after truth, and tardy in coming to a conclusion, and thus troublesome to men 'whose feet are swift to shed blood,' Rom. iii. 15.

53 ver. Let us sympathise with those who are in similar circumstances to those of Jesus, who, when every man went unto his own house, departed 'unto the MOUNT OF OLIVES.'

* 'That this was for the night appears from the mention of his returning in the morning.'—Greswell, Vol. II. p. 488.

(G. 20.)—[Lesson 52.] *—Particulars of the following day, Tisri the twenty-second, after Jesus in the morning returns to the temple. John viii. 2.—x. 21.—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxx. p. 492.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Jno. viii. 2. Jesus, having early in the morning returned from the mount of Olives, is again in the temple, teaching.

—— 3—6. The Jews, trying to ensnare him, bring to him for judgment a woman taken in adultery. Stooping down, he writes with his fingers on the ground.

—— 7—9. When the Jews continue asking what sentence he would pronounce upon the woman, Jesus replies so as to make them pronounce judgment upon themselves. Whilst Jesus is writing upon the ground a second time, the woman's accusers depart, self-condemned.

—— 10, .1. Jesus sends away the woman, with an injunction to 'sin no more.'

—— 12. Jesus declares himself to be 'the Light of the world,' and describes his true follower as one who walks not in darkness, but has 'the light of life.'

—— 13. The Pharisees accuse Jesus of bearing witness of himself.

—— 14—8. Jesus, in reply, shews that he does not alone bear witness of himself: he adverts to the witness borne of him by the Father—see Mt. iii. 17, 'This is my beloved Son,' &c.

—— 19. In reply to the question, 'Where is thy Father?' Jesus intimates, that notwithstanding the plurality in witnessing, just noticed, ver. 18, his Oneness with the Father is such as that he who knows the Son knows the Father also.

—— 20. Notwithstanding such plainness of speech, and publicity of testimony (in the treasury in the temple), no one lays hands on him.

—— 21. Jesus proceeds to speak of his approaching departure. Having refused to improve the day of their merciful visitation, the Jews would fall of finding their Messiah, would die in their sins, and it would be impossible for them to be with him where he is.

—— 22. The Jews jeeringly ask, 'Will he kill himself?' &c.

—— 23, .4. Jesus points out the difference between them and himself, as to origin, character, and destiny; intimating, that it is only as having faith in him they can escape perdition, and attain to heavenly blessedness.

—— 25, .6. Jesus, in answer to the question, 'Who art thou?' says he is the same he had already declared himself to be, and which he would yet prove to their condemnation; but that, in the meantime, he is speaking to them the words of him, who, in sending him into the world, had declared, 'This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.'

—— 27—9. The Jews not understanding the reference which Jesus had made to the witness of the Father, he proceeds to speak of the additional witness to be given them, consequent on their procuring his death upon the cross. He not only speaks as the Father hath taught, but always does those things that please the Father.

—— 30—.2. Whilst Jesus is speaking these things, many believe on him; to these he gives warning, that only in the event of their continuing in his word, could they be his disciples indeed; that by abiding in his word, they would have experience of the truth, and thereby be made free.

Jno. viii. 33. The Jews take offence at Jesus' word, and begin to boast of being Abraham's seed; deny their being in bondage, and want to know what he means by their being made free.

—— 34—.6. Jesus solemnly tells them that there is such a thing as being the servant of sin; and even supposing they were servants of God under the law, they could only be given an abiding as being made free by the Son.

—— 37, .8. He grants that they are Abraham's seed, except in that respect in which Abraham is called the father of the faithful. Jesus speaks that which he hath seen with his Father; they do that which they have seen with their father.

—— 39, 40. The Jews having said, 'Abraham is our father,' Jesus intimates that in the most important respect, they want the evidence of being children of Abraham.

—— 41. Jesus having again adverted to their having a father very different from Abraham, they now claim God for their father.

—— 42, .3. Jesus answers, that if God were their Father, they would be obedient to the Father's voice ('This is my beloved Son,' &c.). The evidence of their disobedience to the Father's command, ('Hear ye him,') was manifest in their inability to understand his speech.

—— 44. He now plainly declares to them their parentage, and how much they were the children of the father of lies.

—— 45—.7. Having now, in the most public manner, cleared himself from the charges both of sabbath breaking and blasphemy—see ch. v. 18, § 24, and comp. ch. vii. and viii.—having rendered abortive their plots to ensnare him, and made known to them the truth of their own condition, he challenges public trial; and having fully vindicated his claim to be the accredited Messenger of God, the Son of God testified to by the Father, he demands to be heard as speaking the words of God.

—— 48. The Jews venture upon reproaching him with being a Samaritan, and having a devil.

—— 49, 50. Jesus mildly denies the blasphemous imputation, and intimates, that in calling attention to the subject of the present discourse (the Father's voice), he seeks not his own glory, but that of the Father who sent him.

—— 51—.3. Jesus having solemnly declared, that if a man keep his saying, he shall never see death, the Jews become bold in their blasphemy, and ask in derision whether he be greater than Abraham and the prophets, who are dead.

—— 54—.6. Jesus again adverts to the reason of his dwelling so much upon the honour he had received from the Father. He speaks of his knowledge of the Father, and Abraham's knowledge of him.

—— 57. The Jews ask, 'Hast thou seen Abraham?'

—— 58. Jesus solemnly declares to them, 'Before Abraham was, I AM.'

—— 59. The Jews take up stones to cast at him, but Jesus goes through the midst of them, and so passes by.

* Lesson 52 in the 'System of Graduated Simultaneous Instruction,' is John viii. 2—59.

HE THAT SOWETH INIQUITY SHALL REAP VANITY: AND THE ROD OF HIS ANGER SHALL FAIL.—Prov. xxii. 8.
AFTY THINE HEART UNTO INSTRUCTION, AND THINE EARS TO THE WORDS OF KNOWLEDGE.—Prov. xxiii. 12.

JOHN viii. 2—11.

2 And early-in-the-morning Ορθρου he-came again into the temple, and all the people came unto him; and he-sat-down, and-taught them.
3 And the scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a-woman taken in adultery; and 4 when-they-had-set her in the-midst, they-say unto-him, Master, this woman was taken 5 in-adultery, in-the-very-act. Now Moses in the law commanded us, that such should-6 be-stoned: but what sayest thou? This they-said, tempting him, that they-might-have to-accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and-with-his-finger wrote on the ground, as though he heard them not.
7 So when they-continued επεμενον asking him, he-lifted-up-himself, and-said unto 8 them, He that-is-without-sin among-you, let-him-first-cast a stone at her. And again 9 he-stooped down, and-wrote on the ground. And they which-heard it, being-convicted ελεγχομενοι by their own conscience, went-out one by-one, beginning at the eldest, even 10 unto the last: and Jesus was-left alone, and the woman standing in the-midst. When-Jesus-had-lifted-up-himself, and saw none but the woman, he-said unto-her, Woman, 11 where are those thine accusers? hath-no-man-condemned κατεκρινεν thee? She said,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. viii. 2. early—This which the Lord now did, he had been doing by his servants the prophets, Je. vii. 13, 'I spake unto you, rising up early and speaking, but ye heard not; and I called you, but ye answered not.'

sat down, and taught—so on the mountain, Mt. v. 1, 2, § 19, p. 120, and in the ship, Lu. v. 3, § 20, p. 154.

3. adultery—a work of darkness, Job xxiv. 15, 'The eye also of the adulterer waiteth for the twilight, saying, No eye shall see me:'—in Pr. vii. 7—10, a young man void of understanding is represented as meeting the adulteress 'in the twilight, in the evening, in the black and dark night,' ver. 9—Of Jerusalem, at the time the Lord would condescend to come near, and reason with the Jews, as Jesus had been doing, of mercy and of judgment, Is. i. 18—20, it was long before written by the prophet, ver. 21, 'How is the faithful city become an harlot! it was full of judgment; righteousness lodged in it; but now murderers.'

5. stoned—Both the adulterer and the adulteress were to be put to death, Le. xx. 10—death by stoning, even when the woman was only espoused, De. xxii. 23, 24—Alienation from the Lord, by his covenant people, is represented as adultery, Ju. ii. 12, 17—both Israel and Judah are declared guilty, Je. iii. 6—11, . . . Samaria and Jerusalem, Eze xxiii., and the sentence of stoning pronounced against them, 45—7.

what sayest thou?—so afterwards they are found tempting him, Mt. xxii. 17, § 84, p. 2[illegible] saying, 'Tell us therefore, What thinkest thou? Is it lawful to give tribute unto Cæsar, or not?'—see also Lu. xi. 53, 54, § 62, p. 157.

6. tempting him—see on Mt. xvi. 1, § 47, p. 28.

wrote on the ground—The guilt of Jerusalem was marked before the Lord, the land being defiled, the Lord's heritage made an abomination, Je. ii. 7, 22, ...—see the writing against Coniah, king of Judah, xxii. 29, 30, 'O earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the LORD. Thus saith the LORD, Write ye this man childless, a man that shall not prosper in his days: for no man of his seed shall prosper, sitting upon the throne of David, and ruling any more in Judah.'—The curse written upon the land was only to be removed after severe judgment, the judgment written, Eze. xxiii. 47—9—comp. xxiv. 13, 14.

7. He that is without sin—so Eze. xviii. 45, 'And the righteous men, they shall judge them [Samaria and Jerusalem] after the manner of adulteresses.'—When all were alike guilty, the Lord threatens to let the adulteress go unpunished, Ho. iv. 14, 'I will not punish your daughters when they commit whoredom, nor your spouses when they commit adultery: for themselves are separated with whores, and they sacrifice with harlots: therefore the people that doth not understand shall fall.'—Paul, in addressing the Jew, says, Rom. ii. 22, 'Thou that sayest a man should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, dost thou commit sacrilege?'—see Mt. vii. 1—5, 'Judge not,' &c., § 19, p. 137.

first cast a stone—De. xvii. 7, 'The hands of the witnesses shall be first upon him to put him to death, and afterward the hands of all the people.'

8. again he . . . wrote, &c.—see supra on ver. 6, and contrast the engraving, Zec. iii. 8—10, with the writing of the curse over the whole land, v. 1—4.

9. convicted, &c.—1 Jno. iii. 20—see border.

in the midst—where for judgment she had been placed by her accusers—see ver. 3.

NOTES.

Jno. viii. 2. Early. 'The same note of time, ορθρου δε παλιν, fixes the period of the return of Jesus to the temple on this day to the period of ποτε, or even an earlier period still; such also as appears on other occasions to have been our Saviour's rule in this respect.'—See Mt. xxi. 18, § 83; Mk. xi. 20, § 84; Lu. xxi. 38, § 86, p. 357.

3. The scribes, &c., brought unto him a woman. 'The object in bringing the woman was insidious, and might be twofold, according to the event. If our Saviour had condemned the woman, he might be said both to have usurped a civil jurisdiction, and to have sanctioned a breach of the sabbath; and if he had refused to condemn her, he might be said to have countenanced the crime of adultery.'—Greswell.

[Adultery. In scripture, adultery is frequently taken in a spiritual sense, and implies a departure from the purity of the gospel, either in its doctrines or practices.]

7. Without sin. αναμαρτητος, some render, 'the same kind of sin.'

Let him first cast a stone at her. πρωτος τον λιθον. Render, 'let him first cast the stone at her.' By the stone is meant the fatal stone, which was first cast, to form, by one of the accusers or witnesses, and served as a signal to the by-standers to commence the stoning—see De. xiii. 9; xvii. 7. This was in order that the witness might feel his responsibility in giving evidence, as he was also to be the executioner. Jesus, therefore, put them to the test.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. viii. 2. Let the words of Jesus be attended to early in the day, ere the distracting and darkening influences of the world have impaired our power of perceiving, remembering, and applying the truth.

[3—6 ver. It is a fearful infatuation to profess, like the scribes and Pharisees, a zeal for the law of God, in order that a pretence may be had for condemning the righteous.]

7, 8 ver. Before condemning others, let us see whether we ought not ourselves to occupy the place of the condemned.

9 ver. Let the malicious hypocrite reflect, that however he may stifle the convictions of conscience, and hide his shame from his fellow men, yet there is no concealment from the eyes of Him with whom we have to do.

JOHN viii. 11—4.

No-man, Lord. And Jesus said unto-her, Neither do-I condemn κατακρινω thee: go, and sin no-more.

12 Then spake Jesus again unto-them, saying, I am the light-of-the world: he that-followeth
13 me shall-not-walk in darkness, but shall-have the light of life. The Pharisees there-14 fore said unto-him, Thou bearest-record of thyself; thy record is not true. Jesus answered and said unto-them, Though I bear-record of myself, yet my record is true: for I-know whence I-came, and whither I-go; but ye can-not-tell whence I-come, and

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. viii. 11. Neither do I condemn thee—Lu. ix. 56, § 59, p. 136, 'For the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them.'—Jno. iii. 17, 'For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world;' &c.—see ver. 15, infra, p. 101.

sin no more—so to the impotent man whom he had healed on the sabbath, ch. v. 14, 'Sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee.'—Rom. ii. 4, 'Despisest thou the riches of his goodness and forbearance and long-suffering; not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance?'

12. I am the light, &c.—In the beginning of creation God said, Ge. i. 3, 4, 'Let there be light: and there was light. And God saw the light, that it was good:'—comp. Jno. i. 1—9, § 7, p. 46—Christ had in prophecy been spoken of under this figure, Is. xlix. 6, 'I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth.'—So Simeon spake of him, Lu. ii. 32, § 4, p. 25—see also Jno. ix. 5, p. 109; xii. 35, 6, § 82, p. 269; 46, § 85, p. 311—His disciples are to be one with him in the shewing forth of light, Mt. v. 14—8, § 19, p. 122—Ph. ii. 15, 6, 'Blameless and harmless [MARG. 'sincere'], the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world; holding forth the word of life;' &c.—It is thus they are to reprove the works of darkness, such as those of this woman—Eph. v. 1—15; ver. 8, 'Now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light:' ver. 11, 'And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them.' ver. 13, 'But all things that are reproved [MARG. 'discovered'] are made manifest by the light: for whatsoever doth make manifest is light.'—It is by this light that the great adultery, the usurping of the Lord's place in his own house, is to be revealed, 2 Th. ii. 8, 'That Wicked . . . whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming:'

walk in darkness—The adulterer walks in darkness—see on ver. 3, p. 99—but, opposed to such defilement, Christians are exhorted to 'walk as children of light,' Eph. v. 8—Of the new Jerusalem, of which it is said, Rev. xxi. 23, 'the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof;' it is also said, ver. 24, 'And the nations of them which are saved shall walk in the light of it:'

light of life—Jno. i. 4, 'In him was life; and the life was the light of men.'—Not only will the Lord give light to discern between the righteous and the wicked: there will also be, in connection with the clear shining of the Sun of righteousness, activity and strength, Mal. iii. 18. . . . . iv. 1—3.

13. bearest record of thyself—Jesus had shewn that, although he dealt in mercy with the sinner, ver. 11, supra, he yet gave his followers no encouragement to continue in sin, any more than the light gives encouragement to deeds of darkness, ver. 12; this the Pharisees called bearing witness of himself.

not true—or not valid, alluding to the rule laid down, De. xix. 15, 'at the mouth of two witnesses,' &c., to be applied in cases of criminal prosecution—they may also have referred to Jesus' own words, Jno. v. 31, § 23, p. 173, 'If I bear witness of myself, my witness is not true:' meaning, if he alone bore witness of himself; but he then shewed that he had the testimony of others, and especially of the Father, 32—47, to whose testimony he here again points, ver. 18, p. 101.

14. record of myself—Jesus had proved himself to be the light, by making ashamed those who loved to walk in darkness, ver. 9, p. 99, by teaching the sinner to 'sin no more,' ver. 11, and his disciples to avoid the sin of the woman, and the hypocrisy of her accusers, by walking in the light, ver. 12.

true—Rev. i. 5, 'Jesus Christ, ... the faithful witness,'—iii. 7, 'He that is true,'—xix. 11, 'Faithful and True.'

for I know whence, &c.—It is upon the knowledge of whence Christ is, and how low he descended, and where he is gone, and what he is doing, that true worship is to be given unto God, and true confession made before him, Ph. ii. 6—11—the coming of our Lord in humiliation shewed the truth of the oath, Is. xlv. 23, 'I have sworn by myself, the word is gone out of my mouth in righteousness, and shall not return, That unto me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear.'

ye cannot tell—They could tell that he was a man untaught of men, vii. 15, 27, 8, p. 91, 3, but they knew

NOTES.

Jno. viii. 11. Neither do I condemn thee. 'Neither do, nor will, I pass sentence on thee, or adjudge thee to punishment.'

[Sin no more. The word ἁμαρτανειν, 'to sin,' is used by the most elegant Greek classics to signify the commission of adultery. This was a direct and strong condemnation of her conduct.]

[12. I am the light, &c. 'Probably alluding to Mal. iv. 2, where 'the Sun of righteousness,' the Messiah, is foretold. 'I am the light of the world:' in this there is an evident and striking allusion either to the rising of the sun, which would now take place at the proper hour of πρωΐ, sunrise, or to the trimming of the sacred lamps, which synchronized with the time of morning sacrifice, or perhaps to both; for the time of both would be the same, and as nearly coincident as possible. This allusion is established, not merely by the consideration of the circumstances of time and place, and by the well-known principle of our Saviour's usage, but by the exception of the Pharisees against the declaration itself, ver. 13; for that exception implies that there was something in the declaration more solemn and more emphatic than usual.'—Greswell.]

13. Record. μαρτυρια, 'testimony.'

14. Jesus answered, &c. Our Lord speaks exactly in the character of an ambassador. Such a person

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Jno. viii. 12. Let us know that the forbearance of God, and his pardoning love in Christ Jesus, lead to repentance, withdraw from the ways of darkness, and constrain us to walk before him in the light of his truth. Christ, the Light of the world, does not only enlighten but enliven the soul, giving power to walk in holiness, according to his word. Christ, by declaring himself to be 'the Light of the world,' both threatens exposure to the workers of iniquity, and promises discernment and joy to the children of light.]

[14 ver. The child of light may, like his Lord, manifest the truth without fear of the darkness, provided he recognise God as being with him in his witness.]

WHEREFORE GOD ALSO HATH HIGHLY EXALTED HIM, AND GIVEN HIM A NAME WHICH IS ABOVE EVERY NAME:—Phil. ii. 9.

THAT EVERY TONGUE SHOULD CONFESS THAT JESUS CHRIST IS LORD, TO THE GLORY OF GOD THE FATHER.—Phil. ii. 11.

JOHN viii. 15—22.

15 whither I-go. Ye judge after the flesh; I judge no man. 16. And yet if I judge, my 17 judgment is true: for I-am not alone, but I and the Father that-sent me. It-is-also-18 written in your law, that the testimony of-two-men is true. I am one that-bear-witness 19 of myself, and the Father that-sent me beareth-witness of me. Then said-they unto-him, Where is thy Father? Jesus answered, Ye-neither-know me, nor my Father: 20 if ye-had-known me, ye-should-have-known my Father also. These words spake Jesus in the treasury, as-he-taught in the temple: and no-man laid-hands-on him; for his hour was-not-yet-come.
21 Then said Jesus again unto-them, I go-my-way ὑπαγω, and ye-shall-seek me, and 22 shall-die in your sins εν τη ἁμαρτιᾳ: whither I go, ye can not come. Then said the

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

him not to be the Son of David, vii. 42, p. 96—nor do they seem to have known that Christ, the Son of David, should be likewise the Son of God, and thus also David's Lord, Mt. xxii. 42—6, § 85, p. 306—see also Jno. ix. 29, 30, p. 112.

Jno. viii. 15. Ye judge, &c.—see ch. vii. 25—7, p. 93.

I judge no man—see on ver. 11, p. 100.

16. And yet if I judge—His very refusal to judge or condemn the adulteress, was a severe censure on her accusers—see on ver. 7, p. 99.

not alone—so to his disciples, ch. xvi. 32, § 87, p. 397—see also ver. 29, p. 103, infra.

17. testimony of two men—see on Mt. xviii. 16, § 53, p. 83.

18. bear witness of myself—see ver. 14, p. 100—Jesus bare witness of himself by his life-giving word, ch. v. 24—6, § 23, p. 177, and by the works which the Father gave him to finish, ver. 36, p. 179.

The Father . . . beareth witness—see at his baptism, Mt. iii. 17, § 4, and transfiguration, xvii. 5, § 51, and during his stay upon earth, 'by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him,' Ac. ii. 22; and thereafter, not only by sending according to the word of Jesus the promise of the Father, but by fulfilling his words upon that evil generation, Mt. xxiii. 36, § 85, p. 320; xxiv. 34, 5, § 86, p. 340—the continual fulfilment of prophecy, which is from the Father, is for testimony to Jesus, Rev. i. 1; xix. 10.

19. Where is thy Father?—They had before sought to kill him, because he said that God was his Father, ch. v. 18, § 23, p. 177.

neither know me, &c.—see ver. 55, p. 107—and ch. xvi. 3, and xvii. 25, § 87, pp. 392, 404.

if ye had known me, &c.—so ch. xiv. 6, 7, § 87, p. 381, 'No man cometh unto the Father, but by me. If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.'—See also Mt. xi. 27, § 29, p. 228.

20. treasury—see also Mk. xii. 41, 'Jesus sat over against the treasury,' &c.—the present mention of the treasury may help to explain the implied charge against the accusers of the woman, ver. 7, p. 98—the afterwards charges them with making the temple 'a den of thieves,' Mt. xxi. 13, § 83, p. 278—In the time of Joash, the priests being slack in bringing forward the offerings of the people for the repair of the Lord's house, a chest was placed without, at the gate of the house of the Lord, in which the offerings might be deposited; and which, when filled, was emptied by the king's scribe and high priest's officer, when more than enough was found for finishing the work, 2 Chr. xxiv. 4—14.

no man laid hands, &c.—see ch. vii. 30, 44, p. 94; x. 39, § 56, p. 123.

his hour—ch. vii. 30, p. 94—see xiii. 1, § 87, p. 365.

21. I go my way—like a nobleman going 'into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return,' Lu. xix. 12, § 80, p. 248.

shall seek me, &c.—ch. vii. 34, p. 94. He refers to this saying, xiii. 33, § 87, p. 374.

die in your sins—Multitudes of them died in the ruins of their temple, as threatened, Lu. xxii. 1—3, § 61, p. 173; Mt. xxiii. 35—8, § 85, p. 321—Their service therein was sin, as denounced by the prophet, Is. lxvi. 1—4. . . .—see also He. x. 26—31—After describing the awful destruction to be brought does not bring a second with him to vouch his truth; his credentials from his king ascertain his character. So our Lord represents the Father as bearing witness with him. He had before referred to his credentials. —See ch. v. § 23.

NOTES.

Jno. viii. 15. After the flesh. 'According to the meanness of my extraction and appearance.'

16. For I am not alone. This was shewn by the evidence that God gave that he had sent him into the world.

17. In your law, &c. De. xvii. 6; xix. 15—comp. Mt. xviii. 16, § 53, p. 83. This related to cases in which the life of an individual was involved.

18. The Father . . . . beareth witness of me. By the voice at his baptism, &c., and by the miracles which Jesus wrought, as well as by the prophecies of the Old Testament.

[19. Where is thy Father? 'Spoken, not from ignorance, but in derision and insult; q. d. "Where is this father of yours, that we may interrogate him? we do not see this other witness." To which our Lord indignantly replies, that their very question betrays the malignity of their hearts, and shews that they neither truly know, nor care to know, either him or his Father. If they knew him, as a Teacher sent from God, they would know that it is God who beareth witness of him, though not in a visible way, 'yet "by signs and wonders and mighty deeds."'—Bloomf.]

20. The treasury. A certain part of the women's court, where the chests were placed for receiving the offerings of those who came to worship, and consequently a place of great concourse.—See NOTE, Mt. xxi. 12, § 83, p. 277.

[21. I go my way, &c. 'Meaning that "he is about to leave them, and they shall seek the Messiah, and

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Jno. viii. 15, 6. Jesus, by refraining from condemning the adulteress, did in a manner pronounce sentence upon the nation, as not being worthy of the protection of their law. This sentence of Christ, intimated in the words, 'and yet if I judge,' has been confirmed by the providence of God: the Jews of that very generation were left without the protection of law, and which indeed has been their condition in almost every place, ever since, till our own day, when the prayers and efforts of Christians begin to avail in their behalf.]

18 ver. Although there is a sense in which the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost are one, yet there is also a sense in which they are distinct persons, as here the Son testifieth concerning himself and the Father.

[19 ver. Let no man pretend to be a Christian while living in estrangement from God; and as we desire to have communion with the Father, let us seek it through Christ, the Son of his love. There is such a oneness of the Son with the Father, that he who knows the Son, knows the Father also.]

21 ver. We have here the witness of Christ, that those who seek a Messiah, but do not find him in Jesus of Nazareth, die in their sins; and thus without any well founded hope of everlasting life. How should this consideration stir up the Christian to all diligence for the conversion of the Jews

UNTO US A CHILD IS BORN, UNTO US A SON IS GIVEN: AND THE GOVERNMENT SHALL BE UPON HIS SHOULDER: AND HIS NAME SHALL BE CALLED WONDERFUL, COUNSELLOR, THE MIGHTY GOD, THE EVERLASTING FATHER, THE PRINCE OF PEACE.—Isa. IX. 6.

JOHN viii. 23—.7.

23 Jews, Will-he-kill himself? because he-saith, Whither I go, ye can not come. And he-said unto-them, Ye are from beneath ἐκ των κατω: I am from above ἐκ των ανω: ye are 24 of this world; I am not of this world. I-said therefore unto-you, that ye-shall-die in 25 your sins: for if ye-believe not that I am he, ye-shall-die in your sins. Then said-they unto-him, Who art thou? And Jesus saith unto-them, Even the same that I-said unto-26 you from-the-beginning την αρχην ὁ τι και λαλω ὑμιν. I-have many-things to-say and to-judge of you: but he that-sent me is true; and-I speak to the world εις τον κοσμον 27 those-things which I-have-heard of him. They-understood not that he-spake to-them of

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

upon them in the land, and their scattering therefrom, Moses proceeds to say, Le. xxvi. 39, 'And they that are left of you shall pine away in their iniquity in your enemies' lands; and also in the iniquities of their fathers shall they pine away with them.'

Jno. viii. 22. Will he kill himself?—Many of the men of that generation were so left to themselves as to kill those dearest to them, which had been threatened, De. xxviii. 52—.8—see their former supposition, vii. 35, p. 95.

23. Ye are from beneath, &c.—see ch. iii. 31, § 13.

ye are of this world—1 Jno. iv. 5, 'They are of the world: therefore speak they of the world, and the world heareth them.'—The disciples of Jesus are described by himself, as being not of the world, Jno. xv. 19; xvii. 6, § 87, pp. 390, 399—He also says, xvii. 36, § 90, 'My kingdom is not of this world: . . . now is my kingdom not from hence.'

24. I said, &c.—see ver. 21—Jesus, by his repeated warning of the judgment threatened, gives example to the watchman, to whom the Lord says, by the prophet, Eze. iii. 18, 19, 'When I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; and thou givest him not warning, nor speakest to warn the wicked from his wicked way, to save his life; the same wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand. Yet if thou warn the wicked, and he turn not from his wickedness, nor from his wicked way, he shall die in his iniquity; but thou hast delivered thy soul.'

If ye believe not that I am—so the Lord, by Moses, had threatened, in the case of their refusing to hear that Prophet, De. xviii. 15—9—who was to come in the name of the Lord, Ex. iii. 14, 'I AM,' &c., Ps. cxviii. 26—and who was now come as the Fulfiller of all righteousness, Mt. iii. 15, § 8, p. 58—Only in Him could refuge be found from the threatened wrath,

De. xxviii. 58, 'If thou wilt not observe to do all the words of this law that are written in this book, that thou mayest fear this glorious and fearful name, THE LORD THY GOD;'—ver. 59, 'Then the LORD will make thy plagues wonderful,' &c.—but Jno. iii. 18, 'He that believeth on him is not condemned:' &c.—and Ac. iv. 12, 'Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved.'

25. Even the same, &c.—Jesus had said at the beginning of the present discourse, ver. 12, p. 100, 'I am the Light of the world,' &c.—but perhaps the words may better be rendered, 'The Beginning, which also I said unto you:'—so he is described in the commencement of this gospel, ch. i. 1—3, § 7, 'In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. 2, The same was in the beginning with God. 3, All things were made by him:' &c.—see what Jesus had said to them regarding his oneness with the Father, ch. v. 17—30, § 23, p. 176—and on the present occasion just before, ver. 23, 'I am from above:'—He is called, Col. i. 18, 'the Beginning,'—and Rev. iii. 14, 'the Beginning of the creation of God;'—comp. Ge. i. 3.

26. many things to say and to judge, &c.—see his prophetic discourses upon his last visit to Jerusalem, Mt. xxi. 23—xxiv. §§ 84—.6.

he that sent me, &c.—ch. vii. 28, p. 94.

which I have heard—see ch. iii. 32, § 13, p. 90—The voice of the Father, which was heard on the holy mount, Mt. xvii. 5; 2 Pe. i. 17, .8, forms the groundwork of the succeeding part of his present discourse, ver. 28—43—see on ver. 45, p. 106.

27. They understood not—as before, when they sought to kill him for saying that God was his Father, ch. v. 18, § 23—Jesus after this proceeds to speak more plainly of the Father, ver. 28, .9.

NOTES.

desire his coming; but the Messiah that they expect will not come: and as they have rejected him who is the true and only Messiah, there remains no other salvation." Ἐν τῇ ἁμαρτίᾳ ὑμων ἀποθ, is a mode of expression formed on that of Eze. iii. 19; xviii. 26; xxxiii. 9, 18, "shall die in his iniquity." And ἁμαρτία may be here understood in a general way of that fountain and cause of all other sins and miseries, obstinate unbelief; which, in their case, shortly led to the crucifixion of their Saviour, and carried with it the Divine vengeance so soon to overtake them.'—Bloomf.]

Jno. viii. 22. Will he kill himself? 'This appears to have been a wilful perversion of our Lord's meaning; q. d. "What! will he make away with himself, to get away from this our pretended persecution?"'—see vii. 20, p. 92. Thus imputing to him what involved, even according to the opinion of the Jews, great criminality; for we find from Jos. Bell. iii. 14, that the Pharisees supposed the lowest pit of hell to be reserved for self-murderers.'—Ibid.

To such extreme misery were the Jews reduced at the destruction of Jerusalem, that multitudes of them committed suicide.

25. From the beginning. Some suppose that this refers to what had been said at the beginning of the present discourse, ver. 12, p. 100. He had before fully declared himself, ch. v. § 23. Others have supposed that the words might be rendered 'the Beginning,' which is also what I said unto you.'—See 'Scr. Illus.']

26. I have many things to say. By this he implied that he understood well their character, and was able to expose it.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. viii. 22. Awful is the case of those who mock at the warning words of the Redeemer! The Jewish nation soon plunged into self-destruction; and multitudes among them sought relief from the evils of life in the guilt of suicide.

[23 ver. It is good to make a clear distinction between that which is of God, and that which is not.]

24 ver. It is only through faith in Christ as the 'I AM,' the living life-giving One, that we can, any more than the Jews, escape from dying in our sins. Let us, from their case, be warned to flee from the wrath to come.

25 ver. Let us carefully trace the connection of the words of Christ from the beginning; and may we, as being new created in Christ Jesus, experience that he is indeed 'the Light of the world, the Beginning of the creation of God.'

26 ver. Let us listen now to the words of warning in the day of our merciful visitation, and not delay till the judgement be past, and the irrevocable sentence, like that upon Jerusalem, be declared, see Mt. xxiii. § 85, p. 320; Lu. xix. 41—4, § 82, p. 264.

[Let him who handles the words of God, be able to appeal to the God of truth as to One whom he knows, and who can witness to his integrity.]

HE THAT COMETH FROM ABOVE IS ABOVE ALL: HE THAT IS OF THE EARTH IS EARTHLY, AND SPEAKETH OF THE EARTH: HE THAT COMETH FROM HEAVEN IS ABOVE ALL.—John iii. 31.

JOHN viii. 28—32.

28 the Father. Then said Jesus unto-them, When ye-have-lifted-up ὑψωσητε the Son of man, then shall-ye-know that I am he, and that I-do nothing of myself; but as my 29 Father hath-taught me, I-speak these-things. And he that-sent me is with me: the 30 Father hath-not left me alone; for I do always those-things that-please him. As-he-spake these words, many believed on him.
31 Then said Jesus to those Jews which-believed on-him, If ye continue in my word, then 32 are-ye my disciples indeed; and ye-shall-know the truth, and the truth shall-make-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. viii. 28. lifted up the Son of man—see on ch. iii. 14, § 12, p. 85; xii. 32—4, § 92, p. 288.—Jesus here speaks 'of his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem,' Lu. ix. 31, § 51, p. 54.

then shall ye know—when on the day of Pentecost was given, in the descent of the Holy Spirit, the proof of Christ's ascension to the throne of the Father, Peter said, Ac. ii. 36, 'Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ.'—ver. 40, 'And with many other words did he (Peter) testify and exhort, saying, Save yourselves from this untoward generation.'—That very generation was made to know the truth of the words spoken to their fathers, Je. xliv. 28, 'and all the remnant of Judah, . . . shall know whose words shall stand, mine, or their's.'

nothing of myself—so ch. v. 19, 30, § 23, p. 177.

as my Father—ch. iii. 11, 32, §§ 12, 3, pp. 84, 90.

29. he that sent me is with me—see his words to Philip, ch. xiv. 10, 11, § 87, and also to Judas, not Iscariot, ver. 22, 23. ib.

not left me alone—see ver. 16, p. 101—and ch. xvi. 32, § 87.

those things that please him—so the Father witnessed at his baptism, Mt. iii. 17, § 8, and at his transfiguration, xvii. 5, § 51—His meat was to do the will of the Father that had sent him, Jno. iv. 34, § 13—see also v. 30; vi. 38, §§ 23, 43.

30. many believed—ch. vii. 31, p. 94; x. 42, § 57, p. 125; xi. 45, § 58, p. 132; xii. 11, § 81, p. 257; 42, 3, § 85, p. 310—'Among the chief rulers also many believed on him; but because of the Pharisees they did not confess him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue: for they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God.'—Such believers will not be acknowledged in the judgment, Mk. viii. 38, § 50, p. 43, 'Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation; of him also shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels.'

31. continue in my word—unlike the way-side hearer, who does not retain the word; does not understand it, Mt. xiii. 18, 9, § 33, p. 254—see ver. 43, p. 105—it is he who endureth to the end that shall be saved, Mt. xxiv. 13, § 86; He. x. 36—9, 'For ye have need of patience, that, after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise. 37, For yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry. 38, Now the just shall live by faith: but if any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him. 39, But we are not of them who draw back unto perdition; but of them that believe to the saving of the soul.'—A little after, ver. 44, p. 106, these seem to be addressed as having or their father, the devil, who 'abode not in the truth,'—it is also said unto them, ver. 45, 'Because I tell you the truth, ye believe me not.'—Their case is described, ch. xv. 6, 'If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned.'

then are ye, &c.—This is the true test of christian character, ch. xiv. 21, 'He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me:'—see 1 Jno. ii. 5; iii. 24; 2 Jno. 6.

32. know the truth—Ho. vi. 3, 'Then shall we know, if we follow on to know the LORD: his going forth is prepared as the morning; and he shall come unto us as the rain, as the latter and former rain unto the earth.'—The apostle could say, 2 Tι. i. 12, 'I know whom I have believed.'—John concludes his first epistle by declaring his knowledge of the truth, and warning against idols, 1 Jno. v. 20, 21, 'And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we may know him that is true, and we are in him that is true, even in his Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God, and eternal life. Little children, keep yourselves from idols.'

NOTES.

Jno. viii. 28. The Son of man. See NOTE, Mt. viii. 20, § 34, p. 265.

Know. However ignorant ye now are of me, when once ye have crucified me, and occasioned my exaltation to glory, either the happy influences of my spirit, or the miseries on yourselves and nation, will convince you that I act by my Father's authority, and have faithfully declared his doctrines, promises, and threatenings.

29. Those things that please him. See Mt. iii. 17, § 8, p. 60, 'This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.'—Phil. ii. 8, 9; Is. liii. 10, 2. . . . . 2 Pe. i. 17, 'For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.' Mt. xvii. 5, § 51. His undertaking the work of redemption was pleasing to God, and he had the consciousness that in executing it he did those things which God approved.

31. If ye continue. μεινητε, 'dwell,' as a man doth at home, which is his centre, and rest, and refuge.

32. Shall know the truth. Jesus is himself the TRUTH—see ch. xiv. 6, § 87. He is the truth of all those shadows to which the Jews were in bondage under the law.—See NOTE, ch. vii. 17, p. 91, 'If any man will do his will.'

The truth shall make you free. καὶ ἡ ἀλήθεια, meaning, 'the truth as it is in Jesus, will free you from the bondage to sin and Satan,' and place you in 'the glorious liberty of the children of God.'—See Rom. viii. 2, 15, 21.

The condition of a sinner is that of a captive or a slave to sin. He is one who serves and obeys the dictates of an evil heart, and the corrupt desires of an evil nature.—See 'Scrip. Illus.,' ver. 34.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. viii. 28. May we, in our blessed experience, know that he who was lifted up on the cross, is exalted to the throne of the Father, and hath, as made known on the day of Pentecost, received gifts to give unto men. May we know the Son of God in his saving grace, so shall we not know him in his avenging power.

29 ver. Not only at his Baptism and Transfiguration was Jesus acknowledged by the Father as his 'BELOVED SON,' in whom he is well pleased; the same acceptance of Christ, as our High Priest, is declared in every one who is given to experience the blessedness of walking with God.

31 ver. Let us not merely begin, but let us continue, to attend to the instructions of Christ; and let us see that our believing on him is with knowledge and in truth.

[32 ver. Let us truly seek to know the truth, in opposition to all the deceptions of Satan, and our own deceitful hearts; that, set free from the thraldom of sin, we may serve God in the liberty of the sonship.]

JOHN viii. 33—.9.

33 you'-free. They-answered him, We-be Abraham's seed, and were-' never'-in-bondage 34 δεδουλευκαμεν to-any-man: how sayest thou, Ye-shall-be-made free? Jesus answered them, Verily, verily, I-say unto-you, Whosoever committeth ποιων sin is the-servant of 35 sin. And the servant abideth not in the house for ever εις τον αιωνα: but the Son 36 abideth ever εις τον αιωνα. If the Son therefore shall-make-' you'-free, ye-shall-be 37 free indeed. I-know that ye-are Abraham's seed; but ye-seek to-kill me, because my 38 word hath-' no'-place ου χωρει in you. I speak that-which I-have-seen with παρα my 39 Father: and ye do that-which ye-have-seen with παρα your father. They-answered and

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. viii. 32. make you free—see ver. 36.

33. We be Abraham's seed—see on Lu. i. 55, § 2, p. 12—The Lord made a covenant with Abraham, saying, Ge. xvii. 7, 'I will establish my covenant between me and thee and thy seed after thee in their generations for an everlasting covenant, to be a God unto thee, and to thy seed after thee.'—This covenant the Lord confirmed by an oath, xxii. 16, saying, ver. 17, 'In blessing I will bless thee,'—ver. 18, 'And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed.'—The sign of circumcision was given in connection with the covenant, Rom. iv. 11, 'A seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had yet being uncircumcised:'—God requires the circumcision of the heart, Je. iv. 4; Rom. ii. 28, .9—So that being merely of the seed of Abraham according to the flesh, did not secure the blessing of Abraham, as had been abundantly shewn by Moses, De. xxviii. 32—The Baptist had pointed to a more important respect in which men may become children of Abraham, when he said to the Jews, Mt. iii. 9, § 7, 'Think not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.'

bondage—The Lord had forbid that the children of Israel, whom he had brought forth out of Egypt, should be sold for bondmen, Le. xxv. 42—but the threatening was soon to be accomplished, De. xxviii. 68, 'The LORD shall bring thee into Egypt again with ships, by the way whereof I spake unto thee, Thou shalt see it no more again: and there ye shall be sold unto your enemies for bondmen and bondwomen, and no man shall buy you.'

34. committeth sin—1 Jno. iii. 4, 'transgresseth also the law:'—ver. 8, 'is of the devil;'—ver. 9, 'Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin.'

servant of sin—Pr. v. 22, .3, see border- Rom. vi. 16—20, 'Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?' &c.—see of Simon Magus, Ac. viii. 23, 'For I perceive that thou art in the gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity.'—2 Pe. ii. 19, 'While they promise them liberty, they themselves are the servants of corruption: for of whom a man is overcome, of the same is he brought in bondage.'

35. servant abideth not—Ga. iv. 30, 'What saith the scripture? Cast out the bondwoman and her son: for the son of the bondwoman shall not be heir with the son of the freewoman.'—Comp. Ge. xxi. 10.

36. free indeed—Rom. vi. 14, 'For sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace.'—ver. 22, 'Being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life.'—ch. viii. 2, 'For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death.'—See also Ga. v. 1, 13; Ja. i. 25; ii. 12; 1 Pe. ii. 16.

37. Abraham's seed—see on ver. 33, supra—They were Abraham's seed according to the flesh; but, as here noticed, they wanted the most essential requisite to the being truly his seed—the having in them the good seed of the word—see ver. 40, p. 105.

kill me—ver. 40; ch. vii. 19—25, pp. 92, .3.

38. seen with my Father—ver. 28, .9, p. 103; iii. 11, § 12, p. 84.

your father—see ver. 44, p. 106.

NOTES.

[Jno. viii. 33. They answered him. It has been thought that these are distinct from such as before were said to have believed in him, but there is no hint of this given by the evangelist; their belief was without an understanding of the relation in which themselves stood to God, and consequently without the knowledge of their need of Christ as a Divine Redeemer.]

[Never in bondage. They could not well say that they as a nation had been, or were then, free from political bondage. They were bondmen in Egypt, and subsequently were brought into subjection by the Moabites, Ammonites, Philistines, and Babylonians; and at this very time they were under the Roman yoke, and paid tribute to Cæsar: but it is possible that they may have referred to personal slavery, from which they would of course deem themselves free. If these persons were only professed believers, and in reality enemies of Christ; and if they supposed him to speak of political bondage, they would naturally be desirous that Jesus should explain himself more fully, that they might have wherewith to accuse him. So those who feigned themselves just men, and professed faith in his teaching, Lu. xx. 20, .1, § 81, p. 235.]

[34. Committeth sin. ποιων αμαρτιαν, 'worketh,' or acteth known sin. 'Every one that makes sin,' makes contrivances of sin, makes provision for the flesh, deviseth iniquity, &c. If there were among the persons present those who feigned themselves to be believing listeners, but who really were in a plot to procure a shew of evidence for his condemnation, these words may have a special application to their case, as well as that they contained a general truth.]

35. The servant abideth not. Here we have an illustration drawn from what is usual in common life; q. d., 'The slave has no claim to remain continually in the same family; but may, at the pleasure of his owner, be sold unto another.'

36. Son . . . shall make you free. Alluding to a custom among the Romans of a son's making free, after his father's death, such as were born slaves in his house.

[* Ver. 36 contains another view, engrafted on the former; the comparison being the same, but the application different. And as, in the foregoing verse,

PRACTICAL. REFLECTIONS.

Jno. viii. 33. Let us beware of trusting in the flesh, and as little let us presume that we are blameless, because sentence against our evil works may not have been executed speedily. Delay, as in the case of the unbelieving Jews, may only result in the more terrible destruction.

34 ver. There are none so sunk in slavery as those who labour to accomplish sinful contrivances.

[35, .6 ver. The true believer has not only the privilege of being set free from the slavery of sin, but also from the bondage of those typical rites in which the servants of God had, under the law, in comparative darkness to labour, until life and immortality were brought to light by the gospel.]

39 ver. It is not a mere profession of faith, any more than mere natural descent, that will truly constitute

HIS OWN INIQUITIES SHALL TAKE THE WICKED HIMSELF, AND HE SHALL BE HOLDEN WITH THE CORDS OF HIS SINS.—PROV. v. 22.
HE SHALL DIE WITHOUT INSTRUCTION; AND IN THE GREATNESS OF HIS FOLLY HE SHALL GO ASTRAY.—PROV. v. 23.

JOHN viii. 39—43.

said unto-him, Abraham is our father. Jesus saith unto-them, If ye-were Abraham's 40 children, ye-would-do the works of Abraham. But now ye-seek to-kill me, a-man that hath-told you the truth, which I-have-heard of παρα God: this did not Abraham.
41 Ye do the deeds of your father. Then said-they to-him, We be-not-born of fornication;
42 we-have one Father, even God. Jesus said unto-them, If God were your Father, ye-would-love me: for I proceeded-forth and came from God εκ του Θεου εξηλθον και ηκω; 43 neither came-I of myself, but he sent me. Why do-ye-not-understand my speech?

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. viii 39. Abraham is our father—see on ver. 33, p. 104—Believers are more nearly related to Abraham than those who are merely his descendants according to the flesh, Ga. iii. 7, 'Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham.'—ver. 29, 'If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise.' —In the parable, Lu. xvi. 23—31, § 69, p. 200, a son of Abraham is represented as crying to him from hell, without deriving the least advantage from his natural relationship—but Ga. iii. 9, 'they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham.'

If ye were, &c.—Implying that their natural descent and circumcision in the flesh, did not constitute them children of Abraham, so as to make them heirs with him of the blessing—see on ver. 33, p. 104.

works of Abraham—Abraham, who was justified by faith, Rom. iv., was equally remarkable as being justified by works, Ja. ii. 21—3.

40. the truth—Ga. iv. 16, 'Am I therefore become your enemy, because I tell you the truth?'

heard of God—see on ver. 26, p. 102.

this did not Abraham—Abraham heard and was obedient to the words of God, Ge. xii. 1, 4; xv. 1, 6; xvii. 1, &c., 23; xxii. . . .—Abraham risked his life in behalf of Lot, whose conduct towards him had been selfish and ungenerous; and acted most generously, not only towards him, but also to the people of Sodom, who seem to have had no claim upon his kindness, except their being in distress, xiii. 8; xiv. 14, &c. —He received with the most polite attention the wayfaring strangers, and entertained them with his best, xviii. 1—8—One of them, we afterward find, was the Lord himself, ver. 13, 4, whom Abraham's descendants were now minded to kill: whereas Abraham interceded, with the most earnest importunity, for even the wicked people of Sodom, ver. 17—33—see also PRAC. REFLEC.

41. born of fornication—to be children of fornication, is an expression denoting in the scriptures idolatry, or the worship of other than the true God, Is. i. 21. . . . lvii. 3. . . . Ho. i. 2; ii. 4.

42. If God were your Father, &c.—1 Jno. v. 1, 'Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God: and every one that loveth him that begat loveth him also that is begotten of him.'

I proceeded forth and came from God—to be of God, born of God, sent of God, are terms used of believers and prophets, ver. 47; 1 Jno. iv. 4; v. 1: but the expression here used is peculiar to Christ; it denotes his Divine original as well as mission; that he is of the Father as a Son of his own essence, proceeding from him, as well as that he came from the Father as a Divine Messenger. The form of expression εκ του Θεου εξηλθον, is often used by the LXX. to signify a proper birth when applied to man, Ge. xv. 4; xxxv. 11—It is used of Christ with respect to his human birth, Is. xi. 1, 'And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a Branch shall grow out of his roots:'—Guyse—comp. Jno. vi. 46, § 43; vii. 29, p. 94; xiii. 3, § 87—see xvi. 27, 8; xvii. 7, 8, 26.

he sent me—Thus he has explained what they did not understand, that he had spoken of God as his Father, who had sent him, see ver. 26, 7, p. 102, and comp. therewith ver. 28—42; thus he has again declared the same truth for which they formerly sought to kill him, ch. v. 18, § 23; and again x. 31, 3, § 56, p. 122.

43. Why do ye not unaerstand?—see ver. 27, p. 102, 'They understood not,' &c.

NOTES.

there is a comparison between the state of a slave and that of the son and heir, so in this there is one between the freedom communicated by the master and that by his son, with the concurrence of his father. For as there were cases in which a proprietor could not manumit without the consent of the son and heir, or at least a manumission in which the son concurred with the father might be regarded as being doubly effectual; so the freedom and salvation produced by the conjoint manumission of both Father and Son is most truly effectual. "Ουτως ελευθεροι has reference, not merely . . . . to the freedom from the tyranny of evil passions, but that freedom accomplished by Divine grace from "the dominion of sin," —see Rom. vi. 17—which implies an introduction into "the glorious liberty of the children of God," viii. 21, 3; ix. 4.'—Bloomf.]

Jno. viii. 39. Would do the works of Abraham. Resemble him in faith and holiness.

40. Ye seek to kill me. See ver. 37.

This did not Abraham. There are two things noted here in which they differed from Abraham, and followed their father, who was a murderer and a liar from the beginning: 1st, In seeking to kill him, or possessing a murderous and bloody purpose. 2nd, In rejecting the truth as God revealed it.

[37—41. I know that ye are the natural descendants of Abraham; but ye are so far from being like him in his faith or obedience, that ye seek to murder me, merely because your own proud and carnal hearts cannot relish nor receive the self-humbling doctrine which I preach unto you. I speak and act as one intimately acquainted with God my Father, and obedient to him; and ye act as under the influence of the devil as your true father, and in communion and concert with him; a very sure evidence that ye are not the genuine and believing children of Abraham.]

[42. I proceeded forth, &c. εξηλθον και ηκω. 'The full sense is, "I proceeded forth [from God], and am come into the world [as his Legate]." A sense of ηκω found in the Greek tragedians. The former term (εξηλθον) has reference to the character of Jesus as the eternal Son of God; the latter, his character as Legate and Mediator.'—Bloomf.]

43. Why, &c. 'Speech,' λαλια, refers to the manner of speaking, meaning, 'How is it that [as ye say] ye us children of Abraham; we must be found in the steps of Abraham, acting out the same faith in God, and exercising the same good will towards men.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. viii. 40. Let us, like Abraham, be ready to entertain strangers; and especially let us, like him, obediently listen to the voice of the Lord. Let us hear patiently the truth, even when spoken by man in reproach or reproof; and, like Abraham, answer it with prayer for the reprover.—See Ge. xx.

41 ver. Let us not flatter ourselves, that because we are not in the same respect as some others, children of the devil, that therefore we are children of God.

42 ver. Let us shew our love to God by our love to his only begotten Son, and by our loving all who, through him, are made partakers of the Divine nature.

43 ver. Let our earnest desire be to hear the words of Jesus; so may we expect to understand their import.

BUT HE IS A JEW, WHICH IS ONE INWARDLY; AND CIRCUMCISION IS THAT OF THE HEART, IN THE SPIRIT, AND NOT IN THE LETTER; WHOSE PRAISE IS NOT OF MEN, BUT OF GOD.—Rom. ii. 29.

JOHN viii. 44—50.

44 even because ye-can not hear my word. Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye-will do. He was a-murderer ἀνθρωποκτονος from the-beginning, and abode ἑστηκεν not in the truth, because there-is no truth in him. When he-speaketh a 45 lie, he-speaketh of his-own: for he-is a-liar, and the father of-it. And because I tell 46 you the truth, ye-believe me not. Which of you convinceth ελεγχει me of sin? And if 47 I-say the-truth, why do-ye not-believe me? He that-is of God heareth God's words:
48 ye therefore hear them not, because ye-are not of God. Then answered the Jews, and 49 said unto-him, Say we not well that thou art a-Samaritan, and hast a-devil? Jesus an-50 swered, I have not a-devil; but I-honour my Father, and ye do-dishonour me. And I

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. viii. 43. can not hear, &c.—When we compare the freedom with which he is allowed, on the present occasion, to declare the same truth for which he was before, and is afterwards, charged with blasphemy, and thought worthy of stoning, see on ver. 42, supra, we may with some reason suppose that they were already made to experience judicial blindness, with which they have been now, ver. 24, p. 102, and are afterwards threatened, ch. ix. 39, p. 113; xii. 35, .6, 40, §§ 82, .5.

44. your father the devil—see ver. 41, &c.; Mt. xiii. 38, § 23, p. 260; 1 Jno. iii. 8—10; Ac. xiii. 10, 'Thou child of the devil,' &c.

a murderer—1 Jno. iii. 12. 'Cain, who was of that wicked one, and slew his brother. And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous.'

abode not in the truth—Jude 6, 'The angels which kept not their first estate,' &c.—see ver. 31, p. 103.

he is a liar—1 Jno. ii. 22, 'Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ?'—iv. 1, 'Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God:'—ver. 3, 'Every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God.'

45. the truth—He had told them the truth respecting himself as being the Son of God, ver. 28, p. 103—in whom the Father is well pleased, 29—whose word is to be heard, and ever followed, as the very truth of God, 31, .2—he had told them the truth respecting themselves as being in bondage to sin, 33, .4—from which he was the Redeemer, 35, .6—They being in estrangement from God and his goodness, 37—42, and unwilling to be reconciled to the truth, would not be obedient to the voice, 'Hear ye him,' 43, 4.

ye believe me not—If these are the same people spoken of, ver. 30, p. 103, and whom Jesus proceeded to address, ver. 31, it follows that there was a sense in which they believed on him, and one in which they did not; just as there was a sense in which they were the children of Abraham, ver. 37, and one in which they were not, ver. 39; they might believe him to work miracles, and perhaps to be Christ, but they would not hear him as speaking of their need of redemption from the bondage of sin, ver. 33, &c.

46. convinceth me of sin—They had accused him of the sin of breaking the sabbath, and of the sin of blasphemy, for saying, 'that God was his Father, making himself equal with God,' ch. v. 18, § 23—On the great day of the feast, he boldly challenged his opposers upon the first count, vii. 21—6, p. 93. On the present occasion he as boldly provokes discussion upon the second charge, and defends the doctrine of his proper Sonship and Divine mission, viii. 16—42—to which the Father had since given witness, Mt. xvii. 5, § 51. Jesus has thus, with the greatest publicity, courted investigation, both with regard to his practice and his doctrine, in Jno. vii., viii.

47. heareth God's words—Our Lord has been discoursing on the blessing of obedience to the Father's command, 'Hear ye him,' 31—45. On hearing the words of Christ, see ch. x. 26, .7, § 56, p. 121; xiv. 23; xv. 14—.6; xvi. 27; xvii. 6—8, § 87.

48. Samaritan—see ch. iv. 9, § 13, p. 92, 'The Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans.'

a devil—The Jews could not altogether deny that Jesus manifested extraordinary power; but although that power was exercised only for good, the Pharisees ascribed it to the devil, Mt. xii. 24, § 31, p. 235—To this opinion of the Pharisees these Jews now seem to incline; in a little after, ver. 52, they venture still farther, and roundly assert what they here venture to insinuate.

NOTES.

do not understand my speech? even because ye cannot (or, are not disposed to) hearken and give heed to my words.'

Jno. viii. 44. Of your father the devil. That is, you have the temper, disposition, or spirit of the devil. You are influenced by him, you imitate him, and ought therefore to be called his children.

He speaketh of his own. ἐκ των ἰδιων λαλει, 'he speaketh of his own offspring,' or, 'from his own disposition,' for he is the father and fountain of all error and falsity.

The father of it. The father, or originator of falsehood. The word 'it' refers to lie, or falsehood understood. From him falsehood first proceeded, and all liars possess his spirit, and are under his influence.

45. And because, &c. 'The connection is, Ye also, like "your father the devil," are averse to truth; and, therefore, "because,"' &c.—Lonsdale.

46. Convinceth. ελεγχει, 'convicteth.'

Of sin. περι ἁμαρτιας, 'error, falsehood, a departure from truth.'

47. Heareth God's words. Listens to, or attends to the doctrines or commandments of God, as a child who loves his parent will regard and obey his commandments.

48. Thou art a Samaritan. This imputation was the most reproachful possible; the term implied that he was an idolater and a schismatic, and included everything that was odious and despicable.

And hast a devil. See ch. vii. 20, p. 92. This charge they brought against him because he had said that they were not of God, or not the friends of God. This they regarded as the same as taking side with the Samaritans; for the question between the Jews and Samaritans was, which of them worshipped God aright; ch. iv. 20, § 13, p. 93.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. viii. 44. If men would be kept from saying and doing evil, they must have a new birth from God—must submit themselves to Him as their Father, to be formed after the image of his dear Son.

[45 ver. It is an awful punishment of a deceiving spirit, to be left without the power of believing the truth.]

46 ver. If a witness be blameless, and what he says be TRUTH, we have certainly a full warrant for receiving his testimony, however the will or the wishes of men may oppose. The truth is to be received by whomsoever spoken. Truth as such has the stamp of Divine authority, and needs not the authority of man to give it currency.

47—9 ver. Let us shew that we are the children of God by obediently hearing his words. And let us seek to honour Him by calling the attention of others to what He hath spoken.

THIS IS THE CONDEMNATION, THAT LIGHT IS COME INTO THE WORLD, AND MEN LOVED DARKNESS RATHER THAN LIGHT, BECAUSE THEIR DEEDS WERE EVIL.—John iii. 19.

THE WISEST WITH RESPECT TO TEMPORAL THINGS, ARE OFTEN BLIND WITH RESPECT TO THINGS SPIRITUAL.

EITHER GET THE NATURE OF CHRIST WITHIN YOU, OR TAKE NOT THE NAME OF CHRISTIAN UPON YOU.

JOHN viii. 51.—8.

51 seek not mine-own glory: there-is one that-seeketh and judgeth. Verily, verily, I-say unto-you, If a-man keep [a] τηρηῃ my saying, he-shall-never-see ου μη θεωρηση εις τον 52 αιωνα death. Then said the Jews unto-him, Now we-know that thou-hast a-devil. Abraham is-dead, and the prophets; and thou sayest, If a man keep my saying, he-shall-never 53 εις τον αιωνα-taste of-death. Art thou greater than our father Abraham, which is-dead?
54 and the prophets are-dead: whom makest thou thyself? Jesus answered, If I honour δοξαζω myself, my honour is nothing: it-is my Father that honoureth me; of-whom ye 55 say, that he-is your God: yet ye-have-not-known him; but I know him: and if I-should-say, I-know him not, I-shall-be a-liar like-unto you: but I know him, and keep 56 his saying. Your father Abraham rejoiced ηγαλλιασατο to see my day ινα ιδη την 57 ημεραν την εμην: and he-saw it, and was-glad εχαρη. Then said the Jews unto him, 58 Thou-art [b] not-yet fifty years-old, and hast-thou-seen Abraham? Jesus said unto-them,

[a] Or, observe.

[b] Or, hast not yet fifty years.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. viii. 50. seek not mine own glory—see ch. vii. 18, p. 92.

one that seeketh—declaring this by his voice from heaven, Mt. iii. 17, § 8, p. 59, and xvii. 5, § 51—and by his prophets—see Ac. iii. 22—4.

and judgeth—De. xviii. 19, 'Whosoever will not hearken unto my words which he shall speak in my name, I will require it of him.'

51. never see death—see ch. v. 24, § 25; vi. 40, § 43; xi. 26, § 58.

52. Now we know—they had just before ventured upon the supposition, ver. 48.

and the prophets, &c.—They may here have referred to the words of scripture, Zec. i. 5, 'Your fathers, where are they? and the prophets, do they live for ever?'—but had they looked at the preceding and succeeding verses, 4 and 6, they would have met with words of warning, especially applicable to their own case, as refusing to hear the words of God.

54. honour myself—so he had said, ch. v. 31, § 23, 'If I bear witness of myself, my witness is not true.'

my Father that honoureth me—2 Pe. i. 17, 'For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him (Hear ye him) from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.'—See on ver. 45, 7, p. 106.

of whom ye say, &c.—see ver. 41, p. 105.

55. not known him—see ch. vii. 28, 9, p. 94; —xvii. 25, 'O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee: but I have known thee, and these,' &c.

but I know him—see ch. i. 18, 'No man hath seen,' &c.—Mt. xi. 27, § 29, p. 228, 'neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son,' &c.

like unto you—Jesus was directly in contrast to them; they contradicted in word and act, that which they in their consciences had approved—comp. on ver. 31, p. 103.

and keep his saying—The saying of the Father on the holy mount, is in the present discourse applied by Jesus to the character and condition of his audience—comp. Mt. xvii. 5, § 51, with Jno. viii. 28—47.

56. rejoiced to see—Lu. x. 24, § 60, p. 145, 'Many prophets and kings have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them;'—contrast the case of Abraham, infra.

and he saw—The Lord appeared to 'Abraham, when he was in Mesopotamia,' Ac. vii. 2; and again at Sichem, Ge. xii. 6, 7—see his meeting with Melchizedek, xiv. 18—20—and comp. He. vii. 1—10—the Lord again appeared to Abraham, Ge. xvii.—and confirmed the covenant made with him, ch. xv.—the Lord also came to him as a wayfarer, and gave assurance of the birth of Isaac (laughter or gladness), ch. xviii.

NOTES.

[Jno. viii. 50. I seek not mine own glory. ἐγὼ δὲ οὐ ζητῶ, &c. The full sense is, 'However, it is not my part to vindicate my honour [nor need I]; there is a Being who will vindicate it, and hold judgment on men as to their reception of me.']

51. He shall never see death. To see death, or to taste of death, is the same as to die, Lu. ii. 26, § 4; Mt. xvi. 28; Mk. ix. 1, § 50. The sense of this passage is, 'He shall obtain eternal life, or he shall be raised up to that life where there shall be no death.'—See Jno. vi. 49, 50, § 43; iii. 36, § 13; v. 24, § 23; xi. 25, 6, § 58.

52. Thou sayest, If, &c. The Jews perverted his words, as if he spake of temporal death.

53. Whom makest thou thyself? Or, whom dost thou pretend to be? Although the greatest of the prophets have died, yet thou, a Nazarene, pretendest that thou canst keep thy followers from dying!

54. If I honour myself. In reply to the objections of the Jews, our Lord now observes, that if he claimed this honour for himself, upon his own testimony alone, 'it was nothing,' or a vain glory, like that of ambitious worldly men; but his Father had conferred it on him, and testified in various ways that it belonged to him.

[56. Rejoiced to see. ἠγαλλιασατο ἵνα ἴδῃ, 'was even transported with a joyful desire that he might see my day.' The expression may, with the strictest propriety, signify, 'leaping forward with joy to meet the object of our wishes,' as well as exulting in the possession of it.]

57. Fifty. Christ was now not thirty-five; yet, worn with labours, he might appear older than he was. It may be, however, that half a century is here used proverbially.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Jno. viii. 50. Let us have a supreme regard to the glory of God in the vindication of his truth; and however we may for a time be covered with reproach, we may rest assured, that he will at length bring forth our righteousness as the light.]

[51 ver. Do we indeed believe that which Jesus so solemnly affirms, that in the keeping of his saying there is everlasting life?]

52 ver. They who are on the watch for evil, will turn the very word of life into death unto themselves.

54, 5 ver. May we duly attend to that saying which Jesus so highly valued, and whereby he received from the Father honour and glory. It is made known to us for our salvation, 'This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; Hear ye him.'

58 ver. Jesus is from the beginning the I AM, 'the Light of life,' as able to give joy as in the days of Abraham; and as willing to bless, as when among Abraham's descendants he tabernacled in the flesh.

JOHN viii. 59.

59 Verily, verily, I-say unto-you, Before Abraham was, I am. Then took-they-up stones to cast at him: but Jesus hid-himself ἐκρύβη, and went out-of the temple, going through the-midst of-them, and so passed-by παρῆγεν.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. viii. 58. I am—I am, though in the present tense, is clearly designed to express a past time. Thus, in Ps. xc. 2, 'From everlasting to everlasting, thou art God.' The expression, applied to God, denotes that he does not measure his existence in this manner, but that the word by which we express the present denotes his continued and unchanging existence. Hence he assumes it as his name, 'I AM,' and 'I AM THAT I AM,' Ex. iii. 14—comp. Is. xliv. 6; xlvii. 8—and this declaration corresponds to the affirmation of Jno. i. 1, that he was in the beginning with God, and was God.

NOTES.

Jno. viii. 58. Verily, verily. This is an expression used only in John, expressing strong affirmation, and particularly the great importance of what was about to be affirmed.

[I am. Denotes a priority of existence, together with a continuation of it to the present time. He uses the same expression which the eternal God does of himself, Ex. iii. 14. He signifies to them that he is that very Divine Being which was revealed to Moses under the name 'I AM.' Πριν Αβρααμ γενεσθαι, εγω ειμι, 'before Abraham was made or born, I am.' An unexceptionable translation would be, 'before Abraham existed, I myself existed.']

59. Then took they up stones. It seems they understood him as blaspheming; and proceeded, even without form of trial, to stone him, because this was the punishment prescribed in the law for blasphemy, Le. xxiv. 16; see Jno. x. 31, § 56, p. 122.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. viii. 59. May we never incur the awful punishment, of which the Jews, who took up stones to stone him, were now given a sign, in Jesus hiding himself from them, and so passing by.

[Lesson 53.]—Jesus heals a blind man, and delivers the parable of the Good Shepherd. John ix.—x. 21.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Jno. ix. 1. While passing from the Jews, Jesus sees a man who had been blind from his birth.

—— 2. The disciples inquire into the cause of the man's blindness, supposing it to be sin, either in himself or his parents.

—— 3—5. Jesus tells his disciples, to regard this affliction rather as an occasion of working the works of God; an opportunity of doing good which must instantly be improved; and that his mission is to give light unto the world.

—— 6, 7. Jesus anoints the eyes of the blind man with clay, and sends him to the pool of Siloam, to wash; which, having done, the man returns seeing.

—— 8—12. Those who had previously known the man, being at length satisfied that he is the same who sat and begged, inquire how the change was effected, when he gives a faithful account of the occurrence.

—— 13—7. The man being brought to the Pharisees, and it having been on the sabbath that the good work was wrought on him, he is again examined with regard to the manner in which the cure was performed; some of them conclude that this was a breach of the sabbath, and a proof that Jesus could not be of God; but others question whether a wicked man would be able to perform such miracles. They ask the man to give his opinion. He confesses Jesus to be 'a prophet.'

—— 18—23. The Jews being rather unbelieving as to the reality of such a change, call the parents of the man, and inquire whether he had indeed been born blind, and how he had received his sight? They give a direct answer to the former inquiry; but avoid saying anything on the latter point, being afraid of excommunication should they be drawn into an acknowledgment that Jesus is the Christ. They refer to their son for a statement of the facts.

—— 24. The Jews call upon the man to 'give God the praise;' but wish him to say that Jesus is a sinner.

—— 25. The man will not acknowledge what he does not know, that Jesus is a sinner; but confesses what he does know, his having received sight.

—— 26. They again ask the man how his eyes had been opened.

—— 27. The man evades the question, and inquires into their motive for asking again. Would they also become Jesus' disciples?

—— 28, 9. They revile the man, and boast of being Moses' disciples. They know that God spake to Moses; but as to Jesus, whom they refuse even to name, they know nothing of whence he is.

Jno. ix. 30—3. The man thinks their ignorance marvellous, considering that the miracle wrought upon himself was a sufficient evidence of the Divine mission of Jesus.

—— 34. They spurn at the deserved reproof of the man that had been born blind and cast him out of the synagogue.

—— 35. Jesus having heard of the man being cast out, finds him, and asks whether he believes on the Son of God.

—— 36. The man being prepared to listen to Jesus as a fully accredited messenger of God, asks who the Son of God is, that he might believe on him.

—— 37. Jesus tells the man that he whom he now sees and hears, is the Son of God.

—— 38. The man believes in Christ, and worships him.

—— 39. Jesus intimates that the case here presented is not a singular one; that for judgment he was come into the world, that the blind might see, and the seeing be made blind.

—— 40. The Pharisees ask, 'Are we blind also?'

—— 41. Jesus tells them, that if they had been as the man who they said was altogether born in sin, they would have no sin; and that their pride of knowledge was the cause of their remaining in ignorance.

—— x. 1—6. Jesus delivers the parable of the sheepfold; describing his shepherds and his sheep.

—— 7—10. Jesus explains the parable, shewing farther the character and privileges of his sheep.

—— 11—5. The Good Shepherd contrasted with the hireling.

—— 16. Jesus speaks of the other sheep which should hear his voice, &c.

—— 17. The Father loves the Son because of his suffering for man's redemption.

—— 18. The Saviour lays down his life freely, and yet according to the Father's commandment.

—— 19—21. The Jews are divided in opinion respecting him; some express the very worst notions of the supernatural power whereby he speaks; others think that both his words and working give evidence of the contrary.

NOT MANY WISE MEN AFTER THE FLESH, NOT MANY MIGHTY, NOT MANY NOBLE, ARE CALLED.—1 Cor. i. 26.
THEY THAT ARE CHRIST'S HAVE CRUCIFIED THE FLESH WITH THE AFFECTIONS AND LUSTS.—Gal. v. 24.

NO ACT OF FAITH MORE STRENGTHENS FOR DUTY, THAN THAT WHICH EYES GOD'S ALMIGHTY POWER ENGAGED FOR ITS ASSISTANCE.

SIN IS IN THE SAINT, THAT IS HIS LAMENTATION; HIS SOUL IS NOT IN SIN, THAT IS HIS CONSOLATION

Jesus heals a blind man. John ix. 1—6.

1 And as Jesus passed-by παραγων, he-saw a-man which was blind from his birth.
2 And his disciples asked him, saying, Master, who did-sin, this-man, or his parents, that 3 he-was-born blind? Jesus answered, Neither hath this-man sinned, nor his parents:
4 but that the works of God should-be-made-manifest in him. I must work the works of-
5 him that-sent me, while it-is day: the-night cometh, when no-man can work. As-long-6 as I-am in the world ὁταν εν τῳ κοσμῳ ω, I-am the-light of-the world. When-he-had-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. ix. 2. who did sin, &c.—see on Lu. xiii. 2, 3, § 61, 'Suppose ye that these Galilæans,' &c.—see also the supposition of the barbarians with regard to Paul, Ac. xxviii. 4.

3. the works of God—Jesus had before said, ch. vi. 29, § 43, 'This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom He hath sent.' This great work we afterwards find effected in the case of the man born blind —see ver. 35—8, infra.

manifest in him—In this man was manifested, first, obedience to the Lord, in doing what was for his own deliverance, ver. 7—secondly, faithfulness in testifying of the Lord before men, according to the knowledge he possessed, ver. 30—3—thirdly, submitting himself to the Lord for instruction and in devotion, ver. 36—8.

4. I must work the works, &c.—see ch. iv. 34, § 13, p. 95, 'My meat,' &c. Jesus, when referring to the proofs of his Messiaship, had said, ch. v. 36, § 23, p. 179, 'But I have greater witness than that of John:

for the works which the Father hath given me to finish, the same works that I do, bear witness of me, that the Father hath sent me.'—He again points to these works, saying, ch. x. 32, 'Many good works have I shewed you from my Father; for which of those works do ye stone me?' § 56, p. 122.

while it is day—the time of Jerusalem's merciful visitation, Is. i. 16—20. . . . . to which our Lord again refers, Lu. xix. 42—4, § 82, p. 264; Jno. xi. 9, § 58, p. 128, 'Are there not twelve hours in the day?'

the night cometh—of which the prophets had spoken, Is. lix. 9—11; Je. xiii. 16; and of which the Jews were also forewarned by Jesus, Jno. xii. 35, &c., § 82, p. 269.

5. the light of the world—see on ch. viii. 12, p. 100—Jesus not only opened the eyes of the man born blind, ver. 7, but poured into his mind the light of life, making himself known as the Son of God, 35—9, p. 113.

NOTES.

Jno. ix. 1. A man . . . blind 'Acts iii. 2, supplies an example to prove that such, as from bodily infirmities of any kind were obliged to depend upon charity, resorted to the gates or the avenues of the temple; and resorted thither at the times of prayer in particular. This man was evidently an object of the former description, ver. 8, and known for such, who was accustomed to resort and to sit somewhere, begging; and the time when Jesus left the temple was, as we have supposed, about the middle of morning prayer.'—Gresweil.

2. Who did sin? &c. It is inferred that this question arose from a received opinion propagated by the Grecian philosophers, that the souls of men migrate from one body to another after death, and that it meant, 'Was it for some sin of his own when his soul was in another body, or for some sin of his parents at the time of his conception, that he was born blind?'

[3. Neither hath this man sinned, &c. What our Lord here affirms, furnishes no argument against original sin, in the child born blind; any more than it does against the actual sin of the parents. Though this blindness, viewed as a punishment, must have been the fruit of sin, yet it was not to be traced to any single or particular sin, either in this man or his parents.]

But that the works of God. In this man was manifested the power of Him who in the beginning said, 'Let there be light.' He was given the light of the body, ver. 7; and in him was signally shewn that good work to which Jesus had before referred, as more especially the work of God, ch. vi. 29, § 43, p. 327—and see ver. 38, p. 113, infra.

4. While it is day. The time of Jerusalem's merciful visitation.

The night cometh. When wrath would come upon the unbelieving Jews to the uttermost.

5. The light, &c. Includes a double meaning; he was, as predicted by Isaiah, to open the eyes of the blind physically and spiritually.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS

Jno. ix. 1. Let us be followers of Jesus, who, even in escaping from a violent death, neglects not to look upon the misery of others with compassionate regard.

2 ver. We should not infer the spiritual character of others, from the temporal privations they may be called to endure.

3, 4 ver. We should look upon the afflictions of those around us, as affording opportunity for working the works of God. The present is our time for doing good,—Let us work while the day lasts.

The time may come when necessity will cause the servants of God to desist from their labours in our long favoured land, and leave it to blight and barrenness. Let the time of fearful retribution for mercy misimproved and abused not be hastened and aggravated through any slackness of ours in working the works of God. Let us attentively consider the work of our day, and earnestly engage therein, and be most careful to leave no part of it until the night come, when no man can work. Such night hath followed the day, in almost every land between the British Isles and the lands in the East first visited by the Sun of Righteousness. Our day has been long, our opportunities have been great; how soon they may be less, yea, altogether lost, we know not. What reason have we to think that our case is to be an exemption from the common rule? Our national disregard of the purposes for which we have been given our strong position and eminent privileges has been most marked and even daring. Ours have been the religious privileges of Israel, the wealth of Babylon, the commerce of Tyre, the literature of Greece, and the triumphs and wide spread empire of Rome. We have much that is peculiar; and the blessings of all other states and empires we have for the gathering up. What have we rendered to the Lord for all his benefits? In too many instances, only so much as was agreeable to the world, or consistent with our worldly advantage. We have in general had only so much faith as sense would fully warrant. We have much faith as sense would fully warrant. We have much faith as sense would fully warrant. We have not, as we ought, walked in the light. O God of all light, fill with thy Holy Spirit, and enable us to do thy work faithfully! humbly following the footsteps of our Divine Redeemer, who esteemed it his meat and his drink to do the will of his Father. So may and his drink to do the will of his Father. So may night come to us with its needful repose, and so upon us will the day of the Lord arise with eternal gladness.

5 ver. Let the light of the follower of Jesus appear by his works, even when, like his Master in the present instance, he is hidden from the common view.

JOHN ix. 7—16.

thus spoken, he-spat on-the-ground, and made clay of the spittle, and he-anointed [a] the 7 eyes of-the blind-man with-the clay, and said unto-him, Go, wash in the pool of Siloam, (which is-by-interpretation, Sent απεσταλμενος.) He-went-his-way therefore, and washed, and came seeing.
8 The neighbours therefore, and they-which before had-seen him that he-was blind, 9 said, Is not this he that-sat and begged? Some said, This is he: others said, He-is 10 like him: but he said, I am he. Therefore said-they unto-him, How were thine eyes 11 opened? He answered and said, A-man that-is-called Jesus made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto-me, Go to the pool of Siloam, and wash: and I-went and 12 washed, and I-received-sight ανεβλεψα. Then said-they unto-him, Where is he? He-said, I-know not.
13 They-brought to the Pharisees him that aforetime was blind. 14 And it-was the-15 sabbath-day when Jesus made the clay, and opened his eyes. Then again the Pharisees also asked him how he-had-received-his-sight. He said unto-them, He-put clay upon 16 mine eyes, and I-washed, and do-see. Therefore said some of the Pharisees, This man

[a] Or, spread the clay upon the eyes of the blind man.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. ix. 6. he anointed the eyes—so when opening the eyes of a blind man, Mk. viii. 23, § 49, p. 34, he 'spit on his eyes, and put his hands upon him.'—To the angel of the church of the Laodiceans he says, Rev. iii. 18, 'Anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see.'

7. pool of Siloam—Ne. iii. 15, 'the pool of Siloah by the king's garden,'—These waters, which are said to issue from under the temple, seem to have represented something of greater importance; thus it is said, Is. viii. 6, 7, 'Forasmuch as this people refuseth the waters of Shiloah that go softly, and rejoice in Rezin and Remaliah's son; now therefore, behold, the Lord bringeth up upon them the waters of the river, strong and many,' &c.

by interpretation, Sent—Jesus had been multiplying proofs of his being the Sent of the Father, ch. v. 30—47, § 23, p. 178—he had cried as he taught in the temple, ch. vii. 37, 8, p. 95, 'If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink. He that believeth on me, as the scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water.'—His disciples were to be apostles, or persons sent forth conveying the water of life to others; so he said to them, ch. xx. 21—3, § 95, 'Peace be unto you: as my Father hath sent me, even so send I you... Receive ye the Holy Ghost: whose soever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them;' &c.—To Saul, afterwards the apostle of the Gentiles, he also said, Ac. xxvi. 17, 8, 'I send thee, to open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins,' &c.

11. A man that is called Jesus.—He had probably before heard Jesus speak, and knew the Good Shepherd by his voice: to which there may be allusion, ch. x. 4, &c.

made clay, &c.—The man simply narrates the matter as it had happened, ver. 6, 7—It is in the 'honest and good heart' that the good seed may be expected to take root, and bring forth fruit, Lu. viii. 15, § 33, p. 25*f*.

14. it was the sabbath day—Jesus had before, at Jerusalem, been charged with breaking the sabbath, in connection with a similar case, ch. v. 10, 6, 8, § 23, p. 176—He had since publicly vindicated his conduct on that occasion, vii. 21—4, p. 93.

NOTES.

Jno. ix. 6. And made clay, &c. The action itself could, of course, contribute nothing to the cure, but is to be considered as a symbolical one, such as the spitting on the eye, Mk. viii. 23, § 49, p. 34. See also vii. 33, § 46, p. 24. In imitation of this, the early Christians used, by a similar symbolical action, to anoint the eyes of the catechumens with clay. See Bingham's Eccl. Ant. x. 2. 14. Elisha commanded his staff to be laid on the face of the child that he was about to restore to life, 2 Ki. iv. 29. By this the prophet shewed that the miracle was wrought by power communicated through him. So in this case, Jesus, by this act, shewed to the blind man, that the healing power came from him who anointed his eyes.

He anointed. επεχρισεν, 'he spread.'

7. Go, wash. An instance somewhat similar occurs in the case of Naaman the Syrian leper, 2 Ki. v. 10. God has always a reason for all that he directs us to do; and our faith and willingness to obey him are often tried when we can see little of the reason of his requirements.

In the pool, &c. i.e., the fountain.

Siloam. This was without the walls, at the south-east angle of the city.—See Geog. Not. p. 118, 'Siloam.'—See Note, Lu. xiii. 4, § 64, p. 173, 'Tower in Siloam.'

[Which is by interpretation, Sent. Signifying the same as Shiloh; the meaning is, 'which by its name may put you in mind of Messiah, (who is styled Shiloh, the Sent,) by whom the miracle is wrought.' The interpretation of the name, however, is not likely to have been given by Jesus to the blind man. It was probably, as in many other cases, given by the Evangelist as writing in Greek.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. ix. 6. The first part of the process in opening the blind eyes, may sometimes seem the most unlikely for attaining the desired end. The most painful providences are not unfrequently preparatives for an enjoyment of spiritual vision.

[7 ver. Let us be obedient to Christ in the use of the means he prescribes; and however simple, we shall find them effectual for good. Let us be active in the use of the means of recovery made known to us, else we cannot expect that our case will be bettered, but rather made worse. It is by washing in the doctrine of the Shiloh, the Sent of God, that spiritual sight is given to those who were born blind.]

8—12 ver. That man is in a favourable state of mind, who is strictly regardful of truth in the reception of facts, freely confessing what he does know concerning the Saviour.

13 ver. Although Jesus had personally withdrawn from the presence of the Pharisees, yet in doing so, he leaves with them additional evidence of his being the Christ—comp. ver. 4, with ch. x. 25.

14 ver. How differently from the Jews had Jesus been engaged upon the sabbath—they, in contending against the truth, and in attempting his death—he, in instructing the ignorant, and in sealing his instructions by a miracle of mercy.

[15, 6 ver. It is matter for serious reflection, that even the strongest evidences for the Divine mission of Christ, were turned into charges against him by the greatest religious professors of the day.]

Jesus, at imminent risk, continued to perform miracles of mercy on the sabbath day teaching us to

JOHN ix. 17—25.

is not of παρα God, because he-keepeth not the sabbath-day. Others said, How can a-man that is a-sinner do such miracles? And there-was a-division σχισμα among them.
17 They-say unto-the blind-man again, What sayest thou of him, that he-hath-opened thine eyes? He said, He-is a-prophet.
18 But ουν the Jews did-not-believe concerning him, that he-had-been blind, and 19 received-his-sight, until they-called the parents of-him that had-received-his-sight. And they-asked them, saying, Is this your son, who ye say was-born blind? how then doth-20 he-now-see? His parents answered them and said, We-know that this is our son, and 21 that he-was-born blind: but by-what-means he-now-seeth, we-know not; or who hath-opened his eyes, we know not: he is-of age; [a] ask him: he shall-speak for 22 himself. These words spake his parents, because they-feared th Jews: for the Jews had-agreed [b] already, that if any-man did-confess that-he αυτον was Christ, he-should-be-23 put out-of-the-synagogue. Therefore said his parents, He-is of age; [a] ask him.
24 Then again called-they the man that was blind, and said unto him, Give God the-25 praise: we know that this man is a-sinner. He answered and said, Whether he-be a-sinner or no, I-know not: one-thing I-know, that, whereas-I-was blind, now I-see.

[a] Or, he is old enough. [b] Or, ordained. [c] Or, had been blind.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. ix. 16. Others said, How can? &c.—Nicodemus was both a Pharisee and a ruler of the Jews; he might be expected to put such a question, having before acknowledged to Jesus himself, ch. iii. 2, § 12, p. 83, 'No man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him.'—The man who had been born blind goes farther than the cautious Pharisee—see ver. 31, .3, p. 112.

17. He is a prophet—The man had already proved his faith in Jesus' word, in the very act of going, as directed, to receive his sight, ver. 7—The conviction that Jesus was a prophet, was also one of the first steps in the illumination of the darkened mind of the Samaritan woman, ch. iv. 19, § 13, p. 23—Jesus afterwards made known to her that he was the Messiah, ver. 25, .6, p. 94—so, to this man, who confessed him to be a prophet, he revealed himself as 'the Son of God,' on whom he should believe, ver. 35—7, infra.

22. feared the Jews—This fear had great and extensive influence among the people, ch. vii. 13, p. 91; it operated upon the chief rulers themselves, ch. xii. 42, § 85, p. 310.

put out of the synagogue—It is more especially to an excommunicated people that the blessing is promised, Is. lxvi. 5, 'Hear the word of the LORD, ye that tremble at his word; Your brethren that hated you, that cast you out for my name's sake, said, Let the LORD be glorified: but he shall appear to your joy, and they shall be ashamed.'—The Lord did reveal himself to the man after he was cast out, ver. 35—8—see on ch. xvi. 2, § 87, p. 392.

24. Give God the praise—see NOTE, infra.

we know, &c.—They do not appear to have unanimously come to this conclusion, see ver. 16, but probably the most forward of them chose to speak for the whole; and Nicodemus, and those of his side, seem never to have gone farther than suggesting a doubt, or asking a question.

NOTES.

Jno. ix. 16. Not of God. 'Not a prophet sent from God.'

How can, &c. They reasoned conclusively, that God would not give the power of working such miracles to an impostor.

A division. σχισμα. 'A schism.' A separation into two parties.

20. His parents answered, &c. To the first two questions they answered without hesitation. They knew that he was their son, and that he was born blind. To the third question, they could not positively answer, as they had not witnessed the means of the cure, and were afraid to express their belief.

22. Put out of the synagogue. 'Among the Jews there were two grades of excommunication; the one for lighter offences, of which they mentioned seventeen causes; the other for greater offences. The first excluded a man for thirty days from the privilege of entering a synagogue, and from coming nearer to his wife or friends than four cubits. The other was a solemn exclusion for ever from the worship of the synagogue, attended with awful maledictions and curses; and an exclusion from all intercourse with the people. This was called the curse, and so thoroughly excluded the person from all communion whatever with his countrymen, that they were not allowed to sell to him any thing, even the necessaries of life.—Buxtorf.

[24. Give God the praise. Some suppose this expression to be a form of administering an oath. It is used in Josh. vii. 19; when Achan was put on his oath, and entreated to confess his guilt, Joshua said, 'My son, give, I pray thee, glory to the LORD God of Israel, (in the Greek of the Septuagint, the very expression used in John, "Give God the praise,") and make confession unto him.' It is equivalent to an adjuration in the presence of God to acknowledge the truth; as the truth would be giving God praise, confessing the case before him, and trusting to his mercy—comp. 1 Sa. vi. 5.]

25. Whether he be a sinner. In ver. 31, p. 112, he proves he was not a sinner. God gave to this poor man grace and strength to make a bold confession of the truth.

[Sinner or no. The words added here by the translator had better have been spared. The man seems to have been in no doubt that Jesus was not a sinner—see ver. 31—3. That which he here says is, that he did not know that Jesus was what the Pharisees represented him to be, 'a sinner.' He would believe anything that Jesus would teach him, ver. 36, but something more than their authority was required to make any opinion of theirs be received by him.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

persevere in doing good, though subjected to misrepresentation, and every discouragement.

Jno. ix. 17. One of the first things necessary to our truly enjoying spiritual sight, is our being convinced that Jesus is a prophet—is indeed a teacher come from God.

24 ver. What an awful profanation of the name of God has sometimes been made by men, under the pretence of zeal for religion. The Jews called upon this confessor to give God the glory, by the denial of him in whom alone we can glorify God.

25 ver. Let men honestly confess what, in their own experience, they know of the power and love of Jesus.

JOHN ix. 26—33.

26 Then said they to him again, What did he to thee? how opened he thine eyes? 27, He answered them, I have told you already, and ye did not hear: wherefore would ye 28 hear it again? will ye also be his disciples? Then they reviled ελοιδορησαν him, and 29 said, Thou art his disciple; but we are Moses' disciples. We know that God spake 30 unto Moses: as for this fellow, we know not from whence he is. The man answered 31 and said unto them, Why herein is a marvellous thing, that ye know not from whence he is, and yet he hath opened mine eyes. Now we know that God heareth not sinners: 32 but if any man be a worshipper of God θεοσεβης, and doeth his will, him he heareth. Since the world began εκ του αιωνος was it not heard that any man opened the eyes 33 of one that was born blind. If this man were not of παρα God, he could do nothing.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. ix. 27. I have told you already — see ver. 11, and again ver. 15.

ye did not hear—His testimony had not been credited, ver. 18.

wherefore would ye? &c.—They may now have wished to criminate the man, from his own acknowledgment of having gone to the pool of Siloam to wash on the sabbath day—see ver. 7, 14.

will ye also? &c.—This was an appropriate question to return for theirs, in which they recognised Jesus as actually having opened the man's eyes—see ver. 26, supra, a conclusion which they had been careful to avoid, ver. 18, 24, p. 111.

28. reviled him—This man was soon in circumstances to experience the blessedness promised, Mt. v. 11, 'Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you,' &c., Jesus gave us example of bearing reproach, 1 Pe. ii. 23.

Moses' disciples—Jesus had shewn that they were not in truth Moses' disciples, else they would have become his, ch. v. 45—7, § 23, p. 180—Paul alludes to this boasting of the Jews, Rom. ii. 17, 'Behold, thou art called a Jew, and restest in the law,' &c.

29. God spake unto Moses—The Lord distinguished Moses in this respect, saying unto Aaron and Miriam, Nu. xii. 6—8, 'Hear now my words: If there be a prophet among you, I the LORD will make myself known unto him in a vision, and will speak unto him in a dream. 7, My servant Moses is not so, who is faithful in all mine house. 8, With him will I speak mouth to mouth, even apparently, and not in dark speeches; and the similitude of the LORD shall he behold: wherefore then were ye not afraid to speak against my servant Moses?'—Ps. ciii. 7; He. iii. 5.

know not from whence he is—and yet the very contrary had been urged against his being the Christ, ch. vii. 27, p. 93—Jesus himself had intimated they both knew, ver. 28, and yet could not tell whence he was, ch. viii. 14, p. 100.

31. heareth not sinners—This is very clearly expressed in many parts of scripture; so that if men desire to be heard of God, their hearts must be turned away from sin—Ps. lxvi. 18, 'If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me:'—Pr. xxviii. 9, 'He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination.'—Is. i. 15, 'When ye spread forth your hands, I will hide mine eyes from you: yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear: your hands are full of blood.'—Mi. iii. 4, 'Then shall they cry unto the LORD, but he will not hear them: he will even hide his face from them at that time, as they have behaved themselves ill in their doings.'—Zec. vii. 13, 'It is come to pass, that as he cried, and they would not hear; so they cried, and I would not hear, saith the LORD of Hosts:'

him he heareth—Ps. x. 17, 'LORD, thou hast heard the desire of the humble:'—xxxiv. 15, 'The eyes of the LORD are upon the righteous, and his ears are open unto their cry.'—cxlv. 18, 'The LORD is nigh unto all them that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth.'—Pr. xv. 29, 'The LORD is far from the wicked: but he heareth the prayer of the righteous.'—The same principle is recognised in the New Testament, Ja. v. 16; 1 Pe. iii. 12; 1 Jno. iii. 22; v. 14.

32. opened the eyes, &c.—Ps. cxlvi. 8, 'The LORD openeth the eyes of the blind: the LORD raiseth them that are bowed down: the LORD loveth the righteous:'

33. could do nothing—the means made use of did not appear to be, in their own nature, calculated to effect the cure—see ver. 6, 7, p. 109.

NOTES.

Jno. ix. 27. Ye did not hear. Did not give credit to it.

28. We know not. Know not of any commission he has from God.

30. That ye know not from whence he is. That you cannot perceive that he who has wrought such a miracle must be from God.

31. Heareth not sinners. 'Doth not enable impostors or false teachers to work such miracles as these.' We may remark here—1st, That the passage has no reference to the prayers which truly repentant sinners make for salvation. 2nd, The only prayers which God will not hear, are those which are offered in mockery, or when the man loves his sins, and is unwilling to give them up.—See 'Scrip. Illus.'

A worshipper. A sincere worshipper; one who fears, loves, and adores God.

Doeth his will, &c. Obeys his commandments. This is infallibly true. The scripture abounds with promises to such, that God will hear their prayer.—See 'Scrip. Illus.'

32. That was born blind. Such a miracle was esteemed by the Jews a peculiar sign of the Messiah, and was never known to be wrought by Moses or any other prophet. Neither any miracle, nor surgical operation, of this nature, had before this been heard of. About the year 1728, Dr. Cheselden, by couching

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Jno. ix. 28. To meet facts by reviling, is but a poor way of maintaining any cause, and generally indicates a bad one. It not unfrequently happens that those boast of being the disciples of the fathers, who are the furthest from following them in the truth, and whose chief connection with them is in an adherence to empty forms.]

[30 ver. The works of Christ are sufficient to tell us whence he is, and his works may still be beheld in those, whether nations or individuals, who have received him as their Teacher, and are the most obedient to his word.]

31 ver. This man had right elementary principles. He knew that God refuses to hear the prayer of those who are resolved to continue in sin; but that he does favourably regard those who acknowledge him in word and deed.

32, 3 ver. The means employed by Jesus were in themselves inadequate to the effect produced. The man argued rightly, that without the Divine blessing they could not have availed.

JOHN ix. 34—41.

34 They-answered and said unto-him, Thou wast-altogether ὅλος-born in sins, and dost-thou-teach us? And they-cast him out.
35 Jesus heard that they-had-cast him out; and when-he-had-found him, he-said unto-36 him, Dost-thou-believe on the Son of God? He answered and said, Who is he, Lord, 37 that I-might-believe on him? And Jesus said unto-him, Thou-hast-both-seen him, 38 and it-is he that talketh with thee. And he said, Lord, I-believe. And he-worshipped 39 him. And Jesus said, For judgment κριμα I am-come into this world κοσμον, that they 40 which-see not might-see; and that they which-see might-be-made blind. And some of the Pharisees which were with him heard these words, and said unto-him, Are we blind 41 also? Jesus said unto-them, If ye-were blind, ye-should-have no sin: but now ye-say, We-see; therefore your sin remaineth.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. ix. 34. born in sins—They seem to have regarded his blindness as the effect of sin—the same was implied in the question of the disciples, ver. 2, p. 109.

they cast him out,—see ver. 22, p. 111.

35. Dost thou believe on? &c.—This was the only way to blessedness, as had been declared in Ps. ii. 7, 12.

Son of God—to the great truth, that Jesus is the Son of God, the Father and the Holy Ghost had before given abundant evidence—see ch. v. 17—47, § 23, p. 176.

37 it is he, &c.—This was like his answer to the Samaritan woman, ch. iv. 26, § 13, p. 94, 'I that speak unto thee am he.'

38. And he worshipped him—so after his feeding the multitude, walking on the sea, and stilling the storm, Mt. xiv. 33, § 41, p. 321, 'they that were in the ship came and worshipped him, saying, Of a truth thou art the Son of God.'

NOTE.—The man has thus been led into the performance of duty in its three great relations:

i. He had done that which was commanded by Jesus for his own welfare, ver. 7, p. 110.

ii. He had performed his duty to others in speaking to his neighbour, ver. 11, p. ib., and in vindicating at all hazards, before the proud oppressor, the cause of the innocent, 22—34, p. 111.

iii. Now he performed the highest duty of all, in practically recognising Jesus as the object of worship.

39. For judgment—This was not the grand purpose for which he had come, ch. iii. 17, § 12, p. 86, but it was a result of his coming, as the Baptist had forewarned, Mt. iii. 10—.2, § 7, p. 53—see again, Jno. xv. 24, § 87, p. 391.

see not might see—The nations, who previously had been in darkness, were now to have their eyes opened, Ac. xxvi. 17, .8.

blind—having their minds occupied with ceremonial religion, and the gold of the temple, Mt. xv. 14, § 44, p. 3—'they be blind leaders of the blind,' &c. —xxiii. 16, § 85, p. 316, 'Woe unto you, ye blind guides!' &c.

40. Are we blind also?—They thought their own enlightenment beyond all question, Rom. ii. 19, 'And art confident that thou thyself art a guide of the blind, a light of them which are in darkness,'

41. If ye were blind—see ch. xv. 22—.6, § 87, p. 390.

therefore your sin, &c.—Is. v. 21, 'Woe unto them that are wise in their own eyes, and prudent in their own sight!'—see on the publican and Pharisee, Lu. xviii. 9—14, § 73, p. 216; 1 Jno. i. 8—10, 'If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. 9, If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. 10, If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us.'

NOTES.

[38. And he worshipped him. He did homage to him as the Messiah, and as his gracious Benefactor—see Mt. ii. 2, § 5, p. 31, NOTE, and 'Scrip. Illus.' This shews —1st, That it is right and natural to express thanks and praise for mercies. 2nd, Especially is this true when the mind has been enlightened—when our spiritual eyes have been opened—and we are enabled with faith to look unto Jesus. 3rd, It is right to pay homage or worship to Jesus. He forbade it not. He received it on earth: and for all mercies, of providence and redemption, we should pay to him the tribute of humble and grateful hearts. The Syriac renders the phrase, 'he worshipped him,' thus: 'and casting himself down he adored him.' The Persic, 'and he bowed down and adored Christ.' The Arabic, 'and he adored him.' The Vulgate, 'and falling down he adored him.']

39. They which see. They who hitherto had the light, but who abused their privilege: even that which they had was to be taken from them.

41. If ye were blind. Our Lord hints that they labour under a more incurable blindness than those whom they despised. The full sense is, 'If ye were [simply] ignorant, your unbelief might be excusable; but, since ye profess to be wise, your unbelief remains [inexcusable].' They had every advantage for coming at the truth, and recognising Jesus as the Messiah; but they resisted conviction, were wilfully blind, and therefore their sin remained, seeing it could only be removed through faith in Him, in whom they refused to believe.

But now ye say, We see, &c. As ye say, 'We have knowledge and understanding,' then you are guilty of criminal unbelief.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. ix. 34. Those who despise others as being ignorant, and out of the Divine favour, are not unfrequently themselves the farthest from true wisdom and holiness.

[Excommunication is a very poor substitute for strength of argument. When a schismatic is becoming intolerable, let church rulers inquire whether it be not something in themselves which makes him appear to be so.]

[35—.8 ver. Christian knowledge is progressive. Let a man be faithful in that which is committed to him, and God will give more. The great truth to which we are conducted, by the Divine word and working, is, that Jesus is the Son of God. For this truth, a witness was raised up, as it were, from the mire of the streets; whilst those who despised this poor man, as being altogether born in sin, were themselves left to die in their sins.]

39 ver. The coming of Christ into our world, our being given opportunity of knowing, respecting him, must make our case either better or worse.

LET US BEWARE OF TAKING IT FOR GRANTED THAT WE DO NOT REQUIRE TO HAVE OUR EYES OPENED, OR THAT WE ARE ALREADY IN POSSESSION OF ALL NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE.

Jesus delivers the parable of the Good Shepherd. JOHN x. 1—21.

1 Verily,[a] verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold,
2 but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber. But he that 3 entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep. To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hear his voice: and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them
4 out. And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep
5 follow him: for they know his voice. And a stranger will they not follow, but will 6 flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers. This parable [a] παροιμίαν spake Jesus unto them: but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them.

[a] Or, proverb.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. x. 1. He that entereth not, &c.—The Jewish teachers refused to enter. It was thus that their sin remained, ch. ix. 41—Rom. x. 3, 4. 'For they being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God. For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth.'

2. entereth in by the door—has admission through Christ, by faith and hope, as described, Rom. v. 1, 2, 'Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ: by whom also we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God.'—The knowledge of the first and second advents of Christ, corresponding to faith and hope, can only be made useful to those who are willing to follow our Lord in self-denial, Mt. xvi. 19—27, § 50, pp. 39—43—and in being meek and lowly in heart, xi. 25—9, § 29, p. 227...8—It is as being 'a witness of the sufferings of Christ,' and also 'a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed,' that he to whom the keys were given, exhorts, 1 Pe. v. 2, 3, 'Feed the flock of God which is among you [or, 'as much as in you is], taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock,' &c.

3. To him the porter, &c.—It is only by the power of the Holy Spirit that a pastor and his people are enabled to have communion with each other in the Lord.

hear his voice—This they ought to do, as exhorted, He. xiii. 17, 'Obey them that have the rule over you, and submit yourselves: for they watch for your souls, as they that must give account,' &c.

by name—he knows them individually—thus Paul, when exhorting the Ephesian pastors, could say, Ac. xx. 31, 'Therefore watch, and remember, that by the space of three years I ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears.'

4. goeth before them—so also Paul could say, 1 Co. xi. 1, 'Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ.'—See also 1 Th. i. 6; ii. 7—12.

5. a stranger will they not follow—But in this respect the irrational creatures often manifest more wisdom than the professed followers of Christ—thus Paul had to say, Gal. iii. 1, 3, 'O foolish Galatians, who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the truth, . . . Are ye so foolish? having begun in the Spirit, are ye now made perfect by the flesh?'—2 Ti. i. 15, 'This thou knowest, that all they which are in Asia be turned away from me; of whom are Phygellus and Hermogenes.'

but will flee from him—2 Ti. iii. 5, 'Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away.'—In the epistle to Ephesus, it is in commendation said, Rev. ii. 2, 'thou hast tried them which say they are apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars:'

NOTES.

Jno. x. 1. Verily, verily, I say, &c. This vehement asseveration speaks the certainty and weight of what he said.

[That entereth not by the door. Christ himself is 'the Door' by whom all true pastors enter into the church to exercise their functions. They believe in him for their own salvation, and receive from him those peculiar dispositions and endowments which fit them for their work. It is only by exercising the self-denial of Christ, that there can be a rightful entrance into the sheep-fold: There must be an humble submission to the rule of Christ, a learning of him who was meek and lowly in heart; otherwise a man cannot be a disciple of Christ, much less a teacher of Christianity.]

Thief and a robber. 'Κλέπτης and λῃστὴς differ, as our thief (or nightwayman), the one [illegible] other to publish [illegible] they have [illegible] exercised [illegible] λῃστὴς properly robber (or highwayman), the one [illegible]ate stealing, the other to publish [illegible] Here, however, they have [illegible] united, [illegible]ur separately.']

[original the [illegible]d shepherd. [illegible]lf, after the [illegible]gh he was [illegible]o through his poverty might be made rich (see 2 Co. viii. 9), he shews that he is a shepherd—one who cares for the flock, and does not come to kill and destroy.]

4. They know his voice. 'Two flocks were moving slowly up the slope of the hill, the one of goats, the other of sheep. The shepherd was going before the sheep, and they followed as he led the way to the Jaffa gate; we could not but remember the Saviour's words, "When he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice." A traveller asserted to a Syrian shepherd, that the sheep knew the dress of their master, and not his voice: the shepherd, on the other hand, maintained that it was the voice they knew. To settle the point, he and the traveller changed dresses and went among the sheep. The traveller in the shepherd's dress called on the sheep, and tried to lead them; but they knew not his voice, and never moved. On the other hand, they ran at once at the call of their owner, though thus disguised.'—Narrative of Mission to the Jews.

5. A stranger, &c. Jesus by this indicates that the true people of God, if they have the prudence of even the inferior animals, will not follow false teachers—those who are proud, haughty, and self-seeking, as were the Pharisees.

TICAL REFLECTIONS.

[ledged
[illegible]p, ace
[illegible]le to [illegible] the [illegible]any [illegible]may [illegible]

ii. He gently persuades. 'The sheep hear his voice.

iii. He is well acquainted with the members of his flock, and addresses them as occasion may require, not only collectively, but individually

iv. He gives them example. He leads them in the way in which he would have them to walk.

5 ver. The character of the sheep is correspondent to that of the shepherd.

i. They follow the good Shepherd, delighting to hear his voice.

ii. They refuse to follow a stranger.

[illegible] Jno., x. 1, with ver. 41 of the preceding chapter.

THE LORD IS STRONG CONFIDENCE: AND HIS CHILDREN SHALL HAVE A PLACE OF REFUGE.—PROV. xiv. 26.
IN THE LIGHT OF THE KING'S COUNTENANCE IS LIFE; AND HIS FAVOUR IS AS A CLOUD OF THE LATTER RAIN.—PROV. xvi. 15.

John x. 7—12.

7 Then said Jesus unto-them again, Verily, verily, I-say unto-you, I am the door of-the 8 sheep. All that-ever came before me are thieves and robbers: but the sheep did-not 9 hear them. I am the door: by me if any-man enter in, he-shall-be-saved, and shall-go-10 in and out, and find pasture. The thief cometh not, but for to-steal, and to-kill, and to-destroy: I am come that they-might-have life, and that-they-might-have it more-abun-11 dantly περισσον. I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the 12 sheep. But he-that is an-hireling, and not the-shepherd, whose own ἰδια the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth: and the wolf catcheth

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. x. 7. I am the door—see on ver. 1, 9.

8. thieves and robbers—The shepherds had destroyed and scattered the flock, Eze. xxxiv. 1—4.—To the house of David, through whose pride and oppression, and cruel policy, the whole northern portion of Israel had been alienated from the house of the Lord, and betrayed into the hands of the Assyrians, the Lord says, Je. xiii. 18, 20. 1, 'Humble yourselves, sit down: for your principalities shall come down, even the crown of your glory.' 20, Lift up your eyes, and behold them that come from the north: where is the flock that was given thee, thy beautiful flock? 21, What wilt thou say when he shall punish thee? for thou hast taught them to be captains, and as chief over thee:'—see also xxiii. 1, &c.—but see Note.

9. I am the door—see ver. 1, 7; 1 Ti. ii. 5, 6, 'there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus; who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time.'—See Ac. iv. 12.

be saved—It is because of this, he is called Jesus, Mt. i. 21, 'for he shall save his people from their sins.'

and find pasture—The happy condition of those who are accepted in Christ is described, Ps. xxiii. 1, 2, 'The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures [Heb. 'pastures of tender grass']: he leadeth me beside the still waters' [Heb. 'waters of quietness'].

10. that they might have life—He 'hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel,' 2 Ti. i. 10.

more abundantly—see ch. i. 16, 'of his fulness,' &c.—2 Pe. i. 3, 4, 'According as his Divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to [or, 'by'] glory and virtue: whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the Divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.'

11. I am the good shepherd—described in Old Testament prophecy, as Is. xl. 11, 'He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young' [or, 'that give suck'].—The Lord's intention with regard to the house of David at length to be fulfilled, Eze. xxxiv. 12—23, . . . xxxvii. . . . Mi. v. 4, . . . —Jesus is called the great Shepherd, He. xiii. 20, 'Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep,'—and the chief Shepherd, 1 Pe. v. 4, 'When the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.'

12. hireling—It would appear that these early began to prevail in the christian church, Ph. ii. 21, 'For all seek their own, not the things which are Jesus Christ's.'—The church was seriously forewarned of them, both by prophets and apostles, Is. lvi. 9—12. . . . Eze. xxxiv. 2—6. . . . Zec. xi. 16, 17. . . . Ac. xx. 28—30; 2 Pe. ii. 1—3, &c.

NOTES.

Jno. x. 7. I am the door. I am the way by which ministers and people enter the true church. It is by Jesus' merits; his intercession, his aid, and his appointment, that they enter.

[8. All that ever came before me, &c. 'Εσαν πρὸ ἐμοῦ ἦλθον, may very well mean, those who before Christ sustained the office of temporary mediators between God and man, but who were now disannulled by the disannulling of the old covenant, and the coming of a new and better Mediator, the Lord of the temple himself. But how, it may be asked, does this character of κλεπται και λ. correspond to the high priests? I answer—1, it has been admitted by almost every commentator, that πάντες may very well be taken to denote πολλοί. 2. It is almost universally agreed, that by κλεπται και λῃσται we are only to understand, rapacious persons, chiefly intent on gain. And that most of the high priests under the second temple at least were such, the History of Josephus will abundantly testify now, it is clear that almost all of them for the last 60 or 70 years had been such; persons who bought their office, and then made as much of it as they could, for the short time they were allowed to hold it. The traits of their characters, as delineated by Josephus, exactly correspond to those adverted to in the present comparison, verses 10, 2, 3, namely, avarice and extortion, united with the utmost timidity and neglect of protecting those under their governance. That our Lord meant chiefly the high priests of a recent period, is plain from the use of the present tense εἰσί. Now that the sheep should not listen to their spiritual admonitions might be expected; and that they did not is attested by what we find in Josephus.' Bloomf.]

[10. The thief, &c. ὁ κλέπτης, 'The false teacher.' The terms θύειν and ἀπολλύειν are graphic (signifying respectively 'butcher and destroy'), and describe what was often done by the roving bands of marauders who then infested Judæa, and who used to destroy what they could not carry off.—Ibid.]

Have it more abundantly. καὶ περισσὸν ἔχωσι. Those words serve to strengthen the sense of the preceding clause. The words should be translated, 'and that they might have it superabundantly.' Sheep, in order to thrive, must have not merely sufficient, but exuberant pasturage. Thus is intimated the infinite richness of that salvation unto which believers attain through Christ, 1 Co. ii. 9.—See border.

11. The good shepherd. ὁ καλὸς. That good Shepherd foretold by the prophets.—See 'Scrip. Illus.'

Giveth his life. To give his life, here means the same as not to fly, or to forsake his flock; to be willing to expose his life, if necessary, to defend them. This Jesus did, see Mt. xxvi. 31, § 87, p. 406; Jno. xviii. 8, 9, § 88, p. 418.

12. An hireling. A man who for wages takes care of the sheep. The word translated hireling is often employed in a good sense, but here it denotes one who is unfaithful to his trust.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. x. 7. Let us duly attend to that which Jesus most solemnly affirmed; and so look for an entrance only through him, who died for our sins.

[10 ver. No good can be expected to come to the church from those who enter it for their own selfish ends. There are two great blessings which believers receive from Jesus—deliverance from death, unto eternal life; and, not a bare sufficiency, but abundance of spiritual provision.]

11 ver. Let us have confidence in the shepherd care of Jesus. He hath already given the fullest evidence of his willingness to save and to bless.

JOHN x. 13—.7.

13 them, and scattereth the sheep. The hireling fleeth, because he-is an-hireling, and 14 careth not for the sheep. I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am-known 15 of mine. As the Father knoweth me, even-so know-I the Father: and I-lay-down my 16 life for the sheep. And other sheep I-have, which are not of this fold: them-also I must bring, and they-shall-hear my voice; and there-shall-be one fold, and one shep-17 herd. Therefore doth-my-Father-love me, because I lay-down my life, that I-might-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. x. 14. know my sheep—'The Lord knoweth them that are his,' 2 Ti. ii. 19.

known of mine—1 Jno. v. 20, 'And we know that the Son of God is come,' &c.

15. As the Father knoweth, &c.—see Mt. xi. 27, § 29, p. 228.

I lay down, &c.—see ch. xv. 13, § 87, 'Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down,' &c.

16. other sheep, &c.—The sheep that were scattered during 'the cloudy and dark day,' Eze. xxxiv. 12—'And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth,' Is. xi. 12. . . . .—lvi. 3, 7, 8, 'Neither let the son of the stranger, that hath joined himself to the LORD, speak, saying, The LORD hath utterly separated me from his people: . . . 7, Even them will I bring to my holy mountain, . . . for mine house shall be called an house of prayer for all people. 8, The Lord GOD which gathereth the outcasts of Israel saith, Yet will I gather others to him, beside those that are gathered unto him.'

one fold—Eze. xxxvii. 22, 'I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all:'—see our Lord's intercessory prayer, Jno. xvii. 20, .1, § 87—Eph. ii. 14, 'He is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us;'—see also 1 Pe. ii. 25, 'Ye were as sheep going astray; but are now returned,' &c.

one shepherd—Eze. xxxvii. 24, &c., 'And David my servant shall be king over them; and they all shall have one shepherd:' &c.—Hos. i. 11, 'Then shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head, and they shall come up out of the land: for great shall be the day of Jezreel.'

17. because I lay down my life—Is. liii. 12, 'Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he hath poured out his soul unto death:' &c.—He. ii. 9, 'We see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels [or, 'a little while inferior to'] for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour; that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man.'

NOTES.

[Jno. x. 10—3. False teachers come only to seduce church members, murder their souls, or plunder and persecute them; but I am come to manifest the method of obtaining spiritual and eternal life; yea, to purchase it for them, and to bestow it upon them, in the most undeserved, unexpected, eminent, inconceivably large, and everlasting manner. I am the eminently and infinitely good Shepherd of the church, foretold by the prophets, and I not only lead, protect, and feed, but give my very life for the sheep. But they who, from selfish views, become pastors in the church, having no real affectionate concern for their people, are unwilling to hazard their life, reputation, or secular interests, in their service; but are alway ready to shift for themselves, and leave the people to be seduced or perverted, as Satan and his emissaries please.]

14. Know my sheep. The word know here is used in the sense of affectionate regard, or love. Thus the word 'knoweth,' in ver. 15, is in ver. 17 explained by 'doth . . . . love.'

Am known of mine. That is, he is known and loved as their Saviour and Friend.

15. I lay down my life for the sheep. That is, I give my life as an atoning sacrifice for their sins. I die in their place, to redeem them from sin and death. See ver. 17, .8.

[16. Other sheep. These have by some been thought to be the Jews living out of Canaan; by others, the Gentiles: but they seem to be neither exclusively; but rather, they are that people who were intended to embrace both: 'the lost sheep of the house of Israel,' as distinguished from the house of Judah. The people spoken of as 'the children of God that were scattered abroad,' ch. xi. 52, § 58, p. 133.]

[I have. He 'calleth those things which be not as though they were,' Rom. iv. 17. This purpose was in accordance with the promise, Is. liii. 11, 'He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied.']

Not of this fold. Not of the Jewish fold; not of the circumcision: but those children of Abraham who 'walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham, which he had being yet uncircumcised, Rom. iv. 12.

Them also I must bring. Bring into the church and kingdom of heaven. This was to be done, not by his personal ministry, but by the labours of his apostles and other ministers.

One fold. One church; there shall be no distinction, no peculiar national privileges. The partition between the Jews and Gentiles shall be broken down, and the same religion shall be presented to all; Eph. ii. 14, Christ 'hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us;'—Rom. x. 12, 'There is no difference between the Jew and the Greek:'

One shepherd. That is, the Lord Jesus—the common Saviour, Deliverer, and Friend of all true believers, in whatever land they were born, and whatever tongue they may speak. . . . . Christians of all denominations and countries should feel that they are one—redeemed by the same blood, and going to the same eternal home.

17. I lay down my life. I give myself to die for my people, in Jewish and Pagan lands. I offer myself a sacrifice to shew the willingness of my Father to save them, to make an atonement, and thus to open the way for their salvation.

[That I might take it again. Be raised up from the dead, and glorified, and still carry on the work of redemption. See this same sentiment sublimely expressed in Phil. ii. 5—11.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. x. 14, .5. Christ the Mediator stands equally related to man and to God. He knows his people, and is known of them; he is known of, and does know the Father, and he desires to reconcile us to the Father, by the sacrifice of himself.

[16 ver. If we would prove that we are of those other sheep, who are to be made one with the true people of God from the beginning, let us allow ourselves to be led by Jesus. Let us listen to his voice, and let us prepare for the time when the unity of the whole family of God will be made manifest, under the direction, protection, and blessed reign, of the one Shepherd, the Prince of Peace.]

17 ver. Let those who desire to see consummated the blissful union of the people of God, be followers of him who laid down his life that he might take it again. Let them learn his self-denial, forbearance, and love.

JOHN X. 18—21.

18 take it again. No-man taketh it from me, but I lay-it-down of myself. I-have power to-lay-it-down, and I-have power to-take it again. This commandment have-I-received of my Father.
19 There-was a-division therefore again among the Jews for these sayings. 20, And 21 many of them said, He-hath a-devil, and is-mad; why hear-ye him? Others said, These are not the words of-him-that-hath-a-devil. Can a-devil open the-eyes of-the-blind?

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. x. 18. I lay it down of myself—Ps. xl. 7, 'Then said I, Lo, I come: in the volume of the book it is written of me,'—Ph. ii. 8, 'And being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross.'

take it again—see ch. ii. 19, § 12, p. 82.

This commandment, &c.—ch. xiv. 31, § 87, 'As the Father gave me commandment, even so I do.'

19. a division—see ch. vii. 12, p. 91.

20. a devil—see ch. viii. 48, 52, p. 106.

and is mad—His own friends had said, 'He is beside himself,' Mk. iii. 21, § 30, p. 233.

Can . . . open the eyes, &c.—alluding to the case recorded ch. ix.— His works were, equally as his words, contradictory to the supposition, that he was other than what he had declared himself, ch. viii. 12.

NOTES.

Jno. x. 18. No man taketh it from me. οὐδεὶς αἴρει αὐτὴν ἀπ' ἐμοῦ, 'No one taketh it from me' [by force]. We may paraphrase the passage thus: 'No one [not even the Father] compelleth me to die for my flock. I have, of my own will, undertaken to lay down my life for it. By the same will I shall return again to life.'

[This commandment, &c. 'This charge, or commission, received I from my Father.' 'In this whole passage our Lord affirms that he is about to undergo death spontaneously; that the malice of those who may plot against his life could avail nothing, even were it not decreed that he should undergo death for the salvation of his people; that no force could take away his life, if he were unwilling to part with it; that he freely lays down that life for the salvation of his flock; and that if they shall kill him, it will not be without his own consent. He asserts, moreover, that he lays down his life,—so, however, as to receive it back; and therefore that his death is not to be considered as coming under the common law of mortality, by which all that go down to the tomb return to the dust; but that it is altogether peculiar to itself; since, after a few days, he will rise from the sepulchre, and return to life. He then affirms that his death happens, not by any fate or necessity, but by the eternal counsels of his Father.'—Tittman.]

['On the strong and irrefragable proof supplied by this passage to the divinity of Christ, see Dr. Whitby, Abp. Magee, Dr. P. Smith, Mr. Scott, and Mr. Gresswell. The point of our Lord's argument is, as Dr. Smith observes, the spontaneousness of the act, which he performs in obedience to his Father's will, and for which the Father love h him. The ἐντολὴ, commission, of the Father refers, not only to the resuming of life, but to the whole transaction, the laying down and receiving again; and this is a repetition of the fundamental doctrine of Christianity, that "all things are of the Father, and through the Son; that God so loved the world, that he gave his only-begotten Son, and sent him into the world, that the world through him might be saved.' So it is written of him, Rom. iv. 25, that he "was delivered for our offences, and was raised again for our justification." Dr. Smith ably refutes the Unitarian gloss by which ἐξουσία is supposed to imply a delegated authority; showing its inconsistency, both with the rest of scripture (see Lu. xii. 5; Rom. ix. 21; and Ac. i. 7), and especially from the context here.'—Bloomf.]

[14—8. 'And being the infinitely good, and the chief Shepherd of the church, I perfectly know, exactly observe, and tenderly care for, all my chosen people, who are, by my Father's gift, my own purchase, and their self-dedication, my peculiar property; and they spiritually know me and my doctrine, and fiducially and affectionately embrace me, and hearken to it. And as the Father perfectly knows, loves, approves, and confides in me, I also am perfectly acquainted with him and all his counsels, and trust in him, and delight to do his will. Such is my love to him and to my chosen people, that I am willing and ready to lay down my life in their stead, that they may obtain eternal salvation. And besides those Jews which I have called, or will effectually call, into my church, I must, in pursuance of my eternal engagements, and in justice to my purchase of them, effectually bring in multitudes also of chosen Gentiles, and unite them with those Jews in the gospel church, new covenant, or heavenly state, under my special care, influences, and government. And not only doth my Father love me as his only-begotten Son, but even on account of my zeal for the manifestation of his glory in the salvation of sinful men, in so cheerfully dying for the expiation of their sins, that I might rise again for their justification. No man, by either stratagem or force, can deprive me of my life without my own consent; but, as absolute priestor thereof, I voluntarily lay it down, and will, by my own power, rise from the dead, after making satisfaction for the sins of my people, according to the commandment and will of my Father.'—Brown.]

21. not the words, &c.—They were expressive of the great commandment, being full of the truest love to man, and the most entire submission to God.—See ver. 18.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. x. 18. There was no power but the power of love, constraining Jesus to give up his life for us. Let the same law, according to the will of the Father, constrain us to live, or, if need be, die for the brethren. Let us see that our efforts for the benefit of others are according to the command of the Father.

20 ver. Let not the followers of Christ be surprised if they should be spoken of as their Master was. They can scarcely meet with a worse reception than being accused—i. Of having the spirit of evil.
ii. Of being mad.
iii. Of being not worth hearing.

☞ 'The transactions which belong to the feast of Tabernacles as such, must be considered to be continued down to ch. x. 21; after which it is probable Jesus would leave Jerusalem, and, according to his usage, return to Capernaum. The two months' interval between this feast and the next, we cannot suppose to have been spent in Galilee; because Mt. xix. 1, and Mk. x. 1, compared with the circumstances of the history before and after them, may safely lead to the inference that all, or by far the greatest part of the time between the third feast of Tabernacles and the following Passover, before the point of time when our Lord passed into Judæa out of Peræa, was spent in Galilee; in which case St. John would naturally be silent about it. But if this interval was spent in Galilee, we may take it for granted it would be spent at Capernaum. Our Lord's circuits, for the present, were all over, and the winter season was at hand; no place would be so likely to be made the scene of a temporary, but stationary residence, as the usual place of his abode; and had he not been known to have remained there, for some time after the last return which they mention, St. Matthew and St. Mark would not describe his final departure thence so soon, apparently, after that return, though in reality six months later than it.'—Greswell.—See ADDENDA, § 59, p. 139, 'Suggestions on the probable place, &c., of Luke ix. 51—62,' et seq.

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICES.

JERUSALEM—see pp. 42, .3, 181—.5, Vol. I. and Section 82, p. 271, infra.

THE POOL OF SILOAM. John ix. 7, p. 110—see Dr. Robinson's Biblical Researches.

'From the cemeteries we proceeded eastward along the southern wall of the city, passing by the Zion gate, and then descending along the slope towards the valley of the Tyropœon or Cheesemakers. A path soon leaves the wall, and leads obliquely down the slope S.E. in the direction of Siloam. In this part it becomes steep; and the Tyropœon, as it comes down from the wall near the great mosk, is also steep, and forms a deep ravine with banks almost precipitous. At its lower end it turns east, and issues into the vale of the Kidron.

'Here, still within the Tyropœon, is the Pool of Siloam, a small deep reservoir in the form of a parallelogram, into which the water flows from under the rocks, out of a smaller basin hewn in the solid rock a few feet further up, to which is a descent by a few steps. This is wholly an artificial work; and the water comes to it through a subterraneous channel from the Fountain of Mary, higher up in the valley of Jehoshaphat. The hill or ridge Ophel, lying between the Tyropœon and the valley of Jehoshaphat, ends here, just over the Pool of Siloam, in a steep point of rock, forty or fifty feet high. Along the base of this the water is conducted from the pool in a small channel hewn in the rocky bottom, and is then led off to irrigate gardens of fig and other fruit trees and plants lying terraces-wise down to the bottom of the valley of Jehoshaphat, a descent still of some forty or fifty feet. The waters of Siloam, as we saw them, were lost in these gardens. . . . .

'We now passed along up the valley of Jehoshaphat, which is here narrow, and the sides high and steep. On our right, clinging to the rocky side of the mount of Offence, so called, are the stone hovels of the struggling village of Siloam, Kefr Selwan, many of which are built before caves, or rather excavated sepulchres; while in various places the sepulchres themselves, without addition, are used as dwellings. A little further up the valley, under the western hill, is the Fountain of the Virgin (called by some travellers the Fountain of Siloam, in distinction from the Pool of Siloam below, but without any good reason), a deep excavation in the solid rock, evidently artificial, into which one descends by two successive flights of steps. The water is apparently brought hither by some unknown, and perhaps artificial channel, and flows off through a subterraneous passage under the hill Ophel to the Pool of Siloam.'—Vol. I. pp. 341, .2.

'Siloam.—The name Siloah or Siloam, which has obtained such celebrity in the christian world, is found only three times in the scriptures as applied to waters: once in the prophet Isaiah, who speaks of it as running water; again as a pool in Nehemiah; and lastly, also as a pool in the account of our Lord's miracle of healing the man who had been born blind.

'None of these passages afford any clue as to the situation of Siloam. But this silence is amply supplied by the historian Josephus, who makes frequent mention of Siloam as a fountain; and says expressly, that the valley of the Tyropœon extended down to Siloam; or in other words, Siloam was situated in the mouth of the Tyropœon, on the S.E. part of the ancient city, as we find it at the present day. Its waters, he says, were sweet and abundant.

'Of the same tenor is the account of the Itin. Hieros. A.D. 333, that to those going out of the city in order to ascend mount Zion, the "pool" of Siloam lay below in the valley on the left. More definite is the testimony of Jerome, about the close of the same century. This father says expressly that "Siloam is a fountain at the foot of mount Zion, whose waters do not flow regularly, but on certain days and hours, and issue with a great noise from hollows and caverns in the hardest rock." Again, in speaking of Gehenna, he remarks, that "the idol Baal was set up near Jerusalem, at the foot of mount Moriah, where Siloam flows." Moriah must here be taken as including Ophel, the ridge which runs from it towards the south; and the mention of the idol Baal limits the position of Siloam to the gardens at the mouth of the Tyropœon and valley of Hinnom, which also corresponds to the language of Josephus. In the account of Jerome, we have the first correct mention of the irregular flow of the waters of Siloam.

'Siloam is mentioned both as a fountain and pool by Antoninus Martyr, early in the seventh century; and as a pool by the monk Bernhard in the ninth. Then come the historians of the crusades, who also place Siloam as a fountain in its present site, near the fork of two valleys. William of Tyre mentions its irregular flow; and another speaks of it both as a fountain and a pool. According to Benjamin of Tudela, about A.D. 1165, there was then here an ancient edifice; and Phocas, in 1185, says the fountain was surrounded by arches and massive columns, with gardens below. Then follow Brocardus, A.D. 1283, and Marinus Sanutus, A.D. 1321, who both speak of the fountain and the pool; and the latter does not forget its irregular flow. . . . .

'Thus far, all the historical notices refer only to the present Siloam, in the mouth of the valley of the Tyropœon, which still exhibits both a fountain and a reservoir; and they all have no reference to the fountain of the Virgin Mary further up the valley of Jehoshaphat, with which, as we have seen, the waters of Siloam stand in connection. The mention of gardens around Siloam, and of its waters as flowing down into the valley of the Kidron, is decisive on this point; for neither of these circumstances could ever have been applicable to the other fountain. Indeed, singular as the fact must certainly be accounted, there seems to be nothing which can be regarded as an allusion to the Fountain of Mary, during the long series of ages, from the time of Josephus down to the latter part of the fifteenth century. At that time, Tucher (A.D. 1479), Breydenbach, and F. Fabri, as also Zuallardo and Cotovicus, a century later, mention distinctly the two fountains of Siloam and Mary, but seem to have no knowledge of their connection. This seems to have been first brought to notice by Quaresmius, in the beginning of the seventeenth century. The hypothesis that the Fountain of Mary is the true Fountain of Siloam, and the other merely the Pool of Siloam, which has found favour in modern times among the Franks, seems to have sprung up only in the early part of the eighteenth century, and is destitute of all historical foundation. The first mention of it which I find is in a suggestion of Pococke, A.D. 1738; and the same is expressed more definitely by Korte about the same time.

'The general features of Siloam have already been described—a small deep reservoir in the mouth of the Tyropœon, into which the water flows from a smaller basin excavated in the solid rock a few feet higher up; and then the little channel, by which the stream is led off along the base of the steep rocky point of Ophel, to irrigate the terraces and gardens extending into the valley of Jehoshaphat below.* The distance from the eastern point of Ophel nearest this latter valley to the said reservoir is 255 feet. The reservoir is 53 feet long, 18 feet broad, and 19 feet deep; on the western end is in part broken down. Several columns are built into the side walls; perhaps belonging to a former chapel, or intended to support a roof; but there is now no other appearance of important ruins in the vicinity. No water was standing in the reservoir as we saw it; the stream from the fountain only passed through and flowed off to the gardens.

'The smaller upper basin or fountain is an excavation in the solid rock, the mouth of which has probably been built up, in part, in order to retain the water. A few steps lead down on the inside to the water, beneath the vaulted rock; and close at hand, on the outside, is the reservoir. The water finds its way out beneath the steps into the latter. This basin is perhaps five or six feet in breadth, forming merely the entrance, or rather the termination, of the long and narrow subterranean passage beyond, by which the water comes from the Fountain of the Virgin.'—Vol. I. p. 493—.8.

* See § 23, p. 186, Vol. I. of this work.

IF THOU WILT RETURN, O ISRAEL, SAITH THE LORD, RETURN UNTO ME: AND IF THOU WILT PUT AWAY THINE ABOMINATIONS OUT OF MY SIGHT, THEN SHALT THOU NOT REMOVE.—Jer. iv. 1.

'FOUNTAIN OF THE VIRGIN.—On the west side of the valley of Jehoshaphat, 1,100 feet northwards from the rocky point at the mouth of the Tyropœon, is situated the Fountain of the Virgin Mary;* called by the natives 'Ain Um ed-Deraj,' 'Mother of Steps.' . . . Some have held it to be the Gihon, the Rogel, and the Dragon-well of scripture; so that, in fact, it has been taken alternately for every one of the fountains which anciently existed at Jerusalem. It is unquestionably an ancient work; indeed, there is nothing in or around the Holy City, which bears more distinctly the traces of high antiquity. It is not improbable, that this was the "King's Pool" of Nehemiah, and the "Pool of Solomon" mentioned by Josephus, near which the wall of the city passed, as it ran northwards from Siloam along the Valley of Jehoshaphat to the eastern side of the temple.' . . . .—See Biblical Researches, Vol. I. p. 498. and see § 23, p. 185, Vol. I. Treasury Harmony for entrance to this fountain.

DR. ROBINSON'S EXPLORATION OF THE SUBTERRANEAN COMMUNICATION OF THE 'FOUNTAIN OF THE VIRGIN,' WITH THE 'POOL OF SILOAM.'

'We found it to be the current belief at Jerusalem, both among natives and foreigners, that a passage existed quite through between the two fountains; but no one had himself explored it, or could give any definite information respecting it. We therefore determined to examine it ourselves, should a fit opportunity occur. Repairing one afternoon (April 27th) to Siloam, in order to measure the reservoir, we found no person there; and the water in the basin being low, we embraced this opportunity for accomplishing our purpose. Stripping off our shoes and stockings, and rolling our garments above our knees, we entered, with our lights and measuring tapes in our hands. The water was low, nowhere over a foot in depth, and for the most part not more than three or four inches, with hardly a perceptible current. The bottom is everywhere covered with sand, brought in by the waters. The passage is cut wholly through the solid rock, everywhere about two feet wide, somewhat winding, but in a general course N.N.E. For the first hundred feet it is from fifteen to twenty feet high; for another hundred feet or more, from six to ten feet; and afterwards not more than four feet high; thus gradually becoming lower and lower as we advanced. At the end of 800 feet it became so low, that we could advance no further without crawling on all fours, and bringing our bodies close to the water. As we were not prepared for this, we thought it better to retreat, and try again another day from the other end. Tracing therefore upon the roof with the smoke of our candles the initials of our names, and the figures 800, as a mark of our progress on this side, we returned with our clothes somewhat wet and soiled.

'It was not until three days afterwards (April 30th) that we were able to complete our examination and measurement of the passage. We went now to the Fountain of the Virgin; and having measured the external distance (1,100 feet) down to the point east of Siloam, we concluded, that as we had already entered 800 feet from the lower end, there could now remain not over 300 or 400 feet to be explored. We found the end of the passage at the upper fountain rudely built up with small loose stones, in order to retain the water at a greater depth in the excavated basin. Having caused our servants to clear away these stones, and having clothed (or rather unclothed) ourselves simply in a pair of white Arab drawers, we entered and crawled on, hoping soon to arrive at the point which we had reached from the other fountain. The passage here is in general much lower than at the other end; most of the way we could indeed advance upon our hands and knees; yet in several places we could only get forward by lying at full length, and dragging ourselves along on our elbows.

'The sand at the bottom has probably a considerable depth, thus filling up the canal in part; for otherwise it is inconceivable how the passage could ever have been thus cut through the solid rock. At any rate, only a single person could have wrought in it at a time; and it must have been the labour of many years. There are here many turns and zigzags. In several places the workmen had cut straight forward for some distance; and then, leaving this, had begun again further back at a different angle; so that there is at first the appearance of a passage branching off. We examined all these false cuts very minutely, in the hope of finding some such lateral passage, by which water might come in from another quarter. We found, however, nothing of the kind. The way seemed interminably long; and we were for a time suspicious that we had fallen upon a passage different from that which we had before entered. But at length, after having measured 950 feet, we arrived at our former mark of 800 feet traced with smoke upon the ceiling. This makes the whole length of the passage to be 1,750 feet; or several hundred feet greater than the direct distance externally; a result scarcely conceivable, although the passage is very winding. We came out again at the fountain of Siloam.

'In constructing this passage, it is obvious that the workmen commenced at both ends, and met somewhere in the middle. At the upper end, the work was carried along on the level of the upper basin; and there was a tendency to go too far towards the west under the mountain; for all the false cuts above mentioned are on the right. At the lower end, the excavation would seem to have been begun on a higher level than at present; and when on meeting the shaft from the other end, this level was found to be too high, the bottom was lowered until the water flowed through it; thus leaving the southern end of the passage much loftier than any other part. The bottom has very little descent, so that the two basins are nearly on the same level; the upper one ten feet or more below the valley of Jehoshaphat, and the other some forty feet above the same valley. This subterraneous passage corresponds entirely to the alleged etymological signification of the name Siloah in Hebrew, sent, viz. missio aquæ, an aqueduct.

'The purpose for which this difficult work was undertaken it is not easy to discover. The upper basin must obviously have been excavated at an earlier period than the lower, and there must have been something to be gained, by thus carrying its waters through the solid rock into the valley of the Tyropœon. If the object had been merely to irrigate the gardens which lay in that quarter, this might have been accomplished with far less difficulty and expense, by conducting the water around upon the outside of the hill. But the whole looks as if the advantage of a fortified city had been taken into the account; and as if it had been important to carry this water from one point to the other, in such a way that it could not be cut off by a besieging army. Now as this purpose would have been futile, had either of these points lain without the ancient fortifications, this circumstance furnishes an additional argument, to show that the ancient wall probably ran along the valley of Jehoshaphat, or at least descended to it, and included both Siloam and this upper fountain; which they either constituted or supplied the "King's Pool," or "Pool of Solomon."' —Bib. Res. Vol. I. pp. 341, 493, 501—5.

Dr. Robinson seems to think that both this and the Fountain under the Grand Mosk may have some artificial connexion with the ancient fountain of Gihon, on the higher ground west of the city.—Ibid, p. 512.

Of the irregular flow of the water, see GEOG. NOTICE, § 23, p. 186, Vol. I. Treas. Harm.; and which flow, Dr. Robinson suggests, is probably the troubling of the water referred to at JOHN v. 2—7.

* The legend by which this name is accounted for, relates that the Virgin frequented this fountain before her purification, in order to wash her child's linen.

☞ Mr. Greswell, Vol. I. Diss. II. p. 83, says of the pool of Bethesda, 'We know nothing exactly of the local situation of the pool. It might be within the walls of Jerusalem itself; and the language of St. John (ἔστι δὲ ἐν τῇ Ἱερουσολύμοις) favours that supposition: in which case it would be the more likely to survive the destruction produced by the siege of Titus. Irenæus thought it the same with the pool of Siloam.'

AND THOU SHALT SWEAR, THE LORD LIVETH, IN TRUTH, IN JUDGMENT, AND IN RIGHTEOUSNESS; AND THE NATIONS SHALL BLESS THEMSELVES IN HIM, AND IN HIM SHALL THEY GLORY.—JER. IV. 2.

THE VILLAGE OF SILOAM.

Of the village of Siloam, Mr. Wilde says: 'Sepulchral grots continue all down the valley of Siloam, having galleries, stairs, and small terraces cut out of the rock, leading from one to the other. They are all now inhabited; and they, with some mud built huts at the bottom of the valley, constitute the village of Siloam, which contains upwards of 1,500 Arabs. . . . . At my first visit to this place, happening to poke my head into one of the crypts, I was startled not a little by the unearthly scream of an old Arab crone, who inhabited the interior. The noise she made became the signal for a general outcry: the dwellers in the different caves popped their heads out from their holes like so many beavers reconnoitering an enemy; the children ran shouting in all directions; curses fell fast and heavy on the Giaour and the Nazarene; and had I got into the harem of the pasha the alarm could not have been greater than that which I excited among the whole Troglodyte population of this cemetery of the living.'

SECTION 56.—(G. 21.)—[Lesson 54, ℣℣ 56, .7.]—AT THE FEAST OF DEDICATION, JESUS REVISITS JERUSALEM: PARTICULARS WHICH THEN OCCURRED. John x. 22—39.—[Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxx. pp. 499—516.]

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Jno. x. 22, .3. At the Feast of the Dedication, which is in winter, Jesus is again in Jerusalem, and walks in Solomon's porch.

—— 24. The Jews surround him, accusing him of keeping them in doubt, and asking to be told plainly whether he be the Messiah.

—— 25. Jesus answers, that he has told them already, and they believed not. He refers them to his works, as sufficiently testifying what he is.

—— 26, .7. Jesus tells them the cause of their unbelief: their not being his sheep. His people receive him as their Prophet, they hear his voice; and as their Priest who knows them; and as their King, whom they follow.

—— 28. Those who receive Christ in these three offices have three great privileges:—they are given eternal life; they shall never perish; and none shall pluck them out of his hand.

—— 29. Their security is still farther expressed, by his saying, that they are the gift to him of the Father, who is greater than all; and out of whose all-powerful hand no one is able to pluck them.

—— 30. Having thus plainly shewn whom he meant by 'the Father,' he adds that which is fully expressive of his being the Christ, the Son of the Living God, 'I and my Father are one.'

—— 31. The Jews, as when he before gave testimony to the same truth, take up stones to stone him.

—— 32. Jesus asks for which of the many good works he had shewn them from the Father, do they wish to stone him? These works are the most substantial evidences of his being 'One with the Father.'

—— 33. The Jews deny that it is for a good work they stone him, but for blasphemy: in that he claims to be 'Immanuel,' 'God with us.'

—— 34—.6. Jesus, in defending his position, intimates that in a sense superior to that in which rulers are in scripture called gods, is he the Son of God.

—— 37, .8. He does not require them to believe, except upon sufficient evidence.

—— 38. Although they do not believe what he testifies of himself in word, yet they ought to believe the testimony of his works, which shew that the Father is in him and he in the Father.

—— 39. Jesus having thus declared himself, the Jews again seek to take him, but he escapes out of their hand.

No. 56. JOHN x. 22—39. At Jerusalem.

22 And it was at Jerusalem the feast-of-the-dedication τα εγκαινια, and it was winter.
23 And Jesus walked in the temple in Solomon's porch.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. x. 22. dedication—A great feast was held at the dedication of the first temple, 1 Ki. viii. 63—6, and especially of the altar, 2 Chr. vii. 8, 9—also at the dedication of the second temple, Ez. vi. 16, .7—The present feast was in commemoration of the dedication of the altar, upon the purifying of the temple by Judas Maccabæus—see NOTE—see on a yet future cleansing of the sanctuary, Da. viii. 13, .4.

23. Solomon (peace-maker)—Jesus was himself the 'PRINCE OF PEACE,' by whom the house of God was appointed to be built, 1 Chr. xxii. 9, 10—comp. He. i. 5—see on Christ as the peace-maker, and on the building of the spiritual temple, Eph. ii. 13—22.

Solomon's porch—where afterwards Christ, as the 'PRINCE OF LIFE,' and the Saviour from sin, was boldly declared by Peter, Ac. iii. 11—26—the peace that prevailed among the first disciples was there also manifested, ch. v. 12.

NOTES.

[Jno. x. 22. The feast of dedication. τα ἐγκαίνια. 'The word answers in the Sept. to the Heb. חֲנֻכָּה, handselling, or initiation; and in the New Test. denotes the encænium, or festival of eight days, occurring in the month Kisleu, instituted by Judas Maccabæus in commemoration of the purifying of the temple from heathen pollution, and the renewal of the temple worship, after three years' desuetude and profanation. Unlike all other festivals, which were kept only at Jerusalem, this was celebrated throughout the whole of Judæa. And as lights were kept burning in every house throughout each night of the festival, it is called by Josephus, Ant. xii. 7, 7, φῶτα.'—Bloomf.']; and see ADDENDA, p. 124, 'The Feast of Dedication.'

[23. Solomon's porch. 'Whence this portico had its name, is a point somewhat disputed. The opinion of the older commentators was, that it was so called, as being a portion of the temple of Solomon, which had been left undestroyed by the Chaldæans; and was therefore allowed to remain, though in a dilapidated state. . . . . And Josephus had before related that this portico had not been restored by Herod, which favours the supposition in question; for thus it might more easily preserve the name of its builder; since the southern portico, which was the greatest, was called the royal portico, as having been especially adorned by the kings, and particularly Herod (see ADDENDA, p. 124, 'Solomon's porch'). Indeed, it can hardly be imagined why this, of all the porticos, should be called Solomon's, unless from its having been in a great measure the building left by Solomon. It should seem, then, to have been built by Solomon, and afterwards restored, from a dilapidated state, by

THEY THAT BE WISE SHALL SHINE AS THE BRIGHTNESS OF THE FIRMAMENT: AND THEY THAT TURN MANY TO RIGHTEOUSNESS AS THE STARS FOR EVER AND EVER.—Dan. xii. 3.

JOHN x. 24—.8.

24 Then came the Jews round-about εκυκλωσαν him, and said unto-him, How long dost-thou-make us to-doubt την ψυχην—αιρεις? If thou be the Christ, tell us plainly.
25 Jesus answered them, I told you, and ye believed not: the works that I do in my 26 Father's name, they bear-witness of me. But ye believe not, because ye are not of my 27 sheep, as I said unto-you. My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow 28 me: and I give unto-them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. x. 24. round about him—as had been predicted, Ps. xxii. 12, 3, 'Many bulls have compassed me: strong bulls of Bashan have beset me round. They gaped upon me with their mouths, as a ravening and a roaring lion.'

25. the works that I do, &c.—He had pointed to these as among the proofs of his being the Son of God, the Sent of the Father, ch. v. 36, § 23, p. 179—These works had been more particularly manifested in the case of the man born blind, ix. 3, § 55, p. 109, &c.—Jesus again refers to the claims he had on their belief from this kind of evidence, ver. 38, p. 123.

26. ye believe not, because, &c.—He had before said, ch. viii. 43, § 55, p. 105, 'Why do ye not understand my speech? even because ye cannot hear my word.' —And ver. 47, 'He that is of God heareth God's words: ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God.'

as I said unto you—These words may better be read with ver. 27.

27. My sheep hear, &c.—This characteristic of his sheep he had before spoken of, ver. 3, 4, 16, &c., § 55, pp. 114, ..6—this had been practically exemplified in the man who had been born blind, ch. ix. 7, &c. § ib. p. 110.

I know them—This he had said unto them, ver. 14, § ib. p. 116—so to the man who had been cast out of the synagogue, Jesus made himself known as 'the Son of God,' the object of his trust and worship, ch. ix. 35—.8, § ib. p. 113.

they follow me—This also he had said, ver. 4, § ib. p. 114, and this characteristic of the sheep had likewise been exemplified in the case of the man whose eyes were opened; he followed the Faithful Witness in boldly bearing witness to the truth, ch. ix. 30—.3, § ib. p. 112.

28. I give unto them eternal life—The same connection between hearing with a believing heart, and being given everlasting life, our Lord had before declared, when speaking of the bread of life, ch. vi. 27—9, § 43, p. 326.

they shall never perish—This, because they have such a merciful and faithful High Priest, Heb. ii. 18, 'For in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted.'—vii. 25, 'he is able also to save them to the uttermost [or, 'evermore'] that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them.'

neither shall any, &c.—Rom. viii. 37—9, 'Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us. 38, For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, 39, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.'

NOTES.

Zorobabel. This corresponds to what is said in Josephus of that portico, by which it appears to have needed pulling down and rebuilding; for that is implied in the expression ἀνεγεῖραι.

'Far more probable is this than the supposition of many commentators, from Grotius downwards, and most recent ones, that it was called Solomon's portico, as occupying the place of the portico built by Solomon on the eastern side of the hill, and of which mention is made in Joseph. Bell. v. 5. 1; from which passage it appears that this was the only side on which a portico was then erected; the others, he says, being left without; κατὰ γε τὰ λοιπὰ μέρη γυμνὸν ἁπᾶς ἦν. There were afterwards porticos erected all round the temple.']

'Porticos were common in the heathen temples likewise, being erected for the accommodation of the priests and the worshippers in general, both for walking in inclement weather, and for the purpose of teachers communicating oral instruction, while walking, to their followers; from which circumstance, indeed, two principal sects of philosophers, namely, the Stoics and the Peripatetics, derived their names.' —Bloomf.

Jno. x. 24. How long dost thou make us to doubt? See ADDENDA, p. 124, col. commencing 'The question,' &c.

25. I told you. It is not recorded that Jesus had told them in so many words that he was the Christ, but he had used expressions designed to convey the same truth, and by which many understood Him as claiming to be the Messiah.—See ch. v. 19, § 23; viii. 36, 56; x. 11, § 55, pp. 104, ..7, .15; and see INTRODUCTION to § 23, p. 174.

26. Ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep. You do not possess the spirit of meek and humble discipleship. Were it not for pride, prejudice, and vain glory, and for your false notions of the Messiah, you would have learned from my declarations and works that I am the Christ.

As I said unto you. Comp. ch. viii. 47, § 55, p. 106.

27. They follow me. See on ver. 4, p. 114. Christians should not only obey Christ, but imitate him; go where his Spirit and providence lead them; yield themselves to his guidance, and seek to be led by him.

28. I give unto them eternal life. Unto those whom he had just described, those who hear him, are known of him, and follow him.—See ch. v. 24, § 23.

Neither shall any. οὐχ ἁρπάσει τις αὐτα, neither shall any enemy pluck, &c. This text, doubtless, most eminently refers to the Shepherd's guard over them against Satan's assaults, 1 Pe. v. 8.

Pluck them. In the original to rob; to seize and bear away as a robber does his prize.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Jno. x. 24. When the right term, by reason of its abuse, would convey a wrong impression, it may be well to refrain from using it, unless in speaking to those who in some measure understand its true import, or are willing to be instructed.

Thus Jesus, in conversing with the Jews, whose notions of the Messiah were far short of the truth, did not call himself by a name which to them would have conveyed no adequate impression respecting his person, character, and work.]

25 ver. The darkness in the Divine communications, of which men are prone to complain, may be on account of their own inattention or misapplication, rather than any indistinctness of utterance on the part of our great Teacher.

26 ver. If we would truly know the privileges of the believer in Christ, let us be in truth his disciples.

27 ver. Let us receive Christ in all his offices; listening to his instructions as a Prophet; availing ourselves of his Priestly sympathy and intercession; and following him, the Captain of our salvation, our King.

28 ver. Let us prize the words of Christ, whereby we are made partakers of everlasting life. Let us rejoice that they who have communion with Christ by a living faith, and loving obedience, can never be

JOHN x. 29—34.

29 any man'-pluck them out-of my hand. My Father, which gave them me, is greater 30 than-all; and no man is-able to-pluck them out-of my Father's hand. I and my Father
31 are one ἐν ἐσμεν. Then the Jews took-up stones again to stone him. 32. Jesus answered them, Many good works have-I-shewed you from my Father; for which διὰ
33 ποιον of those works do-ye-stone me? The Jews answered him, saying, For a-good work we-stone thee not; but for blasphemy; and because-that thou, being a-man, 34 makest thyself God. Jesus answered them, Is-it not written in your law, I said, Ye-are

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. x. 29. My Father, which gave, &c.—see on ch. xvii. 2—9, § 87, p. 399.

greater than all—acknowledged by Israel, when by the Lord's might that people were delivered out of Egypt, Ex. xv. 6—13, and again when the Lord gave Elijah to triumph over the priests of Baal, the god of fire, 1 Ki. xviii. 17—40—His preserving power is declared in many of the Psalms, as cxxi.; cxlv.; cxlvi., &c., and will be sung amid the greatest changes, as Rev. xi. 15—19.

30. I and my Father are one—see this oneness very fully declared, ch. v. 19—26, § 23, p. 177—see also ver. 38, p. 123—ch. xii. 45, § 85, p. 311, 'he that seeth me seeth him that sent me.'—So to Philip, ch. xiv. 9—11, § 87; xvi. 15, § ib., 'All things that the Father hath are mine:'—The perfect example of oneness, ch. xvii. 21—3, § ib.

31. again—They had before sought to kill him, on account of his declaring the same truth, ch. v. 18, § 23, p. 177; and when thereafter he visited Jerusalem, and vindicated what he had before said and done, 'then took they up stones to cast at him,' ch. viii. 59, § 55, p. 198.

32. Many good works, &c.—The scripture account implies that many were wrought by Jesus at Jerusalem—see ch. ii. 23; iii. 2, § 12, pp. 82, 83; iv. 45, § 14, p. 100—Two, both of them wrought upon the sabbath, are particularly mentioned—see ch v. § 23, p. 175, and ix. § 55, p. 199—The first of these is said to be the cause of Jesus being persecuted, ch. v. 16, § 23, p. 176—Probably much of the heat of his persecutors is accounted for, Ec. iv. 4, 'Again, I considered all travail, and every right work, that for this a man is envied of his neighbour.'

33. blasphemy—the punishment appointed for which was stoning, Lev. xxiv. 14—.6—The same charge was falsely brought against Naboth, that the king might seize upon his inheritance, 1 Ki. xxi. 10—.4—The scribes early began to meditate this charge against Christ on account of his forgiving sins, Mk. ii. 7, § 22, p. 165—It was on the charge of blasphemy, for declaring himself the Christ, the Son of God, that he was finally condemned by the high-priest, Mt. xxvi. 63—.6, § 89, p. 428.

being a man, makest thyself God—referring to what he had said, ver. 30—see also ch. v 17, 8, § 23, p. 176, 'Therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, because he not only had broken the sabbath, but said that God was his Father, making himself equal with God.'—In order that Jesus should be the Christ that had been promised, it was necessary that He should be both God and man, as Is. vii. 14, 'Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel.'—See on Emmanuel, Mt. i. 23, § 2, p. 14—also on 'What think ye of Christ?' ch. xxii. 42, § 85, p. 306—He required to be man to suffer as predicted, Is. liii.; and men could not have been blessed, as putting their trust in him, unless he had been God—comp. Je. xvii. 5—8, with Ps. i., ii.—comp. also Is. xlv. 21—.5, with Phil. ii. 5—11.

34. Is it not written, &c.—The passage here quoted by our Saviour was peculiarly applicable to the circumstances—Ps. lxxxii. speaks of God as standing 'in the congregation of the mighty,' pleading in behalf of 'the poor and needy,' represented in the person of Christ, God in our nature; the language of whose life is expressed in the words of the psalm, ver. 3, 4, 'Defend the poor and fatherless: do justice to the afflicted and needy. Deliver the poor and needy: rid them out of the hand of the wicked.'—His result is expressed in the utterance, Jno. xi. 49—53, § 58—The psalm proceeds, ver. 6—8, 'I have said, Ye are gods; and all of you are children of the most high. 7, But ye shall die like men, and fall like one of the princes. 8, Arise, O God, judge the earth: for thou shalt inherit all nations.'—That the

NOTES.

Jno. x. 30. I and my Father are one. Being the very same in nature, power, and every other perfection, as well as in will and design; we, the Father and the Son, must be both overcome before the weakest of the chosen ones can be deprived of eternal life.

This oneness of Christ with the Father, the Jews plainly understood as expressive of something more than unity of design in the work of Christ. Had they not regarded it as signifying one in counsel and power, as the verses preceding shew he meant, they would not have sought to stone him as a blasphemer, who made himself God.

31. Took up stones. ἐβάστασαν λίθους, 'They carried stones,' Le. xxiv. 14—.6.

32. Many good works, &c. All the miracles which Jesus had wrought were 'good works,' works of mercy and kindness: but there may here be a reference not only to the wonderful miracles which Christ wrought, but to his whole course of action in promulgating the gospel of grace.

From my Father. Meaning, 'in virtue of the power vested in me by my Father.'

33. Makest thyself God. See ch. v. 18, § 23, p. 177. This shews how they understood what he had said.

[34. Is it not written? In repelling the above charge, our Lord was pleased not fully to explain the nature of that union which he had claimed with the Deity, and the grounds on which he had called God his Father, and himself the Son of God; but contented himself with using a sort of argument quite in the Jewish style (and therefore adapted to make an impression on his hearers), reasoning with them on the ground of what they themselves admitted, namely, that he was a prophet sent from God, and showing that, even on that supposition, he had a right to the title which they refused him; alluding to Ps. lxxxii. 6, where judges and magistrates are called Elohim, sons of the most high God. 'Argumentum (says Calvin) autem quo utitur non a paribus sumptum est, sed a minori ad majus.'—Bloomf.] and [see on ch. xv. 25, § 87, p. 391.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

lost. He who came to seek and to save that which was lost, who hath known us in adversity, will know us through life and death, and acknowledge us before the Father, and before his holy angels.

Jno. x. 29. We have nothing to fear as being obedient to our King. God, as a Father, will defend with his almighty arm the faithful followers of his Son.

When evil threatens, let us ever think that God is greater than all; and that nothing can in reality harm us, so long as we allow our case to remain in his hand.

[30, .1 ver. It is hard to deal with those who think themselves wise in that of which they are ignorant. The Jews accused Jesus of not saying plainly that he was the Christ; and yet, upon his telling them that he is what Messiah must be—One with God—they seek to destroy him.]

32 ver. The many good works of Jesus were a sufficient seal to his Divine mission.

33 ver. Let us not be rash in listening to ecclesiastical denunciations. That which the Jews called blasphemy, we know to be most important truth, that Jesus the Christ is truly Man, and as truly God.

JOHN X. 35—.9.

35 gods? If he called them gods, unto whom the word of God came, and the scripture 36 can- not be broken; say ye of him, whom the Father hath-sanctified, and sent into the 37 world, Thou-blasphemest; because I-said, I-am the-Son of God? If I-do not the works 38 of my Father, believe me not. But if I-do, though ye-believe not me, believe the works:
39 that ye-may-know, and believe, that the Father is in me, and I in him. Therefore they-sought again to-take him: but he-escaped ἐξῆλθεν out-of their hand.

[Ver. 40, see p. 125.]*

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

doom above denounced awaited those who persecuted, in the person of Christ, the poor and needy, was speedily proved by the fact; and that He being truly God, as well as man, did arise, and is the appointed Judge of the earth; and that he will, in opposition to the narrow notions of the Jews, inherit all nations, is equally true.

Jno. x. 35. the scripture cannot be broken—but the Jews might be broken off from their vaunted privileges, as intimated above, Ps. lxxxii. 6, 7—Je. xliv. 28, they 'shall know whose words shall stand, mine, or their's.'

36. say ye of him, &c.—He was himself the Word of God, come into their midst, as described in Ps. lxxxii. 1, &c., appearing, in his first advent, as one oppressed and afflicted, and receiving in his own person the wrongs which are perpetuated upon the poor and needy; whose cause he will avenge when he comes to judge the earth and 'inherit all nations,' as intimated, ver. 8.

whom the Father hath sanctified, &c.—He had been distinguished from all others as being the Son of God, upon whom the Spirit of the Lord was to rest, as testified by the Baptist, ch. i. 32—.4, § 16, p. 70—comp. Is. xlii. 1—see on 'Him hath God the Father sealed,' Jno. vi. 27, § 43, p. 326.

37. If I do not the works, &c.—He only asked, as in Ps. lxxxii. 2, that they should not 'judge unjustly,' &c.—see also ver. 30, *supra.

38. believe the works, &c.—so to his disciples, ch. xiv. 11, § 87.

the Father is in me, &c.—The truth on account of his stating which they had before been ready to stone him, ver. 30, .1, *supra.

39. sought again to take him—see ch. vii. 30; viii. 59, § 55, pp. 94, 108.

NOTES.

Jno. x. 35. Unto whom the word of God came. Meaning, 'to whom was delivered the command mentioned just before,' namely, to plead the cause of the destitute, &c.

Cannot be broken. i. e., 'And the scriptures cannot be taken exception to, or set aside as wrong.' Λύειν, indeed, when used of a law, or other authoritative writing, signifies to abrogate, and also (as here), in a restricted sense, to contravene, or take exception to.'

[36. Hath sanctified. ἡγίασε. 'Here the expression simply means, "has set apart," as the τὸν ἅγιον τοῦ θεοῦ, "The Holy One of God;" for ἁγιάζειν, like the Heb. קדשׁ, signifies to set apart from common use, and apply to a sacred purpose. Our Lord did not argue thus, to signify that he was to be called God, and Son of God, in no other sense than that in which those judges were so styled; namely, with respect to office; much less to decline the application of the word in the same sense as of the Father. He merely uses an argument ab exempio (what the philosophers call an instance), and argues ab concessis: q. d. magistrates are called Divine, and sons of God, without injury to the Deity; nay, God himself hath so called them. May not I, then, by a similar right, be so called, whom God hath sent into the world, and to whom he hath committed an office far above theirs to whom that name was given?'—Bloomf.]

[37, .8. If I do not, &c. Meaning, 'If I had not done the same works which my Father doth, ye might refuse to believe my words; but since they bear the same stamp and impress, you should at least believe them, if you will not believe my words; and then would you understand that the Father is in me, and I in the Father.'—Tittman.]

' The words ἐν ἐμοὶ ὁ Πατὴρ—ἐν τῷ denote, in a general way, union of the closest kind; and here, by the force of the context, conjunction of one and the same Divine energy. The Father was in the Son, the Son in the Father; inasmuch as the Son hath the same as the Father, and can do, and doth, the same with the Father.'—Comp. ch. v. 17, § 28.—Bloomf.

And when the scripture, which is infallible, and must be accomplished, calls your magistrates gods, who were but types and shadows of the Messiah, why do you perversely charge me, in whom these types are perfectly fulfilled, and whom the Father hath appointed from eternity, and hath sent into the world to exercise all authority as the true Messiah, with blasphemy, for asserting my oneness in nature and perfections with the Father? If I do not perform works as great and glorious as could be expected from the Father, and which, being superior and contrary to the laws of nature, must be performed by that power which is in the Father himself, I do not claim your belief as the Son of God or promised Messiah. But if I perform works peculiar to God, and in a manner proper to him, then, however ye disregard my person or doctrine in itself, submit to the unexceptionable evidence of my miracles, that ye may be convinced that my Father and I have essential and necessary communion in Godhead.

39. Sought again to take him. They evidently understood him as still claiming equality with God, and under this impression Jesus left them. Nor can it be doubted that he intended to leave them with this impression.

He escaped out of their hand. Withdrew himself from their power.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. x. 34, 5. Let us receive the word of God with reverence, as that which cannot be broken.

36 ver. By whatever name any creature may be called, Jesus has rightfully a name which is above every name.

37 ver. We are to regard the works of Jesus as being given in evidence that he is One with the Father. We have as direct proof that the works of God are done by the Son, as that they have been wrought by the Father.

37, .8 ver. Jesus, who was the special messenger of the Father, did not call upon men to believe in his mission except upon sufficient evidence.

38 ver. Let us attend to the evidence of the Divine mission of Jesus, that we may experience the blessedness of knowing that the Father is in Christ, and Christ in the Father.

* See ADDENDA, p. 124, second par.

ADDENDA.

THE FEAST OF THE DEDICATION.—John x. 22, p. 120.

'The feast of dedication, Jno. x. 22, is evidently the feast next in order to the feast of tabernacles, ch. vii. 2; and it is another presumptive proof, either that our Lord had been absent during all the intermediate time from Jerusalem, or nothing had since occurred upon the spot, similar to what had taken place before; that we meet upon this occasion also with the mention of a renewed attempt to stone him, ch. x. 31. The πάλιν in this allusion can be referred to ch. viii. 59, an incident at the feast of tabernacles only. We may conclude, therefore, that since the time of the feast of tabernacles, our Saviour and the Jews of Jerusalem did not meet again, until they met in Solomon's porch; or if they had, that nothing again occurred like what occurred before. The former of these suppositions is confirmed by the silence of St. John, and the latter is negatived by the experience of the past; for had they ever met again as before, something, it may justly be presumed, would have arisen to make the adversaries of Jesus desirous of stoning him as before.

'The proceedings at this feast, as related, beginning with ch. x. 22, cannot embrace more than a single day; and being prematurely terminated by the attempt upon the life of Christ, these particulars themselves are probably the whole of what then transpired, at least in public. After the day of that attempt, Jesus appeared no more openly; and until that day he does not seem to have visited the temple. The conversation in the porch of Solomon, which took place upon that day, occurred on the first opportunity furnished by his appearance in public.

'The feast of dedication began on the 25th of the Jewish Casleu, and lasted for eight days in all. The 25th of Casleu was the sixty-ninth day inclusive, from the 15th of Tisri exclusive, and consequently in the third year of our Saviour's ministry, when Tisri fell upon October 11th, Casleu 25th fell upon December 19th. The first of the eight days then coincided with December 19th, and the last with December 26th; a statement sufficient by itself to prove that the feast of dedication this year fell out in the midst of a Jewish winter, which yet would not be always the case. But this year the passover fell as late as it could, and therefore so did every other feast; if the passover had fallen as early as it could, the feast of dedication would have fallen out a month earlier, which would not have been so much in the winter. Moreover, when Tisri 15th . . . . fell upon Thursday, Casleu 25th must have fallen on Wednesday; the first day of the feast then was a Wednesday, and consequently so was the last. The particular day on which the conversation in Solomon's porch transpired, must be uncertain; but if we may conjecture that Jesus repaired to the temple in this instance about the same time as the former, viz. μεσούσης ἤδη τῆς ἑορτῆς, it might take place on the last day of Casleu, Sunday, December 23rd, or on the first day of Zebeth, Monday, December 24th. If our Lord retired from Jerusalem soon after the attempt on his life, he consequently retired thence before the end of the month of December.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxx. pp. 508—.10.

SOLOMON'S PORCH.—John x. 23, p. 120.

By some it is supposed to have been at the south-east corner of the temple area. Dr. Robinson, Bib. Res. Vol. I. p. 422—.7, says, 'We first noticed these large stones at the south-east corner of the enclosure, where, perhaps, they are as conspicuous, and form as great a portion of the wall, as in any part. Here are several courses, both on the east and south sides, alternating with each other, in which the stones measure from seventeen to nineteen feet in length, by three or four feet in height, while one block at the corner is seven and a half feet thick. . . . . There seems little room for hesitation in referring them back to the days of Solomon, or rather of his successors, who, according to Josephus, built up here immense walls, immeasurable for all time.'

Dr. Robinson continues, at p. 429, 'Upon the southern part of the enclosure internally, according to Josephus, "a broad portico ran along the wall, supported by four rows of columns, which divided it into three parts, thus forming a triple colonnade or portico. Of these the two external parts were each thirty feet wide, and the middle one forty-five feet. The height of the two external portices was more than fifty feet, while that of the middle one was double, or more than a hundred feet. The length was a stadium, extending from valley to valley. Such was the elevation of the middle portico above the adjacent valley, that if from its roof one attempted to look down into the gulf below, his eyes became dark and dizzy before they could penetrate to the immense depth."—Antiq. xv. 11—.5. The valley then meant can well be no other than that of the Kidron, which here actually bends south-west around the corner, so that the eastern end of this high southern portico impended over it. The depth of the valley at this point, as we have seen, is about 150 feet; which, with the elevation of the wall and portico, gives a total height of about 310 feet above the bottom of the valley, an elevation sufficient to excuse the somewhat hyperbolical language of the Jewish historian. The portico along the eastern wall was rebuilt by Agrippa, and is described by Josephus in like manner, as rising above the valley to the enormous height of 400 cubits, or more than 500 feet; which doubtless is merely an exaggerated estimate. —Jos. Ant. xx. 9, 7. At the north-east corner, too, the same portico was near the valley of the Kidron, which is said to have here a fearful depth.'—B. J. vi. 3, 2.

'HOW LONG DOST THOU MAKE US TO DOUBT?'—John x. 24, p. 121.

'The question, ch. x. 24, which was put to our Saviour, implies a state of mind wavering between doubt and conviction, between an expectation of some Messiah, and a secret belief, mixed up with considerable uncertainty, that Jesus was he. This uncertainty the inquirers would evidently charge upon our Lord himself—ἕως πότε τὴν ψυχὴν ἡμῶν αἴρεις; that is, How long dost thou raise our expectations, and yet keep us in suspense? how long dost thou alternately gratify, and alternately disappoint, our hopes? They complain, therefore, of some difficulty in comprehending the true character of Christ; that he gave them reason, at one time, to think so and so of it, and directly after, just the reverse; and whatever this difficulty might be, producing the ambiguity and suspense of judgment in question, the very request, which they proceed to subjoin, is a proof that, in its cause, it must be ascribed to the words, and not to the actions, of the party addressed.

'If thou art the Christ, tell us so, παῤῥησία. Παῤῥησία in its proper sense is freedom of speech; and in its secondary, openness or simplicity of speech. Hence it is opposed to παροιμία, or παροδολή, as speaking without disguise, and without reserve, is opposed to speaking in figure, or with a partial concealment of the truth. The request of the Jews, therefore, amounts to this: that if Jesus were the Christ, the Christ which they expected, he would use no mystery nor evasion, he should tell them so at once. I say the Christ which they expected, about none else can they be supposed to inquire; and this distinction is not unimportant. To be the true Christ, and to be the Christ which the Jews expected, were very different things; and however plainly our Lord might have declared himself the Christ in the former capacity, the inquirers would still judge of his meaning, from their own notions concerning the Christ, in the latter: between which, and the truth of the fact as regarded the former, there would be the utmost discrepancy.'—Greswell, Vol. II. p. 501.

'It is incontestable that the Jews expected a Messiah who should deliver their country from a foreign yoke, be a triumphant conqueror, and a mighty potentate; and the event proves that they were determined to receive none else. The personal demeanour of our Lord had given them little encouragement to hope he would ever declare himself such; had he but done this, however indirectly, the nation would have become believers to a man. The negative influence of long and systematic opposition to the national wish, combined with the positive effect of the national degeneracy in religion and in morality, was the true and sole cause, humanly speaking, of the final rejection of our Lord himself by both rulers and people. But had all, who eventually became disbelievers, yet ceased to hope that Jesus might still be the Messiah? The proceedings when he entered Jerusalem, only four days before his crucifixion, will not allow us to assert this. However slow and reluctant to make such an avowal of his character he might himself appear, his actions spoke a language not to be misunderstood, and clearly demonstrated that, were he inclined to assume it, no one was better qualified to realize the glorious and enthusiastic picture of the ideal deliverer, so dear to the national wish. If, notwithstanding the experience of the past, they still clung to the same delusive hope, it would be a motive for watching every word, and every act, of our Lord only the more intensely; and when, in lieu of plain assurances, according with their desires, and easily reconciled to their preconceived expectations, they continued to hear declarations, in their obvious sense flatly repugnant to their belief, and in their secret meaning far beyond their comprehension, great in proportion would be their disappointment.

'The present remonstrance, ch. x. 24, it appears to me was produced by some such cause as this,—by a long-suppressed feeling of impatience at finding their hopes and their wishes so often excited and encouraged, and again dejected and discouraged. There is no necessity, then, for the violent and improbable hypothesis that St. John has arbitrarily joined together the account of the proceedings at the feast of dedication, with the account of the proceedings at the feast of tabernacles, yet has given no notice to that effect. The last discourse recorded to have happened at this feast, as it must be clearly referred to, ch. x. 26—30, in the renewal of the conversation at the next, so would be quite sufficient to account for the connection between them, though each of them should have taken place, as they are related, months asunder.'—Ibid. p. 506.

SECTION 57.—(G. 22.)—[Lesson 54, continued.]—JESUS DEPARTS FROM JERUSALEM TO THE QUARTER BEYOND JORDAN, WHERE JOHN AT FIRST WAS BAPTIZING: MANY BELIEVE ON HIM THERE.—JOHN X. 40—.2.—[Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. XXX. pp. 510—..3.]

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Jno. x. 40. Jesus passes beyond Jordan to where John at first baptized, when he came preparing the way of the Lord, and bearing testimony respecting him.

—— 41, .2. Many resort unto Jesus; and now, after sufficient opportunity has been given for development of the truth, they confess that all John had said of Jesus is found to be true.

Here there were facilities for judging and liberty of judgment; and the evidence from prophecy appears to have had more influence with the Jews than miracle and every kind of argumentation.

No. 57. JOHN X. 40—.2. Line from Jerusalem to the North of Bethshan.

40 And went-away again beyond Jordan * into the place where John at-first baptized; 41 and there he-abode. And many resorted unto him, and said, John did no miracle: but 42 all-things that John spake of this-man were true. And many believed on him there.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. x. 40. beyond Jordan, &c.—ch. i. 28, § 10, p. 69, 'in Bethabara beyond Jordan, where John was baptizing.'—See on Mt. iii. 13, § 8, p. 58, 'Jordan.'

41. John did no miracle.—If he had regenerated the people by water baptism, or had even procured them the remission of their sins thereby, he would have performed no small miracle; but in place of this, he taught that men must actually put away their sins by repentance, that so they might stand in a preparedness for beholding 'the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.'—Otherwise they remained in condemnation, Lu. iii. 3, 7—14, § 7, pp. 50, .2, .3; Jno. i. 26—.9, § 10, p. 69.

all things that John, &c.—ch. i. 7, § 7, p. 47, 'The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might believe.'—Ac. xix. 4, 'saying unto the people, that they should believe on him which should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus.'—Jno. i. 27, § 10, p. 69, 'He it is, who coming after me is preferred before me, whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose.'—See again, ch. iii. 27—36, § 13, confirmed by the raising of Lazarus.

42. many believed on him there.—The first disciples of Jesus had been drawn to him there, having by the preaching of John been prepared to receive Jesus as the Christ, ch. i. 29—42, § 10, pp. 69—71

NOTES.

Jno. x. 40. Where John . . . . baptized. At Bethany, or Bethabara, on the other side of the river Jordan. See NOTE, ch. i. 28, § 10, p. 69; and GEOG. NOT. infra.

41. No miracle. John did not confirm his mission by working miracles, but he shewed that he was a prophet by foretelling the character and success of Jesus. It may be remarked that the people of that place were properly prepared by the ministry of John for the preaching of Jesus. The persecution of the Jews was the occasion of his going there, and thus the wrath of man was made to praise him. It has been common that the opposition of the wicked has resulted in the increased success of the cause which they have persecuted.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. x. 39, 40. Jesus had boldly confronted his accusers, and in the most public manner delivered his mission in Jerusalem. So, after full opportunity had been given for the trial of his claims, he returned to challenge investigation, where, at the commencement of his public ministry, his character and claims had been the most fully declared.

41, .2 ver. It is most profitable to compare prediction with fulfilment. Prophecy so wondrously fulfilled as in the case of Jesus, tends more than even miracles to produce a rational conviction of the truth. Let us rejoice that we have this testimony even more abundantly than those who heard the words of John, and saw the works of Jesus. Jesus, in all that he did and said, and also in all that he suffered, proved that he was 'INDEED THE VERY CHRIST.'

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICE.

* 'WENT AWAY AGAIN BEYOND JORDAN,' ETC.—John x. 40, supra.

'The quarter to which he retired is simply described as the region beyond Jordan, the reference in the πάλιν being to ch. vi. 1, § 40, p. 310, where a similar visit to the country on the other side of the

HE IS A CHOICE FRIEND WHO CONCEALS MY FAULTS FROM OTHERS, AND DISCOVERS THEM TO MYSELF.
THE SWORD OF REPROOF SHOULD BE DRAWN AGAINST THE OFFENCE, AND NOT AGAINST THE OFFENDER.

IT WAS THE SAYING OF A HEATHEN, THAT HE WHO WOULD DO GOOD, MUST EITHER HAVE A FAITHFUL FRIEND TO INSTRUCT HIM, OR A WATCHFUL ENEMY TO CORRECT HIM.

lake, and consequently beyond the Jordan, had been already recorded. That this place was Bethabara, where John at one period of his ministry was certainly baptising (Jno. i. 28; iii. 26, §§ 10, 3, pp. 69, 89), and which also was situated beyond the Jordan, would not be a necessary consequence. The reference in τὸ πρῶτον, x. 40, does not specify Bethabara as such, or relate to the incident recorded, ch. i. 28, which happened there, but merely to the order of time between the ministry of Jone, and the ministry of Christ; for the former was prior, and yet only preparatory, to the latter; though it may still be true that the scene of John's ministry might be changed in the course of its continuance from the eastern side of the Jordan, where it had begun, for the western, into which it subsequently passed (ch. i. 28; iii. 23, 6)

'It is not, indeed, improbable that Bethabara might be a general name for the Aulon, or Perichorus of Jordan, on its eastern side; or for some part of it, nearer to the southern extremity of the lake of Tiberias, than to the northern extremity of the lake Asphaltites; and, consequently, to the ford in the vicinity of Jericho. The denomination itself means house, or place, of passage; and might obviously be given to any of the fords of the Jordan. Now, there was one such ford opposite to Scythopolis, and, therefore, not far from Tiberias (Relandi Palæst. i. 279), besides the ford near Jericho. The most ancient manuscripts, however, in the time of Origen, and others, instead of Bethabara beyond Jordan, read Bethany beyond Jordan; and the exception which Origen takes against this reading, and his consequent correction of the text for Bethabara, are neither of them founded upon just critical grounds; but upon mere presumption of what ought to be. Among the thousand towns and villages which were comprised in all Palestine, it would be nothing extraordinary if many bore the same names, which in our Saviour's, or St. John's time might still be in existence, and still known as distinct; but by the time of Origen, after the numerous desolations which the country had suffered, might have become totally extinct; and even their names have perished with them. Moreover, if the text of St. John had originally exhibited Bethabara; and Bethany, as Origen himself contends, was a name so completely unknown on the other side of the Jordan, who would have thought of corrupting the former for Bethany? But his own example proves how natural and obvious it would be, under such a presumption of the truth, to change Bethany into Bethabara. (Bethany is the reading adopted by Griesbach; for whose reasons the reader is referred to his edition of the gospels.)

'By retiring into this quarter in particular, our Lord would be nearer to Galilee than to Judæa; though strictly in neither at the time: and if he was less than one day's journey removed from Capernaum, he would be more than two days' journey distant from Jerusalem. This quarter, however, was that which he had probably never visited since the commencement of his ministry, at least so as to reside within it; and, yet as it had been the principal, if not the exclusive, scene of the labours of John, it was but natural that its inhabitants should still remember both his preaching in general, and his testimonies to Jesus in particular, which accounts for the belief of many there upon our Lord (ch. x. 41, .2).

'The length of the residence in these parts is not specified; but it is shewn (supra, p. 219) that the visit was speedily followed by our Lord's return to Jerusalem, preparatory to the raising of Lazarus; the time taken up by which return, and by the performance of the miracle, it is possible satisfactorily to determine.

'Lazarus began to be sick, while our Lord was still in this neighbourhood; and whatever we may conjecture concerning the nature of his sickness, his death had not yet taken place, when the news of his illness was brought to Jesus (see ch. xi. 3—6, § 58, p. 127).'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxx. p. 510—.3

SECTION 58.—(G. 23, .4.)—[Lesson 55.]—JESUS RECEIVES NEWS OF LAZARUS' SICKNESS. ARRIVES IN BETHANY IN JUDÆA, AND RAISES LAZARUS TO LIFE AGAIN. THE PHARISEES ARE THE MORE DETERMINED TO PUT JESUS TO DEATH: JESUS WITHDRAWS TO EPHRAIM.—John xi. 1—54.—[Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxx. pp. 513—..6.]

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Jno. xi. 1—3. Lazarus of Bethany, being sick, his sisters, Martha and Mary, send to Jesus, saying, 'Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick.'

—— 4. Jesus intimates that this sickness is not unto death, but that His life-giving power may be manifested, and that further evidence may be produced to his being the Son of God.

—— 5, 6. Martha, her sister, and Lazarus, are all special objects of Jesus' love: yet after hearing of Lazarus' sickness, Jesus abides two days longer in the place where the message reached him.

—— 7. Jesus, who is now east of the Jordan, proposes to go again into Judæa.

—— 8. The disciples object to his returning among those who had so lately sought his destruction.

—— 9, 10. Jesus intimates that the day of Jerusalem's merciful visitation is not yet ended; and that the disciples, in following Him, 'the Light of the world,' have no cause for fear.

—— 11. Jesus now informs his disciples of the object of his proposed journey: He goes to awake Lazarus out of his sleep.

—— 12, .3. His disciples still object, saying, 'Lord, if he sleep, he shall do well;' they thinking of Lazarus as being in the way of recovery, and not as Jesus meant, asleep in death.

Jno. xi. 14, .5. Jesus undeceives the disciples, saying plainly, "Lazarus is dead;" and intimates that, so far as they are concerned, he is glad; seeing that the matter is to result in the confirmation of their faith. In this view he invites them to accompany him.

—— 16. Thomas, who appears to have been one of the most timid of his followers, and to have in the proposed journey seen nothing but death before them, at length leaves off objecting.

—— 17, .8. Jesus, on coming to Bethany, which is near Jerusalem, finds that Lazarus has been already four days in the grave.

—— 19. Many Jews have come to comfort the bereaved sisters.

—— 20. As soon as Martha hears that Jesus is coming, she goes out to meet him, Mary remaining in the house.

—— 21, .2. Martha expresses her regret that Jesus had not been present to prevent her brother's illness terminating in death; but knows that even now God will give him whatsoever he will ask.

—— 23. Jesus promises that Lazarus shall 'rise again.'

—— 24. Martha says she knows 'that he shall rise again,' along with the righteous, who shall be raised in the last day.

Jno. xi. 25, .6. Jesus says, 'I am the resurrection, and the life.' It is through Jesus that the dead will live, and the living be changed without passing through death. Jesus pointedly intimates that it is as being united to him by faith, that the resurrection can be joyfully expected. He questions whether Martha believingly receives his statement.

—— 27. Martha assents, and professes to believe in him as—

1. The Christ.—2. The Son of God.—3. He who had been promised to come into the world.

—— 28. Martha, who probably feels that this subject is better understood by her sister than by herself, calls Mary secretly, saying, 'The Master is come, and calleth for thee.'

—— 29, 30. Mary immediately comes to Jesus, who is still at the place where Martha met him.

—— 31. The Jews, who have come to comfort Mary, follow her, thinking that she has gone to 'the grave to weep.' —— 32. Mary falls at Jesus' feet, saying the same words as Martha, ver. 21.

—— 33—.5. Jesus seeing Mary and those with her weeping, is deeply moved with compassion, and having asked where Lazarus is laid, is invited to come and see. Jesus weeps.

—— 36, .7. The Jews say, 'Behold how he loved him!' Some of them ask whether he who had opened the eyes of one born blind, might not have preserved in life one so beloved.

—— 38, .9. Jesus having come to the grave, directs that the stone at the mouth of it be removed.

—— 39, 40. Martha having remarked upon the length of time her brother had been interred, Jesus refers to what he had said when first he met her, ver. 23—.6.—Comp. ver. 4.

Jno. xi. 41, .2. The stone being removed, Jesus returns thanks to the Father for having heard him. He does this in the audience of the people, that they may be led to regard the raising of Lazarus, which is about to take place, as an evidence of his being the Sent of the Father.

—— 43, .4. Jesus, with a loud voice, commands him that is dead to come forth. The summons is instantly obeyed; Jesus bids those who stand by to loose Lazarus, and let him go.

—— 45, .6. Many of the Jews present believe on Jesus, but some of them go and tell the Pharisees.

—— 47, .8. The chief priests and Pharisees are in consequence gathered in council, accusing themselves of weakness for not putting a stop to such proceedings; by which the body of the people were likely to be led away, so as to provoke the Romans to come, and do that which afterwards was actually done by them.

—— 49—52. Caiaphas, the high priest, is moved to utter a prophecy, in which they are admonished of their great ignorance, and want of consideration with regard to the Divine purpose, in the sacrifice of Christ, not only for the Jewish people, but for the whole nation of Israel; and under whom, as their One Head, are to be gathered together the sons of God that were scattered abroad.

—— 53. The Jews, misapprehending the prophecy, and wresting it to their own destruction, from henceforth set themselves to accomplish the death of Jesus.

—— 54. As if intimating that the kingdom is about to be taken from them, 'and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof,' Jesus walks no more openly among the Jews, but withdraws to 'a country near to the wilderness, into a city called Ephraim.'

No. 58.—(G. 23.)—Jesus receives news of Lazarus' sickness.—John xi. 1—16. North of Bethshan. Bethany or Bethabara, East of Jordan.

1 Now δε a-certain man was sick, named Lazarus, of Bethany, the town of Mary and her
2 sister Martha. (It-was that Mary which anointed the Lord with-ointment, and wiped his 3 feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was-sick.) Therefore [a] his sisters sent unto 4 him, saying, Lord, behold, he whom thou-lovest is-sick. When-Jesus heard that, he-said, This sickness ασθενεια is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of [a] Gr. the sisters.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. xi. 2. Mary—was remarkable for her love to the Saviour, as shewn by her diligent waiting upon his teaching, Lu. x. 39, § 61, p. 150, and in anointing him with 'very precious ointment,' Mt. xxvi. 7; Jno. xii. 3, [Mk. xiv. 3,] § 81, p. 254.

4. for the glory of God—see on ver. 40—comp. ch. ix. 3, 24, § 55, pp. 109, .11.

that the Son, &c.—There is such oneness of the Son with the Father, that 'He that honoureth not the Son honoureth not the Father which hath sent him,' Jno. v. 23, § 23, and xiii. 31, § 87, 'Now is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified in him.'

NOTES.

Jno. xi. 1. Bethany. A village on the eastern declivity of the mount of Olives.—See Geog. Notices, p. 134.

The town of Mary. The place where she lived. At that place also lived Simon the leper, Mt. xxvi. 6.

2. That Mary which anointed. This is said by prolepsis, or anticipation, meaning, 'she who sometime afterwards anointed,' &c.—See ch. xii 3; Mt. xxvi. 6, 7, § 81, p. 253, Notes.

3. Sent unto him. They believed that Jesus, if present, had power to heal him, ver. 21, 32, pp. 129, .30.

4. This sickness, &c. 'Our Lord here declares that the purpose for which "this sickness" had been sent, was not the death of Lazarus (for it should not prove finally mortal to him), but the glorifying of God, through that glorious work, which would in consequence of it be wrought by him, the Son of God. Comp. ch. ix. 3, p. 109. This was our Lord's meaning; but it was expressed in such terms as could not be understood, until they were explained by the event. These words appear to have been the answer returned by our Lord to the message of Martha and Mary.' Comp. ver. 40, p. 131.—Lonsdale and Hale.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. xi. 3. 'In sickness we should implore the aid and presence of Jesus. He only can restore us and our friends: He only can cheer us with the hope of a blessed resurrection.'

4 ver. The afflictions that befall the people of God, are only to give the greater opportunity for his goodness to triumph in their behalf, unto the glory of their Redeemer.

JOHN xi. 5—16.

5 God might-be-glorified thereby. Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus.
6 When he-had-heard therefore that he-was-sick, he-abode two days still in the-same-
7 place where he-was. Then after that saith-he to his [a] disciples, Let-us-go into Judæa
8 again. His disciples say unto-him, Master, the Jews of-late νυν sought to-stone thee; and 9 goest-thou thither again? Jesus answered, Are-there not twelve hours in-the day? If any-man walk in the day, he-stumbleth not, because he-seeth the light of-this world.
10 But if a-man walk in the night, he-stumbleth, because there-is no light το φως in him.
11 These-things said-he: and after that he-saith unto-them, Our friend Lazarus sleepeth
12 κεκοιμηται; but I-go, that I-may-awake-him-out-of-sleep εξυπνισω. Then said his dis-13 ciples, Lord, if he-sleep, he-shall-do-well σωθησεται. Howbeit Jesus spake of his death:
but they thought that he-had-spoken of taking-of-rest in-sleep κοιμησεως του ὑπνου.
14 Then said Jesus unto-them plainly παρρησια, Lazarus is-dead. 15, And I-am-glad for your-sakes that I-was not there, to-the-intent ye-may-believe; nevertheless let-us-go 16 unto him. Then said Thomas, which is-called Didymus, unto his-fellow-disciples, Let-us also-go, that we-may-die with him.

[a] Gr. the disciples.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. xi. 5. Now Jesus loved, &c.—ch. xv. 9—13, § 87—'Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.'

6. same place—Bethabara, beyond Jordan—see on ch. x. 40, § 57, p. 125.

8. to stone thee—see ch. viii. 59, § 55, p. 108; x. 31, § 56, p. 122.

9. light of this world—ch. viii. 12; ix. 5, § 55, pp. 100, ..9.

10. walk in the night—This may have been said in warning to Judas—see ch. xiii. 30, § 87—In the garden of Gethsemane, Jesus said to the company of which Judas was the guide, Lu. xxii. 53, § 88, 'This is your hour, and the power of darkness.'

In seasons of darkness let the follower of Jesus 'trust in the name of the LORD, and stay upon his God,' Is. l. 10.

11. Our friend Lazarus sleepeth—Jesus said, in reference to Jairus' daughter, Mt. ix. 24, § 36, p. 283, 'The maid is not dead, but sleepeth.' Death is often in scripture called 'sleep:'—De. xxxi. 16, 'the LORD said unto Moses, Behold, thou shalt sleep [Heb. lie down] with thy fathers;' &c.—Of Stephen, Ac. vii. 60, 'he fell asleep.'—Of the saints, the apostle said, 1 Co. xv. 51, 'We shall not all sleep (or, die), but we shall all be changed.'—1 Th. iv. 14, 'them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him.'—See ch. v. 10—David prays, Ps. xiii. 3, 'Consider and hear me, O LORD my God: lighten mine eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death;'—and in lxxvi. 5, 'The stouthearted are spoiled, they have slept their sleep:'

that I may awake him—Da. xii. 2, 'Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake,' &c.—On the great awaking—see Jno. v. 25—9, § 23.

The Lord now calls those who are dead in sins to awake, Eph. v. 14, 'Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light.'

16. Didymus—The kind of evidence afforded in the raising of Lazarus, appears to have been much needed by him—He was slow to believe in the resurrection of Jesus, ch. xx. 24, .5, § 95; xxi. 2, § 97.

die with him—see ver. 8.

NOTES.

Jno. xi. 6. Abode two days. Did not reach Bethany till Lazarus had been four days in the grave, ver. 17, that the miracle might be greater, and the evidence of his death plainer.

8. Of late. According to the original, 'just now.'—See ch. x. 31, § 56, p. 122.

9. Are there not twelve hours, &c. A sort of adagial saying, such as that at ch. ix. 4. The Jews (by a computation of time adopted from the Greeks) divided their day, or the time from sunrise to sunset, into twelve hours, of course varying a little, according to the season of the year.

If any man walk, &c. A traveller should use the day to walk in, and not the night. 'Jesus is the Light of the world; he that walks in his spirit, and by his direction, cannot stumble.'—A. Clarke. Christ intimates that he was desirous of doing his Father's will while the day of opportunity lasted.

[10. In him. εν αυτῳ, 'in it,' i. e., in the world.]

11. Lazarus sleepeth. Is dead. The word sleep is applied to death, 1st. Because of the resemblance between them, as sleep is the 'kinsman of death.' In this sense it is often used by pagan writers. But, 2nd. In the scriptures it is used to intimate that death will not be final; that there will be an awaking out of this sleep, or a resurrection. It is a beautiful and tender expression, removing all that is dreadful in death, and filling the mind with the idea of calm repose after a life of toil, with reference to a future resurrection, in increased vigour, and with renovated powers. In this sense it is applied in the scriptures usually to the saints.—See 'Scrip. Illus.'

12. If he sleep, he shall do well. Sleep was regarded by the Jews as a favourable symptom in sickness. Hence it was said among them, 'Sleep in sickness is a sign of recovery, because it shews that the violence of the disease has abated.'—Lightfoot. This seems to have been the meaning of the disciples.

15. To the intent, &c. 'That your faith may be better confirmed by my miracle.'

16. Thomas—Didymus. The Jews, when travelling in foreign countries, or familiarly conversing with Greeks or Romans, assumed a Greek or Latin name of a like signification with their own. The name 'Thomas,' in Hebrew, and 'Didymus,' in Greek, both mean 'a twin.'

Die with him. They viewed the going into Judæa, whence Christ had so lately escaped, as nothing less than certain death.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. xi. 5. Jesus had a peculiar favour for individuals, as well as kindness for mankind generally.

ver. The Lord may not immediately answer the prayers of his people, but it is that He may make his grace the more conspicuous by the delay.

7—9 ver. Let us admire and imitate the tenderness of Jesus: He might at once command, but he chooses to lead, and carry along with him the minds and willing hearts of his disciples.

9 ver. There is a season for action; and he who acts according to the will of God has no occasion for fear. He who sees before him Christ the Light of the world, may cheerfully go forward.

[10 ver. When it is night around us, and we have no light in ourselves, let us keep close to Jesus; our only safety is in him.]

11—4. ver. The death of the saints is as a sleep, out of which Jesus will come to awake them.

[15 ver. The trials and deliverances of the people of God, are that they may have a stronger sense of the Divine presence and power; and that those who witness them may be induced to place more entirely their trust in the Redeemer.]

16 ver. Those who have, like Thomas, the greatest fear of danger, are yet sometimes the most forward in braving the worst. They who now accompanied Jesus as willing to die with him, were made witnesses of his life-giving power.

BELOVED, LET US LOVE ONE ANOTHER: FOR LOVE IS OF GOD; AND EVERY ONE THAT LOVETH IS BORN OF GOD, AND KNOWETH GOD.—1 John iv. 7.

Jesus arrives at Bethany, in Judæa.—John xi. 17—33.

17 Then when Jesus came, he found that he had lain in the grave four days already.
18 Now Bethany was nigh unto Jerusalem, about fifteen furlongs off: 19, and many of the Jews came to προς τας περι Martha and Mary, to comfort παραμυθησωνται them 20 concerning their brother. Then Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, 21 went and met υπηντησεν him: but Mary sat still in the house. Then said Martha unto 22 Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died. But I know, that even 23 now, whatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee. Jesus saith unto her, 24 Thy brother shall rise again. Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise again in 25 the resurrection at the last day. Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life:
26 he that believeth in me, though he were dead και αποθανῃ, yet shall he live: and who-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. xi. 19. to comfort them—Jacob's children attempted to comfort him, after the supposed death of Joseph, Ge. xxxvii. 34, 5.—Job's three friends came to comfort him, Job ii. 11.—Christians should comfort each other, Rom. xii. 15, with the hope of the Redeemer's return, and the resurrection of the saints, 1 Th. iv. 18; v. 11.

20. Mary sat still in the house—the posture of mourning, Ne. i. 4; Lam. ii. 10.—'The elders of the daughter of Zion sit upon the ground,' &c. see Note.

21. Lord, if thou hadst been here, &c.—so Mary, ver. 32—comp. ch. iv. 47, .9, § 14, p. 100.

22. whatsoever thou will ask of God—see Mt. ix. 18, § 36—So Christ himself said, xxvi. 53, 'Thinkest thou that I cannot now pray to my Father, and he shall presently give me more than twelve legions of angels?'—see Jno. ix. 31, § 55, p. 112.

24. I know that, &c.—so Job expressed his confident hope of a resurrection through the Redeemer, ch. xix. 25—7, 'For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: 26, and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God: [or, After I shall awake, though this body be destroyed, yet out of my flesh shall I see God:] 27, Whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another; though my reins be consumed within me.'—The recompense is to be given at 'the resurrection of the just,' Lu. xiv. 14, § 67, p. 183.—The resurrection was denied by the Sadducees, who had great reason in the Jewish sanhedrim, Ac. iv. 1, 2; v. 17; xxiii. 7, 8; xxvi. 6—8.

in the resurrection—ch. v. 28, .9, § 23—see the account of the resurrection of the righteous, Rev. xx. 4—6; and the general resurrection, ver. 11—.3.

at the last day—see ch. vi. 39, 40, .4, 54, § 43—The judgment by the words of Christ to be then, ch. xii. 48, § 85, p. 312; Ac. xvii. 31.

25. I am the resurrection, &c.—see ch. v. 21, § 23—The resurrection of Jesus is the pledge of ours, 1 Co. xv. 12—22. 20, 'But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept,' &c.—Ph. iii. 10, .1, 'That I may know him, and the power of his resurrection, ... if by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead.'—See also ver. 20, .1; Rev. i. 18.—See border.

though he were dead, &c.—1 Th. iv. 13, .4, .5, 'But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. 14, For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. 15, For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep,' &c.

NOTES.

Jno. xi. 18. Fifteen furlongs. Nearly two miles. It was E.S.E. from Jerusalem.

19. Came. 'Had come,' according to the original.

To comfort them. The Jews' mourning for the dead lasted seven days, after three days of weeping, which followed the day of death, sometimes thirty, during which the friends came to condole with the bereaved family; this was according to the condition in life of the deceased. The mourning for Jacob, Ge. l. 3, was 'threescore and ten days.' And for Moses, 'thirty days,' De. xxxiv. 8.

20. Sat still in the house. The word still is not in the original. It means that she remained sitting in the house. The common posture of grief among the Jews was that of sitting, Job ii. 8; Eze. viii. 14.—Comp. Esr. ix. 3, 4; Ne. i. 4; Is. xlvii. 1.

23. Thy brother shall rise again. Jesus referred to the act which he was about to perform.

24. I know that he shall, &c. Martha's misunderstanding of Jesus' words, gives occasion to our Lord to declare another truth, viz., that through Him alone the dead would rise to life.

25. I am the resurrection, &c. The Author of the resurrection, and the Giver of eternal life.—See Notes on ch. v. 21—.7, § 23, p. 177.

['Here our Lord (by a common figure of the effect for the efficient, as 1 Cor. i. 30) professes that He is the Author of the resurrection of the dead; and intimates that as he shall at some future time raise all the dead, so he can and will now bring back Lazarus to life. 'We have, in this and the next verse (as Dr. Jortin observes), in a few words, the summary of the gospel; and the sublimity of the language is not less remarkable than the great truths conveyed in the words. Jesus is the resurrection to those believers who are departed hence in the Lord; and he is the life to those who are still upon earth; and he will finally be the resurrection and the life to them both.' Comp. ch. iii. 36; v. 24; vi. 58, 68.—Bloomf.]

Though he were dead. κἂν ἀποθάνῃ should be rendered 'though he die,' 'must die.' See He. ix. 27. ζήσεται, 'he shall live' (again) in another state of everlasting bliss.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. xi. 19. It is good to go to the house of mourning: those who went to weep with the bereaved sisters were given occasion to rejoice.

21 ver. The power of Jesus to save does not depend upon his being personally near. Although now removed to the Father's right hand, he is not less able to save than when he walked upon earth.

22 ver. Jesus is our all-prevailing Intercessor with the Father; and he hath promised to his true disciples whatsoever they shall ask in his Name. May we know this blessed privilege.

23 ver. Let us not sorrow at the death of believers, as those who have no hope; but hear Jesus saying, as to Martha, 'Thy brother shall rise again.'

24 ver. May our lives be such, as that our surviving friends may confidently expect us to meet them among the children of the resurrection.

25 ver. In the resurrection of Jesus, our elder Brother, the firstfruits of them that sleep, we have a full assurance of the rising again of all that sleep in Him.

[25, .6 ver. Those of the Lord's people who are alive at his second advent, and who thus shall never die, will not have the advantage of those who are asleep. Both shall live together with him.]

[Let us ask ourselves whether we in truth believe the words of Jesus respecting the rising again of the righteous, and the continuance in life of those of the Lord's people who shall be found alive at his coming. Faith in Christ as having died, risen, and ascended; and as coming again, to be the Judge of quick and dead—is required to our enjoyment of the manifestation of his wonder-working power in our behalf.]

I AM HE THAT LIVETH, AND WAS DEAD; AND, BEHOLD, I AM ALIVE FOR EVERMORE, AMEN; AND HAVE THE KEYS OF HELL AND OF DEATH.—Rev. i. 18.

JOHN xi. 27—34.

soever liveth and believeth in me shall-never-die ου μη αποθανη εις τον αιωνα.
27 Believest-thou this? She-saith unto-him, Yea, Lord: I believe πεπιστευκα that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should-come ὁ ερχομενος into the world.
28 And when-she-had-so-said, she-went-her-way, and called Mary her sister secretly, 29 saying, The Master is-come, and calleth-for φωνει thee. As-soon-as she heard that, she-30 arose quickly, and came unto him. Now Jesus was-not-yet-come into the town, but 31 was in that place where Martha met him. The Jews then which were with her in the house, and comforted her, when-they-saw Mary, that she-rose-up hastily and went-out, 32 followed her, saying, She-goeth unto the grave to weep there. Then when Mary was-come where Jesus was, and-saw him, she-fell-down at his feet, saying unto-him, Lord, 33 if thou-hadst-been here, my brother had-not-died. When Jesus therefore saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping which-came-with her, he-groaned ενεβριμησατο in-34 the spirit, and was-troubled εταραξεν εαυτον, and said,

Jesus raises Lazarus to life.—John xi. 34—44.

35 Where have-ye-laid him? They-said unto-him, Lord, come and see. Jesus wept 36 εδακρυσεν. Then said the Jews, Behold how he-loved him! 37, And some of them

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. xi. 26. shall never die—1 Th. v. 10, 'Who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him.'—Col. iii. 4. 'When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory.'—It is only in the Son that we can have this life, 1 Jno. v. 11, .2; Jno. iii. 36, 'he that believeth not the Son shall not see life,' &c.—It is probable that our Lord, by those that shall never die, describes the case of the believers who shall be alive at his second advent, and who, as contrasted with those that were dead, and are made alive, shall never die, but only be changed—1 Co. xv. 51, .2, 'Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but,' &c.

27. thou art the Christ, &c.—so proclaimed by the angel to the shepherds, Lu. ii. 11, § 4, p. 21, 'Christ the Lord.'

Son of God—spoken of, Ps. ii. 6, 7—see on Lu. i. 35, § 2, p. 10, 'that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.'

which should come into the world—ὁ ερχομενος, one of the names whereby the Messiah was designated—see on John's message to Jesus, Mt. xi 3, § 29, 'Art thou he that should come?'—It was under this title that John had baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, Ac. xix. 4.

28. The Master is come—ch. xiii. 13, 'Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am.'

33. He groaned—Is. liii. 4, 'Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows:'

groaned in the Spirit—Rom. viii. 26, 'the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered.'—Paul had much experience of this groaning in the Spirit, ch. ix. 1—3, 'I say the truth in Christ, I lie not, my conscience also bearing me witness in the Holy Ghost, that I have great heaviness and continual sorrow in my heart'.... 'for my brethren, my kinsmen according to the flesh:'

35. Jesus wept—he afterwards wept over Jerusalem, Lu. xix. 41, § 82.

NOTES.

Jno. xi. 26. Shall never die. Gr. 'Shall by no means die for ever.' As the dead, though dead, shall yet live, so believers found alive at the coming of Christ, shall be changed without passing through death.—See ch. vi. 50, .1, .4, .8, § 43, p. 331.

Believest thou this? This question was doubtless asked because it implied that he was then able to raise up Lazarus, and because it was a proper time for her to test her own faith. The time of affliction is a favourable period to try ourselves, to ascertain whether we have faith.

[27. I believe that thou art, &c. 'In the ardour of her devotion Martha employs both the titles, which in scripture designate the promised Messiah, of which the former was merely one of office, the latter of nature, and consequently far more exalted; namely, as denoting one united in the Godhead, and in whom are centred all the essential attributes of God.'—Bloomf.]

I believe, i. e., 'I have believed.' The sense of Martha's words is, 'Yea, Lord,' I believe what thou sayest; for I have already believed, and do still believe, 'that thou,' &c.—Lonsdale and Hale.

Which should come. ὁ εις τον κοσμον ερχομενος, 'he who cometh,' &c., a third title here of the Messiah.

28. She went her way. Jesus may have directed her to go, though the evangelist has not recorded it.

It is probable, however, that Martha understood the turn which the conversation had taken, as a call for the presence of her sister; whom she may have regarded as better able to answer the searching questions of Jesus, and as likely to take a deep interest in the subjects upon which she was herself receiving instruction from their Master or Teacher: the title she immediately after gives to Jesus.

The Master is come. It means literally teacher, and was a title which he claimed for himself. 'One is your Master, even Christ.' Mt. xxiii. 8, 10, § 85, p. 314. The Syriac has it 'Our Master.'

33. He groaned in the Spirit. With a suppressed, inward groan. May be rendered more intelligibly, perhaps, 'in breathing, he groaned,' or 'in the act of fetching breath, he groaned.'

In the Spirit. See 'Scrip. Illus.' Ac. xix. 21, 'Paul purposed in the Spirit.'

34. Where have ye laid him? It was customary with the Jews to bury their dead outside the city walls.

35. Jesus wept. This is the shortest verse in the New Testament, but one of the most consolatory, as proving (by this action, not unworthy the dignity of our exalted Redeemer) that we have indeed a High Priest who can 'be touched with the feeling of our infirmities.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. xi. 27. To view Jesus as He that should come into the world, the Fulfiller of prophecy, will greatly conduce to the increase of that faith whereby we derive, from the Son of God, the blessings to be enjoyed in him as the Christ, our Prophet, Priest, and King.]

[32, .3 ver. To Martha, who required to have her mind arrested by the truth, Jesus spoke much of faith and the resurrection; but in answer to the same words from Mary, 'He groaned in the Spirit, and was troubled.']

33—.5 ver. There is the same intercession for the saints still as pled so powerfully for Mary: 'The Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered,' Rom. viii. 26. And 'we have not an High Priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities,' Heb. iv. 15.

36 ver. The love of Jesus has been shewn in his becoming one with us in life and in death—in having himself been laid in the grave for us.

[37 ver. He who opened the eyes of one born blind,

FOR YE ARE DEAD, AND YOUR LIFE IS HID WITH CHRIST IN GOD.—Colossians iii. 3.
WHEN CHRIST, WHO IS OUR LIFE, SHALL APPEAR, THEN SHALL YE ALSO APPEAR WITH HIM IN GLORY.—Ver. 4.

JOHN xi. 37—43.

said, Could not this-man, which opened the eyes of-the blind, have-caused that even this-man should-not-have-died?
38 Jesus therefore again groaning ἐμβριμωμενος in himself cometh to the grave. It-was 39 a-cave, and a-stone lay upon it. Jesus said, Take-ye-away the stone. Martha, the sister of-him that-was-dead, saith unto-him, Lord, by-this-time he-stinketh: for he-hath-40 been dead four-days. Jesus saith unto-her, Said-I not unto-thee, that, if thou-wouldest-
41 believe, thou-shouldest-see ὀψει the glory of God? Then they-took-away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, 42 I-thank thee that thou-hast-heard me. And I knew that thou-hearest me always: but because-of the people which stand-by I-said it, that they-may-believe that thou hast-sent 43 me. And when-he-thus-had-spoken, he-cried ἐκραυγασε with-a-loud voice, Lazarus,

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. xi. 37. which opened the eyes, &c.—referring to ch. ix. 1, 6, § 55, p. 109.

38. It was a cave—It was, and still is, customary to excavate sepulchres from the solid rock. Abraham bought a 'cave' to bury Sarah in, Ge. xxiii. 19.

40. Said I not unto thee—see what he had said, ver. 4, p. 127, when the sisters sent to apprise him of the sickness of Lazarus; also what he said to Martha upon meeting her, ver. 23, .5, .6, p. 129.

see the glory of God—He had before said, ver. 4, 'This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby.' —Jesus had predicted that his raising the dead should be given among the proofs of his Messiahship. When he had healed the impotent man at Bethesda, he said, speaking of the honour in relation to the Father, ch. v. 20, .1, § 23, 'He will shew him greater works than these, that ye may marvel. For as the Father raiseth up the dead, and quickeneth them; even so the Son quickeneth whom he will.'

41. they took away the stone—The mouth of the cave or sepulchre was usually covered with a stone. Joseph covered the entrance of our Lord's tomb with a stone, which was sealed by the Pharisees, Mt. xxvii. 60, .6, § 92.

Father, I thank thee—Mt. xi. 25, § 29, p. 227, 'I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth,' &c.—So also

Jno. xi. 38. It was a cave. See Mk. v. 2, § 35, p. 269, NOTE.

A stone lay upon it. It was shut up with a stone.

39. By this time, &c. The putrefaction of dead bodies is extremely rapid in hot countries.

For he hath been dead four days. τεταρταιος γαρ εστιν. The word 'dead' is not in the original; it is, 'for he hath been four days,' i. e., in the grave, and not four days dead only.—See ver. 17.

'When Jesus arrived at Bethany, Lazarus had been either four days dead, or four days in the tomb, or both, ver. 39; for it was the custom of the Jews to commit the bodies of the dead to the grave as soon as possible, so that the burial of Lazarus on the day of his death itself, especially if he had died of a fever, would be nothing extraordinary. The distance of the quarter where our Lord would receive the first intimation of his sickness, was probably more than two, but less than three, days' journey from Jerusalem. Hence, if he had received the message of the sisters on one day; if Lazarus had died and been buried on the next; and if Jesus himself set out on the third; he would arrive at Bethany in the course of the fifth;

NOTES.

when, as it is asserted in the narrative, ver. 17, 39, the dead man would actually have been three days, and a part of a fourth day, in the grave.'—Greswell, Vol. II. p. 513.

'The miracle ensued so soon after the arrival, that Jesus did not even enter the village, ver. 30, but until he had performed it, continued without, going only in the meantime to the tomb; the situation of which, according to the Jews, would necessarily be some place apart.'—Ibid. p. 514.

40. The glory of God, ver. 25. The power and goodness displayed in the resurrection.—See on ver. 43.

41. Lifted up his eyes. See Mt. xiv. 19, § 40, p. 313; Jno. xvii. 1, § 87.

Father, I thank thee. Jesus did not ordinarily so appeal. It may be supposed that he did so now to shew that he worked by his Father's authority, and not, as maliciously said, by the aid of devils.

43. A loud voice. Greek, 'A great voice;' Syriac, 'A high voice.' This was distinctly asserting his power. At his second advent, he will call the dead with a great sound of a trumpet, Mt. xxiv. 31, § 86; 1 Th. iv. 16.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

is able, not only to preserve from death, but to deliver from under its power. Death's temporary triumph will only give occasion for our Saviour's obtaining the greater victory.]

Jno. xi. 38, .9. Although those who were present with Jesus at the raising of Lazarus could not, like the Lord of life, command him to come forth alive, yet they could do something to prepare for his coming forth—they could take away the stone.

[40 ver. Jesus again speaks to Martha, as if faith on her part was a necessary condition to her enjoyment of the promise.]

[The resurrection of the dead is the glory of God. May he be glorified in our being now raised up together with Christ.]

41 ver. We should not only pray to God for what we want, but return thanks on account of his granting that for which we have prayed.

[42 ver. The public expression of confidence in God, as about to bestow promised blessing, is to be made, not only on our own account but for the benefit of those that stand by.]

43 ver. Marvel not that one should be raised from the dead: the hour is coming, in which all that are in the graves shall come forth.

John xi. 44—.9.

44 come forth δευρο εξω. And he that-was-dead came-forth, bound hand and foot with-grave-clothes: and his face was-bound-about with-a-napkin. Jesus saith unto-them, Loose him, and let him go.

(G. 24.)—The tidings of this miracle being brought to the Pharisees, they are the more determined thereby to put Jesus to death. Jesus withdraws to Ephraim, where he stays some time.

John xi. 45—54. Line from Bethany to Ephraim.

45 Then many of the Jews which came to Mary, and had-seen the things which Jesus 46 did, believed on him. But some of them went-their-ways to the Pharisees, and told them what things Jesus had-done.
47 Then gathered the chief-priests and the Pharisees a-council, and said, What do-we?
48 for this man doeth many miracles. If we-let-him thus-alone, all men will-believe on 49 him: and the Romans shall-come and take-away both our place and nation. And one of them, named Caiaphas, being the-high-priest that same year, said unto-them, Ye know

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. xi. 44. napkin—see also in the case of Jesus, ch. xx. 7, § 93.

46. told them what things—see Abraham's saying, in the parable, when he was petitioned that Lazarus might be sent from the dead, to warn the rich man's brethren, Lu. xvi. 31, § 69, 'If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead.'

47. gathered . . . . a council—Ps. ii. 2, 'The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the LORD, and against his anointed,'—see 'the Pharisees,' Mt. xii. 14—'and Herodians,' Mk. iii. 6, § 25—'the chief priests, and the scribes, and the elders,' Mt. xxvi. 3, § 86.

doeth many miracles—They could not deny that there were miracles wrought, but the Pharisees said, he cast out devils through Beelzebub, Mt. xii. 22—.4, § 31—Nicodemus confessed that no man could do the miracles which Jesus did, except God were with him, Jno. iii. 2, § 12, p. 83—Ac. ii. 22, 'miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know?'—see also iv. 16.

49. Caiaphas—high priest (with Annas) at the time of John's beginning to prophesy, Lu. iii. 2, § 7, and at the time of Jesus' crucifixion, Jno. xviii. 13, .4, § 89.

being the high priest—see the institution of the high priesthood, Ex. xxviii., xxix., and the requisites for the office, He. v. 1—4.

NOTES.

Jno. xi. 44. Bound hand and foot. It is not certain whether the whole body and limbs were bound together, or each limb separately.

His face was bound, &c. If the Jews buried as the Egyptians did, the face was not covered with a napkin, but it only went round the forehead and under the chin.

Loose him. Remove the bandages, so that he may walk freely. The effect of this miracle is said to have been, that many believed on him.—See ver. 45. Others who saw it, and did not believe that Jesus was the Messiah, went and told the Pharisees. But they did not deny that Jesus had raised up Lazarus. They could not deny it. The very ground of their alarm, the very reason why they went, was, that he had actually done it. Nor did the Pharisees dare to call the act in question.

The resurrection of Lazarus was a powerful testimony to the Messiahship of Jesus, & an emblem of the power of Christ in quickening dead sinners. By his word they awaken from a death of sin to a life of righteousness. It is an earnest of the final resurrection of all men. The same voice that raised Lazarus shall awaken the dead which have slumbered in the dust for ages, and 'all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation,' ch. v. 28, .9, § 23, p. 178.

47. A council. A meeting of the sanhedrim, or great council of the nation. Note, Mt. ii. 4, § 5, p. 32. They claimed the right of regulating all the affairs of religion. Note, Jno. i. 19, § 10, p. 68.

What do we? τι ποιουμεν. 'What are we doing?' A popular phrase suited to deliberation, and implying also, 'What are we to do?'

48. All men will believe on him. Will openly acknowledge him to be that king whom they have so long expected.—Comp. ch. vi. 15, § 41, p. 317; xii. 11, .3, .8, 9, §§ 81, .2, pp. 257, 264, &c.; and see Mt. ii. 2, § 5, p. 31, Note.

And the Romans shall come. They were then subject to the Romans; tributary and dependent. Whatever privileges they had, they held at the will of the Roman emperor. They believed, or feigned to believe, that Jesus was intending to set up a temporal kingdom; and that the consequence would be, that the Romans, provoked by the rebellion against the authority of Cæsar, would come and destroy both their place of religious worship, and their national existence. It was on this charge that they at last arraigned him before Pilate, Lu. xxiii. 2, 3, 23, § 90.

Our place. This probably refers to the temple, Ac. vi. 13, .4. It was called the place by way of eminence, as being the chief or principal place on earth, being the seat of the peculiar worship of God. This place was utterly destroyed by the Romans.—See Note on Mt. xxiv. § 86. p. 323.

49. Caiaphas. See Note on Lu. iii. 2, § 7, p. 49.

High priest that same year. The high priesthood, by Divine appointment, was to continue in the same person for life; but the Romans changed the high priest at pleasure, and made the office, for the most part, annual.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Jno. xi. 45, .6. The same results still follow the wonder-working word of Jesus. Some believe on His name, and others go their way, and tell the Pharisees.

[47 ver. No wonder Jesus refrained from manifesting himself more frequently at Jerusalem; the very report of his doing good, stirred up the religious authorities there to greater diligence in doing evil.]

48 ver. That which the Jewish rulers pretended to fear, came upon them. The Romans did come and take away their place and nation, but not on account of all men believing on Christ. Those that believed in him were they who alone escaped from that dreadful destruction.

[49 ver. How true were the words which were uttered by Caiaphas! As being ignorant of Jesus, the Christ, they indeed knew nothing at all; they were ignorant of the law in which they gloried, and of the great purpose of God with regard to their nation.]

JOHN xi. 50—4.

50 nothing at-all, nor consider διαλογιζεσθε that it-is-expedient συμφερει for-us, that one 51 man should-die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not. And this spakehe not of himself: but being high-priest that year, he-prophesied that Jesus should 52 εμελλεν die for that nation; and not for that nation only, but that also he-should-gather-together in one εις εν the children of God that were-scattered-abroad διεσκορπισ-53 μενα. Then from that day forth they-took-counsel-together for-to-put-him-to-death.
54 Jesus therefore walked no more openly παρρησια among the Jews; but went thence unto a country near-to the wilderness, into a-city called Ephraim, and-there continued with his disciples. [Ch. xi. 55, § lxxxi. p. 252.] *

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Jno. xi. 51. he prophesied—Prophecy was not at the will of the prophet; we find Balaam saying, Nu. xxiii. 26, 'Told not I thee, saying, All that the LORD speaketh, that I must do?' and we find 'Saul also among the prophets,' 1 Sa. xix. 23, 4.

52. gather together in one—the children of Israel, who had been dispersed; and in whose casting out the Jews had rejoiced, Eze. xi. 15—20—Of that house of Israel upon whom the Lord had not mercy under the law, and who were to appearance cut off, whilst the Jews were preserved, it is said, Ho. i. 10, 11, 'Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; and it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God. Then shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves ONE HEAD, and they shall come up out of the land: for great shall be the day of Jezreel.'—See Jno. x. 16, § 55, p. 116, 'Other sheep I have,' &c.

54. walked no more openly, &c.—ch. vii. 1, § 52, p. 70—In this he was exemplifying his own direction to his disciples, Mt. x. 23, § 39, 'When they persecute you in this city, flee ye into another:'—Paul and Barnabas fled from Iconium, Ac. xiv. 6, and Paul and Silas, when persecuted at Thessalonica, departed by night to Berea, ch. xvii. 10.

Ephraim—'In Baal-hazor, which is beside Ephraim,' Absalom had sheep-shearers, 2 Sa. xiii. 23—It was taken from Jeroboam by Abijah, 2 Chr. xiii. 19—Ephraim was the name of Joseph's younger son, Ge. xli. 52—of whom was to come the fulness of the Gentiles—comp. ch. xlviii. 19, with Rom. xi. 25—who is at length to prove worthy of his name (fruitful), being made fruitful in the Lord, Ho. xiv. 8—and to which there is probably an allusion, Mt. xxi. 43, § 84, p. 290.

NOTES.

Jno. xi. 49. Ye know nothing at all. It is probable that there was a party, even in the sanhedrim, who was secretly in favour of Jesus as the Messiah. Of that party Nicodemus was certainly one.—See ch. iii. 1, 2, § 12; vii. 50, 1, § 55; xi. 45, supra; xii. 42, § 85, 'among the chief rulers also many believed on him;' &c.

50. Expedient for us, that one man should die. It is likely that Caiaphas understood the words thus: 'Better that one man should be put to death at a venture, for the preservation of a whole nation, than that the whole nation should be ruined by your needless scrupulousness about the life of one man.'

[51. And this spake he not of himself. i. e., and in thus counselling that Jesus should be put to death, he was not left to himself alone; 'but being high priest that year,' he was inspired in virtue of his office to express himself in terms which had a far higher meaning than he knew or intended.—See ch. x. 16, § 55, p. 116; also Is. xlix. 6; 1 Jno. ii. 2. God may make even the malice and wicked plots of his enemies the very means of accomplishing his purposes. What they regard as the fulfilment of their plans, God may make the fulfilment of his; yet so as directly to overthrow their designs, and prostrate them in ruin.]

He prophesied. προεφητευσεν, to prophesy does not always signify 'to predict future events,' but to speak by Divine impulse and direction, as in Lu. i. 67, 76, § 3, pp. 16, 8.

For that nation. For the Jews. As a sacrifice for their sins. In no other sense whatever could it be said that he died for them. His death, so far from saving them, in the sense in which the high priest understood it, was the very occasion of their destruction. They invoked the vengeance of God when they said, 'His blood be on us, and on our children,' Mt. xxvii. 25, § 90, p. 453; and all these calamities came because they would not come to him and be saved; because they would not receive him, and put him to death, xxiii. 37—9, § 85, p. 320.

54. No more. ουκ ετι, rather, 'not yet,' for within a short time after he appeared openly at the passover.

[A country. την χωραν, 'the country.' 'The exact situation of Ephraim it is impossible to fix. Certainly it was not where it is placed in Arrowsmith's map. As it is called by a Rabbinical writer, cited in Wetstein, Ephraim in valle, I should conjecture that it was situated somewhere in the southern part of the valley between mount Ephraim and the opposite range of Bethaven, which formed, we may imagine, the desert of Bethaven. The word πολιν here should be rendered town, since the place is called by Josephus, Bell. v. 8, πολιχνιον '—Bloomf.]—See GEOG. NOT. p. 134.

A city called Ephraim. 'In the mountainous country near the wilderness of Judæa, at the edge of the tribe of Ephraim.'—Wells.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Jno. xi. 50. It requires great sincerity of heart, and simplicity of purpose, to deal truly with revelation, and escape from wresting it to our own destruction. It is likely that Caiaphas understood the prophecy as warranting his offering up Jesus as a propitiation to the Romans, whose predicted destruction of their nation he may thus have expected to avert.]

[51 ver. God was pleased to make use of Balaam, in pronouncing blessing upon the children of Israel; and of Caiaphas, to declare his gracious purpose in the death of our Redeemer.]

[The prophecy through Caiaphas was to be received; but not Caiaphas' interpretation of the prophecy.]

How long-suffering is our God! How persevering in the offers of his mercy. When they had driven away the Saviour, and stopped the mouths of his confessors, God made use of the high-priest himself to reprove their ignorance, and point them to the Atonement.

52 ver. It is only in Christ, and upon the ground of his atonement, that the happy gathering together can be expected, of the children of God that were scattered abroad.

53 ver. From the effect of the word of prophecy upon the minds of the Jewish rulers, let us be warned to pray much and earnestly, that we may be given to receive the good seed into an honest and good heart.

[54 ver. Jesus, not only in word, but by his acting, condescended to give warning to the Jews of the time when he would be hid from them; when the kingdom should be taken away from their place and nation, that it might be 'given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof,' Mt. xxi. 43, § 84, p. 290. May Ephraim (fruitful) not be found equally unworthy of his name, as the Jews were of theirs, confession.]

* 'At Ephraim the gospel of St. John leaves our Saviour for the present, and brings him back to Bethany only six days before the next passover.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxx. p. 515.—See Jno. xii. 1, § 81, p. 253.

BEWARE LEST ANY MAN SPOIL YOU THROUGH PHILOSOPHY AND VAIN DECEIT, AFTER THE TRADITION OF MEN, AFTER THE RUDIMENTS OF THE WORLD, AND NOT AFTER CHRIST.—Col. ii. 8.

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTICES.

BETHANY.—John xi. 1, p. 127.

'The following is from Dr. Robinson's 'Biblical Researches in Palestine.' Vol. II. p. 100—...3: 'Passing along the wall from the Damascus gate to that of St. Stephen's, we then descended and crossed the bridge in the valley, and followed the camel road, which ascends obliquely the side of the mount of Olives, back of the village of Siloam, and crosses the ridge at a lower spot some distance to the south of the summit. It then winds N. around the head of a wady running off S.E., and after crossing another lower ridge, passes on towards Jericho. Here, on the eastern slope, (strictly of the mount of Olives,) in a shallow wady, lies the village of Bethany, in a direction about E.S.E. from Jerusalem. We reached it in three-quarters of an hour from the Damascus gate. This gives a distance of a little less than two Roman miles from the eastern part of the city, corresponding well to the fifteen furlongs of the Evangelist (Jno. xi. 18). On the W.N.W. is a hill partially separated from the higher ridge of the mount of Olives by a deep valley; the head of which we went round in returning over the summit of the mount. Just south of the village is a very deep and narrow wady or ravine running down towards the east; and on its further side on higher ground, S.E. from Bethany, about one-third of a mile distant, is seen the deserted village of Abu Dis.

'Bethany is a poor village of some twenty families; its inhabitants apparently are without thrift or industry. In the walls of a few of the houses there are marks of antiquity; large hewn stones, some of them bevelled; but they have all obviously belonged to more ancient edifices, and been employed again and again in the construction of successive dwellings or other buildings. The monks, as a matter of course, show the house of Mary and Martha, that of Simon the leper, and the sepulchre of Lazarus. The latter is a deep vault, like a cellar, excavated in the limestone rock in the middle of the village; to which there is a descent by twenty-six steps. (In the days of Cotovicus there were twenty-two steps.)* It is hardly necessary to remark, that there is not the slightest probability of its ever having been the tomb of Lazarus. The form is not that of the ancient sepulchres; nor does its position accord with the narrative of the New Testament, which implies that the tomb was not in the town (Jno. xi. 30—...8.)

'The Arab name of the village is el-'Aziriyeh, from el-'Azir, the Arabic form of Lazarus. The name Bethany is unknown among the native inhabitants. Yet there is no reason to question the identity of the place. The distance from Jerusalem and the situation on the road to Jericho, are sufficiently decisive. The Itin. Hieros, in A.D. 333, already mentions here the crypt of Lazarus; and Jerome, some seventy years later, speaks of a church as having been built over it. In the seventh century it is further mentioned by both Antoninus Martyr and Arculfus; at that time the church (Basilica) was standing over the supposed sepulchre, and a large monastery had been established.

'About A.D. 1132, Melisinda, the queen of king Fulco of Jerusalem, wishing to found a nunnery over which her younger sister Iveta might preside as abbess, selected Bethany as the site, and obtained it from the canons of the Holy Sepulchre in exchange for Tekoa. She then established here a convent of Black nuns professing the rule and institutes of St. Benedict—the same order of which her sister was already a member in the nunnery of St. Anna in Jerusalem. The new convent was more richly endowed than any other in Syria; and for its protection she gave caused a strong tower of hewn stones to be erected at a great expense. The buildings were not completed until near the death of king Fulco, in A.D. 1143. An aged matron of approved piety was made the first abbess; who was soon succeeded by the high-born Iveta. Two centuries later, this convent was no longer in existence. Brocardus, in the thirteenth century, does not allude to it; and Rudolf de Suchem, in the fourteenth, speaks only of three churches, one of which was used by the Arabs as a stall for cattle. In A.D. 1484, Felix Fabri found only the church over the sepulchre of Lazarus; and this in the days of Cotovicus had been converted into a mosque. Since then the place is often mentioned by travellers, and has been gradually falling more and more into decay.

'Of the village of Bethphage no trace exists. In coming from Jericho our Lord appears to have entered it before reaching Bethany (Mk. xi. 1; Lu. xix. 29); and it probably therefore lay near to the latter, a little below it towards the east. Of course it could not well have been where Abu Dis now stands; and still less on the spot which the monks assign to it, half-way between Bethany and the summit of the mount of Olives, where there is nothing to show that a village ever stood.

'We returned to Jerusalem by the somewhat shorter route over the summit of mount Olivet.'—Robinson, Vol. II. pp. 100, ...3.

Our Lord and his apostles seem to have lodged at Bethany during their attendance at the last feast of passover, and probably on former occasions, Mt. xxvi. 6, [Mk. xiv. 3; Jno. xii. 2,] § 81; Mr. xxi. 17, [Mk. xi. 11,] § 82; Mk. xi. 12, § 83—and on the day of his ascension into heaven, 'he led them out as far as to BETHANY,' Lu. xxiv. 50, § 98.—Bethany is a lovely spot, though but a scene of ruin and poverty: the soil is good, but miserably neglected. The ravine in which it lies is terraced, and the terraces are covered with fruit trees or waving grain. Though occupying an elevated spot, it is overshadowed, on the north and west, by the mount of Olives; and looking towards the south-east, presents a view of parts of the plain of Jordan and the Dead sea. It is a most charming seclusion, and a fitting place of quiet retirement, such as Jesus sought, from the maddened Pharisees.

'It seems a humble village; few its homes,
And few and poor its dwellers; cottage roofs,
Except one single turret, are they all:
Yet save the neighbouring city, it were hard,
If Palestine were searched, to find a spot
On which the Christian traveller should muse,
With fonder interest, than BETHANY.'

EPHRAIM.—John xi. 54, p. 133.

'EPHRAIM. 'Εφραΐμ, a city in the wilderness of Judma, to which Jesus withdrew from the persecution which followed the miracle of raising Lazarus from the dead, Jno. xi. 54. It is placed by Eusebius (Onomast. S. 5, 'Εφρών) eight Roman miles north of Jerusalem. This indication would seem to make it the same with the Ephraon which is mentioned in 2 Chr. xiii. 19, along with Bethel and Jeshanah, as towns taken from Jeroboam by Abijah. And this again is doubtless the same which Josephus also names along with Bethel as two small cities (πολίσματα) which were taken and garrisoned by Vespasian, while reducing the country round Jerusalem.

'EPHRAIM, a mountain, or group of mountains, in central Palestine, in the tribe of the same name, on or towards the borders of Benjamin. (Josh. xvii. 15; xix. 50; xx. 7; Ju. vii. 24; xvii. 1; 1 Sa. x. 5; 1 Ki. iv. 8.) From a comparison of these passages it may be collected, that the name of 'mount Ephraim' was applied to the whole of the ranges and groups of hills which occupy the central part of the southern border of this tribe, and which are prolonged southward into the tribe of Benjamin. In the time of Joshua these hills were densely covered with trees (Josh. xvii. 18), which is by no means the case at present. In Je. l. 19, mount Ephraim is mentioned in opposition with Bashan, on the other side of the Jordan, as a region of rich pastures, suggesting that the valleys among these mountains were well watered and covered with rich herbage, which is true at the present day.

'EPHRAIM, THE FOREST OF, in which Absalom lost his life (2 Sa. xviii. 6—8, 9), was in the country of Jordan, not far from Mahanaim.'—Kitto's Bib. Cyclop. Vol. I. p. 643.

* It is perfectly dark, and can only be explored by the light of tapers. The first chamber is about twelve feet square, and five or six feet high. From this there is a second descent, to a smaller vault, of sufficient size to contain three or four bodies.

SECTION 59.—(G. 25.)—[Lesson 56.]—WHEN THE FOURTH PASSOVER WAS DRAWING NIGH, JESUS DEPARTS FROM EPHRAIM THROUGH SAMARIA TO CAPERNAUM; INTENDING TO COMMENCE HIS FOURTH AND LAST CIRCUIT OF GALILEE FROM THENCE.—Luke ix. 51—62.*

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Mr. GRESWELL does not recognise any account as being given in the gospels, of our Lord's journey to the feast of tabernacles. Some think, however, that what is here recorded, Lu. ix. 51—62, took place during the journey to that feast,† and not, as above stated, in going from Ephraim to Capernaum. For some time previous to the Transfiguration, Jesus seems not to have attended the Jewish festivals; but thenceforth we find him stedfastly setting his face to go up to Jerusalem upon these occasions, and availing himself of the opportunities they afforded for publishing the truth.

Lu. ix. 51. Jesus stedfastly sets his face to go to Jerusalem.

—— 52. Messengers having been sent on before, to prepare for him, they enter into a Samaritan village.

—— 53. The Samaritans refuse to receive him, because his face is as though he would go to Jerusalem.

—— 54. James and John ask their Lord if they may command fire from heaven to consume the Samaritans.

—— 55, .6. Jesus rebukes the two disciples, refusing their request upon two grounds—1st, they had asked for the punishment of the Samaritans in a wrong spirit—2nd, to destroy men's lives was foreign to the purpose of the Saviour's mission into our world.

Jesus goes with his disciples to another village.

—— 57, .8. As they go, one proposes to follow Christ whithersoever he goeth; Jesus, in reply, warns him, that in so doing, he must expect to have less of a home upon earth than the beasts of the field or the birds of the air.—[See Mt. viii. 19, 20, § 34, p. 264—and ADDENDA, infra. p. 137.]

59, 60. Another, whom Jesus invites to follow him, asks to go first and bury his father. Jesus intimates, that men spiritually dead can bury the dead; but that it becomes those who have spiritual life, to be employed in promoting its increase among men, 'Go thou and preach the kingdom of God.'—[See Mt. viii. 21, .2, § ib.—and ADDENDA, infra.]

—— 61, .2. To another who proposes to follow him after first going home to bid his friends farewell, Jesus replies, 'No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.'

No. 59. Jesus departs Luke ix. 51. [Ch. ix. 50, ‡ lii. p. 76.]

51 And it-came-to-pass, when the time was-come that-he should-be-received-up εν τω συμπληρουσθαι τας ημερας της αναληψεως αυτου, he stedfastly-set εστηριξε his face to go to Jerusalem, Messengers sent into Samaria to prepare for him.—Ver. 52—.6.

52 and sent messengers before his face: and they-went, and-entered into a-village of-the-53 Samaritans, to make-ready for-him. And they-did-not receive him, because his face

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. ix. 51. received up—The verb from which the noun αναληψις is formed, is used with regard to the ascension of Christ, Mk xvi. 19, § 98; Ac. i. 2; ii. 34; 1 Ti. iii. 16—We should, more especially when suffering is before us, look forward to the glory, 2 Thess. i. 6, 7—see Heb. xii. 2; 2 Ti. ii. 12.

stedfastly set his face, &c.—There was much to discourage in going up to Jerusalem—The Jews had sought to kill him, Jno. v. 16—8, § 25, &c.—and he knew that it was at Jerusalem he was to meet with suffering and death, Mt. xvi. 21, § 50, p. 40—and that such consummation of guilt on the part of Jerusalem was soon to be followed by her destruction, Lu. xix. 41—.4, § 82, p. 264—Notwithstanding these discouragements, we find that from the time of his Transfiguration, one of the last events recorded by Luke is, 28—36, § 51, p. 51—Jesus is constant in his attendance at the Jewish festivals in Jerusalem; there braving reproach, and every opposition of unreasonable men, that so he may deliver a full and faithful testimony, and finish the work which had been given him to do for our redemption—see his ministry at the feast of tabernacles, Jno. vii. 10—x. 21, § 55, pp. 91—117—at the feast of dedication, 22—39, § 56, p. 120—and between that feast and the passover, xi.; and finally at the passover itself, xii.; Mt. xxi.—.v, §§ 81—6—Upon these occasions were more especially fulfilled the words of the prophet, Is. l. 7—9, 'For the Lord GOD will help me; therefore shall I not be confounded: therefore have I set my face like a flint, and I know that I shall not be ashamed. 8, He is near that justifieth me; who will contend with me? let us stand together: who is mine adversary? let him come near to me. 9, Behold, the Lord GOD will help me; who is he that shall condemn me? lo, they all shall wax old as a garment; the moth shall eat them up.'—Thus stedfastly did he set his face, not only at the last passover, but upon each of the two preceding festivals, so that the account of what took place at them, as given Jno. vii. 10—x. 39, §§ 55, .6, pp. 91—123, is perhaps the best comment upon the words, 'Therefore have I set my face like a flint,' &c.

52. village of the Samaritans—Samaria lay between Galilee and Judæa, Jno. iv. 4, § 13, p. 92.

53. not receive him—Jesus had formerly been well received in a Samaritan city, Jno. iv. 39—42, § ib., p. 96—and Mt. x. 5, § 39, p. 295.

because his face, &c.—see ver. 51, supra.

NOTES.

Lu. ix. 51. When the time was come. 'Συμπληροῦσθαι,' when used of time, denotes such a completion of a period between two given periods as that the latter is fully come. Here it is, as often, taken populariter; an event being thus spoken of as come, when it is very near at hand. On the sense of ἀναλήψεως the commentators are not agreed. The true one is, no doubt, that of the Syriac and Arabic, who understand it of our Lord's being received back into heaven (comp. Jno. iii. 13), with allusion to his having come from heaven. The noun, indeed, does not elsewhere occur either in the New Testament or the LXX., except in 2 Ki. ii. 11, of the translation of Elijah; but the verb ἀναλαμβάνειν is often used to denote Christ's ascension.'—Bloom.[—See ADDENDA, p. 138, 'On the supplementary relation,' &c.

Stedfastly set his face. 'Composed himself into a firm and settled resolve.'—R. Watson.

53. Because his face was, &c. The Samaritans

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. ix. 51. Let not the season of arduous duty or of suffering find us unprepared: let us look to the crown, and stedfastly resolve to bear the cross.

52 ver. Let us not only firmly resolve, but deliberately make preparation for the course appointed us by our heavenly Father.

* On the supplementary relation of Luke ix. 51—xviii. 14, to the first two gospels, see Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxxi. pp. 517—44, and ADDENDA, p. 138, infra.

† See 'Suggestions on the probable place, &c., of Luke ix. 51,' &c., ADDENDA, p. 139.

ENTER INTO THE ROCK, AND HIDE THEE IN THE DUST, FOR FEAR OF THE LORD, AND FOR THE GLORY OF HIS MAJESTY.—Isa. ii. 10.

LUKE ix. 54—60.

54 was as-though-he-would-go ην πορευομενον to Jerusalem. And when-*·*his disciples
James and John *·*saw this, they-said, Lord, wilt-thou that we-command fire to-come-55 down from heaven, and consume them, even as Elias did? But he-turned, and-rebuked 56 them, and said, Ye-know not what-manner-of spirit ye are-of. For the Son of man is-· not *·*come to-destroy men's lives, but to-save them. And they-went to another village.

A certain man proposes to follow Jesus.—Ver. 57, 58.

57 And it-came-to-pass, that, as-*·they·*went in the way, a-certain man said unto him, 58 Lord, I-will-follow thee whithersoever thou-goest απερχῃ. And Jesus said unto-him, Foxes have holes, and birds of-the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to-lay his head.

Jesus calls one to follow him.—Ver. 59, 60. Samaria.

59 And he-said unto another, Follow me. But he said, Lord, suffer me first to-go and-60 bury my father. Jesus said unto-him, Let the dead bury their dead: but go thou and-preach the kingdom of God.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. ix. 53. to Jerusalem—The subject of dispute between the Samaritans and the Jews, was whether God should be worshipped at Jerusalem, or on mount Gerizim, Jno. iv. 20, § 13, p. 93—Our Lord has taken away the pride of both, by allowing himself to be denied common hospitality in Samaria, and crucified in Jerusalem—Eph. ii. 16, 'That he might reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross, having slain the enmity thereby:'

54. James and John—Jesus had surnamed these two, Boanerges, the sons of thunder, Mk. iii. 17, § 27, p. 206—John had just before been reproved, on account of manifesting a spirit similar to that of the Samaritans, that of exclusiveness, Lu. ix. 49, 50, § 52, p. 75.

as Elias—when king Ahaziah sent once and again a captain with fifty men to take the prophet, fire at his request came down from heaven and consumed them, 2 Ki. i. 9—12.

55. he turned, and rebuked—see also in the case of Peter, Mt. xvi. 23, § 50, p. 41.

what manner of spirit, &c.—The same spirit as that of the Samaritans, against whom their wrath had been kindled—see on 54, supra.

56. destroy men's lives—see Jno. iii. 17, 'God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved.'

57. a certain man—Mt. viii. 19, § 34, p. 264. 'a certain scribe came, and said unto him, Master, I will follow thee,' &c.

whithersoever thou goest—see on Mt. viii. 19, ib.

58. Son of man hath not, &c.—see on Mt. viii. 20, § ib.—Jesus had been refused entertainment in a Samaritan village, ver. 53, supra—it is he who speaks in the song, Cant. v. 2, &c., 'Open to me, my sister, my love, my dove, my undefiled: for my head is filled with dew, and my locks with the drops of the night.'

59. bury my father—see on Mt. viii. 21, § 34, p. 265.

60. Let the dead, &c.—see on Mt. viii. 22, ib.

preach the kingdom of God—Antithetic to burying the dead—this being the means of bestowing spiritual life, preparatory to a blessed resurrection—The apostles Peter and John, 'preached through Jesus the resurrection from the dead,' Ac. iv. 2—and unto the Athenians, Paul preached Jesus and the resurrection, xvii. 31—comp. Mt. xix. 28, § 75, 'Verily I say unto you, That ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.'—Rev.

NOTES.

could not refuse lodgings to all travellers that went to Jerusalem, for the high road lay through their country. Such travellers only as went thither professedly to worship were the objects of their indignation, hence the above expression.

Lu. ix. 54. James and John. See Mk. iii. § 27, p. 213, ADDENDA, 'The twelve,' 'James and John.'

That we command fire. Vengeance belongs to the Lord. What we suffer for his sake should be left to himself to reprove or punish. The insult is offered to Him, not to us. The disciples of HIM who died for his enemies, should never think of avenging themselves on their persecutors.

56. Not come to destroy, &c. Equivalent to 'The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.'

58. Foxes, &c. Jesus had said this once before, at Capernaum, when about to pass over by ship into the country of the Gadarenes, Mt. viii. 19, 20, § 34, p. 264. Our Lord, who knew all hearts, seems to have given this reply to strike at once at the worldly motives which probably lurked in this man's heart, in proposing to follow Christ. He would have him understand he could gain by its advantage nothing temporal.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. ix. 53. Let us beware of indulging in the uncharitableness of sectarian bigotry: it was the Samaritans who denied to themselves the honour of entertaining the LORD OF LIFE AND GLORY.

54 ver. Let us not be overcome of evil: when we ask for power, let it be the power of doing good; not the power of injuring even the opposers of Christ and of the worship of God. The judgments which the righteous Judge has been pleased to minister through any of his servants, are not for our imitation, but for warning. Judgment belongs to the Lord, and vengeance is his strange work. Be ours an observance of his great law of LOVE.

55 ver. Let us beware of esteeming our own proud wrath a zeal for our Master's honour.

56 ver. Let us ever act in accordance with our Saviour's mission into the world.

What condescension in the Lord of all to submit to such a refusal in his own land from Samaritan strangers! What forbearance is required in the followers of the Lamb!

57 ver. Notwithstanding all the discouragements of the way, let us think of our Leader and the blessed reception we are to meet with above; and let us determine, by the gracious aid of God's Holy Spirit, to 'follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth.'

58 ver. Let us count the cost, and be willing to be as Christ was in the world, nor despise those who actually are so. The condition of the poor is less a reproach to the poor themselves, than to some of the professed disciples of Him who, though he was rich, yet for our sakes became poor, that we through his poverty might be rich.—See 2 Cor. viii. 9.

59 ver. Let those who are made spiritually alive feel it to be their first duty to busy themselves in the salvation of the living, rather than in the burying of the dead—to prepare all for a blessed resurrection.

LUKE ix. 61, .2.

Another said, Lord, I will follow thee, &c.

61 And another also said, Lord, I-will-follow thee; but let-me first-go bid-them-farewell
62 αποταξασθαι, which are at home-at my house. And Jesus said unto him, No-man, having-put his hand to-the-plough, and looking back, is fit ευθετος for the kingdom of God.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

xx. 4—6, 'And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them: and I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. 5, But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection. 6, Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years.'

Lu. ix. 61. I will follow, &c.—so Elisha, when Elijah cast his mantle upon him, 1 Ki. xix. 19, 20—he left the oxen with which he had been ploughing, 'and ran after Elijah, and said, Let me, I pray thee, kiss my father and my mother, and then I will follow thee.'

62. having put his hand to the plough—When Elisha was called to follow Elijah, he had been ploughing, 1 Ki. xix. 19—but he then, ver. 21, 'took a yoke of oxen, and slew them, and boiled their flesh with the instruments of the oxen, and gave unto the people, and they did eat. Then he arose, and went after Elijah, and ministered unto him.'—If after thus having put his hand to the plough, he had turned back, he would have been unworthy of the prophetic office, Phil. iii. 13, .4, 'forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark,' &c.—Heb. x. 38, .9, 'If any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him. But we are not of them who draw back unto perdition; but of them that believe to the saving of the soul.'

NOTE.

Lu. ix. 62. Having put his hand to the plough, &c. This is a proverbial expression, and used by the Greek writers. The ancient rude and simple ploughs required peculiar attention to make them penetrate the ground and work straight.

PRACTICAL REFLECTION.

Lu. ix. 61. Perhaps there may have been something in the feeling with which the words, 'At home at my house,' were spoken by the man who proposed first to go bid his friends farewell, which called for the reply given him by our Lord. Let us not look back to what we are called to leave behind, as if our treasure lay there—it is before us in the kingdom of God. —See Ph. iii. 13, .4 'SCRIP. ILLUS.'

ADDENDA.

COMPARISON OF THE CASES RECORDED BY MATTHEW AND LUKE, OF PERSONS WHO PROPOSED, OR WERE INVITED, TO BECOME FOLLOWERS OF JESUS.

MATTHEW viii. 19—22, § 34, pp. 264, ..5.		LUKE ix. 57—62.
		And it came to pass,	57
		that, as-they went in the way,
19	And a certain scribe came,	a-certain man
	and-said unto-him, Master,	said unto him, Lord,
	I-will-follow thee whithersoever thou-goest.	I-will-follow thee whithersoever thou-goest.
20	And Jesus saith unto-him,	And Jesus said unto him,	58
	The foxes have holes,	Foxes have holes, and the birds of-the air have nests;	and birds of-the air have nests;
	but the Son of man hath not	but the Son of man hath not where to-lay his head.	where to-lay his head.
21	And another of-his disciples	And he-said unto another, Follow me	59
	said unto-him, Lord,	But he said, Lord, suffer me first to-go	suffer me first to-go and bury my father.	and-bury my father.
22	But Jesus said unto-him,	Jesus said unto-him,	60
	Follow me;
	and let the dead bury their dead.	Let the dead bury their dead:
		but go thou and-preach the kingdom of God.
		And another also said, Lord,	61
		I-will-follow thee;
		but let me first go-bid-them-farewell, which-are at home-at my house.
		And Jesus said unto him,	62
		No man, having put his hand to the-plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.

ON THE SUPPLEMENTARY RELATION OF LUKE ix. 51—xviii. 14, TO THE TWO FIRST GOSPELS.—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxxi. p. 517—44.

'It is generally agreed that, so far as ch. ix. 50, the gospel of St. Luke accompanies the gospels of St. Matthew and of St. Mark; but from ch. ix. 51—xviii. 14, it proceeds, apparently, by itself. On the supposition, then, of the regularity of his gospel throughout, the intermediate matter, between these extremes, is peculiar to St. Luke; and, as the mere statement of the extremes themselves is sufficient to prove, it is no small portion of the whole.

'The point of time at which St. Luke ceases to accompany St. Matthew and St. Mark, is the return to Capernaum, prior to the last feast of tabernacles; and the point of time at which he rejoins them, is with the close of the last journey up to Jerusalem, when our Lord either had already passed, or was just on the eve of passing, out of Peræa into Judæa, Mt. xix. 1, 13; Mk. x. 1, 13; Lu. xviii. 15 [§§ 71—4, pp. 205, 20]. On the same supposition, therefore, of St. Luke's regularity, as before, it follows that the whole intermediate matter, peculiar to his gospel, belongs to the interval of time between that return to Capernaum, and that passage from Peræa into Judæa; an interval which could not comprise less than the last six months of our Saviour's ministry, and possibly comprised even more.

'Throughout the whole of these details, which we suppose to be thus comprehended, there are numerous historical notices, some express, others implicit, which demonstrate that our Lord all the time was travelling and teaching; and travelling and teaching upon his way to Jerusalem. There are evidences of a journey going on with the utmost publicity; expressly undertaken in order to arrive at Jerusalem; and wheresoever it might have begun, and whatsoever courses it might take meanwhile, yet known and understood to be tending to that one point, and concluded by arriving there at last. There are, consequently, evidences of a circuit as such; and, if it is a circuit belonging to one and the same occasion, of a circuit begun and prosecuted on a very general scale, and not formed of the kind, of which the gospel history has yet supplied the proof.

'All these indications are of manifest importance in fixing the period to which the whole of Lu. ix. 51—xviii. 14, inclusively, is to be referred. During the last six months of our Saviour's ministry, there were three feasts, all which he attended personally in their order: the third feast of tabernacles, the third feast of dedication, and the fourth passover; between which feasts, and these intimations of the direction, or the circumstances of his motions, preparatory to arriving at Jerusalem, there is this kind and degree of congruity, that all those intimations may most easily, most obviously, and most naturally, be understood of a journey preparatory to the last passover, but they can none of them, with any propriety, be understood of a journey preparatory to either of the other two feasts, which most immediately preceded it. . . . .

'The last journey to Jerusalem, and the attendance at the last passover, are the one, journey to Jerusalem, and the only attendance at any feast, which the first three gospels have placed on record. Yet St. John's gospel proves that our Lord must have been up to Jerusalem five several times besides. Now all these indications in St. Luke may clearly be referred to that one journey; and it is a strong presumptive argument of the necessity of this reference, that no visit to Jerusalem, as such, is specified by him, but the last; nor consequently could any journey, preparatory to such a visit, be specified by him, but the last. It is a similar argument, that ch. xviii. 15, in St. Luke, a point of time which, as well as the rest, belongs to this journey, coincides with Mt. xix. 13, and Mk. x. 13 [§ 74, p. 220]; both points of time which indisputably belong to the last journey to Jerusalem, and to a period of the journey when it was not far from Jerusalem itself. . . . .

'Now, such is the notice premised to this division (ch. ix. 51)—'Ἐγένετο δὲ, ἐν τῷ συμπληροῦσθαι τὰς ἡμέρας τῆς ἀναλήψεως αὐτοῦ, καὶ αὐτὸς τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ ἐστήριξε τοῦ πορεύεσθαι εἰς Ἱερουσαλήμ—that it could not have been premised to anything but the occasion of our Lord's last journey to Jerusalem. The words should be rendered thus—Now it came to pass, as the days for his being taken up were beginning to be fulfilled, that he himself also stedfastly settled his countenance, to go to Jerusalem. . . . . The days of his being taken up: αἱ ἡμέραι τῆς ἀναλήψεως αὐτοῦ; can bear no other construction than that of the period appointed for his reception into heaven. There are analagous phrases in ἡμέραι ἀναδείξεως, the day when the Baptist should be manifested, Lu. i. 80; in καιροὶ ἀναψύξεως, the seasons when refreshments should come, Ac. iii. 19; in ὁ καιρὸς τῆς λαῆς ἀναθέσεως, the season for St. Paul's being released, 2 Ti iv. 6; and the like. That this period was a definite one appears clearly from Jno. xiii. 1; xvi. 28, xvii. 1, 11, and from many other passages of scripture which might be quoted. That it coincided with the period of the Ascension is equally evident, both from the necessity of the case, and from the very expression employed to designate it. Ἀνάλημψις, the act of taking up, or being taken up, is regularly derived from the verb ἀναλαμβάνω; and this verb, or some synonymous one, such as ἀναβαίνω, ἀναφέρομαι, ἐπαίρομαι, is the verb invariably employed, in speaking of our Lord's ascent into heaven, Mk. xvi. 19 (§ 98); Ac. i. 2, 11, 22; 1 Ti. iii. 16; Jno. xx. 17 (§ 93); Ac. ii. 34; Rom. x. 6; Eph. iv. 8, 9; Lu. xxiv. 51; Ac. i. 9 (§ 98). . . . .

'There can be little question, then, that at Lu. ix. 51, the approach of the last passover, and the occasion of the last visit to Jerusalem, begin to be distinctly pointed out; and consequently that both the third feast of tabernacles, and the third feast of dedication, were already passed; that is, that two months at least out of the six which we have assigned to this period in general, had now elapsed. If so, the course of events, from this time forward to the close of our Saviour's ministry, cannot embrace more than four months; and may embrace even less.

'Now it is said that Jesus prepared to execute his intention of proceeding to Jerusalem, by sending messengers, in the first place, to a certain village of Samaria; whence it must be evident he had to pass through Samaria. Samaria extended across the western division of Palestine, between Judæa and Galilee; and if a person travelling towards Jerusalem had to pass through Samaria, one of the two following suppositions must necessarily be the case;—either he was in Galilee, and passing from thence directly into Judæa; or he was in Judæa, and passing from thence directly into Galilee; intending in each case that his journey should terminate at Jerusalem in the end. That the latter supposition was actually true of our Saviour's case at the time may be shewn by the help of St. Luke's narrative itself as follows.

'The mission of the Seventy, ch. x. 1, [§ 60, p. 141,] took place in the course of the journey now undertaken, and after the passage through Samaria. The mission of the Seventy, then, took place either in Galilee, or in Judæa. But the mission of the Seventy was preparatory to a circuit of our Lord himself: they were appointed and sent before his face into every city and place whither he himself was about to come. If the mission, then, took place in Galilee, the circuit which followed it began in Galilee; but if the former took place in Judæa, the latter also began in Judæa. Now no circuit of our Lord's ever began in Judæa; nor, in Judæa, and not Galilee, had been the proper scene of his ministry from the first, could any of his circuits as such have begun in Judæa. Every circuit, whether general or partial, which had yet been undertaken, we have seen had all been undertaken in Galilee, and confined to Galilee. The notion of a circuit, begun in Judæa, to arrive at Jerusalem, unless the circuit had been confined to Judæa, and much more the idea of a passing on purpose from Galilee, through Samaria, preparatory to such a circuit in Judæa, is preposterous. Even after the mission and return of the Seventy, when our Lord had begun his progress in their track, it is certain that, for a part of the time at least, he was still within the dominions of the Tetrarch of Galilee; and as to the circuit's being undertaken in Judæa, and much more its being confined to that country—at a time when it must be apparent the

IF I WASH MYSELF WITH SNOW WATER, AND MAKE MY HANDS NEVER SO CLEAN;

YET SHALT THOU PLUNGE ME IN THE DITCH, AND MINE OWN CLOTHES SHALL ABHOR ME.—Job ix. 30, 31.

HE THAT FOLLOWETH AFTER RIGHTEOUSNESS AND MERCY FINDETH LIFE, RIGHTEOUSNESS, AND HONOUR.—Prov. xxi. 21.

A WISE MAN SCALETH THE CITY OF THE MIGHTY, AND CASTETH DOWN THE STRENGTH OF THE CONFIDENCE THEREOF.—Prov. xxi. 22.

progress was got into Judæa, there is no proof of its doing more than travel, with the necessary diligence and dispatch, along the high road from the passage of the Jordan to Jerusalem. The mission of the Seventy, then, took place in Galilee; and the passage through Samaria, before their mission, was consequently a passage from somewhere in Judæa to somewhere in Galilee. If so, our Saviour was previously in Judæa.

'Now the last notices in the former evangelists, Mk. ix. 50. and Mt. xviii. 35, [§§ 52, 3,] clearly represented him to be in Galilee: but this was a little before the feast of tabernacles, and consequently two months at least before Lu. ix. 51: within which time it is manifestly possible that he might both have left Galilee, and returned thither again, prior to Mt. xix. 1, or to Mk. x. 1, [§ 71, p. 209]. The gospel of St. John, to a certain extent, confirms this possibility by the matter of the fact; for, after shewing that our Lord was thrice at Jerusalem within that time, it brought him, as we saw, to Ephraim; and there, for the present, it left him, ch. xi. 54, § 58, p. 133.

'The utility of this gospel, and its critical adaptation to the rest, must consequently now begin to be strikingly exemplified; for if our Lord, according to the authority of St. Matthew and of St. Mark, in the course of the last circuit, passed directly into Judæa out of Peræa, and directly into Peræa out of Galilee, he must have returned from Ephraim sometime after St. John left him there, and come again into Galilee sometime before St. Matthew and St. Mark take him thence. If he had not again left Ephraim, which was in Judæa, he could not have come into Judæa out of Peræa; and if he had not returned into Galilee, he could not have passed into Peræa out of Galilee. Ephraim indeed, in Judæa, but close upon the verge of Samaria; and one who was desirous to return into Galilee from thence, it is morally certain would pass by the readiest route, and consequently through the country between. It is such a return in the present instance, a return from Ephraim through Samaria, which I suppose to be the return into Galilee, recorded by St. Luke, preparatory to the mission of the Seventy; and, while it is perfectly in unison with the accounts of each gospel in particular, to perpetuate, connect, and fill up, completely and satisfactorily, the united accounts of all.

'It may be objected, however, and it is the only material objection, that the motive assigned to the rejection of Jesus by the Samaritans, ch. ix. 53, because his face was directed as going to Jerusalem; his face was as though he was going to Jerusalem; is at variance with our supposition; and leads to the inference that the course of the journey lay actually in the direction of Jerusalem. And had the evangelist been speaking of the direction of the journey, and not of the purpose of him who had undertaken it, this objection would have been just. But from the word πρόσωπον in this instance, distinctly in allusion to the same term as used before, ch. ix. 51. it is manifest this is not the case. Jesus settled his face, it was then said, to go into Jerusalem; the Samaritans saw his face, it is now said, that it was going to Jerusalem; that it was as of one going to Jerusalem. In both cases the meaning of the term is the same; and as it signifies in the first only a fixed purpose and determination, it can signify no more in the last.

'It is sufficient to explain the words, and, on the principle of the old religious and national animosity between the Jews and the Samaritans, to account also for the conduct of the latter, to suppose that, when Jesus departed from Ephraim, to pass through their country, it was known, or on probable grounds was collected, that he was returning to Galilee, intending to commence a public tour to Jerusalem from thence. Even upon this occasion, he set out with more state and solemnity than he had ever observed before; for he sent forward messengers to prepare for his reception. These messengers must have been acquainted with his intention, and were probably some two of the apostles, perhaps James and John, who resented the indignity done to their Master so much more warmly than the rest. . . .

'This description of things, however, is not less reconcileable to the idea that the course of the journey, in this passage through Samaria, was not at the time in the actual direction of Jerusalem, but merely designed to terminate there at last, than another, which occurs sometime after, ch. xvii. 11, [§ 70, p. 208]. It came to pass, as he was going to Jerusalem, that he went through the midst of Samaria and Galilee. There is no authority for changing the order of these words, or putting Galilee before Samaria; in which case, whatever occasion was taking our Lord to Jerusalem, St. Luke must be understood to affirm that he went through Samaria first, and through Galilee last; in other words, that for one part of his journey, the direction in which he was proceeding was as much away from Jerusalem, as during the rest it might or it must have been towards it.—Directly after this notice in ch. xviii. 15, comp. with Mt. xix. 13, Mk. x. 13, [§ 74,] proves that he was either in Judæa, or on the point of passing into it. The truth is, all these occasional notices from ch. ix. 51—xvii. 11, belong to the course and continuances of one and the same journey, begun from Ephraim, and terminated at Jerusalem, but visiting in the interim Galilee and Peræa also; the particulars of which even St. Luke does not relate in detail, but only here and there, with such admonitions interspersed as may serve to keep the reader in mind what Jesus was doing, where he had been, or where he was, and what end he had in view by the journey all the time.

'As the feast of dedication expired upon the third day of the tenth sacred month, and, as we have seen, there could have been no great interval between the departure from Jerusalem, subsequent to the attendance at that feast, and the departure from Bethany, subsequent to the raising of Lazarus, all which we should now be concerned with, would be the length of the stay at Ephraim. St. John's expression, κἀκεῖ διέτριβε [ch. xi. 54, § 58, p. 133], taken in any latitude we may please, cannot necessarily apply to more than one month's residence. In this case our Lord would leave Ephraim to return into Galilee, two months at least before the recurrence of the passover, that is, about the end of January; and there would still be sufficient time both for the mission and the return of the Seventy, and for his own subsequent circuit, made as proposed in their route. It can scarcely be doubted that, having despatched the Seventy from some certain place, he must have waited there until their return; but as soon as they rejoined him have set out directly afterwards. And hence, with nothing interposed after the account of their mission, except the mention of their return, we find him immediately after on his way himself.

'Now, though the place itself is not distinctly specified, yet enough has been said to prove that it must have been somewhere in Galilee; and if it was anywhere in Galilee, no place is so likely as Capernaum. This circuit was the last, and so far if not the longest, yet the most important of all; and as every former circuit had originally set out from Capernaum, it is reasonable to suppose that this in particular would do so. Capernaum was our Lord's place of abode; and if he had to wait for the return of the Seventy anywhere, he would most naturally wait for it in his usual home. His ministry in Galilee was begun by a circuit which set out from thence; and it was only consistent that it should be closed also by a circuit, beginning from the same. The Twelve, as we have shewn was highly probable, were sent from Capernaum; and the same thing, a priori, was just as likely to be the case with the Seventy. Besides which, our Lord is expressly said to have set out thence, Mk. x. 1, [§ 71, p. 209,] before he passed from Galilee into Peræa, and from Peræa into Judæa. And though no positive conclusion may be deducible from Lu. x. 15, a part of the charge to the Seventy, preparatory to their departure, yet, if those words were delivered in Capernaum, and on the spot, it must be acknowledged they would lose nothing in point of force and propriety, but would be wonderfully enhanced as to both.'

SUGGESTIONS ON THE PROBABLE PLACE AND TIME OF Luke ix. 51—62.

It is suggested that the determination of Jesus to go to Jerusalem, intimated Lu. ix. 51, refers not to any SINGLE going up, but to the GENERAL change which took place in the conduct of our Lord, when the time of his being received up was nigh. Previous to the feast, Jno. vii. 10, &c., § 55, p. 91, Jesus seems not to have made any public appearance in Jerusalem, since the feast at which he healed the impotent man at the pool of Bethesda. He then took occasion, see ch. v. 17—30, § 23, p. 176, explicitly to declare himself to be ONE with the Father in work, counsel, power, bestowment of life, and also in judgment. He then and there fully delivered his credentials as being the SENT OF God, testified to by every kind of evidence.

Having thus declared himself, Jesus leaves the Jews for a while, giving them time for the calm consideration of the many weighty matters he had brought before them.

Another passover occurs, as noticed Jno. vi. 4, § 40, p. 311, but still there is no favourable response from Jerusalem. Although disallowed on earth, his claims are, however, fully allowed in heaven. And on the mount of Transfiguration, as at Jesus' entrance upon his public ministry, he is acknowledged by the Father as his Beloved Son, in whom he is well pleased; and the words, 'Hear ye him,' are added, fully authenticating to the chosen witnesses all that Jesus had said of himself and his mission.

The attention of his brethren had been drawn to his repeated absence from Jerusalem at the festivals; and they begin to taunt him on the subject: see Jno. vii. 2—9, § 54, p. 87, and comp. Jno. vii. 1, § 52, p. 70. It is now, when longer continuing to absent himself from Jerusalem would seem to be a relinquishing of his claims, that he resolves to brave every danger and difficulty in testifying to the truth. Now 'he stedfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem.' There, setting his face as a flint, and refusing to be ashamed, he stedfastly proceeded to fill up the testimony, of which he had, at his last visit, given a summary.—See Jno. v. § 23.

In order to avoid giving any pretext for apprehending him, before he had made his public appearance at the feast, it was requisite that his journey to, and entrance into, the city should be private. Still, as being accompanied by the Twelve, it was necessary that some preparation should be made for their lodging and entertainment by the way.

In order to this, he sends messengers into a village of the Samaritans, but they refuse to receive him: not it would seem on any personal account, but simply because of his having the common appearance of those who went up to Jerusalem to worship.

Such an occurrence is likely to have taken place in a journey to Jerusalem; when the direction in which the company were proceeding, at the time of a Jewish festival, would at once tell to the hostile Samaritans, the object of the journey; which was less likely to be revealed by his going in quite an opposite direction, some considerable time after a feast.

It is also worthy of remark, that the subject of following Jesus, so repeatedly suggested in the course of this journey, see Lu. ix. 57, 59, 61, is very much the subject of his discourse upon this very visit to Jerusalem; as is also the spirit of self-sacrifice, according to the will of the Father, for the salvation of men; in which his disciples are more particularly called to become followers of Jesus.—See Jno. x. 1—18, § 55, p. 114.

Both the subject of discourse, and the manner in which it is illustrated, are altogether consistent with the idea that Lu. ix. 51—62, relates to the journey to the feast of tabernacles referred to, Jno. vii. 10, § 55, p. 91.

SECTION 60.—(G 26, .7)—[Lesson 57.]—FROM CAPERNAUM JESUS SENDS SEVENTY OF HIS DISCIPLES IN COMPANIES OF TWO AND TWO, WHERESOEVER HE HIMSELF INTENDS TO COME; AND WAITS AT CAPERNAUM FOR THEIR RETURN. JESUS ANSWERS THE INQUIRY, OF A CERTAIN LAWYER, CONCERNING ETERNAL LIFE; AND DELIVERS THE SECOND OF HIS MORAL PARABLES.—Luke x. 1—37.—[See Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxxi. pp. 525—.35.]

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Lu. x. 1. In addition to the twelve apostles, the Lord appoints other seventy, to go before him, two and two, into the several localities he intends to visit.

—— 2. He bids them pray that the Lord would send forth labourers into his harvest.

—— 3. Warns them that they are sent forth as lambs among wolves.

—— 4. The urgency of their message; they are not to delay, in order to make provision for the journey, neither to salute any man by the way.

—— 5, 6. How to know where to lodge.

—— 7, 8. To partake of such food as is set before them.

—— 9. To employ themselves in promoting both the temporal and the spiritual good of the people among whom they are sent.

—— 10—.2 Not to take even the dust of the streets of any city which refuses to receive them. The awful case of such city.

—— 13—.5. Woe pronounced upon Chorazin and Bethsaida; and Capernaum, exalted to heaven, is to be thrust down to hell.

—— 16. The importance of attending to the gospel message: Jesus reckons as done to himself that which is done to his messengers.

—— 17. The seventy return, rejoicing that even the devils are subject to them through the name of Jesus.

—— 18—20. Jesus alludes to the fall of Satan; gives the Seventy power over all the power of the enemy; but he tells them not to rejoice in this, but because their names are written in heaven.

—— 21. Jesus rejoices in Spirit, and thanks the Father for revealing to babes.

Lu. x. 22. Tells them that all things are delivered to the Son by the Father; that only the Father knoweth who the Son is, and that only by the Son can the Father be truly revealed.

—— 23, .4. Jesus' disciples are more highly favoured than many prophets and kings, on account of the things they are privileged to see and hear.

—— 25, .6. A lawyer having asked, 'What shall I do to inherit eternal life?' Jesus refers him to the law, asking what is written therein.

—— 27. The lawyer replies, by giving a summary of the law, in the two great commandments, Love to God, and love to our neighbour.

—— 28. Jesus acknowledges the correctness of the answer, but intimates that it remains for the lawyer to bring his conduct into harmony with his knowledge.

—— 29. Probably conscious that he had come to Jesus in a spirit and with a design in which he would not like to be approached by others, and which he may have excused in himself by supposing that Jesus was unworthy the kindness due to a neighbour, the lawyer asks, 'And who is my neighbour?'

—— 30—.5. Jesus replies, by telling of a man who, in travelling from Jerusalem to Jericho, fell among thieves, and was left naked and half dead; in which case he could not be recognised as a neighbour, by either a priest or a Levite, who happened to pass that way. At length a Samaritan came to the place in the course of his journey, gave him all needful assistance, and expended on him whatever was necessary for his safety and recovery.

—— 36. Jesus asks, which of the three was neighbour to him that fell among thieves.

—— 37. The lawyer replies, 'He that shewed mercy.' Jesus answers, 'GO, AND DO THOU LIKEWISE.'

UPON QUESTIONS OF PRACTICE, A WELL CHOSEN CASE IN POINT DOES MORE TO ILLUSTRATE THE RULE OF DUTY, AND TO EXPLAIN THE LINE OF DUTY TO BE PURSUED UNDER THE NECESSARY CIRCUMSTANCES, THAN ANY GENERAL AND ABSTRACT STATEMENT.

THE LOVE OF GOD, WHEN FELT AND CHERISHED, IS A GUARANTEE FOR THE PERFORMANCE OF ALL THOSE DUTIES WHICH REGARD OR CONCERN GOD, AS SOON AS THEY ARE KNOWN AND ASCERTAINED.

No. 60. The seventy sent out in companies of two and two. Jesus waits for their return. Luke x. 1—24. At Capernaum.

1 After these-things the Lord appointed ανεδειξεν other seventy also, and sent them two and-two before his face into every city and place, whither he-himself would ημελλεν 2 come. Therefore said-he unto them, The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray-ye therefore the Lord of-the harvest, that he-would-send-forth εκβαλλη 3 labourers into his harvest. Go-your-ways: behold, I send- you -forth as lambs among 4 wolves. Carry neither purse, nor scrip, nor shoes: and salute no-man by the way.
5 And into whatsoever house ye-enter, first say, Peace be to-this house. ℭ And if the son

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. x. 1. seventy—After the Lord had given law to Israel at Sinai, he invited up to the mount, Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel, Ex. xxiv. 9—11, 'Then went up Moses, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel: and they saw the God of Israel: and there was under his feet as it were a paved work of a sapphire stone, and as it were the body of heaven in his clearness. And upon the nobles of the children of Israel he laid not his hand: also they saw God, and did eat and drink.'

two and two—so when he sent out the twelve, Mk. vi. 7, § 39, p. 294—and see ADDENDA, p. 148, infra.

2. the harvest, &c.—so before choosing the twelve, he said, Mt. ix. 37, 38, § ib. p. 294, 'The harvest truly is plenteous,' &c.

labourers—1 Co. iii. 9, 'For we are labourers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building.'—1 Ti. v. 17, 'Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honour, especially they who labour in the word and doctrine.'

3. as lambs among wolves—so to the twelve, Mt. x. 16, § 39, p. 298.

4. Carry neither purse—so to the twelve, Mt. x. 9, § 39, p. 296, 'Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in your purses,' nor scrip—so Mt. x. 10, § 39, p. 296, 'nor scrip for your journey,' nor shoes—Mt. x. 10, § ib. p. 296, 'neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves:'

salute no man—Elisha gave a similar injunction to Gehazi, when the Shunammite's son was to be raised to life, 2 Ki. iv. 29, 'if thou meet any man, salute him not; and if any salute thee, answer him not again:'

5. whatsoever house, &c.—see Mt. x. 11, 12, § 39, p. 297.

Peace be to this house—When David sent messengers to Nabal, 1 Sa. xxv. 6, he said, 'thus shall ye say to him that liveth in prosperity, Peace be both to thee, and peace be to thine house, and peace be unto all that thou hast.'

6. son of peace—one prepared to listen to the gospel of peace, such as Zacchæus, ch. xix. 5—10, § 80, p. 246.

NOTES.

Lu. x. 1. After these things. After the appointment of the twelve apostles, and the transactions recorded in the previous chapters.

[Appointed other seventy also. i. e., besides the apostles. Some are of opinion that seventy is a round number for seventy-two; the number, they say, of the elders selected by Moses as his colleagues in the government of the people, and of the Jewish sanhedrim, Nu. xi. 16, 25. But in the first case seventy was the number; and in that of the other, there is reason to think that not seventy-two, but seventy, was the real number. It is supposed that the seventy now sent, formed part of the hundred and twenty disciples mentioned immediately after Christ's ascension. Luke and Mark are supposed to have been two of the seventy, and among those who were inspired by the Holy Ghost, Ac. i. 15; ii. 1. The number seventy was a favourite number among the Jews. The family of Jacob that came into Egypt consisted of seventy, Ge. xlvi. 27. The seventy weeks spoken of in Daniel, ch. ix. 24, were fast coming to an end. It may also be remarked, that about seventy years after the birth of our Lord, Jerusalem, which had so long withstood the offers of his grace, was destroyed by the Romans; as pretending a zeal for whose government, the Jews had denied and crucified their rightful King.]

Two and two. 'Our Lord sent them out by "two and two," that, by dividing the country among them, they might preach the gospel through it in a shorter time; that the word preached by them might have the more weight, as resting upon the testimony of two witnesses—see Mt. xviii. 16, § 53, p. 83; and also that they might be a help and support to each other under any circumstances that might befal them. And it has been remarked, that in like manner Moses and Aaron were sent together to Pharaoh; that John the Baptist sent two of his disciples to Christ, Mt. xi. 2, § 29, p. 222; and that Paul and Barnabas were sent forth Ac. xiii. 2.'—Lowndale and Hale.

4. Salute no man, &c. 'Let not matters of mere compliment detain you, but let the urgency of your solemn business be rightly seen.' Not that they were to renounce the courtesies of life, but eastern salutations were formal and great hindrances.—See S. Burder's Orient. Cust.

If two Arabs of equal rank meet each other, they extend to each other the right hand, and having clasped, they elevate them as if to kiss them. Each one then draws back his hand, and kisses it instead of his friend's, and then places it upon his forehead. The parties then continue the salutation by kissing each other's beard. They give thanks to God that they are once more permitted to see their friend—they pray to the Almighty in his behalf. Sometimes they repeat not less than ten times the ceremony of grasping hands and kissing.

5. Peace be to this house. This was a common form of salutation among the Jews, strongly expressive of good will; and it is still in use throughout the East.

6. Son of peace. Sig., one disposed to peace. In the Hebrew idiom, a man who has any good or bad quality is called the son of it.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. x. 1. Let not the messengers of Jesus seek gain or glory for themselves among those to whom they are sent, but endeavour to prepare all for the coming of the Lord.]

2 ver. Let us not look with envy at the successful labours of others; but, whilst we make the best use of the means wherewith we ourselves are entrusted, let us ardently pray that more efficient labourers may be sent into our Lord's harvest.

[3 ver. Let us not ask counsel of the world's cunning, nor let us lean upon its support; but look to infinite wisdom to direct us and to the power of God to protect us, in his service.]

[4 ver. He who calls us to his work is able to provide for us therein. The servant of the Lord may not wait to provide himself with every convenience, nor must he waste his time in idle ceremony.]

5, 6 ver. Into whatsoever house we enter, let our

LUKE X. 7—15.

of-peace be there, your peace shall-rest upon it: if not, it-shall-turn-to you-again.
7 And in the same house remain, eating and drinking such-things as-they-give τα παρ' αυτων: for the labourer is worthy of-his hire. Go μεταβαινετε not from house to house.
8 And into whatsoever city ye-enter, and they-receive you, eat such-things as-are-set-9 before you: and heal the sick that are therein, and say unto-them, The kingdom of 10 God is-come-nigh unto you. But into whatsoever city ye-enter, and they-receive you
11 not, go-your-ways-out into the streets of-the-same, and-say, Even the-very dust of your city, which cleaveth on-us, we-do-wipe-off against-you: notwithstanding be-ye-sure-of 12 γινωσκετε this, that the kingdom of God is-come-nigh unto you. But I-say unto-you, that it-shall-be more-tolerable in that day for-Sodom, than for-that city.
13 Woe unto-thee, Chorazin! woe unto-thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty-works had-been-done in Tyre and Sidon, which have-been-done in you, they-had-a-great-while-
14 ago-repented, sitting in sackcloth and ashes. But it-shall-be more-tolerable for-Tyre
15 and Sidon at the judgment, than for-you. And thou, Capernaum, which art-exalted to heaven, shalt-be-thrust-down καταβιβασθηση to hell εως ᾅδου.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. x. 6. rest upon it—Ja. iii. 18, 'And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that,' &c.

if not, it shall turn, &c.—comp. Mt. x. 13, § 39, p. 297—This seems to refer to some intimation of the Spirit, such as Paul and his companions had for their guidance, Ac. xvi. 6, 7.

7. labourer is worthy—see on ver. 2—Our Lord had before exhorted men to labour in the word, saying, Jno. vi. 27, § 43, p. 326, 'Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you: for him hath God the Father sealed.' Paul, for the benefit of others, vindicates his right to receive temporal support, while labouring in the word, 1 Co. ix. 4—14; and again he says, 1 Ti. v. 18, 'For the scripture saith, Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn. And, The labourer is worthy of his reward.'

8. into whatsoever city, &c.—The same is here said with regard to their receiving support from a city, as in ver. 7 from an individual—comp. Mt. x. 11—3, § 39, p. 297.

9. heal the sick, &c.—They were to be ministers of temporal as well as spiritual blessing. The same command given to the twelve, Lu. ix. 2, § 39, p. 296.

'He sent them to preach the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick.'—So Mt. x. 7, 8, § ib.—see p. 149, infra.

The kingdom—Mt. x. 7, § 39, p. 296, 'as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand.'—See on our Saviour's preaching, Mk. i. 14, 15, § 16.

11. Even the very dust, &c.—so were the twelve not to take even the dust from the streets of those who refused the gospel, Mt. x. 14, § 39, p. 298.

12. in that day for Sodom, &c.—Mt. x. 15, § 39, 'Verily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.'

13. Woe unto thee, Chorazin!—comp. with nearly the same words, Mt. xi. 20—2, § 29, p. 227, spoken at the time Jesus began 'to upbraid the cities wherein most of his mighty works were done because they repented not:' &c.

14. more tolerable—ch. xii. 47, § 63, p. 168, 'that servant, which knew his lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes.'—Ja. iv. 17, 'to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him,' &c.

15. And thou, Capernaum—so Mt. xi. 23, § 29.

exalted to heaven—Just before the dispersion of maukind they said, Ge. xi. 4, 'Go to, let us build us a

NOTES.

Lu. x. 6. Your peace shall rest. 'Your prayer shall not be ineffectual.' The word 'peace' in scripture comprehends blessings of all kinds.

[7, 8. In the same house remain, &c. The full sense is, '[And this ye may freely do,] for the labourer is worthy of his hire;' as much as to say, 'ye will earn your temporal support by your labour for the spiritual good of your hosts.' Μὴ μεταβαίνετε—ολίγαι, literally, 'do not change your lodgings, by going from house to house.'—Bloomf.]

11. Even the very dust, &c. See on Mt. x. 14, § 39.

Wipe off against you, &c. ἀπομασσόμεθα ὑμῖν. Render, 'we return it back to you;' a form of giving up all intercourse: q. d., 'even the very dust from your city, which cleaveth unto us, we wipe off [and return it back] to you.'—Bloomf.

'Εφ' ὑμᾶς is by almost all commentators supposed to mean, 'against you,' 'to your harm.' But that sense cannot be admitted. All that is meant seems to be this,—that the same solemn message is to be delivered unto them, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear. Render, 'But (or however) know ye this (i. e., receive this our testimony), that the kingdom,' &c.

Notwithstanding, &c. Before we depart—comp. ch. ix. 5, § 39, p. 298. We again solemnly call upon you to take notice, that the gospel has been offered to you for your acceptance, and we warn you of the danger of rejecting it.

12. In that day. The great day of judgment, in which every man shall be judged, not according to his profession, but according to his works—see Jno. v. 28, 29, § 23, p. 178; Rom. ii. 5, 6; Rev. xx. 12, 13; xxii. 12. In several parts of the New Testament the day of judgment is called simply 'that day,' as being that one day in which the transactions of all former days shall be brought to a final account.—See 2 Ti. i. 12, 18; iv. 8.

13. Woe unto thee, &c. This form of speech is frequently used in scripture to express the punishment which awaits the guilty; but sometimes only as a lamentation over sufferings present or future. We have an instance of both usages in Mt. xviii. 7, § 52, p. 77; of the former in xviii. 13—6, § 58, p. 315, and of the latter in xxiv. 19, § 85, p. 332.

Chorazin. A town of Galilee, a short distance north of the sea of that name. Dreadful was the de-prayer be for peace to the dwellers therein. And let us not lose our peace, although we should sometimes meet with an unkind reception.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. x. 7. Let us see that by our faithful and abundant labour for the Lord, we are worthy of the provision he makes for us among men. Let us look to His work, and He will see that we are provided with what is necessary for our temporal support.]

[8 ver. The Lord may be pleased to provide for his servant by a city, equally as by an individual. All belongs to the Lord; and what is freely given may be freely received.]

9 ver. Let us commend the gospel to men by a care for their temporal welfare, while we chiefly endeavour to prepare them for the kingdom of God.

[10, 11 ver. Let us not take even the dust from the streets of those who refuse to receive us as the messengers of Jesus. God is able to support us in the FAVOUR ABUSED BECOMES A CURSE IN PLACE OF A BLESSING.

LET US SEE THAT OUR EXALTATION DO NOT LEAD TO OUR GREATER FALL.

LUKE x. 16—.9.

16 He that-heareth you heareth me; and he that-despiseth αθετων you despiseth me; and he that-despiseth me despiseth him that-sent me.

17 And the seventy returned-again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are-subject 18 unto-us through thy name. And he-said unto-them, I-beheld Εθεωρουν Satan as light- 19 ning fall πεσοντα from heaven. Behold, I-give unto-you power to-tread on την εξουσιαν

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

city and a tower, whose top may reach unto heaven:' —Of the king of Babylon it is said, Is. xiv. 13—.5, 'For thou hast said in thine heart, I will ascend into heaven, I will exalt my throne above the stars of God: I will sit also upon the mount of the congregation, in the sides of the north: 14, I will ascend above the heights of the clouds; I will be like the most High. 15, Yet thou shalt be brought down to hell, to the sides of the pit.'

When the children of Israel were commanded to go up into the promised land, they said, De. i. 28, 'Whither shall we go up? our brethren have discouraged our heart, saying, The people is greater and taller than we; the cities are great and walled up to heaven;'—and of the Amalekites themselves, after they had abused their eminent privileges in the land, the Lord says, Am. ix. 2, 3, 'Though they dig into hell, thence shall mine hand take them; though they climb up to heaven, thence will I bring them down: and though they hide themselves in the top of Carmel, I will search and take them out thence;' &c.

Lu. x. 15. thrust down to hell—the judgment denounced against Tyre, Eze. xxvi. 20, .1. 'When I shall bring thee down with them that descend into the pit, with the people of old time, and shall set thee in the low parts of the earth, in places desolate of old, with them that go down to the pit, that thou be not inhabited; and I shall set glory in the land of the living; I will make thee a terror, and thou shalt be no more: though thou be sought for, yet shalt thou never be found again, saith the Lord God.'—See also the casting down of Egypt, ch. xxxi. 18; xxxii. 18.

16. He that heareth, &c.—Mt. x. 40, § 39, p. 302, 'He that receiveth you receiveth me, and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me.'—See also Mk. ix. 37, § 52, p. 75.

he that despiseth, &c.—When Israel would have a king, like the nations around them, the Lord said to Samuel, 1 Sa. viii. 7, 'they have not rejected thee, but they have rejected me, that I should not reign over them.'—See Mt. xviii. 10, § 53, p. 82—' Take heed struction that shortly after, even in that generation, took place throughout Galilee, in consequence of the wars between the Jews and the Romans, as related by Josephus.—See Mt. xi. 21—4, § 29, p. 227.

NOTES.

Lu. x. 16. He that heareth you, &c. See Mt. x. 40, § 39, p. 302. The treatment shewn to an ambassador, is in fact shewn to his sovereign.

17. Through thy name. This was the grand distinction between the miracles of our Lord and those of his servants. One was wrought by an original or inherent, the other by a derived power.

18. Satan. τον Σαταναν, Satan himself, the very Satan—the supreme adversary.

Satan as lightning fall. Our Saviour seems to have spoken thus of the fall of Lucifer, in order to warn the disciples against the risings of pride, because of their being given to exercise supernatural power, even to having the devils made subject unto them. The devils themselves were once angels of light, and swift as the lightning in executing the will

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

way of peace. Even in finally parting from the enemies of the truth, let us beseech them to prepare for the kingdom of God.]

Lu. x. 12. The privilege of hearing the gospel brings the greater responsibility; the sin of rejecting it is greater than that which brought destruction upon Sodom. With what solemnity and earnestness then ought it to be both spoken and heard!

[13—.5 ver. Let not those boast, who have been the most highly favoured with gospel light, but rather let them rejoice with trembling. The most signal destruction has come upon those places which were that ye despise not one of these little ones;'—1 Th. iv. 8, 'He therefore that despiseth, despiseth not man, but God, who hath also given unto us his Holy Spirit.'

him that sent me—see Jno. v. 23, § 23, p. 177.

17. even the devils are subject—This had not been mentioned in the commission of the seventy, ver. 9, as in that to the twelve, ch. x. 1, § 39, p. 294.

18. as lightning fall from heaven—The allusion is supposed to be to Is. xiv. 12, 'How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning!'—Satan appears to have been originally one of the bright angels of God, of whom it is said, He. i. 7, 'Who maketh his angels spirits, and his ministers a flame of fire.'—But, lifted up with pride, he fell into condemnation, 1 Ti. iii. 6—Jude 6, 'the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day.'—Rev. xii. 7—12, 'And there was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought against the dragon; and the dragon fought and his angels, 8, and prevailed not; neither was their place found any more in heaven. 9, And the great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world: he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him. 10, And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night. 11, And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death. 12, Therefore rejoice, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. Woe to the inhabiters of the earth and of the sea! for the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time.'

19. tread on serpents, &c.—It was as a serpent that Satan deceived Eve. And the Lord God said unto the of God; but pride precipitated them from heaven to hell. Beware of following their example. Beware of this rising spirit of domination, this tendency to self-glorification.

[Bp. Warburton, Serm. xxvii., says, 'It is a lively picture of the sudden precipitation of the Prince of the air, where he had so long held his empire; and hung, like a pestilential meteor, over the sons of men;' and that, as being exalted to heaven imports widely spread dominion, so falling from heaven denotes a sudden fall from eminence and power to ruin and destruction. There is here an allusion to Is. xiv. 12; the lightning being emblematical of swiftness; q. d., 'the power of Satan is broken.' Comp. Jno. xii. 31, § 82, p. 268; Rev. xii. 7. sq. xx. 2, seq.; Eph. vi. 12. A similar form of expression occurs in the classical writers. Thus Cicero Epist. Att. ii., says of Pompey, 'ex astris decidisse.'—Bloomf.]

19. Serpents and scorpions. This reference to the present grovelling and degraded condition of Lu-the most frequently favoured with the presence of the Lord.

[16 ver. Let us not merely think of the messenger, but of Him who sent him. And let the messenger of God be that he speak and act as from God, and not from himself; and that men are not brought into guilt, through rejecting the gospel, on account of any fault or failing in the messenger, which it was his duty to correct or avoid.]

17 ver. Let us think much of that Name before which even the devils tremble, and by the power of which they are overcome.

LUKE x. 20—.2.

τον πατειν επανω serpents and scorpions, and over επι all the power of-the enemy: and 20 nothing shall-by-any-means-hurt you. Notwithstanding in this rejoice not, that the spirits are-subject-unto you; but rather rejoice, because your names are-written in heaven.
21 In that hour Jesus rejoiced ηγαλλιασατο in-spirit, and said, I-thank thee Εξομολογουμαι σοι, O-Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou-hast-hid these-things from the-wise and prudent, and hast-revealed them unto-babes: even-so, Father; for so it-seemed 22 good ευδοκια εγενετο in-thy-sight εμπροσθεν σου. All-things are-delivered παρεδοθη to-me of my Father: and no-man knoweth who the Son is, but the Father; and who serpent, Ge. iii. 15, 'I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.'—Our Saviour, addressing the Jews, says, Mt. xxiii. 33, § 85, p. 319, 'Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell?'—Paul, writing to the saints at Rome, says, Rom. xvi. 20, 'And the God of peace shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly.'—In the Apocalypse, that old serpent the devil is represented as having become embodied in the Roman empire, Rev. xii.—he subsequently appears in other forms, ch. xiii.—and again, ch. xvii.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. x. 19. scorpions—the followers of Mahomet are represented as locusts like scorpions, Re. ix. 2—10.

20. written in heaven—Mt. xviii. 3, § 52, p. 75—On being written in or blotted out of the book of God, or book of life—see Ex. xxxii. 32, .3, 'Yet now, if thou wilt forgive their sin—; and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book which thou hast written. And the LORD said unto Moses, Whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book.'—Ps. lxix. 28, 'Let them be blotted out of the book of the living, and not be written with the righteous.'—Is. iv. 3, 'And it shall come to pass, that he that is left in Zion, and he that remaineth in Jerusalem, shall be called holy, even every one that is written among the living in Jerusalem:'—Da. xii. 1, 'And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people: and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book.'—Ph. iv. 3. 'And I intreat thee also, true yokefellow, help those women which laboured with me in the gospel, with Clement also, and with other my fellow-labourers, whose names are in the book of life.'—He. xii. 23, 'To the general assembly and church of the firstborn, which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect.'—Rev. iii. 5, 'He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.'—Of that great embodiment of the old serpent, described, ch. xiii. 1—7, it is said, ver. 8, 'And all that dwell upon the earth shall worship him, whose names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.'—ch. xvii. 8, 'The beast that thou sawest was, and is not; and shall ascend out of the bottomless pit, and go into perdition: and they that dwell on the earth shall wonder, whose names were not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, when they behold the beast that was, and is not, and yet is.'—ch. xx. 12, 'And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works.'—Of the New Jerusalem it is said, ch. xxi. 27, 'And there shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie: but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life.'

21. In that hour Jesus rejoiced—Mt. xi. 2*5*, .6, § 29, p. 227, .8, 'At that time Jesus answered and said, I thank thee,' &c.

Lord of heaven and earth—It was in the name of the most high God, possessor of heaven and earth, that Melchizedek blessed Abram, and by whom Abram sware, Ge. xiv. 18—22.

hid these things—This had been predicted, Is. xxix. 14, 'the wisdom of their wise men shall perish, and the understanding of their prudent men shall be hid.'

revealed them unto babes—Ps. xxv. 9, 'The meek will he guide in judgment: and the meek will he teach his way.'—Ja. iv. 6, 'God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto humble.'—Jesus had said to the twelve, Mt. xiii. 11, § 32, p. 244, .5, 'it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them (those without) it is not given.'

22. All things are delivered, &c.—Mt. xi. 27, § 29, p. 228, 'All things are delivered unto me of my Father: and no man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him.'—See also xxviii. 18, § 96.

but the Father—Mt. xvi. 17, § 50, p. 37, 'flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven.

NOTES.

cifer, seems to be here made in contrast to the brightness and height from which he fell.

Lu. x. 19. By τοῦ ἐχθροῦ is to be understood Satan, that being the literal meaning of the appellation.

Scorpions. The scorpion is an animal with eight feet, eight eyes, and a long jointed tail, ending in a pointed weapon or sting. It is found in tropical climates, and seldom exceeds four inches in length. Its sting is extremely poisonous, and it is sometimes fatal to life. It is in scripture the emblem of malicious and crafty men. When rolled up it has some resemblance to an egg, ch. xi. 12, § 62, p. 152; Exe. ii. 6.

[20. Because your names. 'The best commentators are agreed that there is here an allusion to the methods of human polity; future life being represented under the image of a temporal πολιτευμα, in which the names of citizens were inscribed in a book, from which were occasionally expunged the names of those persons who were deemed unworthy, and who thereby lost the jus civitatis. An image not unfrequent in the Old Test., and which is sometimes found in the New Test.; nor is it rare in the classical writers.'—Bloomf.]

21. I thank thee, O Father, &c. Christ rejoiced, not in the destruction of the wise and prudent, but in the display of the riches, freeness, and sovereignty of God's grace to others.—See on Mt. xi. 25—.7, § 29.

[Hast hid, &c. 'The phrase here employed, of "hiding these things from the wise and prudent," is similar to language often found in scripture; which ascribes to Divine agency the permitted results of vice or folly. To a customary phrase, then, proceed-

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. x. 18, .9. Let the Lord's messenger beware of spiritual pride. Let him remember that the enemy upon whose power he now tramples, was once a bright angel of God, who by exalting himself fell.]

20 ver. Let our rejoicing be, not that we are above others, or that we have power over devils, but that we are brought near unto God; that we, as his children, have our names inscribed in the Lamb's book of life.

21 ver. If we would be truly wise, let us possess the simplicity of little children, and be glad to receive, as our Father is pleased to reveal.

LUKE x. 22—8.

23 with the Father is, but the Son, and he to-whom the Son will βουληται reveal him. And he-turned-him unto his disciples, and-said privately, Blessed are the eyes which see the 24 things that ye-see: for I-tell you, that many prophets and kings have-desired to-see those things which ye see, and have-not-seen them; and to-hear those things which ye-hear, and have-not-heard them.

(G. 27.)—Jesus answers the inquiry, of a certain lawyer, concerning eternal life; and takes occasion thence to deliver the second of his moral parables, which sets forth the humanity of a certain Samaritan. Luke x. 25—37. At Capernaum.

25 And, behold, a-certain lawyer stood-up, and tempted him, saying, Master, what shall-26 I-do to-inherit eternal life? He said unto him, What is-written in the law? how 27 readest-thou? And he answering said, Thou-shalt-love the-Lord thy God with εξ all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind
28 διανοιας; and thy neighbour as thyself. And he-said unto-him, Thou-hast-answered right: this do, and thou-shalt-live.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. x. 22. but the Son—see Jno. i. 18, § 7, p. 48; xiv. 8, 9, § 87, p. 381.

23. Blessed are the eyes—Mt. xiii. 16, § 32, p. 246, 'blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your ears,' &c.

24. for I tell you, &c.—Mt. xiii. 17, § 32, p. 246, 'For verily I say unto you, That many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.'

25. what shall I do to inherit, &c.—Part of this question was put in a very different spirit by the repentant Jews, on the day of Pentecost, Ac. ii. 37—see also the cry of the jailor, ch. xvi. 30.

25—8.—see on Mt. xix. 16—22, § 75, p. 223.

26. He said unto him—Jesus had before said, that the work of God is, that men believe on Him whom He hath sent, Jno. vi. 29, § 43, p. 227—He had also plainly told the Jews at Jerusalem, ch. viii. 24, § 55, p. 102, 'if ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins.'—From which it may be inferred, that, to inherit eternal life, 'the one thing needful' is to believe in him as Christ the Son of God—He had also before declared what men must be, in order to become possessors of the kingdom of heaven, Mt. v. 2—12, § 19, pp. 120—.2—And more recently he had said to his disciples, ch. xviii. 3, § 52, p. 75, 'Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom,' &c.

What is written in the law?—This man was a lawyer, ver. 25, and Jesus takes him upon the ground with which he was in his own esteem well acquainted, and on which he possibly intended to make the charge against Jesus, referred to by Paul as being brought against the gospel, Rom. iii. 8—31; vi. 1—but, Ga. iii. 24, 'the law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith.'

27. Thou shalt love, &c.—De. vi. 5; x. 12; xxx. 6—see on Mk. xii. 30, § 85—This perfect love is taught us by the love that God hath manifested towards us in the gift of his Son; and hereby also we are taught to love one another, 1 Jno. iv. 7—21 and thy neighbour, &c.—so Le. xix. 18 -see Jno. xiii. 34, § 87, p. 374.

28. this do, and thou shalt live—Le. xviii. 5, Ye shall therefore keep my statutes, and my judgments: which if a man do, he shall live in them:'—

NOTES.

ing from our Saviour's lips, must be assigned its usual meaning; as indeed appears from the tenor of the preceding expostulation. If the Father had hidden these things from the wise and prudent, it was only in a sense consistent with the display, before their eyes, of miracles plain and numerous,—with the employment of a machinery contrived and admirably fitted for the purpose of effecting their conviction and conversion.' (Og. Bam. L.)—Bloomf.]

Lu. x. 24. Many prophets, &c. See on Mt. xiii. 17, § 32, p. 246. The Name of the Son of God, by whose power they were enabled to triumph over all the power of the enemy, had been the subject of anxious search to patriarchs, prophets, and princes of old.—See the case of Jacob, Ge. xxxii. 29, 30, &c.—and on 'Manna,' (What is it?) Jno. vi. 31, § 43, p. 227.

25. A certain lawyer. One whose profession it was to study the Jewish law; both that which was written in the scriptures, and that which was derived from the tradition of the elders. In Mk. xii. 28, § 85, p. 304, we have 'one of the scribes.'—See § 25, p. 199.

Tempted him. Feigned a desire to be instructed by him, perhaps to perplex him, or to lead him, if possible, to contradict some of the maxims of the law.

['The word which is rendered "to tempt," denotes properly no more than to try, to prove, to ascertain by experiments, and the like; but for what particular purpose in the trial, and whether with a good or a bad intent, is not necessarily implied by the word itself.—See Ge. xxii. 1.'—Greswell.] ἐκπειράζων. 'From the elaborate investigation of the sense of the word by Mr. Greswell, it appears to mean, "putting his skill to full proof," i. e., consulting him on questions most difficult.'—Bloomf.

26. In the law. Our Lord refers him to the law, and shews how inadequately he had observed it: thus shewing him his need of a Divine Saviour, and of a better righteousness than his own.

27. Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, &c. See on Mt. xxii. 37—40, § 85, p. 305.

[Thy neighbour as thyself. 'It may appear at first

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. x. 23. If the followers of Jesus were favoured when he was on earth, much more were they afterwards, when 'the promise of the Father' was given: and much more (may we not say) are we, who have seen so much the fulfilment of what was given them in prophecy; and have what they could not have, the writings both of prophets and apostles in one volume; with many outward means, which they had not, of becoming acquainted with God, in his works and in his word! And the same Spirit which was given to them is also for us, who were once afar off.]

[24 ver. Let us not look with envy or regret at the times that are past, but rather consider the wonderful privileges that we in the present age possess; and let us thankfully endeavour to improve them to the glory of the Giver of all good.]

25 ver. Let us be sincere in our approaches to Christ, and in our inquiry after the way of life. Eternal life is the free gift of God, to those who put their trust in Jesus.

[26 ver. Let us become all things to all men. When the servant of God is approached in even a captious and ensnaring spirit, he is rather to avail himself of his enemy's admissions, to lead him, if possible, into the truth, than noisily to declaim, or scornfully to turn away. Let us look to the requirements of the law, that we may know how much we stand in need of a Saviour. Let us look to the law in all its spirituality, that we may glorify God by our obedience thereto, after the example of Him who perfectly did the will of his Father.]

27 ver. The law requires that entire devotedness to God, and that good will to our neighbour, which we can only be effectually taught by the gospel.

LUKE x. 29—33.

29 But he, willing to justify himself, said unto Jesus, And who is my neighbour?
30 And Jesus answering ὑπολαβων said, A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves, which stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, 31 and departed, leaving him half dead. And by chance κατα συγκυριαν there came down a certain priest that way: and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side αντι-32 παρηλθεν. And likewise a Levite, when he was at the place, came and looked on him, 33 and passed by on the other side. But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Eze. xx. 11—3, 21—Rom. x. 5, 'Moses describeth the righteousness which is of the law, That the man which doeth those things shall live by them.'—Ga. iii. 12, 'the law is not of faith: but, The man that doeth them shall live in them.'—It is only in Christ, and by faith, that life can be had to fulfil the righteousness of the law, Rom. viii. 2—4, 'For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death. 3, For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh: 4, that the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.'

Lu. x. 29. justify himself—Jesus afterwards, xvi. 15, § 69, says to the Pharisees, 'Ye are they which justify yourselves before men; but God knoweth your hearts:'—see also the parable of the publican and the Pharisee, which Jesus spake, xviii. 9—14, § 73, 'unto certain which trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and despised others:'

30. went down from Jerusalem—It is likely the lawyer himself was from Jerusalem.

31. priest—one of the sons of Aaron—It was his duty to have a sympathy with the whole people, and to teach the law, Mal. ii. 7, which required that kindness should be shewn to the stranger, Ex. xxiii. 9; Le. xix. 34—It required to assist in recovering or relieving the ox or ass, of a neighbour, or of a person unknown, or even of an enemy, Ex. xxiii. 4, 5, 'If thou meet thine enemy's ox or his ass going astray, thou shalt surely bring it back to him again. If thou see the ass of him that hateth thee lying under his burden, and wouldest forbear to help him, thou shalt surely help with him.'—And see De. xxii. 1—4.

NOTES

sight that these words are intended to define the obligation of the duty, and place the groundwork of the love of our neighbour upon a compulsory motive to the love of ourselves. But this is not the case. The words, "as thyself," do not specify the principle of the duty in the abstract; but the rate, the degree, the ratio, or measure of its application in practice ... just as much as we love ourselves—that so we may love him in such and such proportion. Agreeably to the apostle's assertion, that "no man ever yet hated his own flesh;" that is, himself, Eph. v. 29.'—Greswell.]

Lu. x. 28. This do, &c. 'This do' being critically accommodated to 'What shall I do?' and 'Thou shalt live,' to 'inherit eternal life.'

29. To justify himself. 'Wishing to make himself just, or righteous; and, under the circumstances of the case, must be understood as equivalent to, Make himself perfect.'—Greswell.

[Who is my neighbour? The Jews in practice considered none but a Jew a neighbour of a Jew. No part of the Jewish character contributed to prejudice the Greeks and Romans against them more than this well-known trait; so repulsive, so unsociable, and so repugnant to the first and commonest principles of humanity. There was no question which could have been more fitly put to our Saviour than this, "But who is my neighbour?" none that it was more consistent with his benevolence, his charity, his philanthropy, to answer; none that it would have given him more delight to answer: or were there doubt about this, the beautiful parable in which he does answer it would remove that doubt, and be a lasting monument of the interest he took in replying to such a question.'—Greswell.]

30. Jesus answering. The original word is not that usually translated 'to answer;' and it means, 'to take up the discourse.' It is used therefore with great propriety here, because our Lord did not return a direct answer to the lawyer's question.

A certain man. 'It is not distinctly stated that the man who fell among robbers, and whose subsequent treatment at the hands of the different parties, equally qualified to have given him relief, is the subject of the history, was a Jew; yet it is strongly implied that he was, and it is absolutely necessary to the moral effect of the transaction, that we should consider him to have been so.... There would have been nothing extraordinary in the fact of a Jew's shewing kindness to a Jew, or of a Samaritan's shewing kindness to a Samaritan.'—Greswell.

Jerusalem to Jericho. Jericho was about twenty miles N. E. of Jerusalem, in the way to the great ford (Bethabara) of the river Jordan. It lay through a rocky and desert country.—See GEOG. NOT., § 78.

Thieves. 'Robbers.' Both before and after this period, as we learn from Josephus, Judæa was greatly infested by bands of robbers.

31. A certain priest. One of the order of men in whom, as descended from Aaron, the office of the Jewish priesthood was vested.—See ADDENDA, Vol. I., p. 74, 'Priests.'

32. A Levite. Of the tribe of Levi.—See ib. p. 75.

Looked. Possibly to see whether the person in distress was one that had a claim upon his good offices, but being both naked and speechless, ver. 30, there was nothing to witness for the poor man, and to warrant a narrow-minded Jew expending upon him the kindness to which a neighbour was entitled.

Passed by. ἠλθεν. Thus the sense is, 'He passed by over against him, on the contrary side of the road:' a conduct the more inexcusable, since, by the Mosaic law, it was ordered that not even a fallen beast of burden was to be passed by, even if it were an enemy's.—See Ex. xxiii. 4, 5, supra.

'The traveller, as well as the priest and Levite, though personally strangers to each other, may have been inhabitants of the same city, Jericho; thus the particular relation of "neighbours" would be superinduced.

['We must not ascribe the behaviour of either the priest or the Levite to a motive which will not be borne out by the circumstances of the case, much less without corroboration from those circumstances. ... We must not attribute it to sheer inhumanity. ... The conduct of neither is to be accounted for, except on the principle of antecedent prejudice, combined with ignorance in this particular case, of prejudice against all but Jews, beforehand; with an

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. x. 28. Those who trust most to their doing of the law, are frequently very far from its true observance.]

29 ver. Let us not try to justify ourselves, by seeking excuses for breaking the law; in so doing, we are like the lawyer, making light of Christ; and thus vastly increasing our guilt and danger.

30—3 ver. That others, even our enemies, are in distress, is a sufficient call for exertion in their behalf.

Luke x. 34—.7.

34 he-was: and when-he-saw him, he-had-compassion on him, and went-to him, and-bound-up his wounds, pouring-in oil and wine, and set ἐπιβιβάσας him on his-own 35 beast, and-brought him to an-inn, and took-care-of him. And on the morrow when-he-departed, he-took-out two pence, and-gave them to-the host, and said unto-him, Take-care-of Ἐπιμελήθητι him; and whatsoever thou-spendest-more, when I come-again, I 36 will-repay thee. Which now of-these three, thinkest thou, was neighbour unto-him 37 that-fell among the thieves? And he said, He that-shewed mercy on him. Then said
Jesus unto-him, Go, and do thou likewise.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. x. 33. Samaritan—Jno. iv. 9, § 13, p. 92, 'the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans.'—Jesus, a little time before, was denied common hospitality in a Samaritan village, Lu. ix. 52, 3, § 59, p. 135.

34. bound up his wounds—Of the Lord it is said, Ps. cxlvii. 3, 'He healeth the broken in heart, and bindeth up their wounds.'

35. I will repay thee—What the Samaritan said to the host, the Lord says to each who is given opportunity of helping the poor, Pr. xix. 17, 'He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the LORD; and that which he hath given will he pay him again.'

When our Saviour shall come again, he will give reward for the kindness shewn to the least of his brethren, Mt. xxv. 31—46, § 86—see also Lu. xiv. 14, § 67, 'thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just.'

37. He that shewed mercy—Pr. xiv. 21, 'He that despiseth his neighbour sinneth: but he that hath mercy on the poor, happy is he.'—Ho. vi. 6, 'For I desired mercy, and not sacrifice;'—Our Saviour reproached the scribes and Pharisees for omitting the weightier matters of the law; judgment, mercy, and faith, Mt. xxiii. 23, § 85, p. 317.

Go, and do thou likewise—In One infinitely greater and more condescending than the Samaritan, hath been 'shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the LORD require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?' Mi. vi. 8—[1 Pe. ii. 21, Christ hath left us an example, 'that ye should follow his steps:'—Eph. iv. 32, 'And be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving,' &c.—It is thus that we are taught the law by the gospel—it gives us motive and example, of the highest conformity to the will of God, Ph. ii. 5—9.

NOTES.

ignorance of the individual who required their relief in this instance was a Jew; a prejudice under which each might previously have laboured alike; and an ignorance to which each, at the time, would necessarily be liable alike. . . . Their ignorance in question was a necessary consequence of the circumstances of the case. The man was naked; . . . he could not therefore be known from his dress. . . . He was speechless, being left half dead; . . . he could not therefore declare who he was. . . . How were they then to knew that he was not a Gentile, a robber, a Samaritan? The place, the neighbourhood, the condition of the man himself, were such as might favour the most sinister interpretation. The conduct of both the parties accordingly is such as, dispassionately considered, seems to be the behaviour of men actuated by horror and abomination, rather than by insensibility.'—Greswell.

Lu. x. 33. A certain Samaritan. 'The natural and religious prejudices of the Samaritan would have rendered him little disposed to shew kindness to a Jew; his conduct, therefore, forms the more striking contrast to that of the Priest and Levite.'—Ibid.

'Good the strife—when men the palm contest,
Which most shall love, which most oblige the rest.'

[34. Pouring in oil and wine. ἐπιχέων ἔλαιον καὶ οἶνον. 'Επιχ. is not well rendered pouring in. Rather (as ἐπιτίθει, προσέχου, and παραχέω), pouring on, affundens, applying, i.e., externally. The use of oil and wine, both separately and as a mixture called οἰνέλαιον, is plain from passages cited by Wetstein from the ancient medical writers. The mixture was considered a sovereign remedy for wounds on the head or legs; wool, lint, or pounded olive being first laid upon the wound. The oil (which in Palestine is very generous) was doubtless taken with him, by the Samaritan, for the purpose of anointing; and the antiquity of the custom of carrying oil on a journey is (as Schoettg. observes) shewn by the case of Jacob in the Old Test.—Bloomf.]

Beast. κτῆνος. 'Corresponding to our general term beast, whether horse, mule, or ass. An ass is probably here intended, as being that most used. This general term is sometimes in the classical writers used for the special one.'—Bloomf.

Inn. Πανδοχεῖον. Denotes a public hostelry, such as are still known in the East by the name khan.

35. Two pence. 'Having cast or put down.' The two denaria were equivalent to two days' wages of a labourer (see Mt. xx. 2, § 76, p. 234), and therefore sufficient for temporary relief. This was a sum adequate to maintain a person six or seven days.

36, .7. Our Lord gives the true answer to the question; enabling the interrogator to answer it himself.

'This prompt and considerate benefactor of one poor and helpless fellow-creature, could have cherished no enmity against mankind, nor any comprehensive division of mankind in general. No malicious and vindictive passion could have found an habitual asylum in that heart, which, like a temple of charity, was consecrated to the generous affections, and overflowed with the milk of human kindness. Nor would it perhaps be presuming too much on consistency of character in the same person . . . if we were to conclude . . . that we see in this benefactor of one poor Jew, a pious worshipper of God, an affectionate husband, a tender father, a faithful friend, a gentle master, a peaceful and obedient subject, a kind and benevolent neighbour.'—Greswell.

'The moral lesson inculcated in the parable is, as Mr. Greswell says, that every man who is so situated as to require the good offices of his fellow-men, without regard to place, nation, consanguinity, or any of the ties which connect one man, or more, with a part of mankind more closely than the rest, must be regarded and treated as their neighbour.'—Bloomf.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. x. 33—.5. Let us be ever ready to acknowledge what is good in others, however separated from us by sect or party. Jesus had just before experienced the effects of sectarian hate from the Samaritans, but that does not prevent him from producing this Samaritan as an example for the Jew.

[Jesus hath had compassion upon us in our most miserable estate, he hath come to us, he hath been wounded that our wounds might be healed. He hath for us poured out not only oil and wine, but his own most precious blood. It is he that hath carried us all our life long, and hath cared for us till now. Whatever is given for our support is from his bountiful hand. Let us express our gratitude to him for his manifold kindness by shewing mercy to the poor; and as a farther encouragement to well doing, let us hear him saying, 'Whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again, I will repay thee.']

37 ver. Let us be followers of that which is good, from whomsoever the example may proceed: and let us never forget that one of the great lessons taught by our Redeemer is, that we shew mercy. This he hath taught us not less by precept than by his own most gracious example.

ADDENDA.

THE HARMONY OF THE ACCOUNTS OF THE SENDING OF THE TWELVE AND OF THE SEVENTY.*

MATTHEW x. 1, 5—15; ix. 37, 38, § 39, pp. 294—8.	MARK vi. 7—11, § ibid.	LUKE x. 1—12.
x. 1 And when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power, &c.	7 And he called unto him the twelve,	After these things the Lord appointed other seventy also, 1
5 These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not: 6 but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.	and began to send them forth by two and two;	and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself would come.
ix. 37 Then saith he unto his disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; 38 pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest.		Therefore said he unto them, 2 The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest.
x. 16 Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves:	and gave them power over unclean spirits;	Go your ways: 3 behold, I send you forth as lambs among wolves.
9 Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in your purses, 10 nor scrip for your journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves:	8 and commanded them that they should take nothing for their journey, save a staff only; no scrip, no bread, no money in their purse: 9 but be shod with sandals; and not put on two coats.	Carry neither purse, nor scrip, 4 nor shoes: and salute no man by the way.
12 And when ye come into an house, salute it. 13 And if the house be worthy, let your peace come upon it: but if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you.	10 And he said unto them, In what place soever ye enter into an house, there abide till ye depart from that place.	And into whatsoever house ye enter, 5 first say, Peace be to this house. And if the son of peace be there, 6 your peace shall rest upon it: if not, it shall turn to you again. And in the same house remain, 7 eating and drinking such things as they give: for the labourer is worthy of his hire. Go not from house to house.
10 For the workman is worthy of his meat.
11 And into whatsoever city or town ye shall enter, enquire who in it is worthy; and there abide till ye go thence. 8 Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, &c. &c. 7 And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand.		And into whatsoever city ye enter, 8 and they receive you, eat such things as are set before you: And heal the sick that are therein, 9 and say unto them, The kingdom of God is come nigh unto you.
14 And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear your words, when ye depart out of that house or city, shake off the dust of your feet.	11 And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear you, when ye depart thence, shake off the dust under your feet for a testimony against them.	But into whatsoever city ye enter, 10 and they receive you not, go your ways out into the streets of the same, and say, Even the very dust of your city, 11 which cleaveth on us, we do wipe off against you: notwithstanding be ye sure of this, that the kingdom of God is come nigh unto you.
15 Verily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.	Verily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.	But I say unto you, 12 that it shall be more tolerable in that day for Sodom, than for that city.

* For Luke's account of the sending forth of the TWELVE, ch. ix. 1—6, see § 39, pp. 294—8.

BEWARE OF BLUNTING THE INSTRUMENT, BY PUTTING TOO KEEN AN EDGE UPON IT

A SANCTIFIED CHRISTIAN WILL TAKE THOSE REPROOFS BEST WHICH HE NEEDS THE MOST.

THE WOE AND THE BLESSING AS RECORDED BY MATTHEW AND LUKE.

MATTHEW xi. 21—.3; 25—.7, § 29, pp. 227, ..8; xiii. 16, .7, § 32, p. 246, and LUKE x. 13—.5; 21—.4.

THE WOE.

	MATTHEW xi. 21, &c., § 29, p. 227.		LUKE x. 13—.5.
21	Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works, which were done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon,		Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works had been done in Tyre and Sidon, which have been done in you,	13
	they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes.		they had a great while ago repented, sitting in sackcloth and ashes
22	But I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of judgment, than for you.		But it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the judgment, than for you.	14
23	And thou, Capernaum, which art exalted unto heaven, shalt be brought down to hell: for if the mighty works, which have been done in thee, had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day.		And thou, Capernaum, which art exalted to heaven, shalt be thrust down to hell.	15

THE BLESSING

	MATTHEW xi. 25—.7.		LUKE x. 21—.4.
25	At that time Jesus answered and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes		In that hour Jesus rejoiced in spirit, and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes:	21
26	Even so, Father: for so it seemed good in thy sight.		even so, Father; for so it seemed good in thy sight.
27	All things are delivered unto me of my Father: and no man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him.		All things are delivered to me of my Father: and no man knoweth who the Son is, but the Father; and who the Father is, but the Son, and he to whom the Son will reveal him.	22
			And he turned him unto his disciples, and said privately,	23
xiii. 16.	But blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your ears, for they hear.		Blessed are the eyes which see the things that ye see:
17	For verily I say unto you, That many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.		for I tell you, that many prophets and kings have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.	24

SECTION 61.—(G. 28.)—[Lesson 58, Lu. x. 38—42; xi. 1—13, & 61, .2.]—JESUS IS ENTERTAINED IN THE HOUSE OF MARTHA; AND COMMENDS THE CHOICE OF HER SISTER MARY.—Luke x. 38—42.—[See Greswell, Vol. II. pp. 545—.79, 'On the village of Martha and Mary.']

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Lu. x. 38. Jesus, in his journeying, arrives at a certain village, where he is received by Martha into her house.

—— 39. Her sister Mary sits, as an humble disciple, at the feet of Jesus.

—— 40. Martha, who acts as if she esteemed her own service for Christ of more importance than his instructions, is offended on account of her sister's undivided attention to the teaching of her Lord; and prays Jesus that he would command Mary to assist her.

—— 41, .2. Jesus draws a contrast between the choice of Martha and that of Mary. They are opposed to each other in three respects—

i. The choice of Martha being of things that are perishing, induces carefulness; the choice of Mary, being of that which cannot be taken away, is accompanied with rest and peace.

ii. The choice of Martha bringeth trouble, one of the greatest evils; in which it is opposed to Mary's choice, called by our Lord 'that good part.'

iii. Martha is occupied with many things, none of which, nor all of them together, can satisfy; whereas the choice of Mary is the 'one thing' needful.

No. 61. Luke x. 38—42. North of Capernaum.

38 Now it came to pass, as they went, that he entered into a certain village: and a-39 certain woman named Martha received him into her house. And she had a sister

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. x. 38. as they went—Mr. Greswell supposes that what is here recorded, took place as they went upon the circuit indicated, ver. 1—some think that it was as they went to Jerusalem, in accordance with the purpose of Jesus, to attend the festivals there, when the time of his being received up drew nigh—see ch. ix. 51, § 59, p. 135—If so, this was at the time of the feast of dedication—see Jno. x. 22—39, § 56.*

* See ADDENDA, p. 138, supra, 'On the supplementary relation of Luke ix. 51, &c.'

LUKE x. 40—42.

40 called Mary, which also sat at Jesus' feet, and heard his word. But Martha was-cumbered περιεσπᾶτο about much serving διακονιαν, and came to him, and said, Lord, dost-thou not-care that my sister hath-left me to-serve alone? bid her therefore that she-help συναντιλαβηται με.

41 And Jesus answered and said unto-her, Martha, Martha, thou-art-careful μεριμνᾷς 42 and troubled τυρβαζῃ about many-things: but one-thing is needful ἑνος δε εστι χρεια: and Mary hath-chosen that good part μεριδα, which shall-not-be-taken-away from her.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. x. 38. a certain village—If Jesus was proceeding to the feast of dedication at Jerusalem, this village might be Bethany, 'the town of Mary and her sister Martha,' Jno. xi. 1, § 58, p. 127—which 'Bethany was nigh unto Jerusalem, about fifteen furlongs off,' ver. 18; and there Martha and Mary are again found, six days before the last passover, xii. 1—3, § 81 p. 253.

Martha—She appears to have been the most active of the two sisters: she was the first to receive Jesus, when he came to raise their brother Lazarus, Jno. xi. 20, § 58, p. 129.

39. sat at Jesus' feet—a posture expressive of humility and teachableness—De. xxxiii. 3, 'Yea, he loved the people; all his saints are in thy hand: and they sat down at thy feet; every one shall receive of thy words.'—It is remarked of the man out of whom the legion was cast, that he was found 'sitting at the feet of Jesus,' Lu. viii. 35, § 35, p. 272.

heard his word—She received of his words—see De. xxxiii. 3, supra—such Jesus acknowledged as being most nearly related to him, Lu. viii. 21, § 33, p. 262, and 'blessed,' xi. 28, § 62, p. 154.

40. Martha was cumbered—was in danger of proving like those represented by the thorny ground, who 'when they have heard [the word, Mk. iv. 18], go forth, and are choked with cares,' &c., ch. viii. 14, § 33, p. 256.

41. careful—Jesus had said much to dissuade from anxiety about provision for the body, Mt. vi. 25—34, § 19, p. 135—And the apostle exhorts believers to be without carefulness, and so to arrange their temporal concerns as that they 'may attend upon the Lord without distraction,' 1 Co. vii. 32—5.

42. one thing is needful—Ps. xxvii. 4, 'One thing have I desired of the LORD, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of my life, to behold the beauty [or, the delight] of the LORD, and to enquire in his temple.'—lxxiii. 25, 'Whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is none upon earth that I desire beside thee.'—Pr. iv. 7, 'Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding.'—Ec. xii. 13, 'Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man.'—When concluding his exhortation to avoid worldly anxiety, Jesus had said, in the sermon on the mount, Mt. vi. 33, 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness;'—And when teaching his disciples, immediately before the Transfiguration, the necessity of their enduring the cross, if they would wear the crown, Mt. xvi. 21—5, § 50, pp. 40, 2, he asks, ver. 26, 'For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?'—Becoming his disciple so as to part with all he had for the benefit of the poor, was the one thing that Jesus required of the rich young ruler, Lu. xviii. 22, § 75, p. 225—The being so taught of Christ as to have learned the great evangelical lesson of LOVE, is by the apostle reckoned the one thing needful for himself, 1 Co. xiii. 2, 3, &c.—He counted all but loss and dung for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus his Lord—see Ph. iii. 8.

good part—There may be here an allusion to what is said in connection with the Lord's loving the people, and their sitting down at his feet, and hearing his words, De. xxxiii. 3—see on ver. 39, supra—it follows in ver. 4, 'Moses commanded us a law, even the inheritance of the congregation of Jacob.'—The Lord promised to preserve Israel in possession of the glory of all lands as their inheritance, so long as they kept that law, ch. xxx. 15—20; Eze. xx. 6, &c.—But the Lord himself is the better portion, which had before been promised to the father of the faithful, Ge. xv. 1, 'Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward.'—This portion is theirs who are in Christ, Ps. xvi. 5—7, 'The LORD is the portion of mine inheritance,' &c.—This portion can be rejoiced in, although earthly joy should fade, Lam. iii. 24—6, 'The LORD is my portion, saith my soul; therefore will I hope in him. 25, The LORD is good unto them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him. 26, It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the LORD.'—Na. i. 7, 'The LORD is good, a strong hold in the day of trouble; and he knoweth them that trust in him.'—Hab. iii. 17—9—Having this portion, we are enabled to make gain of everything, even of tribulations also, Rom. v. 1—11.

not be taken away—Those who chose to have only the earthly portion, without that Better Portion chosen by Abraham, lost the object of their choice, 2 Ki. xvii.—The Portion chosen by believers is 'an Inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you [or, for us], who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation,' 1 Pe. i. 4, 5—see Rom. viii. 31—9—see on the eternal security of the sheep of Christ, his own words at the feast of dedication, Jno. x. 27—9, § 56, p. 121, 'My sheep hear my voice,' &c.—and they are exhorted, He. xiii. 5, 'Be content with such things as ye have: for he hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. x. 38. How blessed was Martha in being privileged to receive as her guest the Lord of Life and Glory! and the same privilege is offered to each who has an opportunity of shewing, for his Master's sake, kindness to the poorest of his servants.

[How desirous should the Christian be, that he may in his speech and conduct truly represent his Lord, to those who receive him for the sake of Him, who went about doing good, and whose words were truth and grace!]

39 ver. The christian teacher will, like his Master, have more delight in those who prize the words of God, and profit by them; than in those whose attention is occupied with temporal concerns, even although it may be in his behalf. He will attach more importance to their spiritual gain, than to his own worldly profit or gratification.

[40 ver. Let us earnestly desire the time when the people to whom the love of God hath been so wondrously manifested as it hath been to our race, will sit humbly at the feet of Jesus, and without distraction from the cares of the world, listen, like Mary, to the words of Christ.]

41 ver. Martha, by aiming at more than was necessary to manifest kind hospitality, fell far short of it. It occasioned her receiving pain from the highest enjoyment of those most dear to her. In place of adding to the comfort of her guest, she would tease him with complaints against her sister.

42 ver. Let us, with Him who knows the value of our redemption, reckon one thing to be needful, and make everything subsidiary to the work of God.

[Let us, with Mary, choose 'that good part' which doth not only satisfy now, but for ever. The golden psalm (xvi.), in which Christ is the speaker, discourseing of the riches of the inheritance we have in him, concludes as speaking in behalf of each of those who receive of his word—'Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore.']

SECTION 62.—(G. 29—31.)—[Lesson 58, continued, Lu. xi. 1—13, and Lesson 59, Lu. xi. 14—54.]—JESUS PRESCRIBES FOR THE USE OF HIS DISCIPLES A FORM OF PRAYER: AND ADDS A FURTHER DISCOURSE UPON THE EFFICACY OF PRAYER: HE CASTS OUT A DUMB SPIRIT: SOME MAKE LIGHT OF THE MIRACLE; OTHERS DEMAND A SIGN FROM HEAVEN. JESUS REPLIES TO BOTH IN ORDER. IS THE SAME DAY INVITED TO DINE WITH A CERTAIN PHARISEE. HE SITS DOWN WITHOUT FIRST WASHING HIS HANDS; THE PHARISEE BEING SECRETLY OFFENDED THEREBY, JESUS REBUKES THE HYPOCRISY AND CARNAL RIGHTEOUSNESS OF HIS SECT.—Luke xi.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Lu. xi. 1. Jesus is requested by one of his disciples, to teach them to pray.

—— 2—4. He teaches them, what is commonly called the Lord's Prayer, an epitome of Solomon's prayer at the dedication of the temple. Except as wanting the concluding words, 'For thine,' &c., it is also the same as in the Sermon on the Mount, Mt. vi. 9—13.—See ADDENDA, p. 158, infra, 'Parallelism.'

—— 5—8. In first presenting this prayer, Jesus had warned against vain repetition, Mt. vi. 7, 8; whereas here he guards against the opposite evil, and exhorts to earnest perseverance in prayer: adducing the case of a man going at midnight to his friend to ask three loaves, to set before another friend who has come to him in his journey.—See PRAC. REFLEC.

—— 9. Jesus, as in the Sermon on the Mount, exhorts to ask, seek, knock; assuring his disciples that they shall have what they thus labour to obtain.

Lu. xi. 10. That which Jesus has promised to his more immediate followers, he promises to every one who complies with the invitation: praying perseveringly, as exhorted, ver. 5—8; and for things according to the will of God, as given example, ver. 2—4.

—— 11—13. We are to approach God with child-like confidence, recognising our heavenly Father as being not more likely than an earthly parent, in answer to the cry of his children, to give evil under the semblance of good. What our Lord here says, is different in two respects from that correspondent passage, Mt. vii. 9—11: there the reference to the egg and scorpion are wanting; and here in place of 'good things,' we have 'the Holy Spirit,' that whereby alone we can truly obtain, and profit in, the good things which God our heavenly Father is pleased to bestow upon us.

No. 62. (G. 29.)—[Lesson 58, continued.]—Jesus prescribes for the use of his disciples a form of prayer: and adds a further discourse upon the efficacy of prayer.

LUKE xi. 1—13.

1 And it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one τις of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disci-
2 ples. And he said unto them, When ye pray, say, Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xi. 1. praying in a certain place—If Jesus was now, as some have supposed, in the neighbourhood of Jerusalem, the place may have been Gethsemane—in ch. xxii. 40, § 88, p. 413, it is called emphatically 'the place;' and in Jno. xviii. 2, § ib. p. 417, we are told that 'Jesus oftimes resorted thither with his disciples.'

2. When ye pray, say, &c.—This prayer our Saviour had previously taught in the Sermon on the Mount—see Mt. vi. 9—13, on which see § 19, p. 132—It may also be noticed that this prayer is an epitome of Solomon's prayer at the dedication of the temple, 1 Ki. viii.; 2 Chr. vi.

Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name—In the commencement of Solomon's dedicatory prayer, he recognises himself as having been appointed, by God, to build that house unto the name of the Lord, 1 Ki. viii. 19; 2 Chr. vi. 8, 9; and which house represented the spiritual temple, built by the Son of God, of whom also Solomon was a type—comp. 2 Sa. vii. 13, .4; 1 Chr. xxviii. 6; He. i. 5—Solomon addresses God in heaven, 1 Ki. viii.; 2 Chr. vi.; and says, 1 Ki. viii. 27, 'But will God indeed dwell on the earth? behold, the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house that I have builded?' (2 Chr. vi. 18)—and in dedicating or hallowing the house to the name of the Lord, ver. 28—30, 'Yet have thou respect unto the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O LORD my God, to hearken unto the cry and to the prayer, which thy servant prayeth before thee to-day: 29, that thine eyes may be open toward this house night and day, even toward the place of which thou hast said, My name shall be there: that thou mayest hearken unto the prayer which thy servant shall make toward [or, in] this place. 30, And hearken thou to the supplication of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, when they shall pray toward [or, in] this place: and hear thou in heaven thy dwelling place: and when thou hearest, forgive.' (2 Chr. vi. 19—21.)

Thy kingdom come—Solomon's second petition is that, upon appeal made unto God, as the Governor of his people Israel, He, as especially present in that house, would take the government into his own hands, 'condemning the wicked, to bring his way upon his head; and justifying the righteous, to give him according to his righteousness.' 1 Ki. viii. 31, .2. (2 Chr. vi. 22, .3.)

All appeals to the justice of God will be fully answered in the Messiah's kingdom, typified by that of Solomon—see Ps. lxxii., &c.

Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth—In the third petition of Solomon's prayer, 1 Ki. viii. 33, .4, he asks that the most painful chastisement which God might see meet to deal out to his people, that of giving them up to the will of their enemies, might be effectual in bringing them into submission to the Divine will; so that, being brought to repentance, they might be restored to confess his name, and make unto him prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, in the land which God gave unto their fathers. (2 Chr. vi. 24, .5.)

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. xi. 1. Now that Jesus is our Intercessor in heaven, he will not be less willing to lead our devotions than when he was upon earth. May he, by his Spirit, teach us what we should pray for as we ought.

2 ver. May we be enabled to approach unto God, as children to a Father. He hath been graciously pleased to call us by his NAME. May we indeed be hallowed unto his holy service; be living temples, consecrated unto his glory.

[Soon may God take the government of our world into his own hands—vindicate the cause of justice, goodness, and truth; and so establish righteousness unto the ends of the earth, as that the kingdom of peace may be established, and joy in the Holy Ghost abound among men.]

[Soon may the time come when the will of God shall be done upon earth, not blindly or by force, but, as by the angels in heaven, from love, in light, and with joyful alacrity.]

3 ver. May we so render a grateful return for all his goodness, as to have removed from us the curse of spiritual barrenness.

MAY WE OF HIS GRACE RECEIVE SEASONABLE SUPPLIES FOR OUR DAILY WANTS.

AND MAY WE NEVER BE VISITED BY A FAMINE OF THE BREAD OF LIFE.

LUKE xi. 3—13.

3 earth. Give us day-by-day το καθ' ἡμεραν our daily bread τον αρτον τον επιουσιον.
4 And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every-one that-is-indebted to-us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil του πονηρου.
5 And he-said unto them, Which of you shall-have a-friend, and shall-go unto him at-6 midnight, and say unto-him, Friend, lend me three loaves; for a-friend of-mine in his-7 journey is-come to me, and I-have nothing to-set-before him? And-he from-within shall-answer and-say, Trouble me not: the door is-now-shut, and my children are with 8 me in bed; I-can not rise and-give thee. I-say unto-you, Though he-will not-rise and-give him, because he-is his friend, yet because-of his importunity αναιδειαν he-will-rise 9 and-give him as-many-as he-needeth. And-I say unto-you, Ask, and it-shall-be-given 10 you; seek, and ye-shall-find; knock, and it-shall-be-opened unto-you. For every-one that asketh receiveth; and he that-seeketh findeth; and to-him that-knocketh it-shall 11 be-opened. If a son shall-ask bread of-any of-you that is a father, will-he-give him a-12 stone? or if he ask a-fish, will-he-for a-fish-give him a-serpent? Or if he-shall-ask an-13 egg, will-he-offer him a-scorpion? If ye then, being evil πονηροι, know how to-give good gifts unto your children[a]: how-much more shall-your-heavenly Father-give the-Holy Spirit to-them that-ask him?

[a] Gr. 'Children of you.'

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xi. 3. Give us day by day our daily bread—The fourth and fifth petitions of Solomon's dedicatory prayer are, that God would remove sin, the great cause of famine, and nourish the people in the good way of the Lord; and also give seasonable weather for bringing forth the fruits of the earth, 1 Ki. viii. 35, .6. (2 Chr. vi. 26, .7.)

4. And forgive us our sins, &c.—Correspondent to this we have in 1 Ki. viii. 37—40, and in 2 Chr. vi. 28—31, a prayer, not only for the removal of famine, but of all the other curses wherewith Israel might be afflicted on account of their sins—and a prayer for forgiveness of the sins of individuals, and that they may each be dealt with according to his ways; which also is implied in the words of the Lord's prayer, 'for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us'—and is more fully explained by our Lord, Mt. vi. 14, .5, 'For if ye forgive men,' &c.—He will answer the prayer of each according to his own way.

And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil—The remainder of Solomon's prayer, 1 Ki. viii. 41—53, (2 Chr. vi. 32—42,) is for the stranger, that he may be led to worship with the congregation of Israel; and for Israel, that they may be prosperous in their going out to war against the enemy (in which their prayer required to be, 'Lead us not into temptation'); and that when carried into captivity, they might, upon repentance and prayer, be delivered from the evil, and become what they were originally designed to be, separate from all people, an inheritance to the Lord.

5. midnight—Let us note for our encouragement in prayer, that now it is not midnight, but 'now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation,' 2 Co. vi. 2.

8. importunity—Jacob used importunity with the Lord for deliverance from the wrath of his brother, Ge. xxxii. 9—12—and for the blessing of the Angel of the covenant, which he obtained, ver. 24—9—see also the parable of the importunate widow, Lu. xviii. 1—8, § 73, p. 214.

9. Ask, &c.—see on Mt. vii. 7, § 19, p. 138.

10. For every one that asketh—see Mt. vii. 8, ib.

11. ask bread—Mt. vii. 9, § ib. p. 139.

a serpent—Mt. vii. 10, ib.

12. an egg—Eggs are spoken of in connection with the cockatrice, or adder, and viper, Is. lix. 5. 'They hatch cockatrice' eggs, and weave the spider's web: he that eateth of their eggs dieth, and that which is crushed breaketh out into a viper.'

13. give the Holy Spirit, &c.—see on 'give good things,' Mt. vii. 11, § 19, p. 139.

NOTES.

Lu. xi. 5. Which of you shall have, &c. Our Lord proceeds to shew them, by a parable, that in order to obtain the supply of their wants from God, they must be earnest and persevering in their prayers. The application of the parable is contained in ver. 9, 10.

At midnight. An hour when it would be the most inconvenient to be disturbed.

7. With me in bed. The sense of the original is, 'my children, as well as myself, are in bed.'

8. his importunity. ἀναίδειαν denotes that importunity which has no regard to time, place, or person, and will not be denied.

[9. Ask, and it shall be given you. 'Our Lord here shows us how to apply the subject, first in a way of direct affirmation (εἰσιν, καὶ δοθήσεται ὑμῖν), and then in a way of inference; q. d. εἰ οὕτω ἐμεῖς, &c., where the comparison is not a simili, but a majori; q. d. "If the importunate tearer obtains so much from men, what will not he that offers up fervent and assiduous prayers obtain from his Father in heaven?" —Comp. Mk. xi. 24, [§ 84]; Jno. xiv. 13; xv. 7; xvi. 23, [§ 87]; Ja. i. 5; 1 Jno. iii. 22.'—Bloomf.]

[9—13. See on Mt. vii. 7—11, § 19, p. 138. The example of the truth and mercy of God, the encouragement afforded, and his readiness to pardon, assist, and accept us, constitute the primary argument with which this rule is enforced, and form its connection with the preceding verses.]

By being given the Holy Spirit, men are enabled to possess the good things spoken of in the corresponding passage, Mt. vii. 7—11.—'The things which God hath prepared for them that love him... God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God,' 1 Co. ii. 9, 10.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. xi. 4. We confess that we have sinned, and supplicate the Divine forgiveness, that so we may be delivered from those evils we deserve, on account of our transgressions of the law, and omissions of duty; and we are the more encouraged to ask pardon for ourselves, seeing that, taught by the grace of God, we are made willing from the heart to forgive those who are indebted to us.]

Let us welcome those who seek in truth to escape from the pollutions of the world; and let us ever pray that we may be delivered from the thraldom of the Evil one; that so we may the less require to be punished by being made the servants of men.

5—8 ver. It is remarkable that when our Saviour previously taught the foregoing prayer—see Mt. vi. 7—15, § 19, p. 131, he did so as giving his disciples an example of avoiding needless repetition, or much speaking; whereas here it is found in connection with an exhortation to importunity in prayer. Earnest perseverance in prayer is, however, a very different thing from a dull repetition of words, such as our Saviour had reproved.

[We may understand this, like many of our Lord's parables, as being spoken in the way of contrast. Thus, it is not midnight, but the day of our merciful visitation; He whom we address is not shut up and at rest with his children, but we are his children, whom he, in the Son of his love, hath come forth to seek and to save; and Jesus hath given to us himself as the bread of life.]

13 ver. Let us have faith in our heavenly Father, according to the invitation of his dear Son; so as to ask of him that which he hath promised—his Holy Spirit, by which all may be made to minister to our good.

LET US ADORE GOD FOR HIS WONDERFUL GOODNESS, TO US HIS MOST UNTHANKFUL CHILDREN.
LET US USE THE MEANS WHICH GOD HATH APPOINTED FOR OUR OBTAINING HIS BLESSING.

(G. 30.)—[Lesson 59, Lu. xi. 14—54.]—*Jesus casts out a dumb spirit: some make light of the miracle: others demand a sign from heaven. Jesus replies to both in order.—Luke xi. 14—36.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Lu. xi. 14—23. Jesus having cast out a dumb devil, is accused of casting out devils by Beelzebub; and being at the same time asked for a sign from heaven, he reasons with them, as upon a similar occasion, Mt. xii. 22—30.—See ADDENDA, p. 158 'Parallelism.'

—— 24—26. Jesus intimates that the cleansing of their house (commemorated at the feast of dedication) was only to result in greater defilement. Their house might be garnished, but it was also empty. We have nearly the same words, Mt. xii. 43—5.—See ADDENDA, p. 159, 'Parallelism.'

—— 27, 28. In answer to the cry of a woman, 'Blessed is the womb that bare thee,' &c., Jesus shews who rather are blessed.

—— 29—32. Jesus' discourse when the people were gathered thick together; in which he intimates his knowledge of them, that they did not come to him to be profited by his words of wisdom and of warning.

Lu. xi. 33—36. Jesus shews, that those who are given the light are so favoured in order that others may profit withal. He shews what is necessary to an enjoying of the light, ver. 33, parallel to Mt. v. 15, § 19.

—— 37—44. Jesus' discourse in the house of a Pharisee, exposing the folly of outward punctiliousness in religion, to the neglect of inward purity and true devotedness to God; parallel in sense, although not in order, to Mt. xxiii. 6, 23—8.—See ADD. p. 160.

—— 45—52. Jesus' answer to a lawyer in reproof of those who, by a burdensome attention to the law, had made void the living Witness; nearly parallel to Mt. xxiii. 4, 13, 29—36.—See ibid. pp. 160, 1.

—— 53, 54. The scribes and Pharisees urge him vehemently to speak of many things, that they may have something out of his own mouth on account of which to accuse him.

No. 62. (G. 30.) LUKE xi. 14—36.

14 And he-was casting-out a-devil, and it was dumb. And it-came-to-pass, when-the 15 devil-was-gone-out, the dumb spake; and the people wondered. But some of them 16 said, He-casteth-out devils through Beelzebub the-chief of-the devils. And others, tempting him, sought of him a-sign from heaven.
17 But he, knowing their thoughts διανοηματα, said unto-them, Every kingdom divided against itself is-brought-to-desolation ερημουται; and a-house divided against a-house 18 falleth. If Satan also be-divided against himself, how shall-his kingdom-stand 19 σταθησεται? because ye-say that-I cast-out devils through Beelzebub. And if I by Beelzebub cast-out devils, by whom do-your sons-cast-them-out? therefore shall-they-20 be your judges. But if I-with the-finger of-God-cast-out devils, no-doubt the kingdom 21 of God is-come εφθασεν upon you. When a strong-man ὁ ισχυρος armed keepeth his 22 palace, his goods are in peace: but when a stronger than-he shall-come-upon him, and-overcome him, he-taketh from him all-his armour την πανοπλιαν, wherein he-trusted, 23 and divideth his spoils σκυλα. He that-is not with me is against me: and he thatgathereth not with me scattereth.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xi. 14—23—see on Mt. xii. 22—30, § 31, pp. 234—6, and for Parallelism, see ADDENDA, p. 158, infra.

17. Knowing their thoughts—see on Mk. ii. 8, § 22, p. 166.

20. with the finger of God—The words Mt. xii. 28, are, 'by the Spirit of God'. When God is about to manifest his Divine government by signal acts of judgment, he generally vouchsafes extraordinary manifestations of his Spirit, that those who are watchful of his hand, and who are disposed to listen to his voice, may have warning to flee from the coming wrath—so before the flood Noah was sent to the old world, 1 Pe. iii. 18—21—so, by Moses, 'the finger of God,' Ex. viii. 19, gave warning to Pharaoh, before the Lord, with his right hand 'dashed in pieces the enemy,' xv. 6—so also before Israel's destruction, Elijah and Elisha, prophets mighty in word and deed, were sent to warn them that they were about to be cut off, 1 Ki. xix. 15—8—also, before the removal of the Jews to Babylon, many prophets were sent to Jerusalem, and striking manifestations made of the power of the Lord to save or to destroy—see Isaiah, Jeremiah, &c.—so also Jonah was sent to Nineveh, and Daniel was placed in Babylon; by both, 'the finger of God' indicated approaching judgment.

NOTES.

Lu. xi. 14—23. And he was casting out, &c. See on Mt. xii. 22—30, § 31, p. 234—and ADDENDA, § ib. p. 241.

16. A sign, &c.—See on Mt. xvi. 1, § 47, p. 28.

[20. With the finger of God, &c. When such remarkable manifestations of the Spirit of God take place, it is as if 'the finger of God' were pointing to some extraordinary act of the Divine government as about to ensue. God is graciously condescending to warn the present generation of approaching judgment; and to teach all coming generations the principles according to which he is conducting the affairs of our world.—See SCRIP. ILLUS., supra.]

23. He that is not with me, &c. See SCRIP. ILLUS., § 52, p. 76, ch. ix. 50.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. xi. 15. Let us not be surprised if men should ascribe to the Evil one the change which is effected by the cleansing and life-giving power of Jesus. But let us ever beware of such blasphemy.

[16 ver. Jesus was himself the most expressive sign from heaven; and yet, when in the full manifestation of the love and power of God he had descended from the bosom of the Father, men still asked of him 'a sign from heaven.']

17, 18 ver. Let us be content to see Satan's kingdom destroyed, by whomsoever that good may be effected.

19 ver. Let us judge as favourably of the motives and conduct of others as of our own.

[20 ver. When God gives extraordinary tokens of his presence, to awaken men to a sense of his power, it is a sure sign that he is about to take the government into his own hands, to execute justice in some remarkable manner; vindicating the cause of the righteous, and punishing the wicked.]

21, 22 ver. The only way in which man can successfully oppose his spiritual enemies, is by being strengthened with all might by the Spirit in the inner man, and by taking to him the whole armour of God.

23 ver. It is not enough that, in the cause of Christ, we are neutral: if we would not be reckoned among his enemies, let us be found among his friends.

* See Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxxiii. p. 596, on Matt. xii. 22—45, compared with Luke xi. 14—36.—See also p. 158, infra, ADDENDA, 'Parallelism.'

LET US EARNESTLY PRAY THAT THE SPIRIT OF EVIL MAY BE CAST OUT; AND THAT WE MAY BE GIVEN A MOUTH TO PRAISE GOD.

IN DESPISING THE MEANS WHICH GOD HAS GIVEN FOR THEIR SPIRITUAL LIFE, MEN DO NOT TAKE THE WAY FOR THEIR INCREASE.

LUKE xi. 24—32.

24 When the unclean spirit is-gone-out of a man, he-walketh through dry places, seeking rest αναπαυσιν; and finding none, he-saith, I-will-return unto my house whence I-came-25 out. And when-he-cometh, he-findeth it swept and garnished. 26 Then goeth-he, and taketh-to him seven other spirits more-wicked than-himself; and they-enter-in, and-dwell there: and the last state τα εσχατα of-that man is worse than-the first.
27 And it-came-to-pass, as he spake these things, a-certain woman of the company lifted up her voice, and-said unto-him, Blessed is the womb that bare thee, and the-paps which 28 thou-hast-sucked. But he said, Yea rather Μενουν γε, blessed are they that-hear the word of God, and keep it.
29 And when-the people-were-gathered-thick-together, he-began to-say, This is an evil generation: they-seek a-sign; and there-shall-no sign-be-given it, but the sign of 30 Jonas the prophet. For as Jonas was a-sign unto-the Ninevites, so shall-also the Son 31 of man-be-to-this generation. The-queen of-the-south shall-rise-up in the judgment with the men of-this generation, and condemn them: for she-came from the utmost-parts of-the earth to-hear the wisdom of-Solomon; and, behold, a-greater πλειον than-32 Solomon is here. The-men of-Nineve shall-rise-up in the judgment with this generation, and shall-condemn it: for they-repented at the preaching of-Jonas; and, behold, a-greater πλειον than-Jonas is here.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xi. 24—6. When the unclean, &c.—Our Lord seems here to make allusion to the cleansing of the temple, commemorated by the feast of dedication; and to the evil end of that wicked generation, which rejected the Son of God, and made light of his Holy Spirit—we have nearly the same words, Mt. xii. 43—5, § 31, p. 239—and see ADDENDA, p. 159, infra.

27. Blessed is the womb, &c.—Elisabeth, filled with the Holy Ghost, had, with a loud voice, said to Mary, ch. i. 42, § 2, p. 11, 'Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb;' and she had pointed to faith, as the medium of blessing, saying, ver. 45, 'And blessed is she that believed: for there shall be a performance of those things which were told her from the Lord.'—And Mary, in expressing her faith, ascribes her blessedness to the grace of the Lord, saying, ver. 46—8, 'My soul doth magnify the Lord, and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour. For he hath regarded the low estate of his hand-maiden: for, behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed.'

28. hear the word of God, and keep it.—This was the character of Mary: when the angel delivered to her the message of the Lord, she said, ch. i. 38, § ib. p. 10, 'Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it unto me according to thy word.'—And of her it is said, ii. 19, § 4, p. 22, 'But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.'—And again, ver. 51, § 6, p. 42, 'But his mother kept all these sayings in her heart.' —Those who are pronounced blessed, are they who, like Mary, hear and keep the word of prophecy, Rev. i. 3, 'Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein: for the time is at hand'—the time when there shall be a performance of those things spoken to Mary respecting the blessed reign of her Son, the Son of David, the Son of the Highest, &c.—Jesus recognises as his mother and his brethren those 'which hear the word of God, and do it,' Lu. viii. 21, § 33, p. 262—Those who refused to hear the word of God and do it, and who burned incense to 'the queen of heaven,' which title the Papists give to the blessed virgin, brought not a blessing, but a desolation upon their land, and curse and scattering upon their people, Je. xliv. 16—29—and Mary herself rejoices in the anticipated triumph over their successors in crime and punishment, in fulfilment of the word of prophecy, given of old 'to our fathers,' Lu. i. 51—5, § 2, p. 12.

29—32. they seek a sign, &c.—see ver. 16, p. 153—Much the same is said in answer to the scribes and Pharisees, Mt. xii. 38—42, § 31, p. 238—and see ADDENDA, p. 159, infra.

NOTES.

Lu. xi. 24—6. When the unclean spirit is, &c. See on Mt. xii. 43—5, § 31, p. 239.

26. The last state of that man is worse than the first. Whoever reads the sad account Josephus gives of the temper and conduct of the Jews, after the ascension of Christ, and before their final destruction by the Romans, must acknowledge that no emblem could have been more proper to describe them. Their characters were the vilest that can be conceived, and they pressed on to their own ruin, as if they had been possessed by legions of devils, and wrought up to the last degree of madness. But this also is fulfilled in all who apostatize from the truth.

27. A certain woman . . . lifted up her voice, &c. Like many carnally-minded professing Christians, she thought only of the blessedness of Mary as being the mother of Jesus; and not simply as rejoicing in God her Saviour, and being obedient to his word.

28. Yea rather, blessed, &c. Our Lord immediately rebukes the adoration of the creature, and re-echoes the words of Elisabeth, which she spake by the Holy Ghost, 'Blessed is she that believed,' &c. Our blessed Lord knew her, that even she who was 'highly favoured among women,' could only be 'blessed' by 'believing.' Blessedness can only be had by believing, by receiving into the heart the Lord of life and glory, and by our being made in very deed the disciples of Jesus.—Comp. ch. viii. 19—21, § 33, p. 262.

29—32. This is an evil generation. See on Mt. xii. 39—42, § 31, p. 238.

29. They seek a sign. See on Mt. xii. 38, § 31, p. 238, and SCRIP. ILLUS., Mt. xvi. 4, § 47, p. 29.

30. For as Jonas was a sign. See on Mt. xii. 40, § 31, p. 238. 'From our Lord's saying that "Jonas was a sign unto the Ninevites," we gather the knowledge of a fact not recorded in the book of Jonah, namely, that the deliverance of Jonas from the whale's belly was known to the Ninevites, and was evidence to them of his Divine mission.'—Lonsdale.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. xi. 24—6. There must not be a mere refraining from evil; but, as inhabited by the Spirit of God, a positive engagement in what is good. Mere mental refinement, and even religious garnishment, without the indwelling of the Spirit of God, may only render a man, as well as a people, a more permanent abode for the devil. The Jews, although reformed from the idolatry of their ancestors, were yet more the children of the devil than they; and their guilt and punishment have been greater.]

27, 8 ver. Those who are related to Christ according to the Spirit, are more near and dear to him than those who were only related to him according to the flesh. Would we be blessed with the mother of our Lord, let us, like Mary, 'hear the word of God, and keep it.'

30—2 ver. The men of Nineveh heard and repented at the preaching of Jonah; the queen of the south heard and was instructed by the wisdom of Solomon; but when He appeared, of whom the prophet and the prince were but types, he was despised and rejected of men.

GREAT PRIVILEGES BRING WITH THEM GREAT RESPONSIBILITY; AND IF WE ARE NOT GAINERS BY THEM, WE ARE LOSERS.

OUR BOASTING OF PRIVILEGES WITHOUT DULY IMPROVING THEM, IS LIKE PLEADING FOR OUR OWN CONDEMNATION

LUKE xi. 33—8.

33 No-man, when-he-hath-lighted a-candle, putteth it in a-secret-place, neither under a 34 bushel, but on a candlestick, that they which-come-in may-see the light. The light of-the body is the eye: therefore when thine eye is single, thy whole body also is full-of-light φωτεινον; but when thine eye is evil, thy body also is full-of-darkness σκοτεινον.
35 Take-heed σκοπει therefore that the light which-is in thee be not darkness. 36 If thy whole body therefore be full-of-light, having no part dark, the-whole shall-be full-of-light, as when the bright-shining-of-a-candle doth-give-thee-light.

(G. 31.)—[Lesson 59, continued.]—Jesus is invited the same day to dine with a certain Pharisee. He sits down without first washing his hands; the Pharisee being secretly offended thereby, Jesus rebukes the hypocrisy and carnal righteousness of his sect.—Luke xi. 37—54. Line going Westward and Southward.

37 And as he-spake, a-certain Pharisee besought him to dine with him: and he-went-in, 38 and-sat-down-to-meat. And when-the Pharisee-saw it, he-marvelled that he-had-not

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xi. 33. No man, when he hath lighted, &c.—Nearly the same words were spoken in the Sermon on the Mount, Mt. v. 15, § 19—see ADDENDA, p. 160, infra—and in connection with the parable of the sower, Lu. viii. 16, § 33, p. 258—'No man, when he hath lighted a candle, covereth it with a vessel, or putteth it under a bed; but setteth it on a candlestick, that they which enter in may see the light.'—A like intimation is made by the apostle, 1 Co. xii. 7, 'The manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal.'

34, 5. The light of the body, &c.—the same Mt. vi. 22, 3, and see ADDENDA, p. 160, infra.

36. full of light—Ps. cxix. 105, 'Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.'—Pr. vi. 23, 'For the commandment is a lamp; and the law is light;' &c.—Is. viii. 20, 'To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them.'—2 Co. iv. 6, 'For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.'—Eph. v. 8, 'For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light:'

37. sat down to meat—without preparation, as is intimated, ver. 38—Jesus by this act meant probably to represent the ravening and uncleanness of the Pharisees, on account of which he immediately after reproves them, ver. 39, &c.—Jesus was accustomed to speak by significant action as well as by word; as when he set a child in the midst of his disciples, Mt. xviii. 2, &c., § 53, p. 75; and when he departed from the temple, xxiv. 1, &c., § 86, p. 323—so were the prophets, as Is. xx.; Ezek. iv. . . . Je. xix.; Ho. i. &c.

NOTES.

Lu. xi. 33. No man, when he hath lighted, &c. See on Mt. v. 15, 6, § 19, p. 123, and on Lu. viii. 16, 7, § 33, p. 258.

34, 5. The light of the body is the eye, &c. See on Mt. vi. 22, 3, § 19, p. 134.

34. When thine eye is single. The meaning is, God gives you this gospel-light, that you may repent. Let your eye be singly fixed on him, aim only at pleasing God; and while you do this, your whole soul will be full of wisdom, holiness, and happiness.

But when thine eye is evil. When thou aimest at anything else, thou wilt be full of folly, sin, and misery.

35. The light . . . be not darkness. The moral judgment and understanding be not corrupted by blind and unreasonable prejudices.

36. If thy whole body . . . be full of light. If thou art filled with holy wisdom, having no part dark, giving way to no sin or folly, then that heavenly principle will, like the clear flame of a lamp in a room that was dark before, shed its light into all thy powers and faculties. When the light of Christ dwells fully in the heart, it extends its influence to every thought, word, and action; and directs its possessor how he is to act in all places and circumstances.

[33—6. 'The sayings of our Lord contained in these verses are found, with slight variations, in ch. viii. 16, [Mk. iv. 21,] § 33, p. 258; Mt. v. 15; vi. 22, 3, § 19. In those places, however, they are differently connected and applied. In this place they appear to have a reference to what he had said immediately before, as to the perverseness of that "evil generation," in refusing to avail themselves of the light afforded them by the teaching of One greater than Solomon or Jonah. Our Lord may here be understood, first, as saying that he had not put the light of his doctrine "in a secret place," but had so openly shewn it unto the world, that all who came to him might see it.']

[37. Besought him. The Pharisees or separatists would be rather pleased than offended at hearing the mass of society reproached as being in a filthy, dark, and condemned state. The Pharisee might think that by giving such a character of that generation generally, Jesus justified the position of those who stood apart therefrom, and aspired after a superior degree of holiness. The Pharisee was much in danger of self-flattery, and required to be spoken to directly and individually; this he gave Jesus an opportunity of doing, whilst perhaps he expected that our Lord would as much commend the Pharisees as he reproached the multitude. It may be, however, that the Pharisees had already adopted this method of trying to entrap him; and that when he was invited to dine, they intended to act towards him as is afterwards noticed, ver. 53, 4, p. 157.—See again, ch. xiv. 1, § 67, p. 181.—Comp. ADD. p. 161.]

To dine with him. Is supposed to have been the first meal, of which the Jews had only two in the day; their chief meal was supper, after the heat of the day was over; and the same was the usage of the Greeks and Romans. Josephus, in his life, § 54, says, 'the legal hour of the αριστον on the sabbath, was the sixth hour, or at twelve o'clock at noon.'

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. xi. 34. Let us be careful to preserve simplicity of mind; that so nothing may be allowed to interrupt the free communication to us of heavenly light; and that thereby we may know how we ought to act in all things and at all times.

[35 ver. Let us be careful, that we mistake not the will of man for the will of God; that our religion be not merely a conformity to the world, or a submission to the commandments and traditions of men.]

37 ver. Jesus condescended to eat with the Pharisee as with the publican: his design in both cases was the same,—to recal the one from unrighteousness, and the other from self-righteousness; the one from outward pollution, and the other to inward purity.

[38 ver. Jesus, like the prophets, taught by significant acts; so here, among those who with hands most defiled, thought to eat bread in the kingdom of God, he neglected that ceremonial washing which they had substituted for purity of heart and of life.]

LIGHT IS GIVEN TO US, NOT ONLY FOR OURSELVES, BUT THAT WE MAY DISPENSE IT TO OTHERS.

IF WE WOULD FULLY ENJOY THE LIGHT, LET US HAVE NO DEEDS THAT WE DESIRE TO COVER.

LUKE xi. 39—45.

39 first-washed before dinner. And the Lord said unto him, Now do-ye Pharisees-make-clean the outside of-the cup and the platter, but your inward-part is-full of-ravening 40 and wickedness. Ye fools, did-not he that-made that which is without-make that 41 which is within also? But-rather give alms of-such-things-as ye-have; and, behold, 42 all-things are clean unto-you. But woe unto-you, Pharisees! for ye-tithe mint and rue and all-manner-of herbs, and pass-over judgment and the love of God: these ought-ye 43 to-have-done, and not to-leave-the-other-undone. Woe unto-you, Pharisees! for ye-love 44 the uppermost-seats in the synagogues, and greetings in the markets. Woe unto-you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye-are as graves which appear-not ἀδηλα, and the men that walk over them are-not-aware of them.
45 Then answered one of-the lawyers, and-said unto-him, Master, thus saying thou

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xi. 38. washed before dinner — The Pharisees were extremely punctilious in these matters—see Mk. vii. 3, 4, § 44, p. 4.

39. outside of the cup—Like the modern Pharisees, they had put outward washings in the place of inward purity and holiness of life—thus they are reproved, Mk. vii. 6—23, § 44, pp. 5—11—Nearly the same words are used Mt. xxiii. 25, § 85—see ADDENDA, p. 160, infra.

41. give alms—Is. lviii. 7, 'Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry,' &c.—Da. iv. 27, 'Break off thy sins by righteousness, and thine iniquities by shewing mercy to the poor:'

such things as ye have—2 Co. viii. 12, 'If there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not.'

42. for ye tithe, &c.—so Mt. xxiii. 23—see ADD., infra.

43. ye love the uppermost, &c.—so they are described Mt. xxiii. 6—see ADDENDA, p. 160, infra.

44. graves which appear not—Ps. v. 9, 'Their throat is an open sepulchre;'—see Mt. xxiii. 27, ADDENDA, p. 160, infra.

NOTES.

Lu. xi. 38. Had not first washed. See on Mk. vii. 2—5, § 44, p. 4.

39. Ravening, &c. Rapacity. The original word is translated 'extortion' in Mt. xxiii. 25, § 85, p. 317.

40. Fools. A term not of scorn but of reproof; for although professed doctors of the law, yet were they without discernment and understanding.—Comp. Ps. xiv. 1; Pr. xiii. 19; xiv. 9.

Did not he that, &c. God has made you such as to your bodies and souls as he intended should show forth his praise. How unthinking are you to imagine that God can be pleased with this outward purification, when all within is unholy!—Comp. Ps. li. 6.

[41. Such things as ye have. 'Some take τὰ ἐνόντα to signify "what is within the cup," or dish, i. e., its contents; q. d., "Be not anxious about the outward part [or its brightness]; but [rather] attend to its contents, and do but give alms therefrom, and then food and everything else shall be pure to you." Thus ἀλλαμακόπφ will be in apposition with, and exegetical of, τὰ ἐνόντα. The above interpretation is strongly confirmed by the parallel passage of Mt. xxiii. 26, which shows that τὰ ἐνόντα refers to what is within the cup.—Comp. Is. lviii. 7; Da. iv. 27; supra, xii. 33.'—Bloomf.]

All things are clean. All things with which God in his good providence hath filled your cup and platter, and of which you deal out their portion to the poor.

42. Ye tithe mint and rue. 'Pay tithe of.' These were almost valueless; but by apparent attention to little things, they, the scribes and Pharisees, deceived those over whose consciences they ruled in religious matters.—See ch. xviii. 12, § 73, p. 217, and Mt. xxiii. 23, § 85, p. 317.

Judgment and the love of God. [Man, as to his inner life, is an intelligent being, whose understanding should be enlightened by the word of God, that so he may have an accurate judgment of what is true and good. But man has not only the power of discernment, he has also affections, the right direction and regulating of which is morality; and the great principle of all true morality is 'THE LOVE OF GOD.']

These two, judgment and the love of God, are what the very first commandment of the decalogue demands. It calls upon us to discern or exercise judgment with regard to what the true God is, as distinguished from every false object of worship. And it also requires that we prize this God as our God; cleaving unto him as the one object of our trust, and yielding ourselves up unto his will in all holy obedience, serving him because we love him as the Lord our Redeemer.

The highest exercise of our soul and spirit, in 'judgment and the love of God,' is the tribute we owe to the Lord our Redeemer. How contemptible in comparison 'the tithe of mint and rue, and all manner of herbs.' The meanest matters may indeed become valuable as proceeding from a loving and understanding heart; but without this, the greatest gifts, the most valuable sacrifices, are of comparatively no account, and are in very many cases offensive rather than pleasing to God; much less may the least things of the ceremonial law be expected to compensate for the lack of the greatest things of the moral law, 'JUDGMENT AND THE LOVE OF GOD.'

43. Woe unto you. That is, miserable are you. In the same manner is the phrase to be understood throughout the chapter.

Ye love the uppermost seats. Every one affected to be a ruler in the synagogue.

And greetings in the markets. To be bowed down to. Respectful salutations in the markets.—See on Mt. xxiii. 6, 7, § 85, p. 314.

44. Ye are as graves which appear not, &c. Ye so entirely hide the corruption of your hearts, that men no more perceive it than they do the 'dead men's bones and uncleanness' which are within the hidden graves, over which they walk, without being aware of their proximity to defilement.—Comp. Nu. xix. 11—9, and see on Mt. xxiii. 27, § 85, p. 318.

45. One of the lawyers, i.e., scribes. Comp. Mt. xxii. 35, [Mk. xii. 28,] § 85, p. 304. Expounders of the law.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. xi. 39. The baptism of the body, even according to the most exact pharisaic forms, does not necessarily imply the inward grace; but is often put in place of that real sanctity which is required by the great Householder in all his guests.]

[40 ver. To deny unto God spiritual worship, and render Him merely bodily homage, is like denying that He is the Father of our spirits; like saying that He is the Maker of only our outward frame.]

41 ver. A proper expression of thankfulness to God for what he has given us, is our imparting thereof to those who have need.

42 ver. An affectation of scrupulosity in obeying the Divine commands in the letter, whilst the substance is neglected, brings woe in place of blessing; when the service is designed for the eye of man, and not performed as in the sight of him who seeth the heart.

[44 ver. Inducing men to put on a false appearance of religion, is no gain either to the church or to the world, any more than the concealment of dangerous pits along the highway would be likely to prove gainful to the traveller. It is safer for all that each should profess himself to be what he really is.]

LUKE xi. 46—54.

46 reproachest ὑβριζεις us also. And he said, Woe unto-you also, ye-lawyers! for ye-lade φορτιζετε men with-burdens grievous-to-be-borne, and ye-yourselves touch προσψαυετε
47 not the burdens with-one of-your fingers. Woe unto-you! for ye-build the sepulchres 48 of-the prophets, and your fathers killed them. Truly ye-bear-witness that ye-allow συνευδοκειτε the deeds of-your fathers: for they indeed killed them, and ye build their 49 sepulchres. Therefore also said the wisdom of God, I-will-send them prophets and
50 apostles, and some of them they-shall-slay and persecute: that the blood of-all the prophets, which was-shed from the-foundation of-the-world, may-be-required of this genera-
51 tion; from the blood of-Abel unto the blood of-Zacharias, which perished between the altar and the temple οικου: verily I-say unto-you, It-shall-be-required of this generation.
52 Woe unto-you, lawyers! for ye-have-taken-away the key of knowledge: ye-entered-not in yourselves, and them that-were-entering-in ye-hindered.
53 And as-he said these things unto them, the scribes and the Pharisees began to-urge ενεχειν him vehemently, and to-provoke αποστοματιζειν him to speak of many things:
54 laying-wait-for ενεδρευοντες him, and seeking to-catch something out-of his mouth, that they-might-accuse him.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xi. 46. ye lade men with burdens—Mt. xxiii. 4, 'For they bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders; but they themselves will not move them with one of their fingers.'—See ADDENDA, infra, p. 160.

47, 8. ye build the sepulchres—Mt. xxiii. 29, 'Woe unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because ye build the tombs of the prophets, and garnish the sepulchres of the righteous,'—and ADDENDA, p. 161, infra.

49. the wisdom of God—1 Co. ii. 7, 8, 'But we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom, which God ordained before the world unto our glory: which none of the princes of this world knew: for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.'

49—51. Mt. xxiii. 34, 'Wherefore, behold, I send unto you prophets, and wise men, and scribes: and some of them ye shall kill and crucify; and some of them shall ye scourge in your synagogues, and persecute them from city to city:'—and ADDENDA, infra.

52. key of knowledge—see NOTE.

NOTES.

[Lu. xi. 46. Thou reproachest us. Our Lord takes up this lawyer's view of the case, and proceeds, ver. 46—52, to bring against the lawyers in general the very same charges which, in Mt. xxiii. 4, p. 160, infra, we find him bringing against the scribes and Pharisees.]

46. Ye lade men with burdens, &c. Scrupulous observances of the traditions of the elders, are not in themselves pleasing to God, being done only in will worship.

[48. Truly ye bear witness, &c. The exact rendering of the original would be, 'Ye bear witness to, and allow the deeds of your fathers.' It was the same tendency to worship the creature, to glory in the work of their own hands, to do despite to the Spirit of God, which led their fathers into idolatry, and killing the prophets; and themselves into adorning the tombs of the prophets, and the rejecting of Him to whom all the prophets pointed.]

[49. The wisdom of God. ἡ σοφία τοῦ Θεοῦ. Several ancient commentators, and some modern ones, take this to mean the Λόγος, or Son of God, i. e., Christ himself, who is called, 1 Co. i. 24, 'the Wisdom of God,' q. d., 'the Divine wisdom as manifested in me.' And indeed this interpretation is confirmed by the ἐγὼ of Matthew in the parallel passage, ch. xxiii. 34, § 85.]

Apostles. Messengers who should equal the ancient prophets in all the gifts and graces of the Holy Spirit.

50. Required of this generation. Bringing upon your heads not only the punishment due to your own bloodguiltiness, but also the full weight of God's long-suspended vengeance for the deeds of your fathers in every age. This was most fearfully fulfilled at the destruction of Jerusalem about forty years after.

51. The blood of Abel. The crime of Cain, who, through envy, shed the blood of his brother, was committed by the men of that generation, who hated Jesus, for a like reason as Cain hated Abel. And the blood of Christ, although it speaketh better things than that of Abel, in behalf of the repentant and believing; yet upon the nation generally the imprecation, 'His blood be on us and on our children,' has brought a punishment like to that of Cain. A mark was set upon him, and he was driven out from the presence of the Lord, to be a fugitive and a vagabond on the earth. Such has been the case of the Jews from that generation downwards.

The blood of Zacharias. See on Mt. xxiii. 35, § 85, p. 320.

Between the altar and the temple. That is, between the sanctuary and the altar of burnt offerings.

[52. The key of knowledge. By your traditions you have taken away the true method of interpreting the prophecies. Ye have given a wrong meaning to those scriptures which speak of the Messiah, his sufferings, and his glory; and the people are thereby kept ignorant of the law and the prophets which I am come to fulfil. Those who were made doctors of the law had a key given to them at their ordination, or appointment, which they afterwards wore as a badge of their office. Thus emblematically did they profess to open the true meaning of the law and the prophets. Jesus, having promised to Peter the keys of the kingdom of heaven, revealed to him the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow; the knowledge of which had been entirely taken away by the lawyers.—See on Mt. xvi. 19—27, § 50, pp. 39—43.]

53, 4. Began to urge him vehemently. They began to be furious; they felt completely exposed.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. xi. 46. We may not make religion grievous to others; nor does our knowledge of the law free us from an obligation to fulfil its requirements.

[49—51 ver. The silencing of the messengers of God, whereby the wicked hope to rid themselves of trouble, is the very way to consummate their own misery. They have then removed the only remaining barriers against the judgments which, by the sins of their fathers, may for ages have been accumulating. Where signal judgment is about to be executed, God frequently vouchsafes as signal warning. So it was with the most ancient cities among the heathen; such as Nineveh and Babylon; and so it was with Jerusalem.]

[52 ver. Let us beware of proving niggardly with regard to religious knowledge. Let us be eager to receive for ourselves, and desirous that others should freely partake thereof; whether supplied through us, or by any other means that God may be pleased to appoint. We must not allow the mere verbalism of the lawyers, any more than the formalism of the Pharisees, to supplant the testimony of Jesus, which is the Spirit of prophecy; and whereby alone the scriptures can be truly and fully opened up.]

53, 4. Those who laid snares for Jesus were caught in their own trap, and had the truth more brought home to them than otherwise was likely to be. But lamentable is the case of those who, like the Pharisees and lawyers, are irritated into farther evil, in place of being reformed by honest reproof.

Jesus warned against evil, that his enemies might avoid it; his enemies watched for evil that they might accuse him. They acted with crafty malice under the appearance of kindness and hospitality; whilst he, with the utmost candour, and with real kindness, unmasked to them their true character and state as in the sight of God.

RELIGIOUS TEACHERS SHOULD NOT MAKE THEIR APPEARANCE IN PUBLIC, AS SEEKING TO DRAW ATTENTION TO THEMSELVES, BUT AS DIRECTING IT TO GOD.

ADDENDA.

THE PARALLELISM OF LUKE xi. 1—13, p. 151, and MATT. vi. 7—13; vii. 7—11, § 19, pp. 131, ..8.

	LUKE xi.	MATT. vi.
1	And it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.	But when ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking. Be not ye therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him.	7 8
2	And he said unto them, When ye pray, say, Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth.	After this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven.	9 10
3	Give us day by day our daily bread.	Give us this day our daily bread.	11
4	And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us.	And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.	12
	And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil.	And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen.	13
5—8	And he said unto them, Which of you shall have a friend, &c. &c.
9	And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.	Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you:	vii. 7
10	For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.	For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.	8
11	If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is a father, will he give him a stone? or if he ask a fish, will he for a fish give him a serpent?	Or what man is there of you, whom if his son ask bread, will he give him a stone? Or if he ask a fish, will he give him a serpent?	9 10
12	Or if he shall ask an egg, will he offer him a scorpion?
13	If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children; how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?	If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children. how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?	11

THE PARALLELISM OF LUKE xi. 14—26, 29—32, pp. 153, ..4, and MATT. xii. 22—30, 38—45, § 31, p. 234.

	LUKE xi.	MATT. xii.
14	And he was casting out a devil, and it was dumb. And it came to pass, when the devil was gone out, the dumb spake; and the people wondered.	Then was brought unto him one possessed with a devil, blind, and dumb: and he healed him, insomuch that the blind and dumb both spake and saw.	22
		And all the people were amazed, and said, Is not this the Son of David?	23
15	But some of them said, He casteth out devils through Beelzebub the chief of the devils.	But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, This fellow doth not cast out devils, but by Beelzebub the prince of the devils.	24
16	And others, tempting him, sought of him a sign from heaven.	☞ See ver. 38, next page.
17	But he, knowing their thoughts, said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and a house divided against a house falleth.	And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand:	25
18	If Satan also be divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? because ye say that I cast out devils through Beelzebub.	and if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand?	26
19	And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your sons cast them out? therefore shall they be your judges.	And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out? therefore they shall be your judges.	27
20	But if I with the finger of God cast out devils, no doubt the kingdom of God is come upon you.	But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you.	28
21	When a strong man armed keepeth his palace, his goods are in peace:
22	But when a stronger than he shall come upon him, and overcome him, he taketh from him all his armour wherein he trusted, and divideth his spoils.	Or else how can one enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man? and then he will spoil his house.	29
23	He that is not with me is against me: and he that gathereth not with me scattereth.	He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad.	30

CAST NOT AWAY THEREFORE YOUR CONFIDENCE, WHICH HATH GREAT RECOMPENCE OF REWARD.—Heb. x. 35.

YE HAVE NEED OF PATIENCE, THAT, AFTER YE HAVE DONE THE WILL OF GOD, YE MIGHT RECEIVE THE PROMISE.—Heb. x. 36.

Luke xi.

☞ Matt. xii. 31—7, which is a denunciation of the sin against the Holy Ghost, is entirely omitted by Luke.—See p. 162, second col. third par.

24 When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man,
he walketh through dry places, seeking rest;
and finding none, he saith,
I will return unto my house
whence I came out.
25 And when he cometh,
he findeth it swept and garnished.
26 Then goeth he, and taketh to him
seven other spirits more wicked than himself;
and they enter in, and dwell there:
and the last state of that man is worse than the first.

27 And it came to pass, as he spake these things, a certain woman of the company lifted up her voice,
and said unto him,
Blessed is the womb that bare thee,
and the paps which thou hast sucked.
28 But he said,
Yea rather, blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it.

29 And when the people were gathered thick together,
he began to say,
This is an evil generation:
they seek a sign;
and there shall no sign be given it,
but the sign of Jonas the prophet.
30 For as Jonas was a sign unto the Ninevites, so shall also the Son of man be to this generation.
31 The queen of the south shall rise up in the judgment
with the men of this generation, and condemn them:
for she came from the utmost parts of the earth
to hear the wisdom of Solomon;
and, behold, a greater than Solomon is here.
32 The men of Nineve shall rise up in the judgment with this generation,
and shall condemn it:
for they repented at the preaching of Jonas;
and, behold, a greater than Jonas is here.

Matt. xii.

Wherefore I say unto you, 31
All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men:
but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost
shall not be forgiven unto men.
And whosoever speaketh a word against the 32
Son of man,
it shall be forgiven him:
but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost,
it shall not be forgiven him,
neither in this world, neither in the world to come.
Either make the tree good, and his fruit good; 33 or else make the tree corrupt, and his fruit corrupt:
for the tree is known by his fruit.
O generation of vipers, 34
how can ye, being evil, speak good things?
for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.
A good man out of the good treasure of the heart 35
bringeth forth good things:
and an evil man out of the evil treasure bringeth forth evil things.
But I say unto you, 36
That every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment.
For by thy words thou shalt be justified, 37
and by thy words thou shalt be condemned.
When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, 43
he walketh through dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none. Then he saith, 44
I will return into my house from whence I came out;
and when he is come,
he findeth it empty, swept, and garnished.
Then goeth he, and taketh with himself 45
seven other spirits more wicked than himself,
and they enter in and dwell there:
and the last state of that man is worse than the first.
Even so shall it be also unto this wicked generation.*

☞ On Lu. xi. 27, 8, see p. 162, 2*nd col.* 'VI. The circumstances,' &c.

Then certain of the scribes and of the Pharisees 38 answered, saying, Master, we would see a sign from thee. †

But he answered and said unto them, 39
An evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign;
and there shall no sign be given to it,
but the sign of the prophet Jonas:
for as Jonas was three days and three nights 40
in the whale's belly;
so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth.
The queen of the south shall rise up 42
in the judgment
with this generation,
and shall condemn it:
for she came from the uttermost parts of the earth
to hear the wisdom of Solomon;
and, behold, a greater than Solomon is here.
The men of Nineveh shall rise in judgment 41
with this generation,
and shall condemn it:
because they repented at the preaching of Jonas;
and, behold, a greater than Jonas is here.

* St. Matthew applies this to the Jews of our Saviour's time in particular.
'St. Peter, by quoting the same declaration, 2 Eph. ii. 20, has shewn that it may refer to the case of those who, having once believed in Christianity, have subsequently apostatised from it; and, by parity of consequences, to the case of such as, having been once convinced, or had the means of conviction in their power, have afterwards renounced their conviction, or have never used these means aright. This was the case of the Jews in our Saviour's time. The spirit of infidelity, which he had hitherto been combatting, and still should continue to combat, by every means of proof to be expected from him, was so far ousted and dispossessed. But if the national incredulity should remain unsubdued to the last, when those means of proof would cease to be furnished, the spirit, which was kept in check only by their presence, would be free to return with sevenfold vigour; would take sevenfold as firm possession of the national mind; and consequently become entitled to sevenfold as great a punishment as before.'—Gresswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxxiii. p. 605.

† 'The true name of the sign, which the Jews demanded from our Saviour, was the sign from heaven (see Lu. xi. 16. p. 158), not a sign of deliverance as such; and tradition might have taught them to expect that something of this kind would precede the advent of the Messiah. For the Divine legation of Moses had been specially attested by signs; and they might expect the same fact to hold good of the Christ. Moreover our Saviour has taught us that some sign, which he calls the sign of the Son of Man, shall precede the second

PARALLELISM OF LUKE xi. 33—..6, p. 155, and MATT. v. 15; vi. 22, .3, § 19, pp. 133, ..4

	LUKE xi.	MATT. v.
33	No man, when he hath lighted a candle, putteth it in a secret place, neither under a bushel, but on a candlestick, that they which come in may see the light.	Neither do men light a candle, and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house.	15
34	The light of the body is the eye: therefore when thine eye is single, thy whole body also is full of light; but when thine eye is evil, thy body also is full of darkness.	The light of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light. But if thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness.	vi. 22 / 23
35	Take heed therefore that the light which is in thee be not darkness.	If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!
36	If thy whole body therefore be full of light, having no part dark, the whole shall be full of light, as when the bright shining of a candle doth give thee light.	☞ Luke xi. 33—6, is omitted in Matt. xii.

PARALLELISM OF LUKE xi. 37—54, pp. 155—..7, and MATT. xxiii. 4, 6, 7, 13, 23—36, § 85, p. 313.

	LUKE xi.	MATT. xxiii.
37	And as he spake, a certain Pharisee besought him to dine with him: and he went in, and sat down to meat.
38	And when the Pharisee saw it, he marvelled that he had not first washed before dinner.
39	And the Lord said unto him, Now do ye Pharisees make clean the outside of the cup and the platter; but your inward part is full of ravening and wickedness.	Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye make clean the outside of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess.	25
40	Ye fools, did not he that made that which is without make that which is within also?	Thou blind Pharisee, cleanse first that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside of them may be clean also.	26
41	But rather give alms of such things as ye have; and, behold, all things are clean unto you.
42	But woe unto you, Pharisees! for ye tithe mint and rue and all manner of herbs, and pass over judgment and the love of God: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.	Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy, and faith: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.	23
43	Woe unto you, Pharisees! for ye love the uppermost seats in the synagogues, and greetings in the markets.	Ye blind guides, which strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel. And love the uppermost rooms at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues, and greetings in the markets, &c.	24 / 6 / 7
44	Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are as graves which appear not, and the men that walk over them are not aware of them.	Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness. Even so ye also outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity.	27 / 28
45	Then answered one of the lawyers, and said unto him, Master, thus saying thou reproachest us also.
46	And he said, Woe unto you also, ye lawyers! for ye lade men with burdens grievous to be borne, and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers.	For they bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders; but they themselves will not move them with one of their fingers.	4 appearance of the Christ at least; and that sign is to appear in the heavens (see Mt. xxiv. 30, § 86, p. 338). Nor can it be denied, that many mysterious truths relating to the second coming of the Messiah, and which may yet be fully verified of that, were already not obscurely understood by the Jews, and were so implicitly referred to the first, that their not being realized in respect to that was, probably, one of the chief reasons of the rejection of our Lord himself.'—Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxviii. p. 582.

'Though we knew no more of the nature of the sign in question than is implied in the terms of the demand, yet thus much we might reasonably presume concerning it, it must have been something extraordinary, totally different from what had yet occurred, or might still be expected to occur, in the way of proof, it must have been something decisive, something which would leave no doubt that he, by whom it had been given, was the Messiah, and such a Messiah as they who required the sign expected. Thus much, I say, we might justly conclude concerning this particular sign, from their importunity who request it, and from our Saviour's refusal, who steadily and pointedly declines it.

'It was some sign, therefore, which, as the true Messiah, and consistently with his own character, he could not consent to give; it was some sign which, to prove himself the true Messiah, it was not necessary he should give. And whatever other reasons for dispensing with this extraordinary medium of proof there might be besides, this also, we may presume, would be one; viz., that he had other proofs both worthy of his character to produce, and adequate to the end, for which they might be produced; among which proofs, however numerous or various they might be, his miracles at least could not fail to constitute an integral and an important class.'—Ibid. p. 596.

Luke xi.	Matt. xxiii.
47 Woe unto you! for ye build the sepulchres of the prophets, and your fathers killed them.	Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! 29 because ye build the tombs of the prophets, and garnish the sepulchres of the righteous, and say, If we had been in the days of our fathers, 30 we would not have been partakers with them in the blood of the prophets.
48 Truly ye bear witness that ye allow the deeds of your fathers: for they indeed killed them, and ye build their sepulchres.	Wherefore ye be witnesses unto yourselves, 31 that ye are the children of them which killed the prophets.
	Fill ye up then the measure of your fathers. 32
	Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, 33 how can ye escape the damnation of hell?
49 Therefore also said the wisdom of God, I will send them prophets and apostles, and some of them they shall slay and persecute:	Wherefore, behold, I send unto you 34 prophets, and wise men, and scribes: and some of them ye shall kill and crucify; and some of them shall ye scourge in your synagogues, and persecute them from city to city:
50 That the blood of all the prophets, which was shed from the foundation of the world, may be required of this generation;	That upon you may come all the righteous blood 35 shed upon the earth,
51 from the blood of Abel unto the blood of Zacharias, which perished between the altar and the temple: verily I say unto you, It shall be required of this generation.	from the blood of righteous Abel unto the blood of Zacharias son of Barachias, whom ye slew between the temple and the altar. Verily I say unto you, 36 All these things shall come upon this generation.
52 Woe unto you, lawyers! for ye have taken away the key of knowledge: ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye hindered.	But woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! 13 for ye shut up the kingdom of heaven against men: for ye neither go in yourselves, neither suffer ye them that are entering to go in.
53 And as he said these things unto them, the scribes and the Pharisees began to urge him vehemently, and to provoke him to speak of many things:
54 laying wait for him, and seeking to catch something out of his mouth, that they might accuse him.

ON THE TWO DISPOSSESSIONS, AND THE BLASPHEMY AGAINST THE HOLY GHOST OR THE COMPARISON OF MATT. xii. 22—45, WITH LUKE xi. 14—26.—See Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxxiii. pp. 580—614.

'Upon a minute inspection of either narrative, there appears to be scarcely a single individuating, and at the same time identical mark of agreement between them. The time—the place—the subjects of the miracle—the circumstances which preceded and drew forth the discourse—the parties addressed—the arrangement, substance, and particulars, of the discourse itself—the circumstances which followed upon it; all are more or less discriminated asunder in each; as may thus be shewn, by considering these things in their order.

'I. The time of the dispossession in St. Matthew, comp. with St. Mark, was probably the time of the morning's meal, which among the Jews .... was ἀριστον, or the first hour of the day. But the time in St. Luke was either the time, or only just before the time, of the δειπνον, or midday's repast; which on every day but the sabbath, when it was one hour later, was taken at the fifth hour of the morning.

'II. The place, in St. Matthew, was some private house in Capernaum; in St. Luke, it was the open air, and while Jesus at first was comparatively alone, but whither the people afterwards flocked round about him.

'III. The subjects of the miracle. In St. Matthew, it was a demoniac, blind and dumb; in St. Luke, it was a demoniac, simply dumb. There is no other instance of a blind demoniac in the gospels.

'IV. The cause which produced the discourse, and the parties concerned in the former and addressed by the latter. As the discourse, in each of the evangelists, is alike divided into two general heads, and alike directed to two special purposes, so have they each assigned to these heads a proper but a different origin. The cause of the first was the charge affecting the miracle; the cause of the second was the demand of the sign. But St. Matthew affirms that the charge was made at a separate time from the demand; St. Luke, that they were both made together: St. Matthew, that the demand was preferred after our Saviour had begun to refute, but before he had made an end of refuting the charge; St. Luke, that both had taken place before he began to refute or to answer either: St. Matthew, that the authors of the charge, and those who demanded the sign, were the same, viz., the scribes and the Pharisees; St. Luke, that the authors of each respectively were distinct, and neither of them scribes or Pharisees. Some of the multitude advanced the charge, and others of the multitude demanded the sign.

'V. The order, substance, and particulars, of the discourse in each; and first, the order. As St. Matthew represents the demand to be interposed while our Saviour was refuting the charge, so he describes the answer, which declines the demand, to be also interposed before the conclusion of the reply to the charge; as he makes the scribes and the Pharisees interrupt Jesus to put the demand, so he makes him stop with his previous reply to the charge, in order to answer the demand. For it is evident that, from xii. 38—42, everything in his account relates to the sign; and from xii. 43—5, everything relates to the charge: and still more evident it is that the whole of xii. 38—42, comes between xii. 22—37, and xii. 43. And this arrangement, if it follows the order of the event, would still be consistent and natural; but not so, if it has purposely inverted it.

'Again; as St. Luke represents the charge, which produced one part of our Lord's discourse, and the demand, which occasioned the other, both to have been preferred at once, so he represents the answer to the one as made and concluded, before the answer to the other was begun..... And should any one question whether the answer to the charge, as represented by St. Luke, was actually over when the reply to the demand was begun, there are two facts in his narrative, one at the end of the former, and the other at the end of the latter, either of which is sufficient to prove it. The first is the exclamation of the woman, ver. 27, 8, expressly directed to the wisdom and strength of the reply to the charge, and consequently implying that that was over; the second is the gathering of the people together, ver. 29, about the spot where our Lord was, which was either the moving cause, or at least the circumstance of situation, from which, or under which, he proceeded to answer the demand.

'Secondly, the substance. The most cursory inspection of the two discourses shews that, while they agree in some things, they differ in others; a more particular examination proves that this agreement is far from entire or absolute, and this disagreement far from partial or unsignificant. There is much in St. Matthew not even hinted at in St. Luke, and much in St. Luke altogether missing in St. Matthew. . . . .

EVIL SHALL SLAY THE WICKED: AND THEY THAT HATE THE RIGHTEOUS SHALL BE DESOLATE.—Psalm xxxiv. 21.

THE RIGHTEOUS IS DELIVERED OUT OF TROUBLE, AND THE WICKED COMETH IN HIS STEAD.—Proverbs xi. 8.

'The omission in St. Matthew, as collected from what is present over and above in St. Luke, xi. 33—6, relates altogether to the demand of a sign; the omission in St. Luke, as similarly ascertained from St. Matthew, xii. 31—7, relates entirely to the question of the charge. . . . .

'If we compare St. Mark's account of this transaction with St. Matthew's,* the agreement between which, as far as they go together, is unquestionable, we shall see that, although St. Matthew records only one, there were in reality two insinuations urged upon this occasion; the one, ὅτι Βεελζεβοὺλ ἔχει ('he hath Beelzebul,' Mk. iii. 22), explained and confirmed by what follows, ὅτι Λέγουν πνεῦμα ἀκάθαρτον ἔχει ('because they said, He hath an unclean spirit,' ver. 30); which clearly implies that, by saying Christ had Beelzebul, they meant to say Christ had an unclean spirit; the other, ἐν τῷ ἄρχοντι τῶν δαιμονίων ἐκβάλλει τὰ δαιμόνια ('by the prince of the devils casteth he out devils,' ver. 22). The reality of both these insinuations, therefore, is placed beyond a question; and their distinct tendency is not less indubitable. The former was a personal charge, levelled against the Spirit by whom our Saviour was inspired; the latter was a personal charge, levelled against himself, and affecting the reality of his character as a prophet. The former would have made him a demoniac, or worse than a demoniac, because inspired by the Devil; but not an impostor or a deceiver; the latter would have made him au impostor or a deceiver, but not a demoniac, because only in league with, not possessed, or actuated, by the devil. . . . .

'But with respect to the comparative heinousness, or veniality of both, there was that in the nature of the object, in the specific direction of each, in the party respectively affected by the charge, which made a very great differences between them. The one was levelled against God, the other against man; the one personally affected the Holy Ghost, the other only our Saviour, as a mere man. The one was blasphemy, that is, slander, of the Spirit; the other was blasphemy, or slander, of the Son of man. Our Saviour, therefore, might, if he pleased, not impute the latter; but he could not, on any principle, not impute the former. . . . .

'Hence, then, the substance of the whole omission in St. Luke, and of the whole supplement in St. Matthew; who, though he specifically records the second of these insinuations only, yet gives us conjointly the answer to both; just as St. Mark, who records them both, supplies in particular the answer only to one, or touches but very cursorily on that to the other. Hence, also, the denunciation of the greater atrocity of the blasphemy levelled against the Spirit, and personally impugning the Spirit, than of the blasphemy levelled against the Son of man, and personally affecting our Saviour. . . .

'If we compare with this the account of the same things in St. Luke, we shall perceive that he records so much of the same charge as personally affected our Saviour, but not that part of it which personally affected the Holy Ghost; and he omits, in his account of the reply, all the personal matter in respect to both. If the former charge was the only charge made on the occasion in question, he has done no more than was to be expected; for if the same personal charge against our Saviour was not now, as it had been before, accompanied by the same personal charge against the Holy Ghost, as before, he would have no need now, as he had then, to notice the charge against the Spirit with the reply to the charge against himself. . . . .

'I have been the more diffuse in this exposition, with a view to shew how great is the difference in our Saviour's manner of treating the inquirers concerned in the demand of a sign in St. Luke, and those who were concerned in the same demand in St. Matthew; and we have seen there was a similar difference in the manner of dealing with the authors of the charge in each. With the one he dealt in the language of just indignation and of stern rebuke; with the other, in the tone of grave displeasure, and serious but affectionate admonition. What was personal in the one becomes general in the other; and where he thundered and threatened before, he reasons, he expostulates now. . . . . He represents the case of his hearers as sufficiently dangerous to create alarm, yet not so far gone as to justify despair. Before, however, in the personal part of St. Matthew's account,—the part omitted by St. Luke,—if any one spirit predominated in the whole, and actuated the whole, it was a feeling of utter abhorrence at the atrociousness of the crime; a feeling of utter reprobation of the malignity of its motive; a feeling of utter despair of the reformation of its authors. . . . .†

'The authors of the offence were some of the Pharisees in St. Matthew, and some of the people in St. Luke. The scribes and Pharisees acted deliberately, and with malice prepense; the people only as they had been taught by them. . . . .

'VI. The circumstances which followed on the discourse in each. St. Luke relates one fact, the exclamation of the woman, which St. Matthew omits; and St. Matthew relates another, in which he is supported by St. Mark, the visit of our Lord's relations, which St. Luke omits. But St. Luke records his fact between the answer to the charge and that to the demand: St. Matthew records his after both; and from the arrangement of these answers in St. Matthew, no fact, like that in St. Luke, could possibly have intervened in his account; nor, from their arrangement in St. Luke, and from the other circumstances specified by him, could any such fact as that in St. Matthew have followed upon his account. That he was not ignorant of the fact appears from this; viz., that he relates a similar fact, ch. viii. 19, (§ 33,) which happened on the same day with St. Matthew's; and yet was not the same with it, but a second attempt, as we saw elsewhere, on the part of our Lord's relations, to accomplish on the evening what they had not been able to effect in the morning.

'There are other objections which might still be urged in disproof of the hypothesis that any part of this transaction in St. Luke can be the same with any part of the transaction in St. Matthew; which yet, for brevity's sake, I shall state only in general.

'For instance, if the accounts are the same, then Mt. xii. 22, to the end of the chapter, was comprehended between some hour in the morning and the time of noon, when, according to St. Luke, after the previous discourse the Pharisee invited our Lord to dine. At the end of this dinner, which, as it was, took up more time than usual, Jesus must have delivered the whole of Luke xii., a very long chapter, abounding in interruptions, and a frequent change of topics. When this discourse, too, was over, there would still be some interval necessary for Luke xiii. 1—9, or the account relating to the Galilæans, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices; and for the reflections which it drew from our Lord.

'All this must have been interposed between Mt. xii. 50, and xiii. 1, at which point of time he is first made to proceed to the lake; and, we may ask, from whence? not certainly from his own house, or that where he was at Mt. xii. 22, when the demoniac was dispossessed; for, according to St. Luke xi. 37, he must have quitted that house when he went to the Pharisee's to dine; and yet that is the house from which Mt. xiii. 1, evidently supposes him to proceed to the lake, and whither Mt. xiii. 36, makes him return from the lake. On the shore of the lake he must have delivered a number of parables, sufficient to occupy a day's teaching; and then have returned to Capernaum, and shut himself up with his disciples, and interpreted his parables to them in private, as well as conversed with them on other topics; all before the time of evening or sunset, when St. Mark shews that he came out of the house again, ch. iv. 35, (§ 34,) and gave commandment to cross the lake. It is impossible that so many distinct events should have followed each other and in this order, all within so disproportionate a time.'—See 'On the Sin against the Holy Ghost,' sb. pp. 609—14; and 'Treas. Harm.,' Vol. I. § 31, p. 241, ADDENDA.

* See 'Treas. Harm.,' Vol. I. § xxxi. p. 235.

† For a consideration of the allegory of 'the unclean Spirit,' Lu. xi. 24—6, and Matt. xii. 43—5, and of the remainder of the two discourses, see Greswell, Vol. II. Diss. xxxiii. pp. 603—..7.

SECTION 63.—(G. 32.)—[Lesson 60.]—JESUS ADDRESSES A DISCOURSE TO HIS DISCIPLES, AND TO THE PEOPLE, ON VARIOUS TOPICS; IN THE COURSE OF WHICH HE DELIVERS THREE PARABLES.—Luke xii.—[On the notices of time supplied by Luke xii., see Greswell, Vol. III. pp. 1—25.]

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Lu. xii. 1.* When the greatest publicity attended the teaching of Jesus, the people being so crowded that they trode one upon another, he delivered to his disciples a discourse, containing much he had before taught them; and, first of all, warning them to avoid the leaven of the Pharisees, that hypocrisy, on account of which he had just before reproached them.—Comp. Mt. xvi. 12, ADDENDA, p. 171, infra, 'Comparison of Lu. xii.' &c.

—— 2, 3. Jesus' disciples are to have no secrets among themselves, that they need fear being known by all the world.—Comp. Mt. x. 26, .7, ADDENDA, p. 171, infra.

—— 4, 5. Are not to fear men, but God, as Mt. x. 28.

—— 6, 7. Are exhorted to confide in the omniscient care of God, as Mt. x. 29—31.

—— 8, 9. As they confess or deny their Lord before men, they will be confessed or denied before the angels of God.—Comp. Mt. x. 32, .3.

—— 10. Speaking against the Son of man may be forgiven; but not blasphemy against the Holy Ghost, so Mt. xii. 32.

—— 11, .2. When brought before human tribunals for confessing the truth, they are not to be anxious, but to leave their defence to the Holy Ghost.—Comp. Mt. x. 19, 20. § 39, p. 299.

—— 13. One of the company desires Jesus to induce his brother to divide the inheritance with him.

—— 14. Jesus refuses to interfere in such matters.

—— 15—21. Takes occasion to warn the people against covetousness; and, in illustration, delivers the parable of the rich man, who died when planning the enlargement of his storehouses.

—— 22—31. Jesus directs his disciples to avoid worldly anxiety; and shews them, from various considerations, the reasonableness of trust in God, whilst seeking first the advancement of his kingdom.

*Jesus addresses his disciples, vers. 1—14.—The people, vers. 15—21.—Again his disciples, vers. 22—53.—Again the people, vers. 54—9.

Lu. xii. 32. It is their Father's good pleasure to give them the kingdom.

—— 33, .4. The disciples are to make use of what they have for the good of others, and so lay up treasure in heaven, where it cannot be lost.

—— 35—.8. To be as men waiting for the return of their Lord.

—— 39, 40. To watch against the evil of which they are forewarned, as would the good man of the house whose watch they are keeping.—Comp. Mt. xxiv. 42—.4, § 86, p. 342.

—— 41—.4. Peter desires to know for whom the parable was designed, giving Jesus occasion to speak of the faithful and wise steward, whom his lord has appointed to give to his household their portions of food in due season.

—— 45, .6. Jesus describes the case of a servant who, in a responsible situation like that given to our nation, may be found acting an evil and unfaithful part.—Comp. Mt. xxiv. 48—51.

—— 47, .8. Knowledge of duty increases the culpability of the transgressor; and enlargement of trust brings with it greater responsibility.

—— 49, 50. Jesus is come to send fire on the earth; and has no greater wish than that it be kindled. Has a baptism to be baptized with, until which he is straitened.

—— 51—.3. Anticipates the divisions which accompany the circulation of the scriptures, and the baptism of the Spirit.—Comp. Mt. x. 34—.6, § 39, p. 301.

—— 54—.7. Reproaches the people for being not equally intelligent respecting the signs of their time, as with regard to the face of the sky.

—— 58, .9. Intimates the importance of their time, as being that in which they must seek reconciliation, or be delivered to the judge, for the law to take its course; as it has done, from that generation to the present, upon that people who knew not the time of their visitation.—Comp. Mt. v. 25, .6; see ADDENDA, p. 172.

No. 63. Luke xii. 1—59. On the last circuit of Galilee.

1 In the-mean-time Ἐν ὅις, when-there-were-gathered-together επισυναχθεισων an-innumerable-multitude των μυριαδων of people, insomuch-that they-trode one-upon-another, he-began to-say unto his disciples first-of-all, Beware ye of the leaven of-the Pharisees, 2 which is hypocrisy. For there-is nothing covered, that shall-not-be-revealed; neither 3 hid, that shall-not-be-known. Therefore ανθ' ὡν whatsoever ye-have-spoken in darkness shall-be-heard in the light; and that-which ye-have-spoken in the ear in closets

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xii. 1. Beware ye of the leaven—see on Mt. xvi. 6, § 48, p. 32.

of the Pharisees—same.

hypocrisy—described immediately before, ch. xi. 39—44, § 62, p. 156.

2. nothing covered—see Mt. x. 26, § 39, p. 300—Ec. xii. 14, 'God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing,' &c.—[Mk. iv. 22,] Lu. viii. 17, § 33, p. 258. 'Nothing is secret, that shall not be made manifest; neither any thing hid, that shall not be known and come abroad.'—1 Cor. iv. 5, 'Therefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and will make manifest the counsels of the hearts: and then shall every man have praise of God.'

3. Therefore whatsoever ye have spoken—'For by thy words thou shalt be justified,' Mt. xii. 37, § 31, p. 238—that which is to be done with their words, Jesus directs to be done with his own, x. 27, § 39, p. 300—and see ADDENDA, p. 171, infra.

NOTES.

Lu. xii. 1. An innumerable multitude. των μυριαδων, 'myriads.' A myriad is 10,000.

Beware . . . . leaven of the Pharisees See on Mt. xvi. 6, § 48, p. 32.

Which is hypocrisy. Hypocrisy is like leaven, or yeast, because, 1st, it may exist without being at once detected. Leaven mixed in flour is not known until it produces its effects.—2nd. It is insinuating. Leaven will soon pervade the whole mass. So hypocrisy, if undetected and unremoved, will soon pervade all our exercises and feelings.—3rd. Yeast makes bread appear greater in quantity than it actually is, and by hypocrisy men seek to be more highly esteemed than in truth they deserve.

2. Nothing covered, &c. See on Mt. x. 26—32, § 39.

4. Be not afraid of them that kill the body. Let not the fear of man make you act as hypocrites, or conceal anything which I have commissioned you to publish.

LUKE xii. 4—15.

4 shall-be-proclaimed upon the house-tops. And I-say unto-you my friends, Be-not-
5 afraid of them that-kill the body, and after that have no more that they-can-do. But I-will-forewarn you whom ye-shall-fear: Fear him,-which after he-hath-killed hath 6 power to-cast into hell; yea, I-say unto-you, Fear him τουτον. Are-not five sparrows-7 sold for-two-farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God? But even the-very hairs of your head are-all-numbered. Fear not therefore: ye-are-of-more-value διαφερετε 8 than-many sparrows. Also I-say unto-you, Whosoever shall-confess me παν ος αν ομο- λογηση εν εμοι before men, him shall-the Son of man also-confess ομολογησει εν αυτω
9 before the angels of God: but he that-denieth me before men shall-be-denied before the 10 angels of God. And whosoever shall-speak a-word against εις the Son of man, it-shall-be-forgiven him: but unto-him that-blasphemeth against the Holy Ghost it-shall-not-11 be-forgiven. And when they-bring you unto the synagogues, and unto magistrates, and powers, take-ye-no-thought μεριμνατε how or what-thing ye-shall-answer απολο- 12 γησησθε, or what ye-shall-say: for the Holy Ghost shall-teach you in the same hour what ye-ought to-say.
13 And one of the company said unto-him, Master, speak to my brother, that-he-divide 14 the inheritance with me. And he said unto-him, Man, who made me a-judge or a-15 divider over you? And he-said unto them, Take-heed, and beware of covetousness

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xii. 4. my friends—Jno. xv. 14, 5. 'Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you. Henceforth I call you not servants; for,' &c.

Be not afraid—Mt. x. 28, § 39, p. 301, 'And fear not them,' &c.—see ADDENDA, infra, p. 171—Pr. xxix. 25, 'The fear of man bringeth a snare:'

5—9. But I will forewarn you, &c.—the same forewarning against the fear of man, and exhortation to trust in God, while boldly confessing the Saviour before men, Mt. x. 28—33, § 39, p. 301, and see ADDENDA, infra.

9. But he that denieth me—'For whosoever shall be ashamed of me,' &c.—and see on Mk. viii. 38, [Lu. ix. 26,] § 50, p. 43.

10. against the Holy Ghost—see on Mt. xii. 32, § 31.

11. And when they bring you, &c.—Mt. x. 19, § 39.

12. the Holy Ghost—Mt. x. 20, § ib. 'The Spirit of your Father'—see ADDENDA, infra.

14. who made me a judge or a divider, &c.—So far from encouraging them to seek that which belongs to others, he bids his disciples sell what they have, and give to those that need—see ver. 33, p. 166.

15. covetousness—Our prayer should be as Ps. cxix. 36, 'Incline my heart unto thy testimonies, and not to covetousness.'—The blessing to Israel is delayed because of covetousness, Is. lvii. 17, and will be amply bestowed when the Lord's people become truly liberal, lviii. . . .—The covetous shall not inherit the kingdom of God, I Co. vi. 10—Covetousness occasions an erring from the faith, 1 Ti. vi. 10—He. xiii. 5, 'Let your conversation be without covetousness; and be content with such things as ye have:'

a man's life consisteth not, &c.—This was confessed by Solomon, Ec. ii. 4—11; v. 10—.7.

NOTES.

Lu. xii. 7. The very hairs, &c. A proverbial expression, shewing God's perfect knowledge and care, especially of his own children.

Fear not therefore. Want of faith in the power and goodness of God is the source of much inquietude and fear. His wisdom cannot be surprised, his power cannot be forced, his love cannot forget itself.

10. And whosoever . . . . against the Son of man. As if he had said, Yet the denying me in some degree, may, upon true repentance, be forgiven.

[Blasphemeth against the Holy Ghost. I forbear to call it the sin against the Holy Ghost, but the 'blasphemy;' for though every blasphemy be a sin in general, yet our Saviour terms it 'the blasphemy;' and the evangelists do all agree to give it the same term; and it is nowhere in holy scripture called 'the sin against the Holy Ghost:' and yet it appears, both in Matthew and Mark, that there was just occasion offered to our Saviour to call it so, where he compares it with the sin against the Son of man, but he forbears to call it anything but 'the blasphemy.'—Hales of Eaton.—See Mt. xii. 31, NOTES, § 31, p. 236, and ADDENDA, p. 241.]

11, .2. These two verses are a continuation of that caution against the fear of man, and of that encouragement to trust in God, which are contained in verses 4—7.—See on Mt. x. 17—20, § 39, p. 298.

13. One of the company. Meaning the people at large as opposed to the disciples. 'One of the multitude.'

Divide the inheritance with me. Among the Jews the eldest brother had two shares, or twice as much as any other child, De. xxi. 17.

14. Who made me a judge? Jesus came to preach the gospel of the kingdom, and to offer himself a sacrifice for sin, and not to interfere with the magistrate's office in civil matters.

15. Beware of covetousness. Of inordinate desires to have more and more. Covetousness is an unlawful desire of the property of another. Also, a desire of gain and riches, beyond what is necessary for our wants. It is a violation of the tenth commandment, Ex. xx. 17, and is expressly called idolatry, Col. iii. 5. —Comp. also Eph. v. 3, and He. xiii. 5, supra.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. xii. 4, 5. As we must not profess to be what we are not, so neither are we to allow the fear of man to prevent us from professing what we really are.

6, 7 ver. Our heavenly Father provides food for the fowls of heaven; and surely infinite Wisdom is as likely to provide for his own children, in their obedience to his heavenly will.

[The minutest matter that concerns us is all well known to Him; and the most trivial accident does not befall us, but with a view to the true and eternal good of those who repose their confidence in the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.]

8, 9 ver. To honour the truth before men, is the way to receive honour in the court of the Highest; whereas, the seeking honour for ourselves to the dishonour of our Lord, is only a preparation for our own eternal disgrace.

[10 ver. Let us beware of opposing or making light of the true witness for Jesus, the Holy Spirit of promise.]

11, .2 ver. Let him who would truly witness for Christ against all opposition, have no trust in his own power or wisdom, but fully commit himself to the Divine guidance.

13 ver. Let us beware of a worldly spirit, so prolific of contentions among brethren.

14 ver. Christianity does not contemplate a selfish partition of wealth among the few, but a generous devotion of all to the glory of God for the benefit of the many.

15 ver. Let us be content with what God is pleased to bestow upon us, in our diligently doing his will.

MORTIFY THEREFORE YOUR MEMBERS WHICH ARE UPON THE EARTH; FORNICATION, UNCLEANNESS, INORDINATE AFFECTION, EVIL CONCUPISCENCE, AND COVETOUSNESS, WHICH IS IDOLATRY:—Col. iii. 5.

Luke xii. 16—27.

τῆς πλεονεξιας: for a-man's life consisteth not in the abundance εν τω περισσευειν of the-16 things-which-he-possesseth. And he-spake a-parable unto them, saying, The ground 17 of-a-certain rich man brought-forth-plentifully ευφορησεν: and he-thought διελογιζετο within himself, saying, What shall-I-do, because I-have no room where to-bestow my 18 fruits? And he-said, This will-I-do: I-will-pull-down my barns, and build greater;
19 and there will-I-bestow all my fruits and my goods αγαθα. And I-will-say to my soul, Soul, thou-hast much goods laid-up for many years; take-thine-ease αναπαυου, eat, 20 drink, and be-merry ευφραινου. But God said unto-him, Thou fool Αφρων, this night thy soul shall-be-required απαιτουσιν of thee: then whose shall-those-things-be, which 21 thou-hast-provided? So is he that-layeth-up-treasure for-himself, and is-not-rich toward God.

22 And he-said unto his disciples, Therefore I-say unto-you, Take-no-thought for your 23 life, what ye-shall-eat; neither for-the body, what ye-shall-put-on. The life is more 24 than-meat, and the body is more than-raiment. Consider κατανοησατε the ravens: for they-neither-sow nor reap; which neither have storehouse nor barn; and God feedeth 25 them: how-much more are-ye-better than-the fowls? And which of you with-taking-26 thought can add to his stature one cubit? If ye-then-be-not-able to do that-thing-27 which-is-least, why take-ye-thought for the rest? Consider the lilies how they-grow:
they-toil not, they-spin not; and-yet I-say unto-you, that Solomon in all his glory was-

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xii. 18. This will I do—Ja. iv. 15, 'For that ye ought to say, If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that.'

19. Soul, thou hast much goods, &c.—This, the case of one who, 'while he lived he blessed his soul:' is described, Ps. xlix. 16—20.

many years—Ja. iv. 14, 'Whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapour,' &c.—Job xiv. 1, 'Man that is born of a woman is of few days, and full of trouble.'

eat, drink, and be merry—Ec. xi. 9, 'Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth; and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart, and in the sight of thine eyes: but know thou, that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment.'—The language of those who look not for a resurrection is, 1 Co. xv. 32, 'Let us eat and drink; for to-morrow we die.'—To the rich oppressors of the poor, it is said, Ja. v. 5, 'Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts, as in a day of slaughter.'

20. this night—see the case of Belshazzar, Da. v. 30—1 Th. v. 3, 'When they shall say, Peace and safety; then sudden destruction cometh upon them,' whose shall those things be—Job xxvii. 8, 'For what is the hope of the hypocrite, though he hath gained, when God taketh away his soul?'—Ps. xxxix. 6, 'he heapeth up riches, and knoweth not who shall gather them.'—Je. xvii. 11, 'As the partridge sitteth on eggs, and hatcheth them not; so he that getteth riches, and not by right, shall leave them in the midst of his days, and at his end shall be a fool.'

21. rich toward God—ver. 33, p. 166—Pr. xix. 17, 'He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the LORD; and that which he hath given will he pay him again.'—1 Ti. vi. 17—9, 'Charge them that are rich in this world, . . . 18, that they do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate; 19, laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life.'

22. Take no thought, &c.—Ph. iv. 6, Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God.'—See on Mt. vi. 25, § 19, p. 135.

23. The life is more, &c.—see as above.

24. Consider the ravens—see on 'Behold the fowls,' Mt. vi. 26, &c.

27. Solomon—Mt. vi. 29.

NOTES.

Lu. xii. 15. A man's life, &c. The end of man's creation is to glorify God, and not to live to himself. And he cannot really enjoy life except as answering the end of his existence.

Consisteth not. Even the life of the body is not secured by the abundance of a man's worldly possessions.—See ver. 20.

17. He thought within himself. Began to be perplexed because of the increase of his goods. Riches, though ever so well acquired, produce vexation and embarrassment.

['I cannot call riches better than the baggage of virtue, for as the baggage is to an army, so is riches to virtue; it cannot be spared nor left behind, but it hindereth the march; yea, and the care of it sometimes loseth or disturbeth the victory. Of great riches there is no real use, except it be in the distribution; the rest is but conceit: so saith Solomon, "Where much is, there are many to consume it; and what hath the owner but the sight of it with his eyes?" The personal fruition in any man cannot reach to feel great riches; there is a custody of them or a power of dole and donation of them, or a fame of them, but no solid use to the owner.'—Bacon.]

18. I will pull down my barns. The word barns here properly means granaries, or places exclusively designed to store wheat, barley, &c.

20. Thou fool. To think of satisfying thy soul with earthly goods! To depend on living many years! Yea, one day!

21. So is he that layeth up treasure for himself. This is the characteristic of a covetous man.

Rich toward God. Namely, in faith, and love, and good works. 'To lay up riches with God,' is elsewhere called 'laying up treasures in heaven,' Mt. vi. 20.

22—31. See on Mt. vi. 25—33, § 19, p. 135, &c.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. xii. 16, .7. While the poor have not ceased out of the land, let no one say, 'I have no room where to bestow my fruits.' Let us not consider what we have as our own, but as given us in trust, by the great Householder, for the benefit of others.

[18—20 ver. He who is busy to the last, in fencing his possessions from the needy, is making but a poor provision for his reception into a more enduring state of existence. His every gain is a positive loss to himself.]

21 ver. Let us act as having God for our portion, in whom we possess all things.

[22, .3 ver. Let the follower of Jesus be unbiassed by a regard to even the necessaries of life. Let him ever do the will of God from the heart, so shall he find that He who gave the life, can support it; that He who made the body can provide it with the needful covering; and 'having food and raiment let us be therewith content,' 1 Ti. vi. 8.]

24 ver. God, who feeds the ravens, can surely feed his children, whom he hath redeemed with the precious blood of his own dear Son.

25, .6 ver. Without the power of God, we cannot add to our length of life, any more than to our stature.

Luke xii. 28—36.

28 not-arrayed like one of-these. If then God so clothe the grass, which-is to-day in the field, and to-morrow is-cast into-the-oven; how-much more will he clothe you, O-ye-of-29 little-faith? And seek not ye what ye-shall-eat, or what ye-shall-drink, neither be-ye-of-30 doubtful-mind μετεωρίζεσθε. For all these-things do-the nations of-the world-seek-31 after: and your Father knoweth that ye-have-need of-these-things. But-rather seek-ye the kingdom of God; and all these-things shall-be-added unto-you.
32 Fear not, little flock; for it-is-your Father's-good-pleasure to-give you the kingdom.
33 Sell that ye have, and give alms; provide yourselves bags which-wax not-old, a-treasure in the heavens that-faileth-not ανεκλειπτον, where no thief approacheth, neither 34 moth corrupteth. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.
35 Let your loins be girded-about, and your lights burning; 36, and ye yourselves like unto-men that-wait-for their lord, when he-will-return from the wedding; that

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xii. 28. the grass—Mt. vi. 30, § 19, p. 135.

29. seek not—'Take no thought,' Mt. vi. 31, § ib.

30. the nations—'The Gentiles,' Mt. vi. 32, § ib.

31. But rather seek—'But seek ye first,' Mt. vi. 33.

shall be added—to those who add to their faith virtue, &c., as exhorted, 2 Pe. i. 5—8.

32. Father's good pleasure—Jesus had said, Mt. xi. 25, 26, § 29, p. 227, 'I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes. Even so, Father: for so it seemed good in thy sight.'—And at his coming again he will say, xxv. 34, § 86, 'Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world:'

33. Sell that ye have, &c.—so to the young man who had great possessions, Mt. xix. 21, § 75, p. 225, 'If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor,' &c.—The primitive Christians acted according to this rule, Ac. ii. 45; iv. 34, 35.

bags which wax not old—not such as are described, Hag. i. 6, 'Ye have sown much, and bring in little; ye eat, but ye have not enough; ye drink, but ye are not filled with drink; ye clothe you, but there is none warm; and he that earneth wages earneth wages to put it into a bag with holes.'

a treasure—Mt. vi. 19, 20, 'Lay not up,' &c., 'but lay up,' &c., § 19, p. 134.

34. where your treasure is—see on Mt. vi. 21.

35. loins be girded—Of Messiah it is said, Is. xi. 5, 'Righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins.'—To believers it is said, Eph. vi. 14, 'Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth,' &c.—1 Pe. i. 13, 'Gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and hope to the end.'

lights burning—see the parable of the ten virgins 'which took their lamps,' &c., Mt. xxv. 1, § 86, p. 346—Ph. ii. 15, 16, 'Among whom ye shine as lights in the world; holding forth the word of life;'

NOTES.

Lu. xii. 29. Neither be ye of doubtful mind. Meaning, 'Be not anxiously fluctuating between hope and fear,' as to the supply of your daily wants.

[32. Fear not, little flock; . . . . the kingdom. The kingdoms of this world seemed very unlikely to become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ; and twelve poor fishermen on the lake of Galilee gave, to the natural eye, no great promise of sitting upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel, in the Messiah's universal kingdom. But they were not to look to natural things, but to the faithfulness and power of Him whose good pleasure it is to give them the kingdom; and also all things necessary, as reaching forward to its attainment.—See on ver. 7, p. 164.]

33. Bags which wax not old. Alluding to the danger of losing money out of a hole worn in an old purse, which was attached to the girdle. Such is frequently the gain of this world, and so are its treasures hoarded up and put into a bag with holes. The rich men of Judæa, so soon ravaged and destroyed by the Romans, particularly found it so.

34. Where your treasure is, &c. Many in the sanctuary by their conduct seem to say, 'I am here, but my heart is at home with my money.'

35—46. Here Christ addresses them in respect of diligent attention to their proper work, as he had before done as to moderation, indifference about things temporal, and trust in God for the supply of their daily wants.

35. Loins be girded, &c. Alluding to the tying up the long garments of the easterns, when travelling or doing any work requiring expedition. Hence, to gird up the loins means to be ready, be active, be diligent; be in a constant state of preparedness and watchfulness.—Comp. 2 Ki. iv. 29; ix. 1; Je. i. 17; Ac. xii. 8.

[Lights burning. This expression refers to the duty of servants when their master was away, and when he would return from a wedding. As they knew not the hour, they were to be continually ready.—Comp. Mt. xxv. Let the candle of the Lord be always found burning brightly in your hand.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. xii. 27, 28. He who so beauteously clothes the flowers of the field, which are so soon to pass away, may well be trusted with the clothing of his saints, who are to dwell with him for ever. Let us look forward to, and patiently wait for, the coming of our Lord, when we shall be clothed upon, with our house which is from heaven.]

[29 ver. Let us neither, in ways of our own devising, seek to provide for our bodily wants, nor let us be doubtful that God will provide for us as walking in the way of his commandments.]

[31 ver. Let us, in all our arrangements, consider first what is most for the glory of God; what will most forward the cause of truth, and promote in ourselves and others, righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. And we have the promise of Him who cannot lie, that all things necessary for the body shall be added unto us.]

32 ver. The Jews, who sought to secure their place and nation, in rejection of Christ, have now neither place nor nation; whereas the professed disciples of Christ, then so few, have, in even their feeble and most imperfect obedience to his commands, been given, in a manner, the dominion of the world.

[33 ver. Prudence for time is folly for eternity. Let us consider our earthly possessions only as means towards an end, and let the end we aim at be beyond the chances and changes of time. Let us loosen our hold of the world, and prepare for an enjoyment of the treasures which are eternal.]

34 ver. Let us not think that we can labour for the accumulation of worldly gains, and yet have our affections placed upon things above.

LUKE xii. 37—42.

37 when-he-cometh and knocketh, they-may-open unto-him immediately. Blessed are those servants, whom the lord when-he-cometh shall-find watching: verily I-say unto-you, that he-shall-gird-himself, and make-them-to-sit-down-to-meat, and will-38 come-forth παρελθων and-serve them. And if he-shall-come in the second watch, or 39 come in the third watch, and find them so, blessed are those servants. And this know, that if the good-man-of-the-house had-known what hour the thief would-come, he-would-40 have-watched, and not have-suffered his house to-be-broken-through. Be ye therefore ready also: for the Son of man cometh at-an hour when ye-think not.
41 Then Peter said unto-him, Lord, speakest-thou this parable unto us, or even to all? *
42 And the Lord said, Who then is that faithful and wise steward, whom his lord shall-make-ruler καταστησει over his household θεραπειας, to give them their portion-of-meat

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xii. 36. knocketh—Cant. v. 2, 'I sleep, but my heart waketh: it is the voice of my beloved that knocketh, saying, Open to me,'—Rev. iii. 20, 'Behold, I stand at the door, and knock:'

37. watching—as described, Ps. cxxiii. 2, 'Behold, as the eyes of servants look unto the hand of their masters, and as the eyes of a maiden unto the hand of her mistress; so our eyes wait upon the LORD our God, until that he have mercy upon us.'—cxxx. 6, 'My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning: I say, more than they that watch for the morning.'

sit down—'with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven,' Mt. viii. 11, § 28, p. 220.

38. And if he shall come—Mt. xxiv. 42, § 86, p. 342; xxv. 13, § ib. p. 347; Mk. xiii. 33—7, § ib. p. 341—whether we are awake, or our watch be past, and we laid to sleep—see 1 Th. iv. 15—6.

39. And this know, &c.—Mt. xxiv. 43, 4, § 86, p. 342. 'Therefore be ye also ready:' &c.—1 Th. v. 6, 'Let us not sleep, as do others;' &c.—2 Pe. iii. 12, 'Looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God,'

40. when ye think not—Mt. xxv. 13, § 86, p. 347, 'Ye know neither the day nor the hour'—Mk. xiii. 33, § ib. 'Ye know not when the time is.'

42. Who then, &c.—comp. 42—6, with the same in Mt. xxiv. 45—51, § 86, p. 343.

faithful and wise, &c.—as Joseph was to Potiphar, Ge. xxxix. 3—5.

ruler over his household—as Joseph, whose master 'knew not ought he had, save the bread which he did eat,' Ge. xxxix. 6; and who had his mistress committed to his care, during his master's absence, 7—11—'As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God,' 1 Pe. iv. 10.

Even as to temporal provision, in the primitive church, Ac. iv. 35, 'distribution was made unto every man according as he had need.'—From xii. 13, 'Distributing to the necessity of saints; given to hospitality.'—So as to spiritual provision, 1 Co. iii. 2, 'I have fed you with milk, and not with meat: for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able.'—He. v. 13, 14, 'For every one that useth milk is unskilful in the word of righteousness: for he is a babe. But strong meat belongeth to them that are of full age, even those who by reason of use have their senses exercised to discern both good and evil.'—The church fled into the wilderness, Rev. xii. 6, 'where she hath a place prepared of God, that they should feed her there a thousand two hundred and threescore days.'

NOTES.

Lu. xii. 36. See NOTES on Mt. xxv. 1—13, § 86, p. 346.

[37. Shall gird himself. Shall himself take the place of the servant. Servants who waited on the table were girded in the manner described above.—See Jno. xiii. 4, § 87, p. 366. Under this comparison our Lord represents the blessedness which, out of his infinite condescension and free grace, he will bestow upon those who, with faith and patience, shall have waited for his coming. From this verse we may gather that it was the custom of those days, as it was not long since among us, for the bridegroom, at the wedding supper, to wait as servant upon the company.]

38. Second . . or . . third watch, included all the time from nine in the evening till three in the morning; and was as if he had said, 'whether he come early or late, at midnight or at the cockcrowing.'—See on Mt. xiv. 25, § 41, p. 319.

38—46. Comp. Mt. xxiv. 42—51.—See ADDENDA, p. 172, infra.

[41. Jesus had been speaking to his disciples in the audience of the people. He seems to have been but twice interrupted, once by one of the multitude, who wanted to share his brother's inheritance, and once by Peter, when in danger of having ignorance imputed to him and his fellow-disciples, which it is likely he thought was characteristic of the multitude only.]

42. Faithful and wise steward. This parable refers to ministers, and was at once designed to instruct Christ's disciples, and to reprove the scribes and doctors.

Over his household. His family. Christian ministers are the servants of God appointed over the church, the family of Christ, 1 Th. v. 12, 13; 1 Co. iii. 5; iv. 1, 2; xii. 28.

Portion of meat. Minister to them the word of life, giving milk to babes, and strong meat for such as are of full age.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. xii. 35, 6. Let us prepare for the second coming of our blessed Lord, who hath gone to receive for himself the kingdom and to return.

[36 ver. Let us ever be ready to receive with a glad welcome, the King of Glory and his heavenly Bride; and that we may make proof of this, that we may know that we shall receive a kingdom at his appearing, let us now welcome to our hearts and homes, those who are as he was in the world.]

37 ver. Those who as faithful servants prepare for the return of their Lord to the earth, will find that his welcome of them into the house of their Father is no less cordial.

[38 ver. We are not blessed because Christ will certainly come during our watch of the night, but because during our watch we have prepared for his coming. All his faithful servants, to whatever watch they belong, will live together with him.]

[39 ver. So far as we are left in charge of the house of God, let us watch carefully against evil, as well as wait patiently for good. Let us consider, that we not only watch for our Lord's return, but that, until his return, we are to act as would the good man of the house, had he not left it with us in charge.]

40 ver. Christ, by his unexpected return to his disciples, after his death and resurrection, hath taught us to be ever ready for his second and glorious appearing.

[It may be that Peter was not conscious how little he as yet did know about the time of the Lord's appearing, and of the necessary preparedness to meet him. Let us from his case learn to suspect our own ignorance; and, in our application of the words of our Lord, let us be careful to take our own portion of the warnings, admonitions, and reproofs, as well as of the promises.]

[42 ver. Faithfulness, and truth, and wisdom, are not inconsistent with ignorance of the exact hour of our Lord's coming; but they do not consist with a want of preparedness, or an indifference as to the indications of his approach.]

[Although the faithful steward may not know the hour of his reward, he will know the duty of every hour; and as endeavouring to give to each his por-

* 'Answered at Mark xiii. 37,' Greswell, Vol. I. Diss. i. p. 24.

AND WHATSOEVER YE DO, DO IT HEARTILY, AS TO THE LORD, AND NOT UNTO MEN:

KNOWING THAT OF THE LORD YE SHALL RECEIVE THE REWARD OF THE INHERITANCE:—Col. iii. 23, 4.

LUKE xii. 43—7.

43 in due-season? Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when-he-cometh shall-find so 44 doing. Of-a-truth I-say unto-you, that he-will-make-him-ruler over all that he hath.
45 But and-if that servant say in his heart, My lord delayeth χρονιζει his-coming ερχεσθαι; and shall-begin to-beat the men-servants and maidens, and to-eat and drink, and to-be-46 drunken; the lord of that servant will-come in a-day when he-looketh-for-not, for him, and at an-hour when he-is-not-aware, and will-cut-him-in-sunder, and will-appoint him his portion μερος with the unbelievers.
47 And that servant, which knew his lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xii. 43. Blessed . . . that servant, &c.—Ps. xli. 1—3, 'Blessed is he that considereth the poor: the LORD will deliver him in time of trouble,' &c.—cxii. 1, 5, 9, 'Blessed is the man that feareth the LORD,' &c. 5, he will guide his affairs with discretion. 9, He hath dispersed, he hath given to the poor; his righteousness endureth for ever; his horn shall be exalted with honour.'—See the duty and reward of such described, Is. lviii. 7—12. . . . .—Joseph's posterity were especially appointed to exercise themselves in this stewardship, as being given the means, and promised the blessing, Ge. xlviii. 15, 16; xlix. 22—6.

44. ruler over all that he hath—As Joseph was set over all in Egypt, Ge. xli. 38—43—being placed so as to have those dreams fulfilled, on account of which he had been hated and despised of his brethren, xxxvii. 5—11, 9. . . . . xliii. 26—Is. xlix. 7. . . . . 'Thus saith the LORD, the Redeemer of Israel, and his Holy One, to him whom man despiseth, to him whom the nation abhorreth, to a servant of rulers, Kings shall see and arise, princes also shall worship, because of the LORD that is faithful, and the Holy One of Israel, and he shall choose thee.'

45. that servant—Mt. xxiv. 48, § 86, p. 343, 'That evil servant,' delayeth, &c.—'Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming?' &c., 2 Pe. iii. 3, 4.—Ec. viii. 11, 'Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil.'

beat the men servants—Mt. xxiv. 49, 'smite his fellow-servants,' &c.—Is. lviii. 3, 4. . . . . 'Behold, in the day of your fast ye find pleasure, and exact all your labours. Behold, ye fast for strife and debate, and to smite with the fist of wickedness:' &c.

eat and drink, &c.—Is. lvi. 10—2. . . . . 'His watchmen are blind: they are all ignorant, they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark; sleeping, lying down, loving to slumber. 11, Yea, they are greedy dogs which can never have enough, and they are shepherds that cannot understand: they all look to their own way, every one for his gain, from his quarter. 12, Come ye, say they, I will fetch wine, and we will fill ourselves with strong drink; and to-morrow shall be as this day, and much more abundant.'

46. in a day . . . and at an hour, &c.—Mt. xxiv. 36, § 86, p. 341, 'But of that day and hour knoweth no man,' &c.

looketh not for him—It is to those that look for him that Christ shall 'appear the second time without sin unto salvation,' He. ix. 28.

cut him in sunder, &c.—as was shewn in the case of Ananias and Sapphira, Ac. v. 1—11, &c.—He. iv. 12, 13, 'The word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. Neither is there any creature that is not manifest in his sight: but all things are naked and opened [as if laid inside out] unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do.'—He, who in the beginning did, as with the sharp two-edged sword, cut open individuals, such as the angels of the churches, Rev. i. 16; ii. 12; is, with regard to a time yet future, described as he, out of whose mouth 'goeth a sharp sword, that with it he should smite the nations:' &c., xix. 15—and see NOTE.

his portion, &c.—he had abused his office as having been appointed to give to each his portion of meat, ver. 42—then shall he have his own portion: Ps. xi. 6, 'Upon the wicked he shall rain snares, fire and brimstone, and an horrible tempest: this shall be the portion of their cup.'

with the unbelievers—Mt. xxiv. 51, § 86, p. 344, 'with the hypocrites.'

47. that servant, which knew, &c.—Nu. xv. 30, 'The soul that doeth ought presumptuously . . . the same

NOTES.

Lu. xii. 42. In due season. At the proper time; as they need it, or at the accustomed times. This was the office of a steward. Among the ancients this office was often filled by a slave, one who had shewn himself trusty and faithful. The duty was to have a general superintendence over the affairs of the family. Applied to Christian ministers, it means that they are to feed the flock of God, to minister to their wants, and to do it as they need it, Jno. xxi. 15—7, § 97; Ac. xx. 28; 1 Co. iv. 1, 2.]

45—8. In these verses our Lord warns his disciples against the effect which the delay of his coming to judgment might have upon his servants, in leading them not only to fail in watchfulness, but also to engage in evil practices with respect both to others and themselves, thus bringing upon them sudden destruction.—Comp. 2 Pe. iii. 3—10.

46. Will cut him in sunder. This kind of punishment was anciently practised. Sometimes it was done by the sword, sometimes by saws. It was practised among the Chaldeans, Da. ii. 5; iii. 29; among the Hebrews, 1 Sa. xv. 33; 1 Ki. iii. 25; He. xi. 37. It was also practised by the Egyptians and Romans. Isaiah is reported to have been sawn asunder. Some suppose that the sense here simply is, shall deprive him of his office, and cut him off from the family:—but see 'SCRIP. ILLUS.'

Unbelievers. Or rather 'the unfaithful,' των απιστων. Persons who had the light and knowledge of God's word, but made an improper use of the privileges they received. At Mt. xxiv. 51, it is 'hypocrites,' men who profess to be faithful, but are not really so.

47. Which knew, &c. The law distinguished between sins committed through ignorance and presumptuous sins, Nu. xv. 29, 30.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

tion in due season, he will have but little time to experience weariness.]

The best preparation we can make for our Lord's return is, by acting as faithful and good stewards, in bestowing upon others. It is in blessing others we ourselves shall be blessed.

Lu. xii. 43, 4. It is he who is faithful in the use of this world's goods for the benefit of others, who will be given the treasures of heaven as his own.

[45 ver. Let our nation beware! We have been given a great stewardship—the distribution of the bread of life over all lands; as well as much power with regard to the temporal welfare of mankind generally.]

The greatness of our power and influence will be to our greater condemnation, should we be found oppressing or neglecting that portion of his household which is committed to our care.

O LORD, REVIVE THY WORK IN THE MIDST OF THE YEARS. IN THE MIDST OF THE YEARS MAKE KNOWN;—Hab. iii. 2.

LUKE xii. 48—52.

48 according-to his will, shall-be-beaten with-many stripes. But he that-knew not, and did-commit things-worthy of-stripes, shall-be-beaten with-few stripes. For unto-whomsoever much is-given, of him shall-be-much-required: and to-whom men-have-committed much, of-him they-will-ask the-more.

49 I-am-come to-send βαλειν fire on the earth; and what will-I, if it-be-already-
50 kindled? But I-have a-baptism to-be-baptized-with; and how am-I-straitened συνεχομαι
51 till it-be-accomplished! Suppose-ye that I-am-come to-give peace on earth? I-52 tell you, Nay; but rather division: for from henceforth there-shall-be five in one house

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

reproacheth the LORD; and that soul shall be cut off from amoug his people."—Jesus told the Jews, Jno. ix. 41, § 55, p. 113, 'If ye were blind, ye should have no sin: but now ye say, We see; therefore your sin remaineth.'—And of these Jews he says to his disciples, xv. 22, § 87, 'If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin: but now they have no cloke for their sin.'—Ja. iv. 17, 'to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin.'

Lu. xii. 47. beaten with many, &c.—De. xxv. 2, 'It shall be, if the wicked man be worthy to be beaten,' &c.

48. that knew not—Lev. v. 17, 'If a soul sin, and commit any of these things which are forbidden to be done by the commandments of the LORD; though he wist it not, yet is he guilty, and shall bear his iniquity.'—Ac. xvii. 30, 'And the times of this ignorance God winked at:'—Paul, referring to what he had been previous to his knowing the truth, says, 1 Ti. i. 13, 'I obtained mercy, because I did it ignorantly in unbelief.'

committed much—Paul regarded himself as thus responsible, 1 Co. ix. 16, .7, 'For though I preach the gospel, I have nothing to glory of: for necessity is laid upon me; yea, woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel! For if I do this thing willingly, I have a reward: but if against my will, a dispensation of the gospel is committed unto me.'—1 Ti. i. 11, 'According to the glorious gospel of the blessed God, which was committed to my trust.'—The same inestimable treasure does he speak of as that good thing committed to Timothy, vi. 20.

49. come to send fire—not material fire—When 'the sons of thunder,' possibly as mistaking the import of the name where-by Jesus had called them, asked if they might command fire from heaven to consume the Samaritan village, he reproved them, and said, 'the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them,' Lu. ix. 54—6, § 59, p. 136—The fire our Lord alludes to, appears to be that spoken of in connection with the sending forth of the royal message—When Isaiah saw the glory of the Lord, and spake of him, he spake also of the fire as qualifying for becoming the Lord's messenger, Is. vi. 6—8. . . . . 'Then flew one of the seraphims unto me, having a live coal in his hand, which he had taken with the tongs from off the altar: 7, and he laid it upon my mouth, and said, Lo, this hath touched thy lips; and thine iniquity is taken away, and thy sin purged. 8, Also I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me.'—See also Eze. x. 2—In the Apocalypse, ch. viii. 3—5, the golden censer, after being used in offering up the prayers of all saints, is also made use of in casting into the earth fire from off the golden altar.

50. have a baptism—John had said, Mt. iii. 11, § 7, p. 54, 'I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost,' &c. —— With the baptism with which he, the Head, was already baptized, his disciples were to be baptized, Mt. xx. 22, .3, [Mk. x. 38, .9,] § 77, p. 237.

straitened—When utterance was restrained, the prophets felt thus—so Jeremiah, ch. vi. 10, .1, 'To whom shall I speak, and give warning, that they may hear? behold, their ear is uncircumcised, and they cannot hearken: behold, the word of the LORD is unto them a reproach; they have no delight in it. Therefore I am full of the fury of the LORD; I am weary with holding in: I will pour it out upon the children abroad, and upon the assembly of young men together:'—Mi. ii. 7, 'O thou that art named the house of Jacob, is the Spirit of the LORD straitened? are these his doings? do not my words do good to him that walketh uprightly?'—It was when the believers were all with one accord in one place, that the pentecostal baptism was given, and the first great enlargement of the church took place, Ac. ii. &c.— And when that baptism is accomplished, of which a pledge was then given, Christ will be no longer straitened in utterance; and none will call upon the name of the Lord in vain, Joel ii. 28, .9, 32—Then, as described, Is. xlii. 10—.2, the new song is sung, . . 'Sing unto the LORD a new song, and his praise from the end of the earth, ye that go down to the sea, and all that is therein; the isles, and the inhabitants thereof. 11, Let the wilderness and the cities thereof lift up their voice, the villages that Kedar doth inhabit: let the inhabitants of the rock sing, let them shout from the top of the mountains. 12, Let them give glory unto the LORD, and declare his praise in the islands'. Then the Lord will no longer be straitened—ver. 13—.6, 'The LORD shall go forth as a mighty man, he shall stir up jealousy like a man of war: he shall cry, yea, roar; he shall prevail against his enemies. 14, I have long time holden my peace; I have been still, and refrained myself: now will I cry like a travailing woman; I will destroy and devour at once. 15, I will make waste mountains and hills, and dry up all their herbs; and I will make the rivers islands, and I will dry up the pools. 16, And I will bring the blind by a way that they knew not; I will lead them in paths that they have not known: I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight. These things will I do unto them, and not forsake them.'

51. Suppose ye—see on Mt. x. 34, § 39, p. 301.

52. for from henceforth—see Mt. x. 35; Mi. vii. 6,

NOTES.

Lu. xii. 48. Few stripes. The Jews did not inflict more than forty stripes for one offence, De. xxv. 3. For smaller offences they inflicted only four, five, six, &c., according to the nature of the crime.

49. I am come to send fire. 'It is a fatal objection to the notion of commentators, that by "fire" in this place Christ means "persecutions and divisions," that the kindling of it is made his most earnest wish. The "fire," therefore, must be understood of "the fire of his word," a figure of speech not strange to the Jews, applied here to the gospel, and emblematical of the intense power, the purifying, testing, and consuming qualities of christianity.'—R. Watson.—See SCRIP. ILLUS.

And what will I, if it be already kindled? 'And what should I have to wish, if it were but already kindled?'—Bloomf. 'And "if it be already kindled," what do I desire? what but that it should burn on?' —Lonsdale.

51. To give peace. See on Mt. x. 34, § 39, p. 301.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. xii. 47, .8. Let a sense of the solemn responsibility connected with eminent station and abundance of wealth, render us less covetous of stewardship, and more desirous of making a right use of that which has already been given us in charge.]

49—53 ver. Let us be willing to pass through fire, and through water, to be separated from, and hated by our nearest and dearest relatives, if we would enter into the kingdom of heaven. Let us be partakers with Christ in his sufferings, if we hope to be with him in the kingdom.

51 ver. The uniform deadness prevailing in coun-

GOD IS JEALOUS, AND THE LORD REVENGETH; THE LORD REVENGETH, AND IS FURIOUS;

THE LORD WILL TAKE VENGEANCE ON HIS ADVERSARIES, AND HE RESERVETH WRATH FOR HIS ENEMIES.—Nahum i. 2.

Luke xii. 53—.9.

53 divided, three against two, and two against three. The-father shall-be-divided against the-son, and the-son against the-father; the-mother against the-daughter, and the-daughter against the-mother; the-mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and the-daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law.
54 And he-said also to-the people, When ye-see a cloud rise out-of the-west, straightway
55 ye-say, There-cometh a-shower; and so it-is. And when ye see the-south-wind blow, 56 ye-say, There-will-be heat; and it-cometh-to-pass. Ye hypocrites, ye-can discern οἰδατε δοκιμαζειν the face of-the sky and of-the earth της γης και του ουρανου; but how is it that ye-do-not-discern this time τον καιρον?
57 Yea, and why even of yourselves judge-ye not what is right? 58, When thou-goest with thine adversary to the-magistrate, as thou art in the way, give diligence that-thoumayest-be-delivered απηλλαχθαι from him; lest he-hale thee to the judge, and the judge 59 deliver thee to-the officer, and the officer cast thee into prison. I-tell thee, thou-shaltnot-depart thence, till thou-hast-paid the very last mite.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

'For the son dishonoureth the father, the daughter riseth up against her mother, the daughter in law against her mother in law; a man's enemies are the men of his own house.'—'There was a division among the people because of him,' Jno. vii. 43; ix. 16; x. 19, § 55, pp. 96, 110, .7.

Lu. xii. 54. When ye see a cloud, &c.—He had before reproached the Pharisees for not using the same diligence in discerning the signs of the times as they did in judging of the coming weather, Mt. xvi. 2, 3, § 47, p. 29—see ADDENDA, p. 172, infra.

58. When thou goest with thine adversary—see on Mt. v. 25, § 19, p. 125, 'Agree with,' &c.

59. the very last mite—Mt. v. 26, 'the uttermost farthing.'

NOTES.

Lu. xii. 53. The father shall be divided, &c. See on Mt. x. 26, § 39, p. 302, 'SCRIP. ILLUS.'

54. A cloud rise out of the west. 'The cloud;' alluding to a well-known phenomenon, regarded as a certain prognostic of rainy weather. We learn both from scripture (see 1 Kl. xviii. 44), and from the accounts of travellers in the east, that a small cloud, like a man's hand, is often the forerunner of violent storms of wind and rain. In Judea, the west wind, blowing from the sea, usually brought rain.

55. The south wind—from the hot countries, Egypt, Ethiopia, and Arabia, which lay south of Judea.

Heat. καυσων, 'sultry,' or 'scorching heat.'

58. Ye hypocrites. See on Mt. xvi. 3, § 47, p. 29.

That ye do not discern this time? 'From the writings of the prophets, and existing events, that this is the time of the Messiah?'

57. Yea, and why, &c. '"Yea, and why even of yourselves," by the light of your own minds, and consciences, do ye not judge rightly of my doctrine; and perceive the necessity of seeking, through me, deliverance from the wrath of God, before it be too late? See the next verse, the beginning of which, in the original, shows that verses 57, 58 are connected with and explain each other.'—Lonsdale and Hale.

What is right? Or 'truth.' It may signify, 'Why do ye not recognise the Just One?' which may be the admitted meaning, though the original be in the neuter gender.—Comp. Ac. iii. 14; vii. 52; xxii. 14.

58. When thou goest, &c. As if he had said, And ye have not a moment to lose, for the executioners of God's vengeance are at hand, and when he hath once delivered you over to them, ye are undone for ever.

Adversary. The original means, 'one that is opposed to another in a court of justice.'

Magistrate. 'Ruler,' or 'prince,' or the prince of the sanhedrim, who sat as judge there.

[Give diligence . . . . delivered from him. This and the following verse are a kind of parable, from which we learn, that as those who have any matter in dispute at law, and lose the opportunity which is offered to them of coming to a friendly settlement with their adversaries, frequently suffer severely when the matter has been brought to trial; so the Jews, unless they sought without delay to be reconciled to God for their offences against himself, and against his servants, while the means of reconciliation were open to them, were to be given up to that state of punishment from which they have not yet been delivered. Let us, both as individuals and as a nation, be warned by the words of the Faithful and True Witness, who is also our most merciful and all-prevailing Intercessor, so as to be now reconciled unto God, ere long-threatened judgment result in punishment without remedy.]

59. Till thou hast paid, &c. And when can this be? Can weeping, wailing, and gnashing of teeth, pay to Divine justice the debt a sinner has contracted? This is impossible. Let him who readeth understand.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

tries where the word of life is proscribed; and the religious differences existing in Protestant lands, along with a full circulation of the scriptures; are both in proof of the Divine mission of Jesus.

Lu. xii. 51—.3. The fear of temporal evil should not be allowed to hinder us in our efforts to advance the cause of eternal truth.

[54—.6 ver. God has as surely given us indications of coming events, and of the change of seasons in the great scheme of Providence, as he has given us the means for judging of the weather; and those to whom the scriptures are given do but feign, when they pretend that God has withheld from them knowledge in the one case more than in the other. We ought to question ourselves as to the cause, when we know not where we are in the great scheme of Providence.]

[57 ver. Without knowing the prediction of particular events, we may judge of coming blessing and honour, or destruction and disgrace, by what we see in the world, of love and obedience, or disobedience and ingratitude to God.]

[58 ver. If we ought to seek the being reconciled to an adversary, much more earnest ought we to be to seek reconciliation with our best Friend, who alone has the power, and who hath shewn all willingness to help us. Upon the first notice He gives us of our guilt and danger in any particular case, let us be aroused to an earnest improvement of the precious moments that are given us whilst judgment is delayed.]

59 ver. Let us from the case of the very people in whose audience these sayings were delivered, see how true these sayings are. They refused to attend to the intimations of approaching judgment, until wrath came upon them to the uttermost.

COMPARISON OF LUKE xii. WITH PORTIONS OF MATT. vi., x., xii., xvi., xxiv., SHEWING ALSO THE PRINCIPLE OF HEBREW PARALLELISM IN OUR LORD'S DISCOURSES.

LUKE xii.

1 In the mean time, when there were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, insomuch that they trode one upon another, he began to say unto his disciples first of all,
Beware ye of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy.

II For there is nothing covered,
that shall not be revealed;
neither hid,
that shall not be known.
3 Therefore whatsoever ye have spoken in darkness shall be heard in the light; and that which ye have spoken in the ear in closets shall be proclaimed upon the housetops.
4 And I say unto you my friends,
Be not afraid of them that kill the body,
and after that have no more that they can do.
5 But I will forewarn you whom ye shall fear:
Fear him, which after he hath killed hath power to cast into hell;
yea, I say unto you, Fear him.
6 Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God?

7 But even the very hairs of your head are all numbered.
Fear not therefore:
ye are of more value than many sparrows.
8 Also I say unto you,
Whosoever shall confess me
before men, him shall the Son of man also confess before the angels of God:
9 but he that denieth me before men shall be denied before the angels of God.

10 And whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of man,
it shall be forgiven him:
but unto him that blasphemeth against the Holy Ghost
it shall not be forgiven.

11 And when they bring you unto the synagogues, and unto magistrates, and powers, take ye no thought how or what thing ye shall answer,
or what ye shall say:
12 for the Holy Ghost shall teach you in the same hour
what ye ought to say.

22 And he said unto his disciples,
Therefore I say unto you,
Take no thought for your life,
what ye shall eat;
neither for the body, what ye shall put on.
23 The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment.
24 Consider the ravens:
for they neither sow nor reap;
which neither have storehouse nor barn;
and God feedeth them:
how much more are ye better than the fowls?
25 And which of you with taking thought can add to his stature one cubit?
26 If ye then be not able to do that thing which is least,
why take ye thought for the rest?
27 Consider the lilies how they grow:
they toil not, they spin not;
and yet I say unto you,
that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.
28 If then God so clothe the grass, which is to-day in the field,
and to-morrow is cast into the oven;
how much more will he clothe you,
O ye of little faith?
29 And seek not ye
what ye shall eat,
or what ye shall drink,
neither be ye of doubtful mind.
30 For all these things do the nations of the world seek after:
and your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things.

MATT. xvi.

Then Jesus said unto them, Take heed 6 and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees.

x.

Fear them not therefore: 26 for there is nothing covered,
that shall not be revealed;
and hid,
that shall not be known.
What I tell you in darkness, 27
that speak ye in light:
and what ye hear in the ear,
that preach ye upon the housetops.

And fear not them which kill the body, 28 but are not able to kill the soul:
but rather fear Him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.

Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? 29 and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father.
But the very hairs of your head 30
are all numbered.
Fear ye not therefore, 31
ye are of more value than many sparrows.

Whosoever therefore shall confess me 32
before men,
him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven.
But whosoever shall deny me before men, 33 him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven.

xii.

And whosoever speaketh a word 32
against the Son of man,
it shall be forgiven him:
but whosoever speaketh
against the Holy Ghost,
it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come.

x.

But when they deliver you up, 19 take no thought how or what ye shall speak:
for it shall be given you in that same hour what ye shall speak.
For it is not ye that speak, but the Spirit 20 of your Father which speaketh in you.

vi.

Therefore I say unto you, 25
Take no thought for your life,
what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink;
nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on.
Is not the life more than meat,
and the body than raiment?
Behold the fowls of the air: 26 for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns;
yet your heavenly Father feedeth them.
Are ye not much better than they?
Which of you by taking thought 27 can add one cubit unto his stature?

And why take ye thought for raiment? 28
Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow;
they toil not, neither do they spin:
and yet I say unto you, 29
That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.
Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, 30 which to-day is,
and to-morrow is cast into the oven,
shall he not much more clothe you,
O ye of little faith?
Therefore take no thought, 31 saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed?
(For after all these things do the Gentiles 32 seek:) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things.

Luke xii.	Matt. vi.
31 But rather seek ye the kingdom of God;	But seek ye first the kingdom of God, 33 and all these things shall be added unto you.	and his righteousness;
33 Sell that ye have, and give alms;	and all these things shall be added unto you.
provide yourselves bags which wax not old,	Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, 19
a treasure in the heavens that faileth not,	where moth and rust doth corrupt, where no thief approacheth,	and where thieves break through and steal:
neither moth corrupteth.	but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, 20
34 For where your treasure is,	where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt,
there will your heart be also.	and where thieves do not break through nor steal:
35 Let your loins be girded about,	for where your treasure is, 21 and your lights burning;	there will your heart be also.
36 and ye yourselves like unto men	Mt. xxv. 1–13.
that wait for their lord,
when he will return from the wedding;
that when he cometh and knocketh,
they may open unto him immediately.
37 Blessed are those servants, whom the Lord when he cometh shall find watching:
verily I say unto you, that he shall gird himself, and make them to sit down to meat,
and will come forth and serve them.
38 And if he shall come in the second watch, or come in the third watch, and find them so,
blessed are those servants.
39 And this know, that if the goodman of the house had known what hour the thief would come,
he would have watched,
and not have suffered his house to be broken through.
40 Be ye therefore ready also:
for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not.
41 Then Peter said unto him, Lord, speakest thou this parable unto us, or even to all?
42 And the Lord said,
Who then is that faithful and wise steward, whom his Lord shall make ruler over his household, to give them their portion of meat in due season?
43 Blessed is that servant,
whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing.
44 Of a truth I say unto you, that he will make him ruler over all that he hath.
45 But and if that servant say in his heart,
My lord delayeth his coming;
and shall begin to beat the men-servants and maidens, and to eat and drink, and to be drunken;
46 the lord of that servant will come in a day when he looketh not for him, and at an hour when he is not aware,
and will cut him in sunder,
and will appoint him his portion with the unbelievers.
	xxiv.
	Watch therefore 42
	for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.
	But know this, that if the goodman of the house 43 had known in what watch the thief would come,
	he would have watched,
	and would not have suffered his house to be broken up.
	Therefore be ye also ready; 44 for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh.
	Who then is a faithful and wise servant, 45 whom his lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season?
	Blessed is that servant, 46
	whom his Lord when he cometh shall find so doing.
	Verily I say unto you, 47
	That he shall make him ruler over all his goods.
	But and if that evil servant shall say in his heart, 48
	My lord delayeth his coming;
	and shall begin to smite his fellow-servants, 49
	and to eat and drink with the drunken;
	the lord of that servant shall come 50
	in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of,
	and shall cut him asunder (or, up), 51
	and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites:
	there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.
Ver. 47—50, see p. 168, supra.
51 Suppose ye that I am come to give peace on earth?	x.
	Think not that I am come to send 34
I tell you, Nay; but rather division:	peace on earth:
52 for from henceforth	I came not to send peace, but a sword.
there shall be five in one house divided, three against two, and two against three.
53 The father shall be divided against the son,	For I am come to set a man at variance 35 and the son against the father;	against his father, the mother against the daughter, and the daughter against the mother;	and the daughter against her mother,
the mother in law against her daughter in law, and the daughter in law against her mother in law.	and the daughter in law against her mother in law.
	And a man's foes shall be they of his own 36 household.
54 And he said also to the people,	xvi.
	He answered and said unto them 2
	(the Pharisees with the Sadducees),
When ye see a cloud rise out of the west,	When it is evening,
straightway ye say, There cometh a shower;	ye say, It will be fair weather: for the sky is red.
and so it is.	And in the morning, It will be foul weather to-day: 3
55 And when ye see the south wind blow,	for the sky is red and lowring.
ye say, There will be heat; and it cometh to pass.
56 Ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky	O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky;
and of the earth;
but how is it that ye do not discern this time?	but can ye not discern the signs of the times?
57 Yea, and why even of yourselves judge ye not	A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh 4 what is right?	after a sign; &c.
	v.
58 When thou goest with thine adversary	Agree with thine adversary 25 to the magistrate,
as thou art in the way, give diligence	quickly, whiles thou art in the way with him;
that thou mayest be delivered from him;	lest at any time
lest he hale thee to the judge,	the adversary deliver thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer,	and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and the officer cast thee into prison.	and thou be cast into prison.
59 I tell thee,	Verily I say unto thee, 26
thou shalt not depart thence,	Thou shalt by no means come out thence,
till thou hast paid the very last mite.	till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing.

SECTION 64.—(G. 33.)—[Lesson 61, §§ 64—.6.]—JESUS IS TOLD OF THE GALILÆANS, WHOSE BLOOD PILATE HAD MINGLED WITH THEIR SACRIFICES. BY THE PARABLE OF A BARREN FIG TREE, HE FURTHER WARNS THEM OF APPROACHING JUDGMENT.—Luke xiii. 1—9.—[See Greswell, Vol. III. Diss. xxxv. pp. 26—37.]

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Lu. xiii. 1—3. Some having spoken of the Galilæans whom Pilate had slain while they were sacrificing in the temple, Jesus takes occasion to forewarn them of the calamities coming upon the nation generally, in connection with the destruction of the temple.

—— 4, 5. Jesus points to another sign, equally expressive, of the approaching national destruction, in the ruins of their strong holds.

Lu. xiii. 6—9. Having shewn that we are not to be rash in judging those to be peculiarly wicked whom we see in the present time distinguished by calamity; Jesus, by the parable of the barren fig tree, proceeds to teach, that neither are we to judge favourably of what we are, and of what is to befal us, because we have hitherto escaped, and may even have been treated with extraordinary kindness.

LUKE xiii. 1—5.

1 There-were-present at that season καιρῳ some that-told him of the Galilæans, whose 2 blood Pilate had-mingled with their sacrifices. And Jesus answering said unto-them, Suppose-ye that these Galilæans were sinners above all the Galilæans, because they-
3 suffered such-things? I-tell you, Nay: but, except ye-repent, ye-shall-all likewise-
4 perish. Or those eighteen, upon whom the tower in Siloam fell, and slew them, think-
5 ye that they were sinners ωφειλεται above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem? I-tell you, Nay: but, except ye-repent, ye-shall-all likewise-perish.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xiii. 1. Galilæans—supposed by some to be followers of Judas of Galilee, Ac. v. 37—but see NOTE.

2. sinners above all, &c.—At Melita, Ac. xxviii. 4, 'when the barbarians saw the venomous beast hang on his (Paul's) hand, they said among themselves, No doubt this man is a murderer, whom, though he hath escaped the sea, yet vengeance suffereth not to live.'

3. repent—To this they had been called by the preaching of the Baptist, Mt. iii. 1, 2, § 7, p. 50.—as had their fathers, when their pompous worship had become hateful to the Lord, Is. i. 11—7.

ye shall all likewise, &c.—so John had forewarned, Mt. iii. 10, .2, § 7, pp. 53, .4.

5. all likewise perish—so Jesus afterwards foretold that which was speedily effected by the Romans, ch. xix. 42—4, § 82—see also the words of Moses, De. xxviii. 49, 50.

NOTES.

Lu. xiii. 1. At that season. Before our Lord retired from addressing the immense multitude collected

Of the Galilæans, &c. Mr. Greswell supposes these to be simply 'certain of the people of Galilee,' rather than any 'of the sect, known in contemporary history by their relation to Judas, surnamed the Galilæan.' And of this event (see Vol. III. Diss. xxxv. pp. 26—37) he says:—

'Laying these several particulars together, I think we may come to the inferences, partly with an absolute certainty, and partly with an high degree of probability, first, that a contest had taken place in Jerusalem, arising out of a disturbance of the public peace, between the Jews and the Roman soldiers, attended by bloodshed on both sides, the scene of which was partially the temple; secondly, that this was the sedition of Barabbas, for which he was in prison, when Jesus was brought before Pilate; thirdly, that some of the Galilæans, the native subjects of Herod, while engaged in the act of sacrificing, had innocently been sufferers by it; fourthly, that this violence done to them was the cause of the enmity existing between Herod and Pilate, and the reason why the former was present in Jerusalem at the time of the last passover, with an armed force for his own protection, or for that of his subjects; fifthly, that all this was of recent occurrence, between the time denoted by John, xi. 54, § 58, p. 133, and xii. 1, § 81, p. 253, after the commencement of our Lord's final circuit, and not long before its close.'

Josephus relates a similar act of severity on the part of Archelaus, the son of Herod the Great, who put to death three thousand Jews, whilst they were sacrificing in the temple.

2. Suppose ye, &c. The people rightly supposed that human suffering is occasioned by sin, but were wrong in thinking those to be individually the greatest sinners upon whom the crimes of a community are first visited, for warning to the rest.

3. I tell you, Nay. Our Lord bids them regard the case of these men as a warning of the judgments coming upon the nation generally.

Except ye repent, &c. These words contain a general denunciation of God's vengeance against the impenitent Jews. But they had a special fulfilment in the destruction which fell upon the Jewish people during their war with the Romans, about forty years after this time; particularly at the taking of Jerusalem, when many thousands of them perished, like these Galilæans, in the temple, and round the altar, by the hands of the Roman soldiers: when the walls of Jerusalem were overthrown, and her children within her; when the nation perished from the land of their fathers.—See on Mt. xxiv., § 86, p. 322, et seq.

4. Or those eighteen . . . . tower in Siloam. This tower was in the walls of Jerusalem, at the south-east angle thereof.—See § 55, p. 118, GEOG. NOT., 'Siloam.'

Sinners. ωφειλεται, 'debtors,' a Jewish phrase for sinners: those who obey not are reckoned debtors to

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. xiii. 1—5. In the present dispensation God deals with communities as such, so that the guilt of the whole may be visited upon individual members, whilst others escape. Thus we are not to look upon those who suffer as peculiarly guilty, but rather as a warning to all who are in the same condemnation; as foreshadowing the doom awaiting all, should repentance and amendment not follow. Those whose blood Pilate mingled with their sacrifices, and those upon whom the tower in Siloam fell, were signs of the approaching destruction of the body of the Jewish people; when their blood was literally mingled with their sacrifices, and all their strong holds were thrown down; and they, so far as they were a nation inhabiting the promised land, were buried in the ruins.

By the mention of the Galilæans whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices, Jesus was supplied with a case in point, for the illustration of the close of his preceding discourse. But although even the Son of God was the speaker, the words of warning were unheeded by the nation; they knew not their time; they allowed the day of their merciful visitation to pass unimproved. They were in due time delivered unto the officer, and cast into prison; where they have remained, and must remain, until they accept

WITH GREAT CARE SHOULD WE GUARD AGAINST UNCHARITABLE CENSURES OF THOSE WHOM GOD AFFLICTS.

REMEMBERING THAT HIS STROKES UPON THEM ARE GIVEN TO BE MERCIFUL WARNINGS TO US.

LUKE xiii. 6—9.

6 He-spake also this parable; A-certain man had a fig-tree planted in his vineyard;
7 and he-came and-sought fruit thereon, and found none.* Then said-he unto the dresser-of-his-vineyard, Behold, these-three years I-come seeking fruit on this fig-tree,
8 and find none: cut-it-down; why cumbereth-it καταργεῖ the ground? And he answering said unto-him, Lord, let-it-alone this year also, till I-shall-dig about it, and dung
9 it: and if it-bear fruit, well: and if not, then after-that εἰς το μελλον thou-shalt-cut-it-down.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xiii. 6. vineyard—see Is. v. 1—7.

sought fruit—see Mt. xxi. 19, 20, § 83, p. 275.

7. these three years—Under Moses and the succeeding judges, under the kings, and since the return from Babylon, the Jews had been given three seasons of privilege, which had not resulted in correspondent fruitfulness—They were since the beginning of the Baptist's ministry given a fourth and last trial before their excision; of which they were very distinctly apprised by John, Mt. iii. 10, § 7, p. 53, 'And now also the axe is laid unto the root of the trees: therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire.'—And see NOTE.

9. cut it down—So early as the time of Moses the Lord said, Ex. xxxii. 9, 10, 'I have seen this people, and, behold, it is a stiffnecked people: now therefore let me alone, that my wrath may wax hot against them, and that I may consume them:'—Jesus expressly declares that the threatened judgment upon their nation should come before that generation had passed away, Mt. xxiii. 36; xxiv. 34, §§ 85, 6, pp. 320, 40.

NOTES.

the law, or rather, to that Divine justice from which the law came.

['As the whole of the unbelieving Jewish community was divisible only into comprehensive members of the native Jews and the Galilæans respectively; so it is observable we have two instances adduced of visitations distinctly affecting, in the first place, only a certain part of either of these divisions, each of which is made the foundation of a prophetical warning, by way of admonition to the rest, of what might be expected, for similar reasons, by all.'—Greswell.

'This is the first of a series of predictions, relating to a common subject, the punishment of the infidel Jews, and the destruction of Jerusalem.'—Ibid.

'The destruction of the unbelieving Jews at last, so far as concerned the fact itself, was sudden, indiscriminate, and complete, like that of the eighteen who perished at Siloam; and in the mode and circumstances of the event, bore no improbable relation to the fate of the Galilæans.'—Ibid.]

Lu. xiii. 6—9. A certain man had a fig tree, &c. 'This parable was intended to enlarge on the idea in the preceding discourse, and enforce the foregoing warning, by announcing the impending destruction which would attend the long-continued abuse of God's mercy.'—Bloomf.

'The vineyard represents the visible church of God; the owner of the vineyard is God, the Lord of the church; and the tree, which is planted in the vineyard, is the people of the Jews.'—Greswell.

['The parable of the barren fig tree is a prospective allusion to both St. Matthew and St. Mark in conjunction; and prepares the way for the account of the malediction judicially inflicted on a similar tree, and for a similar fault, which they record (Mt. xxi. 18, 19, and Mk. xi. 13, 14, § 83, p. 275). These different accounts illustrate each other: for the moral of the parable, which is a prophetical allegory, and the end of the malediction inflicted upon the tree, which was purely symbolical, it might be shewn combine together, and are in fact, the one the completion of the other. The fig tree on mount Oliver, and the fig tree in the parable, bear the same typical relation; and the curse pronounced upon the former is but the execution of the sentence which had been already passed upon the latter, and only for a time suspended.'—Greswell, Vol. I. Diss. i. p. 25.]

'In this parable our Lord proceeds to enforce the warning addressed by him to the Jews, in ver. 3, 5. Its unfruitfulness for three years represents the little return which the Jews had made to God, for the advantages which they had enjoyed. The year during which the tree was not only let alone, but dug about and dunged, represents the respite, and the additional means of grace, which were granted to the Jews, during the ministries of John the Baptist, of our Lord, and of his apostles.'—Lonsdale and Hale.

7. Three years. It was now towards the close of the third year of our Lord's ministry, during which time he had been calling the people to repentance, and had wrought many miracles in attestation of his Divine mission among them. But see SCR. ILL. supra.

Why cumbereth it the ground? The word cumber here means to render barren, or sterile. By taking up the juices of the earth, this useless tree rendered the ground sterile, and prevented the growth of the neighbouring vines.

[9. If it bear fruit, well. 'The abrupt termination of these concluding words of the dresser of the vineyard is a singular beauty, which, instead of being retained or improved, is lost or impaired by the supplement of the ellipsis in the version. It arises from a presentiment in the speaker, that a disappointment even of this last and final effort to reclaim the tree, was probably to be expected. To fill up his words by the introduction of the particle, well, would not only make them a plenary proposition, which they are not in the original, but would be inconsistent with the train of his thoughts at the time, and destructive of the pathos of the passage; and instead of an ominous and melancholy presage, would convey the expression of a cheerful hope and confidence about the result.'—Greswell on the Parables, Vol. III. p. 362.

If not, . . . thou shalt cut it down. 'Our Lord's ministry had been carried on three years, and would be brought to a close in the fourth. If the event should prove that their impenitence was protracted beyond this period, their reprobation also would be final, and the sentence of their excision, whether immediately to be put into execution or not, would nevertheless become fixed and irreversible.'—Greswell.

'The deficiency of detail of the further course of the event is critically supplied by another incident in the gospel narrative, the curse pronounced on the barren fig tree, omitted by Luke, but recorded by Matthew, xxi. 18, 19, [Mk. xi. 13, 14,] § 83.'—See NOTE, supra.

'The preaching of the apostles, . . . after our Lord's personal ministry was over: . . . a new trial or concession, intended for the benefit of the nation at large, whose infidelity as such, and whose punishment in consequence of it, were both already certain, but for the sake of confirming or making good the covenant with or unto many, in the language of Da. ix. 27; that is, of verifying the Divine promises to those whom St. Paul denominates the election, that individual portion of the much larger community, or nation of the Jews, by whom the preaching of christianity, though unsuccessful with the rest, should be received. The number of this election was not complete until the time appointed for the days of vengeance was arrived, that is, until the interval between the day of pentecost, and the commencement of the Jewish war was consummated.'—Ibid.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

of the punishment of their iniquity: wrath has come upon them to the uttermost. But let us not look upon the Jews as alone guilty, because they suffered See continuation of PRAC. REFLEC. next page.

* On this prospective allusion, see NOTE, supra.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS, § 64, continued.

such things; rather let us, from their case, discern our own danger, and be warned to flee from the wrath to come.

In a future state individuals will be dealt with according to their individual merits; but, in the present time, let us look upon calamities less as the punishment of individuals than as warnings unto all.

[Lu. xiii. 6. Let us ever remember that, both individually and collectively, we are to bring forth fruit, not unto ourselves, but unto God.]

7 ver. Let us admire the long-suffering kindness of our God, in that he hath not long since cut us down as cumberers of the ground: and, whilst we admire the patience of God in so long bearing with our unfruitfulness, let us not presume that as it has been in the past, so it will be in the future.

[8, 9 ver. The abundance bestowed upon a people, after having long misimproved God's mercy, may be the last effort to revive their fading virtues. Let us therefore not boast of even the favours bestowed upon us by God; but, feeling our increased responsibility, seek humbly and earnestly to improve them.]

'The opportunities of his mercy and patience are often unexpectedly lengthened out through the mediation of his Son, and the prayers of his ministers. And, if he spare, ministers ought to be diligent. The most unfruitful sinners may be renewed and turned to God by the gospel; but the obstinate abuse of this will at last issue in men's just and inexpressible ruin. Cries for mercy will then become vain, hopes and pleas from external privileges will be defeated, and there will be none to intercede for the sinner.'

SECTION 65.—(G. 34, 5.)—[Lesson 61, continued.]—JESUS ON THE SABBATH DAY HEALS A WOMAN WHO HAD A SPIRIT OF INFIRMITY EIGHTEEN YEARS: AND JUSTIFIES THE ACT AGAINST THE RULER OF THE SYNAGOGUE. JESUS AGAIN DELIVERS THE PARABLE OF THE GRAIN OF MUSTARD SEED, AND OF THE LEAVEN.—Luke xiii. 10—21.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Lu. xiii. 10—3. In a synagogue, where Jesus is teaching on the sabbath, there is a woman having an infirmity of eighteen years' standing: Jesus calls her to him, and says, 'Thou art loosed from thine infirmity.' He lays his hands on her; she is healed, and glorifies God.

—— 14. The ruler of the synagogue is indignant; and tells the people that there are six days for work, and that they ought not to come to be healed on the sabbath.

Lu. xiii. 15, 6. Jesus vindicates his conduct, in having on the sabbath day released from Satan's bond this daughter of Abraham.

—— 17. The adversaries of Jesus are ashamed: and the people rejoice for all the glorious things which are done by Him.

—— 18, 9. Jesus delivers the parable of the grain of mustard seed, as in Mt. xiii. 31, 2, § 32, p. 248.

—— 20, 1. The parable of leaven hid in three measures of meal, as in Mt. xiii. 33, ib.

(G. 34.)—No. 65.—Jesus on the sabbath day heals a woman who had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years: and justifies the act against the ruler of the synagogue.—Luke xiii. 10—.7.

10 And he-was teaching in one-of-the synagogues on the sabbath. 11 And, behold, there-was a-woman which-had a-spirit of-infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed-to-12 gether συγκυπτουσα, and could in no-wise lift-up ανακυψαι herself. And when-Jesus saw her, he-called her to him, and said unto-her, Woman, thou-art-loosed-from thine 13 infirmity. And he-laid his hands on-her: and immediately she-was-made-straight ανωρθωθη, and glorified God.
14 And the ruler-of-the-synagogue answered with-indignation, because-that Jesus had-healed on-the sabbath-day, and-said unto-the people, There-are six days in which men ought to-work: in them therefore come and-be-healed, and not on-the sabbath day.
15 The Lord then answered him, and said, Thou hypocrite, doth-not each-one of-you on-the sabbath-loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead-him-away to-watering?

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xiii. 13. laid his hands—see Mk. xvi. 18, § 98; Ac. ix. 17, &c.

14. six days, &c.—as enjoined in the fourth commandment, Ex. xx. 9, 'Six days shalt thou labour, and do all thy work:'

not on the sabbath day—The Jews had before been enraged because he had effected a similar cure upon a man on the sabbath day, Jno. v. 5—16, § 23, p. 175—see also Mt. xii. 10—4, § 25, p. 195.

15. hypocrite—see ch. xi. 39—44; xii. 1, §§ 63, 3, pp. 156— —Pr. xi 9, 'An hypocrite with his mouth destroyeth his neighbour: but through knowledge shall the just be delivered.'

loose his ox or his ass, &c.—see ch. xiv. 5, § 67, p. 180.

NOTES.

Lu. xiii. 11. A spirit of infirmity. An evil spirit causing infirmity, as appears from ver. 16, where our Lord expressly attributes the woman's infirmity to Satan.

14. The ruler of the synagogue. See § 36, p. 286, ADDENDA, 'Ruler,' &c.

Answered with indignation. It is not an infrequent case to find men filled with madness, while beholding the power of God's grace and mercy in others.

[15. Thou hypocrite. His objection to Christ's work of mercy on the sabbath is supposed to have been, not from any reverence for the day, but from envy and malice at Jesus' power and popularity; and yet he pretended not to oppose Jesus, but only to reprove the people out of zeal for God.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

[Lu. xiii. 11—3. The sabbath is a day in which the followers of Christ should, like their Lord, remove, as opportunity offers, the bands of those that are bound, that they may the better enjoy the rest which God has appointed for man on his holy day.]

When touched by the healing hand of Jesus, and equally when upheld by him in health, let us with grateful hearts glorify God.

[14 ver. Let us beware of hasty wrath, especially upon witnessing the increase of good to others. Let us not have such a regard for ceremonial worship as would make us indifferent to the temporal condition of the worshippers.]

[15 ver. The conduct of many professedly christian rulers is even more inconsistent than that of the ruler of the Jewish synagogue, in not allowing those under them to be loosed from the curse of labour upon the day appointed by our heavenly Father for rest and refreshment; appointed, not to man only, but even to the ox and the ass.]

A good man will be merciful, even to his beast; but he will not be less so to his own flesh and blood.

LUKE xiii. 16—21.

16 And ought not this woman, being a-daughter of-Abraham, whom Satan hath-bound, lo, 17 these eighteen years, be-loosed from this bond on-the sabbath day? And when-he had-said these-things, all his adversaries were-ashamed: and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious-things ἐνδόξοις that were-done by him.

(G. 35.)—Jesus again delivers the parable of the grain of mustard seed, and also that of the leaven.—Luke xiii. 18—21. Going Southward.

18 Then said-he, Unto-what is the kingdom of God like? and where-unto shall-I-19 resemble it? It-is like a-grain of-mustard-seed, which a-man took, and-cast into his garden; and it-grew, and waxed a-great tree; and the fowls of-the air lodged in the branches of-it.
20 And again he-said, Where-unto shall-I-liken the kingdom of God? 21, It-is like leaven, which a-woman took and-hid in three measures of-meal, till the-whole was-leavened.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xiii. 16. daughter of Abraham—Abraham is spoken of as 'the father of all them that believe,' Rom. iv. 11—Thus Jesus said of Zacchæus, Lu. xix. 9, § 80, p. 247—' This day is salvation come to this house, forsomuch as he also is a son of Abraham.'—Peter, writing to believing women, saith of Abraham, 1 Pe. iii. 6, ' whose daughters ye are, as long as ye do well, and are not afraid with any amazement.'

Satan—see the case of Job, ch. i. ii., and that of Paul, 2 Co. xii. 7, ' lest I should be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to me a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet me, lest I should be exalted above measure.'

17. ashamed—Is. xlv. 24, ' Surely, shall one say, in the LORD have I righteousness and strength: even to him shall men come; and all that are incensed against him shall be ashamed.'—1 Pe. iii. 15, 6, ' But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts; and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear: having a good conscience; that, whereas they speak evil of you, as of evildoers, they may be ashamed that falsely accuse your good conversation in Christ.'

all the people rejoiced, &c.—This, which took place among these Jews, is promised in the fullest sense with regard to their outcast brethren, called in scripture, ' All the house of Israel'—Is. xlv. 25, ' In the LORD shall all the seed of Israel be justified, and shall glory.'—Comp. Exe. xi. 15—23.

19. a grain of mustard seed—see on Mt. xiii. 31, .2, [Mk. iv. 30—.2,] § 32, p. 248.

21. like leaven—see on Mt. xiii. 33, § 32, p. 248, .9.

NOTES.

Lu. xiii. 16. A daughter of Abraham. Comp. ch. iii. 8, 9, § 7, p. 52; Jno. viii. 39, § 55, p. 104; Ac. xiii. 26; and SCRIP. ILLUS. supra.

Whom Satan. See ' Devil,' Mt. iv. 1, § 9, p. 63; xiii. 39, § 33, p. 260; Lu. x. 18. .9, § 60, p. 143.—Comp. Eph. vi. 11, .2; 1 Pe. 5, 8.

18—21. See these parables explained, Mt. xiii. 31—.3, § 32, p. 248.

19. Grain of mustard seed. Christ, the seed of the kingdom, was, in his first coming, little and despised of the people. Nevertheless, he was then planted by God in his garden; and to all that are planted together in the likeness of his death, there is promised a glorious resurrection. Then the time of singing will be come, of which the Lord hath said, ' Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead,' Is. xxvi. 19.

[21. Three measures of meal. The measure was about a peck and a half English, and three measures was probably the quantity usually leavened at one time for domestic use. There have been three grand dispensations, the Patriarchal, the Mosaic, and the Christian; but throughout all, the children of God have the same faith, and the same word of promise, whereby the same will of God is wrought in them all; and this in the soul, body, and spirit of each. And this blessed influence extends to the three grand families of mankind, the descendants of the three sons of Noah. The Law, the Psalms, and the Prophets, the three grand portions of the words of God, had been ministered to the Jews, during the three seasons, noticed in our Lord's genealogy, Mt. i. 17—see on these three years, ver. 7, supra, § 64, p. 174.]

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. xiii. 16. It is the character of Satan to impose bonds upon, and otherwise afflict the children of God. Let us pray to be delivered from his power. Let us cleave humbly and hopefully to the Saviour, whose power, now that he is on the throne of his Father, is not less than when he walked upon the earth. So far as our influence extends, let the sabbath be to all a day of release, especially from the bonds of Satan.

[17 ver. Let us, with the Faithful and True Witness, fearlessly vindicate the cause of truth and goodness; and let us, against all opposition, practically maintain the cause of our Master, the liberty of doing good.]

Let us pray that the time may soon come, when all the people shall rejoice, for all the glorious things done by our blessed Redeemer.

[18, .9 ver. Let us who see so far the fulfilment of our Lord's prediction with regard to the extension of his cause, and the shelter afforded to the nations under its influence—let us, with rejoicing confidence in the truth of all that he hath promised, give thanks unto his name.]

20, .1 ver. Leaven may produce its effects more speedily, but not the continuous increase of the natural growth. Let us seek to have the living principle within us that may bring forth fruit unto everlasting life, and not merely act until the whole is leavened. Let us see that none of the old leaven remain hid within us.

ADDENDA.

COMPARISON OF LUKE xiii. 18—21, WITH MATT. xiii. 31—.3, § 32, p. 248.

Lu. xiii. 18. Then said he,
Unto what is the kingdom of God like?
and whereunto shall I resemble it?
19 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and cast into his garden;
and it grew,
and waxed a great tree;
and the fowls of the air lodged in the branches of it.
20 And again he said,
Whereunto shall I liken the kingdom of God?
21 It is like leaven, which a woman took
and hid in three measures of meal,
till the whole was leavened.

Another parable put he forth unto them, Mt. xiii. 31.
saying, The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and sowed in his field:
which indeed is the least of all seeds: 32
but when it is grown, it is the greatest among herbs, and becometh a tree,
so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof.
Another parable spake he unto them; 33
The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven,
which a woman took,
and hid in three measures of meal,
till the whole was leavened.

SECTION 66.—(G. 36, .7.)—[Lesson 61, continued.]—JESUS REPLIES TO THE QUESTION, LORD, ARE THERE FEW THAT BE SAVED? JESUS IS ADVISED BY CERTAIN OF THE PHARISEES TO DEPART OUT OF THE TERRITORIES OF HEROD; HIS ANSWER PREDICTS HIS DEATH IN JERUSALEM. HE LAMENTS OVER THAT WICKED AND IMPENITENT CITY.—Luke xiii. 22—35.

INTRODUCTION AND ANALYSIS.

Lu. xiii. 22. Jesus proceeds 'through the cities and villages, teaching, and journeying toward Jerusalem.'

—— 23. One asks, 'Lord, are there few that be saved?'

—— 24. Jesus says, 'Strive to enter in at the strait gate:'—Comp. Mt. vii. 13, § 19, p. 139.

—— 25—.7. Jesus describes the case of those who will seek to enter in after the door has been shut.—Comp. Mt. vii. 21—3, § 19, p. 140.

—— 28—30. As in Mt. viii. 11—.3, § 28, p. 220, Jesus describes the disappointment of those who presume upon their natural descent, when they will see strangers from all the ends of the earth, enjoying with the patriarchs the kingdom, whilst they themselves are thrust out.

Lu. xiii. 31. Certain Pharisees advise Jesus to get away out of Herod's dominions, else Herod will kill him.

—— 32, .3. Jesus bids them 'tell that fox,' that for two days longer he may have an opportunity of seeing his miracles; which, after the third day, he may vainly desire to witness.—Jesus intimates that he is about to be put to death in Jerusalem, which has a monopoly of killing the prophets.

—— 34, .5. Jesus laments over Jerusalem, and declares the temple desolate.—See also Mt. xxiii. 37—.9, § 85, p. 320.

(G. 36.)—No. 66.—Jesus answers the question, Lord, are there few that be saved? Luke xiii. 22—30.

22 And he went through the cities and villages, teaching, and journeying toward Jerusalem.

23 Then said one unto him, Lord, are there few that be saved? And he said unto them,

24 Strive Αγωνιζεσθε to enter in at the strait gate: for many, I say unto you, will seek to-

25 enter in, and shall not be able ισχυσουσιν. When once the master of the house is

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xiii. 22. through the cities and villages, &c.—see Mt. ix. 35, § 38, p. 293.

journeying toward Jerusalem—see on his determination to go to Jerusalem, ch. ix. 51, § 59, p. 135.

23. are there few that be saved?—Jesus had before said, Mt. vii. 13, .4, § 19, p. 139, 'Enter ye in at the strait gate: . . . because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.'—But it is not to be so always; for of Christ it is said, Ps. lxxii. 17, 'All nations shall call him blessed.'—See also Rev. vii. 9, 'After this I beheld, and, lo, a great,' &c.—See on ver. 28, p. 178.

24. will seek, &c.—Jesus had said to the Jews, Jno. vii. 34, § 55, p. 94, 'Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come.'

25. When once, &c.—Salvation is to be sought for now: He. iii. 15, 'To-day if ye will hear his voice,' &c.—Ps. xxxii. 6, 'For this shall every one that is godly pray unto thee in a time when thou mayest be found:'—Is. lv. 6, 'Seek ye the LORD while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near:'

NOTES.

Lu. xiii. 22. Journeying toward Jerusalem. See ADDENDA, § 59, p. 138.

[23. Are there few that be saved? It is a received opinion among some of the Jews, that all Israel shall have a part in the world to come; others limit salvation to a few elect, see 2 Esdr. viii. 1; and this man might put the question to know Christ's view of the matter. Our Lord (agreeably to his custom of never replying to questions of mere curiosity) was pleased to return no answer; but makes his words an answer to the question which ought rather to have been asked, namely, how salvation is to be attained. He exhorts his hearers to secure their own salvation before it should be too late.

24. Strive, &c. αγωνιζεσθε, 'contend,' 'strive, as in an agony,' 'exert your utmost strength to enter in.—Doddr. 'Strive as those that run for a prize; excite and exert yourselves to the utmost.'—Hen. Let your salvation be the grand business of your life.]

Strait gate. See on Mt. vii. 13, § 19, p. 139. The christian course, which leadeth unto life eternal, is so beset with trials and temptations, that only such as pursue an undeviating life of faith in the Son of God, doing unto others as they would have others do unto them, can realize it.

Many . . . will seek to enter in, &c. Many by their own fancied righteousness seek to gain eternal life; but only such as trust in the finished work of Christ, and are willing to be conformed to his righteousness, can be admitted to the marriage supper of the Lamb.

There seems to be a contrast between striving and seeking; also between striving now, when the door is open, and seeking hereafter to have entrance, when the door has been shut. We are to be not merely passive; we are to put forth energy; and we are to do it now. We are to be careful that we begin aright; and we are to take heed to our ways, that we make progress in the right direction.

25. When once the master of the house, &c. Here our Lord speaks of himself as possessed of full power to admit, or shut out, whom he will.—Comp. He. iii. 6.

PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

Lu. xiii. 22. If apology be necessary, itinerant preachers and teachers have the highest example to plead in their behalf.

We should endeavour to make our journeys useful to the spread of the truth.

[23 ver. Let us thankfully accept salvation through Christ, and endeavour to make it known to others, rather than curiously inquire into the number of the saved. And yet, when we look at those portions of the globe which have remained in heathen darkness, or are sunk in superstition, as compared with those where the light of the gospel is freely diffused; and again, when we think of the vast numbers of irreligious and unconverted that swarm in gospel lands, as contrasted with the true disciples of Christ, we are almost tempted to repeat the question, 'Lord, are there few that be saved?' The case, however, is very different now from what it was when Jesus was journeying with his little flock, to where he was about to suffer as a malefactor; and doubtless the difference will be abundantly greater, when the knowledge of the glory of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea; when all nations shall be blessed in him, and call him blessed.]

24 ver. Though salvation be the free gift of God, let us not think that it is ours by a wish, without our wills being put forth in earnest persevering effort, to become acquainted with Christ in his fulness of truth and grace.

Now we may agonize successfully; but should the opportunity be lost, we may suffer the agony of disappointment. 'Now is the accepted time,' &c.

TAKE HEED, BRETHREN, LEST THERE BE IN ANY OF YOU AN EVIL HEART OF UNBELIEF.—Heb. iii. 12.

TO-DAY IF YE WILL HEAR HIS VOICE, HARDEN NOT YOUR HEARTS, AS IN THE PROVOCATION.—Heb. iii. 15.

risen-up, and hath-shut-to the door, and ye-begin to-stand without, and to-knock-at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto-us; and he-shall-answer and-say unto-you, I-know 26 you not whence ye-are: then shall-ye-begin to-say, We-have-eaten and drunk in-thy 27 presence, and thou-hast-taught in our streets. But he-shall-say, I-tell you, I-know you 28 not whence ye-are; depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity ἀδικίας. There shall-be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye-shall-see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out ἐκβαλλομένους 29 ἔξω. And they-shall-come from the-east, and from the-west, and from the-north, and 30 from the-south, and shall-sit-down in the kingdom of God. And, behold, there-are last which shall-be first, and there-are first which shall be last.

(G. 37.)—Jesus advised by certain of the Pharisees to depart out of Herod's dominions; He laments over Jerusalem.—Luke xiii. 31—5.*

31 The same day there-came certain of the Pharisees, saying unto-him, Get-thee-out, and 32 depart hence: for Herod will kill thee. And he-said unto-them, Go-ye, and-tell that

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Lu. xiii. 25. shut to the door—Mt. xxv. 10, § 86, p. 317, 'They that were ready went in with him to the marriage: and the door was shut.'

Lord, Lord, open unto us, &c.—see on Mt. vii. 21, § 19, p. 140, 'Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven;'

I know you not—see on Mt. vii. 23, § 19, p. 141.

28. There shall be weeping, &c.—see on Mt. viii. 12, § 28, p. 220.

see Abraham, &c.—see Mt. viii. 11, § ib.—It is observable that the description of the redeemed, Rev. vii. 9, 10, is correspondent to the three names, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—Abraham meaning 'the father of a great multitude.'—'After this I beheld, and, lo, a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues,'—Jacob means 'supplanter,' and Israel 'prince of God, or prevailer'—and these are described as having overcome, thus they 'stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands;'—Isaac means 'laughter'—and these have been made glad, 'and cried with a loud voice, saying, Salvation to our God which sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb.'

